LIBRARY

LIBRARY
SEP 19 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 1 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1963

UM Registrar Retires, Secretary Resigns

Two of UMass' top administrators will be leaving their posts, it was announced over the summer. Registrar Marshall O. Lanphear will retire in November, while Secretary of the University John Ryan is already on his way to Arizona State University where he will assume the positon of Vice-President and Professor of Political Science.

IN HIS NEW POST at Arizona State University, Dr. Ryan will be responsible to the president for administration aspects of the University's academic, student affairs, extension and research programs as well as other areas.

UMass President John W. Lederle accepted the 34-year-old educator's resignation "with great reluctance and regret."

The president praised Dr. Ryan for "his substantial contribution to the University's program and for the high promise he has shown for even greater contributions in the future."

LEDERLE SAID THAT "The Arizona State University position was too good an opportunity for Dr. Ryan to turn down. We wish him our very best for outstanding success in the higher post he has accepted at Arizona State."

(Continued on page 4)

New Traffic Rules Will Relieve Chaos

Students returning to the University were mildly shocked to find it a proliferation of signs. The signs state where one can park, where one cannot park, as well as where one can have his car towed. The signs are part of the new traffic rules and regulations. The program, under supervision of former Air Science professor Col. John Marchant, hopes to bring order out of the once chaotic conditions on campus.

By far the most controversial section of the new rules is that which provides for a $3 fee to register a car. Students, faculty, and staff have all registered their opposition to the fee. However, according to Col. Marchant, the charge is merely assessed to pay for the decals which are affixed to the bumpers of all registered autos.

All violations of the rules will result in fines. However, this year, those receiving a "ticket" will have to pay all fines to the clerk of the Northampton District court.

Persons wishing to register cars must bring the following items with them to registration: their license and registration

(Continued on page 6)

OPENING CONVO

The Opening Convocation for the coming school year will be held in the Ballroom of the Student Union at 11:15 a.m., Thursday, September 26, 1963. President Lederle will present his annual policy message to the Faculty and students. Provost Woodside will chair the convocation. Chaplain Ruchames will give the Invocation. There will be an academic procession. A large turnout of students is hoped for.

New Students Produce Crowding On Campus

SEPTEMBER 1963—The new high rise dorms were originally scheduled for completion this month. In the background is the tower atop of Van Meter House which has been transformed into a women's dorm in an effort to compensate for the late completion date, now set for September 1964.

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

The added numbers of UMass students, combined with the incomplete state of the new six-story dormitories on Van Meter hill at the north end of the campus, has resulted in what many observers claim is the most crowded state the University has ever seen.

Roughly one quarter of the rooms on campus are being occupied above their intended capacity.

The number of undergraduates commuting to campus this year has jumped to over 900, an increase of at least 350 over last year's figure.

This means that more than 500 graduate and undergraduate UMass students are looking for apartments and rooms in Amherst, Hadley, Northampton, Sunderland, Deerfield, and other nearby towns.

The University Housing office earlier issued an appeal to householders in the area, who have room for students. The "need for

(Continued on page 4)

Campus Pond Receives Tenants

by OLEH PAWLUK '65

Incoming students this semester are being welcomed back with something new and unique in UMass history — swans and ducks in the campus pond.

Early in August several cygnets and ducks were placed in the University pond on a trial basis. A shelter was erected on the island and the birds' wings were clipped to prevent them from flying away. The newcomers adapted quickly to their environment and soon a few more birds were added. Presently there are 4 swans and 14 ducks in the pond.

The birds have been introduced to the campus for 2 primary reasons. First of all, they provide efficient weed control, replacing the more expensive and dangerous method of eliminating weeds through use of harmful chemicals. Secondly, the birds are of aesthetic value, as anyone who has observed these graceful creatures go about their daily existence can testify. Moreover, the swans will become even more beautiful as winter approaches, for the color of their plumage will change from a light brown to a snow white.

THE TWO NEWEST members of the UM campus greet each other.

The administration hopes that the student body will appreciate the birds and not unduly disturb them. Tampering with the swans could prove quite dangerous, for their large wings are capable of inflicting severe injury, even to the extent of breaking an arm.

As for any possibility of the birds interfering with skating activity, students need not worry, for in all probability the swans and ducks will be removed for the winter or confined to a small area of the pond.

The introduction of the birds to the University pond will undoubtedly prove a worthwhile effort and it will be no surprise should these newcomers become as much a symbol of UMass as our renowned Metawampee.

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

For Freshmen Only

YOU

Freshmen . . . advice. These words have too much in common. For it is what the senior in high school hears the moment he is accepted at college. Now that you are beginning the experience so long awaited there is no advice worth while except that which you have delved out yourself. If you're not apprehensive about what lies ahead of you you shouldn't be here. The drop out statistics of freshman classes entering the University of Massachusetts shows that incoming students weren't apprehensive enough—that is, not enough to prepare themselves for the experience which lies ahead. It's a challenge. It's important.

The University is a vast reservoir. We, its students, each of us a minute part of its functioning, are brought to it by the administration and faculty. There are no means for us to tap this reservoir except through an outlet we forge ourselves. It remains closed unless we ourselves bid. And yet the potential openings are innumerable. You have to do it yourself. No one is going to help you. You can saunter through four years, just getting by, not caring about becoming creative or educated. Or you really don't have to bother yourself to learn how to relate to people.

One does not have to attain all A's to get the most out of the University. The Reservoir consists of speakers, courses, extracurricular groups, interests, shows, drama. The initiative has to come from within you. If it doesn't arise from there it won't be at all.

Are you bored? Are these remarks joining countless others you've heard? Probably the same number of students will have to leave school whether it was written or not. Well it has to be said. College is serious business. Not because of what it can get you materially, but what you can do for yourself. Part of the problem is that some of you don't care enough about yourselves. Thus helping yourself has no value.

You will never again have so many opportunities and resources at your disposal. For the next four years you will live like gentlemen and ladies of the eighteenth and nineteenth century, with professors, musicians, pools, tennis courts, stables. I could go on, but I won't. It's your four years. Make of them what you want.

G.M.M.

The Physotomous Phthriasis

by SAM GORVINE

This is a column as new to the COLLEGIAN as I am. It will, I hope, be written in the humble realization that nine out of ten people read the COLLEGIAN either at supper or in the w.c. (If you eat in a University dining hall there's no difference.) I will not trouble you with international politics, which I don't understand, or the publish or perish crisis which bores me as much as it does you.

I am biased, predjudiced, and my sources of information are no better than yours. So, with all this off my chest, perhaps I can put in this column a few things that you will find of passing interest over your daily portion of anonymous Commons "meat."

A WORD TO THE CLASS OF '67

Look around you freshman. (If you are reading this in the w.c. don't bother.) If you can see a hundred beanies bobbing jauntily about, or bent intently over supper, or perched sadly above faces expressionless with loneliness, imagine fifty-one of them gone. When the year stamped on your hat rolls around, that's the way it will be.

Chances are you won't be here either. Why not? Not because you haven't got the smarts, kiddo. If you got in here, the experts say you should leave with that all-important piece of parchment.

But why won't you? Because maybe you hate your old man who made you go to college and boy are you gonna fix him. Or maybe you're gonna prove how smart you are by getting good marks without studying. Or if you're really messed up and don't think much of yourself, you can prove it every night with cards, beer, or broads. Let me tell you, man, there are a lotta roads here and most of them lead right the hell out.

Of the forty-nine left, how many get an education? No, the sheepskin doesn't mean you got an education; it just means that you took a specified number and distribution of courses from people who may or may not have known what they were talking about.

You can walk off that graduation platform an educated man or a boy in a funny hat. The chances of being somewhere in the middle are slim here because we have some excellent depart-

(Continued on page 6)

Within Ourselves

Not in the clamor of the crowded street, not in the shouts and plaudits of the throng, but in ourselves, are triumph and defeat.

—The Poets

Embarking upon a new venture is often a difficult and frightening experience, especially when this venture encompasses the expectations within ourselves and those who are meaningful to us. Yet, no matter what the expectations, the ultimate solution lies within ourselves. At our age, the love of pleasures is not unbecoming. The danger however is setting ourselves in erroneous pursuit and falling victim to profligate pleasure. Pleasure cannot be the business of a man of sense. It is on the other hand his relief and reward.

Accomplishment and knowledge are the watchwords of our society, our educational system, and our future. Upon first arriving on the college scene, it is altogether too easy for the Freshman to lose cite of his goals. The University provides the medium in which a Freshman might attain pleasures and book-knowledge.

This is indeed important. Yet, of eevn greater significance is the process which has its beginning at this period in the life of a Freshman and continues in the hope of fruition—maturity. Recognition of the feelings of others; how to cope with ones own feelings; how to relate with others with sensitivity; how to perceive and love; all of this growth can begin now if the Freshman is always extraordinarily aware of this metamorphosis in his life. This first year is a year of choice. It is a year in which decisions badly made will echo throughout four college years. These coming years might act as a foundation or a detriment. Act with moderation and forethought. Success is won only by reason. Good luck to you all.

P.F.L.

TOWN AND CAMPUS, A NEW LOOK

A cursory examination of the relationship between educational institutions and the towns in which they're located, reveals that a strand of tension has more than once existed between them. Medieval accounts speak of dirk carying students fighting club carrying townspeople. Today, if the relation-

(Continued on page 6)

I Have Walked This Way Before

by JOHN B. CHILDS

"I have walked this way before," said the voice of The Revolution. "I have walked hard on the streets of Paris and I have glided softly through the minds of many men, of Socrates, Locke, Juarez."

So it was that the voice of The Revolution spoke. Some heard and some did not hear. Some pulled out their calculators and put the recent March On Washington on a glass slide. "What was the percentage of its effectiveness?" they said. "How much of this did it do? How much of that did it do?"

The voice of The Revolution went unhindered. "I have walked hard" it said. "And I have glided softly." The March on Washington glided softly. It flowed as a stream in many minds of many men. Can one measure such a flow?

The March On Washington came and went. The Halls of Congress did not come tumbling down before it. The racial hatred still makes the news headlines. But the Voice has been heard once again, more strongly, more powerfully.

It was a day of the soft gliding for the Voice of the Revolution. The Revolution . . . it has walked in more than one way over the many thousand years. Despise it not for its different forms.

Letters To The Editor

Letters to the Editor are welcome at anytime. They can be concerned with every conceivable topic. They can be reasonably objective, clear, concise. They can be muddled, confused, unreasonably subjective. They can have a purpose. They can be meaningless. They can be praise or a plain gripe. They are all welcome.

Certain rules have to be observed.

(1) They have to be signed

(2) They should be typewritten.

(3) They should be left in the Editorial Editor's desk. Not all will be published. The Editor reserves the right to discard any letters.

(This is the first of many traditional letters about our UMass pathways.)

To the Editor:

I been on this here campus for nigh on t' three years, and that's long enough, sonny, to have seen a certain stretch of sidewalk done, and redone, only to be undone again. The pathway in concern runs (or ran) between the Public Health Building and Morrill Science Center—the main artery from the dorms on the hill to the center of campus. Others might also remember the dozen odd times that this area was paved and landscaped, patched for cave-ins and patched at the breaks in the poor patches. Now the entire area is blocked off and again dug up, this time for the new wing to Morrill.

With no alternate path provided for this important point, students are finding things difficult. But let's forgive and forget what once more proved to be wastefulness and lack of foresight in campus planning. Let's also pray for quick action to alleviate the problem. Temporary tar paths should be mapped out, perhaps down the hill to the right front of the Pub. Health Bldg. If such walks are not supplied, the inevitable muddy gorge will be hacked in the nearby lawns. The Halls of Morrill and Pub. Health will be flooded by students looking for convenient routes. And the Editorial Editor can get more letters like this complaining about the mess!

Muddy Old Timer

Procedure For Editorials

Those editorials with a name at the top or initials at the bottom express the feelings and attitude of the individuals named and not those of the paper.

Editorials which are not initialed or named indicate the feelings and sentiments of the Executive Board of the Collegian. Anybody wishing to write editorials, submit name or an editorial to the Editor's desk in the Collegian office.

The Massachusetts Collegian

Editor-in-Chief:	Jeffrey Davidow '65
Editorial Editor:	George Masselam '65
News Editor:	Elwin McNamara '64
Photography Editor:	Ron Goldberg '66
Sports Editors:	Scott Freedland '66
	John Reynolds '65
	Richard Ryan '66
Business Manager:	Courtney Brickman '64
News Makeup Editor:	James Schmalz '65
Feature Editor:	David Axelrod '65

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.

Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press

Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

University Theatre Starts Second Season

1963-64, the first academic year of UMass' second century of outstanding achievement also marks the second year of the University of Massachusetts Theatre.

After a successful first season of plays, lectures, and courses, the Theatre, a UT spokesman said, is continuing its promise to present the very best dramatic literature in distinctive productions which are related to the spirit of the age that produced them.

This year the University Theatre will offer five plays, four lectures, and two exhibitions of theatrical art. The first play planned for the '63-64 season will be The Twin Menaechmi, by the master of Roman comedy, Titus Plautus. Hendrick Ibsen's Ghosts will be next, followed by Shakespeare's Othello, which will be presented during the March Fine Arts Festival.

Also in March there will be a new feature of the University Theatre, a reading production of a new play by an American playwright. The current season will then come to a close in April with an Arena production of Robert Penn Warren's All The King's Men.

Season tickets for this year's program are now on sale for $5. The supply of season tickets is limited, and may be obtained from a member of the Roister Doister Drama club or by sending a check to the University Theatre, Department of Speech.

(Continued on page 4)

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
Any pizza on menu
Second at half price
This coupon worth over
$2.00
Dividend value 50%

Yahoo Sees Future Hopes Improving

Axel, editor of Yahoo, the campus humor magazine, sees a good year ahead. The magazine received encouragement and one member of the staff a financial windfall in the first mail this September. Rainer Bertrams, artist and writer on the Yahoo staff, has had his article, "Why Little Red Ridinghood Has Fleas in her Beard", reprinted in the October issue of Cavalier Magazine. Also reprinted, with credit, from the past three issues of Yahoo were three jokes, part of a featured anthologoy of college humor included in the latest Cavalier.

It also appears that an increasing number of students are showing interest in Yahoo. Over

(Continued on page 4)

CLUB DIRECTORY

ALPHIA LAMBDA DELTA—PHI ETA SIGMA
Joint meeting on Thurs., Sept. 19, at 11 a.m. in the Worcester room of the S.U.

ART AND MUSIC COMMITTEE
Open meeting on Wed., Sept. 18, at 7 p.m. in the Worcester room of the S.U. All interested are welcome.

CONCERT ASSOCIATION
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 18, at 6:30 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. Freshmen especially welcome.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB
Organizational meeting for all interested on Thurs., Sept. 19, at 7:30 in the Middlesex room of the S.U.

HILLEL EXECUTIVE BOARD
Meeting on Tues., Sept. 17, at 6:30 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. Freshmen urged to attend.

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL
Pre-rushing convocation on Wed., Sept. 18, from 8 to 11 p.m. in ballroom of S.U. All freshmen men cordially in-

ORIENTAL SPORTS CLUB
Organizational meeting on Tues., Sept. 17, at 8 p.m. in the Worcester B room of the S.U. Members unable to attend should notify officers.

ROISTER DOISTERS
Meeting on Tues., Sept. 17 at 6:30 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. All interested are invited.

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Sept. 19, at 6:30 p.m. in tme Worcester room of the S.U. Coeds welcome.

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION
Open executive board meeting on Tues., Sept. 17, at 8 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U.

YAHOO
Meeting on Tues., Sept. 17, at 6:30 p.m. in the Senate Chambers of the S.U. All freshmen urged to attend.

Dr. Harlow Conducts UCS Study

A University of Massachusetts educator, Dr. Dana E. Harlow, has been granted an eighteen-month leave of absence to serve as a research consultant with the United Community Services of Metropolitan Boston.

Dr. Harlow, an assistant professor of recreation, will direct a study of the ten-year capital outlay needs of the UCS's indoor and outdoor recreation facilities.

According to UCS president Theodore Chase, the ten-year projected survey "is the first long-range socio-economic facility study related to recreational research to be done by community social and welfare services."

The survey will encompass the recreational needs of the two and one-half million people currently served by the UCS in the metropolitan Boston area.

Special attention will be paid in the study to recreation administration, supervision and program development, and to the acquisition of new property and construction of new facilities.

Buy Sell
USED TEXTS
AT
BAUCOM'S
AND Save!!
108 N. Pleasant, Amherst, Mass.

Welcome Specialty Gift
and
Card Shop
98 N. PLEASANT ST.
A habit for all your cards, gift stationery, and costume jewelry needs

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
Buy $10 worth of clothing
Receive free $4.00 shirt
This coupon worth $4.00
Dividend value 40%

IF YOU READ
If You Take An Interest In What Surrounds You.....
If You Want Yours To Be A Vital Personality In A Vital Age.....Then ACT NOW!!

Campus Magazines, realizing the impact of the college student on the world today, is able to make this following special offer to bona-fide students of the University of Massachusetts. Campus Magazines is the authorized agent on campus for reduced rate subscriptions to TIME, LIFE, NEWSWEEK and SPORTS ILLUSTRATED. ACT NOW to receive STUDENT RATE subscriptions to America's most highly-regarded publications by mailing the postage free reply cards that are conveniently located throughout campus.

You pay nothing, of course, until after you begin receiving your first copies. Your magazines will be mailed directly to your room on campus or in town. You are urged to avail yourself of this opportunity now, since this special offer must necessarily be for only a limited time.

Campus Magazines
Box 682
Amherst

TIME LIFE NEWSWEEK

Save $50-$100
The Amherst Jaycees Proudly Present the
JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
A service project to:
- Offer Students Substantial Savings by Shopping in Amherst

33 DIFFERENT SAVING OPPORTUNITIES
when a student makes a purchase at the regular price, with the coupon he is given an additional value or price reduction. In the process he will accumulate $100 worth of savings for only $5.00
Real Savings! Real Values!
COST $5.00 SAVINGS $100
Stationery Clothes Dry Cleaning Shoes Desk Lamps Wastebaskets Gas & Oil Notebooks Film Toothbrushes Records Diamond Needles Artist Supplies Paints Laundry Dinners
COUPONS BEING SOLD BY
ADELPHIANS IN TICKET OFFICE, STUDENT UNION 7 P.M. TO 10 P.M.
1-4 P.M. IN S.U. BEGINNING TUESDAY

W.S.O. Goes National With Gamma Sigma Sigma

In June, at the sixth National Convention of Gamma Sigma Sigma, held at the University of Maryland, the Women's Service Organization of UMass, was installed as Alpha Theta Chapter of the national service sorority. Jean Sargent, President, and Lois Heselton, Second Vice President, were among the 150 delegates to the convention, representing 25 colleges throughout the United States.

Ac'ive in campus and community affairs, GGS emphasizes the ideals of service, friendship, and equality, and is open to all University women. The projects they undertake are many and varied; already this year they have co-sponsored the Book Exchange and helped with the President's reception for freshmen and a reception for foreign students. Other plans for this year include running an information booth during United Nations Week in October and sponsoring a Sadie Hawkins dance in February to adopt an orphan.

Knowles Flower Shop

NO. PLEASANT, AMHERST

FLOWERS FOR ANY OCCASION

and

EXCLUSIVE WIRE SERVICE

GREEN STREET SHOPS

Northampton — Next to Smith Campus

Discover delightful GREEN STREET SHOPS now . . . and be truly amazed at the modest cost of Specialties in these smart shops.

ANGOTTI — Beautiful Clothes

KNITTING NOOK — Imported & Domestic Yarns

FREDRIKS-LAROCK — Finest in Photography

QUILL BOOKSHOP — College Supplies - Records

LAURA GIRARD SHOP — Lingerie - Separates

MARGARET NELSON — Sportswear - Gifts

HAMPSHIRE BOOK SHOP — Stationery - Unusual Gifts

THE COUNTY MISS — Long Gowns - Better Dresses

EMPSALL'S SPORT SHOP — Tennis - Riding Togs

JOHN EVERETS — Clothing for all occasions

NORTHAMPTON TRAVEL BUREAU — Imported Gifts

Girls Wanted For UMass Angel Flight

All interested girls are encouraged to attend an organizational meeting of the Angel Flight, Tuesday, September 17, at 7 p.m. in the Nantucket Room of the Student Union.

The Angel Flights, a national organiation of campus coeds, is affiliated with the Arnold Air Society, a professional honorary service organization of advanced AFROTC cadets. There are Angel Flights at many colleges throughout the United States, including Boston University.

Usually the group performs as a drill team, but its primary function is social. Members will serve as hostesses for the ROTC Detachment when visiting dignitaries are on campus, sponsor social events, and guide public relations in regard to women's careers in the Air Force. The majority of these functions will be done in close conjunction with the Arnold Air Society.

Those interested in forming an Angel Flight are welcome at this meeting. Three representatives of the Arnold Air Society will be present to lead an informal discussion and to answer any questions which may arise. We hope tions which may arise.

New Students . . .

(Continued from page 1)

student housing is urgent," the appeal stated.

The high-rise dormitories, originally slated for completion on September 1 of this year, will not open until next September or later. Since beginning construction, the M. J. Walsh Co., the prime contractor, has been plagued with delays.

. . . Might Mean Trouble?

The administration's decision to house women students in Van Meter, formerly a men's dormitory, has been questioned by many in light of trouble resulting from a similar move. Last year when women students were moved into Brooks, previously a male residence hall, the moves were made so that all women students could be housed on-campus and only men need move off.

Brooks was last year the scene of several disturbances which occasioned action by campus and state police as well as by UM administration.

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
300-sheets W-Jones Notebook Paper 95¢, Free 49¢ Binder
3 Ring by National
Dividend value 51%

Better Sales- Better Buys At APO Exchange

All students benefit from the Book Exchange sponsored by GSS - APO in the Hampden-Franklin Room. Freshmen can buy used books at reasonably low rates; upperclassmen and graduate students can easily buy and sell books in one trip.

If you bring books to sell, there is a simple form to fill out for each book which insures return of the book if it is not sold. Please be sure to save your receipt; otherwise, your books will become the property of the Book Exchange.

Included in the price of each book selling for over one dollar is a ten-cent charge to cover costs of publicity and supplies. Books under a dollar have a five-cent change.

Books will be sold through Thursday, the 19th, and must be picked up Thursday and Friday.

Lanphear . . .

(Continued from page 1)

REGISTRAR LANPHEAR, a living legend to 16,000 alumni and 8,700 students at the University of Massachusetts, will retire in November after 42 years as University Registrar.

A graduate of the University in 1918, Registrar Lanphear has devoted his life to selecting from all applicants those young men and women who would profit most from a University education.

DURING HIS YEARS as chief admissions officer, he has seen the University grow from Massachusetts Agricultural College with fewer than 500 students, to the state University with more than 8,700 students. He has served under six presidents.

In announcing the Registrar's retirement, UMass President John W. Lederle said, "Marshall Lanphear is, and has been for many years, a vital force in the University's growth. I know I speak for the thousands of alumni, students, faculty and friends of the University, when I say that we are losing one of the great men in the University's 100-year history. An outstanding educator, Registrar Lanphear has shown many times in recent years the rare quality of flexi-opment of a rapidly growing uni-opment of a rapidly growth university. We will miss his wisdom, counsel and humor."

DESPITE THE MANY changes in admissions procedures, including computer handling of much of the statistical material, Registrar Lanphear continues to use the personal approach, interviewing many of the applicants himself.

Dr. William D. Tunis, present director of the University of Massachusetts' Waltham Field Station, has been appointed Lanphear's successor, with the new title of University Dean of Admissions and Records.

NOTICES

EXAMINATIONS

Applications are now being accepted for the 1964 Federal Service Entrance Examination. This examination, open to college seniors and graduates, offers the opportunity to begin a career in the Federal service in one of 60 occupational fields. Starting salaries for persons appointed from this examination will range from $4,490 to $5,795 a year. A written test is required except for those candidates who have attained a sufficiently high score on the Graduate Record Examination Aptitude Test. Applicants who file by Sept. 19, 1963 will be scheduled for the first written test on Oct. 12, 1963. Six additional tests have been scheduled. The closing date is April 14, 1964.

Management Internships with starting salaries of from $5,795 to $7,030 a year will also be filled from this examination. An additional written examination will be required for these positions. Deadline is Jan. 16, 1964.

Further information may be had from the placement office or from the U.S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D.C.

TRYOUTS

The University Theatre will hold tryouts for their production of the Twin Menaechmi tonight at 7 p.m. in 125 Bartlett Hall. This play has rolls for three women and eleven men and affords an opportunity for all types of talent: singing, dancing, tumbling, farce comedy, and straight acting.

For further information contact Prof. Catalano in the Speech Dept. Telephone 545-2663.

Ya-Hoo . . .

(Continued from page 3)

150 letters were mailed this summer, to incoming Freshmen who circled the magazine as an extra-curricular they would like to join. The returning staff, numbering about twenty, is already formulating their first furtive attempt, details of which will be devulged at the first Yahoo meeting, Tuesday, Sept. 19, at 6:30 in the Senate Chambers.

University Theatre . . .

(Continued from page 3)

For students who like to act, a reminder that tryouts for the first play are being held tonight, September 16 at 7 in Room 125 Bartlett Hall.

NEWMAN CLUB
First General Meeting
Tuesday, Sept. 17, 7:15 p.m.
Social Hall, Newman Center
Speaker: Msgr. F. J. Lally, Editor of the Boston Pilot
Topic: Ecumenical Council

APPLICATIONS FOR 1964 EXECUTIVE COUNCIL now available at RSO. Must be returned by September 20.

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
All Artist Supplies up to $20.00 worth, ½ price
This coupon worth $10.00
Dividend value 100%

EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY for girl with general insurance experience. Top salary. Group insurance. Paid vacations. Call Miss Ruth F. Simons at ALEXANDER W. BORAWSKI, INC., 88 King Street, Northampton, Mass. JU 4-5555

Frats, Administration Pledge Co-operation

by LEO STANLAKE

Fraternity officers and members of Interfraternity Council were urged to draw up a code of standards by which they may both "judge themselves and be judged by others." The discussion came during a meeting with Dean of Students William Field last Wednesday evening. Field told those assembled that fraternities "must accept the fact that there are other people in the world."

Health and sanitation within the houses will be greatly emphasized as well as a system of monthly inspections to be administered jointly by the Office of the Dean of Men and by the fraternities. Representing the Dean's office will be William Branard, assistant to the Dean. Extensive clean-up and repair operations will have to be undertaken by some of the houses before they will be up to acceptable standard, Field said.

He further stated that unless the fraternities can provide adequate and responsible supervision during mid-semester break and senior week, the houses will have to be closed at these times.

The meeting ended on the theme of increased co-operation between the fraternities and the administration.

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR

Free lubrication and Brake adjustment with this coupon worth $3.25

PHOTO NUTS!

There will be a meeting of the Collegian photo staff Tuesday night at 7:30 in the Collegian office. Any student, especially freshmen, with a photographic inclination is invited to attend.

Other staff positions will also be available at this time.

House of Walsh

FOR WOMEN STUDENTS

FOR MEN STUDENTS

Amherst

DRESSES
SUITS
SWEATERS
SLACKS
SHORTS
SKIRTS
BLOUSES
TOPCOATS
HANDBAGS
BELTS
HOSE

SUITS
SPORTCOATS
TOPCOATS
FOOTWEAR SHIRTS
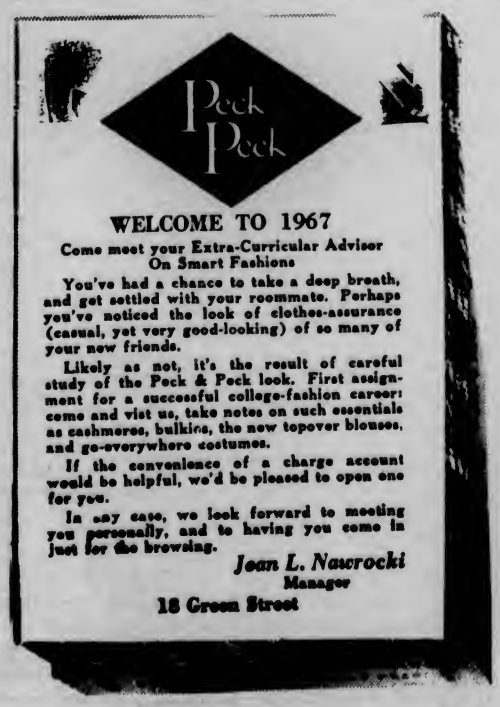
SLACKS
SWEATERS

Handsome reversible "UNIVERSITY" jacket $19.95

Blazer buttons set of 7



University To Offer Ed. Degree

The University will offer a doctorate in Education starting in the fall semester of 1963, it was announced today by Dr. Edward C. Moore, Dean of the Graduate School.

The University is the first public institution in Massachusetts to offer a doctorate in education. It is expected that the state university's new program will help to fulfill the increasing need for scholarly teachers and trained researchers in education.

The Ed.D. program will help to meet the special educational need for teachers and other school personnel who are not only strong in their special field, but are also proficient in the use of statistics and modern computer equipment.

Requirements for the Ed.D. program will be the same as for the University's Ph.D. program except that the customary foreign language requirement will be replaced by two specialized research techniques.

According to Dean Moore, "The new School of Education building and the attached Mark's Meadow Laboratory School offer the finest facilities for graduate research in the country." The Mark's Meadow School has an overhead observation corridor that permits observation of the two classes in each of the six grades. The closed

(Continued on page 6)

Frosh Meet President At Friday's Reception

AT RECEPTION Friday night President John W. Lederle greets Linda Gustafson of Johnson House. Lederle, Mrs. Lederle, and other distinguished members of the administration received over a thousand members of the large class of '67.

Amherst Merchants Give Students A Break

Adelphia, senior mens' honor society, in cooperation with the Amherst Junior Chamber of Commerce is offering UMass students a savings of nearly $100 in merchandise.

A book of 33 coupons, estimated by jaycees to be worth $100, is being sold by Adelphia daily in the S.U. lobby for $3.

The jaycee promotion is intended to introduce University students to Amherst merchants by offering goods and services at reduced prices ranging to 100 percent.

Representative values include these:

A local pizza house is offering a second order of any pizza on the list at half-price.

A paint merchant is offering two for the price of one in his entire art supply line. A camera shop has the same arrangement.

Two restaurants are offering a second meal for half-price.

All clothing, shoe, drug, book and stationery stores are involved as well as a record shop, laundry, dry cleaners, tobacco shop, hardware store, furniture store, printing shop and two gas stations.

Jaycee chairman George Como has termed the offer "something of real value to the students. In this manner we hope to give the student a financial lift, and at the same time introduce the student to local merchants."

Como said the jaycees have worked two months to plan useful values for students with the merchants. He said all merchants involved have signed contracts, and that all cost and risk is being borne by the organization.

Como's assistant Jake Bishop praised local merchants and explained: "With education being the main industry, we think it makes sense to attract as much student business as possible to our town. It is particularly important since free student bus service is no longer available."

Jaycee president Everett Kosarick said the project is aimed at bettering "town-gown" relations.

Adelphia is receiving an agents fee of $1 per sale to finance Adelphian projects.

Six Thousand Visitors Cram Campus For AIBS Meeting

MORE THAN 4,000 scientists from all parts of the United States converged on the town of Amherst late last month to attend the 15th annual meeting of the American Institute of Biological Sciences (AIBS) at the University of Massachusetts.

The week-long series of meetings was held August 25-30. Since many of the scientists brought their families, there were over 6,000 visitors to the UMass campus and the town of Amherst.

AIBS is composed of scholars and researchers connected with educational institutions, industrial organizations, and governmental agencies. AIBS encompasses many separate specialized biological, horticultural, and pharmaceutical associations.

DURING AIBS MEETINGS, member societies held symposia and meetings for the presentation of research papers.

As in the past, many of these research papers disclosed significant scientific findings. An exhibition by manufacturers of professional equipment and by publishers of scientific texts was also staged during the conference.

UMass was selected to host the 1963 gathering because of its resources—physical facilities, research programs, and general academic setting. Much of the AIBS activity was centered about the large Justin Morrill Science Center.

Not so long ago, people thought that college towns existed in an extreme state of lassitude during the summer months, calmly awaiting the next flood of expectant young scholars.

Extended summer sessions and educational conferences on many campuses have tended to dispel that idea during the last few years. The University of Massachusetts is no exception.

Every large classroom, auditorium and laboratory has been in constant use during the four-day session to accommodate the 24 societies for the presentation of nearly 2,000 research papers.

MUTUAL
FOR STUDENT NEEDS

Zenith Radio
Alarm Clocks
Curtain Rods
Window Shades
Window Screens
Towel Bars
Sports Goods
Tools
Gifts
Extension Cords
Bulbs
Clothes Racks

MUTUAL Plumbing & Heating Co.
63 S. Pleasant Amherst

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR

Diamond needles From $8.50 to $10.50

40% off with this coupon

New Book Explores Abolitionist Movement

The fiery words which sparked America's bloody Civil War are the subject of a new book, "The Abolitionists," written by Dr. Louis Ruchames, a Northampton, Mass. historian and chaplain to Jewish students at the University, Smith and Amherst Colleges.

The collection of anti-slavery tracts and essays by leaders of the abolition movement was recently published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York, and contains an introductory essay and informative editorial notes by Dr. Ruchames relating to the timing and significance of the nineteenth century papers.

Noted American historians who have reviewed the book indicate that Dr. Ruchames' selection of materials brings together anti-slavery documents, particularly those published prior to the 1850's, which have previously been difficult for scholars to find and analyze.

William Lloyd Garrison, Elijah P. Lovejoy and John Greenleaf Whittier are among the famous names included in the collection. The book not only records the zeal of the abolitionists, but also emphasizes the organizational difficulties the reformers encountered in developing their movement into a national force.

"The Abolitionists" is Dr. Ruchames' second major volume on anti-slavery activity preceding the Civil War. In 1960 he served as editor of "A John Brown Reader," a book about the controversial leader who was hanged for his attack on Harper's Ferry in 1859.

A graduate of City College of New York and the Jewish Institute of Religion, Dr. Ruchames holds a Ph.D. degree in sociology from Columbia University. He has contributed many articles to journals of history, and his first book, "Race, Jobs, and Politics: The Story of The F.E.P.C." was published by the Columbia University Press in 1953.

Dr. Ruchames was appointed director of B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations at the University of Massachusetts, Smith and Amherst Colleges in 1944, and has served as visiting lecturer in the department of history at Smith College.

University Receives Estate For Research

Early this summer, the University was given the 90 acre Stephen Peabody estate at Quaise Point on Nantucket Harbor.

The property, valued at over $100,000 will be used for a new research center in marine biology and related fields. Two houses—one to be used as a dormitory, the other as a headquarters—and 2 garages, are provided.

The unique location and climatic advantages of the property will aid the new center as a major contributor in science and the Massachusetts economy, with anticipated support from the Federal government.

The estate is a gift of the Nina Haven Charitable Foundation which was under Mr. Peabody's direction until his death, in 1962.

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
Student Agent for married
Dorms JOE DALTON
Apt. D-1 Suffolk House

Dr. Jones To Run Ed. Grad School

Dr. Clifford V. Jones, former superintendent of schools in Pasaic, New Jersey, has been appointed professor of education at the University, President John W. Lederle announced recently.

An experienced teacher at both the university and secondary school levels, Dr. Jones will assist Dr. Albert W. Purvis, Dean of the UMass School of Education, in the coordination of a new program leading to the doctorate in school administration.

Dr. Jones, a former school principal, has also served as superintendent of school systems in New York and Pennsylvania communities. As a member of the graduate faculty of UMass, he will be associated with the teacher internship program. This provides teaching experience for students at the School of Education through regular assignments with school systems throughout the state.

Dr. Jones graduated from Edinboro (Pa.) State College and received his Master's degree at the University of Pittsburgh. After receiving his doctorate in school administration at Columbia University, he taught graduate courses in educational administration for several sessions at the University of Pittsburgh.

Engineers Start School Early in Experiment

Nearly 90 University of Massachusetts freshmen received a two-week head start on their formidable four-year journey toward an engineering degree Sunday, August 25, to Friday, September 6, in an experimental program sponsored by the University's school of engineering.

The students attended daily classes in mathematics and the history of engineering and took part in an engineering orientation program. All participants were volunteers and tuition was free.

Supported by research grants from the University and the Charles F. Kettering Foundation, the experiment was directed by Dr. Edward J. Rising. The program, he said, is an attempt to help fill society's need for engineers by determining the kinds of academic preparation and student motivation which would enable more students to successfully complete the difficult engineering degree requirements.

Dr. Rising, an associate professor of industrial engineering at UMass, recently announced the first report on the program, which was inaugurated last summer with an enrollment of 41 volunteers. Their records during the academic year, he reports, indicate that nearly 25 percent more of them were successful with introductory engineering mathematics, than students of similar academic backgrounds who did not take part in the experiment.

'DON' CALL
Optician
Why not stop in and have us
RECORD the POWER of your present EYEGLASSES
This will PREVENT difficulty
in case of LOSS or BREAKAGE
In case of BREAKAGE you can bring in BROKEN PIECES
for DUPLICATION
Sunglasses available with or without power
Will make SHATTER-PROOF glasses in own lab.
'DON' CALL—Optician
56 Main St., Amherst

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
See your Adelphian Agents
at the Ticket Office,
Student Union
7 p.m.-10 p.m.

BOLLES
Shoe Store
Main St., Amherst
Come in and get acquainted with our large selection of footwear.
LOAFERS SNEAKERS
SOCKS SLIPPERS
WINTERETTES
For both men and girls

UM Professor Writes Book About Fertility

Dr. Edwin D. Driver, assistant professor of sociology at the University, has written a book, published recently by Princeton University Press.

Dr. Driver's book, "Differential Fertility in Central India," is a study of the effects of income levels, educational achievement, religion, caste and occupation on the fertility of various elements in the Central Indian population.

In his book, Dr. Driver explores the attitudes expressed by various segments of the population toward the social and economic goals of the Indian government, especially their interest in family planning.

Educated at Temple University and the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Driver has been teaching at UMass since 1948.

During the 1957-58 academic year, he was a Fulbright lecturer at Nagpur University in India. Research undertaken in this period forms the basis of his new book.

Dr. Driver is a member of the American Sociological Society and the Massachusetts Conference of Social Work.

French Corridor To Sponsor Film Series This Year

The French Corridor of the University of Massachusetts will again sponsor a series of eight French Classic movies, with English subtitles, to be shown during fall and early winter evenings.

The programs, all but one of which will be shown on Wednesday evenings, will run for two hours, and will be held in Bartlett Auditorium at the University, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The opening show, on Tuesday, Oct. 1, will be "Orpheus." This will be followed by "Beauty and the Beast," on Oct. 16; "Bizarre, Bizarre," on Oct. 30; "Letters from my Windmill," Nov. 6; "Dairy of a Country Priest," Nov. 20; "Papa, Mama, the Maid and I," Dec. 4; "Passionate Summer," Dec. 11; "Senechal the Magnificent," Jan. 8, 1964.

Admission is by subscription only, and tickets may be purchased on campus at the S.U., Sept. 13 through Sept. 21, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 4 to 5 p.m. The public may also obtain tickets for the series by writing to: French Corridor, Dept. of Romance Languages, Bartlett Hall, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.

Town & Campus ...

(Continued from page 2)

ship is less bloody it is still in many cases hostile in some manner.

The recent action by the Amherst Junior Chamber of Commerce regarding their Student Coupon Book program points to a much more cordial town and campus relationship. This program of benefit to the students of Amherst, has been initiated through the financial support and red-tape cutting of the "JC's".

They are to be congratulated for this drive in the interest of others in an age when such interest is often frowned upon. It is indeed a new look in town-campus relations. Perhaps it is also a new look in human relations too. J.B.C.

IFC To Hold Meetings For Frosh

The Inter Fraternity Council will sponsor a number of meetings to be held in all dormitories on Tuesday evening, September 17 at 7:30. Members of the I.F.C. will explain the fraternity system to all interested freshmen.

The informal discussions will cover both the social programs of the fraternities and the academic side of Greek life (the fraternity cumulative average is consistently higher than the overall men's average).

Freshmen will find that these discussions will help him to form an educated opinion about fraternities and Greek life.

Traffic ...

(Continued from page 1)

their ID, their insurance policy, or a duplicate (showing that the vehicle has the following insurance; 5-10 personal liability, extraterritorial, guest, and property damage,) approval from the Dean of Men or Women, and, of course, the $3. The police department makes it clear that there is no point in attempting to register your car unless you have all these.

Education Degree ...

(Continued from page 5)

circuit television, remedial reading clinic, audio-visual equipment, and library in the School of Education Building are other facilities that will aid the graduate program.

Dean Albert W. Purvis, pointed out that the School has a young, enthusiastic faculty of 25 members who have been trained in the latest methods of research and statistics.

Dean Purvis said that the School will continue its present policy of insisting that graduate students receive a strong general education. As in all School of Education graduate programs, almost fifty percent of the course work must be done in the arts and sciences.

Prospective candidates for the Ed.D. in Education at UMass should write to: Dean of the Graduate School, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.

Physotomous ...

(Continued from page 2)

ments and some that stink, but very few happily mediocre. This IS a funny school.

So, gentlemen, if you feel lost now, just a whitecap on a human sea, the better part of which you think MUST be smarter than you, just think that below you is the dark current of boredom that most men endure, in jobs that they cannot stand, with ignorant and discontented wives. This is your chance to swim on the surface and breath fresh air. Keep your head above water, friend.

in just one year the trend is clear...

DECI-LON®

the engineering-science line rule

The trend to DECI-LON is easy to see...easy to understand. This newest concept in slide rule design and operation has won enthusiastic approval among slide rule users.

Good reasons why: greater computing capacity, greater logic, greater consistency, greater everything important to efficient slide rule operation.

NEW! Now there's a DECI-LON 5" for your pocket — a convenient auxiliary to the DECI-LON 10" for your desk.

AT YOUR COLLEGE STORE

KEUFFEL & ESSER CO.
Hoboken, N.J.

Brouillet Top Man

Tough Road Ahead For Harriers

by GENE COLBURN '64

This year's UMass varsity cross-country team will make its debut this year against the Coast Guard Academy on Sept. 28. This year's team is going to have to work hard to live up to the teams of the last few years. In the past three years the Redmen have won the Yankee Conference Cross-Country championships all three years, as well as winning the New England Championship in 1961. In 1960 and '62 the team took second place. Its duel meet record is an amazing 21 and 4.

BOB BROUILLET

For a team that lost five of its top seven runners through graduation to continue compiling a record equal to the past few years seems to be wishful thinking. Yet barring injuries, the Redmen could well compile an undefeated season for the first time, as well as winning the Yan Con Championships again, and place in the top three in the New England Championships.

BOB "DIGGER" BROUILLET again will be the number 1 man for UMass. In the past three years "Digger" has established himself as the greatest distance runner ever seen at UMass, and this year it appears he's going to keep on adding to his list of records. He holds several course records, and has won the Yankee Conference Championships for the last two years.

It takes seven men to make a cross-country team though, and it's the other six boys who will make or break the Redmen this year. Tom Panke and Bob Ramsey, both juniors, are the only returning varsity men.

MOVING UP as sophomores are a group of youngsters who show great promise, Bob Molvar and Dave Sullivan will head the contingent. Molvar broke Brouillet's freshman records, and appears to be headed for another great season. Sullivan always was right behind Molvar. Bob Larson, Don Campfield and Al McPhail will be expected to lend strong support. McPhail, along the senior Gene Colburn and junior Bill Young, are question marks. These boys haven't competed in over a year.

If they live up to their potential, though, the boys will be an asset to the team. So, with a little luck, Coach Footrick could again turn out a team equal to any of his great ones in the past, if not his greatest team.

Fusiamen Drub Colgate In Pre-Season Scrimmage

by STEVE HEWEY '64

Saturday afternoon Coach Fusia took his team to Colgate to watch his products under game conditions. He wasn't disappointed with the overall results. The Redmen whitewashed Colgate 25-0. Overturning last year's 17-7 lose.

UMASS SCORING began in the first period on Terry Swanson's 31 yard field goal. In the second quarter halfback Fred Lewis broke away on a 51 yard touchdown scamper with Swanson adding the PAT. Later on in the same frame Ken Palm scored from three yards out and Milt Morin added the PAT.

In the second half a 17 yard TD toss from quarterback Jerry Whelchel to end John Hudson and a safety rounded out the scoring.

THE REDMEN COMPILED 16 first downs to 11 for Colgate. Dave Kelly carried 5 times for 29. UMass ground out 222 yds and Colgate 83. Individual rushing honors for the Redmen went to Fred Lewis who gained 81 yards in 5 carries. Whelchel in 6 attempts picked up 31 yards and Dave Kelly carried 5 times for 29.

Colgate amassed 88 yards through the airways while UM passing was good for 83. Jerry Whelchel's five competitions ate up 55 yards and accounted for one TD. Jack Schroeder hit on two of eight for 28 yards.

Pistol And Rifle Teams Finish Nineteenth In U.S.

The ROTC Department received notification from the National Rifle Association this summer that both the Varsity Rifle and Pistol teams had finished nineteenth in national tournament competition. The team scores were matched against 401 other teams and beat giants such as Navy, Michigan, Texas, and Kings Point.

Both teams received awards for their efforts, a bronze medal for the Rifle team and a Silver medal for Dave Naylor of the pistol team.

All interested in joining either the Rifle or Pistol teams should report to the Dickinson Hall range on Monday, September 16.

Rifle practice is at 6:30 p.m., Pistol practice at 4:00 p.m.

FROSH X-COUNTRY

Frosh cross country candidates report to Cage 4:00 p.m. any day this week.

DOROTHY SCHACK
STUDIO GALLERY
277 Main Street — Northampton
SPECIAL SALE
Decorate your room with original Japanese and American prints and watercolors, etc.
—PRICES GREATLY REDUCED—
Mizufune Prints Included
SALE
Sept. 9 - 21 Hours: 2 - 5 weekdays, 7 - 9 Thursday

JEFFERY AMHERST MUSIC SHOP
(on the corner)
Specializing in college folk and jazz
Also Good Classical Selection

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
Exclusive Men's Shop
Up to $10.00 worth of clothes, 20% off
This coupon worth $2.00

AMHERST CLEANERS
79 Main St.
DAILY SERVICE
SANITONE
DRY CLEANING

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
Buy Desk lamp from $5.95
Receive free College Emblem Book
Ends worth. $3.95
Dividend value 66.6%

HOUSE FOR SALE
MOVING TO CALIFORNIA —Must sell at once lovely six room Cape Cod 23' x 17' Florida room, basement recreation room, patio room and tool house. On well landscaped ¾ acre plot. Call evenings, weekends or night. Chas. Reilly, 280 N. Maple St., Florence, JU 4-5483.

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
Amherst Leading Hostelry
Buy any meal with friend
Receive second at half price
Dividend value 50%

Redmen After Yan Con Crown

Maine Game First Hurdle In UMass Beanpot Bid

by STEVE HEWEY '64

UMass football, 1963 version, gets underway this weekend when Coach Vic Fusia's Redmen travel to Orono, Maine to meet the University of Maine in the season's opener for both teams. In doing so the Redmen will be out to begin improving on the 6-3 record that their 1962 predecessors compiled during last fall's grid campaign.

The Maine game also represents the first taste of Yankee Conference competition for Fusia's eleven. For ten past two seasons for Conference championship has strangely eluded the grasp of UMass. On both occasions a field goal in the season's finale with New Hampshire has kept the Conference trophy from the Redmen trophy case.

UMass - Colgate Scrimmage, p.7

From the look of the material at hand the Redmen appear to have an excellent shot at the title and one of their best seasons ever. Many grid mentors lament every year over the graduation of their talent. Vic Fusia is blessed this season with a good amount of returning experience at almost every position. For the first time in many a season reliable depth will be among the valuable assests in the Redmen gridiron picture.

The end, tackle, guard and quarterback positions are the deepest in returning lettermen. Roger DeMinico (190), Dick Bourdelais (205), John Hudson (190) and Jim Fassell (180) are the four lettermen at the end spots. Up from last year's Frosh squad are two talented ends, Bob Meers (210) and Milt Morin (210), both of whom will see a good deal of starting assignments this year.

The best fortified position on the UMass squad could be at tackle where five lettermen return, co-captain Paul Graham (240), Bob Burke (225), Sam Tombarelli (220), Bruce Jordan (225) and Don Hagberg (220), all lettermen. Other tackle prospects are Junior Dick Kehoe and first year man Don Johnson. The guard spots boast three lettermen: Bob Tedoldi (215), Pete Pietz (210) and Tom Brophy (190). And more experience will polish the talents of Hal Ryder (200), Rod Brooks (200) and Ed Toner (210).

Charlie Scialdone (212) represents the only letterman at center this fall. Junior Joy Doyle (205) and Bernie Dallas (205), Jim Kuczynski (208), and Mike Scafti (205), all Sophs, are ready to back up Scialdone.

The quarterback spot features Junior Jerry Whelchel (185). Whelchel was Fusia's number one signal caller last season as a Soph and more than filled the bill. His first season varsity performance was good enough to earn him all-Conference First Team rating at quarterback. Ready to lend a helping hand at signal calling will be Junior Jack Schroeder (210) and Soph Steve Trbovich (180).

Two years ago halfbacks Fred Lewis (205) and Ken Palm (190) saw a lot of action in the UMass secondary. Last year their services were not available to the squad. This year they return, to the joy of Vic Fusia, due to the loss of five lettermen from last year's team. Should Palm and Lewis perform as they did in '61 the halfback slots will be reliable and sound. Added strength in the department is to come from letterman Phil deRose (180) and Junior Joe Morris (175). Bob Ellis (190) and Dave Kelley (185), both Sophomores are tabbed as good halfback prospects.

UMass has two lettermen returning at fullback: Dick Warren (190) and Mike Ross (218). Phil Vandersea (215), who sat out last season's campaign with injuries, has the equipment to step in and take over as fullback when needed.

Redmen varsity football coach Vic Fusia and his two 1963 co-captains, Dick Warren and Paul Graham.

Campus Competition Initiated By Intramural Fall Football

by DAVE GARBER

The intramural athletic program offers most of the benefits of a full scale athletic program to students who, because of skill level or inclination, do not wish to compete on a varsity level.

The following are the activities offered through this program: basketball, football, golf, handball, squash, lacrosse, soccer, softball, swimming, tennis, volleyball, wrestling, bowling and badminton.

The program is open to any member of a recognized student, staff, or faculty organization which has an athletic director or manager.

Rosters for the intramural football teams should be submitted to Mr. Cobb, who is director of intramurals or Mr. Edward Sullivan, who is the program supervisor by September 17, Tuesday at 12:00 a.m.

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
Any amount Note Paper and Stationery, equal amount at half price
Dividend value 50%

Watch Repairs
College Rings
Trophies
Jewelry
Gifts
at
WINN Jewelers
31 S. Pleasant
Amherst

Attention Upperclassmen and those who will be . . .

From before you arise 'till the sun falls behind Hatfield, WTTT Radio is where you are. Exorbitant Collegian rates preclude telling full story.

Tune In • WTTT • 1430 K.C.

McLELLAN'S
AMHERST

Attention Girls!!

Shetland & Orlon Bulky-Knit
SWEATERS
$3.99

—Good Selection of Girls' Sportswear—
SLACKS BLOUSES SWEATERS

CAR FOR SALE
1962 Volkswagen Sedan
Ex. Cond., Shoulder Seat Belts. Asking $1500. Need larger car for growing family. Call Mr. McDaniel, AL 3-5530.

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
Two white shirts $5.85
Exclusive men's label
This coupon worth $2.05
Dividend value 35%

Courtesy Rental
LIBRARY

comp.
THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 2 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1963

LIBRARY
SEP 24 1963
UNIVERSITY OF

Men's Judiciary In Need Of Justices

Every democracy has a judiciary branch, the purpose of which is to enforce the laws of the particular society and to protect the rights of its citizens. At the University, we have such a judicial department — the Men's Judiciary—with a lower court system known as the Area Judiciary.

This Area Judiciary's purpose is to consider violations of dormitory and University regulations within the general dormitory area. The court consists of one representative from each dormitory, presided over by a member of Men's Judiciary. The term of appointment is for one year with the possibility of re-current terms.

Guided by the member of Men's Judiciary in policy and procedure, the Area Judiciary has no restrictions placed on the corrective action which may be taken; but it is hoped that more physical rather than probation-type action will be used. Example—assisting

(Continued on page 3)

Old Redmen Band Sports New Look This Year

by DAVE HARACZ '65

THE "NEW" REDMEN MARCHING BAND continues its rigorous daily training program in preparation for its 1963 debut.

No matter what the score at Saturday's, September 28, foot ball game against Harvard, UMass is certain to make an impression with what is currently being named its "new" band.

In addition to the traditional Metawampee with his feathered headdress and buckskins, will be Bruce Cutter, the new Drum Major, who will sport a new uniform reminiscent of the style of Midwestern schools. In addition, the "new" band will present new steps and formations and some music written expressly for the UMass Marching Band.

THE DRIVING FORCE behind this metamorohpsis in the UMass band is John Jenkins, our new band director. Mr. Jenkins, a product of Midwestern schools, seeks to introduce some of the spirit of the Midwest to the UMass campus through the band.

Mr. Jenkins received his bachelor's degree and his master's from the University of Michigan, where he played solo coronet with the Michigan Marching Band an worked with Dr. William D. Revelli, considered the foremost band director among America's colleges. Now working on a doctorate at the Uuiversity of Michigan, Mr. Jenkins has served as a second lieutenant in the U. S. army and as the music director of public schools in Ann Arbor and Brimley, Michigan, before accepting his post here.

He resides on Van Meter Drive in Amherst with his wife and daugher and will direct the UMass marching and concert bands and the brass ensemble. He will also give instruction in all brass instruments and teach one music course.

INDICATIVE OF the great energy and enthusiasm Mr. Jenkins has brought to the UMass campus is the band camp held under his direction in the past few weeks. Arriving on August 19, Mr. Jenkins made preparations for the arrival of freshman band members on September 5 and upperclassmen on the 8th. 16-hour days and the combination of a completely new format, veteran band members, and promising freshmen, all molded by Mr. Jenkins during the band camp, have indeed produced for UMass a "new" band.

Music Department Creates Orchestra

MR. RONALD STEELE
Conductor of budding symphony orchestra.

Although most are unaware of it, the beginning of a symphony orchestra has been organized here at the University. The University Orchestra will begin its season with a rehearsal in Bartlett Auditorium tonight at 7:30.

Ronald Steele, conductor of the group, stated that while a lack of capable string instrument players is forcing him to go off campus for new members, he feels sure that qualified students at the University will step forward in the near future.

Mr. Steele, a violinist and conductor, is a recent arrival at the University. A graduate of the University of Michigan, he is a former associate conductor of the Michigan Youth Orchestra, a 150 piece group affiliated with the University.

While it is presently primarily a string group, Mr. Steele plans formation of a symphonette "with an eye toward formation of a symphony orchestra."

Present plans for the orchestra include the "Concerto Grosso" by Ernest Bloch and the "Fantasia on a Theme" by Thomas Tallis."

Mr. Steele has invited all students who have string experience to come to tonight's rehearsal.

Two Placement Groups To Be Held For Seniors

All senior men are urged to attend the two Placement group meetings which will be held to provide information for completing senior interviews and senior credentials. The first meeting on Thursday, September 19, at 11 a.m., will be devoted to covering information regarding the Placement Service, registration for placement, and steps the senior must take for placement assistance.

The second meeting, held on Thursday, October 3, at 11 a.m. will be devoted to job opportunities for men with various majors and salaries offered. Both these meetings will be held in Bowker Auditorium.

Every senior man is urged to register with the Placement Office before leaving the University in order to make all records up to date. This also applies to those students who expect to enter the service and to those who expect to go to graduate school.

All those who plan to take job interviews and those desiring counsel may call the Placement Office for and individual interview with a Placement Officer. Engineering, Mathematics, Physics, and Chemistry majors should see Mr. Morrissey; Liberal Arts and Business Administration majors should see Mr. Terry; Agricultural and Education majors and those interested in teaching should see Mr. Emery.

Robert J. Morrissey, Director of the Placement Services, urges all senior men to take advantage of these two meetings and the individual interviews. If it is impossible to attend the first meeting, report to the Placement Office so that arrangements may be made to cover this information.

The first Senior Women's

(Continued on page 6)

Automobile Registration Ends Friday

Car registration, which has been taking place at the north end of the football field from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily, will end Friday, Sept. 20. Hereafter, students and faculty will register their cars at campus police headquarters.

Permanently and temporarily disabled, or handicapped students will be provided with "X" decals to affix to their vehicles. No decals, however, have been sent by the manufacturer as yet. If a disabled student who has a medical certificate from Dr. Gage finds a parking ticket on his vehicle, he should take the ticket and the certificate to police headquarters and the ticket will be invalidated.

Editorial Page

Suitable Salary

Action is the word at the State House. Beacon Hill is undulating to the jiving momentum of our states legislative processes. Somewhere there is a bill under consideration. A bill which is being made suitable to the demands of our Governor. It deals with pay raises for state workers. It started with the intention of raising the pay of all state employees by 10%. However under the influence of the President of the Senate John F. Powers and speaker of the House John Thompson, the bill evolved into a 20% hike for faculty and professional employees and a 10% hike for laborers. Governor Peabody is against this 20% raise and feels that it should be an all around 10% raise. The Governor has his reasons and motives for his stand, and they are complex. However, we of the Collegian, feel that the 20% raise should and must be reconsidered and passed by the legislature.

The average pay for our faculty is too far behind other schools. They are the lowest paid of the six New England State Universities. There are only a few schools in the state which have a lower average pay scale. Harvard's average is double that of the University. With competition from these other schools, from industry and other professions our faculty and administration should be paid higher. A lot higher. Secondly good faculty and good administrators, such as we have, are indispensable; whereas a laborer can be more easily replaced. Thus the competition is more severe on the professional level.

The laborers should get their raise. But the professional people should receive the money which is due to them.

We, at the Collegian, urge Governor Peabody to reconsider his position.

TRADITION

The University of Massachusetts is a school practically devoid of tradition.

There is little or no spirit of heritage or feeling of history on this campus.

No longer is there the traditional Spring Day, an annual rite of Spring which commenced with the ringing of the Old Chapel Bells, and ended when the last man could no longer stand.

Gone are many other UMass traditions which have been trampled on in the rush of the multitudes which now populate our once small university.

It is thus with regret that the we must make note of the fact that one of the very few traditions or potential traditions available to this campus is rapidly losing ground; the freshmen beanie.

The freshmen beanie is a ridiculously looking thing which materially is worth far less than the dollar it costs. However, it is a symbol of this University and of its freshmen class, and for this reason it should be worn continually and with pride.

The sponsoring organizations of the beanie sale along with the vast majority of freshmen who have ceased to wear their dollar investment deserve to be reprimanded for letting one of our last vestiges of tradition sink into the muck and mire of apathy. Wear your beanie! It doesn't weigh very much, but it can mean quite a bit.

EDITORIAL STAFF MEETING
TUESDAY, SEPT. 24, 1963
New & Old Invited

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Study Time With The White Feathered Conscience

by JOHN CHILDS

Well here it is study time again. But the library is quiet, so quiet that if you listen carefully it is possible to hear one or two whispered words from the librarians. Well, that is too quiet.

We leave the library for a few minutes of rest at the Hatch. It's dark outside. The street lights are out again. (They were on during the day for testing purposes.) So it's dark. We walk through a confusing forest of tall narrow trees. Their bark is steel cold. They're not trees they're street signs.

Receiving directions on how to cross through the direction signs we enter the Hatch. A scene of medieval splendor greets us. Rough faced knights, fresh from a day of jousting sit at long tables, hoisting mugs into the air. Sweet voiced innocent young damsels rush back and forth with news of palace intrigue. At the head of the great hall the minstrel sits singing songs of yore as a group of knights and ladies listen with awe to his ever changing voice.

We leave after a few short hours of stunning conversation, and stumble back to the library. Somewhere in the distance a voice cries, "Don't Hatch-it, don't Hatch-it"

It's our conscience with white feathers.

A New Column

Have a question, comment, or gripe on the current campus scene? Starting this semester you will have a chance to see the answer on the Collegian editorial page. In response to your question, comment, or gripe, the Collegian editorial staff, through questioning of administrative, maintenance, and any other involved people, will try to the best of its ability to provide answers. The results will be published approximately every other week.

An Ode To Car Registration

I went down to campus to show them my car.
They said, "It is lovely; the finest by far.
But you must pay three dollars to station it here."
I said, "It's outrageous, too costly I fear."

They tried to dissuade all my feelings of dread.
"This symbol is priceless, your small price of red."
But I feel that I paid just two bits for the sticker.
And gave away two-seventy-five to the licker.

J.T.P.

MELANGE

Suddenly This Summer

by STEVE ORLEN

Suddenly this summer an explosion was heard, then another and another still, until the whole world rocked. Each explosion was of a different kind, and occurred in a different spot on the globe. The reverberations caused cannot stop, for the damage has already been done. Only mankind and his history can assess the outcome of each.

The most dramatic explosion of all was heard in America from the Negro demanding his civil rights. The movement began in the towns and large industrial cities of the South where the Negro population is highest, then spread to the North, and finally culminated in a 200,000-strong march on the nation's capitol. The debate on President Kennedy's omnibus civil rights bill has been put aside by a lethargic Congress, busy with a new tax bill, an aircraft scandal, a foreign aid bill and a fright over the nation's dwindling gold supplies. Soon the great debate will begin.

In Saigon, the capital city of South Vietnam in Southeast Asia, another explosion was heard, a similar one. The government of this tiny country, in the midst of a U.S.-sponsored war with her communist neighbors to the north, has set off a war within a war with her large Buddhist population. This was is also a fight for civil rights, for the Buddhists claim religious discrimination from a Catholic-dominated government.

Many have been unnecessarily murdered, beaten and arrested by the forces of President Diem, his wife who is aptly nicknamed "Dragon Lady," and his brother-in-law, who is head of the secret police. This sounds too much like the American South.

There is a growing unrest in the highly segregated, Aparatheid country of South Africa. The U.N. and the whole of the African bloc is putting pressure on this country to change its policy of licensed segregation. The backward island of Haiti has seen one abortive revolution this summer—against the persistent tyranny of "Papa Doc" Duvalier. The OAS is still investigating. Israel is disputing with Syria, Portugal with her colonies, India with Red China, North with South Korea, and Cuba with her refugees. And so it goes.

In the midst of all this the U.S. has signed a nuclear test ban pact with Russia. A bit of hope is offered to the peaceful few in a world on fire.

I.P
MEMBER

The Massachusetts Collegian

Editor-in-Chief:	Jeffrey Davidow '65
Editorial Editor:	George Masselam '65
News Editor:	Elwin McNamara '64
Photography Editor:	Ron Goldberg '66
Sports Editors:	Scott Freedland '66 John Reynolds '65 Richard Ryan '66
Business Manager:	Courtney Brickman '64
News Makeup Editor:	James Schmalz '65
Feature Editor:	David Axelrod '65

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass

Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press

Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

UMass Will Help Build High School In Uganda

The University of Massachusetts, in an unusual international educational experiment, will cooperate with the U.S. government in the construction of an all-girl high school for the African country of Uganda, it was announced today by UMass President John W. Lederle.

Plans for the project began two years ago when the University's School of Education, under Dean Albert W. Purvis, was asked to consider the program by AID, the Agency for International Development.

Dean Purvis led a survey team composed of Elwyn Doubleday, principal of East Longmeadow High School, and Dean Doris Whyard of Northfield School for Girls for a preliminary inspection tour in Uganda in the summer of 1961.

Dean Purvis returned to Uganda in the summer of 1962. As a result of the survey team's report, AID asked the University of Massachusetts to establish the high school. Under terms of the recently signed contract, the University's School of Education will provide personnel in Uganda and at the University to write specifications for all equipment. In addition, UMass will recruit one-half of the teachers for the school, the other half to be provided by the Uganda Ministry of Education.

The high school will eventually enroll 420 girls. The four major curricula to be offered will be Home Economics, Business, General, and "Academic." The academic major will prepare students for college while the other three majors will be terminal.

The high school will be unusual in many respects. Under the British plan of education, the "Academic" and Business programs will take six years, the others four years. Located on 70 acres of land, the school will be inter-denminational and interracial. AID will pay for construction, equipment and salaries of American teachers. Uganda will subsidize the low tuition for students. Construction will be undertaken by a company in Uganda.

Why an all-girl school? Dean Purvis says, "Uganda received its independence from Great Britian about a year ago, and since that time many of the top government posts have gone to educated men. Many of these government leaders are concerned about the low status of women. They also realize the necessity of having highly educated women as wives and mothers." In 1960, 708 boys graduated from high schools in Uganda, but only 76 girls received diplomas.

Mr. Doubleday, who has resigned as principal of East Longmeadow High School, is the first to go to Uganda under the recently signed contract. Now on his way overseas, Doubleday will spend two years in Uganda, ordering furniture and equipment and taking the necessary steps to open the school. The school will formally open in January, 1965.

Charles Taylor, former superintendent of schools in Foxboro, Mass., has joined the University of Massachusetts staff as campus coordinator for the Uganda project. Part of Taylor's duties will be to recruit American faculty to staff the Uganda school.

As part of the project, 13 Uganda teachers, at a rate of three or four a year, will train in the University's School of Education. They will be trained to replace the American teachers in the Uganda school.

According to Dean Purvis, the Uganda project is one of the largest educational contracts that AID has written.

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
Any pizza on menu
Second at half price
This coupon worth over
$2.00
Dividend value 50%

NOTICES

CAESURA

Manuscripts for the fall issue are now being accepted. Poetry, stories and essays may be left in box 104 at RSO. Anonymity of all atuhors will be maintained during selection of material.

DANCE

Dance with the Northern Lights on Fri., Sept. 20 from 8-11:30 p.m. in the Ballroom of the S.U. $.50 admission. Sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega.

FRESHMAN DANCE

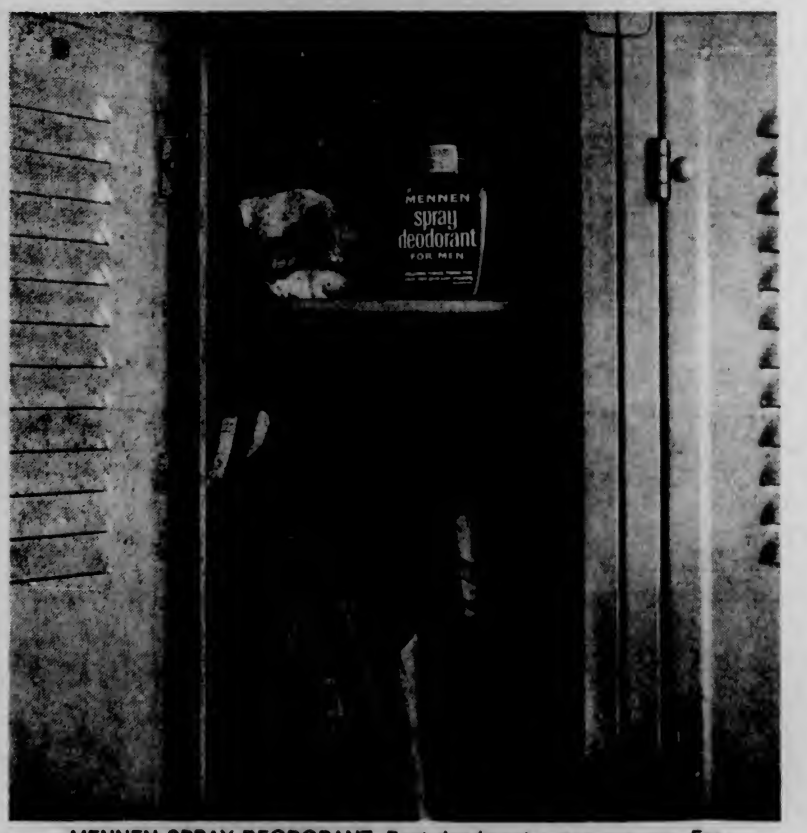
All freshmen invited — Sat., Sept. 21 from 8:30-12 p.m. in the Ballroom of the S.U. $.50 per person or $.75 per couple. Tickets on sale in the S.U. and in your dorm.

FRESHMEN

Student Activities Night has been rescheduled from Sat., Sept. 21 to Tues., Oct. 1 from 7-9 p.m. in the Ballroom of the S.U. Exhibits from all campus activities will be presented.

MUSIC HOUR

Featuring Bob Weber and friends, on Sun., Sept. 22 at 3 p.m. in the Cape Cod Lounge. Sponsored by Arts and Music Committee.



MENNEN SPRAY DEODORANT. Best deodorant a man can use. For two good man's reasons.

1. Mennen Spray gets through to the skin where a man perspires.

2. Mennen Spray is concentrated. Delivers three times the anti-perspirant power of any other leading men's deodorant.

Mennen Spray Deodorant . . . in the handy squeeze bottle. Try it. (M)

University Introduces New Phone System

The University of Massachusetts has put into operation a new telephone system—Centrex. The reasons for the change—increased efficiency and economy.

UMass is the first New England college or university to use the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company's new system.

Persons calling into the University, from local or long distance areas, may dial their party directly without going through the central switchboard. This increases efficiency since the present switchboard is not capable of handling all incoming calls. Parents will now be able to dial directly into dormitories, improving telephone service between students and their parents.

Because of the University's rapid expansion, the former telephone system proved inadequate. More than a year ago the Commonwealth approved funds to install an expensive three-position switchboard. When UMass received fiscal autonomy, Treasurer Kenneth W. Johnson immediately canceled the order and authorized the installation of Centrex. This saved the cost of expensive additions to present four additional people who would have had to be hired to man the three-position board.

Some telephones at the University can be used for maximum range calls under Centrex to on-campus extensions, the local area, the state, and out of state areas. A second group of telephones are used only for on-campus calls and local area calls. A third group of telephones are for on-campus calls only. Charges to the University for the limited calling area telephones are less than for the maximum range telephones.

All long distance calls made by University personnel will now be logged against the calling number, giving the University a complete record of calls and their cost.

Until a new directory is issued this fall, University personnel may be reached directly by prefixing their present extension by 545-2.

MUSIGALS

Tryouts for sopranoes begin on Thurs., Sept. 19 at 7 p.m. in the S.U. All welcome to try out.

Men's Judiciary . . .

(Continued from page 1)

the custodian for a given number of hours. However, if disciplinary action of this type does not achieve its purpose, the person involved may be referred to Men's Judiciary.

What kind of men are needed to act as justices? The job is for men with alert, deductive, and inquiring minds. We need men who have a sincere interest in the students who may appear before them and who will work to see that offenders are brought to justice. No previous experience is necessary to be eligible. The only requirement for student eligibility is that he be a resident in the dormitory which he is to represent. All previous area representatives are to be reappointed this year.

Persons interested in becoming candidates for the position of area court justice should take note of the following timetable:

Sept. 18 to Sept. 23: Any interested person may sign up with the head of residence in his respective dormitory.

Sept. 24: Selection of five final candidates by the House Council.

Sept. 25 to Sept. 27: Final selection of one justice from each dorm by a panel consisting of two Men's Judiciary members and two representatives from the Student Senate.

As our enrollment grows, and new housing facilities are built, there will be an increase in the number of area justices and our judicial system will become better able to meet the needs of our expanding University.

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
Buy $10 worth of clothing
Receive free $4.00 shirt
This coupon worth $4.00
Dividend value 40%

Community College Transfer Program Inaugurated

Demonstrating a growing spirit of cooperation among units of the state's higher education system, the University has enrolled 95 community college transfer students, inaugurating a new program designed to ease their transition to University life.

Most of the 65 men and 30 women are representatives of their local colleges' first graduating classes; they took a series of classification and advanced placement tests during their visit. Directors and guidance staff members from the community colleges have also been invited to view the University's teaching facilities, and to confer with administrators and professors.

Enrollment at UMass represents the first exposure to campus living for the 95 students since the three-year old community college system is designed to provide college-level training within commuting distance of Massachusetts high school graduates. A two-day summer program included orientation to dormitory procedures, a student forum with UMass faculty members, academic advisement on curriculum and recreational activities.

According to Dr. J. Alfred Southworth, director of the Counseling and Guidance office, "This group of community college transfers is not very large, due to the relatively recent establishment of the schools. However, the program indicates the significant degree of continuity which is now operational within the Commonwealth's higher education system."

Dean of Students Field and associate registrar Robert Doolan, participants in the program, commended the growth of the community college movement, and the degree of community support the new schools have generated throughout the state.

Community colleges participating in the program are Berkshire (Pittsfield), Cape Cod (Hyannis), Northern Essex (Haverhill), Greenfield, and Massachusetts Bay (Boston), all state-sponsored, and the city-sponsored junior colleges of Holyoke, Newton and Quincy.

Art Show For Faculty Works Now In Progress

The University of Massachusetts Department of Art is presenting the first group showing of art works by the department's studio faculty, now through September 27 at the University's Bartlett Hall Foyer.

Paintings, prints, sculpture and ceramic works, including three presentations by each of six professors are on display from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. The exhibit is open to the public without charge.

According to art department chairman Paul F. Norton, the show brings together artists of various interests, methods and beliefs, and also serves to emphasize the expansion and increased versatility of the University's art department, which has more than doubled its curriculum and faculty within the past five years.

An explanatory program, written for the exhibition by UMass instructor of art Carl I. Belz, lists graphics by Jack Coughlin; paintings by John Goodyear, Edward Hill and Walter Kamys; ceramic art by Lyle Perkins, and sculpture by John Townsend.

The works to be shown, Mr. Belz said, "offer an involvement with artistic problems as unique and diversified as the general fabric of contemporary visual expression.

"Representational and non-objective forms exist side by side, and traditional problems such as light, color, and movement are brought into consideration."

With the exception of Mr. Hill, all of the exhibiting artists are full-time members of the University faculty. Mr. Hill, an instructor of art at Smith College, has taught courses at the University during the spring semester and summer session of this year.

Grants Available For Study Or Research Abroad

Only a few more weeks remain in which to apply for a 1964-65 U.S. Government grant for graduate study or research abroad. Competition for the scholarships, available to qualified graduate students under the Fulbright-Hays Act, is administered by the Institute of International Education.

In addition to full grants, which provide round-trip transportation to any one of 51 countries, as well as tuition and maintenance for one academic year, two other types of grant are available: Joint U.S./Other government grants offered cooperatively by the U.S. (which provides travel) and a foreign country (which provides tuition and maintenance); and Travel-Only awards which supplement maintenance and tuition scholarships awarded by a university, private donor or foreign government.

Participating countries include Argentina, Australia, Austria, Belgium - Luxembourg, Bolivia, Brazil, Ceylon, Chile, China, Colombia, Costa Rica, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Iceland, India, Iran, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Korea, Malaya, Mexico, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Pakistan, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, Spain, Sweden, Thailand, Turkey, United Arab Republic, United Kingdom and Venezuela.

General eligibility requirements are: U.S. citizenship, a bachelor's degree or its equivalent in professional training, language ability commensurate with the demands of the proposed study project, and good health. Preference is given to applicants under 35 years of age.

Application forms and further information for students currently enrolled in the University may be obtained from the Placement Office. Individual department hears also have lists of countries offering opportunities in particular fields.

Enrollment Increased At Amherst

A 300-man freshman class will begin to arrive on the campus of our neighboring institution, Amherst College, for a three day period of tests, advice and, hopefully, of academic inspiration.

The class is the first to be admitted on the basis of Amherst's decision to grow from 1000 to 1200 students. Last year 270 freshmen were admitted. The places of students lost through attrition will be filled by transfers.

Amherst's upperclassmen will begin arriving during the weekend, with registration taking place Saturday (September 21) and Sunday. Amherst's opening convocation is scheduled Sunday with classes beginning Monday.

Amherst's 143rd academic year begins with several major additions to the College's physical plant, among them three new dormitories housing 202 students and a new Dining Hall Wing which will increase the eating space by about 300 places. All of Amherst's students eat in central dining rooms.

"Discussion Breaks" Set Up At Boston University

It will probably never replace the coffee break," but at Boston University a unique discussion break" has captured the interest of a small but enthusiastic group of students, faculty and staff personnel.

The Informal Education Program as the "break" is known officially, is a plan designed primarily to create a broad intellectual environment and bring down some of the barriers of communication between students, faculty and administrative personnel in areas not usually considered academic.

For six consecutive weeks, professors and students meet in informal discussion groups on a first-name basis. Each weekly meeting is for 90 minutes. Subjects of discussion are chosen by members spontaneously. Each group has 12 members, two of whom serve as co-leaders. Co-leaders are chosen upon the basis of their previous experience in the program. The role of the participating leaders is to probe, summarize and help the group evaluate its progress.

The leadership function, however, is shared by everyone in the group. Consequently, the participating leaders perform the role of participant observers. They acquire the various functions of leadership which are required as the group proceeds in its discussion.

An integral part of the overall program is the participating leaders' workshops. These workshops are conducted weekly for a period of six weeks and are attended by group leaders. They are designed to explore some of the problems encountered by participating leaders during group experiences.

CLUB DIRECTORY

ALPHA LAMBDA DELTA—PHI ETA SIGMA
Joint meeting on Thurs., Sept. 19, at 11 a.m. in the Worcester room of the S.U. All are urged to attend.

AMHERST FRIENDS
Meeting on Sun., Sept. 22, at 10:15 a.m. at the Amherst Grange, Main & North Whitney Sts. A car will be available at 10 a.m. in front of the S.U.

ARTS AND MUSIC COMMITTEE
Open meeting on Wed., Sept. 18, at 7 p.m. in the Worcester room of the S.U. All interested are welcome.

BRIDGE CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Sept. 19, at 6:30 p.m. in the S.U. All interested students and faculty are invited.

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
The first Vesper service will be held on Wed., Sept. 18, at 9:30 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. Everyone is welcome.

COMMUTER'S CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Sept. 19, at 11:15 a.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. All commuters welcome.

CONCERT ASSOCIATION
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 18, at 6:30 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. All are welcome.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS COMMITTEE
Applications for the class of '65 are available in the RSO office Wed. through Fri. There will be a tea for applicants on Sun., Sept. 22, at 7 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U.

EDWARDS FELLOWSHIP
First meeting will be a supper meeting on Sun., Sept. 22, at 6 p.m. at First Congregational Church. All are welcome. Rides leave Arnold and Hills at 5:45.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB
Organizational meeting for all interested on Thurs., Sept. 19, at 7:30 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U.

HEYMAKERS
Opening meeting of the Square Dance Club on Wed., Sept. 18, at 7:30 p.m. in Bowditch Lodge. Everyone welcome.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL
All freshmen men invited to the IFC pre-rushing convocation on Wed., Sept. 18, at 8 p.m. in the ballroom of the S.U.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Open house at the parsonage, on Sun., Sept. 22 from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. Rides leave Arnold beginning at 2:30 p.m. All students invited.

OUTING CLUB
There will be an introduction trip on Sat., Sept. 21. Anyone interested in caving, hiking, or rockclimbing is invited. The trip will leave Skinner parking lot at 1 p.m. and will return at 12 p.m. Early rides back for those attending Freshman Ball. Cost: $1.00. Contact Donna Hasting, 319 Thatcher, for further information.

SCUBA CLUB
First meeting on Thurs., Sept. 19, at 6:30 p.m. in the Worcester room of the S.U. Coeds welcome.

WOMEN'S INTERDORM COUNCIL
Very important meeting on Thurs., Sept. 19, at 11 a.m. in the S.U. Mandatory attendance.

YOUNG INDEPENDENTS
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 18, at 8 p.m. in the S.U. All invited to attend.

Lost and Found

LOST: Textbook, Diez Comedias del Siglo de Ovo by Alpern. Left in 222 Bartlett on Fri., Sept. 14. Return to S.U. lobby counter.

LOST: Brown corduroy jacket on Fri. or Sat. Location unknown Contact Frances Bassil, Crabtree.

LOST: A tan pullover jacket was taken by mistake in the Hatch—I have your tan zippered jacket in my room. Please contact Al Greenstein, 342 Greenough or AEPi.

LOST: Parker fountain pen lent out at car registration lot on Tues. morning. Please return to John Sappet, 212 Greenough, or leave at the Collegian office.

LOST: Textbook, Introduction to Psychology, on shelves in front of bookstore. Please contact or return to Linnie Butts, 205 Johnson.

New Officer For Women's Placement

Miss Edith Antunes, executive secretary to the president of Skidmore College, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., has been appointed placement officer for women at the University of Massachusetts, President Lederle announced last week.

A native of Somerville, Mass., and a graduate of Simmons College, Miss Antunes succeeds Miss Carolyn L. Hawes, who has accepted a position as director of placement at the Rhode Island School of Design in Providence.

According to Robert J. Morrissey, UMass director of placement and financial aid services, Miss Antunes will counsel University women students on career matters and assist in the employment of students and alumnae through placement interviews. She will also provide liaison with industry, school systems and organizations interested in employing University women.

Recipient of a master of arts degree from Siena College in Albany, New York, Miss Antunes has completed study in English at New YoYrk and Rutgers Universities and at Somerville College, Oxford University, England.

OPENING CONVO

The Opening Convocation for the coming school year will be held in the Ballroom of the Student Union at 11:15 a.m., Thursday, September 26, 1963. President Lederle will present his annual policy message to the Faculty ad students. Provost Woodside will chair the convocation. Chaplain Ruchames will give the Invocation. There will be an academic procession. A large turnout of students is hoped for.

SENIOR PICTURES

Seniors who missed signing for Index senior photos are requested to go to the Index office on the second floor of the S.U. to select a day and an hour for their photographic appointment.

A post card assigning the exact date will be sent to those who sign their name, campus address and day and hour.

Senior photographs will be taken in the last two week of October.

We're Glad You're Back!
AT Drake's The Village Inn
Breakfast ..... 50¢
Lunch ..... 50¢ up
—The Open Hearth Steakhouse—
BONELESS SIRLOIN $1.49 POTATO, ROLL SALAD
• WEDNESDAY is PEANUT NITE •
FRIDAY, 4 - 7 STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
300-sheets W-Jones Notebook Paper 95¢, Free 49¢ Binder
3 Ring by National
Dividend value 51%

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
All Artist Supplies up to $20.00 worth, ½ price
This coupon worth $10.00
Dividend value 100%

—FOR SALE—
1957 CHEVROLET
Model 210, 8-cyl., automatic transmission, radio and heater, 4-door, Blue. $475. Call AL 3-5306.

New Gas Tax Bill Sent Up

BOSTON — A special message for the $125,000,000 highway bond issue containing a one-cent-a-gallon increase in the gasoline tax is expected from Gov. Peabody this afternoon.

Some Details Unsettled

Some details of the message and the accompanying legislation were still in question Monday night, according to the Peabody office.

The tax repeatedly has been termed an absolute necessity to cover expected pay increases in State Public Works, the Metropolitan District Commission, for the state police and for personnel of the Registry of Motor Vehicles. The Highway Fund from which these salaries are paid is empty, both Senate Ways and Means Chairman William D. Fleming, D - Worcester, and House Ways and Means Committee Chairman John J. Toomey, D-Cambridge declared.

If the additional gasoline tax is approved it will raise the state levy to 6½ cents a gallon. It will be the first increase in the Massachusetts gasoline tax in nearly a decade. In that period all states bordering on Massachusetts have raised their gasoline tax above this state's.

Veto Power

The yield for each cent of the gasoline tax is estimated at between $12,000,000 and $14,000,000 annually.

Most controversial section of the highway bond issue will be that over the right of 10 cities and towns to veto location of roads within their boundaries. The 10 which have had the veto in the past bond issues are Springfield, New Bedford, Cambridge, Lynn, Somerville, Peabody, Boston, Revere, Brookline and Saugus.

It is expected that rather than give outright veto power to mayors or selectmen, a version of the arbitration board proposal approved early in August by the House will be followed. Under that, each community of the 10 would name a man to the board; so would Public Works or the MDA; and a third would be agreed upon by the two. If a third could not be agreed upon, such an individual would be named by the governor.

What in Precise Form

Major question still being discussed by advisors of the governor Monday was what part of the legislation, if any, should be submitted in precise form. Precise form is a device a governor may use in submitting special messages which bars amendment or alteration of legislation by the General Court.

Most expectation Monday was that the requirement of the gasoline tax would be in precise form, because the financing of the bond issue and currently proposed spending by the several state agencies demands the additional revenue. The big question Monday night was apparently over whether to also tie down the "veto" section.

On that section of the measure, mainly, the House and Senate became embroiled in disagreement which resulted in the death of the measure between the two branches. House floor action altered the bill to have arbitration boards available for all 351 cities and towns. The Senate eliminated the boards, but gave the veto to the 10 communities and to an additional five. It further amended the measure to require specific road building projects.

Agree On Tax Need

At a meeting with Democratic legislative leaders last Friday, Gov. Peabody and his fiscal assistants agreed that the additional gasoline tax is required to keep a balance in the Highway Fund. Highway maintenance costs have increased in recent years to care for the $850,000,000 worth of new roads that have been established. The additional pay requirements which will be imposed by pending pay raise legislation make the additional revenue doubly necessary.

But passage of a gasoline tax through the House and Senate will not be an easy matter. For months, highway user groups, the petroleum industry, and gasoline retailers have been bombarding legislators with expressions of distaste for any increase in the tax on gasoline and diesel fuel. The effectiveness of this lobbying has been demonstrated by the blocking of any additional gasoline tax for nearly a decade.

Women's Page

Girls, we've finally got our own page! This coming year a new Women's Page will appear in the Collegian. The page will alternate weekly with the Greek Page and will be written especially for the campus coed. Contained in the page will be such features as fashions, job opportunities both on and off campus, as well as all campus news of interest to women.

We also wish to introduce a new policy with regard to engagements. Since this is such a special event in a girl's life, we feel it warrants more than a single line. A picture and all other necessary information will be used to give these events the special attention they deserve.

Anyone wishing to work on this new page, please leave a note in Sandi May's box in the Collegian office or phone AL 6-6871.

INDEX STAFF

All students interested in yearbook activity with the Index are asked to come to the second floor offices in the S.U. Thursday at 11 a.m.

Students who were interviewed last Spring are also requested to report at this time.

A special meeting for those interested in photography will be held Thursday at 7 p.m.

D.V.P. APPLICATIONS

Distinguished Visiters Committee applications for the class of '66 are available in the RSO office Wednesday through Friday. There will be a coffee hour for all applicants on Sunday, September 22, 1963 at 7:00 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union.

Housing Motion On Agenda At Tonight's Senate Meeting

THE STUDENT SENATE IN ACTION

All meetings of the Student Senate are open to the public. Students are urged to attend and watch representatives in action.

A bill which would establish an Ad Hoc Committee on Student Housing will be presented at tonight's meeting of the Student Senate. Sponsored by Senator David Mathieson (At-Large '64), the bill defines the function of the committee as follows:

"1. To further investigate student housing conditions.

2. To present for consideration, recommendations on housing which will be conveyed to the Board of Trustees and other appropriate officials.

3. To take such action as may promote the amelioration of the problem."

Regarding the bill, Mathieson states: "This bill was stimulated by the predicament in which close to a third of the undergraduate body has found itself in due to the ill-considered housing policy of an administration madly rushing to reach preconceived 1970 goals without adequately considering the consequences of that policy."

"The unfortunate combination of the policy of increasing the size of each entering class with the fact that the high-rise dormitories are a full year behind schedule has resulted in an enormous housing problem.

"It is therefore urgent that the student body should be given a voice in trying to solve the problem and in the prevention of its repetition."

A second measure would have the Senate establish a committee to 'study the effect on the institution of a tri-semester academic year would have on student life."

The committee will investigate the effect of the tri-semester on not only the academic life of the student but also its effect on extracurricular activities and class traditions. The bill, also sponsored by Senator Mathieson, has as its ultimate aim the education of the student body in preparation for a poll which the administration will conduct on the subject during the year.

Also on the agenda are two proposed amendments to the Constitution, the first would raise the number of representatives which a given area would be allowed to have in the Senate. face of the greatly expanded commuter population.

The second would open dabate on a series of changes offered by a special senate committee.

Finally, the Senate will debate a bill which urges the student body to attend the opening convocation.

CAR FOR SALE

1962 Volkswagen Sedan
Ex. Cond., Shoulder Seat Belts. Asking $1500. Need larger car for growing family. Call Mr. McDaniel, AL 3-5530.

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR

Diamond needles
From $8.50 to $10.50
40% off with this coupon

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR

Free lubrication and Brake adjustment with this coupon worth $3.25

SPORTS ILLUSTRATED

STUDENT-RATE SUBSCRIPTIONS
Regular Subscriptions—$7.50 Students—$5.00
FULL-YEAR SUBSCRIPTIONS

Pay NOTHING now; you will be billed After Subscription Starts.
Mail this coupon NOW! Your subscription will start in 2 to 3 weeks. Mail to:
CAMPUS MAGAZINES
Box 682
Amherst, Mass.

Name ..... Class .....
Address .....
.....

When Godiva, that famed lady fair,
Told her husband, "I've nothing to wear,"
With his Swingline in hand,
He stapled a band
And said, "Wear this, my dear, in your hair!"

SWINGLINE STAPLER

98c
(including 1000 staples)
Larger size CUB Desk Stapler only $1.49

No bigger than a pack of gum
- Unconditionally guaranteed!
- Refills available anywhere!
- Get it at any stationery, variety, or book store!
- Send in your own Swingline Fable Prizes for those used

Swingline INC. LONG ISLAND CITY 1, N. Y.

EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY for girl with general insurance experience. Top salary. Group insurance. Paid vacations. Call Miss Ruth F. Simons at ALEXANDER W. BORAWSKI, INC., 88 King Street, Northampton, Mass. JU 4-5555

University Receives Grant For Study Of Professional

The University has received a grant of $23,500 from the Ford Foundation for a "retrieval study of the role of the professional overseas," University President John W. Lederle announced recently.

The study will be directed by two UMass sociology professors, Dr. C. Wendell King and Dr. Edwin D. Driver.

The two major phases of the study will be completed within a year. These are extended interviews and a series of seminars with approximately 100 professionals of varied backgrounds—educators, administrators, engineers, etc.—who have served in a professional capacity overseas.

According to the directors, "There is really not enough known about the problems professionals meet when they go abroad. We are particularly interested in the kinds of university training, for example in familiarization with foreign cultures, which help professionals most in their work abroad."

Many members of the UMass faculty and staff who have served overseas will participate. Faculty members at Smith, Mount Holyoke and Amherst Colleges, and extension service officials with foreign professional experience will also be included.

Through the interviews, the two professors hope to uncover overseas influences on professional roles which seem most widespread. These influences and their later effects on individual careers at home, will provide guidelines for the two-day seminar discussions.

Departmental representatives from throughout the four participating schools will be invited to take part in the seminars in an attempt to encourage a more international orientation in departmental activities.

Placement ...

(Continued from page 1)

Placement Convocation will be held Thursday, September 19, at 11 a.m., in the ballroom of the Student Union. Senior women will have a chance to learn about the Placement Services, procedure for registration, and information they will need for their senior interviews. All will receive credientials which should be filled out completely to provide an up-to-date record of every senior woman.

The second Placement Convocation will be held Thursday, October 3, at 11 a.m., in the Student Union ballroom to provide information about job opportunities for women.

Education majors should attend the special Convocation, Thursday, October 10, at 11 a.m. in the ballroom of the Student Union.

The third over-all Senior Convocation on Thursday, November 21, at 11 a.m. in the Student Union ballroom will be held to discuss interview techniques.

All senior women should make an appointment for their individual interviews at the Placement Office in Machmer Hall. January graduates and first semester practice teachers should begin this by October.

Roisters Pick Manager For Business Post

The election of Sheila Ferrini to the post of Business Manager of Roister Doisters, the campus' student dramatic society, headed the order of business at the group's first meeting of the year last night.

Also at the meeting, preliminary plans were announced for an independent Roister Doister production to be given early in the second semester. The production will probably be of an experimental nature, an RD spokesman said.

Working in cooperation with University Theatre, RD members will be selling season tickets for the academic theatre's five-play season. Anyone interested in obtaining a ticket may do so by contacting a member of Roister Doisters.

First production of the season will be The Twin Menaechmi on October 17, 18 and 19.

Amherst Zoning Board Discusses U.M. Growth

University growth was a prime topic of discussion at a meeting last week between Amherst Selectmen and members of the Amherst Planning Board.

Planning Board Chairman Theodore Bacon stated the necessity for a campus oriented business area. He said he thought the town should decide on an area south of UM, zone it and have it well in hand before the dorms are built.

On the basis of his experience, Zoning Board Chairman Arnold Rhodes said, when the campus zone was suggested, residents claimed fraternities would degrade their property, but now when a fraternity tries to buy the price is way up. The same thing, he said, would be true of an expanded business district, prices would go up. A business could move out to a field for a lost less.

Discussing the future of apartment house Rhodes said the growth of the University was bringing more people who want apartment living," they are not wedded to the earth." The desire for apartments, he said, will increase faster than the population increases. Since most of the apartments presently being built are not large enough for children, the need of people with families for apartments is not being met.

Building Code Needed

The Zoning Board of Appeals, Rhodes felt, can limit the density on new apartment buildings, make sure of the esthetics, etc., but doesn't have the knowledge necessary to determine whether the building will be well constructed or not. Amherst needs a building code, he said.

Building Inspector Ralph Hosford felt strongly that any apartment building should be on permit from the zoning board.

Medical School

Time ran out before the last item on the agenda, the medical school, could be discussed. Selectman Norman MacLeod, speaking personally, expressed himself in favor of the idea, but the two boards have not come to a firm decision on the question as yet.

Fish Team Wins Cup

V. Michael Knight, Nova Scotia's Deputy Minister of Trade and Industry, is shown presenting the Hulman Cup to members of the University of Massachusetts team, who won top honors in the eighth annual Intercollegiate Game Fish Seminar and Fishing Match held at Wedgeport. Receiving congratulations and the trophy from the deputy minister are, left to right, Maurice Brosky, Amherst, Mass.; Ronald Bellisario, Ludlow, Mass.; Jonathan Goldthwaite, Framingham, Mass.; Mr. Knight; Robert Fiere, Bowie, Maryland; and Daniel Bousquet, Southbridge, Mass.

Jaycee Coupons

Still available from members of Adelphia, the senior men's honor society, are merchandise books worth $100 in items purchased from Amherst merchants.

Offered through the cooperation of the Amherst Junior Chamber of Commerce, a percent of the proceeds from sale of the books will finance UMass projects sponsored by Adelphia.

Estimated as a $100 value, the book of 33 coupons is being sold for $5 by Adelphia in the S.U. lobby. The promotion is intended to introduce UMass students to Amherst merchants.

Computer Indicates New Trend

by JOHN CHILDS

In Orwell's 1984 it is said of this future state, "The ideal set up by the Party was something huge, horrible, and glittering, a world of steel and concrete, of monstrous machines . . . " In one way or another more than one of the latter-day prophets has warned of this future world where man is subordinated to gleaming machines that digest the minds of men and become the conquerors of men from that very digestion.

Indeed there is something about the concept of computers that raises fears in the minds of many. Such was the case when the use of computer scheduling was begun at the University under the guidance of H. Hills Skillings, University Scheduling Officer and Assistant Professor of Mathematics. Many complained that they did not want a machine "telling us where to go". The impersonality of a machine which implies a disregard for the individual bothered many students as it bothers many people.

The scheduling computer which raised such fears is in reality two computers. One, the "workhorse" is an IBM 1401 located downstairs in South College. It is this machine which processes data. This data is then sent to Boston where 7090 "the brains" of the operation works on it. The data is then returned to Amherst for re-processing.

"But why," some ask, "why the computer at all?" The population of the Unniversity is increasing tremendously. The impact of this on hand scheduling methods was extremely hard. Something was needed, not to replace the human and his inadequacies but to augment him and his capabilities. As Professor Skillings says in his pamphlet, Why Computer Scheduling?, "The ultimate objective of computer scheduling is to produce combinations of teachers, students, times and rooms which provide the best education for the maximum number of students . . . " This cannot be done by people alone.

By the same token however, if it cannot be done by people alone it certainly cannot be done by only the machines. What strikes one upon investigating computer scheduling here at the University is that despite the warnings of the prophets this is a human operation. The people who run University scheduling, to be sure, make mistakes—even with the computers. They are not perfect. If they are not perfect, however, they are continually striving to meet the needs of the people, of the individuals of the University.

As Professor Skillings points out, the combination of teachers, students, times and rooms ". . . must be accomplished with full regard for the needs of both faculty and students." It is significant to the philosophy behind the computer scheduling at the University that ". . . concentration is being given to develop a system that will deal with the individual as a human and not as a mere item on the assembly line."

If the trend is toward the enslavement of people by machines, it may be that we see in these above statements a counter-trend.

Camera Enthusiasts

The photography staff of the Index will hold a meeting tomorrow, September 19, at 7 p.m., in the Index office on the second floor of the Student Union.

Regardless of experience, any student interested in photography is urged to attend.

SENIOR PHOTOS

SENIORS—Now that schedules are straightened out, it's time to arrange an appointment to have your Index picture taken.

AS SOON AS POSSIBLE, Seniors are asked to contact the Index office on the second floor of the Student Union and arrange a picture time.

Because of immediate Index deadlines, it is important that this be done at once.

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
Student Agent for married
Dorms JOE DALTON
Apt. D-1 Suffolk House

College Girls!
Earn easy extra money.
Sell exclusive hair care product. We supply first free samples. Send name and address to Lo Wane Products, P.O. Box 796, Wayne, N.J.

TR 3
FOR SALE
AL 3-5555

Harvard Motorcade
Students With Cars Planning To Participate In The Motorcade Leave Name In RSO

JAYCEE COUPON FAIR
Buy Desk lamp from $5.95
Receive free College Emblem Book
Ends worth. $3.95
Dividend value 66.6%

Coach Fusia Hopefully Eyes YanCon Grid Crown

by BOB HEALY

On a breezy fall day last November 17 the Redman band played "Fight Massachusetts" for the last time of the 1962 season. Football fans, both gleeful and sad, made their way toward the exits of Alumni Field, but one lone figure stood out in the crowd.

There on the hash mark of the forty yard line stood dejectedly a balding, well-built man in an overcoat. This lonely figure's football team had just lost the Yankee Conference Championship to the underdog University of New Hampshire team, 16-14.

ONLY THE WEEK before his team had sprung the football upset of the East by defeating Villanova 19-18. In one week Head-coach Vic Fusia had taken the ride from the top of the pile to the depths of dejection.

Now for Coach Fusia comes a new season, but fortunately not an entirely new team. In the "Turtle's" own words, "Barring any serious injuries the outlook is excellent." The Fighting Redmen have twenty lettermen returning, including seven starters and nine of the eleven who participated in the famous goal line stand at Villanova.

Beginning his third year at the helm of the Redmen football regime, Vic Fusia is the twentieth head coach in the seventy-nine year history of football at the University of Massachusetts.

COACH FUSIA HAILS FROM PITTSBURGH and attended Wilkinsburg (Pa.) H.S. and Mt. St. Michael's H.S. (Bronx, N.Y.) He graduated in 1938 with a B.S. degree from Manhattan College. On the football field for the Jaspers Vic was an outstanding tailback in the days of the single wing.

After his graduation from Manhattan, Fusia taught for a year at a boys school in New York before entering the U.S. Navy. He served in the Pacific for two years and was discharged in 1946 with the rank of Lieutenant Junior Grade.

In 1946 and 1947 Fusia coached at Rankin (Pa.) H.S. where his teams lost only two league games in two years. He then climaxed three successful years at Indiana (Pa.) H.S. with an undefeated team in 1950. Vic then served for four years as backfield coach at Brown University under Alva Kelley. In 1955 Coach Fusia stepped up to the position of backfield coach and first assistant to head coach John Michelosen at the University of Pittsburgh. During his six years at Pitt the Panthers consistently fielded one of the top independent college elevens with much credit to Vic Fusia for the teams offensive success.

THIS BRINGS VIC'S HISTORY UP to present with his University of Massachusetts teams compiling an overall 11 wins-7 losses record. Let's hope that come November 16 Vic Fusia will stand on the hash mark of the forty yard line once again, but this time with the Yankee Conference Beanpot in his possession.

HEAD COACH VIC FUSIA

JAYCEE COUPON
FAIR
Exclusive Men's Shop
Up to $10.00 worth of clothes, 20% off
This coupon worth $2.00

THOSE CLEAN WHITE ADLERS

Now you're catching on. Just be "clean white sock" in Adlers. Suddenly everyone sees you as the man who always knows the right thing to do, even if he decides not to do it. So now's the time to grab a motor scooter and a girl, not necessarily in that order. But first, grab the Adler SC shrink controlled wool sock. In white and a covey of colors. $1.00

THE ADLER COMPANY, CINCINNATI 14, OHIO • IN CANADA: WINDSOR HOSIERY MILLS, MONTREAL

Available at:

F. M. THOMPSON

Fitness Tests To Precede Men's Phys. Ed. Courses

by RICHARD RYAN

All male students in the Freshman and Sophomore classes who are required to take physical education are currently undergoing a series of three Motor Fitness Tests. These three tests: pull-ups, sitting tucks, and mile run, are designed to measure the endurance and strength of UMass students.

Each student's raw score on each of the three tests will be changed into an equivalent percentile score based on national testing in these events. The three percentile scores will then be added together and again compared against the national figures.

IF A STUDENT'S compound score is in the lowest 15 percentile, he is then required to take conditioning, an eight week course utilizing the Canadian five basic exercises (5Bx) plus pull-ups and other instruction designed to improve the student's physical fitness. Dr. David C. Bischoff, Director of Required Physical Education, stressed that the purpose of the conditioning course was to raise the level of a student's physical proficiency so that he will enjoy the other physical education courses he is taking during the year. Those students who score in the top percentiles will have first preference of courses.

The whole testing program was designed to place students in those courses in which they will be of about equal athletic skill with their classmates and thereby get greater enjoyment and benefits from their classes.

ATT.: TENNIS PLAYERS!

The intramural department announces the start of its annual men's singles tournament, open to all male students and faculty members. Entry blanks may be obtained at the Cage from Mr. Cobb or Mr. Kosakowski, or from Steve Harrington at Kappa Sigma. Entries close on Monday 23.

Last year's Tournament was won by Dr. Paul Norton of the Art Department, who beat fraternity champ Bill Martin of T.E.P.

SPORTS DADS TICKETS

Mr. Louis Varrichione, President of the University of Massachusetts Sports Dads Association has announced that students whose parents intend to attend the Harvard football game can purchase tickets for a special section that has been reserved for the Sports Dads by sending $3.00 for each ictket to Robert W. O'Connell, Financial Manager of Athletics, on or before Monday, September 23.

SWIMMING PRACTICE

The Varsity and Freshman swimming teams will begin practice Monday, Sept. 23, at the Men's swimming pool in the Cage from 4:00 to 5:30. Newcomers are welcome—we have the best coaching staff in New England. If anyone is unable to start now but plans to do so later, come see us anyway.

The Co-captain

JAYCEE COUPON
FAIR
Amherst Leading Hostelry
Buy any meal with friend
Receive second at half price
Dividend value 50%

HARVARD TICKETS

Tickets for the UMass—Harvard football game September 28 at Harvard Stadium are now available in Room 10A of the Men's Physical Education Building. Students, faculty, and staff members will be limited to the purchase of one reserved seat at a special rate of $1.50. Students must show their ID card when purchasing a ticket. Additional adjoining seats may be purchased at the regular $3.00 price. For additional information, contact Robert O'Connell, Financial Manager of Athletics at extension 2691.

FOOTBALL TICKET OFFICE

The football ticket office at the University of Massachusetts will be open from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on Saturday, September 21. Tickets will be on sale in Room 10A of the Men's Physical Education Building for the Harvard and Buckneil games.

STUDENT WIVES

Season tickets for wives of UMass undergraduate students are now on sale in Room 10A—Men's Physical Education Building. The price of the ticket is $5.00 and it will admit the bearer to all home football, basketball and baseball games. Seating will be in the sections reserved for students.

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Redmen Will Play Army In Soccer

by SCOTT FREEDLAND '66

Intercollegiate soccer returns to the UMass campus Saturday, September 21, as the varsity soccer team prepares to face a rugged Army team. Out to avenge last year's 4-2 loss at West Point, in which the Redmen outscored and held scoreless the cadets in the second half, the Redmen will find conditioning the real problem. With only six players able to return for early practice, the rugged Army conditioning could be a major factor in an even, open game.

Defensively on paper the team is in the strongest position it has been for years. The loss of All American Captain Dick Repeta to a sprained ankle weakens the fullback line of Repeta and Yando. The weakened full back line might necessitate the dropping back of a halfback to protect Dick Phillipps who has little experience as a goalie, a position in which the loss of Freshman standout Rick Gustavsen could be hard felt.

Coach Briggs feels that he has the best first line in five years, in ~~his~~ words "all scorers". Seniors Dick Leete and Kevin Lyons, Junior Pat McDevitt, and Sophomore Mike Zarrotny add strength and depth to the attack. Lack of real depth due to conditioning and the number of interested players will hamper the booters Saturday.

If the opener against West Point proves to be a poor showing it is not likely to be a forecast of a poor season. Injuries due to poor conditioning will decrease as the season lengthens and as the inexperienced gain from actual play. The booters have the material to be a Yankee Conference threat when the Yan-Con league of UVM-UMass-URI and UConn makes its debut in a year or two with Maine and UNH to be added.

Soccer Manager

Anyone interested in applying for manager of the varsity soccer team should contact Coach Larry Briggs in the Men's Physical Education Building.

Freshman Football

There will be a meeting of all those interested in applying for the freshman football team as a player or manager Wednesday night at 7:30 in the Men's Physical Education building.

Typical of the Fast Action in a Good Soccer Game

For those people who have never seen a soccer game, Saturday would be an excellent opportunity to see a good one. UMass is playing West Point at 1:30 at the Soccer Field. Admission free.

JAYCEE COUPON
FAIR
Any amount
Note Paper and Stationery, equal amount at half price
Dividend value 50%

Footballer's Family Life Limited When Season Practice Begins

by JOHN GOODRICH '65

A married student who is trying to gain a college education is confronted with many problems. He must find a means of supporting his family as well as giving a goodly portion of his time to the necessary home life. A married athlete has the same problems, but in a more advanced stage. The problem of practice sessions limits the time he can spend with his family and makes the financial burden more pressing because he cannot hold an outside job.

The 1963 edition of the Redmen football team has nine married members. In a recent interview two of these gentlemen were asked to outline some of their problems. Bob Burke, veteran lineman, said, "The hardest time is the two week training period before the opening of school. During that time the team has to live on campus with the coaches. We get to see our families maybe an hour a night." Letterman Peter Pietz added, "My wife stayed at home, since it would be so difficult to see each other during that period and there was nothing for her to do around here."

Since players do not have a chance to hold outside jobs, they were asked about how they financed their way in school. Burke said, "I need the scholarship help that I get, but even then it is tough. Most of the money earned during the summer is spent right away." Pietz commented, "My wife works now to help out. I'm not on scholarship, so that money plus what I earn in the summer gets us through the year."

A typical day for one of these boys constitutes getting up for classes which are usually in the morning. The afternoons are used for study before practice. The players begin their practice at 4:00 p.m. wihch means they should be at the locker room shortly after 3. The session usually ends about 6:15. From there, the players go to the training table for the night meal. If there is no meeting, they will then go home about 7:30. If a meeting is planned, then they will not get home until 9:30. Burke says, "Then your wife wants you stay up for a while, but you just can't do it." What time is left is used for study, but mostly for sleep. On a weekend, the team leaves on a trip for an away game either Friday or Saturday, depending on the distance. The bus returns sometime Saturday night or Sunday morning. There really is not much time for much of a married life.

BOB BURKE PETER PIETZ

Despite the problems outlined here by the players, both were quick to add that they would play under any circumstances and wouldn't want to trade places with anyone.

Baseball Announcement

There will be a meeting of all those interested in varsity baseball Thursday, Sept. 19 at 6:45 p.m. in room 10 of the Men's Physical Education Building.

Brownies Football

The Brownies touch football team is forming again for the new season. All those who have played for the Brownies in the past are requested to sign up again along with any new people who fit the team's eligibility clause.

NO SOUND EFFECTS

Echos, screaming announcers, bells, whistles, explosions or sirens. Just the facts, via Associated Press, United Press International, and Radio Press International. WTTT features news in depth and interpretative reporting, edited with the informed, discriminating listener in mind. Those desiring sensationalism and gossip are advised to listen to other stations.

For News of Significance . . .

WTTT 1430 Kc.

JAYCEE COUPON
FAIR
Two white shirts $5.85
Exclusive men's label
This coupon worth $2.05
Dividend value 35%

JAYCEE COUPON
FAIR
See your Adelphian
Agents
at the Ticket Office,
Student Union
7 p.m.-10 p.m.

Bowdoin Library Maine

LIBRARY
SEP 24 1963

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 3 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1963

Senate Hits Housing Policy

by ELWIN McNAMARA '64

"The (housing) situation has grown from the mildly offensive to the ridiculous to the ludicrous." This was spoken by Senator Bill Landis at last night's Student Senate meeting. He gave the utterance after hearing Senator Dave Mathieson tell in detail the extent of the housing problem at the University.

In his opening remarks, Mathieson stated that the condition was the result of two factors: the "ill considered housing policy of an administration madly rushing to reach preconceived 1970 goals" and the failure of the M. J. Walsh Co. to complete the new high-rise dorms on time.

Mathieson read the following figures on tripling into the Senate record:

Hills North—48 triples
Hills South—49 triples
Chadbourne—35 triples
Greenough—36 triples
Butterfield—over 40
Wheeler—36 triples
Mills—44 triples
Baker—37 triples
Brett—over 40
Gorman—62 triples

He also stated that the second floor of Hampshire House, a married students' dorm, has been converted to house 44 single students. This creates a situation where there are married students on the first and third floors and single students on the second. Plymouth House, which last year housed 86 women, this year houses 138 men with the aid of two quadruples.

The normal capacity of the men's dormitories is 2261. This year they have 2870 men packed into them.

The women's dormitories, Mathieson stated, are not much better. This is not as much the problem of triple rooms as unusual living conditions. Women have been forced into everything from janitor's apartments and kitchenettes to utility rooms. In Arnold House a Gordon Linen room has been pressed into service. In Crabtree and Johnson basement study rooms have been taken over and are now quadruples. In Knowlton, a basement storage room now houses 4 women. Finally, in Leach and Thatcher, the janitor's apartment, a two room suite, now holds eight.

Utility rooms are also being used as singles in Arnold (3), Crabtree (1), Dwight (3), Leach (1) and Mary Lyon (3).

Many women in Dwight, Mary Lyon and Johnson are being tripled without rebate.

The crowded housing, it is felt, will have its emotional results also. A growing apprehension over the possibility of future riots has been voiced by both students and administration.

Campus Chief of Police Alexander Blasko informed the Collegian that his force stands ready to cope with any exigencies. If necessary, auxiliary, Amherst, and State police forces will be called in to quell any disturbances.

He said that in the past demonstrators have been quelled without injury to students, but pointed out that his officers will protect themselves. Force, he said, may someday have to be met with force. However, he went on to explain that force will be a last resort with the campus police.

An informed source stated that the administration is planning to affix high intensity lights onto both Brooks and Van Meter Dorms in anticipation of disturbances in the area of those dorms.

Unanimous Bill Sets Up Investigating Committee

by DON JOHNSON '66

Last night an aroused, and genuinely concerned Student Senate unanimously approved a bill calling for the establishment of an Ad Hoc Committee on Student Housing to further investigate Student Housing conditions on campus.

The bill, sponsored by Senator David Mathieson (At-large '64) received strong verbal support from senators Dick Boyden (commuters) and Ross Jones (Brett). In addition, a strongly worded, condemnatory speech, blasting existing conditions, was delivered by Senator William Landis (at large '65), and is reprinted, in full, elsewhere on this page.

In his opening words, Senate President Jon Fife proposed that, for the Senate, this would be "a challenging year . . . a good year." Just how challenging was soon demonstrated by Senate reaction to housing conditions as outlined by Senator Mathieson, and the action taken upon the bill, which reads as follows:

Whereas the Student Senate deeply regrets the present housing situation (September 1963) which finds a great part of the undergraduate student body adversely affected by being situated in triples, quadruples, and other abnormal quarterss and,

Whereas the Student Senate likewise deeply regrets the circumstances wherein the Housing Office has been forced to appeal to the people of the neighboring towns for quarters for an additional 500 students for whom there is no space on campus;

Be it resolved that the Student Senate, ever mindful of its duty to safeguard the interests and welfare of the student body, established an Ad Hoc Committee on Student Housing. The function to be as follows:

1. To further investiagte Student Housing conditions.

2. To present for the Senate's consideration, recommendations on housing which will be conveyed to the Board of Trustees and other appropriate officials.

3. To take such action as may promote the amelloration of the problem.

Said Ad Hoc Committee shall be composed of members of the Student Senate, representatives of the Interdorm Councils and interested undergraduates appointed by the President of the Student Union.

Forceful action was also taken by the Senate regarding the on-campus parking situation, and the justice of the three dollar registration fee was questioned. In introducing a bill calling the administration to account Senator Dave Clancy (fraternities) The three dollar car registration fee has been the subject of wide spread controversy in view of the large number of cars registered, and the extremely limited parking facilities available for them on campus. The bill, as passed by the Senate, reads as follows:

Whereas the Student Senate is the official sounding board of student opinion:

Be it resolved that the Services Committee of the Senate be instructed to approach the administration in regards to the present solution of on-campus parking conditions with special reference to cost, receipts, and future use of these receipts.

This year's Student Senate Officers discuss important point of order. Left to right: Secretary Wendy Hall, Treasurer Ross Jones, Vice President Joan Labuzoski, and President Jon Fife.

SENATE HUMOR

Last night's Senate meeting was not without its humor. President Jon Fife read the resignation of Senator Steve Gray from the Senate. At the end just as he finished the customary "Is there any objection?", a burst of cheering from a meeting down the hall filled the chambers. The entire Senate burst into laughter. Fife quipped, "I hope that is not an editorial comment from the Senate."

In another action, the fact that the administration is considering the institution of a trimester academic year moved the Senate to vote in favor of establishing an Ad Hoc Committee to study what effects said system would have on student life, class structure, extra-curricular activities, and the financial status of those students working their way through school, to whom summer jobs are vital.

A significant development felt worthy of the students' immediate consideration, also received favorable action. A proposal that the Student Senate endorse and urge strong student participation at the President's Convocation Thursday, September 26th at 11:15 in the Student Union Ballroom passed without opposition.

Revelers Establish Tradition

The climax of the many events of the past week which have welcomed the Class of 1967 to our campus will be the Freshman Dance on Saturday, September 21 It is hoped that the Freshman Dance, initiated by the Revelers last year will become a new tradition at the University.

The dance will provide an excellent opportunity for Freshmen to meet their classmates, thus creating greater cohesion and class spirit.

Music by Paul Collins will set the tone for fun and dancing from 8:30 until 12 in the S. U. Ballroom. All Freshmen are invited; admission is 75c per couple or 50c per person. Come join the fun!!!

Senator Blasts School Policy

by BILL LANDIS

The following is the text of the speech given by Senator-at-Large William Landis during debate on University housing policy.

I AM INDEED alarmed by the present housing situation confronting all of us at this university. The situation has grown from the mildly offensive to the ridiculous to the ludicrous.

The primary purpose of a university is to provide a young man or young woman who seeks an education with the proper facilities with which he or she may glean the benefits of a liberal knowledge. It has been stated that the primary concern of American education today is to cultivate in the largest number of our future citizens an appreciation of both the responsibilities and of the benefits which come to them because they are American and free.

THIS UNIVERSITY HAS vacillated somewhat from this concern, for I am inclined to think that we students are no longer completely free, but somehow—"unavoidably" perhaps—restricted. The common stock of intellectual enjoyment should not be difficult of access. When access borders upon the difficult—if not the impossible—then we are not here for liberal education.

We are here for sharing clos-

(Continued on page 6)

Special Class Scheduled Elections

Candidates wishing to run in the special election to fill the post of Class of 1966 Vice President are advised that nomination

(Continued on page 6)

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

Relative Beastiality

by JOHN B. CHILDS

We recently ran across a book review which in the process of praising a war novel states, "The soldier seeing the enemy advancing under cover of a herd of cows humanely turns the cows aside before hand grenading his adversaries." We closely checked the review for signs that the reviewer was a subtle humorist sneaking about under the cover of sarcasm. We found none. The word "humanely," it would seem, is to be taken as meaning humane.

The role of the hand-grenade lobbing G.I. is not the issue here. The thinking of the reviewer is. For the G.I. it was simply a case of throw the grenade or feel the bite of a bullet through his body. For this reviewer it seems to be a matter of confusion on the relative value of cows and people.

The reviewer believes that it is humane to save cows while in the midst of shooting humans. The reviewer, if we may be so bold as to interpret his thinking, seems to believe this on the assumption that the soldier is not taking life indiscriminately. He is taking life from other humans because he is forced to, but at least he is aware of the value of life and thus saves the cows.

The value of humanity is therefore reduced. It is reduced from the level of human life to the level of bestial life. The valuelessness of beastial life is raised to the level of humans. What good does it do to praise the raising of one value while at the same time a more important value is being reduced?

We look with considerable unease upon the writing of one who would place us in a position relative to cows such that we would reach the stockyard before they would.

The Physotomous Phthriasis

Keep The Berlin Wall

by SAM GORVINE

All right. I lied. I said I wasn't going to discuss politics, but I've changed my mind—sort of. I think that what you are about to read had to be written. I wrote it because it is the way I feel.

This column is really about murder. It is about the murder of Jews, Poles, Russians, and assorted members of most European nations. The official score cards total the number at between four and six million depending on who you believe. But this is an old story. I'm sure you must be tired of hearing it.

You must also be tired of hearing about the various experiments which were performed to further the cause of science. I am told that someone from the University community had the good fortune as a child to have her calf muscle removed. I suppose they wanted to see what would happen. Most admirable, this curiousity which makes the Germans such good scientists. We must give credit where credit is due.

But I digress. I was talking about the Berlin Wall. It seems that most of these people were imprisoned for a time before being given the benefit of German medicine or permanent anesthetic. It is most fitting that people (they ARE the same ones, for the most part, you know) who were instrumental in the imprisonment and despair of so many should have it turned on them, even if it is only token, and even if the people who arranged it did so for their own reasons.

The final horror of it, gentlemen, is that these men whom I call murderers are our brothers. Yes, mine too. They have the sickness of Cain in them, which we call by more sophisticated names nowadays, but we have in us the capacity to do as bad or worse. I ask myself that if I could wish death on all those who raised their right arms to Hitler, and these were millions, would I? I think I would. There is the proof of our brotherhood. The only difference is that they had the power to back their wishes, and I don't.

FRESHMEN, are you disgruntled? Are you pleased? Do you feel like expressing yourself? Selection for editorial writers will be Tuesday, Sept. 24, 1963, at 7:00 p.m. in the Collegian office. You are invited!

STUDENT VIOLENCE COORDINATING COMMITTEE

Having felt as one with the students of my time, the rioters in Hundary, Turkey, Japan, Korea, Peru, etc. I feel that I have missed some of the joy of student life. I've never been in a revolution, a riot or even a mild disturbance. This upsets me no end.

It is not that I have lacked provocation. Certainly the gameskeepers, janitors and cops (not necessarily in that order) who have insulted me deserve the "death of a thousand cuts" or the fundamental fate of Edward. But a riot of one (namely me) is not only no fun, but it can also be dangerously expulsive (sic).

"But," you may say, "the Hungarians were fighting for freedom." Well so am I. And I am you. I want to be free from the corruption of peeling license plates, unfinished dorms and three-dollar decals. I want to be free from "triples," block-long lines and inadequate parking facilities. And most of all I want to be free from humiliation, whether in the treasurer's office, the pool room or the Hatch. I want to stand up and say "Sir, (for I always say that) I am your raison d'etre. I am a student. And there is no shame in that."

..I wonder if these rioters, these revolutionaries who seem to occupy every University in the "non-civilized" world are ashamed of being students. I wonder if they shuffle their feet when they walk into an office or if they stand silent when abused by their University's employees. I wonder about things like that.

I wonder if the guys who were throwing Molotov cocktails at the Russian tanks were in the process of losing one-third of a grade for cutting class. I wonder about things like that.

I wonder, most of all, if there is anything about which students desire to be violent. Hence I call for the formation of the Student Violence Coordinating Committee. I nominate myself for president (since I am of highly uneven temperament) and I draw our standard, the banner under which we march, from America's revolutionary past. It will be a flag with a coiled snake and the words "Don't tread on me."

Michael M. Hench '64

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Car Registration and The Proper Education

An Open Letter to All Concerned:

I am writing this letter in objection to a recently instituted ruling concerning the registration of motor vehicles at this University. This ruling states that a student, after fulfilling other provisions, must have "required motor vehicle liability insurance, as well as guest and extra territorial bodily injury coverage and property damage liability coverage in the amount of at least five thousand dollars".

I am not able to meet this last requirement. I have all of the insurance required by Massachusetts law, but cannot afford any increased coverage as demanded by the University. As a financially independent student, receiving no outside financial help except for government loans, I must pay for all of my college expenses from money earned summers and part time after classes. My car is a necessity to me. I allows me to live off campus at a cost of less than $90 a semester, compared to the University dorm rent of $100-$150 a semester. Since I have a kitchen in my off-campus housing, I am able to eat at a cost of $115-$130 a semester, compared to Dining Commons' costs of over $200. Most of all, my car enables me to travel back and forth to my two part-time jobs; one on campus, the other in the town of Amherst. Getting through school would be a great hardship to me without the use of my car. I imagine many other students are in a similar situation.

Some people ask how, under such financial difficulties, I can afford a car. Well, it's an old car. Parts are missing, it's well dented, it doesn't run fast, and it looks like a wreck. But it's mechanically safe and reliable. It gets me where I want to go. I doubt I could sell it for more than $15. By taking riders, my gas costs are minimal.

The basic reason for imposing the new insurance regulations, according to administrative officials, is for "the protection of students." I am a responsible person, both legally (23 yrs. of age) and intellectually. I know my capabilities, my obligations in case of an automobile accident, and the risks involved in driving without insurance coverage over the lawful requirement. Weighing all factors, I have exercised my right as a responsible citizen and decided what insurance I need and want. In other words, I don't want to be protected, don't need to be protected, and don't feel I should be protected.

It seems rather ironic, and also unjust, that a student at this University, which was established partly on the principle of providing an education for those unable to afford an education otherwise, should prohibit a student from the privilege AND BENEFITS of a motor vehicle because of economic reasons, thus inhibiting his ability to get a proper education.

It is also ironic that the Administration of this University, which purports to teach men to think and decide for themselves, should usurp this right and freedom by imposing its own will on the student body.

Robert L. Newey '66

To the Editor:

I would like to disagree with you in reference to the Freshmen not continuing that great tradition of wearing beanies. It seems to me that somehow the freshmen found out that this insignificant and ridiculous tradition started only four years ago. Realizing this, the freshmen PROMPTLY substituted for this "new" custom a much more sweeping tradition prevalent on this campus . . . APATHY. Freshmen, welcome aboard!

D.F.

MEMBER

The Massachusetts Collegian

Editor-in-Chief:	Jeffrey Davidow '65
Editorial Editor:	George Masselam '65
News Editor:	Elwin McNamara '64
Photography Editor:	Ron Goldberg '66
Sports Editors:	Scott Freedland '66 John Reynolds '65 Richard Ryan '66
Business Manager:	Courtney Brickman '64
News Makeup Editor:	James Schmalz '65
Feature Editor:	David Axelrod '65

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.

Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press

Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

THE VERNACULAR: A New Twist To Your News

The Vernacular is a feature column intended to cover that wide field of topics of interest to UMass students. There are no secrets in this column, only clarity and variety. Find your innermost interest in print in this regular column.

• • • •

To begin: being underweight does have its advantages. According to insurance studies, persons 15 to 25 pounds below average weight have the lowest mortality rate. Women dominate this group.

• • • •

Do you seek a high status yet low property taxes? Perhaps you should run for president. The 18 acres of Washington, D.C. on which the White House is located are valued at only $1,000, by Tax Foundation, Inc.

• • • •

When your best friend won't tell you, I will. You have upwards of 90,000 holes in your head from which individual hair emerges, cosmetic researchers estimate.

• • • •

There is a new two-piece golf club on the market that features a replaceable pin. This permits the player to break the club and them reassenbel it after he has regained his composure.

• • • •

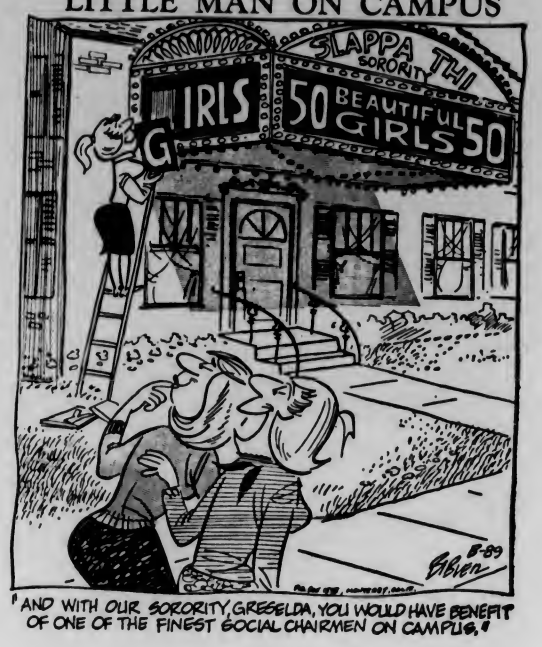
Girls, if you want to know if a fellow really notices you, find some way to inspect the pupils of his eyes. In recent eye research, men were shown a picture of a curvaceous blond. The purpose was to measure the opening response of the pupils. The pupils opened very wide, the Murine Co. reported.

• • • •

And when those big brown eyes of yours trap a man and your planning an elopement from fourth four Van Meter, note this well. To secure a ladder on soft bround, place each leg (of the ladder) in a one-pound coffee can.

by INEZ BRAND

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS



"AND WITH OUR SORORITY, GRESELDA, YOU WOULD HAVE BENEFIT OF ONE OF THE FINEST SOCIAL CHAIRMEN ON CAMPUS."

On Campus with Max Shulman

(By the Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and, "Barefoot Boy With Cheek.")

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH, DEAR FRIENDS

Today I begin my tenth year of writing this column in your campus newspaper. Ten years is a long time; it is, in fact, what some scholarly people like to call a decade—from the Latin word deccum, meaning the floor of a ship. It is, to my mind, remarkable that the Romans had such a word as deccum when you consider that ships did not exist until 1620 when John Alden invented the Mayflower. Alden, a prodigiously ingenious man, also invented the ear lobe and Pocahontas.

Ships were a very popular mode of travel—especially over water—until 1912 when the Swede, Ivar Krueger, invented the iceberg. Krueger also invented the match, which is a good thing, because without the match, how would you light your Marlboro Cigarettes? I cannot overstress the importance of lighting your Marlboro Cigarettes, for Marlboro Cigarettes, unlighted, provide, at best, only limited smoking pleasure.

You might even call it the limp or spongy sell

I mention Marlboros because this column is an advertisement, brought to you through the school year by the makers of Marlboros. Marlboros come in soft pack or Flip-Top box. The makers of Marlboros come in dark suits with thin lapels—except on weekends when they come in yoke-neck jerseys and white duck trousers. White ducks come in flocks. They are primarily fresh water dwellers, although they have been successfully raised in salt water too. Another salt water denizen I'm sure you will find enjoyable is plankton—a mess of tiny organisms like diatoms and algae and like that which float sluggishly near the surface of the sea. It is ironic that these creatures, microscopic in size, should supply the principal source of food for the earth's largest animal, the whale. Whales, I must say, are not at all pleased with this arrangement, because it takes the average whale, eating steadily, 48 hours to gather a day's meal. This leaves them almost no time for water sports or reading Melville. It is a lucky thing for all of us that whales are unaware they are mammals, not fish, and could, if they tried, live just as well on land as in water. I mean, you add ten or twelve million whales to our Sunday traffic and you would have congestion that makes the mind boggle.

But I digress. Today, I was saying, I begin my tenth year of writing this column for Marlboro Cigarettes in your campus newspaper. I will, in each column, say a few kind words about Marlboros—just as you will, once you try that fine tobacco flavor, that pristine white filter, that supple soft pack, that infrangible Flip-Top box. These references to Marlboro will be brief and unobtrusive, for I do not believe in the hard sell. What I favor is the soft sell—you might even call it the limp or spongy sell. I hasten to state that the makers of Marlboro in ten full years have not once complained about my desultory sales approach. Neither have they paid me.

But that is of small consequence. Aside from fleeting mentions of Marlboro, this column has another, and more urgent, mission: to cast the hot white light of free inquiry upon the vexing questions that trouble college America—questions like "Should the Student Council have the power to levy tariffs? and "Are roommates sanitary?" and "Should housemothers be compelled to retire upon reaching the age of 26?"

Perhaps, reasoning together, we can find the answers. Perhaps not. But if we fail, let it never be said that it was for want of trying.

I thank you.

© 1963 Max Shulman

• • •

The makers of Marlboro are happy to bring you another year of Max Shulman's unpredictable and uncensored column—and also happy to bring you fine filtered Marlboros, available in pack or box, wherever cigarettes are sold in all 50 states.

The Folk Scene

by BOB WEBER

This summer's Newport Folk Festival was an overwhelming success. Attendance at the evening concerts averaged over 11,000. Highlights of the activities at Freebody Park included the performances of Bob Dylan, Judy Collins, blues singers Dave Van Ronk, Mississippi John Hammond, Jr., the Scruggs banjo playing of Amherst College grad Will Keith, the bluegrass of the Dillards, and Joan Baez. For highlights of activities on the beaches, just talk to someone who was there! If you missed this year's Festival, there will definitely be another next summer promising to be even better.

The Philadelphia Folk Festival, which was held in Paoli, Penn., Sept. 6, 7 and 8, marked the East coast debut of a great female blues singer named Judy Roderic. Singing blues in a style all her own, she created the greatest sensation on a bill which included the Greenbriar Boys, Dave Van Ronk, Hedy West and Bonnie Dobson. More on Judy at a later date.

Local radio stations are now regularly programming folk music schows. Folk music can be heard on WACE, Chicopee, 730 KC from 4-5 p.m. on Saturdays, and week-nights on WSPR, Springfield, 1270 KS from 7-8. Our own radio station WMUA will soon be offering folk music. Program time is not definite as of yet.

Buffy St. Marie, who graduated from UMass in '62, just finished an engagement at the "Gaslight" in the Village. She will appear this Saturday night at Carnegie Hall in a hootenanny sponsored by Sing Out Magazine.

One last note for now: the latest record releases in the folk idiom blues singer John Hammond, Jr.'s is outstanding!

PASTEUR PANCHO

The Dear Abbey Of The Milk Routes

by JAY ISQUR

I am a pasteur in a "tennis-playing" community. My congregation is so tennis-playing that the milkman leaves cans of tennis balls along with the milk. I myself am a fairly good tennis player. Why, just yesterday—ah, but I am digressing.

About ten years ago I began receiving certain epistles, strange epistles, epistles such as the following:

"Are chops, slices and drop shots effective on fast surfaces?" I reflected for some time on the remarkable nature of such letters. Ruling out the ridiculous but rather disturbing thought that I might have been somehow mistaken for the United States Lawn Tennis Association, I reasonably concluded that my people—having problems of a quite personal nature — felt more at ease in referring to them through analog. And of course, the people being tennis oriented, their analogies were tennis oriented—and at times, I must admit, quite subtle.

Having built up quite an anthology of such letters, and also of my rather — ahem—skillful, perceptive, and abstract answers to them, I feel others might derive some benefit from reading these—the problems of my people.

Question: In doubles, if a ball is hit down the middle, should the left court player take it on his forehand?

Answer: In the case of important decisions, the actions of the husband and wife should depend entirely on the particular situation. The husband should take the initiative on important decisions while his wife stands quietly in the background. Of course, even if his wife refuses to stand quietly in the background, the husband should be ready to step in once the wife hesitates. (The husband had better find a chair; he has a long wait.) Of course, if the husband really wants to stay in the background, the wife had damn well better make the decision herself (possibly to file for divorce on the grounds that she has married three cubic feet of nothing). But let's say neither husband nor wife dare take the initiative. In such a situation, a standard rule might be employed. The one having made the last decision must make this one. In the event that there is some doubt as to who made the last move, an old chess rule might apply. When in doubt, don't move. Of course, we must all move at one time or another. Not moving may become rather intolerable. And so, the static existence becoming rather intolerance indeed, husband and wife will once again move—at the same time and in a state of much confusion. Such a state (of confusion) is not uncommon between husband and wife. But unfortunately the science of marriage counseling has seen no conceptual breakthroughs in the study of this universal problem. I myself see it as a rather insurmountable obstacle planted firmly in the way of orderly family decision making.

Perhaps the family dog . . . . .

The Open Hearth

• PIANO BAR

• COCKTAIL LOUNGE

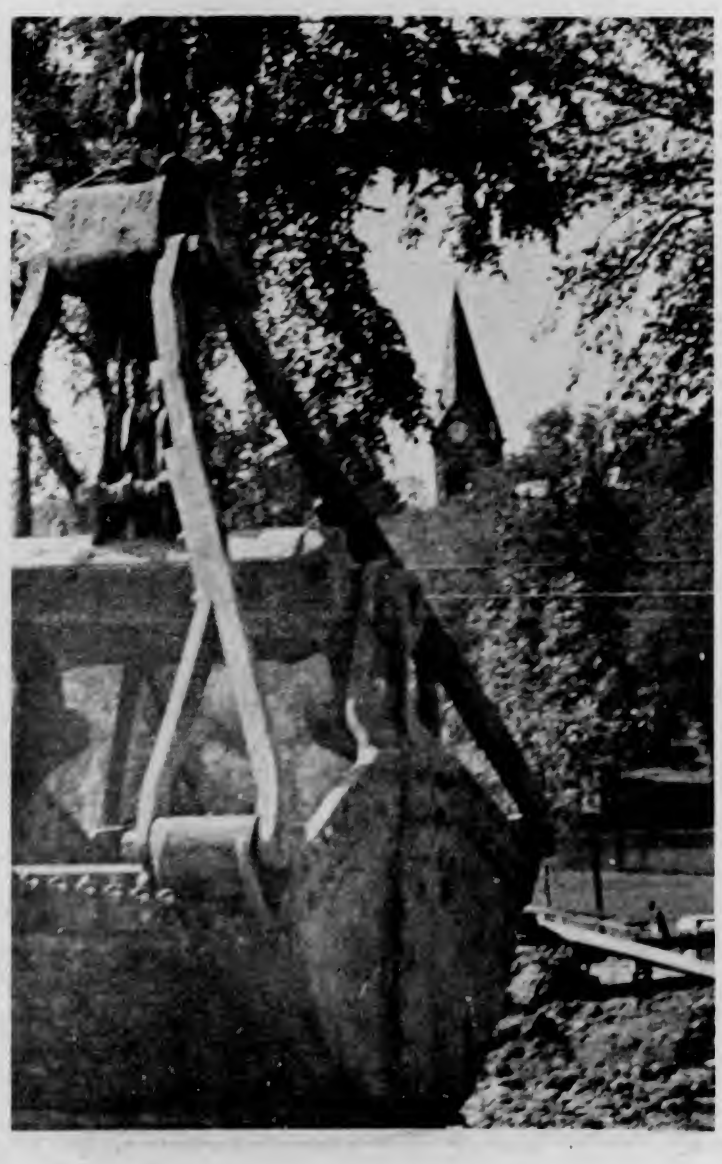
Boneless Sirloin Steak

$1.49

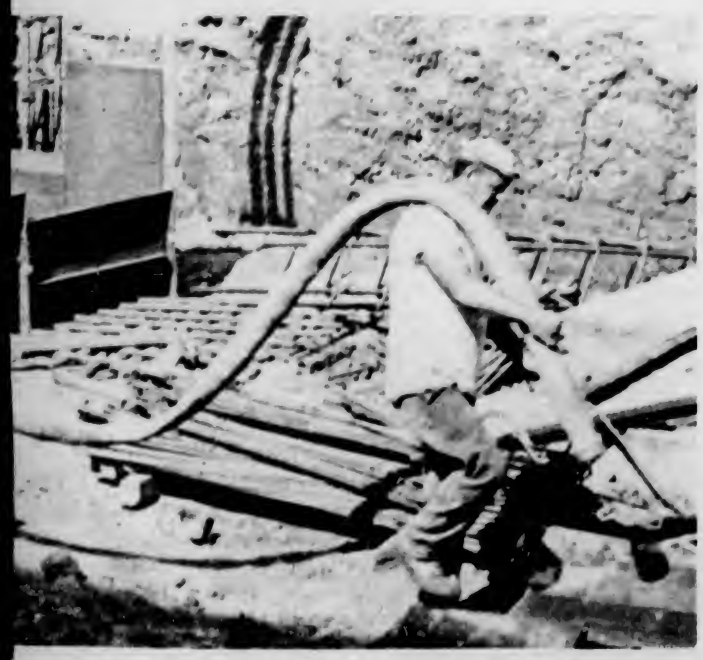
Drake's Village Inn

The COLLEGIAN CAMERA

Construction, Construction, Everywhere
And Not An End In Sight . . .



Photos by:
Ron Goldberg
Don Willoughby



. . . The Collegian camera has its creative moments too. Ron Goldberg, our photography editor, has taken this series of shots, capturing for a moment the spirit of the University's seemingly unending growth and construction. Framed with artistic qualities in mind, photos such as these will be comprising future montages of special occasions, or simply digging out the beauty that lurks in even the muddiest corners of our campus.

D.B.A.

Musicale

Beginning Sunday, September 23, Great Performances Your Sunday Edition of Musicale will present a ten-week series devoted to the Nine Beethoven Symphonies. By using two recordings of each symphony, a comparison will be made between a good and a bad performance of each symphony.

Many of the now deceased conductors of world famous symphony orchestras will be featured. Toscanini as he conducted the NBC, BBC, and New York Philharmonic Orchestras, Koussevitzky with the Boston Symphony and the London Philharmonic Orchestra, Felix Weingartner with the Vienna Philharmonic, and the late Bruno Walter with the New York Philharmonic are just some of the conductors and orchestras.

Musicale begins at 8 p.m. and is a two hour program of Classical Music over the University Radio Station, WMUA, 91.1 FM only.

D.V.P. APPLICATIONS

Distinguished Visiters Committee applications for the class of '66 are available in the RSO office Wednesday through Friday. There will be a coffee hour for all applicants on Sunday, September 22, 1963 at 7:00 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union.

Debating Team Changes Name, Expands Program

Starting the season with a new name, revised constitution, and a new head coach, the U. of Mass. Forensic Society has announced plans for a major program or expansion for this year.

Phillips Biddle, the new coach, has stated that his primary concern this year will be to increase the size of the team from fifteen members to thirty in order to build a better reserve of qualified debaters. Mr. Biddle is a veteran of top-notch mid-western debating and would like to see UMass. develop a team comparable to those of the mid-western schools.

At present, the society has plans for attending nine different intercollegiate tournaments, including the Amherst, N.Y.U., and William and Mary competitions.

The society opens its formal season on Monday at 5 p.m. when the varsity will meet with all interested candidates for novice or varsity competition. All those interested will meet at 391 Bartlett.

Also under consideration for this year are a forum for high school debate teams, a spring tournament to be held on campus, and an intramurals competition.

Fraternities Ruled Beneficial

Salt Lake City, Utah (UPI)—A University of Utah committee has made recommendations based upon the belief that the "fraternities and sororities at the University are an important part of the community, that they make substantial contribution to the educational experiences of stduents, and that specific kinds of actions need be taken by the faculty, administration, students, parents, and alumni if the potential contribution of fraternities and sororities is to be realized."

The committee's report recommended that: A Continuing Advisory Committee on fraternities and sororities be approved by the President representing students, alumni and faculty.

A closer working relationship be developed between the University and fraternities in regard to their financial operations and that greater alumni participation in the financial affairs of chapter be encouraged where needed.

In addition to a renewed emphasis on scholarship, Interfraternity Council, Pan-hellenic, individual fraternities and sororities, and University personnel work for a special emphasis on programs and activities which would be culturally and esthetically enriching for the fraternity or sorority member, exploiting more fully the fraternity's potential role as a cultural agent in the lives of members.

The President of the Board of Regents establish a committee to study legal aspects of fraternities and sororities being housed on University property, site location, site development, types of housing, methods of financing (including donations from fraternity alumni), and the establishment of a time table for construction in order to determine the conditions under which fraternities and sororities could move on campus.

(Continued on page 7)

Fly-Tying To Be Taught On Tuesday Evenings

A course in fly-tying for persons with no previous experience in this hobby will be taught at the Student Union by Dr. R. Bruce Hoadley, Asst. Professor of Forestry and Wildlife Mgt., under sponsorship of the Student Union Activities Program.

The class will consist of seven weekly sessions which will be held on Tuesday evenings from October 8 through November 19; each session will last approximately from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m. Included in the course will be the basic principles and techniques in tying flies commonly used for trout and other fresh water fish. At each session, a lecture period covering materials and methods will be followed by step-by-step instructions in tying representative patterns of each of the basic types of flies.

It is hoped that students will find it appealing and interesting.

The class will be limited to 10 people, so it would be advisable to sign up early. Most equipment will be furnished. The only cost will be for feathers, hooks, and thread, a minimal amount.

Anyone interested should contact Mary Alden in the S.U. Program office before Tues., Oct. 8.

Lost and Found

LOST: One combination bike type lock. Lost in the vicinity of Johnson Dorm. Please return to 103 Hamlin.

LOST: One black wallet in the Men's Phys Ed. Build. on Wed. Interested only in cards and papers, not money. Return to Thomas Skratt, 327 Gorman.

Senator Blasts ...

(Continued from page 1)

ets, drawers, windows, doors, lights and books. We are here to engage in whist, pitch, casino, bridge. We are here to entertain the petulent, the tempestuous, the disreputable, the flagrant, the indifferent. We are bereft of time.

THIS UNIVERSITY IS supporting. And unless the wound is superficial, the flow of its noisome pus will cover us now and those who follow us. The first step to closing this pore is before you. The affair has been too costly already. I applaud Senator Mathieson in his effort and urge you to voice approval for this bill.

RIDE
wanted from Northampton to U.M. on MWF to arrive in time for an 11 a.m. class. Call Northampton JU 4-3428 ask for Janet papers are available and are due back on Sept. 24. The election will be held on the 26th in the S.U.

Elections ...

(Continued from page 1)

Nomination papers for the general Senate election will be available on the 23d. They will be due back on October 1, with the election scheduled for October 3.

Also, nomination papers for a special election to fill the Class of 1965 Senator-at-Large post will be available at the same times.

Freshman primaries for class officers will be held on October 17 with the finals on the 24th.

CLUB DIRECTORY

AMATEUR RADIO CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in Gunness Lab. All interested are invited.

AMHERST FRIENDS
A discussion on race relations will be held at 10:15 a.m. on Sun., Sept. 22 at the Amherst Grange. A car will be in front of the S.U. at 10 a.m.

A.S.M.E.
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25 at 8 p.m. in the Commonwealth room of the S.U. All M.E.'s welcome to join, from 7:30 to 8 p.m.

CANTERBURY ASSOCIATION
Meeting on Sun., Sept. 22 at 6 p.m. at Grace Church for service of evening prayer and a speaker.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS COMMITTEE
A tea will be held for applicants on Sun., Sept. 22, at 7 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U.

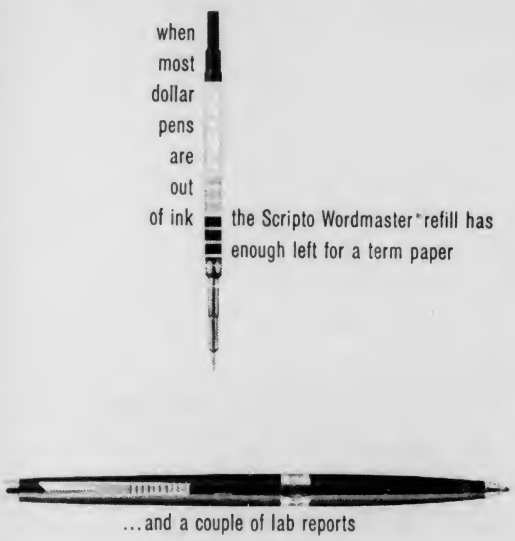
EDWARDS FELLOWSHIP
Meeting on Sun., Sept. 22 at 6 p.m. at First Congregational Church. Freshmen are invited. Rides leave Arnold and Hills at 5:45 p.m.

FIRE DEPARTMENT
Meeting on Tues., Sept. 24, at 7 p.m. in the S.U. All interested are invited.

FORENSIC SOCIETY
Meeting on Mon., Sept. 23, at

(Continued on page 7)

when most dollar pens are out of ink the Scripto Wordmaster refill has enough left for a term paper



...and a couple of lab reports

Just about the time you figure your Wordmaster should be running out of ink, unscrew the cap. The new see-thru refill says in no uncertain terms that you've got enough ink left to go on writing for quite a while. You shouldn't be surprised. For even though Wordmaster is slim and streamlined, it has a much larger ink capacity than ordinary dollar pens. And that makes it just about the most inexpensive dollar pen around.

By the way... you can get a handsome matching pencil to go along with your Wordmaster. And that's only a dollar, too.

Scripto

BOSA NOVA PIZZA

— TYPES OF PIZZA —

Plain, Pepper, Onion, Pepperoni, Hamburg, Sausage, Mushroom, Anchovie, Salami, Meatball, Meatball & Sausage and Cold Cut Grinders

—FREE DELIVERY OF ORDERS over $3.00—

Telephone 6-6776 Located across from C & C Package Store

WMUA Is Back Better Than Ever

WMUA has returned to the air!

With many new personalities and most of the old ones, new shows and old favorites, and $9000 worth of new equipment, WMUA's future looks very bright. WMUA, the campus radio station is entirely student operated and supported. A non-commercial, educational, FM station, it is located at 91.1 megacycles. Anyone interested in investigating the opportunities at WMUA such as announcing, engineering, clerical work, and many other interesting possibilities is welcome to visit the studios, located on the ground floor of the Engineering Building, any afternoon or evening.

For this week only, broadcasting will run from six p.m. to twelve midnight. WMUA will begin regular programing at one p.m. Saturday, September 21. Program schedules will be available within two weeks.

WMUA's new equipment includes three new Gates turntables, a new Ampe tape recorder, a new Collins control board, and a new Gates transmitter. The new equipment, purchased with student tax money, will provide better quality broadcasts for you the listener.

Tune in to YOUR radio station at 91.1 F.M.—WMUA!

NOTICES

FRATERNITY OPEN HOUSE

Rides will be available Sept. 21 and 22 at the S.U. for those Freshmen interested in seeing the fraternities on Sunset Ave. and on East Pleasant St. The fraternities will be open from 1 to 5 p.m.

DANCE

There will be a dance featuring the Northern Lights in the S.U. Ballroom Friday, Sept. 20, from 8 to 11:30 p.m. Admission will be 50¢.

MEN!

Here's deodorant protection

YOU CAN TRUST

Old Spice Stick Deodorant...fastest, neatest way to all-day, every day protection! It's the man's deodorant preferred by men...absolutely dependable. Glides on smoothly, speedily...dries in record time. Old Spice Stick Deodorant — most convenient, most economical deodorant money can buy. 1.00 plus tax.

Old Spice STICK DEODORANT

SHULTON

Wesleyan "Clusters" Stress Liberal Advanced Study

Middletown, Conn. (I.P.) — Wesleyan University is about to take a "bold and unique" step forward. As outlined in the Administration's recently released Interim Report on Long-range Plans, proposals center around a "move in the direction of advanced study," a continuance of the trend towards "interdisciplinary" organiations within the University, and general growth.

The presently existing subject departments would, under the report, lose emphasis in favor of "clusters" of related subjects, resulting in greater latitude and "cultural breadth" within the specific areas, while also giving the clusters greater autonomy within themselves.

In addition to the clusters, a number of "programs" are also envisaged in the report. These would include the present college plans, as well as, for example, programs in Latin American Studies, Law and Society, Atomic Physics, and a Modern Language Center.

The program for advanced learning, the report stipulates, should be one "that will strengthen the values and functioning of a liberal arts college." This means, the report explains, that Wesleyan would cultivate one or two areas of study by taking on a few experts in the field, though cultural breadth is also stressed throughout the proposals, and building up an area of advanced study.

CAESURA

Manuscripts for the fall issue of Caesura may be left in Box 104 in the R.S.O. Office. Anonymity of all authors will be maintained during the selection of material.

FRESHMEN DANCE

All members of the class of '67 are invited to a dance Saturday, Sept. 21, in the S.U. Ballroom from 8:30 to 12 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the S.U. and the dorms at 50¢ per person or 75c per couple.

I.D. CARDS

Replacement and temporary I.D. cards may be obtained by both graduate and undergraduate students in room 105 Machmer at the following times:

Mon.—1:20-3:20 p.m.
Tues.—8:50-9:50 a.m.
Wed.—10:00-11:00 a.m.
Thurs.—8:50-9:50 a.m.
Fri.—1:20-3:20 p.m.

MORTARBOARD

Mortarboard talks with Freshmen women will be held Monday and Wednesday in Women's Dorms. Check the bulletin boards for time in each dorm.

SORORITY RUSH REGISTRATION

The Pan Hellenic Council will hold a registration hour for formal sorority rushing Tuesday, Sept. 24, at 11 p.m. in the S.U. Party invitations and bids cannot be sent to those who do not register. Registration fee will be

SQUARE DANCE CLUB

The Haymaker's Square Dance Club will hold its opening meeting Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m. in Bowditch Lodge. All are welcome.

MUSIC HOUR

A Music Hour featuring Bob Weber, folk singer, will take place Sunday, Sept. 22 at 3 p.m. in the Cape Cod Lodge.

THIS YEAR
GORMAN HOUSE Leader will be the Academic—Special Events Activities—Athletics

Fraternities Ruled ...

(Continued from page 6)

Further consideration be made by Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic, and the Dean of Students office of the consequences of inactive membership as related to finances, leadership, group unity and personal hardship, and that they develop a guide for inactive membership status for the guidance of and adoption, if desired, by individual chapters.

Club Directory ...

(Continued from page 6)

5 p.m. in 391 Bartlett. All interested are invited. Anyone unable to attend should speak to Mr. Biddle or Mr. Savereid of the Speech dept.

FORESTRY CLUB

Meeting on Mon., Sept. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in Holdsworth Hall, room 203.

GAMES AND TOURNAMENTS COMMITTEE

Open meeting on Tues., Sept. 24, at 11 a.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. All interested are welcome. Coed billiard instruction will be discussed.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA

Initiation of new members will take place on Sun., Sept. 22, at 3 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U. Also, there will be a meeting on Tues., Sept. 24, at 6:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers.

GEOLOGY CLUB

Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in 249 Morrill.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP

Open house at the Parsonage on Sun., Sept. 22 from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. Rides leave Arnold Dorm at 2:30. All are cordially invited.

MODERN DANCE CLUB

Meeting on Thurs., Sept. 26, at 5:30 p.m. in the Women's Gymnasium. Come dressed to dance. Anyone interested should attend, or contact Miss Reid in WoPE.

OPERETTA GUILD

Anyone interested in working on publicity for the Music Man is invited to attend a meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7 p.m. in the Worcester A room of the S.U. If you cannot attend, please contact Joan Jones at 6 Leach.

OUTING CLUB

Those interested in hiking, rockclimbing, or caving, are invited to an introductory trip on Sat., Sept. 21. Rides leave Skinner parking lot at 1 p.m. and return at 12 p.m. Early rides back for those attending the Freshman Ball. Cost: $1. For further information, contact Donna Hastings, 319 Thatcher.

Also, there will be a meeting on Tues., Sept. 24 at 8 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. All interested are welcome.

PRE-MED CLUB

Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in Morrill Aud. Films will be shown, and refreshments served.

RIFLE CLUB

Team squads and practice times will be posted on the door of the rifle range at Dickinson Hall by 12 noon on Frl., Sept. 20.

SPECIAL EVENTS COMMITTEE

Meeting on Tues., Sept. 24, at 8 p.m. in the Franklin room of the S.U. All interested are invited.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

Program on Sun., Sept. 22, at 7 p.m., with supper served at 6 p.m. for $.50. Dr. Robert Birney of Amherst College will speak on the "Campus as a Stage."

WRESTLING TEAM

Meeting on Mon., Spt. 23, at 4:45 p.m. in room 10 of Men's PhysEd. All candidates are welcome.

YAHOO

Meeting on Tues., Sept. 24, at 6:30 p.m. in the Barnstable room of the S.U. Come for ideas or to fill out a staff form.

Folk Singing Concert To Be Held Sunday

This Sunday the Arts and Music Committee will present folksinger Bob Weber in a Music Hour, 3 p.m., in the Cape Cod Lounge of the Student Union. Bob, who has become progressively more masterful on guitar, has had an active summer, singing as a guest for the UMass summer session, at the Boarshead Coffee House in Kennebunk, Maine, the Bud in Holyoke, the Mountain Park Hootnanny, and most recently, The Raphaeo in Greenwich village.

An avid worker in the folk world, Bob's new column "The Folk Scene" appears on p. 3 of todays Collegian. He has recently established the Amherst Folk Workshop with another Amherst folk-singer, George Weir, and also should be hosting WMUA's folk music show. The concert, for all Bob's enthusiasm and talent, should be a real treat.

NOTICE

Students are reminded that car registration has been extended due to the large number of yet unregistered autos on campus.

Registration will continue through next week, weather permitting, at the north end of the football field.

EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY for girl with general insurance experience. Top salary. Group insurance. Paid vacations. Call Miss Ruth F. Simons at ALEXANDER W. BORAWSKI, INC., 88 King Street, Northampton, Mass. JU 4-5555

Quality Fruit Store
Amity Street
The Little Store Near the Theater

Redmen Face Black Bears

Maine Expected To Be Rugged Competition

The University of Massachusetts tangles with the University of Maine tomorrow afternoon in a game that has come to be the traditional gridiron opener for both schools. The contest; slated to begin at 1:30 p.m. at Alumni Field on the Maine campus in Orono, is also the first Yankee Conference encounter of the 1963 season.

This will be the tenth meeting between the Redmen from UMass and Maine's Black Bears. Massachusetts holds the upper hand in the series with Maine, having won five while losing three and tying one. The last victory for UMass was a 10-0 shutout last fall.

Since this will be the first test for both teams it is rather difficult to predict what to expect from both camps when action gets underway tomorrow afternoon. Maine has a returning contingent of 18 lettermen and its starting squad is expected to be the same basic unit that slugged it out last season against the Redmen. UMass coach Vic Fusia views this Maine squad with respect. "This is almost the same unit that played us here last year and gave us trouble before we finally won. They have gained a year's experience and maturity so their improvement will show."

FUSIA ADDED that he is planning his strategy on the basis of what Maine threw against UMass last year and the capacities of its returning personnel. The Redmen are being geared to expect anything from the Black Bear Camp.

Maine Coach Hal Westerman, beginning his 13th year in that capacity at Orono, starts the season with some good talent on hand although he does not have as many horses to turn to as does Vic Fusia. What he does have are six starters from last year plus 12 lettermen who can be expected to toughen up as the season wears on.

Westerman's big problems are inexperience at the end, guard, and quarterback slots plus overall depth. These are the categories where the Redmen are about at their strongest in comparison. At the tackle spots Westerman can breathe easier. He has big and tough Don Severson and Ernie Smith, both 230 pounders. Maine center Phil Saule is also big and rates as one of the best in the Conference.

The Maine halfback picture appears to be the strongest slots, Waterman having a string of experienced veterans to call on. At fullbacks spot there are three lettermen hard at work to earn a starting role. At quarterback is a Sophomore that Maine will be putting a lot of stock in this year. He is Dick DeVarney whom Fusia sees as a possible troublemaker against Conference foes, himself included.

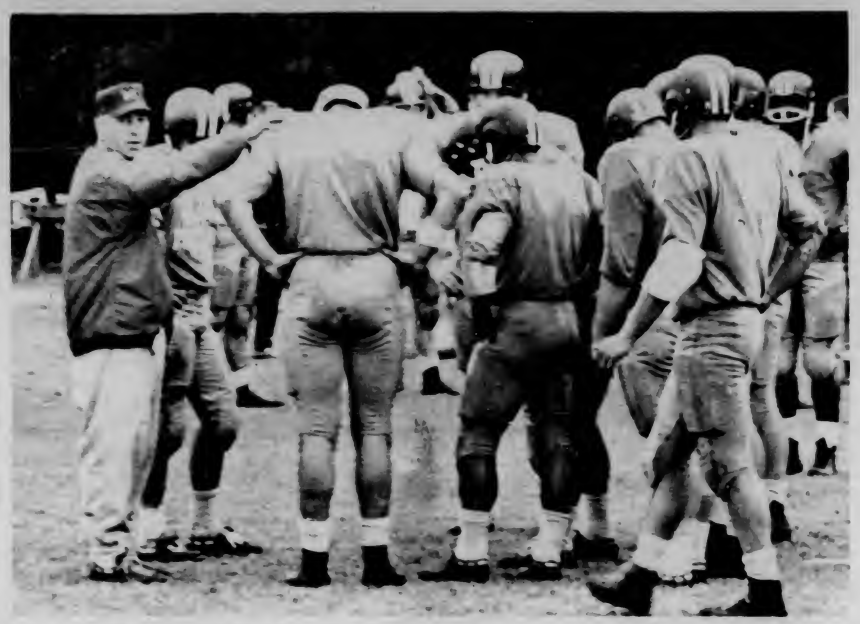
The starting unit Fusia plans to assemble tomorrow will be composed of mostly Juniors with only two seniors and one Sophomore. Yet it is a squad that boasts of experience in almost all departments. Ten lettermen have been assigned starting roles. The only non-letterholding starter will be Sophomore left end Bob Meers.

Senior co-captain Paul Graham (235) will team up with Junior Bob Burke (225) at the tackles. Peter Pietz (210) a Junior, and Bob Tedoldi (225), a Senior will be the starting guards. At center will be Charlie Scialdone (205), a Junior. The other end besides Meers (205) is John Hudson (190), also a Junior.

The starting Redmen backfield is comprised totally of Juniors. Calling the signals will be All-Conference quarterback Jerry Whelchel (185). His halfbacks are Fred Lewis (210) and Phil DeRose (178). Mike Ross (212) will be running from the fullback slot.

The UMass squad is ready both physically and mentally. Outside of the usual assortment of bumps and bruises and several colds, the overall team condition is excellent. And so is the team spirit. Coach Fusia remarks in an interview Thursday that "the team spirit and attitude are outstanding. The entire staff is delighted with the loyalty these boys show to the squad, the game and the school. It is a pleasure to coach this team."

The Redmen left campus this morning around 8:30 for Maine. Fusia indicated that he will hold a light workout at Colby if the time schedule permits this afternoon.



MILT MORIN gains valuable instruction from Coach Vic Fusia, in attempt to refine Redmen's kicking game.

AMPHEENOL
FM
all-direction antenna
$5.00 AL 3-5253

Redmen Football

Tomorrow Live and Direct from Orono, Maine

WTTT 1430 kc.

FOOTBALL TICKET OFFICE

The football ticket office at the University of Massachusetts will be open from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on Saturday, September 21. Tickets will be on sale in Room 10A of the Men's Physical Education Building for the Harvard and Bucknell games.

DEERFIELD
Drive-In
ROUTES 5 & 10
S. Deerfield, Mass.
FRI. SAT. SUN.
Brigette
Bardot
in
'Please, Not Now'
ALSO
Nine Hours to Rome
Show begins 7:30

STUDENT WIVES

Season tickets for wives of UMass undergraduate students are now on sale in Room 10A—men's Physical Education Building. The price of the ticket is $5.00 and it will admit the bearer to all home football, basketball and baseball games. Seating will be in the sections reserved for students.

SWIMMING PRACTICE

The Varsity and Freshman swimming teams will begin practice Monday, Sept. 23, at the Men's swimming pool in the Cage from 4:00 to 5:30. Newcomers are welcome—we have the best coaching staff in New England. If anyone is unable to start now but plans to do so later, come see us anyway.

The Co-captain

HARVARD TICKETS

Tickets for the UMass—Harvard football game September 28 at Harvard Stadium are now available in Room 10A of the Men's Physical Education Building. Students, faculty, and staff members will be limited to the purchase of one reserved seat at a special rate of $1.50. Students must show their ID card when purchasing a ticket. Additional adjoining seats may be purchased at the regular $3.00 price. For additional information, contact Robert O'Connell, Financial Manager of Athletics at extension 2691.

CAR FOR SALE
1962 Volkswagen Sedan
Ex. Cond., Shoulder Seat Belts. Asking $1500. Need larger car for growing family. Call Mr. McDaniel, AL 3-5530.

ATT.: TENNIS PLAYERS!

The intramural department announces the start of its annual men's singles tournament, open to all mate students and faculty members. Entry blanks may be obtained at the Cage from Mr. Cobb or Mr. Kosakowski, or from Steve Harrington at Kappa Sigma. Entries close on Monday 23.

won by Dr. Paul Norton of the Art Department, who beat fraternity champ Bill Martin of T.E.P.

SPORTS DADS TICKETS

Mr. Louis Varrichione, President of the University of Massachusetts Sports Dads Association has announced that students whose parents intend to attend the Harvard football game can purchase tickets for a special section that has been reserved for the Sports Dads by sending $3.00 for each ticket to Robert W. O.'Connell, Financial Manager of Athletics, on or before Monday, September 23.

FROSH BASKETBALL

There will be a frosh basketball meeting Tuesday, Sept. 24, Room 10 of Curry Hicks Building. All interested are invited.

LIBRARY

comp.

LIBRARY

SEP 2 1 1963

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

THE MASSACHUSETTS

COLLEGIAN

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 4 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1963

New Soph Advisor

President Bernie Dallas of the class of '66 is pleased to announce that Dr. William Venman has accepted the position of Sophomore class advisor.

Campus Security Chief Warns About Parking

by TERRY STOCK

Cars, cars, everywhere, and not a parking space in sight. This is the problem that plagues Colonel Marchant and his commission of men who are trying to find room at UMass for some 4,000 cars.

Only a few parking areas remain available for use, or do they? Within a month, construction is due to get underway in three key parking lots.

To make room for an engineering annex between Goessmann and the Main Engineering Building, one-third of the North parking lot will be needed for construction work. Although Draper Drive will remain open and allow a few faculty cars to park behind Draper, the North Pleasant Street entrance will be used exclusively for construction vehicles. Thus, only a small portion of the once accommodating North lot will remain open for parking.

West of Stockbridge Hall and between Chenoweth and the Agricultural Engineering Building is the site for a second construction project which will force the closing of Bowker Drive.

The third area prepared for construction is the lot between Fernald and the green houses off of Stockbridge Road. Here an additional dining commons will be built. This particular lot was once able to hold a great many automobiles, all of which must now be parked elsewhere.

What will happen if cars are found parked in the wrong place at the wrong time? According to Col. Marchant, "All rules and regulation in the Automobile Regulation pamphlet will be strictly enforced. This includes the issuance of tickets and the use of towing procedures where the case indicates."

Questioned extensively about the towing procedure to be used, it was discovered that no particular garage received the towing contract. It seems that bids were sent out to various Amherst area garages before it was discovered that the Department of Public Utilities has a system whereby bids are unnecessary.

The DPU regulates all common route carriers or all vehicles transporting goods from one place to another. Since towing trucks do not have any specific route, they are classified as Irregular Common Route Carriers and can apply to the DPU for a certificate which registers their towing rates.

Hence, UMass needed only ask each garage for their DPU rates. Since only two garages responded, one of which is ineligible for towing until October 2, Carl Anderson will tow cars from UMass for the remainder of the month.

Asked for an approximate cost for towing, Col. Marchant stated that not less than $4.00 nor more than $8.00 would be charged depending on the time of day, type of tow job, and distance from the garage. However, as the Automobile Regulation booklet points out, a fee of up to $1.50 may be charged for storage for a twenty-four hour period.

Hence, the only solution Col. Marchant could recommend at this time was that everyone cooperate and follow parking instructions while UMass attempts to solve one of its major problems—parking.

WFCR Plans More Local Programming

by LEE MULLANE

WFCR, a 34,400 watt noncommercial educational FM radio station which serves the four colleges in this area, UM, Amherst, Smith, and Mt. Holyoke, is forging ahead to provide listeners with top grade entertainment. This entertainment will take the form of music, discussions of imminent topics, and participation by musical members of the faculty of the four institutions.

WFCR is also planning to initiate series into the programming as well as recitals.

The soon to transmit radio station will be on the air Monday through Saturday for one hour locally. The exact time will be officially announced. Much of the broadcasting will be done with the aid of the campus radios here at UMass, and at Mt. Holyoke.

Originally, the studio, which is housed in the Education Building, under the direction of Mr. Mostrianni, was limited to rebroadcasting programs from WGBH Boston. Although they will continue in this practice, the works of the four local colleges will be highlighted in an extensive local plan.

In addition, WFCR is growing out from a local range as many of its programs will be broadcast and shared with FM stations from WAMC Albany, to WHYY Philadelphia, and WAMU Washington, D.C.

Although most of the plans are in the tentative stage, Mr. Mostrianni reports that programming will begin as soon as the essential material is organized and prepared for broadcasting.

Concert Association Gives Puccini's 'Tosca'

The Goldovsky Grand Opera Theater will present a special English version of Giacomo Puccini's "Tosca" at the University of Massachusetts on Monday, Sept. 30.

"Tosca," sponsored by the University's Concert Association, will start at 8 p.m. in the Cage.

Tickets and information are available at the R.S.O. Office.

The Goldovsky company's production is the first in a series of eight to be sponsored by the Concert Association during the 1963-64 school year.

The Schola Cantorum, Netherlands String Quartet, Toronto Symphony Orchestra, Raymond Hansor and Leonard Seeber, New York Brass Quintet, Robert Joffrey Ballet and Greenwich Quartet will also appear at the University during the year.

Boris Goldovsky, commentator on the weekly matinee broadcasts from the Metropolitan Opera House and well-known researcher in the field of acoustic scenery, will supervise every detail of "Tosca."

Goldovsky's company of 50—which includes its own singers, orchestra and chorus—is now in its 18th year and on its 10th national tour.

In the past several years, the Goldovsky Grand Opera Theater has presented "Rigoletto," "Don Giovanni," "The Barber of Seville" and "Traviata."

Newspapers and magazines have called Goldovsky's productions and approach to opera "a rousing success" and "a new

(Continued on page 5)

DVP Applicants

Distinguished Visitors Program Committee applications for the class of '66 are available in the RSO office Monday through Friday. There will be a coffee hour for all applicants on Sunday, September 29, 1963 at 7:00 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union.

Parking Problem Plagues Students, Administration

by IRIS ANN DECELLES

This year's $3.00 automobile registration fee, an increase of more than 450% over last year's charge, has been the subject of wide-spread controversy on the University campus. Students and faculty alike want to know how approximately $9,300 in registration fees is being spent, as well as why the University of Massachusetts now requires more minimum insurance coverage than does the state. In a recent interview, Col. John Marchant USAF (Ret.) explained the advantages of "the new registration system," the cause of the rate increase, over the old system.

Under the previous registration system, metal tags were attached to all vehicles. These tags were not only easily transferred from one vehicle to another, but they were valid indefinitely. Consequently, many students and employees could continue to use the campus parking facilities after having graduated or left their jobs. The decals being used under the new system, on the other hand, must be renewed yearly, thus eliminating a large number of unauthorized vehicles from the campus.

Contrary to current speculation, these decals do not cost $3.00 each, nor is the registration money paying for the new park-

(Continued on page 3)

COLLEGE ADMISSION STANDARDS TOO NARROW

Grinnell, Ia. (I.P.) — The criteria for student admissions are too narrow," states Dr. Howard Bowen, president of Grinnell College. "It is only a slight exageration to say that our admissions procedures are based overwhelmingly on a singularly narrow dimension of personality and ability—skill in taking multiple choice and other so-called objective tests.

"A tyranny of numbers exists in American higher education today. When a student is admitted to one of our better colleges, it is largely on the basis of three numbers—his scores on the verbal and qualitative portions of the College Board tests and his rank in his high school class.

"No nonsense about his curiosity, his moral fiber, his dreams and aspirations, his social consciousness, his human decency, his imagination, his philosophy of life, or his aesthetic sensibilities. These cannot be readily measured.

"Colleges tend to regulate their activities accordingly. Admissions policy tends to be dominated by the need to have high average College Board scores for the record, counseling of seniors is affected by the desire to have a high proportion of graduates going on to advanced study for the record. In this pattern we are following there are several glaring weaknesses.

"The atmosphere of college life is frenzied and filled with little deadlines. We do not achieve the calm necessary for serious, contemplative study, or essential for fruitful discussion, or needed if individuals are to be able to follow their interests. We tend to sacrifice qualitative excellence for quantitative standards.

"The work of the student is scheduled in detail almost day to day with the result that he has little opportunity for initiative and little responsibility to pursue his own education through his own interests. The system places a premium on conformity, on following instructions, on meeting short-run assignments.

"This is true to the unbelievable extent that it is rare for a student to read or write except in response to assignments."

The Fraternity Issue--Early Rushing

by J. DAVIDOW and G. MASSELAM

The intention of this comment is not to hurt or hinder fraternities or fraternity life on this campus. Fraternities and sororities can have a positive role. They aid in the student's adjustment to campus life. They can aid socially and may even be helpful intellectually. They can result in the development of strong friendships.

The question of acclimation is raised when the freshman joins a Greek group. The freshman has to develop a "feel" of the campus before he can decide whether he wants to go fraternity. Under the present rushing program, before he has had this time to develop a "feel" of the campus, to understand its purpose, his purpose in it, he is drawn into the quickening life of his fraternity. The end result is isolation. His life is so organized that it will be difficult to take the whole campus into perspective. His life becomes Greek. This is fine as long as he has seen all the elements of campus life. Fraternities are a big step for freshmen involving the whole four years of his college career. It is very important that the freshman understands the fraternity and knows what he wants. We don't feel that this opportunity under the early rushing will be afforded. It must be afforded however, for the well-being of the freshmen.

Early rushing does not cause stability for the rushee. Rather it encourages instability, since the freshman has to make a major decision before he has settled down to University life. Also the pace that is demanded of the rushee is intense.

But what about academics? The early rushing adds more to his schedule when he needs time. Time to reflect and understand happenings. There certainly is enough happening for the first month of college without rushing. He needs to develop his study habits. Even though there will be many in a fraternity who will help him he must ultimately do it alone, and this requires time.

One of the central points of fraternities is brotherhood. Will this be hindered by early rushing? There will be little time to get to know who is rushing and who is being rushed. Decisions will be quick, friendships thin. Many will make wrong decisions. Judgments will be off. The whole pattern of early rushing has to be superficial; for there is no time for depth. Depth in making friends. Depth in viewing fraternities. Depth in the fraternities viewing the rushees.

Thus our fear is that rushees will suffer. They will loose a thorough and complete acclimation. They will loose academically. Their confusion will be increased. Both fraternities and pledges will suffer brotherhood in depth. We urge the freshman not to make a hasty or irrational decision, until they have grasped the meaning of being a student and becoming educated.

We urge the freshmen to consider what they want.

TO ALL FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, JUNIORS & SENIORS:

Do you have something to say which has been pent up in you for years? The Editorial Staff will have a meeting Tuesday, Sept. 24, 1963 at 7:00 p.m. in the Collegian Office.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

Copyright William Shumway 1963 Index

WANDERJAHR

by JOHN B. CHILDS

RED SKIES AND DARK BIRDS

Some time ago, when the sky was its evening red and birds flew south in dark silhouettes, we stopped on the way to the Library and watched. The sky slowly changed colors. Clouds straggled by, red in the setting sun. It was then that we were transported from the world of the library, test and class, from the world of the organizations.

—Some may call it escapism and laugh. We call it a way of perception and do not laugh.—

This world of which we spoke is our world. Indeed it is so much our world that sometimes it wraps itself around us, cornering every nook of our minds. So tightly does it wrap itself around us that no longer can we even see it. We stumble on in the dark valleys of this world without seeing its white capped mountains.

It is then that we should look at red skies and dark birds, each of us choosing his own skies, his own dark silhouettes of birds. And after we look, after this, we can turn back to our world, cut through its blinding wraps, and adjust ourselves to its importance, relative to ourselves and to worlds beyond.

—Red skies and dark birds offer us this way of perception.—

Open Letter To The Editor

An Open Letter to Students and Faculty Members:

The remarks of Mr. Mathieson, senate member, and campus chief Blasko Thursday night, have left grave questions of doubt in my mind. Mr. Mathieson blasts the school administration's housing policy as "ill-conidered," and explains the crowded living conditions in most dorms. Would Mr. Mathieson DENY college students a college education, because of lack of dormitory space, in dorms built TEN years ago at least, and for much fewer students? I think not! The condition, however grave, does not benefit by the senator reading "statistics" when these "statistics" are receiving a good college education at a wonderfully equipped institution. Mathieson's redundant remarks against school policy are uncalled for.

Let us agree with him only in placing the blame on those who have failed to complete signed contract agreements, and leave the housing administration alone. When one signs a contract one is expected to fulfill its obligations. The administration is free of guilt.

Let us worry, not at housing policy, but at the worried remarks of chief Blasko. Blasko warns of "riots, state police, auxiliary police, and the use of force." If this is marked as the inevitable, let him continue to be so outspoken in his fears of "mass" uprisings. The college student does not need to listen to the shaky words of terrible things to come. The problem is fully understood. Rather Mr. Blasko, continue to look calmly and wisely, and keep your fears to yourself. The college student realizes the predicament. A show of "Bull Conner" force is not needed. Hold your dogs back!

Kenneth Feinberg '67

(Ed. Note. The Collegian has asked Steve Gray, President of IFC to write an analysis of early rushing, in order to present a fair appraisal of this policy.)

This year, the Interfraternity Council has instituted a rushing system which allows freshmen to be pledged and initiated by the UMass social fraternities during the first semester of their freshman year. The advantages of this system are numerous, both to the freshmen and to the fraternities.

The IFC, in selecting this system, was most concerned with developing a strong scholastic program for all fraternities. Although the All-fraternity average is consistently higher than the all-men's average at UMass, a prime objective of all fraternities is to improve the scholastic ability and performance of the members. Towards this end, the fraternity system has included in the 1963 rushing rules provisions for a minimum study hall requirement for all pledges. The supervised study program is mandatory in all fraternities, but is meant to complement existing scholarship programs, rather than replace present methods. Through this new study hall program, the fraternity system hopes to strengthen fraternity scholarship.

The most common argument in favor of delayed rushing has been that the freshmen need time to "get adjusted" to campus and college life, to "get to know their way around." After a highly succesful first semester rushing program in 1962, the IFC realized that the best place for freshmen to "get adjusted" to campus is in a fraternity, where the size of the group (40-80 men) and the individual attention which the pledge receives provides a "second home" for the freshman.

Through the new system, freshmen who choose to join fraternities will be initiated far sooner than in previous years. The men will become integral parts of their fraternities in their freshman year, "knowing" the house and the fraternity system. The fraternities will have the added members to enter into, and assist with, the various house activities during the year.

The UMass fraternities, through their representatives of the Interfraternity Council, have shown their desire to present fraternity membership to all college men, regardless of their year of graduation. From this desire has come the new rushing system.

GORVINE AND THE WALL

To the Editor:

Mr. Gorvine's article on the German problem shows his basic naivete and lack of realism in international politics. He fails to understand the real menace to freedom loving peoples of the world is the Communist menace. Yes it is true the Germans killed six million in their gas chambers, but now they are our friends. (The good Germans that is, the bad East Germans are still our enemies.) Yes, it is true the Germans themselves chose Hitler over democracy but now they are freedom loving. Yes it is true, the Germans have a long history of militarism but now a rearmed Germany promotes the security of the world by containing the Russians. Yes, perhaps it is even true many war criminals are free and even in the Adenauer government but we should remember our Judaic-Christian heritage and forgive our enemies.

For dramatic proof of these arguments one has to look no further than the infamous Berlin Wall. Here we have Germans who have never really known freedom in 1000 years of history risking death to enter the "Free World." We as patriotic Americans should stand behind our leaders in the "Free World," Chiang Kai-shek, Ngo Din Diem, and Francisco Franco. And with God and the German's help we will defeat the terrible Russians.

Sincerely,
Fine Hirsh '66

New Programs And Equipment At WMUA

by NANCY FOGG

This year, WMUA, the campus radio station, has incorporated several new programs into its schedule. Among these are a bloc of educational programs, including lectures on History 5 and 6, and English 25 and 26. "Impulse" will return with a new format. Many interesting topics to be announced at a later date, will be discussed by different professors and political figures. "Music of the World," a show done in several languages, will be broadcast on Mondays and alternate Thursdays.

The following new programs will occupy the 7 to 8 o'clock time slot: Sundays, History 5; Mondays, "Music of the World"; Tuesdays, English 25 and a half-hour sports program; Wednesdays, English 26, with "Meet the Professor" at 7:45; Thursdays, "Impulse," alternating with "Music of the World."

"Night Shift," (changed from "Swinging Safari,") will return from midnight to 2 a.m. A Saturday night folk music show, called "Standing Room Only," will be presented from 10 p.m. - 1 a.m. "Coffee on Campus" can now be heard from 7 - 10 p.m.

The new equipment acquired over the summer amounts to approximately $9,700., to be paid off in a three-year period. The money was appropriated from a loan by the Student Senate, and it comes out of the student tax money. Now the equipment is student owned.

The more versatile and better quality equipment includes: a Collins transmitter and control board, which can bring in four different remotes at the same time; facilities to broadcast over five microphones simultaneously; three new turntables; and an Ampex tape recorder, to be used for interviews, etc.

Regular program hours will be in effect on Monday, from 7-10 a.m., and also from 4:30 p.m. - 2 a.m. On Sunday, the hours are from 9 a.m. - 2 a.m.

Parking Problem . . .

(Continued from page 1)

ing signs on campus. It is being used to defray the operating costs of the registration process only. This includes procurement of registration stickers, as well as the cost of part-time temporary services during registration, the printing of traffic regulations, registration information and registration cards, and the procurement of special supplies used solely for the registration of vehicles. Moreover, the assignment of cars to definite lots allows police to note where repairs and changes in parking facilities are necessary.

The system being used up to now was devised for a small campus population. As it proved inadequate, a study of systems was conducted at fifteen comparable institutions of higher learning. Advice was solicited from the National Association of University and College Traffic and the Security Directors. From this data, the present system was devised and the $3.00 fee, approved by President Lederle, established. The universities involved in the survey included the following:

Institution	Reg. Fee
U. of Illinois	$15.00 (2nd car 5.00)
U. of Kansas	4.00
U. of Maine	1.00
U. of Michigan	staff 25.00 plus park. met. students 7.00
U. of North Carolina	2.50
U. of North Dakota	2.00
Stanford U.	10.00
Oklahoma State U.	10.00

Furthermore, the parking at these universities is in general lots and based on a first come first serve basis. Where reserved parking is available, additional fees are involved.

To register a car under the new system, additional insurance coverage is required in many individual cases. Because Massachusetts compulsory insurance covers vehicles only on public highways, it does not extend to the privately owned roads of this campus. To protect drivers on campus, therefore, adequate coverage is geing required.

Col. Marchant commented that every effort has been made to keep direct costs of the registration system to a minimum and that no increase in fees is anticipated in the foreseeable future.

Folk Sing Held In S. U.

Bob Weber sings out at yesterday's Student Union Concert. A large crowd heard Weber go through only a small portion of his extensive repertoire.

Weber Talent Shines At Folk Concert Yesterday

Yesterday the Arts and Music Committee presented folk-singer Bob Weber in a Music Hour, 3 p.m., in the Cape Cod Lounge of the Student Union. Bob, who has become progressively more masterful on guitar, has had an active summer, singing as a guest for the UMass summer session, at the Boarshead Coffee House in Kennebunk, Maine, the Bud in Holyoke, the Mountain Park Hootnanny, and most recently, The Rapael in Greenwich village.

An avid worker in the folk world, Bob's new column "The Folk Scene" appeared on p. 3 of Friday's Collegian. He has recently established the Amherst Folk Workshop with another Amherst folk-singer, George Weir, and also should be hosting WMUA's folk music show.

APO Starts Drive For New Members

This Monday night, September 23, Kappa Omicron Chapter of Alpha Phi Omega is beginning a new drive for members with its first smoker to be held in the Essex Room of the Student Union at 7 p.m. Alpha Phi Omega, a fraternity dedicated to service through brotherhood has rapidly increased in size over the past few years, its membership now is seventy-three.

The brotherhood invites all who are interested to attend for an evening of informative and lively speechmaking and discussion on the make-up and role of Alpha Phi Omega as as organization of service in this 20th century world.

NOTICES

ALPHA ZETA

The first meeting of Alpha Zeta will be held Tues., Sept. 24, at 7 p.m. in the S.U.

CROSD

There will be an organizational meeting of the Committee for the Reinstatement of Spring Day on Tues., Sept. 24, at 8 p.m. in the Plymouth Room of the S.U.

FRESHMEN HOCKEY

There will be a meeting concerning Freshmen Hockey Thurs., Sept. 26, at 5 p.m. in room ten of the Athletic Building.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA

There will be a meeting for all members Tues., Sept. 24, at 6:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers.

GAMES AND TOURNAMENTS

The Games and Tournaments Committee will hold an open meeting for all interested Tues., Sept. 24, at 11 a.m. in the Nantucket Room of the S.U. The possibility of Co-ed Billiard Instruction will be discussed.

ID CARDS

Replacement and temporary ID cards may be obtained by both graduate and undergraduate and students at 105 Machmer Hall at the following times:

Mon. 1:20-3:20 p.m.
Tues. 8:50-9:50 a.m.
Wed. 10:00-11:00 a.m.
Thurs. 8:50-9:50 a.m.
Fri. 1:20-3:20 p.m.

MORTARBOARD

Mortarboard talks with Freshmen Women will take place Mon. and Wed. the girls dorms at 7 p.m. Check bulletin boards for the time in each dorm.

NOTICE

Students are reminded that car registration has been extended due t othe large number of yet unregistered autos on campus.

Registration will continue through next week, weather permitting, at the north end of the football field.

OPERETTA GUILD

Auditions for male roles in the Operetta Guild's Music Man will be held Tues., Sept. 24, at 6 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. Chorus members and leads are needed.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

An organizational meeting of the Psychology Club will be held Wed., Sept. 25, in Bartlett 61. Dr. Wagner of the Psych. Dept. will be guest speaker. All Psychology Majors and all those interested are invited to attend.

SORORITY RUSH REGISTRATION

The Pan Hellenic Council will hold a Registration Hour for formal sorority rushing Tues., Sept. 24, at 11 a.m. in the S.U. Party invitations and bids cannot be sent to those who do not register. The registration fee will be 25¢.

ADULT CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

The Amherst Council of Churches in cooperation with the Laymen's Academy for Oecumenical Studies (LAOS) will sponsor classes in Biblical Studies, The Teaching of St. Paul, and Contemporary Christian Ethics. Courses will begin Wed., Sept. 25. For further information contact the Rev. Deene Clark of the First Congregational Church or the Protestant Chaplain's Office in the S.U.

"COCA-COLA" AND "COKE" ARE REGISTERED TRADE MARKS WHICH IDENTIFY ONLY THE PRODUCT OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY.

.....fox trot twist...waltz lindy...samba
mambo...cha-cha-cha..bend dip..hop..step turn...bump...
whew...

things go better with Coke

Drink Coca-Cola

TRADE-MARK®

Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by:

THE COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO. OF NORTHAMPTON

Fraternities Start Rushing

Photo by [illegible] Fine

Open Smokers

Fraternities will be holding Open Smokers during the week of September 23. These smokers provide an opportunity for freshmen to meet the members of all fraternities and to discuss the fraternities with the brothers. Smokers are accompanied by a more relaxed atmosphere than is to be found in other functions which freshmen may attend.

Fraternity men welcome all interested men who wish to attend, and will attempt to answer any questions concerning their specific fraternity, or the fraternity system. Dates and times of each house's smokers will be announced by means of posters in the men's dormitories. The Interfraternity Council encourages all interested men to attend as many smokers as possible, in order to meet men from a number of houses.

I. F. C. Rushing

The Interfraternity Council Rushing Convocation, held Wed., Sept. 18, was attended by approximately 350 enthusiastic freshmen. Steve Graham, IFC Rushing Chairman, welcomed the freshmen. The program was highlighted by round-table discussions, consistig of 8-10 freshmen and a representative of the Interfraternity Council. The IFC representative answered questions concerning fraternity life posed by the freshmen. Many of the men had attended the IFC Dorm Discussions the previous evening, and had numerous questions concerning the information presented at these discussions.

The main consideration at the annual Rushing Convocation is to inform the freshmen as to the part which fraternities play on a college campus, and, especially, on the UMass campus.

Convocation

Following refreshments, a movie illustrating fraternity principles and ideals was shown. Graham introduced the speakers, who offered some advice to men interested in fraternity. Speakers were: Dean Field, Dean of Students; Dean Hopkins, Dean of Men, Mr. W. W. Barnard, Assistant to the Dean of Men; Mr. Daniel Melley, Advisor to the IFC; and Steve Gray, President of the IFC.

MOTORCADE INVADES HARVARD SATURDAY

Redmen followers will have the opportunity to invade John Harvard's territory in force Saturday by joining an Adelphia sponsored motorcade to Harvard Stadium.

Adelphian Jim Medeiros, who is in charge of the motorcade, has placed a signup sheet in the RSO office for car owners who will make the trip.

As of today several fraternities have engaged buses that will join the assault on Cambridge.

Adelphia president Dave Clancy announced that if enough names were placed on the signup sheets by persons without transportation, the senior men's society would arrange bus service at low cost.

The proposed starting time for the motorcade is 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

UMass' last meeting with the Crimson in 1961 resulted in a stunning 27-12 Redmen win.

GIRL PIANO PLAYERS WANTED!

21 or over, to play in Amherst Restaurant 1 - 7 nights a week. Contact Elaine Needham, 207 Arnold House, AL 3-9230.

Amherst has long been devoid of a moderately priced but pleasant place with atmosphere to spend an evening with a date.

Now this lack has been met with

The Open Hearth

Steak House and Cocktail Lounge complete with a Piano Bar.

It's location

DRAKE'S VILLAGE INN — Amity Street

BONELESS SIRLOIN STEAK only $1.49

TRY IT TONIGHT!

French Corridor's Foreign Films Start October 1

The French Corridor is again presenting a series of eight French movie classics with English subtitles throughout the fall semester.

The opening film on Tuesday, Oct. 1, will be "Orpheus". This will be followed by "Beauty and the Beast" on Oct. 16, "Bizarre, Bizarre" on Oct. 30, "Letters from my Windmill" on Nov. 6, "Diary of a Country Priest on Nov. 20, "Papa, Mama, the Maid and I" on Dec. 4, "Passionate Summer" on Dec. 11, and "Senechal the Magnificent" on Jan. 8, 1964.

The films will be shown on Wednesdays, except for the first one and will be held in Bartlett Auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

Admission is by subscription only and tickets at 3.50 each may be purchased on campus at the Student Union, Sept. 13, through Sept. 21, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. aind from 4 to 5 p.m. Tickets may also be obtained by writing to: French Corridor, Dept. of Romance Language, Bartlett Hall, University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Dean of Chicago Explores College Programs

Chicago, Ill. (IP)—Undergraduate programs should embody "the timeless idea of a liberal education," be susceptible to change, challenge the student, and avoid pressures to adopt practices which are "preposterous . . . in the sober light of our real business," according to Alan Simpson, dean of the College at the University of Chicago.

Liberal education, said Dean Simpson, is a matter of intellectual tools, literary skills, some breadth of knowledge, some grasp of standards, and some sense of style. He said he would "cheerfully sacrifice any number of interdisciplinary courses in the senior year for one successful course—or experience—in English composition."

On the role of change in education, Dean Simpson commented: Course content will change as a result of increases in knowledge; and teaching methods may change as a result of technical advances. However, he noted that the College at UC has so far been affected "very little" by the "proliferation of tubes and tapes and teaching machines."

Grant Brings Big Wind To Engineers

A National Science Foundation grant of $10,000, which will be supplemented by $11,000 in matching funds by the University, has been awarded to the University's department of mechanical engineering, President John W. Lederle announced Friday.

The grant will be administered by John H. Dittfach, professor of mechanical engineering, and will provide for the purchase of advanced equipment for instruction of undergraduate students in "compressible fluid flow."

Prof. Dittfach said that the equipment, which includes a supersonic wind tunnel capable of flow velocities of four times the speed of sound (Mach 4.0), is designed "to illustrate principles in thermodynamics, fluid mechanics, and internal combustion engines."

According to Prof. Dittfach, progress and developments in the aeronautic and astronautic fields in the past ten years clearly dictate that more attention must be focused on the compressible flow area.

In addition to the supersonic wind tunnel, the grant will provide for purchase of a subsonic wind tunnel for study of air flow at relatively low velocities, and a hot wire turbulence anemometer for analysis of air flow particles around surfaces.

A faculty member at the University for 15 years, Prof. Dittfach holds Bachelor of Science and a Master of Science Degrees in Mechanical Engineering from the University of Minnesota.

Lost and Found

LOST: A Psych 5 book was mistakenly taken from a Hatch coat rack. Please return to Ed Hines, 433 Baker House.

LOST: One black wallet in the Men's Phys. Ed. Building. Interested in cards and papers only—not in money. If found return to Thomas Skratt, 327 Baker House.

LOST: One combination type bike lock in the vicinity of Johnson Dorm. Please return to 103 Hamlin.

CLUB DIRECTORY

AMATEUR RADIO CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in Gunnes Lab. All interested are invited to attend.

ART CLUB
There will be a coffee hour on Tues., Sept. 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the faculty lounge of Bartlett, to introduce members to the faculty. All interested are invited.

A.S.M.E.
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 8 p.m. Al M.E.'s wishing to join should do so between 7:30 and 8 p.m.

EDUCATION CLUB
The annual membership tea will be held on Wed., Sept. 25, from 3-5 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U. All are welcome to attend.

FIRE DEPARTMENT
Meeting on Tues., Sept. 24 at 7 p.m. in the S.U. All interested are invited.

FORESTRY CLUB
Meeting on Mon., Sept. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in 203 Holdsworth Hall. All are welcome.

GEOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in 249 Morrill.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB
There will be a coffee hour on Tues., Sept. 24 at 5 p.m. in the Governor's Lounge of the S.U.

LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 8 p.m. in Wilder Hall.

NEWMAN CLUB
There will be a discussion course beginning on Wed., Sept. 25 at 6:45 p.m. in the Newman Center. Rev. Owen Bennett will teach the course, based on the philosophy of St. Thomas Aquinas.
Also, the Newman Club will sponsor a chartered bus to Cambridge for the UMass-Harvard game on Sat., Sept. 28, at 10 a.m., to return directly after the game. Reservations must be made before 6 p.m. on Tues., Sept. 24, at the Newman Center. Tickets for Newman members are $2.50, for non-members $3, game admission not included.

OPERETTA GUILD
Anyone interested in working for publicity for The Music Man is invited to a meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7 p.m. in the Worcester A room of the S.U. If you cannot attend, please contact Joan Jones at 6 Leach.

OUTING CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Sept. 24 at 8 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. All interested are invited.

PREMED CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in Morrill Aud. Films will be shown, and refreshments served.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7 p.m. in Bartlett 61. All interested are invited.

RECREATION CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Sept. 24 at 8 p.m. in Bowditch Lodge. Refreshments will be served; all are invited.

SCUBA
Meeting on Thurs., Sept. 26 at 7 p.m. in the lobby of the Men's Phys Ed building. Bring suits, towels, and scuba. New members welcome.

SPECIAL EVENTS COMMITTEE
Meeting on Tues., Sept. 24 at 8 p.m. in the Franklin room of the S.U. All are welcome to attend.

YAHOO
Meeting in Tues., Sept. 24 at 6:30 p.m. in the Barnstable room of the S.U.

ZOOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Sept. 24 in 138 Morrill Dr. Nutting will speak on the "Great Barrier Reef."

CAR FOR SALE

1962 Volkswagen Sedan

Ex. Cond., Shoulder Seat Belts. Asking $1500. Need larger car for growing family. Call Mr. McDaniel, AL 3-5530.

10 MILES A DAY

Harriers In Training

by GENE COLBURN

THE VARSITY CROSS COUNTRY TEAM, led by Captain "Digger" Brouillet, has been averaging 10 miles a day in their workouts. Digger, as expected, has been out in front, and seems even stronger this year.

Bob Ramsey and Tom Panke, both juniors, have shown great improvement over their performances last year. Ramsey is running exceptionally well, and is the number 2 man on the team. Al McPhail, returning after a year's absence, has provided a strong boost to the team's strength. McPhail and Panke, along with sophomore Bob Molvar, are waging a tight battle for the next three positions, there is no telling what the order will be by Saturday, when the Redmen open their season.

Following close on these boys' heels is a group led by senior Gene Colburn and sophomore Bob Larson. Larson is having trouble with his legs, but once they are all right, he should improve. Ron Oakland and Don Campfield should combine to give the team strong depth.

COACH FOOTRICK is aiming for the Yankee Conference Championship for an unprecedented fourth straight time, as well as a strong finish in the New England championship and a trip to the IC4A's. Although the coach has not said said anything, the chances for a perfect season are good.

The toughest meet on the schedule will be a triangular meet with Maine and Northeastern. The Redmen have not beaten the Bears by more than 7 points in this meet, and N.E. looks like it will have a really strong team also. Other meets that will be tough will be ones with Providence College and Springfield College. Providence has shown steady improvement the last few years and will be the dark horse in the New England Championships. The Rednien have not been able to beat Springfield for the last three years, but this year should put an end to the Maroon's string.

The meet with Providence will be a quadrangular meet including B.U. and UConn also, and both are capable of filling the role of spoiler. Central Connecticut has the best cross-country runner in the East, and one of the best in the country in Jim Keefe. Keefe has won the New Englands for the last two years, and this past summer was a member of the American track team that traveled to Russia. This year's cross country is shaping into one of the best ever, and only time will tell.

Speed Stick, the deodorant for men! Really helps stop odor. One neat dry stroke lasts all day, goes on so wide it protects almost 3 times the area of a narrow roll-on track. No drip, never tacky! Fast! Neat! Man-size! Mennen Speed Stick!

All it takes is one clean stroke daily!

Army Overcomes Booters As Soccer Season Opens

by SCOTT FREEDLAND

HAMPERED BY INJURIES and inexperience a determined UMass varsity soccer team was unable to follow a spectacular first half before a crowd of five hundred.

The Army immediately began putting the pressure on. Fine defensive work by fullback Ray Yando broke up two attacks by Army's outside left Jose Gonzales. All attempts to drive Army from the UMass end failed as Gonzales (Costa Rica), Rohas (Costa Rica), and Elvas (Honduras) kept driving the attack forward only to have it broken up by All-American Dick Repeta, goalie Dick Phillips, and fullback Roy Yando. Right wing Mike Zanrotny on a pass from the UMass halfback line drove around the Army defense to have goalie Ekland make a last second save which he dropped but fell on before a second shot could be made. Zanrotny connected on a pass from Yando only to have the West Point goalie dive on it again to end spectacularly defensive first period.

AS THE SECOND QUARTER opened the UMass booters seemed to come to life. Outside left Tom Astoldi shot from outside after faking the Cadet's goalie out of position only to have it go high. West Point took the precaution of passing the ball to their goalie to clear it with a downfield boot. Mike Zanrotny and Center Forward Pat McDevitt brought the UMass attack through the West Point defense to have the Cadet goalie make the save in a dive which sprained his shoulder. Play started to toughen as tripping and pushing were called on the Booters and West Point respectively. In the last moments of the first half Army's Hugh Elvas pressed the attack, to be repeatedly stopped by goalie Dick Phillips.

Following the scoreless first half the Army depth proved decisive. Combinations of Gonzales and Bonavic from the corner was the undoing of the UMass booters despite Kevin Lyons and Pat McDevitt's lone run for the goal. Gonzales, driving around the tired, injured fullback line, scored early in the period. The goal was nullified for a foul. Gonzales and Bonavic capitalized on a corner kick and a head twice in five minutes. At 2-0 Army, UMass, scoring on Dick Leete's penalty kick, pulled off the only goal for the Redmen booters. Late in the period Gonzals got his third assist for the fourth goal of the period.

The Redmen kept Army to one goal in the fourth period, (Gonzales) but were unable to push through the always tough Army defense.

NEXT WEEK the Redmen will attempt to avenge themselves against the Coast Guard Midshipmen on UMass home field. Game time is 2 p.m.

WOMEN'S VIEW

Coast Guard Scouts Redmen

by HELEN FURSBURG '64

SEENG AS A FEMALE sports writer is not something you find around campus every day, I'd like you all to feel fortunate and proud to have such a writer on your very own campus Collegian staff. However, this can have its drawbacks, as I don't know quite as much about sports as most of the other sports writers. With this in mind I decided not to cover the games as an actual sports reporter but to find a new angle of approach. Webster provided me with a few fundamentals and with this valuable information tucked away I eagerly went down to the soccer field to await the start of the game.

For the first half of the game I sat there completely engrossed in the action on the field except for momentary interruptions when I slid a few feet down the side of the steep hill I was sitting on. During half-time I just happened to slide into the midst of these men in black uniforms who were sitting in front of me. After apologizing for dropping in so suddenly I discovered that they were the coach and members of the Coast Guard Academy soccer team.

THE SECOND HALF OF THE GAME was even more interesting than the first, thanks to the able instruction that these midshipmen provided. It seems that next week-end UMass is playing the Coast Guard here and these were the advance scouts. They stated that UMass looked much better than they had expected and made a fine showing against Army. After a scoreless first half the lack of depth in the UMass team was shown as Army put in a fresh team and scored four goals in the second half. The lone UMass score came on a penalty boot by Dick Leete. All-American Dick Repeta is to be commended for his fine play as is goalie Dick Phillips.

Redmen Down ...

(Continued from page 6)

goal from the 25 but the try was smothered by hard charging tackle Bob Tedoldi.

IN THE FINAL and decisive period UMass dominated the offensive play. They were on their way to a touchdown when on third and 5 at the Maine 16 Whelchel saw Austin steal another of his passes, this one at the five. Austin was bowled over immediately and four downs later Maine was forced to kick, the Redmen taking over at the Maine 40 with 5:32 left to play.

Jerry Whelchel, Fred Lewis, Bob Ellis and Ken Palm took turns carrying and brought the ball to the 7 where UMass had a first and goal to go. A backfield in motion penalty put UMass back on the 12. Palm bulled his way forward to the 4 and on the next play Whelchel went off-tackle for the winning score and added the extra point.

IF ONE LOOKED AT THE STATISTICS for the game it would appear that UMass had easier sailing than they did. The Redmen total offense was 310 yards, 205 by rushing and 105 via air. Maine logged 129 yards in the air but was held to minus 46 yards on the ground for a day's total offense of 83 yards.

In the passing department, Dick DeVarney set a record for complete passes in a game by a Maine player. He surpassed the old record of 14 by hitting on 16 of 24 attempted. Whelchel and John Schroeder combined to the 28. Fred Lewis slipped around right end to the 24. On third and one, Palm knifed forward to the 21 and a first down. On the next carry he ended up at the Maine 7 for another first down. Mike Ross and Whelchel carried to the two in the next two plays. Palm slid in off tackle for the score with less than six minutes left in the half. Whelchel tied the contest with his point after.

MAINE CAME CLOSE to going ahead in the third period when a UMass fumble gave them the ball on the Mass nine. Some of the pressure was relieved by John Hudson who nailed DeVarney back on the 18 for a big loss. One fourth down and 18 Maine decided to go for a field complete 9 of 14 for UMass.

KEN PALM led all runners in the game with 65 yards on 11 carries, including on TD. Fred Lewis also carried 11 times and picked up 51 yards.

The Redmen line proved itself tough on more than one occasion as Maine's rushing total would indicate. Paul Graham and Pete Pietz with Bob Tedoldi stopped a number of Maine backs cold. Bob Meers, John Hudson, Bernie Dallas and Don Hagberg shot through the lines to snag plays in the Maine backfield on several vital plays.

NEXT WEEK finds UMass on the road again. This time Harvard supplies the opposition in their stadium at Cambridge. Harvard had six of its coaches at the Mass-Maine game to size up the Redmen.

Concert Association ...

(Continued from page 1)

breath of life in the operatic world."

Goldovsky and his company place emphasis on the theatrical aspect of opera.

According to Goldovsky, an audience becomes fully involved in an opera's action, stage business and character portrayal when the opera is presented in the audience's own language.

Technical innovations in the production of "Tosca" include a Goldovsky - designed sound - reflecting fiberglass ceiling, loudspeakers and other electronic devices mounted backstage.

Lucien Oliver, David Giosso, Dean Wilder and Josephine Busalacchi are scheduled to sing the leading roles in "Tosca."

Edward Alley will conduct the opera. Anthony Addison will be the associate conductor of the production.

FROSH BASKETBALL

There will be a frosh basketball meeting Tuesday, Sept. 24, at 7:30 p.m. Room 10 of Curry Hicks Building. All interested are invited.

FROSH SOCCER

All persons interested in playing Freshman Soccer report to Coach Leaman on the Varsity Field 4-6 p.m. Monday-Friday.

Redmen Down Black Bears 14-7

UMass Finds Season Opener Rough Going

by STEVE HEWE.' '64

THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS, pre-game two touchdown favorite, found beating Maine a tougher chore than expected and had to put together tcuchdowns in the late minutes of each half for its come from behind, 14-7 win over the Maine Black Bears at Orono.

Maine ended a Redmen scoring threat in the first few minutes of play when defensive halfback Ray Rustin made an endzone interception of a Jerry Whelchel pass and returned it to the 26 yard line of Maine. From there sophomore quarterback Dick DeVarney, playing his first varsity game, began a brilliant passing show that amazed the 5,000 spectators at UMaine's Alumni Field.

DEVARNEY FIRED 10 passes through the Redmen defenses, eight of them finding the mark during the 18 play, 74 yard drive. The 5'9" DeVarney finished the march with a sneak from the one foot line. Dick Baucher added the extra point to give Maine a 7-0 first period edge.

The game started on a shaky footing for the Redmen as Maine's opening kickoff was cuffed around by Fred Lewis at the 6 and Lewis himself tackled on the one. Jerry Whelchel and halfback Phil DeRose worked the ball forward to the Redmen 11 for a first down. Whelchel threw to end John Hudson who was pushed by a Maine defender. Interference was called and the Redmen had a first down on the Mass 45.

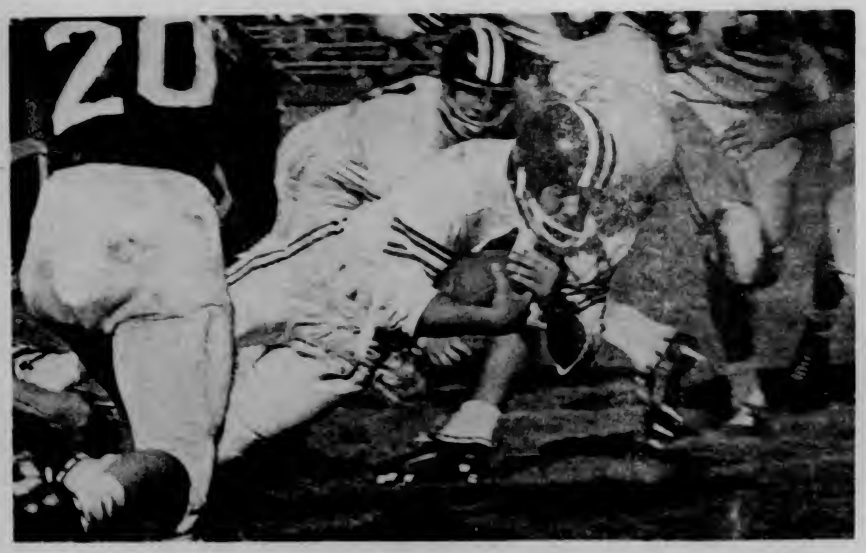
WHELCHEL WENT TO THE AIR again with two tosses to 6'3" end Bob Meers, the second of which Meers lugged into the endzone for an apparent touchdown. A clipping violation at the three yard line cancelled the score and UMass was assessed 15 yards back to the 18. Two plays later came the Austin interception. That set up Maine's TD, UMass saw another scoring bid evaporate in the first quarter when Dick Baucher picked off a Whelchel pass that had bounced from the hands of Redmen end Roger DeMinico the Maine 26.

In the second quarter DeVarney did not find the going so easy. On several occasions hard charging Redmen linemen led by Bob Meers set him on the seat of his pants. With Maine's chief threat temporarily subdued, UMass got rolling for its first score. Halfback Ken Palm, the Redmen's most impressive runner of the day, started the gears winding by returning Maine's punt from the Bear's 47 to the 33.

A delay of game penalty vs. Maine pushed the ball ahead to

(Continued on page 5)

Halkback Fred Lewis carries the ball to set up Jerry Welchel's touchdown.



Quarterback Jerry Welchel dives across the Maine goalline for the winning touchdown.

WE FAIL . . .

if we don't make you mad at least once a day.

WTTT

1430 on Your Radio Dial

HARVARD TICKETS

Tickets for the UMass—Harvard football game September 28 at Harvard Stadium are now available in Room 10A of the Men's Physical Education Building. Students, faculty, and staff members will be limited to the purchase of one reserved seat at a special rate of $1.50. Students must show their ID card when purchasing a ticket. Additional adjoining seats may be purchased at the regular $3.00 price. For additional information, contact Robert O'Connell, Financial Manager of Athletics at extension 2691.

MEN!

Here's deodorant protection YOU CAN TRUST

Old Spice Stick Deodorant... fastest, neatest way to all-day, every day protection! It's the man's deodorant preferred by men...absolutely dependable. Glides on smoothly, speedily...dries in record time. Old Spice Stick Deodorant — most convenient, most economical deodorant money can buy. 1.00 plus tax.

Old Spice STICK DEODORANT

SHULTON

LIBRARY

LIBRARY
OCT 8 1963
UNIVERSITY OF

THE MASSACHUSETTS

COLLEGIAN

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 5 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1963

UM Needs Scholars For 'College Bowl'

by DAVE HARACZ

History, literature, philosophy, the sciences, current events, music, art, mythology, the Bible... just about anything that the college student may be expected to have picked up along the academic road, these are the subjects of the questions of General Electric's weekly "College Bowl."

This year, after considerable effort on the part of Mr. William Deminoff, head of the University News Service, UMass will compete on November 24 against representatives of another school in the popular clash of minds over a national TV network.

Before UMass can send its squad of scholars to do mental battle, preliminary "jousts" must be staged here to determine those best suited for the show. Dr. Albert Medeira of the English department and Daniel Melley of the News Office are in charge of selecting students for the show.

Selection will be by competition similar to that on the show itself, using questions supplied as models by the show. Dr. Medeira points out that it is not necessary to be Phi Beta Kappa to compete, but that it is far more important to have the ability to retain details. Because the scoring on the show depends not only on accuracy but on speed of answering, it is also necessary that those selected be "quick on the trigger."

Those interested in trying out for the show should contact either Dr. Medeira or Mr. Melley, or leave their names and addresses in the "College Bowl" box at the rear of the Collegian office. Further details and developments will be found in coming issues of the Collegian.

U.T. Begins Season With Plautus Comedy

Lights . . . cameras . . . Action abounds as University Theatre gets the year underway with work on its first production, The Twin Menaechmi, to be presented October 17, 18 and 19.

Continuing with last year's course, of presenting in one season several plays from widely differing periods of theatrical history, the University's academic drama group starts its second season with a comedy by Roman dramatist Plautus.

Also on the agenda for the coming year are Ibsen's Ghosts, Shakespeare's Othello, Robert Penn Warren's All The King's Men, and a new play by an American playwright. Season tickets are available for all five productions, at a price reduction, from the Speech Department and from members of Roister Doisters.

Rehearsals for Menaechmi are already underway though places are still available with the stage crew.

The Twin Menaechmi is considered by some scholars to have been inspiration for Shakespeare's Comedy of Errors, and has been called a "triumph of fun".

Announcement of the cast list has been made by Director Cosmo Catalano.

Students and the parts they will play in the Roman comedy are as follow: Kenneth Feinberg, Brush (Peniculus), a parasite; Larry Wilker, Menaechmus I, a young man of Epidamnus; Paula Norton, Erotium, a courtesan; Robert Doherty, Cylindrus, cook of Erotium;

Also, James Wrynn, Menaechmus II (Sosicles), a young man of Syracuse; Roland Laramee, Messenio, slave of Menaechmus II; Jerri Slegle, Maid of Erotium; Deena Ferrigno, Wife of Menaechmus I; Tom Kerrigan, Father, an old man, father-in-law of Menaechmus I;

Also, Robert Thornley, A Doctor; George Powers, Peter Goodman, Dick Bir and Ralph DuMouchel, Slaves; Elaine Chereski, Assistant Maid.

Designer for the production is Orville K. Larson, Production Coordinator is Harry E. Mahnken and Technical Advisor is Terry Wells, of the Speech Department faculty.

DVP Brings Outstanding Program To Campus

The Student Senate in 1960 initiated a special committee with a yearly student tax of establish and maintain a series of guest speakers and other programs "in order to pursue excellence in our scholastic society." The Distinguished Visitors Program has planned a program this year of this quality set forth in the preamble of its constitution

Pirandillo's "Six Characters in Search of an Author" by the Circle in the Square Players will be presented Wednesday, October 9 at 8:00 p.m. in the Ball-

(Continued on page 5)

Distinguished Visitors Committe applications for the class of '65 are available in the ROS office Wednesday through Friday. There will be a coffee hour for all applicants on Sunday, Sept. 9, 1963 at 7:00 p.m. in the Governors' Lounge of the Student Union. NOTE CHANGE OF PLACE OF COFFEE HOUR.

University String Orchestra Expands To Full Symphony

Based on last Thursday's successful rehearsal, the University of Massachusetts orchestra will be expanded into a symphony orchestra under the direction of Ronald Steele, shown here conducting the rehearsal.

Although most are unaware of it, the beginning of a symphony orchestra has been organized here at the University. The University Orchestra will begin its season with a rehearsal in Bartlett Auditorium tonight at 7:30.

Based on last Thursday's successful rehearsal, the University of Massachusetts orchestra will be expanded into a full symphony orchestra under the direction of Ronald Steele.

He stated that while a lack of capable string instrument players is forcing him to go off campus for new members, he feels sure that qualified students at the University will step forward in he near future.

Mr. Steele, a violinist and conductor, is a recent arrival at the University. A graduate of the University of Michigan, he is a former associate conductor of the Michigan Youth Orchestra, a 150 piece group affiliated with the University.

Mr. Steele said that the response to the first rehearsal was so enthusiastic that he will try o secure woodwind and brass musicians immediately.

When established, the symphony will be the first assembled at the University.

Interested musicians — students, faculty, or area residents —are asked to call Mr. Steele at the music department, University. Vacancies exist for woodwind, brass and string instrumentalists.

Mr. Steele has invited all students who have string experience to come to tonight's rehearsal.

The orchestra rehearses each Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

Constutional Convention Discuss Senate Membership

by ELWIN McNAMARA

The first Constitutional Convention of the year will convene tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers. All Senators and class officers are urged to be present. Senate President Jon Fife stated that the meeting, as are all Senate meetings, is open to the public.

On the agenda for the convention are two bills. The first, introduced by Senator Bill Donovan '65—Commuter, would raise the number of Senators which could be alloted a given area. It would grant as a maximum, 8 to a residential area having "more than 1125 residents."

The second bill brings debate on 10 changes in the Student Government Association Constitution onto the floor. Sponsored by the Constitutional Revisions Committee, the bill would, if passed, bring the constitution more up to date.

The purpose of the committee, according to its Chairman, Senator Phil Howard ('64 Mills) is "to decide whether or not student government is adequate to serve the needs of the student body."

The committee considered the establishment of a "President of the Student Body" which would be separate from that of Senate president. They found that it is not necessary at the present time, that the Senate president has fulfilled this duty in the past and will be able to fulfill it in the foreseeable future.

One section of the bill would "legalize" the Area Judiciary, which up until now, has been operating on what many Senators feel to be a shaky legal basis.

Finally, the delegates will consider a bill which would limit the membership of the Senate to 65 members. When the membership exceeds this number, a reapportionment will be held. As this bill is quite controversial, in all likelihood it will be tabled back to committee.

PARKING

The end of automobile registration this Friday, Sept. 27, will be the beginning of a full scale crack down on unregistered vehicles.

Although many students have received only warnings for illegal parking, 19 cars have already been towed. Seven of these vehicles were parked in the "Tow Zones" where school buses un-

(Continued on page 3)

Students leaving the University for the High Holy Days are reminded that they are excused from classes from Friday noon and all day Saturday.

Editorial Page

Extension And Non-extension

by J. B. CHILDS

The spread of photographs which appeared in the Collegian a short time ago showing the many faces of campus construction was indicative of the atmosphere of physical change which pervades the University. The University is to be congratulated for its effort to keep abreast of the flow of ever-increasing students.

At the same time that this atmosphere of physical extension occurs there also seems to exist an attitude of non-extension. As was pointed out by Iris Ann Decelles in her article about parking space, "Only a few parking areas remain available for use . . . . Within a month construction is due to get underway in key parking lots." We do not deny the value of this construction to meet the needs of physical extension. The question we ask concerns the failure to extend regulations to meet these new changes.

The rules and regulations with regard to parking grew up in a time when there were "key parking lots" available. For good reasons those parking spaces are no longer available. It would seem therefore that regulations in regard to parking should change along with the parking spaces.

If it is expected that the student change old ways of campus living to meet new construction, new extension it would seem fair to expect a change in old regulations to also meet the new construction.

Who Is Free?

by MIKE ALIPHERES

Who is free? You? I? Perhaps Cleve McDowell, James Meredith, or the four children killed in the Birmingham bombing or any of the Negroes murdered for the cause of integration; but are human beings free when they are forced to depend upon military troops to insure their admittance into public schools, state universities or public facilities; and furthermore to protect them from the violence of southern demagogues who feed on the evil and hatred in narrow-minded and bigoted whites?

The American Negro is a victim of hypocrisy. Indeed the entire issue of integration and race equality is an illustration of the flagrant inconsistencies of a political system which advocates civil liberty and freedom, but in reality fails to sustain the most basic of all truths, that of equal human rights.

In order to understand fully the cause of the race crisis, one must examine closely the fears of the southern white people. They realize that the Negro race exposed to the same education as the white race is a potential and economic power bloc. They know that in a competitive society the educated majority, which in many instances in the South would be the Negro populace, controls through suffrage power and the influences of government. The southern white are afraid that they will lose the political and economic absolutism that they have enjoyed for the past two hundred years. This basic fear of economic insecurity is the deepest root of race antagonism, and, we believe, of all human conflict and suffering. A nation which fails to grant economic security to all of its citizens fails to attain two of life's fundamental freedoms: freedom from want and freedom from fear.

In a society which forces human beings to compete for a living, predominant characteristics originate only from the desire of material security and gain. The most significant of these is the exploitation of man by man (hence slavery, segregation, and the class system). Only a system which eliminates this exploitation by establishing economic security will create a climate for personal, cultural and religious freedom, a climate in which every human being regardless of race or color may develop all of his capabilities.

SICK AND TIRED?

by JOAN C. SHUSTA

Recently, I asked a Columbia undergraduate how he felt about the Negro movement for civil rights. "Oh," he said, "I think it's all very admirable, but don't you get sick and tired of always hearing about it?"

Are you sick and tired of being inundated with newscasts featuring Alabama and Mississippi, Wallace and Barnett, firehoses and bloodhounds? Were you disappointed that the March on Washington monopolized television channels for a day? And now that you have returned to the University from summer vacation, do studies and parties and Hatch dates push the disturbing thought of social justice from your mind?

PARTNERS NOT ANTAGONISTS

by SANDRA BURLINGAME

The world situation of today is generally thought of as the struggle between two powers whose ideologies are vastly different and incapable of being reconciled. On the contrary, the objectives of the United States and Russia are very similar. Each doctrine professes belief in the idea that man can live a happy life free from poverty and misery if the ideal is achieved. In the Soviet Union, this ideal would be a communist state where each man would receive an equal share of the wealth of the state; in America, the hope of eliminating bad conditions in order to give every man a chance for a comfortable life goes along with the idea of liberty and equality, for the purpose of rights of the individual is to give everyone a fair chance to make of his life what he wishes, which would presumably be a life without suffering.

The thought that Communists are terrible monsters because of the methods they use to spread their belief is likewise a fallacious idea, unless of course you would call the actions of the United States in the taking of Texas, Florida, and California from our neighbors during our period of imperialism the acts of monsters. It may be argued, however, that because this is the twentieth century, what was once allowed to happen is no longer permitted. But the vehement belief of the Communists that they must spread their ideas or the world will forever live in error forces them to do things otherwise unthought-of. Communism is a religion to them, and like religious people throughout the world, they believe it is their duty to spread belief in the "one true way of life."

If you, the student, are a strong Catholic, Protestant, or Jew, are you content to know that other people are continually mistaken in their ideas and unhappy because of it? Wouldn't you rather have them know the truth in order to live life correctly? The difference between you and a Communist is that he will use violent action to bring about what he considers the ultimate good of Communism. If there were not strong faith in the benefits this system could bring to everyone, the infiltration of Communism throughout many parts of the world today would be brought to a standstill.

The fight for men's minds has never been an easy one and we now find ourselves in the midst of a struggle between two peoples, both striving for the same goal—the betterment of mankind—but proceeding by totally different methods. The irony of this situation is that instead of working together, they are enemies in the tense Cold War. It is time to begin to use all our energies to see that Russia and the United States become partners instead of antagonists. Perhaps the Nuclear Test Ban and the proposed union of resources for a joint moon shot will be steps along the way to world peace. Only time will tell.

ME, MADNESS, HUMOR

Taxation Without Representation

by MIKE HENCH

In keeping with the traditions established for the Student Violence Coordinating Committee, namely those traditions drawn out of America's past, it is time to examine various "fees" and "taxes" imposed upon us who honor the University with our presence.

There is little doubt that we are taxed by the state in order to pay a part of our tuition. And perhaps the state does need the extra $100 or so that we pay directly in tuition. (Indeed we are surprised when, after examining the fiscal responsibility of this state, we pay so little.)

Nevertheless, there are several other "fees" and "taxes" imposed on that seditious piece of paper known as The Semester Bill. Let us examine these.

We pay an activities tax. We are represented by the Senate.

We pay a Student Union Fee. We are ostensibly represented by a body known as The Student Union Governing Board. But it is well

(Continued on page 5)

Although you may be in favor of civil rights for all, perhaps you are just plain bored by the intrustion of this issue upon your microcosmic life as a college student. If so, you can thrust it out of your psychological existence; you can sit back in your library or Hatch chair and forget that four little girls died, unsuspecting martyrs to the cause of integration. Yes, you can run from this boredom—you can run right back to University-style boredom. In this country, waiting for your active championship, is a ready-made cause. But—people of my generation—if you want to remain bored and boring, don't get involved. Just skim the headlines—and throw away your newspaper after you have smashed your radio.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

MELANGE

Homicide

by STEVE ORLEN

History informs us it is as old as civilization itself. It began as a primitive retaliation, a necessary recourse, a natural instinct, some time after Cain got away with murder. It began rather crudely, an eye for an eye, the Bible says. Over the centuries it evolved, became more polished when the Church took it over, more ingenius when the Chinese started to play with it, more thorough with the Nazis, until finally it was refined into an art. Then America imported it, put it in a machine, called it humane, and gave it a fancy label—capital punishment.

After a few hundred years, the great American conscience got pricked. In 1962 the last of 50 states took it off the books as the mandatory penalty for premeditated murder. Some states have abolished it altogether. There was a bill before the Massachusetts House this year to that effect—it was defeated. (Long live the Salem witch burnings!)

The Franco government in Spain tends, as we know, to be a bit backward. Civilization left them behind. This summer two "political" prisoners were executed by garroting—a tortuous form of capital punishment carried out with a metal collar. This rather uncomfortable necktie is strapped about the neck and slowly tightened until the spinal cord snaps. Apparently they've never heard of the more humane methods such as hanging, firing squads, electrocution, and gas pellets. This example of sheer barbarity cannot be overlooked, especially in a time of relative peace.

A U.N. Economic and Social Council came up with a study earlier this year, using 65 countries, which proved that when the death penalty is abolished there is no increase in crime. Surely, the moral force of the U.N. can exert enough pressure on the rest of the world, including the U.S., to halt capital punishment. Acts of vengeance cure nothing.

To the Editor:

The Collegian is getting careless. I may be one thing to be understaffed and overworked, but to be so sloppy as to reverse the credit due two reporters is inexcusable. Though the titles and bylines were correctly placed, the articles were switched. It seems parking is not all that merits a warning.

Susan Fijux '65
Hamlin 113

OLDEST HOUSE IN AMHERST

Faculty Club Outgrows Facilities

by PAT LONG

The typical UMass student who feels that he is suffering more than is usual from the slings and arrows of higher learning will usually betake himself to the Hatch for comfort, solace, and a cup of coffee. But what of the harried faculty member? He will, according to our research, take up some therapeutic hobby, beat his head against the walls of his office, or find refuge in the Faculty Club, which has been described by Charter Member and former President William Ross as "a place where we can let our hair down and say what we think."

The Club itself has its headquarters in Stockbridge House, the oldest in Amherst, built in 1728 as the home of "Sam'l Boltwood, Husbandman". It is perched on the hill next to Clark Hall, and there the charming Faculty Club Hostess, Miss Ruth Ward, pointed out to us where the gracious proportions of the old house had been restored and then adapted to Faculty Club needs. "The parlor is now a lounge and small library" she said, "and the main kitchen a dining room." The former carriage sheds now house billiard and ping-pong tables instead of carts and sleighs.

THE FACULTY CLUB was organized in 1935, soon after the restoration of the house. It now has approximately 160 members who take part in a range of activities including daily luncheon and dinner, an occasional "Do It Yourself" supper or special reception, bridge games and afternoon coffee breaks. Nevertheless, according to some members, the facilities at Stockbridge House have been "inadequate for years," and will become even more so as the University continues to grow.

A RECENT POLL taken of the UMass faculty (both members and non-members), shows, for example, that 46.4% of those answering the questions felt that Stockbridge as it now exists would be an objection to their joining the Club. In addition, 62.3% would like to see the present house enlarged and 58.6% would like a new faculty club facility on campus. As these goals seem distant, Geraid Grady, University Business Manager and the encumbent faculty club President, is working with his Eexecutive Board to adapt the format of the Club as much as possible to the present needs and wishes of its members.

Whichever solution to the problem is finally adopted, the Faculty Club will undoubtedly continue to fulfill the purpose stated in its constitution — "To help staff members to become better acquainted with one another, to foster a more friendly spirit and to make for greater unity of our group as a whole."

—Photo by Andi Beaucheman

Faculty Club hostess Miss Ruth Ward stands in front of signs which establish the date of building of the house at 1728.

COLONEL MARCHANT

The Man Behind The Sticker

by ANNE PINCISS

With the current excitement over a dip into the student's pocketbook for a car registration fee, we seem to have overlooked the person who is in charge of collecting the controversial fee. Col. John Marchant (USAF, ret.), now staff assistant in the Treasurer's office, is head of the University's Security and Civil Defense Department.

Col. Marchant is a graduate of the Stockbridge School and holds two law degrees from National University in Washington, D.C. He joined the Army Air Force in 1933 as a 2nd Lt. and 3 years later achieved the rank of 1st Lt. From 1940 to '47, he served with the Intelligence Department and in 1947 he became Instructor of Air Intelligence with the 5th Air Force and then Director of Intelligence Headquarters, Caribbean Air Command at Albrook Air Force Base, Canal Zone.

In 1949 as Lt. Col., he joined the Intelligence Staff at Headquarters USAF, Washington, D.C. In 1952, he was Assistant Air Attache in England, then, as Colonel, he returned in 1955 to Washington to work in the Integration Division of Intelligence followed by a two year stint on the Middle East Planning Committee.

In 1958, Col. Marchant came to the University as Professor of Air Science, and in June of 1962 he retired from active duty. In his two years as professor, Col. Marchant was very active in the Faculty Senate and organized the Young People's Rifle Club in Amherst.

As already evidenced by the rash of traffic signs that has broken out all over the campus and the cry of the students against the new requirements for registering their cars, Col. Marchant has taken on a large responsibility. It seems, however, that he has the situation well under control.

THE VERNACULAR: A New Twist To Your News

by INEZ BRAND

THE VERNACULAR is a feature column intended to cover that wide field of topics of interest to UMass students. There are no secrets in this column, only clarity and variety. Find your innermost interest in print in this regular column.

* * *

While at the Hatch, I overheard four students talking about liquid diet food. I was overcome with desire to inform them that the industry's annual sales had fallen from $100 million to a mere $80 million. But I couldn't because what would they think. Now I can write it in this column, with the added privilege of press immunity.

ANOTHER THING I overheard was, "Hey Jack Baby, you didn't sign up for Smith's course, did you?" "Heck, no. His gut is a barf." My justification for mentioning this in such a sophisticated column is that there are over 64,000 foreign students studying at universities in this country. These students listed American slang as a major difficulty in their college adjustment. Unbelievable.

If any freshmen want to check the etymology of that quotation I mentioned, don't bother with the "barf" because you won' find it. Also, "gut" isn't the singular of "guts".

* * *

MARRIED PEOPLE, are you bored with looking for premature grey hairs? Try looking for "his" and "her" baid spots. Simultaneous bald spots occur in a husband and wife, sometimes, reports the Lilt Reference Service. This condition seems to be triggered emotionally. A Chicago couple became baid in almost the corresponding part of their scaips. A psychiatric examination discovered a mutual emotional dependence in the patients. The presence of cross-identification was also noted.

* * *

The concept of an "old child" does make sense if you are talking to Dr. Revii Mason, archaeologist from Johannesburg, South Africa. Dr. Mason's convinced that prehistoric children doodled

(Continued on page 4)

Sand And Sunshine

Possible Research Project on Nantucket

by LINDA VALONEN

Roses creeping over the roofs of weather-beaten houses, sand dunes in the wind, art galleries, boats coming and going in the white-capped blue, salty air in the sunshine. Yes, it's quaint old New England on Cape Cod Bay, but to be more exact, Nantucket Island. Some of the sand and sunshine from this spot is now a part of the University of Massachusetts. Last spring this school received a gift of the ninety acre Peabody Estate situated on the harbor of Nantucket Island near Quaise Point.

The estate was accepted with the intention of using it for educational purposes; thus, the Provost appointed a committee with Dr. Bartlett as chairman to decide whether and to what extent the University should develop a program in marine sciences and where this operation would be based. The committee, to meet at the end of September, will determine what the physical needs of the program would be and then perhaps some or all of the operation will based there.

If we look ahead two or three years, we might find a graduate program of research going on—possibly involving chemistry, physics, geology, microbiology, botany, zoology, wild life management, and recreational leadership. The research would be of great significance, for the ocean is our last untapped resource.

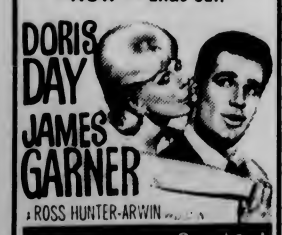
Problems such as harvesting the fish crop, managing the game and food species of the sea, and understanding the physiology of algae and other plant life have still to be examined. Recently, an explanation for the disappearance of the submarine Thresher has been attributed to cross-currents of cold and warm water not known or understood; thus, we see important implications for our Navy.

But let us return to a view of the Peabody estate today. There is no scientific equipment there, only a marshy land dotted with salt water ponds. A sheer bank drops in the harbor where one half mile of beach provides excellent swimming conditions. The water is clear and not very deep and birds are plentiful, among them being the whistling swans like those on our college pond. Living quarters on the property include that for the caretaker, Mr. Clinton Andrews, president of the local fisherman's association, who lives there with his wife and daughter in this restful atmosphere four miles from town.

"But what about the educational aspect?" you ask. This summer a student worked on a project there which involved the breeding biology of terns; thus, we see the purpose of the land already being fulfilled. We also find this purpose in a recent letter to the president from Mr. Stockley, president of the Shawkemo Chapter of the Massachusetts Archeological Society. Evidence of Indian activity has been discovered here and the University will co-operate with Mr. Stockley in his search for artifacts.

—FOR SALE—
1959 Renault
6000 miles on rebuilt engine. See Lewis House janitor, or call AL 3-7022.

AMHERST CINEMA
—NOW -- Ends Sat.—



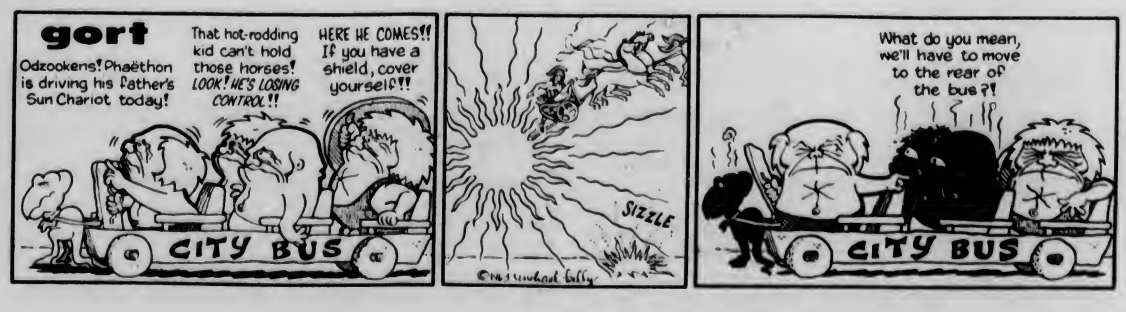
—STARTS SUNDAY—
"Toys In The Attic"
Dean Martin

Crackdown ...

(Continued from page 1)

load at the School of Education. Five were taken from the loading and unloading area of the Student Union, while the remainder were also parked in tow zones.

Students, get your unregistered cars off this campus this weekend! If you don't, the police may remove them for you!



Survey Reveals Few Negroes Occupying Top Teaching Positions

A recent spot check by the New York Times revealed that a very small number of Negroes are currently teaching as full professors in U.S. colleges and universities.

The Times queried 17 major educational institutions, finding that 11 of them in fact had Negro professors, but only one or two in most cases. A Columbia University spokesman said that it had no top-ranking Negroes on its staff. Neither Yale nor Harvard have Negro professors, and Princeton has only one.

Dr. John Hope Franklin, the Negro historian who last year was elected the first non-white member of Washington's Cosmos Club, will become a full professor at the University of Chicago next year. Dr. Franklin, an authority on the history of slavery and the period of the Reconstruction, is currently chairman of the history department at Brooklyn College. He is on leave as Pitt Professor at Cambridge University in England.

The other universities queried gave varying answers. The list follows: University of Wisconsin —figures not available for lack of records by race. University of Minnesota — one full professor and two assistant professors, and perhaps others below full professor, are Negroes. Notre Dame— One, an assistant professor of finance. Indiana University — Four, all assistant professors in music, astronomy, and military science, and one in Slavic studies at the Kokomo Center.

University of Iowa — 23 academic staff members of all ranks, including technicians, are Negroes. University of Illinois—No figures as to academic employment of Negroes, although of the 17,242 persons employed at all branches, 1,520 are Negro. University of Michigan—No records by race available but a spokesman said that "some" Negro professors were on the campus. University of California at Berkeley — No data but "at least several" a spokesman said.

Stanford — Spokesman said that he did not believe any Negroes were on the professional staff. University of California at Los Angeles—Five or six. University of Southern California — Four. Massachusetts Institute of Technology — One, a civil engineer, an assistant professor.

Princeton—Dr. William Franklin Strother, a Negro psychologist, is on the staff now. Next fall, Dr. W. Arthur Lewis, vice chancellor of the University of the West Indies, will come as a full professor of economics and international affairs. New York University—No precise data, but a spokesman cited "at least two."

SZO To Present Speaker Plus Movie On Israel

Wednesday at 8:00 in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union, Gideon Spiegel will speak at the first meeting of the Student Zionist Organization. He will speak on "Social and Human Aspects of Integration in Israel", and will also comment on the film "The Key" which will be shown.

Gideon who has come to the United States quite recently was born and raised in Israel. Following his tour of duty as a Platoon Commander in the army he attended Tel Aviv University and the Institute for Studies and Research in Bet Beryl from which he graduated with a major in Social and Political Science. He served as Principle of the Eilat Council of Education and Culture and was also an educational worker and tutor at Bet Beryl for four years. Gideon still contributes articles regularly to Israeli papers although he is kept quite busy getting himself and his wife and child settled while performing his duties as Israeli representative to the Student Zionist Organization.

The Vernacular . . .

(Continued from page 3)

on cave walls. Doodles were found close to the floor and much simpler than those higher on the walls. Rather than the circle—with—lines portraits by today's toddlers, the cave drawings were natural shapes.

• • •

In Herkimer, N.Y. an elderly man was charged with leaving the scene of an accident. He explained to the judge, "I hit the other car because I couldn't see good. I drove away because I couldn't see what I hit." The judge, of course, fined the offender and revoked his license.

Cross Country . . .

(Continued from page 8)

is not too good. Almost everyone is showing constant improveemnt, though, and the spread amongst the runners could be less than expected. On the whole this year's team seems to be in better condition than last year's team was at this time of year. The Redmen's team last year was considered the best Coach Footrick has ever coached. By all indications this year's team is going to be even better. Saturday will be the first test.

Amherst Community Opera Salutes Verdi's Birthday

This year the Amherst Community Opera will honor Giuseppe Verdi by presenting the opera "Il Trovatore" on his 150th birthday anniversary. "IL Trovatore", translated "The Troubador", is a four act opera which will be given on Oct. 18th and 19th in the Amherst Regional High School auditorium. Under the musical direction of Edwin London of Smith College, the opera is to be presented in the original Italian. Although the productions of the Community Opera are usually in English, the details of the plot in this year's presentation are rather inconsequential and since the Italian is so much more beautiful, that version is being used.

The members of the cast have been preparing all summer to make this a really excellent production. Past performers in the company will return again this year, including Dorothy Feldman, Eugene Baker, Henry Falcetti. Incidentally, Maggie Loomis, presently a student at UMass., has a small role. Apparently, the chorus still has unfilled places and male students at the University are invited to try out.

NOTICES

ARTS AND MUSIC COMMITTEE

There will be a meeting of the Arts and Music Committee Wed., Sept. 25 at 7 p.m. in the Hampden Room of the S.U.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS

Students who wish to do volunteer work at the Belchertown State Schol for the Mentally retarded are asked to sign up on the sheet provided across from the telephone booths in the S.U.

Cars leave for Belchertown from Skinner Parking Lot at 1:15 p.m. on Saturday.

BIKE AUCTION

There will be a bike auction Oct. 1st on the South Terrace of the S.U. All bikes that have been unclaimed for over a year will be auctioned off. If you have a missing bike, it would be advisable to check with the Campus Security Officers to see if it has been found.

CHURCH BUSSES

Shuttle busses to Amherst churches will be stopping across from Hills on Stockbridge Rd., and across from Knowlton House.

COMMUTER DANCE

The N.R.S.A. is sponsoring a dance Sat., Sept. 28, at 8 p.m. in the Farley 4-H building which is located behind Machmer Hall. No admission will be charged and all commuters are welcome.

Lost and Found

FOUND: R. Charwell—I found your glasses (brown men's glasses in grey case) Contact Rosemary Ananis, 243 Van Meter No.

LOST: A green poplin, hooded, rubberized raincoat outside of Hatch. I have yours. Please return to Peggy Avezzie, 315 Leach House.

LOST: Two pumpkins—missing since 1:54 a.m. Monday. If found, please return to irate students of Brett House.

UMass Student Wins Ralston Scholarship

Richard E. Canning, Jr., '64 at the University, has been selected to receive the Ralston Purina Scholarship Award for 1963-64, according to an announcement made in St. Louis by J. D. Sykes, Vice President of the Ralston Purina Company.

The $500 Purina Scholarship is awarded each year to an outstanding Junior in the land grant colleges in each of the 50 states, as well as three Canadian agricultural colleges and a Puerto Rican.

Winners are selected at each college by a faculty Scholarship Committee on the basis of scholarship, leadership, character, ambition in agriculture and a desire for financial assistance.

STOSO DANCE

On Friday evening STOSO will sponsor a "Monkey Dance" in the S.U. Ballroom from 8 to 11:30 p.m. This dance will feature the Northern Lights. Admission will be 50¢.

DVP APPLICANTS

Distinguished Visitors Program Committee applications for the class of '66 are available in the R.S.O. Office Mon. through Fri. There will be a coffee hour for all applicants on Sunday, Sept. 29 in the Governors Lounge of the S.U. at 7 p.m.

FRESHMAN HOCKEY

There will be a meeting for freshman hockey Thurs., Sept. 26 at 5:30 p.m. in room 10 of the Athletic Building.

MODERN DANCE CLUB

Meeting on Thurs., Sept. 26, at 5:30 p.m. in the gym of WoPE. Everyone welcome — come dresed to dance. Contact Miss Reid in WoPE for further information.

MORTARBOARD

Mortarboard talks with Freshmen Women will be held in the Women's Dorms on Mon. and Wed. at 7 p.m. Check the bulletin boards in each dorm for the day.

SOPH-FROSH COMMITTEE

There will be a meeting of the Soph-Frosh Committee Sept. 25 at 7 p.m. in Machmer W16. This meeting is for both the Publicity and Decorating Committee.

S.U. DANCE COMMITTEE

There will be a meeting of the S.U. Dance Committee Thurs., Sept. 26, at 11:05 a.m. in the Nantucket Rm. of the S.U. Agenda: Homecoming Dance.

STUDENT UNION

A checking service, located in the corridor behind the Lobby Counter, has recently been put into effect. This service will be available from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. for a small fee.

A check cashing service has also been initiated at the cashier's window on the Mezzanine of the S.U. Building. This service will be available Mon. through Sat. from 8:45 to 4:45. The maximum amount will be $20.00. Some form of University Identification will have to be shown by both students and University employees.

Merit Awards . . .

(Continued from page 8)

After reviewing the Maine game films Fusia stated that several Redmen earned letters. Ends Bob Meers and John Hudson and tackle Paul Graham all now have RED on their helmets. Guard Tom Brophy and center Bernie Dallas have RE; Guards Peter Pietz and Bob Tedoldi; tackles Bob Burke and Don Hagberg and end Roger DeMinico have R's.

CLUB DIRECTORY

AMATEUR RADIO CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in Gunness Lab, room 10. All interested are invited to attend.

A.S.M.E.
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25 at 8 p.m. in the Commonwealth room of the S.U. All M.E.'s may join between 7:30 and 8 p.m.

AMHERST FRIENDS
A discussion on race relations will be held on Sun., Sept. 29, at 10:15 a.m. at the Amherst Grange, Main and North Whitney Streets. A car will be in front of the S.U. at 10 a.m.

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
Vespers services will be held on Wed., Sept. 25, at 9:30 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. Everyone welcome.

EDWARDS FELLOWSHIP
Meeting on Sun., Sept. 29, at 6:30 p.m. at First Congregational Church, with a tape recording of the crisis in Birmingham. Rides leave Hills and Arnold at 6:15 p.m.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Sept. 26, at 8 p.m. in ehe Middlesex room of the S.U. Everyone is urged to attend.

GEOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in 249 Morrill.

HEYMAKERS
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25 at 7:30 p.m. Lessons will start.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Supper meeting on Sun., Sept. 29 at 6 p.m. Bill Wilkinson will lead the evening discussion. Rides leave Arnold at 5:50 p.m.

LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25 at 8 p.m. in Wilder Hall. Refreshments will be served.

MODERN DANCE CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Sept. 26 at 5:30 p.m. in the gym of WoPE. Come dressed to dance. All are welcome. Contact Miss Reid in WoPE for further information.

NEWMAN CLUB
There will be a dance on Frl., Sept. 27, at 8 p.m. at the Newman Center. Charge of $.50 for non-members.

OPERETTA GUILD
Anyone interested in working on publicity for The Music Man is invited to a meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7 p.m. in the Worcester A room of the S.U. If you cannot attend, please contact Joan Jones at 6 Leach.

PRE-MED CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25 at 7:30 p.m. in Morrill Aud. Two films will be shown.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7 p.m. in Bartlett 61. Anyone interested is invited.

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Sept. 26 at 7 p.m. in the lobby of the men's phys ed. New members welcome.

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION
Meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 8 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U. Everyone welcome.

WMUA
Station meeting on Wed., Sept. 25, at 7:30 at the station for all members and aspiring members.

Girl Piano Players Wanted

21 or over, to play in Amherst Restaurant 1-7 nights a week. Contact Elaine Needham, 207 Arnold House, AL 3-9230.

RENT A CAR
ECONO-CAR RENTAL SYSTEM
FEATURING CHRYSLER PRODUCTS
• GAS INCLUDED
$5.99 PER 24 HRS. Plus Small Mileage Charge
Springfield 785-5314
Northampton 584-7277
Greenfield 774-4443

Bridge Club Invited By Harvard To Play

At this year's first meeting of the U. Mass. Bridge Club, which took place Thursday evening, Sept. 13, it was announced that Harvard University has invited University of Mass. to join with it and several other New England college in a series of duplicate bridge matches.

Students skilled in bridge who are interested in taking part in this match are requested to come to the practice meeting with a partner on Thursday evening at 7 p.m. in the Student Union.

The first game of the year took place Thursday evening, Sept. 13, and four tables participated. This was a Howell game and 21 boards scored. The average was 32½.

First—
Mrs. Smart-Bowman 42 pts.
Second—
Crawford-Baxter 35 pts.
Third—
Horvitz-Krift 34½ pts.
Fourth—
Littlefield-Harvey 33¼ pts.

The second game was played Thursday, Sept. 20, with ten tables participating. A Mitchell game was played. The winners were:

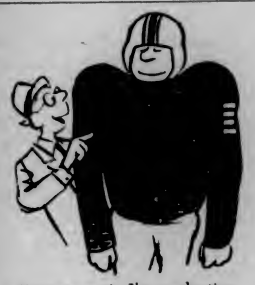
North and South

First—
Pemple-Schwartz 94 pts.
Second—
Blum-Morse 89½ pts.
Third—
Witherspoon-McCarthy 85 pts.
Fourth—
Leavitt-Sekac 80 pts.

East and West

First—
Littlefield-Harvey 85 pts.
Second—
Baxter-Crawford 81 pts.
Third—
Cox-Carlson 81 pts.
Fourth—

(Continued to col. 5)



1. Excuse me, sir. I'm conducting a poll for the college newspaper. I wonder if I might ask you a few questions?

Be my guest.

2. In your opinion, what are some of America's most significant achievements in the past 50 years?

Huh?

3. Let me put it this way. During the last half century what new ideas have led to important benefits for the American people?

Well, uh—there's the two-platoon system.

4. I'll rephrase the question. Since 1912, what developments can you think of that have made the lot of the working man easier?

Now you're getting tricky.

5. Give it a try.

Well, speaking off the top of my head, I might say stretch socks.

I'm sure everyone would agree they've been useful. But isn't there something with a bit more social significance that comes to mind?

There certainly is. There's Group Insurance, the principle of which is to help provide protection for those who need it most and can afford it least. Pioneered and developed by Equitable, it has proved most efficacious. Today, the working man and his family enjoy a broad spectrum of protection provided by Group Insurance. For that reason, I would most emphatically suggest its inclusion among the significant achievements. But I still think the two-platoon system is pretty important.

For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For information about career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write to William E. Blevins, Employment Manager.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States

Home Office: 1285 Avenue of the Americas, New York 19, N.Y. ©1963

Trimester; Year-round School

by KEN BERK

At its first meeting of the year, the Student Senate voted to establish a committee to study the effect of a trimester on student life. In response to this, the Collegian interviewed Dr. William Venman, who has served on a University committee studying the plan.

This plan would re-arrange the academic calendar. Classes would start on August 31, and the first semester would end December 22; the second semester would extend from January 4 to would actually be an enlarge- May 20. The third semesterment of the regular summer school, extending from May 9 to June 18, then from June 20 to August 20.

Assistant to the Provost, Dr. William Venman, who has already studied the idea of year-round college operation for three years, concluded that year-round operation is both economical and wise. It will be cheaper to run the school in the summer, and students will be able to finish their education in three years. The re-arrangement would allow the administration to enlarge the summer rogram. Then each semester would offer equal oportunities in courses and teachers.

Dr. Venman said, "Some type of year-round operation is inevitable. Sooner or later we will be on a year-round operation basis." It will be interesting to see the administration's reaction and action on this report.

Amherst President Lauds A Liberal Education

In a speech presented this week at Amherst College, President week to 302 entering freshmen Calvin H. Plimpton told them "to ask questions, not merely seek answers."

He went on to say that in today's world of nuclear testing and Birmingham bombing, the liberal arts college is more relevant than ever before. The ancient idea that a liberal arts education enables one to appreciate music, art and literature, and to be charming in the drawing room has become outmoded.

Nowadays, one hopes this liberal education will do much more. It should enable one to make decisions, choices, selections. Having made a decision, it then becomes necessary to put it into effect. A liberal education helps towards this end by putting one in contact with experiences and understanding of all mankind.

The President concluded thus: "The crux of this contact is the spirit of inquiry—the spirit of learning. Some of you in coming here may feel you will find answers, and solutions. If that is all that happens, if you learn only how to get ahead, we will have failed, you and I. It is the spirit of learning which you must capture—the ability to ask questions, not merely seek answers."

COLLEGIATE PRESS SERVICE

Greeks In State Of Change

That most venerable and most debated institution, the American college fraternity, is entering a significant period of change, the Associated Press has decided.

Noting widespread debate on the merits of the Greek system throughout the U. S. educational community this year, the AP polled 150 campuses across the nation to discover what changes have been wrought in the fraternity system as a rsult of the controversies of the past few years.

The debate, of course, has raged for decades. The Greek will tell you that the fraternity is the invaluable inculcator of self-reliance, the social graces, group democracy, and scholarship in the otherwise hapless student masses. And the non-Greek will tell you that fraternities are the last refuge of bigots, snobs, and rich men's sons who need a crutch to get them through school.

At a time when the nation sees itself as hard-pressed for creative minds from the universities, some critics picture the fraternities and sororities as a vast anti-intellectual desert, where the "bonds of brotherhood too often tie knots of conformity and the climb to the social graces too often stumbles into a trap of hooch"—as an AP writer put it.

The one issue that all fraternities and sororities must eventually face up to, of course, is the discrimination question. In an age where more and more of the country's youth are finding themselves impatient with racial bigotry, the Greeks find that they are losing many potentially outstanding members because of their inability to integrate.

Attitudes among university administrators toward the fraternity system are widely varied. At Oregon State, they are "welcome, not just tolerated." But Boston University Dean Stanton R. Curtis says "time is running out, I fear," citing fraternities' "fiscal mismanagement, low academic achievement, and failure to choose a representative membership."

One of the biggest arguments is over the selective nature of argue with the right to free as-Greek pledging systems. Few sociation of individuals, but many assert that most fraternities still insist on their right to pick and choose their members as they please. The AP poll showed a definite trend toward increasing liberalization of selection policies.

At Stanford University, the local Sigma Nu chapter voted to break its national ties because of the national's discriminatory Thomas Grey explained "it is becoming increasingly difficult to find a good pledge class which is willing to accept membership in an organization which denies admittance on purely racial grounds."

Sometimes troubles with the national work the other way around. A sorority at Beloit, Delta Gamma, was dumped by its national after pledging a Negro girl. A fraternity at Willamette reportedly gave up the idea of pledging a Negro because it was a foregone conclusion that the national would not permit it.

And thus, it would seem, while the Greek system may be under-pressure, the decline and fall of the empire is still a long way off. But one thing confuses observers of the nation's nearly seven million Greeks — they seem to have surprisingly little to say about anything as a group. It has been noticed on campus after campus that though Greeks may run campus politics, there is seldom such a thing as a "Greek" position—the students usually are in the game only to be in the game. They are after position and prestige, not dedicated to the resolution of issues.

There is a sizeable mystique about a system that continues to attract millions of new members—yet has no coherent philosophy or apparent purpose. But it appears that it will be with us for some time.

Taxation ...

(Continued from page 2)

known that this board exists at the whim of the King.

We pay an Athletics Fee (or is it an Athletic Fee). We understand that there is an athletic counsel (or is it council) that has some voice in this tax, and that the President of the Senate has a voice in this body, but we wonder how loudly he speaks. We know that the football player who spoke to us about our idea to reduce this tax spoke loudly when he said "You want to take away my scholarship?"

Then there is the Health fee. As long as one is quite sick, this is a good fee. And we're all a little sick.

Now, we arrive at the various invisible, insidious fees being imposed upon us by the Powers That Be.

We pay a registration fee, a tax upon our vehicles, and we have no voice in this fee; we pay a hidden insurance fee; we pay a "reasonable" price for books and meals in our Student Union (where the profit goes is a delicate question).

Now, we are being taxed. There is no denying this. We are taxed beyond endurance. And our endurance has ended. Take this as fair warning. SVCC has swelled to two and is still growing. We are the tempest in the teapot, and the tea better be guarded. We will speak out. We will be represented. We are students.

Take this as fair warning. We are the tempest in the teapot, and the tea better be guarded. We will speak out. We will be represented. We are students.

Distinguished ...

(Continued from page 1)

room. On United Nations Day, October 24, Ambassador Khan, President of the General Assembly of the United Iations will present the Keynote Address of United Nations Week. November 18, William L. Shirer, author of The Rise and Fall of the Third Riech," will speak in the Student Union Ballroom.

The Distinguished Visitors Program will participate in the Fine Arts Festival next March with a poetry workshop with Stephen Spender, Karl Shapiro, and another noted poet. On May 14, Sir Julian Huxley will speak in conjunction with Sigma Xi.

Bridge ...

(Continued from col. 1)

Maher-Cook 74 pts.

In the future, games will be organized at 6:45 so that play may begin by 7 p.m. Members and interested parties are urged to arrive early and to bring a partner if possible. The meetings will be over no later than 10 p.m.

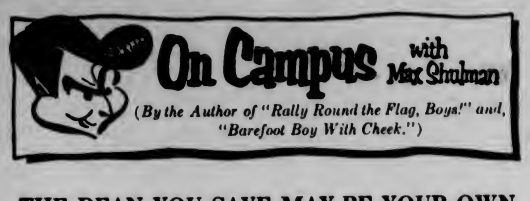
COLLEGIAN INTERVIEW

Program Director Tells All

"Whenever a student committee needs help in organizing an activity—from whom to invite, to where to buy balloons—we are ready to offer our services." In these words, Harold W. Watts summed up his responsibilities as Director of the University Program Office. His job is to provide direction and coordination for programs related to the University if this service is asked for by responsible persons or groups. Under his supervision, the Program Office strives to improve standards in al phases of extra-curricular programs, and to increase the amount and quality of student responsibility. Being as busy as he is in this demanding job, it seems amazing that he still has time to engage in an outside interest.

Mr. Watts' outside interest has resulted in his writing seven pamphlets, and in his aiding in the production of two movies for the Hampshire County Center of the Rural Research Institute. This non-profit organization sponsors research and other activities pertinent to rural living. The pamphlets, of special interest to the rural resident, range in subject from "Right Interiors for Your Rural House" to "How to Stencil a Tray." Three hundred thousand of these pamphlets have been distributed throughout the world. In addition to these, the two movies produced have been seen by more than fifty million people and have even been shown behind the Iron Curtain. The first movies—"A New Life for All of Rural America"—depicts projects that will help develop community activities with planned rural leadership. The second movie — "Community Center RFD"—is a color film showing how to create a happier more united community through rural leadership.

As Mr. Watts stated, "Our purpose is to show people what has been done by others and what can be done by them." Whether it may be in helping a student to organize an affair, or in helping a rural resident to develop his community, Harold Watts performs a valuable service.



THE DEAN YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN

Colleges are complicated and bewildering places, filled with complicated and bewildering people. Today let us examine one of the most complicated and bewildering—yet fetching and lovable—of all campus figures. I refer, of course, to the dean of students.

Policeman and confessor, shepherd and seer, warden and oracle, proconsul and pal—the dean of students is all of these. How, then, can we understand him? Well sir, perhaps the best way is to take an average day in the life of an average dean. Here, for example, is what happened last Thursday to Dean Killjoy N. Damper of the Duluth College of Belles Lettres and Pemmican.

At 6 a.m. he woke, dressed, lit a Marlboro, and went up on the roof of his house to remove the statue of the Founder which had been placed there during the night by high-spirited undergraduates.

Dean, Policeman, Confessor, Shepherd, Seer...etc.

At 7 a.m. he lit a Marlboro and walked briskly to the campus. (The Dean had not been driving his car since it had been placed on the roof of the girls dormitory by high-spirited undergraduates.)

At 7:45 a.m. he arrived on campus, lit a Marlboro and climbed the bell tower to remove his secretary who had been placed there during the night by high-spirited undergraduates.

At 8 a.m. he reached his office, lit a Marlboro, and met with E. Pluribus Ewbank, editor of the student newspaper. Young Ewbank had been writing a series of editorials urging the United States to annex Canada. When the editorials had evoked no response, he had taken matters into his own hands. Accompanied by his society editor and two proofreaders, he had gone over the border and conquered Manitoba. With great patience and several Marlboro Cigarettes, the Dean persuaded young Ewbank to give Manitoba back. Young Ewbank, however, insisted on keeping Winnipeg.

At 9 a.m. the Dean lit a Marlboro and met with Robert Penn Sigafoos, president of the local Sigma Chi chapter, who came to report that the Deke house had been put on top of the Sigma Chi house during the night by high-spirited undergraduates.

At 10 a.m. the Dean lit a Marlboro and went to umpire an intramural softball game on the roof of the law school where the campus baseball diamond had been placed during the night by high-spirited undergraduates.

At 12 noon the Dean had a luncheon meeting with the prexy, the bursar, and the registrar, at the bottom of the campus swimming pool where the faculty dining room had been placed during the night by high-spirited undergraduates. Marlboros were passed after luncheon, but not lighted, owing to dampness.

At 2 p.m., back in his office, the Dean lit a Marlboro and received the Canadian Minister of War who said unless young Ewbank gave back Winnipeg, the Canadian army would march against the U.S. immediately. Young Ewbank was summoned and agreed to give back Winnipeg if he could have Moose Jaw. The Canadian Minister of War at first refused, but finally consented after young Ewbank placed him on the roof of the metallurgy building.

At 3 p.m. the Dean lit a Marlboro and met with a delegation from the student council who came to present him with a set of matched luggage in honor of his fifty years' service as dean of students. The Dean promptly packed the luggage with all his clothing and fled to Utica, New York, where he is now in the aluminum siding game.

© 1963 Max Shulman

* * *

The makers of Marlboro, who sponsor this column, don't claim that Marlboro is the dean of filter cigarettes—but it's sure at the head of the class. Settle back with a Marlboro and see what a lot you get to like!

AFROTC To Form Cadet Glee Club

An Air Force R.O.T.C. Glee Club is currently being formed under the direction of Captain Robert W. Gailey. The glee club, open to all Air Force cadets, will sing at campus functions, Massachusetts high schools, and at Air Force installations throughout the Northeast.

The glee club will sing light, popular music, featuring such selections as "Moon River," and songs from the musicals My Fair Lady and West Side Story. Members will wear the same uniforms as those worn by cadets at the Air Force Academy.

There will be an organizational meeting held in Dickinson Hall on Friday, September 27th at 4:30. Anyone who is interested in joining the glee club but will be unable to attend this meeting should see Captain Gailey sometime this week.

Bowker Becomes River City As Music Man Comes

The Music Man is coming to town! The Operetta Guild, in association with the Opera Workshop will present its fall production—this year one of the best-loved of all American comedies—in Bowker Auditorium Oct. 31, Nov. 1 & 2.

Jack Singer will be starred in this melodic tune-fest recalling small-town life of the 1912 period, that was written—all of it, book, lyrics and music—by Meredith Willson. He will be singing, dancing, and acting the role of "Prof." Harold Hill the disarming swindler who spellbinds gullible townsfolk into starting a brass band, sells them instruments and uniforms, and then skips town without teaching anybody how to play.

The musical's plot tells how this plan misfires in River City, Iowa, because the con-man falls in love with a stand-offish librarian and can't bring himself to leave. Peggy Jones will have this role of Marian the Librarian, and will sing two of the show's most famous song-hits, "Goodnight My Someone" and "My White Knight."

Others in the large cast include Richard Martin (Winthrop Paroo) as Marian's lisping kid brother, who sings the celebrated "Gary, Indiana"; Janet Bilodeau (Mrs. Paroo), as her mother; and David Bachmann (Mayor Shinn) as the town's mayor. The show's quartet will render ditties in Barbershop style that have become almost as famous as "Seventy - Six Trombones" since Music Man became a Broadway smash hit in 1957.

The show ran forty months to become one of the ten most successful musicals in stage history. It won the N. Y. Drama Critic's Circle award as the best musical of the 1957-58 season.

The show's music and choreography will be under the direction of Wayne Lamb. Technical director is Langdon Reynolds; costume mistress is Barbara Martin.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB

Meeting on Thurs., Sept. 26, at 8 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. Members are urged to attend.

Gamma Sigma Sigma Initiates Twelve Pledges

Twelve pledges of Gamma Sigma, Alpha Theta chapter, were initiated Sunday, Sept. 22, in the council chambers of the Student Union.

The ceremony, lighted only by three candles, was very impressive in the darkened room.

Each new sister was presented with a white rose, the official flower of the sorority. The sorority's motto, service, is symbolized by the color of the rose.

The new officers installed during the ceremony were Lois Heselton, 1st Vice President, Sheila Armstrong, 2nd Vice President, Joyce Hanke, Recording Secretary, Helen Symons, Corresponding Secretary, Sue Fijux, Treasurer, Mary Culverhouse, Social Chairman, Linda Ray, Historian, and Ruth Ames, Alumnae Secretary. President Jean Sargent was installed by alumna Linda Lane.

A tea followed for the newly initiated sisters and their guests in the Governors' Lounge. Dr. Helen C. Cullen, advisor to the group, and Alden P. Tuttle, advisor to the men's service fraternity, APO, were present.

Congratulations to the new sisters, Ruth Ames, Sheila Armstrong, Mary Culverhouse, Peggy Dearden, Sue Fijux, Sue Fitzgerald, Gail Greenough, Joyce Hanke, Linda Ray, Terry Stock, Linda Streeter, and Helen Symons.

Plymouth Elects Its Officers

On Monday evening, September 23, Plymouth House held dorm elections to complete its House Council. Following is the list of officers elected:

President — Mort Michelson, '67; Vice-President — Richard Dwyer; Secretary — Paul Wheelock; Treasurer — Jeff Forman; Social Chairman — Don Gouley.

Check Room To Give More Service

by JOAN ST. LAURENT

The S.U. checking room has expanded its services and hours this semester to provide the student with greater protection for clothing and other articles.

Established by the Student Union Governing Board, this new service includes a check out for records for the music room and an information and purchasing center for bus tickets.

Mrs. Martha McDonald, in charge of the check room, has announced that the new hours are from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. There will be a five cent charge until eleven.

six and a ten cent charge until

The same procedure as in past years will be followed on dance nights.

Pioneer Valley Symphony Still Needs Strings

Nathan Gottschalk, conductor of the Pioneer Valley Symphony Orchestra extended an invitation to University violinists as well as performers on other stringed instruments to join rehearsals of the orchestra. The Symphony's first concert will be October 26th in the Greenfield High School auditorium. Rehearsals are held Tuesday evenings in the Community Center in Old Deerfield at 8:00.

Detailed information on the Symphony orchestra and the concert season may be obtained from Mrs. Frederick Ellert (wife of Professor Ellert) on Blue Hills Road. Phone AL 3-5205.

At full strength the orchestra will consist of some 60 instruments. "We are still a little weak in the string section, however," Mr. Gottschalk said.

The initial concert next month will include Mendelsohn's 2nd Symphony (Song of Praise) and Mozart's Concerto in E Flat (k271). In the Mendelsohn Symphony the orchestra will be joined by the 95 voice Pioneer Valley Symphony chorus.

UMass Football Manager's Work Has Little Glory But Much Labor

by JOHN GOODRICH

Mention the position of manager on a football team and an image pops up of a young fellow running onto the playing field with a water pail in hand. Actually, this is only the small part of his job.

This year at the University, head manager Gene Burgin '65, has two assistants, Algirt Valiunas '65, and Charles Bradshaw '66. The jobs these gentlemen have range from shagging footballs in practice to being business manager for away trips.

The manager's hardest job is during the two week pre-season training session when he must be up before seven to wake the players. After eating and taking roll at the morning meal, goes to the field, sets up the tackling dummies and the blocking pads, gets the water, and makes numerous other minor preparations. Then comes the dinner roll call, another meeting, and then a return to the practice field. "Lights out" is at 10:30 for the manager as well as the players. The manager gives up his job for the last two weeks of the summer, and in return he gets training table benefits and enough financial compensation to purchase his books. These privileges are solely for the head manager.

Managers put in about four hours a day when the team is practicing. Besides the task of getting the field ready, the manager must check the footballs and make numerous trips from the field to the locker room for forgotten equipment.

Plans for an away game are made early in the week. In cooperation with Mr. Earl Lorden, assistant director of athletics, the manager makes arrangements for eating and staying over night. He must check to make sure that the incidentals like footballs and the kicking tee are packed. Thursday he goes to the treasurer's office for the money to be used, and in turn makes out a receipt for every cent spent.

The three managers split the work and rotate who will go on the away trips. Head manager Burgin is quick to acknowledge, "The manager's job is easier here than at other large schools because of the fine set up. "The players, coaches, and equipment men all help in the work."

Burgin noted, "At a school like Harvard as many as 15 men apply for the position and elections are held. Everyone wants to be the manager, while here it is hard to get anyone interested."

While the work is often tedious, Burgin notes, "It is a real pleasure to work with such a great bunch of guys, and an excellent experience."

UMass Fraternities Start Touch Football

by DAVE GARBER

Monday night found P.M.D. shoding P.S.D. 13-6 and A.E.P. rolling over A.S.P. 27-7 in the first I.F.C. games of the season.

P.M.D. took an early lead in their game with P.S.D. when Cesarco scored on a pass from Chutoransky for a 6-0 lead in the first half. In the second half P.M.D. increased its lead to 13-0 on a pass play from Chutoransky to Conners and ran for the exta points. P.S.D. then broke into the scoring column on a pass from Don Goye to Dan Kline. The conversion was good and the game ended with the score P.M.D. 13—P.S.D. 7.

A.E.P.'s John Parnell threw 4 TD. passes in a 28-7 win over A.S.P. In the first half, A.E.P. took a 13-0 lead on 2 TD. posses from Parnell to Mike Ross. The second half was much the same with John Parnell completing two more TD. passes to Larry Calovitch and Bart Brass before A.S.P. could cross the goal line. As the game drew to an end, A.S.P. scored on pass from Dan Foye to Don Kline. The final score was 28-7.

Games This Week

7:00 p.m., Wed., T.E.P. vs. B.K.P., K.S. vs. A.T.C.

7:00 p.m., Thurs., P.S.K. vs. S.P.E., Z.N. vs. T.K.E.

Yan Con News

Durham, Sept. 25—The 1963 fall sports season at the University of New Hampshire opens next weekend with both the varsity football and cross country teams in action.

Coach Chief Boston's football team will open at home against Colby on Sept. 28 while Coach Paul Sweet's cross country team will meet Northeastern in Boston.

UNH fans will recall last year's Colby game as one of the all time thrillers. Colby scored twice on runs of 60 and 80 yards and the latter score gave them a 14-11 lead with two and a half minutes left.

But with only 90 seconds to go Lloyd Wells and Dan Serieka connected on a 75 yard pass play to give UNH an 18-14 win.

Scouting a Large Part Of Asst. Coach's Job

by BOB HEALY

Anytime the clicking of the movie projector is heard coming from room 9A of the Cage, it is a safe bet that Redman backfield coach Jack Delaney will be in there viewing the films of either the Redmen or of future Massachusetts opponents.

Jack views these films extensively, running and rerunning individual plays of the teams the Redmen will encounter throughout the season. After he has thoroughly viewed each play, Jack diagrams the play on a 10 by 12 piece of cardboard to show the team in mapping out defenses and offenses.

Monday afternoon Coach Delaney was viewing the films of the Holy Cross-Harvard game. As a result he had a pile of cardboard several inches thick with Harvard plays drawn out. This is just one of the many duties, besides on-the-field-coaching, which backfield Coach Jack Delaney performs so well.

Coach Delaney was a former University of Cincinnati backfield standout during the Sid Gillman era in the early fifties. Like Headcoach Vic Fusia, Jack is beginning his third year on the Massachusetts coaching staff. He also served for two years as a freshman coach and five seasons as offensive backfield coach at his alma mater.

Coach Delaney first attracted attention while playing on the basketball, football, and baseball teams of Columbus Aquinas High School. He entered Cincinnati after eighteen months in the Army. In 1952, his senior year, Delaney averaged almost eight yards per carry while the Bearcats were winning eight games, losing one and tying one. The following spring he captained the baseball squad.

In his coaching days, Jack has had under his tutelage many fine backfield stars. These include: Joe Morrisson, (New York Giants), quarterbacks Jackie Lee (Houston Oilers), John McCormick (Denver Broncos), and last but not least Jerry Whelchel. Of Whelchel Jack says, "At this stage of the game Jerry is on a par with them all."

Thus in his comparatively short coaching career, a fine backfield man has produced other fine backfield men.

Frosh Cross Country Team

by MARSHALL KAROL

The freshman cross country team faces its first test of the season this Saturday against a formidable Coast Guard team. According to Bob Pendleton, who has been aiding Coach Cobb in preparation for this meet, the frosh have an excellent potential and could be one of the best squads in recent years.

Due to tedious academic schedules the squad has not had the opportunity to practice as a complete unit. However, several runners have been quite impressive in limited practice. The most experienced trackman is Steve St. Claire, a holder of several high school records in his native state of New Jersey, who now resides in Brookfield, Mass.

Following closely behind St. Claire will be Charles Mitchell, Mike Duggan, Mike Sheeley, Bill Thomas, Tony Manfredi and the temporarily disabled Terry Carpenter.

A E Pi
Scavenger Hunt

VALUABLE GRAND PRIZE
$25.00

First person to bring in object we seek to AEPi, 136 Sunset Ave., can redeem his find for the prize.

FIRST CLUE

Between Van Meter and the Hatch, don't make haste
But check around for discarded waste.

—Second Clue in Friday's Collegian—

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Redmen Fans Throng Cage For Game Tickets

by STEVE HEWEY

It's been a long time since we've seen so much interest generated in a UMass football game as the interest that has been aroused by the UM-Harvard tilt scheduled for Harvard Stadium this Saturday. The question most asked around campus the few days is, "Are you going to the Harvard game Saturday?" Judging by the ticket sales at the Physical Education Building this past week, the answer has been almost always "Yes." More than 2800 tickets were sent to U.M. for sale to students and other interested parties. As this story is being scribbled there remain a scant couple of hundred for last minute aficionados. Besides the number of students that will leave the Redmen reservation Saturday for Cambridge, there will surely be scores of UM alumni in the Boston area who will come to see their alma mater perform. Then interest may be further stirred when we recall that the Redmen rolled over the Crimson 27-12, their last trip to town.

The Redmen were scrutinized through the eyes of six Harvard coaches who attended the UMass-Maine game last weekend. They said they were impressed at the almost equal potency of the Red and Blue teams that Vic Fusia threw against Maine. They didn't comment on the Redmen pass defenses which allowed Maine to connect on 16 of its 24 passes. Although the Redmen will toil to plug the air gaps before Saturday the Harvard brass won't neglect what it saw. The Crimson will be sure to test the defenses again this week.

MIKE BASSETT, Harvard Quarterback, will be a prime target of Redmen defenders next Saturday.

Fusia Uses Merit Awards To Give Incentive To Team

The imaginative Redmen football coach, Vic Fusia, has instituted another innovation to determine standout defensive playing by the members of the team. Fusia has devised a Redman Club, based on outstanding performance of personal initiative. There are categories in which a player can receive a maroon letter, which is painted on the front of his helmet. If the cycle is completed more then once a star will be painted over the word Redman.

The categories are: intercept a pass; return an interception for a touchdown (one letter plus a bonus); recover a fumble and UMass recovers; make a tackle inside the 20-yard line on a kickoff; make a tackle for a safety; tackle an opponent for a 10-yard loss, or more (one letter plus a bonus); block a punt, extra point or field goal; return a punt or kickoff for a touchdown (one letter plus a bonus); make three unassisted tackles in a game; extra effort on any defensive play. Three bonus points will make one letter.

(Continued on page 4)

Cleopatra, with feminine guile,
Said to Tony, "Let's barge down the Nile!"
When she reached for an asp,
Her belt lost its clasp,
So she stapled it up Swingline style.

SWINGLINE
STAPLER

98c
(including 1000 staples)
Larger size CUB Desk
Stapler only $1.49

No bigger than a pack of gum
- Unconditionally guaranteed!
- Refills available anywhere!
- Get it at any stationery, variety, or book store!
- Send in your own Swingline Fable Prizes for those used

Swingline INC. LONG ISLAND CITY 1, N. Y.

CROSS COUNTRY

Cross Country Team Starts Season Against Coast Guard This Saturday

by GENE COLBURN

The varsity cross country team will open its 1963 season in Connecticut, on Saturday, when it opposes the Coast Guard Academy. This meet should not be too hard for the Redmen to win as the Coast Guard usually does not have a very strong team. Saturday will be important, though, as it will give an indicator as to how close the Redmen will be running. Cross-country is scored by adding up the places that the first five men on each team gets, with the low score winning. A team that takes the first five places in a meet would have a score of 15. The sixth and seventh men on a team serve to displace competitors, although their finishes are not added into the team score.

Thus it can be seen why it would be important for a team to have as little space as possible between its runners. For a team to capture first place then have the next man take fifteenth place would make it hard to win many meets. With "Digger" Brouillet a certain finisher in the top three positions in almost any meet, the Redmen's big problem will be to get the other six boys to finish as close behind him as possible. Right now it appears that the spread is going to be somewhere over a minute, which

(Continued on page 4)

Redmen Rambling

UMass set a new record in its game with Maine. In holding the Bear's running game to minus 46 yards, the Fusiamen eclipsed the old record of seven yards set against AIC in 1961.

Massachusetts center Charley Scialdone was selected Monday for the first weekly all East team by the Eastern College Athletic Conference. Navy's Roger Staubach won quarterback honors on the club.

Two former high school cocaptains will meet as rivals Saturday afternoon with Harvard's announcement that sophomore Wally Grant will start. Just two seasons ago Harvard's Grant and UMass soph Bob Ellis were cocaptains for Beverly High.

Tickets for the Harvard game are still on sale in Room 10A of the Cage. Over 2800, tickets have been sold to date and the supply is going fast.

If you can't make the trip to Harvard Saturday, the game will be broadcast live over WMUA at 1:55 by Bob Healy, Joe Kwiecinski, and Barry Morse.

CAR FOR SALE
1962 Volkswagen Sedan
Ex. Cond., Shoulder Seat Belts. Asking $1500. Need larger car for growing family. Call Mr. McDaniel, AL 3-5530.

LACROSSE MEETING

There will be a meeting for all interested lacrosse candidates on Thursday, Sept. 26 at 4:30 p.m. in Room 10 of the Cage.

LIBRARY

– Beat Harvard –

LIBRARY
OCT 8 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 6 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1963

Lederle Stresses Service

—Photo by Andi Brauchemin

ROBED FACULTY and students made up the majority of the audience at the Convocation.

Co-operation Replaces Antagonism

The greatest challenge of the University is to produce "the living student, the type of student who will actively participate in public service," declared President John W. Lederle in this year's Opening Convocation Address.

The Opening Convocation, held Thursday morning at 11:15 in the S.U. Ballroom was attended by some 200 students and guests. After the academic Procession and Invocation, Provost Woodside presented the Outstanding Teacher's Award of 1963 to Joseph R. Richason, Associate Professor of Chemistry.

Following the award presentation, Student Senate President Jon Fife remarked that the atmosphere of student antagonism towards the administration has been replaced by one of co-operation. However, Fife expressed disappointment in the lack of students at the convocation.

"There is no doubt," began President Lederle, "that the University is rapidly becoming the enthusiastic first choice of students in the Commonwealth."

Lederle went on to describe the astonishing progress the University has made since its founding. He noted that currently there are almost 1000 courses offered on the UMass curriculum and 90 major buildings on campus or in the vicinity.

—Photo by Andi Brauchemin

PRESIDENT JOHN LEDERLE commented on the astonishing growth of the University.

Addressing himself to the student body, the President said, "You are not here to beat the system." "To beat the system," he warned, "is to beat yourself, to cheat yourself of an education."

To prevent such academic crippling, the President urged students to exercise their conscience and individuality through open discussion of campus problems.

"The quality of a University can be judged by the talking that goes on its campus," he said.

(Continued on page 6)

UMass Coed Removed To Boston Hospital

A UMass freshman, suffering from a rare infection known as gas gangrene, underwent surgery yesterday morning in the giant pressure chamber where President's Kennedy's son underwent treatment.

Seventeen-year-old Sandra Olson, of Worcester, living at Mary Lyon House, was removed from the chamber at Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston after the operation. Contacted by the Collegian, hospital officials said Miss Olson is in serious condition, with a slight improvement since this morning.

SANDRA OLSEN

It marked the first time in medical history that the pressure chamber had been used for this kind of surgery, hospital officials said. Gas gangrene spreads in tissues in which there is a lack of Oxygen. Doctors said that the Hyperbaric Chamber forced Oxygen into Miss Olson's system at three times atmospheric pressure to attack bacilli causing the infection. Officials said the bacilli failed to respond to previous medication.

Miss Olson contracted the infection following an operation last week for a ruptured appendix at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton. Miss Olson's condition worsened. Wednesday's 90-mile trip to Boston was made in hopes that the pressure chamber can save her life.

According to a University spokesman, Sandra Lee went to the University infirmary last

(Continued on page 6)

Court Fines UM Student For Drinking

by Harold A. Gushue, Jr. '65

C. Melvern Fillmore, 20, of Norwood, a University of Massachusetts junior, living at Zeta Nu, was fined $50 in District Court this morning for falsifying his age to purchase liquor. Amherst police apprehended Fillmore drinking beer, on Sept. 14 at the West View Cafe.

Police said that Fillmore had changed the birth date on his I.D. card from Dec. 6, 1942 to Feb. 6, 1942. Fillmore pleaded nolo. As Fillmore was leaving court, Judge Ryan warned, "Tell your friends at the University that $50 will be the standard fine for this offense from now on."

Senate Passes Bill To Improve Working

The Senate, temporarily assuming the role of a cleaning-woman, held a convention Wednesday night designed to eliminate some flaws in the Student Government Association Constitution.

The proposed amendments to the Constitution, representing months of preparation, were given due consideration by the Senate. After some deliberation and elucidative debate, they were acted upon favorably.

The majority of the amendments, reports Senate President Jon Fife, do not concern so much the structure of the Student Government as the internal workings. Two items of major importance are those allowing for a proper allocation of Senate seats, and establishing in writing the President of the Senate as the official representative of the student body. It should be noted that this function has been performed by Senate Presidents in the past.

These changes, according to Senate President Jon Fife, ". . . will serve to clear out the cobwebs and roadblocks within the Government Association Constitution, and to expedite the functions and processes of our Student Government to bring about a more efficient, and effective, legislative machine.

A $23 appropriation order set off a round of firey debate at Wednesday night's meeting.

The debate was set off when the Senate resolved itself into a committee of the whole to discuss a request of the Commuters' Club for a $23 appropriation to sent a delegate to SWAP.

The floor fight began when some Senators voiced the opinion that the appropriation would be "a bad precedent." They were challenged by representatives of

(Continued on page 6)

MOTORCADE

James Medeiros, President of the Class of '64, stated that it has become apparent that the majority of students going to the Harvard game have such diverse plans, especially as regards time of departure, that it is impossible to successfully organize a motorcade, as had been anticipated

Nevertheless, it is hoped that everyone will get to the stadium with little trouble.

HIGH HOLIDAYS

Students planning religious observance of Yom Kippur with their families or on campus should make appropriate arrangements with their instructors for the necessary class absences.

Freshman

by JAMES CORTESE

It is the fate of every incoming freshman to stand in line to the Convocation ceremonies, and subsequently, to wait in line before he receives his diploma. In the meantime there is the bookstore line, the Hatch line, the cafeteria line, the telephone line, and the head line. A student finds that about 5% of his time must be spent waiting for one thing or another. What is the University's answer to this problem? The Anti-Boredom Survival Kit. This portable package contains all the necessary equipment to keep any student alive in even the longest lines.

A kit includes: (1) two eyelid jacks to keep sleepy eyelids open; (2) a battery operated phonograph (and earphones) that plays selected passages from the Student Handbook.

What is the University's purpose in allowing such situations to exist on campus? For one thing, the administration has deliberately pursued this Long Line Policy in order to support the already large student body. While half the students are tied up in some line, the other half can go about the process of being educated.

But the question is: is it better for many to be ill-schooled, or few to be well educated?

AN EARLY DEADLINE

Criticism galore has been branded against the ambiguous term, administration. Unfortunately there are few who understand the meaning of the word and completely comprehend its functioning and meaning. But from its depths there has formulated an idea which is to help students cope with the size of the University. Specifically the idea emanates from the Guidance office under the direction of Dr. Southworth. The program involves small groups of freshmen meeting under the guidance of an upperclassman.

The University is a huge institution. As a student progresses in his college career it becomes smaller. But it is never so incomprehensible and sprawling as the first semester of the freshman year. The opportunity to be able to enter a small co-ed group discussing perhaps "faith and the college campus" or "values and mortality" or "dating" or "studying" offers much to any student lost in the complexity of our University.

Never can anyone say, "The University is a factory" or "I'm just a number." For here is a chance where upperclassmen will be leading discussion about ideas that are connected with you. It will be diffiicult for people to say "No one cares about me" for some one does. The freshmen of the class of '67 are very lucky. They have an opportunity to "acquire early in their college career a deepened appreciation for the intellectual opportunities of a University, and to search for their personal educational and vocational goals with upperclassmen guiding, as Dr. Southworth has so well put it.

G.M.M.

Numbered Seats

by JOE DOLAN

A freshman arriving on this campus is subjected to a flood of advice, admonitions, and things to remember. Outstanding among these is the old saying: "Now you are on your own, no one is going to tell you what to do, if you want to stay here you'll have to do it on your own." This is all well and good. The University is a place to grow up.

But it seems that this is not the way it is. A freshman will go to his first class and find that attendance is taken, just as in high school. He is told that he can miss a certain number of classes, and after that his grade will be lowered for not attending.

This practice of lowering grades because of cut classes is completely wrong in itself because it is misleading. A person who looks at a student's record expects to find how much the student has learned about a certain subject. If the record shows a "C" grade in a course the reader can only assume that the student knows an average amount about that subject. But what if that grade was lowered from "C" to "D" because of missed classes? The student still knows "C" amount of subject material, but the record has been made purposely incorrect and the reader is therefore misinformed.

What reason, then, for compulsory attendance? The roll callers say it keeps people in the class who wouldn't otherwise be there. Is this a good thing in itself? Why should those people be there if they don't want to be? A person in college is supposed to do it on his own. Why not give him a chance to?

Human Beings Chose This

THEY VOTED FOR THIS

by JOHN B. CHILDS

The role was called . . . the vote came . . . 80 for, and 19 against. With this margin the United States Senate voted "yes" for the test ban treaty.

The arguments still existed for and against ratification. The piles of statistics and other facts both pro and con are now on record.

However let us not forget that awesome subject which all those facts are concerned with. Let us not forget the naked brutal force of the nuclear explosion. Look at the photograph above. This is what the 19 voted for when they voted against the test ban treaty.

Those who voted for this awesome power of the nuclear deaths-head have placed their names at the foundations on which this deaths-head rises. Their names are the building blocks, regard and note them well—Bennett of Utah, the Byrds of Virginia and West Virginia, Curtis of Nebraska, Eastland of Mississippi, Goldwater of Arizona, Jordan of Idaho, Lausche from Ohio, Long of Louisiana, McClellan of Arkansas, Mechem of New Mexico, Robertson of Virginia, Russell of Georgia, Simpson of Wyoming, Smith of Maine, Stennis of Mississippi, Talmadge of Georgia, Thurmond of South Carolina, and Tower of Texas.

After these names belongs an "A", indicative of those Advocates of Atomic destruction, whatever their role is now in the United States, whatever their roles may be in the future, that "A" is attached to them.

Remember these 19 and look at the photograph of the nuclear explosion and think of what is represented therein. Remember, they voted for this.

A Southern Editor Speaks

A Negro mother wept in the streets Sunday morning in front of a Baptist church in Birmingham. In her hand she held a shoe from the foot of her dead child.

We held that shoe with her.

Everyone of us in the white South holds that small shoe in his hand.

It is too late to blame the sick criminals who handled the dynamite. The FBI and the police can deal with that kind.

The charge against them is simple. They killed four children.

Only we can trace the truth, Southerner—you and I. We broke those children's bodies.

We watched the stage set without staying it; we listened to the prologue undisturbed.

We saw the curtain opening with disinterest.

We have heard the plea.

We—who go on electing politicians who heat the kettles of hate.

We—who raise no hand to silence the mean and little men who have their "nigger" jokes.

We—who stand aside in imagined rectitude and let the mad dogs that run in every society slide their leashes from our hands and spring.

We—the heirs of the proud South who protest its worth and demand its recognition—we are the ones who have ducked the difficult, skirted the uncomfortable, caviled at the challenge, resented the necessary, rationalized the unacceptable and created the day surely when these children would die.

• • •

This is no time to load our anguish onto the murderous scapegoat who set the dynamite of our own manufacture.

He didn't know any better.

Somewhere in the dim and fevered recess of an evil mind he feels right now that he has been a hero.

He is only guilty of murder. He thinks he has pleased us.

We of the white South who know better are the ones who must take a harsher judgment.

We, who know better, created a climate for child killing by those who don't.

We hold that shoe in our hand, Southerner, let us see it straight, and look at the blood on it.

Let us compare it with the unworthy speeches of Southern public men who have traduced the Negro; match it with the spectacle of shrilling students whose parents and teachers turn them free to spit epithets at small huddles of Negro children for a week before this Sunday in Birmingham.

• • •

Hold up the shoe and look beyond it to the State House at Montgomery, where the official attitudes of Alabama have been spoken in heat and anger.

Let us not lay the blame on some brutal fool who didn't know any better.

We know better.

We created the day, we bear the judgment.

May God have mercy on the poor South that has been so led.

May what has happened hasten the day when the good South, which does live and have great being, will rise to this challenge of racial understanding and common humanity in the full power of its unasserted courage.

The Sunday school play at Birmignham is ended.

With a weeping Negro mother, we stand in the bitter smoke and hold a shoe.

If our South is ever to be what we wish it to be, we will plant a flower of nobler resolve for the South now upon these four small graves that we dug.

—Eugene Patterson, Editor,
in The Atlanta Constitution
Copyright Christian Science Monitor

An Open Letter to the Editor:

The above editorial, which appeared in the Christian Science Monitor last Friday, offers one of the first clear voices of regret from the white South in our decade. It represents the change of attitude in a hitherto implacable stand which most of us have long awaited. I submit it to the Collegian in order that our college community will not be unaware of this important budding movement; but of even greater importance is the recognition that we in the North fully share Southern guilt. In this brotherhood of shame let us not hesitate to face the truth squarely, ask the forgiveness of those whom we have wronged, and seek to find again our basic humanity. May we all, as Americans rather than as Northerners or Southerners, have the courage of Mr. Patterson to walk boldly, confidently into the light of truth—that light which detects neither white nor black but only the intentions of the heart.

Cari Clark 66

Dr. George M. Richason Named "Teacher of Year"

A chemistry professor was awarded the second annual "Distinguished Teacher of the Year" award at the all-university convocation opening this morning.

George M. Richason, associate professor of chemistry, was chosen for the award by his colleagues on the faculty.

A graduate of UMass, class of 1937, Prof. Richason also received his master's degree at the State University and then did further graduate work at Bowdoin Collese, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Clark University. Prof. Richason has been a member of the UMass faculty since 1947.

The award for distinguished teaching was made for the first time last year at the opening convocation of the University's Centennial Year. The special tribute to good teaching at UMass was made possible by a husband-wife team of physicians from California who had no formal ties with the University.

Dr. Clifford B. Cherry and Dr. Kathryn T. Cherry established the award as a special contribution to the University's Centennial celebration. The Cherry's only tie with UMass has been through a friend, Miss Victoria Schuck, a member of the UMass Board of Trustees and a professor at Mount Holyoke College.

The cash award last year and again this year was matched by the UMass board of trustees. Although Mrs. Cherry died last spring in a tragic automobile accident, Dr. Clifford Cherry has continued the award.

Prof. Richason was chosen the distinguished teacher by a faculty committee which set up the criteria for selection. The first winner of the Cherry Award for Distinguished Teaching was William H. Ross, Professor of Physics, the 1962 recipient.

Danforth Graduate Fellowships

Inquiries about Danforth Graduate Fellowships for careers in college teaching are invited, Dr. John T. Conlon, Assistant Dean, School of Business Administration, 227 Draper Hall, announced today.

The fellowships, offered by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri, are open to male college seniors or recent graduates preparing for a career of teaching, counseling, or administrative work at the college level. Applicants may be planning to major in any field of study common to the undergraduate liberal arts and sciences curriculum, at the American graduate school of their choice, but may not have already undertaken graduate work. Nominations close October 25, 1963.

Approximately 100 fellowships will be awarded to outstanding candidates nominated by Liaison Officers of accredited colleges and universities in the United States this year. Nominees will be judged on intellectual promise and personality, integrity, genuine interest in religion, and high potential for effective college teaching.

Winners will be eligible for up to four years of financial assistance, with an annual maximum of $1500 for single men and $2000 for married men plus dependency allowances for up to three children, and tuition and fees. Students without financial needs also are invited to apply.

WHAT'S NEW IN THE OCTOBER ATLANTIC?

"Speed and]Women": While convalescing from his accident, Stirling Moss, legendary racing driver, spent many hours with Ken W. Purdy. In this exciting Atlantic Extra, the two talk about some of the fears, problems and temptations that beset a racer.

ALSO

Vance Packard: Mr. Packard foresees a dramatic improvement in TV fare due to new cable TV, pay TV, tape TV to buy or rent, and other new techniques.

"Britain's Policy if Labour Wins": Labor Party leader Harold Wilson tells what Britain's new foreign policy would be under a Labor Prime Minister.

Poetry: by Robert Graves, Theodore Roethke, Stanley Kunitz.

"Saying What One Means": Freya Stark tells why accuracy of language is the basis for any writing style.

Month in and month out The Atlantic's editors seek out exciting expressions of new and provocative ideas. And whether these expressions take the form of prose or poetry, fact or fiction, they always attain a remarkably high level of academic value and literary interest. Make room in your life for The Atlantic. Get a copy today.

ON SALE NOW

—LOST & FOUND—

LOST: A Chemistry I notebook has been lost in Goessman Lab. Would the finder please return it to or call Harvy Stone, 221 Wheeler.

LOST: A small gold cross on chain. Finder should return to Carol Hermsdorf, 320 Knowlton.

LOST: A loden green reversible parker—left in the Hatch on Mon., Sept. 16. Please return to Karen Cratts at Mary Lyon.

LOST: Protter & Horreg: Calculus and Analytic Geometry. Please return to Judy Glavin, 203 Van Meter So.

LOST: Would the person who borrowed a 1956 Cadillac engine from a car parked in the Woman's Quad please notify the Collegian office.

FOUND: by Mills House at 1:54 a.m. Mon.: two pumpkins. Tough luck Brett House!

FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

SEND DIRECT by WIRE

Knowles Flower Shop

Amherst

UMASS MARCHING BAND TO PRESENT SPECTACLE AT HARVARD STADIUM

The University of Massachusetts Athletic Department announced today, that the U. of M. Marshing Band will present a fast-paced, newly designed show in its first appearance of the 1963 football season. The program and halftime shows by the band and precisionettes drill team will be viewed in the Harvard Stadium, Saturday, by a crowd estimated at 25,000.

John A. Jenkins, recently appointed Conductor of Bands and Assistant Professor of Music at the University, is former solo cornetist with the University of Michigan Marching Band, a marching unit which is recognized nationally for its exciting gridiron performances.

Accordng to University officials, the University of Massachusetts Marching Band is taking immediate action this year, to produce for gridiron crowds in the East, the type of band show that has become an important part of the Big Ten football, Saturday. The U. of M. Band's show at the Harvard game, billed as "High Lights in Hi Fi," will feature a combination of high stepping marching and specially written arrangements depicting the history of high fidelity.

During the pregame festivities, the band will introduce recently commissioned arrangements of the University of Massachusetts Alma Mater, When Twilight Shadows Deepen, and the fight son, Fight Massachusetts. The band and precisionettes will be commanded on the field by Drum Major Bruce Cutter, a sophomore at the University from Milford, Mass.

Financial Aid For SNCC Field Secretaries Denied

Americus, Georgia (CPS) — A hearing for three workers from the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) who are being held without bail on charges of attempting to incite insurrection is expected within five days.

Albany attorney C. B. King filed a motion seeking the release of Ralph Allen of Melrose, Massachusetts, Donald Harris of New York city, and John Perdew of Denver, Colorado. The three have been held since August 8 without bail.

Perdews case was brought to the attention of Attorney General Robert Kennedy by Congressman Aliott, Dominick and Rogers, all of Colorado. They have asked the Justice Department to investigate the charges against Perdew.

SNCC has charged that the conditions in Americus' jails are "incredible." The Committee recently produced photographs of jail conditions in the Leesburg stockade where "as many as 36 young girls were kept in a single room with no beds, no mattresses, no sheets, no pillows, and no blankets."

The young girls, two who are 11 years old, told of the overflowing toilets and that they had to use cardboard boxes to take care of waste materials. Those in jail are fed four stale, half-cooked hamburgers once a day.

In other action, the SNCC wanted the National Student Congress to commit itself to directly financing six SNCC field secretaries.

This action never materialized. Neither did several other courses of action desired by the left.

The attitude of most delegates seemed to be that the left wanted too much. Many delegates were willing to condemn the police action and brutality that occurred in Americus, Georgia, but financing another SNCC secretary was more than they could take. In fact, several delegates were unwilling to believe that police brutality was a phenomena in the South until National Affairs Vice-President Timothy Manring documented the charges in the text of a phone conversation with Americus attorney C. B. King.

Why was there little action when the plenary was willing to condemn the Americus situation? An almost total breakdown in the floor leadership of the left is a partial explanation. A reticence on the part of most delegates to commit the association to any one particular course of action was another reason.

Perhaps the most important reason was the general atmosphere of the congress itself. Throughout the proceedings most of the attention was given to parliamentary maneuvering, dilatory questioning, irrelevant amendments and last ditch attempts to achieve changes that had been defeated at earlier times. The only real victory that can be claimed by the left is the revised basic policy declaration on National Security and Civil Liberties.

Student Activities Night

The annual Student Aetivities Night will be presented by the Revelers on Tuesday, October 1 from 7 to 9 P.M. in the S.U. Balroom. The program is designed to serve as an introduction of campus extracurricular activities to the Freshman Class.

All campus organizations — service, scholastic, religious, and specific interest groups are invited to participate with an appropriate display. The evening allows the Freshmen ample opportunity to realize the wide variation of interest groups available to them on our campus. It aiso provides an excelient opportunity for the organizations to recruit new members.

The Revelers urge each Freshman to take part in this interesting and profitable program.

CLUB DIRECTORY

CANTERBURY ASSOCIATION
There will be an "Autumn Leaves" Grinder party and dance on Sunday, Sept. 29, from 6-10 p.m. at the Grace Church Parish House. Everyone welcome.

EDWARDS FELLOWSHIP
Meeting on Sun., Sept. 29, at 6:30 p.m. at the First Congregational Church. The Birmingham crisis will be discussed. Rides leave Hills and Arnold at 6:15 p.m.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB
There will be a coffee hour on Tues., Oct. 1, at 5 p.m. in the Governor's Lounge of the S.U.

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
Meeting on Fri., Sept. 27, at 7 p.m. in the S.U.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Supper meeting on Sun., Sept. 29, at 6 p.m. Rides leave Arnold dorm at 5:50 p.m.

WESLEY FOUNDATION
Meeting on Sun., Sept. 29, with supper at 6 p.m. for 50¢, and a program at 7 p.m., featuring a discussion of opportunities for social action. At Wesley Methodist Church.

YD's Favor Vietnam Withdrawal

San Diego, California (CPS)— After a two day convention, the California Young Democrats went on record in favor of American withdrawal from South Vietnam, admission of Red China to the United Nations, and more federal intervention in civil rights action in the South.

The Young Democrats, however, refused to investigate sending a delegation to Cuba next summer "to determine the truth about Cuba." Many of the resolutions adopted at the Convention were critical of the Kennedy administration.

California Governor Edmund G. Brown refused to speak out against the Young Democrats despite pressure from the GOP.

"Young Democrats don't speak for me and I disagree on a great many of their resolutions," Brown said in defending their right to speak. Brown said the YD's represent a rather extreme point of view and are part of a small minority.

Republican pressure came from California Republican Chairman Caspar Weinberger who accused the YD's of favoring "dangerously irresponsible policies."

Joseph Martin Jr., Republican national committeeman, called on the governor to repudiate the views of the group which Brown refused to do.

AEPi CLUE No. 2

Finding this could be quite a chore
But check the Union second floor.

First of Three Articles

The Future Of The Peace Corps

by ROY EBERT

(Editor's Note: Mr. Ebert, president of the United States Student Press Association and editor of The Daily Illini, was one of four editors to spend one week in Washington recently to edit the Peace Corps News, a supplement to campus news papers that appears twice yearly. This is the first of a three part article.)

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS)—The fundamental question facing the Peace Corps at the start of its third year, according to Director R. Sargent Shriver, can be stated simply:

"As young Americans realize how unglamorous and unromantic the work of developing nations can be, will they be tricked into believing it is also unimportant?"

This was the problem as Shriver outlined it at two major student meetings in August; the National Student Congress of the United States National Student Association, and the convention of the National Federation of Catholic College Students.

It is also a problem which gains increasing attention in the Peace Corps Washington offices as returning Volunteers report that their greatest adversaries in the field were boredom, loneliness, and a sense of futility.

"Americans are loath to take things slowly, and Peace Corps Volunteers are no exception," Shriver said in a September interview with CPS.

"We're all used to quick results, and we forget that most societies around the world are moving at a walk. It takes longer to achieve results, and make them stick. This is one of the things you can't really demonstrate during the Peace Corps training periods. It has to be learned in the field."

Shriver said any progress, regardless of how little, is often more than some project areas have been previously. "Volunteers may be disappointed, so to speak, because in two years they had succeeded only in moving the ball from the 50-yard line to the 49-yard line," Shriver said. "Too often they forget that it may be the first time the ball has moved at all in a particular society.

"The test of the Peace Corps," he said, "will be whether we are mature and sophisticated enough to realize this."

The Peace Corps director pointed out, however, that young, creative Volunteers often have an edge on the experts in underdeveloped societies. When the Corps was being launched, he recalled, one of the most frequent questions was: How can Volunteers accomplish anything in areas where experts have tried and failed?

"We are now finding," Shriver said, "that in many of these areas our young, adaptable Volunteers are gaining better results than the experts—and for an almost obvious reason. The experts require backing, support, assistance, and equipment, and then—more often than not—they discover that the society simply does not respond to expert procedures. Our Volunteers, on the other hand, go into an area and work with the tools at hand. They adapt to a situation. And most importantly, they work and live with the people, gaining their confidence and cooperation."

Shriver and other top Peace Corps officers are confident that the initial enthusiastic response to the Peace Corps idea will not lessen as the Corps loses its first glow of romanticism.

"The bloom is off the rose," Shriver said, "and there's no longer the thrill of being the first Volunteer in many areas. But the second—or the tenth—wave of Volunteers will find their work cut out for them, and will often find themselves in a position to achieve more meaningful results because of the groundwork of the pioneer Volunteers.

"The job of a Volunteer today is, in a way, more difficult than it was two years ago," he said. "The first Volunteers could afford to make mistakes; now the situation is different. Yet there is a greater potential for success, and I have confidence that the achievements of the Peace Corps in the coming years will justify the sacrifices and hopes of the first two."

(First of three articles. Next: A realistic look at the volunteer.)

For Freshmen Only

Freshman, and this means you. Beginning next week you will be able to sign up for a seminar dealing with college goals and college life. An upperclassman will be leading a small group of eight to ten students as they explore some aspect of their own choosing. Each group will meet once a week for six weeks. The groups will be informal and have a wide range of possible settings. They will probably meet in dormitories. They may attend a concert together or invite a professor to join in their discussion experience.

A major goal will be to help students acquire early in their college career a deepened appreciation for the intellectual opportunities of a University. The leaders hope to stimulate students to search for their personal educational and vocational goals in a very active fashion.

This is an opportunity unique at the University.

Freshman will be able to sign up for a seminar next week. Details will appear on the bulletin boards early next week.

For freshmen who are concerned about their own development and the type of life they wish to lead, for those who feel a sense of alienation and isolation, for those who just wish to sit down and discuss with their peers, the opportunity is now open. All are invited to sign up.

Commons Improves Atmosphere

The perrenial and longtime complaint of the University Dining Halls, its food, its atmosphere and its attitudes can this year become a thing of the past. The changes which students have always stated in general terms can now be made specific and acted upon. It is possible now, where it was not possible before, due to the existence of a group of students to be known and recognized as dining hall counselors who have been selected by the offices of the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women.

The system is a very simple one, and yet very important if the changes wanted are to take place. These counselors will be available both during the evening meal in the dining halls and in their respective residence halls for students suggestions relating to either food, operation or atmosphere of the dining facilities.

This program is an experiment now. It can work if it does not suffer from a malnutrition of ideas and a malingering of effort. The results are in the hands of each individual student. This semester in the dining halls the students can write their tickets to an improved university.

Butterfield Cafeteria
Jerome E. Robbins '64
Joseph W. Lipchitz, Grad.
Sandra Carlson '64
Halina Lewantowicz '65
Patricia Prenguber '65
Joan Schoppe '65
Paul Dexter '64
David Kosta '65

Greenough Cafeteria
Vincent Deandrea, Grad.
William Wilkenson '65
Martha Graves '65
Susan Mollison '64
Dalia Palubeckas '65
Diane Smith '65
William T. Berry '65
Charles Souza '65

The Dining Commons
Harry Gafney '65
David Chiras '64
John Campanale, Grad.
Charles Fohlin, Grad.
Gilbert Rogers '64
Daniel Young, Grad.
Paul Perens '65
Kurt Behrendt '64
Richard Swamson '64
Linda Streeter '64
Cornelia Jandris '65
Nancy Fuller '65
Eleanor Kautzman '65
Andrea Carr '65
Ruth Goran '64
Sandra Borg '64
Bonnie Haggerty '66
Mary Lou Hummer '66
Ann Mullin '64
Joan Kessler '65

NOTICES

GYMNASTIC TEAMS

There will be a meeting of the Freshmen and Varsity Gymnastic teams in room 14 of the Physical Education Building at 5:45 p.m., Mon., Sept. 30, 1963. Tryouts will also be held for those interested.

MUSIGAL RECORDS

Musigal records are now on sale in the bookstore—$2.98.

NEWMAN CLUB DANCE

A dance will be held at the Newman Center tonight at 8 p.m. Music will be provided by Don Tepper and his band. Admission will be 50¢ for non-members.

NAIADS

There will be tryouts at the Woman's Phys. Ed. Pool at the following times:

Wed., Oct. 2—6:30 to 7:30 p.m.
Thurs., Oct. 3—6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Optional practice:

Mon., Sept. 30—6:30-7:30
Tues., Oct. 1, 6:30 to 7:30

STOSO DANCE

STOSO will sponsor a dance tonight at 8 p.m. in the S.U. Admission will be 50¢.

TAU EPSILON PHI

On page 138 of the Handbook the telephone number for Mrs. Bethschieder should read 6-6624, and NOT as printed.

YOM KIPPUR SERVICES

Kol Nidre services will be held this evening at Bartlett Aud. at 6:30 sharp. Tomorrow morning, Yom Kippur services will begin at 9:30 in the Council Chambers of the S.U.

AMHERST FRIENDS

Race relations and the Quaker attitude toward them will be the topic of discussion at the Sunday meeting of the Amherst Friends. A car marked "Friends Meeting" will be in front of the S.U. at 10 a.m. to carry non-hikers.

BIKE AUCTION

There will be a bike auction on the South Terrace of the S.U. October 1 at 5 p.m. All bikes that have been unclaimed for over a year will be auctioned off. If your bike is missing it would be advisable to check the Campus Security Officers.

CAESURA

Deadline for Caesura manuscripts is Wed., Oct. 16. All manscripts may be left in box 104 in the R.S.O. Office.

COMMUTER DANCE

The N.R.S.A. is sponsoring a dance this Saturday at the Farley 4-H building from 8 to 12 p.m. No admission will be charged and all commuters are welcome.

D.V.P. APPLICANTS

Distinguished Visitors Program Committee applications for the class of '66 are available in the R.S.O. Office Mon. through Fri. There will be a coffee hour Sun., Sept. 29, in the Governors Lounge of the S.U.

FRESHMEN

Beanies again become mandatory Monday, Sept. 31 and must be worn until UMass scores their first touchdown of the Bucknell game. No admission to the game for Freshmen without beanies.

High School Seniors Visit UM

A group of approximately 500 Bay State high school students will arrive at the University on Saturday, Sept. 28, for the first of four of the traditional High School Guest Days.

Students from high schools in Worcester, Barnstable, Duke, Nantucket and Plymouth counties will be in the first group to visit campus.

Other groups from other parts of the state are scheduled to attend programs on Oct. 5, Oct. 26 and Nov. 2.

Each of the four high school guest days will follow the same pattern. A general orientation session at 10 a.m. will be followed by a discussion of admissions requirements, the role of the University in general, and answers to individual questions on the University's undergraduate curricula.

Representatives of the various colleges, schools and departments of the University will be on hand to discuss specific programs.

In the afternoon, laboratories, classrooms, residences and student facilities will be open for the visitors' inspection. Visitors will also be given passes to varsity athletic events.

The guest day program is intended to introduce students—particularly high school seniors—to the opportunities available at the University. Principals, guidance counselors and parents are all encouraged to attend the sessions.

Welcome Freshmen & Upperclassmen
VISIT US FOR ALL YOUR COLLEGE NEEDS

For that Harvard Game tomorrow
PENDLETON "MASSACHUSETTS" ROBE in a Bag — 100% Virgin Wool — $17.95

"MASSACHUSETTS" Men's Reversible Wool Jacket — A favorite on U of M campus

BLAZER "COLLEGE SEAL" BUTTONS • Fraternity and Sorority Crests for your Blazers

And of course the Finest in Women's and Men's Clothing

Watch for Opening of our New 'SKI-SHOP'!

House of Walsh
"MORE THAN A TOGGERY — A COLLEGE INSTITUTION"
AMHERST MASS.

WATCHES
BY BULOVA
from $10.95
WINN
Jeweler
31 S. Pleasant
Amherst

DEERFIELD
Drive-In
ROUTES 5 & 10
S. Deerfield, Mass.
—FRI., SAT., SUN.—
Jerry Lewis Show
Don't Give Up The Ship
—ALSO—
'Rock-a-Bye Baby'
Show begins at 7:30

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

Fashion, Fabric, And You Theme Of Educational Show

"Fashion, fabrics and you" was presented yesterday before the School of Home Economics by Miss Helen Wright, Special Field Representative of Simplicity Pattern Co., New York City.

During her visit to the University, Miss Wright also discussed careers in the area of clothing and textiles and gave professional hints on up-to-date applications of visual aids in teaching clothing.

Fall trends in fashion, color and fabric with suggestions on their interpretation for the individual, were illustrated in a wardrobe of fourteen garments planned for all hours and all activities. Beyond the facts and fancies of fashion, were the all-important aspects of construction. Miss Wright summarized 'inside secrets and tips' that lead to homemade garments with a professional look.

Looking to the future, Miss Wright opened an informal discussion session on "Careers in Clothing and Textiles", outlining current opportunities in both the fields of business and education. Aspiring teachers found points a-plenty in "Visual Aids in Your Clothing Program," as they were angled towards the latest methods and techniques to the special area of teaching clothing.

Miss Wright brought to her presentations an extensive background in education and business. She graduated from Carnegie Institute of Technology with a Bachelor of Science degree in costume economics and earned her Master of Arts degree from Columbia University Teachers College in clothing and textiles. She taught clothing and textiles before entering the business field as stylist and fabric consultant for a large department store. Since joining Simplicity, Miss Wright has traveled in every state, appearing before college and adult education groups, state-wide meetings and workshops devoted to home economics, and conventions of Home Demonstration Agents.

K.K.G. Has New House Mother

Delta Nu chapter is proud to introduce to the University Mrs. Donald Alderman as our new housemother. Prior to this year, she was a housemother at Alpha Phi sorority at U.C.L.A., and earlier in her life she was an elementary school teacher. Through her son, David Alderman, president of Beta Kappa Phi at the University of Colorado, and her daughter-in-law, who was president of the Kappa Kappa Gamma chapter also at the University of Colorado, she has been in close contact with the Greek System for a number of years in many parts of our country. Her experiences at different campuses throughout the United States will be tremendously valuable for all of us at Kappa when we make the transition from our "gingerbread" house on Lincoln Avenue to our new home. Mrs. Alderman expressed her belief that the value and goal of sorority life is to raise the standards of the individual girl both scholastically and socially. Since a sorority is a relatively small and compact group, each member is able to devlop social graciousness to a higher degree than would otherwise be possible in a dormitory situation because of its larger size and more "business—like" management. A tea was given by the sisters of Kappa in honor of Mrs. Alderman Thursday evening, September 26. At this time she was able to meet and speak with the administration, all University housemothers, and fraternity and sorority presidents and social chairmen.

An added pleasure this semester is Ann McCallon, our Kappa exchange student from the University of New Mexico.

PINNINGS

Mary Ann Polito, SK to Kenneth Cernak, Clark University.

Nancy Simpson, SK, to Bill McHugh, QTV.

Caryl McCarthy. Leach, to Kenny Ryan, SAE.

Jackie Curns, KAT, to Neil Hendrickson, BKP.

Ruth Catler, Lasell College, to Richard Furash PSD.

Renie Vengrow, Mary Lyon, to Richard Gloth, PSD, John Hopkins Medical School.

Linda Bodwell, AXO, to Bryce Roberts, Xphi, UConn. '62.

Mary Jane White, AXO, to James Duquette, Fairfield University.

DORM NEWS

The residents of Mary Lyon Dormitory greet the new school year with special words of welcome to Gretchen Thomas, and Patricia Deviene, the two University of New Mexico exchange students living in Mary Lyon this year.

The new upperclass residents of Mary Lyon were entertained at a tea, Sunday, September twenty-second in the dormitory center.

Special thoughts are of Kathleen Preziosi, '65 who has left for a year of work and travel abroad in Germany.

Elected recently to dormitory offices are Helen Roberts '64, Social Chairman and Joan Boucher '65, Treasurer.

Our choice for Homecoming Queen is Sandra Kerr '66. In addition, Baker House has chosen Sandra Pierce '67 as their Homecoming Queen candidate.

SORORITY NEWS

LAMBDA DELTA PHI

After a beautiful—but—short summer, and a week's spree of painting and cleaning, the Lambda Phi's have finally "readjusted" to the unpredictable routine at UMass.

We'd like to extend a glowing welcome and a heart-felt thank you to our new housemother, Mrs. Kirby. We know she'll play an integral part in what will be a very exciting year for Lambda Phi.

Last week, we were delighted to receive our national President, Mrs. Paul Knight, and an alumna, Mrs. George, for presenting us with the preliminary plans for our new house. It will indeed be a dream come true.

A word of congratulations to TEP's President, Chuck Reid, on his engagement to our President, Nancy Andrade. We wish them the best happiness.

SIGMA KAPPA SORORITY

Life has come again to 19 Allen Street. Even the thirteen girls working at the Cape Codder managed to return safely to Sigma Kappa.

Two new houseboys, Paul Page and Herb Serpa were added to the returning staff of Charlie Rock, John Kelly and Bob Sloane.

Priscilla Bradway, president of Sigma Kappa, attended our national convention at Logen, Utah.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

It seems like a dream come true that finally the Tri Sigmas have their house. The beginning of the school year found the sisters busily getting settled in the house on North Pleasant Street. To guide them in their new adventure is Mrs. Alice Drake, formerly of Springfield. Also new at the sorority is Mrs. Parisi, our cook who has been making the sisters right at home with her tasty meals.

Many thanks go to the house boys for their efficient job.

In addition to organizing the house, the Tri Sigmas are in the midst of planning for Homecoming weekend when their alumnae will return to see the first home of the girls.

The Chapter Inspection is scheduled for November eighth. At that time, Sigma Sigma Sigma will be hostess to Mrs. H. W. Morrison, the National Historian who will serve as inspector.

Congratulations are extended to two of the alumnae: Dottie Adams and Linda Perley, officers during the colonization of the chapter, who were married this summer.

Wedding Gift

'To Love, Honor, Obey, Exempt'

The month of June has just passed but changes in the next few weeks will set the all-time record in trips down the aisle. The President has turned marriage into political asylum.

In long-overdue action, special legislation last week exempted married men from the draft, as long as a sufficient number of single men are available. This act will especially affect graduating seniors, who by marriage can step from a four-year deferment into a lifetime exemption.

Surely there will be shouts of "Government Control" and "Socialism" from spectators on the right, but this legislation will undoubtedly prove to be a wise move, instilling a little security in a very insecure generation.

As for bachelors, the chances of Uncle Sam wanting them has increased about 25 per cent. But at least there's a back door out.

Send not to see for whom the wedding bells toll—they toll for me.

University Women Get Together

The University Women Fall Get-together was held last Tuesday at 8 p.m., in the Student Union Ballroom. Present were faculty and staff members and their wives. President Lederle, his wife, and Mrs. Sydney Wexler, the organization president, greeted them as they entered.

The 350 members attending enjoyed an evening highlighted by dancing to Gus Perfido's orchestra from Northampton, getting acquainted with the new faculty members, and having refreshments.

There are three main purposes of the club: first, to promote good fellowship among the faculty and staff; secondly, to be of service to the university; and thirdly, to host many social functions. In short, it is the "social arm" of the university.

Many activities are planned for this year, including: bowling, bridge, modern dancing, reading discussion, rifle practice, square dancing, swimming, and dancing. Faculty daughters are also included on many occasions.

Panhell Sponsors Registration

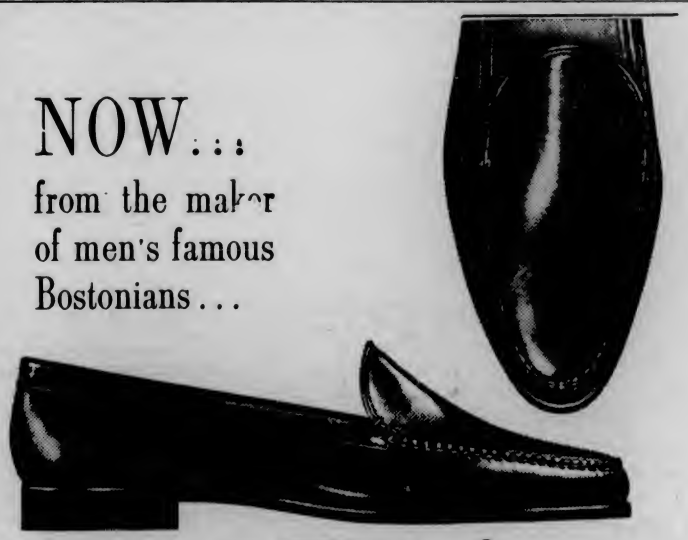
Panhellenic wishes to announce that at their Formal Sorority Rush Registration 452 girls registered. This is a new policy this year, established to make rushing go more smoothly.

Those who were not able to register Tuesday are given another opportunity at informal registration to be held up until October 18, in the S.U. Times will be posted in the S.U. Lobby and will probably appear in the Collegian.

Panhellenic wishes to emphasize that any woman, freshman, transfer student, or upperclassman, planning to rush must register. No bids or party invitations will be sent to any unregistered girl.

TENNIS CLUB meets every Tuesday and Thursday from 4-6 p.m. on the tennis courts. Come and join the fun whether you be an expert, intermediate or beginner. Everyone welcome! Contact Miss Kilby at W.P.E. or Shirley Lord at Arnold if you have any questions.

NOW...
from the maker of men's famous Bostonians...



Lady-Bostonian
GENUINE MOCCASINS

The chic young-hearted fashion look in casual, classic, fun footwear. Sleek in look, trim in fit, wonderfully light and comfortable. Come see our new and captivating collection. They're irresistibly priced!

Bolles Shoe Store
8 Main Street, Amherst, Mass.

MOUNTAIN PARK
—Route 5, Holyoke, Mass.—
—Every SAT. NITE—
College Mixer
NATION'S NEWEST CRAZE
8 to 12 p.m.
THE VENTURAS

"Tosca" Comes Monday

Soprano Josephine Busalacchi will sing the title role in Puccini's "Tosca," to be presented in English by the Goldovsky Grand Opera Theater on Monday, Sept. 30, at the University of Massachusetts.

The Goldovsky Grand Opera Theater, known throughout the country for its presentations of opera in English, will present Giacomo Puccini's "Tosca" on Monday, Sept. 30, at the University of Massachusetts.

The Goldovsky production is scheduled to start at p.m. in the Curry Hicks Men's Physical Education building.

"Tosca" is the first of eight musical events to be presented throughout the school year under sponsorship of the UMass Concert Association.

Goldovsky's company of 50 includes both orchestra and chorus. Under the direction of Boris Goldovsky, the company places emphasis on opera's theatrical aspects.

The Goldovsky group is now on its 10th national tour.

Time magazine called the group "a fresh young company trained within an inch of its last high C." The "Baltimore Sun" summed up Goldovsky's approach as "The way opera should be given and seldom is."

Puccini's tragic opera is based on a drama by Victorien Sardou.

Josephine Busalacchi will sing the title role in Goldovsky's production. Dean Wilder, Lucien Olivier and David Glosso will be seen in other leading parts.

Students admitted free.

New Dining Commons Under Construction

by LOIS SKOLNICK

In response to the University's growth, a new dining commons is now under construction.

Located in the present parking area west of Brett and Wheeler dormitories, the commons will be completed for September of next year.

Hugh Stubbins Associates, architects of Cambridge, have designed a two story glass and brick structure, with the aim of answering the complaints filed at joint student, faculty and adminnstration discussions.

According to the plans, there are significant innovations in food preparation. All food will be prepared on the first floor and electrically conveyed to dining lines upstairs. An expanded service area will allow space for alternate menu choices, while food will be served on heated china dishes. New kitchen equipment will provide for more flexibility in menu planning.

The architects have also considered the need for more pleasant dining atmosphere. It is the first fully air conditioned building on campus. The bottom floor will have four public entrances (one at each corner of the square building), which lead to two large meeting lobbies and coat rooms. The cooking kitchen is enclosed in the center.

Two gradual-slope ramps will take students upstairs to eight separate dining areas, each with a different decore. The four dining lines and eight dining areas will be kept flexible to allow variety in daily dining surroundings. The largest of the areas will hold 256 people, the smallest about 65, with a total capacity of about 1,250.

For greater flexibility, oak partitions will open to make one or two extra large banquet rooms. At the same time, the smaller areas will serve for small meeting rooms.

The well-lighted dining rooms will each have one complete wall of glass windows. Music will be piped through the rooms, which will otherwise be quiet, with tray service area located away from dining rooms.

No rise in eating costs has been planned.

The Hugh Stubbins Associates architectural firm has also designed the girls' dorm on the hill, and is now completing plans for the high-rise on the southwest corner of campus.

New Staff Member For Student Union

Richard C. Davies, former recreation superintendent of the town of Wellesley, has joined the University staff as night supervisor of the Student Union.

Davies graduated in 1953 from the State University of New York at Cortland. Before serving as recreation superintendent for Wellesley, he held the same position in Irondequoit, N. Y.

Davies served as a park commissioner, Sunday school teacher and leader in civic-oriented fund drives while at Wellesley.

The new member of the Student Union staff makes his home in South Amherst. He and his wife are the parents of four children.

FIELD HOCKEY meets every day, Monday through Thursday from 4:40 to 6 p.m. on the hockey fields behind W.P.E. All levels are welcome. Come when you can and join in on the excitement of field hockey. Contact Miss Upton at W.P.E. or Joy Gustafson at Leach if you have any questions.

Day Of Atonement Starts At Sundown

Beginning at sundown this evening, the Jewish students of this campus and the Jews throughout the world will begin the observance of the twenty-four hour fast of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. This holy day marks the end of Yamin Noraim, the ten day period of repentance which is known in English as the "Season of Repentance," and which commences with Rosh Hashanah.

Rosh Hashanah falls on the tenth of Tishri, the seventh month of the Jewish year, and this year Rosh Hashanah ushered in the year 5724. According to the sages, this world was created on this day. This year as in every year since the exodus from Egypt, the followers of Judaism filled their temples and sanctuaries and prayed for forgiveness of their sins. The orthodox and conservative Jews celebrate Rosh Hashanah for a period of two days, while the reformed Jews and those who live in Eratz Yisrael, the land of Israel, celebrate the holy day for only one day.

The former custom began after the Roman conquest of Israel and the scattering of its inhabitants throughout the Roman Empire. It was believed that with the slow manner of communication then in use, plus the dispersion of the Jews, some communities might be late in beginning their penitence. The added day insured every Jew's observation of Rosh Hashanah.

Yom Kippur is the holiest of days in the Jewish year; more holy than the Sabbath day, for if any of the other fast days fall on a Saturday, the fast is not allowed to take place. However, one fasts on Yom Kippur no matter what day it falls on, even on Saturday.

The evening before Yom Kippur, prayers are said in the temple. The whole congregation attends to hear this Kol Nidre Service.

In this service, one declares that all vows and obligations not carried out are null and void. This prayer has great significance when seen in the context of Medieval Europe, in an era of forced conversions to Christianity and of promises made under the threat of the "rack" and other instruments of torture.

The prayers said during Rosh Hashanah are prayers of praise to the Almighty, of poems chanted in such a manner that one need not have any acquaintance with the holy tongue to feel the meaning which is intended.

The prayers of Yom Kippur are said in a grieving manner. Entreaties and supplications from sundown to sundown are heard within the temple. One of the most significant of the prayers is the El Chait, the confessional. Unlike the confessionals of other religions, the Jewish belief is that one is truly his Brother's keeper. Jews do not ask for the forgiveness of their own sins alone, nor of the saving of their souls. They pray for the forgiveness of the sins of all mankind. A Jew confesses not to his own sins only, but to the sins of all mankind.

Thus, the Jewish welcome to the New Year is unique in this day and age aof revelry and boisterousness as an occasion of reverence and heritage. When one meets a friend on the New Year, one says "Leshana toba tikhathebu," "May you be written down in the book of life for a good year." So may mankind live in peace and brotherhood for the coming year, and as a great rabbinic sage once said, "Greater is the merit of the transgressor who repents than that of the saint who has never sinned."

"Interaction" WMUA Prog. For Problems

Interaction, the weekly show where anyone, faculty member or student, may present any problem or air any question will begin on WMUA on Sunday, September 29 at 7:30. Dr. William F. Field, Dean of Students, and Jonathan D. Fife, President, Student Senate, will be available to answer all gripes. The subject range is unlimited—small campus annoyances to controversial world problems. Ask any question you want an answer to.

Interaction is part of WMUA's expanded broadcasting. Its aim is to help students and faculty bring their complaints before the administration. The series is not limited to University participation. Anyone in the WMUA listening area is welcome to call in.

Remember, tune in Sunday from 7:30 to 8:00 to hear Dean Field and Jon Fife discuss YOUR problems and answer YOUR questions on Interaction.

Convocation ...

(Continued from page 1)

President Lederle further assured the student body that the most important emphasis of the administration is on the individual student and that it will remain.

"The pious hope for higher education," he concluded, "must be transformed into an unyielding resolve."

Emergency Op ...

(Continued from page 1)

week complaining of abdominal pains and general malaise, and was immediately sent to Northampton. An operation disclosed that the appendix had ruptured.

The surgery was performed by a team of doctors headed by Dr. Richard Bernhard, who also treated the Kennedy baby.

Senate ...

(Continued from page 1)

the commuters who charged that "commuters pay over $18,000 into the student tax," and receive little in return. They further pointed out that the Commuters' Club serves as a liason between the commuters and the campus, helping to integrate them into the University.

The bill passed the committee hearing by a vote of 12-10. It was then brought on the floor and subjected to further debate. A 13-8 roll call vote passed the appropriation.

MUTUAL
FOR STUDENT NEEDS

Zenith Radio
Alarm Clocks
Curtain Rods
Window Shades
Window Screens
Towel Bars
Sports Goods
Tools
Gifts
Extension Cords
Bulbs
Clothes Racks

MUTUAL Plumbing & Heating Co.
63 S. Pleasant Amherst

U. of M. Charms
Trophies
Giftware
Keepsake Diamonds
Clocks
Watch Repair
Free Engraving & Soldering
on any purchase made at:
SHERMAN
JEWELERS
FOR THE PERSONAL TOUCH!
164 Main St., Northampton, Mass.
JU 4-4029

Quality Fruit Store
Amity Street
The Little Store Near the Theater

Legislators Feted By Alumni

More than 150 members of the Massachusetts General Court will be the guests of the Associate Alumni of the University of Massachusetts a a buffet luncheon prior to the University of Massachusetts-Harvard football game tomorrow.

Members of the UMass Associate Alumni and the faculties and administrations of the two universities will be introduced to the Bay State legislators at the informal luncheon.

A spokesman for the 17,000 University of Massachusetts graduates, who comprise the Associate Alumni, said that the day's affairs are designed to better acquaint Massachusetts educators and legislators with each other.

Harvard University's Carey Cage, adjacent to the stadium, has been made available to the UMass Alumni for the luncheon which will begin at 11:45 a.m.

Redmen Booters Face Coast Guard

by SCOTT FREEDLAND

The Varsity Soccer team opens league play Saturday against the Midshipmen of the Coast Guard Academy at 2 p.m. on the Varsity Soccer Field.

Injuries which plagued All-American captain Dick Repeta, fullback Ray Yando, and center Dick Leete during the 4-1 preseason loss to Army will again hamper their play. Coach Briggs feels, on the basis of scrimmage against Babson, Springfield College and Williston Academy, that right wing Mike Zanrotny will be switched to left wing, and that Ron Merrill and second line goalie Stewart will see more play.

Both Coach Briggs and Assistant Coach Colonel Albert Akyrod feel that Coast Guard is not as strong as Army, the team looks good and a win or loss could decide the season.

Freshmen Soccer opened last Wednesday as the frosh booters faced Deerfield Academy in a scrimmage. Redmen Coach Leaman was impressed by the first line scoring capabilities of Aba Johnson (Ghana), Jim Babyak, and Collin Garstany, who contributed the goals and assists in the 2-1 win.

Defensively, a new set-up of one defensiveman, three halfbacks, and one center half-wing could supply a strong backing to the best offense in three years.

SOCCER MANAGER

Any person interested in serving as either Freeshman Basketball or Soccer Manager should report to Coach Leaman Room 6 of the Curry Hicks Building or on the soccer field 4-6 p.m.

INTRAMURAL TENNIS

Intramural Tennis Tournament

The intramural Tennis Tournament will start Monday Sept. 30, with 59 entries already being accepted. If interested call Steve Harrington at T.E.P.

Captain DICK REPETA and coach Larry BRIGGS discuss soccer strategy.

YAN CON NEWS

Connecticut Meets Yale

STORRS, Conn.—If Connecticut defeats Yale at New Haven in the football season opener for both schools this Saturday, the Huskies from Storrs will not be setting a precedent. Dartmouth was unsuccessful in 14 trips to New Haven before finally coming out on top in its 15th attempt.

There is a historical precedent which indicates the time is ripe for a UConn victory. Dartmouth, another New Haven invader from the north, made 14 pilgrimages to the Elm City before the football Indians were able to return to their rural haunts at Hanover, N.H., with a Bulldog scalp. Yale emerged with 11 wins and three ties prior to 1935 when the Big Green began acting like it owned the concrete kennel of the Bulldogs and ripped off a 14-6 victory. That was Dartmouth's 15th football trip to New Haven. This is also UConn's 15th try for the prize in the series.

Connecticut has come very close to victory in two of its last three trips to Yale. A field goal by Wally Grant won for the Elis, 11-8, in 1960; and victory was in sight last year when Randy Egloff took a short pass from Tim O'Connell about midway in the final period and took off on a 34-yard scoring play which saved the day for old Elihu Yale, 18-14.

This year, Coach Bob Ingalls of UConn feels his strong running game will be augmented by an improved aerial attack with battle tested veterans Lou Aceto, a junior from Hamden, and Doug Gaffney, a senior from Verona, N.J., as the bombardiers.

Five men who were listed as starters for Connecticut in last year's opener at Yale again find themselves cast in this role. They are Dick Kupec, a junior from Ossining, N.Y., who was left guard a year ago; Jeff McConnell, a senior from Poughkeepsie, N.Y., at right tackle; Lou Aceto, a junior from Hamden, at quarterback; Capt. Dave Korponai, a senior from Stratford, at right half; and Dave Roberts, a junior from Meriden, who is almost a sure bet as a starter at fullback.

Coach Ingalls states he may not decide on his starting fullback until the toss of the coin which traditionally starts a football game. He's thinking of probably sending Brian Smith, a Hartford junior, to the deep position.

Ingalls is set on the rest of his starting lineup, announced previously this week, as follows: Nick Rossetti, a junior from Yorktown, Heights, N.Y., and Joe Simeone, a Brooklyn, N.Y., senior, both starters by the close of last season, at the ends; Joe DeLucia, a Cheshire senior, at tackle along with McConnell; Roy Kristensen of Nyack, N.Y., and Joe Licata of Peekskill, N.Y., both juniors and members of the defensive until last fall, at guards; and Larry Reed, a junior from Peekskill who was a defensive halfback until injured in '62, at left halfback.

Coach Ingalls isn't sure whether or not he'll substitute by units or by groups of four or five. However, he has stated he feels the second unit has deevloped satisfactorily and could possibly go into the battle all at once.

Making up the second unit line are senior Mark Klausner of Wallingford and junior Larry Uda of Bridgeport, ends; senior Grieve of Hartford and sophomore Harry Herbst of Peekskill, tackles; senior Fred Gates of Fairfield and senior John Beirne of Milford, guards; sophomore Cliff Demers of Hartford, center.

The second level backfield is made up of senior Doug Gaffney, quarterback; senior Jack Janiszewski of Springfield, Mass., and senior Dick Seely of Armonk, N.Y. at halfbacks; and Smith or Roberts at fullback.

The first string line averages 210 pounds per man while the second unit goes up to 215, chiefly on the strength of 6-7 Dick Grieve (257) and 6-3 Harry Herbst (245) at the tackles.

Harvard Football . . .

(Continued from page 7)

Bob Meers. The tackle positions will have Co-captain Paul Graham and junior Bob Burke. Bob Tedlodi a senior, and Peter Pietz, a junior will be the guards while Charlie Scaldone, All-East selectee at center last week will be at the same position.

THE BACKFIELD, all juniors, is comprised of Jerry Whelchel at quarterback, Fred Lewis and Ken Palm in the halfback slots and Mike Ross at fullback.

CAR FOR SALE
1962 Volkswagen Sedan
Ex. Cond., Shoulder Seat Belts. Asking $1500. Need larger car for growing family. Call Mr. McDaniel, AL 3-5530.

'DON' CALL
Optician
Why not stop in and have us
RECORD the POWER of your present EYEGLASSES
This will PREVENT difficulty in case of LOSS or BREAKAGE
In case of BREAKAGE you can bring in BROKEN PIECES for DUPLICATION
Sunglasses available with or without power
Will make SHATTER-PROOF glasses in own lab.
'DON' CALL—Optician
56 Main St., Amherst

AMHERST Cinema
SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS
—NOW - - Ends Sat.—
A ROSS HUNTER ARWIN production
DORIS DAY JAMES GARNER The Thrill Of it All! COLOR
ARLENE FRANCIS A Universal Release
—SUN., MON., TUE.—
A MIRISCH production
DEAN MARTIN GERALDINE PAGE YVETTE MIMIEUX
TOYS IN THE ATTIC
PANAVISION
A MIRISCH CLAUDE PRODUCTION
RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS

Himalya Sweaters
FOR THE COLLEGIATE MALE and FEMALE
THAT WILL NOT SETTLE FOR SECOND BEST!
At Kellerman's
THE HOME OF COLLEGE STYLES Across from Fire Dept.

Redmen Clash With Crimson In N.E.'s Top Grid Contest

by STEVE "BRUCE" HEWEY

"This will be the toughest opener since 1957." These are the words of Harvard University Football Coach John Yovicsin as he views tomorrow's clash with the University of Massachusetts at Harvard Stadium.

The Redmen-Crimson meeting is shaping up as the top grid feature among the college elevens in New England this weekend.

ACCORDING TO veteran observers a crowd of between 18,000 and 20,000 will be expected to be on hand when last year's Ivy League runner-up begins its 1963 schedule with last Fall's Yankee Conference runner-up.

One can be sure that Yovicsin has plenty of respect for Saturday's opponent and some reservations about how his boys will meet the task.

After watching UM in action against Maine last week he declared, "Massachusetts has a veteran team, and is deep in talent. And you can bet that they'll be ready and eager to beat Harvard. We've still got a lot of work ahead this week before we're ready for them."

THERE IS good justification for the Harvard coach's somber appraisal of his team's opener with UM. The Crimson had no spring practice. The Redmen already have one game under their belts, and reports filtering in from Cambridge the past few weeks show that Harvard has not been as spirited and as improving with time as Crimson teams of past seasons. If Yovicsin means what he says then the Redmen can expect a well drilled if not ready opponent.

Tomorrow's game, incidentally, marks the eighth meeting of the two schools. The Redmen own a 13 to 7 win over Harvard in 1954, and 1960, the last contest between the two, UMass trounced the Crimson 27 to 12.

HARVARD HAS WON the other five contests.

UMass has also been hard at work this week smoothing the bumps that showed in their offense and defense at Maine last Saturday. This will be the first time in three years at UMass that Vic Fusia has faced Harvard and he wants this game as badly as the Redmen head coach wants every game. The players, too, are going all out. They view the Harvard game as a fine opportunity to win those little letters that Fusia has promised them for their superb work on the field.

THOSE WHO ALREADY received several for standout play aaginst Maine will be out to add more. Those who have yet to get any will be batting to get their share.

Statistics released this week show that quarterback Jerry Whelchel is the Redmen leader in total offense after one game. Whelchel has completed 8 of 12 passes for 100 yards and has carried 11 times for 32 yards for a total output of 132 yards.

Halfback Ken Palm leads his teammates in rushing with 66 yards in 11 tries while halfback Fred Lewis has 56 yards for 11 carries.

IN THE PASS receiving department Sophomore Bob Meers leads with 4 receptions for 82 yards. Palm has caught two for 7 yards and Milt Morin one, good for 19 yards.

For tomorrow's game Vic Fusia plans to go with the same stating eleven he employed at Maine. At the ends will be junior John Hudson and sophomore

(Continued on page 7)

THE REDMEN COACHING STAFF

From left to right: Fred Glatz, end coach; Ted Schmitt, line coach; Don Johnson, backfield coach; Vic Fusia, head coach; Jack Delaney, backfield coach; and Chet Gladchuk, line coach.

Unitarian Society of Amherst
121 North Pleasant Street

Sunday, September 29th

WTTT 10:10
"ARE UNITARIANS CHRISTIANS?"

Sunday Service—11:00
"Population, Piety and Pills"

John Albert Taylor, Minister

THE ALPS...made in Italy by FABIANO
Handmade Imported Boots for the Outdoor Man and Woman...

Vibram Lug Soles. Ideal for Rock Climbing and Hiking. Padded Quarters and Tongue. Women—5 to 11 Narrow and Medium Men—6 to 14 Narrow, 6 to 12 Large (Size 13 and 14 $3.00 Extra).

$24.95 Plus Postage
Write for Free Brochure
Fabiano Shoe Co., Inc.
Dept. MC, South Station
Boston 10, Mass.

RIDE
wanted from Northampton to U.M. on MWF to arrive in time for an 11 a.m. class. Call Northampton JU 4-3428 ask for Janet

LIBRARY

LIBRARY
OCT 8 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

THE MASSACHUSETTS
collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 7 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1963

Student Activities Night Scheduled For Tuesday

With the college year underway most students have come to the realization that the idea of studying 'all the time' is quite impractical. Some change of pace is necessary, and the use of free time can provide this necessary change. Organizations on our campus offer interesting and profitable memberships to students who want to use this time to their own and their college's advantage.

On Student Activities Night, Tuesday, October 1 from 7 to 9 P.M. these organizations will be represented in the S. U. Ballroom. Freshmen are urged to attend so that they may become acquainted with these groups and have the opportunity to ask any questions concerning membership or activities of the groups.

A student needs lie not only in the educative process of lectures, meeting professors, and studying. Beyond this there is the important concern of learning to work with others. Students who want to be involved in planning and arranging important events, who want the satisfaction of completing a well planned project, who want the friendship of others whose interests are similar; these students will find an important part of the educative process lies here with student organizations.

UMass Tiddly Team Bested At Harvard

A determined and enthusiastic University of Massachusetts Tiddlywink team invaded Harvard Yard Saturday morning to do battle with a veteran Harvard squad.

The outcome of the contest was easily forecastable, with the Harvard Tiddlyers swamping the valiant Redmen 27-7.

THE CRIMSON team which has been beaten only once in intercollegiate play, and that by England's Oxford University, treated the visiting Redmen with the utmost of courteousness, even to the point of teaching the game to the four-man UMass squad.

Harvard's challenge to UMass was extended Friday afternoon, and after a diligent search was made, the University of Massachusetts fighting Tiddlywink squad was formed, and Harvard's challenge accepted.

The Tiddly team members, Jeff Davidow, Bill Mahoney, George Pierce, Alec Woodle and Richard Perlmutter had no opportunity to practice before Saturday morning's confrontation and consequently went into the meet cold.

IN THE FIRST of five matches a strong GUTS (Harvard's Gorgoyle Undergraduate Tiddlywink Society) duo of Bachelor and Hager captured first and second places to defeat Mahoney and Pierce 6-1.

The high spot of this contest was the scoring of a Carnofsky by Harvard's Hager. A Carnofsky is roughly equivalent to a hole in one in the golfing world and is equally as rare. Hager's staggering feat was the first official Carnofsky of the 1963 Intercollegiate Tiddlywink season.

UMass lost the following three contests by the same score, 6-1, and it was only in the fifth game that the UM Redmen squad, in the persons of Davidow and Woodle, came to life.

PLAYING a Harvard team which consisted of Hank Schwartz, a senior member of GUTS and Miss Carol McDaniel, Schwartz' date for the afternoon, the UMass twosome performed

(Continued on page 4)

UMASS PRECISIONETTES' FUTURE ROLE IN DOUBT

by ELWIN McNAMARA

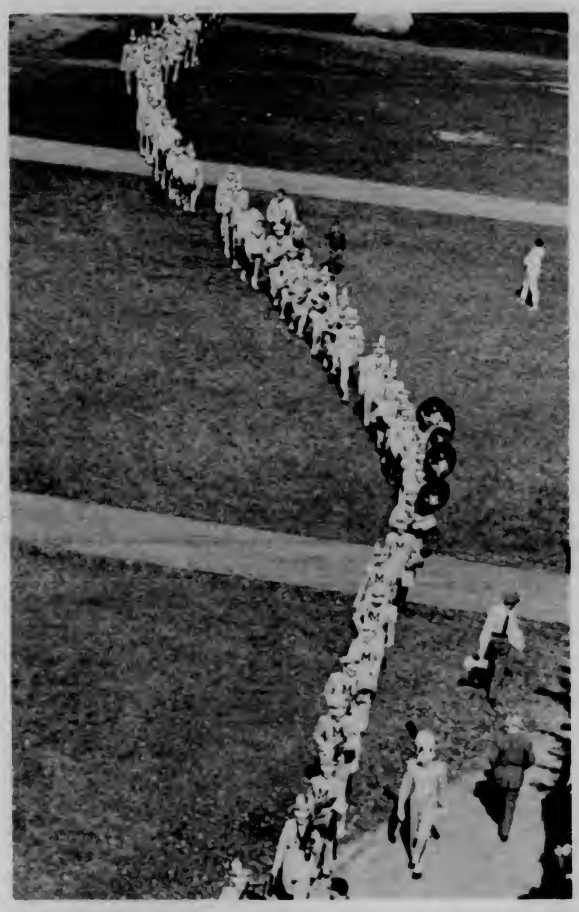
The game with Harvard ushered in a new era for the Precisionettes. This is the first year in which they have not been alone in the spotlight.

The coming of a new band director heralds the coming of a new and larger band, one which will be able to perform its formations without what Dean of Students Field has called the "able assistance of the Precisionettes." In years ahead, the band will be so large (100-150 members) that it will not be physically possible for both organizations to perform at the same time.

It is this problem which now confronts both band and Precisionettes. They must decide when and where the Precisionettes will perform. Many suggestions have been brought forth with the major ones being the pre-game show, a possible sideline routine and performance at basketball games.

Dean Field emphasized most strongly that this is not the end of the group, in fact he said that "they are too good to let disappear." He said that they could, if they wished, "maintain themselves independent of the band"

(Continued on page 7)



—Photo by Darryl Fine

THE REDMEN MARCHING BAND marches single file into Harvard Stadium before the start of Saturday's game.

Senate Nomination Papers Due In Tomorrow Noon

Senate Elections Committee Chairman David Mathieson reminds all those who plan to run for Senate from dormitories, fraternities, sororities, or commuters that nomination papers are due no later than 12 noon tomorrow.

Mathieson also announced the apportionment of seats for the coming year:

1 seat: Brooks, Butterfield, Chadbourne, Crabtree, Dwight, Greenough, Hamlin, Johnson, Knowlton, Leach, Lewis, Mary Lyon, Mills, Plymouth-Hampshire (taken as one dorm), Thatcher, Wheeler, Sororities, and Married Dorms.

2 seats: Brett, Hills (North and South), Arnold, Van Meter (North and South)

3 seats: Baker, Gorman, Fraternities

6 seats: Commuters

These papers are available in the RSO office, or at the Lobby Counter in the S.U. They are due back tomorrow at noon.

Elections for all senatorial districts will be held on Thursday, October 3. Dormitory elections will be held in the respective dorms from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Commuter, Fraternity, and Sorority elections will be held in the Union from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A vacancy in the Senator-at-Large for the Class of 1965 has necessitated a special election which will be held at the same time as the Commuter elections in the S.U.

★ BULLETIN ★

Sandra Olson, UMass freshman afflicted with gas gangrene has been reported in "greatly improved" condition by officials of the Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston.

The 17 year old student has undergone treatment in the high pressure chamber where Patrick Kennedy underwent treatment shortly after his birth.

9 UM Students Hurt Enroute To Harvard Game

Nine UMass students were injured when their Volkswagen bus overturned enroute to the UMass-Harvard game in Boston.

Police stated that the accident which hospitalized three occurred about 2 miles from campus, at the foot of Main St. Six of the passengers were treated and released at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton.

Held for observation were:

Francis Walsh of Springfield

Susanne Hyland of Agawam, living in Mary Lyon

Jane Sunderland of Chattaqua, N. Y.

Student Senators And Building Authority Meet

Members of the University of Massachusetts Building Authority, the Student Senate Ad Hoc Committee, and Student President Jon Fife met on Friday to discuss University Housing.

Authority Chairman George Pumphret discussed with them the current housing situation with respect to the delays in the construction of dormitories on the hill near Van Meter dormitory.

Chairman Pumphret said that he would be pleased to give to the committee all information concerning delays in construction and on efforts undertaken by the Authority to ensure rapid completion of these dormitories.

He also reviewed the progress of the architectural design and planning for the first units of the dormitories to be built on the south-west corner of campus, which will include the first two 22-story dormitory units. All of these plans are on schedule, and construction is to be completed by the fall of 1965.

Mr. Pumphret, and Authority members Edward Williams and William Cashin, said that they expect to continue close cooperation with the Senate committee until the housing problem is resolved. Another meeting between the groups is planned for the near future.

BEANIES

Beanies again become mandatory on Monday, September 31, and must be worn until UMass scores their first touchdown in the Bucknell game. There will be no admittance to the game without beanies. Maroon Keys and Scrolls will enforce this rule.

College Bowl Applicants To Meet Tuesday

There will be a meeting of all students interested in trying out for the G.E. College Bowl team, in the Commonwealth Room in the Student Union at 7 p.m., Tuesday, October 1. The meeting will last for one hour only.

Preliminary screening will take place at this time. Also, students will sign up for the second stage of screening.

Those who cannot come at this time should see Mr. Madeira at Bartlett 451 as soon as possible.

To date, approximately 20 applicants have been signed up. Those wishing to apply for the team should leave their name in the College Bowl box in the Collegian office.

Editorial Page

HOUSING

The opinions expressed in the editorial below are those of its author, and are not standing Collegian policy. Readers are reminded that only those editorials, which are unsigned (or uninitialed) are to be taken as official Collegian Executive Board opinion.

Wiping away the tears which are flowing from my eyes after hearing a new chapter from the "Perils of Pauline," in which the heroine of the melodrama is forced to share a dormitory room with six other girls and a retired janitor, I sit down at my typewriter to say something which needs to be said.

I feel terribly sorry for all the Paulines and Pauls on this campus who are living in crowded quarters. It is unfortunate and without a doubt inconvenient, but not disasterous.

It is the purpose of this University, as a public institution, to educate as many people as possible. If the administration feels that it can academically accommodate 8300 students or 83,000 students then it should and must do so or it is failing in its purpose.

The fact that a good portion of these students are living in crowded conditions is undoubtedly important, but this should not act as a deterrent to the University's plans to educate 20,000 people a year by 1975.

Those penple who would urge the administration to cut back on the number of entering students so that those here now would not have to suffer the inconvenience of living in a triple, or waiting in a longer Commons line, or having less parking space, are indeed some of the most selfish individuals in existence. To deny to some deserving peron the opportunity to attend his own state university, one that he and his family are supporting, and one where he is able to get a top quality education for bargain basement prices is even more than selfish; it is cruel.

I personally don't care if people are sleeping on their heads in Van Meter or Hills. As long as they are getting the decent education they came here for, their sleeping problems are relatively unimportant.

Yes, Student Senate and faculty committees which are instituted to study the problem are a good thing, and who knows, maybe something good will come of them. But this too is secondary.

Any person who feels unduly cramped and crowded in the University community has every opportunity to leave. In other words, if you don't like it here, get out. For every one of you, there are five back in your home town who would gladly swap places; triples and long lines included. Be thankful for what you have. Stop complaining and get to work.

J.S.D.

YA-HOO Infiltrators of the Editorial Staff will meet tonight to plan complete take-over of this page. —JBC

Beware!...The Communist Menace

To the editor,

There are, evidently, some people who are not blinded by the "hate communists because they're against us" propaganda as demonstated by the article, "Partners Not Antagonists", which appeared in a recent Collegian. The author of that article was not blinded by that kind of propaganda, instead, she was blinded by another kind. Her kind is "the peace if it kills us" type.

Miss Burlingame is apparently quite perplexed because the United States and the Soviet Union won't reconcile their "trivial" differences and become friends like all good nations ought to be. After all, she says, we both want the same goal-world peace. What if our methods are slightly different?

Well, Miss Burlingame's argument is rather ludicrous because of her faulty assumption. The United States and the Soviet Union are not after the same goal. The United States and the Soviet Union could never reconcile their differences, because those differences are too great.

There is one basic difference between the two ideologies. Under capitalism it is the state's function to serve the individual. Under communism it is the individual's function to serve the state. Thus under the Soviets the concept of individuality is an absurdity. The two ideologies are antithetical and mutually exclusive. They can not be reconciled, not ever.

There is only one possible road to world peace. The existence of one ideology.

Wih two diffrent ways of life there is conflict. If you have conflict, you very obviously can not have peace. There is not too much hope for the United Staes if many Americans are as naive as Miss Burlingame seems to be. There is a difference and that difference must be recognized for what it is—otherwise we just might have world peace, the communist kind.

John Medeiros '66

Letters To The Editor

THE READERS COUNTER

To the Editor:

Nineteen voted "no" . . . it seems only nineteen realized that the United States could not rely on this treaty . . . only nineteen realized that the treaty was not all that it seemed at first glance.

Yes, the eighteen men, after whose name John Childs places an "A" as Advocates of Atomic destruction, seem to be the only Senators who looked into the test ban treaty and not at it. They are the ones who asked themselves what the treaty would acomplish. To get the answer they sought the expert advice of America's military and scientific men.

The military is against the treaty; that is, all but the military bureaucrats who owe their positions to the President. The treaty contains within it the real possibility of weakening the military position of the United States.

How great is the possibility of reducing the amount of fallout in the atmosphere with the signing of the test ban? In the stage of nuclear development that the U.S. and Russia have now reached, the amount of fallout is considerably less than when they first began testing. The amount of fallout which would result in atmospheric testing by the U.S. and Russia would not increase the amount of fallout in the atmosphere now. However, certain nations, Red China, France, Israel and Egypt, have begun development of nuclear weapons on their own. In their early stages of testing they will be exploding in the atmosphere dirty bombs—that is, bombs which will result in a large amount of fallout. Would it not be wiser for the U.S. to share its atomic secrets with its allies and for Russia to do the same so that these countries will not subject the entire world to a greater increase of nuclear fallout. Instead, the U.S. ratified a test ban which prohibits the sharing of atomic information with nations who are not already members of the atomic circle. How much nuclear fallout can the peoples of the world stand before health and life is sacrificed.

Yes, John Childs, nineteen men voted "no." Nineteen men realized that Krushchev was now signing the same test ban offered him in 1959. Krushchev now believes that his weapons which required atmospheric testing are fully capable of doing the job required of them. He is now ready to show the world that he and Russia desire peace.

Sue Fitzgerald '64

Re: The Berlin Wall

Dear Mr. Gorvine,

When first I occasioned to read your column (VOL. XCIII NO. 1), I must confess that I was impressed. I felt that at last a voice was rising out of the apathetic UMass community to speak in words uncensored and full of a fresh vitality.

Today, however, when I read through your column (VOL. XCIII NO. 3), I could not believe my eyes. "There must be some subtle point I missed which gives the proper light to the matter," I said to myself. But no—after having read it through four more times I found that my original horror was justified.

Mr. Gorvine, there are many bold and individualistic voices in the world. In this manner they attain one thing: they are heard. But when basic good sense is lacking in their words, they attain something else as well: the distinction of being just one more loud-mouthed ignoramus in this already sorely over-supplied world.

Please, Mr. Gorvine, continue to use your talented loud mouth. But don't become so carried away with your impressive style that you leave reason and intelligence behind.

John Kriegel '66

The Physostomous Phthiriasis

The John Birch Society

by Sam Gorvine

The John Birch Society believes in the defeat of the worldwide Communist conspiracy. It is an admirable aim. This conspiracy DOES exist. It has a number of concrete goals which it pursues with varying intensity. The Society is correct thus far.

The gap between the reality of the world and the John Birch society's world arises when it identifies with the Communist conspiracy, people or organizations who pursue the same goals for their own reasons. Their reasoning follows this pattern: All cats chase rats; All dogs chase rats; therefore, all dogs are cats.

It's amazing to listen to. Item: one of the organizations which the Communists would like to control is Civil Rights.

Bircher: Martin Luther King is a Communist.

Me: How do you figure that?

Bircher: Because integration and disruption of state's rights are two of the keystones of the Party line.

Me: Did it ever occur to you that King may want integration because he's a Negro?

Bircher: Well, of course but he's a Communist to; we KNOW that!

Me: How do you KNOW that?

Bircher: From the things he's written and the organizations he belongs to.

Me: What, for instance?

Bircher: Well, I don't have copies with me, but he does belong to the NAACP you know, and that's a Communist front.

Me: Oh, it IS??

Bircher: Of course! It follows the party line, doesn't it?

Me: (At this point words usually fail me.)

Bircher: You just don't understand these things, Sam. Take for instance Eisenhower . . .

Me: YOU take him.

Bircher: Seriously, there is a lot in what Welsh said about his being a Communist. Just look at his record. In the eight years he was president the Communists made tremendous gains all over the world . . .

Me: It's all easily explains by the fact that Eisenhower was a fool.

Bircher: Was he? He was promoted from the rank of Lieutenant Colonel to supreme commander of Allied Forces in Europe. It is known that he had dinner a number of times and was extremely close with the Roosevelts, and there's no doubt that they were Communists.

Me: Oh, none at all!

Bircher: See how clear things get when you can see th REAL patterns behind things?

Me: YUH. Did you hear about the Giant's releasing Guglielmi? I'll tell you, after Sunday's game . . .

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.

Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press

Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

To John Childs

False Inference

Mr. Childs, do you know why the senators who voted against the test ban treaty did so? Can you honestly state that these leaders are for atomic destruction? Is this the reason that they saw fit to oppose the ratification of the treaty?

The fact that these 19 Senators voted against ratification does not necessarily infer that they are "Advocates of Atomic Destruction," as you have stated, but that they may seen another and possibly much better way to prevent this destruction. Before you make open statements, Mr. Childs, I suggest that you check your premises.

Dick Cass '67

On Campus with Max Shulman

(By the Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and, "Barefoot Boy With Cheek.")

WORDS: THEIR CAUSE AND CURE

Today let us take up the subject of etymology (or entomology, as it is sometimes called) which is the study of word origins (or insects, as they are sometimes called).

Where are word origins (insects) to be found? Well sir, sometimes words are proper names which have passed into the language. Take, for instance, the words used in electricity: ampere was named after its discoverer, the Frenchman Andre Marie Ampere (1775-1836); similarly, ohm was named after the German G.S. Ohm (1781-1854), watt after the Scot James Watt (1736-1819), and bulb after the American Fred C. Bulb (1843-1912).

There is, incidentally, quite a poignant little story about Mr. Bulb. Until Bulb's invention, all illumination was provided by gas, which was named after its inventor Milton T. Gas who, strange to tell, had been Bulb's roommate at Cal Tech! In fact, strange to tell, the third man sharing the room with Bulb and Gas was also one whose name burns bright in the annals of illumination—Walter Candle!

The three roommates were inseparable companions in college. After graduation all three did research in the problems of artificial light, which at this time did not exist. All America used to go to bed with the chickens, and many fine citizens were, alas, severely injured falling off the roost.

Well sir, the three comrades—Bulb, Gas, and Candle—promised to be friends forever when they left school, but success, alas, spoiled all that. First Candle invented the candle, got rich, and forgot his old friends. Then Gas invented gas, got rich, bankrupted Candle, and forgot his old friends. Then Bulb invented the bulb, got rich, bankrupted Gas, and forgot his old friends.

Candle and Gas, bitter and impoverished at the ages respectively of 75 and 71, went to sea as respectively the world's oldest and second oldest cabin boy. Bulb, rich and grand, also went to sea, but he went in style—as a first-class passenger on luxury liners.

Well sir, strange to tell, all three were aboard the ill-fated Lusitania when she was sunk in the North Atlantic. And strange to tell, when they were swimming for their lives after the shipwreck, all three clambered aboard the same dinghy!

Well sir, chastened and made wiser by their brush with peril, they fell into each other's arms and wept and exchanged forgiveness and became fast friends all over again.

For three years they drifted in the dinghy, shaking hands and singing the Cal Tech rouser all the while. Then, at long last, they spied a passing liner and were taken aboard.

They remained fast friends for the rest of their days, which, I regret to report, were not many, because the liner which picked them up was the Titanic.

What a pity that Marlboros were not invented during the lifetimes of Bulb, Gas, and Candle. Had there been Marlboros, these three friends never would have grown apart because they would have realized how much, despite their differences, they still had in common. I mean to say that Marlboros can be lit by candle, by gas, and by electricity, and no matter how you light them, you always get a lot to like—a filter, a flavor, a pack or box that makes anyone—including Bulb, Gas, and Candle—settle back and forswear pettiness and smile the sweet smile of friendship on all who pass!

© 1963 Max Shulman

* * *

Etymology is not the business of the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, who sponsor this column. We deal in rich tobaccos and fine filters. Try a pack soon,

HOUSING; THE STUDENTS' OPINION

An Open Letter To Students and Faculty

My reason in writing this letter is to express my concern for the health and welfare of my fellow students. Myself and thirty-four other young men have been made the unfortunate victims of an ambitious university. A university dedicated to the principle of mass education; education of the many, however, at the expense of the few. The few namely, myself and my comrades.

Students; hear me out. This could happen to you.

When I received my housing form it read, "H-2 Hampshire House." Unassuming enough, to be sure. But little did I know what evil lurked in the heart of Him in charge of housing. How was I to know? After all, the Undergraduate Bulletin clearly stated that, "Physical growth has been carefully planned, with provisions for additional buildings and facilities to accommodate an enrollment of 10,000 within the next decade."

When I first gazed upon Hampshire House (renamed for our little friends who keep us company at night) I had the feeling I had seen my new home before. Then I remembered where it was I had seen it. Yes, of course, it was in "West Side Story." Remember when Tony was singing to Maria? I was thrilled! To think I would be living in the same building where "West Side Story" was filmed! I ran up the back steps in eager anticipation of finding my room. Or was it my room-mate? I can't quite remember those last few moments before I tripped over the tricycle, "retrograde amnesia" the doctor called it.

It was the crying of a little boy that finally revived me. I guess it was his tricycle. I staggered into the dorm and made my way through the baby carriages and cappistols, and all the rest of the paraphernalia those capricious little gargoyles play with, and I soon found my room. And I use the word "room" loosely. Having brought my trunk and the rest of the necessities for college living into my room, I could not help but reflect upon how lucky I was —to have such a nice view. From the amount of space I had in my suite, I soon realized that a few natural laws were about to be challenged in the next few months. For example, that age-old adage that all high school teachers preach, "Two objects may not occupy the same place in space at the same time." Tripe, I say. I and my roommate have been disproving that theory for two weeks.

Aside from a few meaningless natural laws being shattered, my fellow-residents and I have discovered that our iconoclasm has extended into the field of Public Health also.

The men's room on our floor is unique in that it is continually flooded. The only explanation for this is that the architect of this mausoleum obviously thought he was designing a road, not a floor, because the water runs from the middle of the floor to the sides, in the same manner that water runs off a macadam highway. This tends to create a small problem due to the fact that the drainage eventually finds a resting place in the hallway to be carried off to the individual rooms by the residents with the largest feet. It's not the smell nor the itching of athlete's foot that bothers us so much; but the amount of money we have to pay for new socks and talcum powder, to prevent our private little disease from running rampant, would be, if pooled, more than enough to maintain our own private physician.

To move on to greener pastures, the noise level is quite reasonable during the twilight hours when most of us do our studying. It has been calculated as being between 480-520 decibles, or, in layman's language, that amount of noise comparable to the warming up of seven B-52's.

The boys of Berkshire and Plymouth Houses, particularly the freshmen, are a great bunch of guys, as they'll readily tell you any time of night or day. They are very well-informed for they all have radios, and they all use them—at once, usually at night. I've often thought of what the consequences might be, if they ever played over the radio the tune that Joshua blew at Jericho. This campus would be reduced to rubble in an inkling.

I would like to suggest one thing that this house could use—a marriage counselor. For as Bill, who lives upstairs, pointed out to his wife the other night for four and one-half hours, the only way they are going to make a go of their marriage is to talk their problems out.

Perhaps I have been a bit harsh and even selfish in my evaluation of the living conditions here in Hampshire House, the University of Massachusetts' answer to the Warsaw Ghetto, but a greater writer once wrote, "Every man's writing slants in the direction he leans. Although many men are born upright, none are born perpendicular."

Sincerely,
David C. Whiting '66

A Modest Proposal

by MIKE HENCH

For alleviating the great difficulties due to overcrowding in the University dormitories.

It is a melancholy object to those, who walk through the University dormitories; when they see masses of Bodies piled one atop the other in all manner of disarray.

It is my intention to provide only for those who are so cramped that they cannot write, so crowded that they cannot scream for help, owing to the facts that their lungs are insufferably screamed.

Since it costs $100 or more for one to arrive in this hapless state, I propose to provide for all those aforementioned, who have served a brief Orientation tenure, in such a manner as to reduce the overall cost and increase the benefits.

The number of souls at the University being usually reckoned at 8300; of these I calculate that no less than half are in the aforementioned condition. The question therefore is, how this Number shall be reared and provided for.

I shall now therefore humbly propose my own thoughts; which I hope will not be liable to the least objection.

I have been assured by a very knowing European of my acquaintance that Friends, true Friends, can occupy far less space than non-friends or un-friends.

It has been reckoned that two Friends, regardless of sex, can occupy a space of as little as 13 inches. Now, since each bed on campus is of relatively uniform width, and Friends come in different sizes, usually paired in such a manner that the small is with the large and vice versa (as is the current state of affairs in most of the world), it follows ipso facto that there is plenty of room for each Couple.

It has also been noted that in many cases desks have been moved out of rooms so that beds might be moved in. Now if the Friends are united, some of the beds are moved out (and perhaps sold to pay for registration sticker appliers) and the desks are moved back in, the insufferable turmoil will be ended, and learning will be more widely disseminated.

Further, those non-friends and un-friends will be joined together to form new bonds, which will, of necessity, make for a still greater reduction in the number of beds.

This proposal will further

(Continued on page 6)

Free With Your ID

'Tosca' Presented At Cage Tonight

The Goldovsky Grand Opera Theater will present a special English version of Giacomo Puccini's "Tosca" at the University of Massachusetts tonight.

"Tosca," sponsored by the University's Concert Association, will start at 8 p.m. in the Cage.

The Goldovsky company's production is the first in a series of eight to be sponsored by the Concert Association during the 1963-64 school year.

The Schola Cantorum, Netherlands String Quartet, Toronto Symphony Orchestra, Raymond Hansor and Leonard Seeber, New York Brass Quintet, Robert Joffrey Ballet and Greenwich Quartet will also appear at the University during the year.

Boris Goldovsky, commentator on the weekly matinee broadcasts from the Metropolitan Opera House and well-known researcher in the field of acoustic scenery, will supervise every detail of "Tosca."

Goldovsky's company of 50—which includes its own singers, orchestra and chorus—is now in its 18th year and on its 10th national tour.

In the past several years, the Goldovsky Grand Opera Theater has presented "Rigoletto," "Don Giovanni," "The Barber of Seville" and "Traviata."

Newspapers and magazines have called Goldovsky's productions and approach to opera "a rousing success" and "a new breath of life in the operatic world."

Goldovsky and his company place emphasis on the theatrical aspect of opera.

According to Goldovsky, an audience becomes fully involved in an opera's action, stage business and character portrayal when the opera is presented in the audience's own language.

Technical innovations in the production of "Tosca" include a Goldovsky - designed sound - reflecting fiberglass ceiling, loudspeakers and other electronic devices mounted backstage.

Lucien Oliver, David Giosso, Dean Wilder and Josephine Busalacchi are scheduled to sing the leading roles in "Tosca."

UMass Tiddly . . .

(Continued from page 1)

stellarly. Woodle, in the squidger position (offense) managed to get all his winks into the pot before either of the Harvard players could do so. This was accomplished while Davidow as squopper (defense) kept the Harvard winks pinned to the Tiddly mat.

The Fighting Redmen squad hopes to continue its Tiddlying back in Amherst, and is in the process of incorporating itself as the nucleus of the WMTA, Western Massachusetts Tiddlywink Association.

All those interested in joining The University of Massachusetts Fighting Redmen Tiddlywink Squad and becoming a member of the WMTA Board of Directors are urged to contact Mr. Richard Perlmutter, WMTA's recording secretary, in Butterfield Dormitory.

A.P.O. Dance Funds Go To Scholarships

On Thursday, September 12, 1963 the Student Union Program Council and A.P.O. presented the Registration Dance. This year all the proceeds will be turned over to Mr. David Lawrence, Assistant Director of Placement and Financial Aid Services, who will in turn put the money toward loans and scholarships.

The budget for the dance was as follows:

Expenses
Band	$135.00
Police	25.12
	$160.12
Gross Income	$945.00
	—160.12
Net Income	$784.88

Students Can Help At Hospital

For the past three years University of Massachusetts students have worked in conjunction with a socialization project connected with the Northampton State Mental Hospital. The role of the student has been to participate in one of the many programs involving direct activity with patients at the hospital. Two of the most popular programs have been those of remotivation and socialization occurring on Wednesday and Thursday nights respectively.

This year the student volunteer program at the Hospital is solely in the hands of the Hospital's volunteer director and the colleges and universities in the area. The plans for the program include greatly expanded participation by the students of Amherst, Mt. Holyoke, and Smith Colleges, and the University of Massachusetts. Some response can also be expected from A.I.C., Springfield College, and several of the teacher's colleges in Western Massachusetts.

Just what can the student do for the person who is suffering from a mental disturbance? In only two hours spent with the patients once a week, you can accomplish quite a bit. Whether it be arts and crafts, music, athletics, remotivation, drama, or social activities, the patient senses and appreciates your presence, and the idea that you are spending time with him. Seven days a week, patients follow the same routine. They eat, sleep, work, and talk with the same people day after day. They welcome the opportunity to talk and work with young, fresh people. Won't

(Continued on page 6)

CLUB DIRECTORY

CHEMISTRY CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 1, at 8 p.m. in Peters Aud of Goessmann. All are invited. Refreshments will be served.

CHESS CLUB
Organizational meeting on Wed., Oct. 2, at 8 p.m. in the Worcester B room of the S.U. Anyone interested is welcome. For more information contact Richard Strange, 218 Gorman.

HEYMAKERS
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the Ballrom of the S.U. Lessons will be given.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 3, at 7:30 p.m. in Skinner Aud. All home ec majors urged to attend.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB
There will be a coffee hour on Tues., Oct. 1 at 3 p.m. in the Governor's Lounge of the S.U.

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 3 at 7 p.m. in the lobby of the Men's Phys Ed bldg. New members welcome.

APO BOOK EXCHANGE
Unclaimed books and payments may be collected on Tues., Oct. 1, between 11 and 4 o'clock in the Barnstable room of the S.U.

Second of Three Articles

A REALISTIC LOOK AT THE VOLUNTEER

by Roger Ebert
For Collegiate Press Service

(Editor's Note: Mr. Ebert, president of the USSPA and editor of The Daily Illini, was one of the four editors to spend one week in Washington recently to edit the Peace Corps News, a supplement to campus newspapers that appears twice yearly. This is the second of a three part articie on the Peace Corps.)

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS)—"In most of the world, it's six o'clock in the morning—and it's dead," Dave Pearson said.

"When the Peace Corps Volunteer moves from a highly mobile society into a sleepy, dawning world where progress is slow and sometimes feared, he must adapt rapidly if he is to be successful."

Pearson, a Peace Corps information officer, said it has been this challenge—and not the stereotyped dangers of mud huts, savage natives, and wild animals—that has created the most problems for Volunteers in the field.

During the first two years of Peace Corps operation, Volunteers had few complaints about living and working conditions. Indeed, many governments went out of their way to see that Corpsmen had adequate living conditions.

But over and over, field representatives heard stories of ioneliness, boredom and solitude. In many areas, Volunteers were the only people with an advanced education, or even with the ability to read and write.

"Yet these Volunteers were bright, inquisitive young people accustomed to a fast-moving society," Pearson said. "To them, the apathy and the quiet were actual enemies, particularly for Volunteers living by themselves."

Almost aii Volunteers managed to succeed in spite of these problems, however, and in many cases they reported that for the first time in their lives they were learning to "really live."

"I had been exposed to an education," Volunteer Raiph Gilman, working on a Ghana project, said. "But I began to feel I'd had enough of second-hand knowledge which had been picked over for my consumption. Now was the time to learn directly from people struggling in life."

Gilman found the slow, underdeveloped society of Ghana a challenge. But in it he found a need to be fuifilled in himself as well as in the society.

"Americans of my generation have inherited a healthy and abundant country," he wrote. "But this good fortune implies the responsibility of some constructive use—responsibilities to the people yearning for an education.

"We tend to become so involved with our fraternities, our jobs, our competition for an education, and our courtship system, that we forget to ask: to what end? After asking myself these questions, I concluded that I hadn't found all the answers in school.

"And so I came to Ghana—not because I feel sorry that others are not like me, and not out of sloppy, superior pity—but because they asked and I am able to help."

Volunteers such as Gilman, with the abiiity to see long-range purposes behind short-term Peace Corps projects, are needed if the Peace Corps is to become a significant, permanent force for world improvement, Pearson said.

"Peace Corps service is not glamorous," he said in a CPS interview. "We've never said it was. It's hard, and tiring, and sometimes discouraging.

"And so the question before us is: now that the newspapers, in interviewing returning Volunteers, have made it clear that boredom and apathy go hand-in-hand with excitement and progress in the Corps, wiii young Americans still be willing to take up the burden?"

The answer, Peace Corps officiais believe, can be found in the American student community. "The Corps has no corner on the idea market," Pearson emphasized.

And Sargent Shriver, Peace Corps Director, told 1200 students at the National Student Congress, held in August at Indiana University;

"I am here to solicit your advice in the months ahead . . . with that continuing support, you and other Americans will continue to build a program that represents the highest traditions of this nation."

(Next: Research To Improve Peace Corps Seiection and Training Procedures.)

THE TRIANGLE OFFICE OF

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

OF AMHERST

located at

243 Triangle Street, Amherst

provides a drive-up window, free parking and all Commercial Bank Services with the exception of Trust and Safe Deposit.

A cordial invitation is extended to all University Students, Faculiy and Personnel to use its facilities.

Monday through Thursday 9 A.M. to 3 P.M.

Friday 9 A.M. to 6 P.M.

Closed Saturdays

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF AMHERST

11 AMITY STREET

Member Federal Reserve System

Member F.D.I.C.

REV. ROBERT F. DRINAN, S.J., Dean of Boston College Law School will lecture on church-state relations

Dean of B. C. Law School To Discuss Ban on Prayer

Church-state relations, and the Supreme Court ban on prayer in U.S. classrooms will be discussed by Rev. Robert F. Drinan, S.J., Dean of Boston College Law School, Tuesday, Oct. 1, at 7:15 p.m. at the Newman Center.

Father Drinan is a Professor of criminal law, family law, jurisprudence, and Church-state relations.

Religion, The Courts and Public Policy, by Father Drinan, has been published this year. In 1961 he contributed a chapter entitled "The Law and the Negro in the North" to the Macmillan publication The Catholic Case Against Segregation. He is also a contributor to the Harvard Law Review, Georgetown Law Review, and other legal and religious journals. Father Drinan is Corresponding Editor of America, the national Catholic weekly.

He is a member of the bars of Massachusetts, District of Columbia, and the United States Supreme Court. He received his A.B. and M.A. from Boston College; his LL.B. and LL.M. from Georgetown University Law Center; and his A.T.L. from Gregorian University. Florence Italy has aiso been the scene of studies for Father Drinan.

Father Drinan is Chairman of the Massachusetts Advisory Committee to the United States Commission on Civil Rights, and Vice-President of the Massachusetts Bar Association. He is also a member of the Council of the Boston Bar Association and the American Judicature Society.

NOTICES

BIKE AUCTION

There will be a bike auction Oct. 1 at 5 p.m. on the South Terrace of the S.U. All bikes that have been unclaimed for over a year will be auctioned off. If you have a missing bike it would be advisable to check the campus security officers.

COMMONS

There will be a "Table Francaise" every Thursday evening beginning Oct. 3 at 5 p.m. in line one of the Dining Commons. Meal tickets will be accepted. Regular meal price wiii be charge otherwise. All those interested ar invited to attend.

FASHION SHOW

Models are needed for the annual fashion show. All interested women should report for interviews at the Hampden Room of the S.U. at 11:15 a.m. Tues., Oct. 1. Casual dress will be appropriate. Bring heels.

(Continued on page 6)

Fly-tying Class To Be Given Tuesday Evenings

A course in fly-tying for persons with no previous experience in this hobby will be taught at the Student Union by Dr. R. Bruce Hoadiey, Asst. Professor of Forestry and Wildlife Mgt., under sponsorship of the Student Union Activities Program.

The course will consist of seven weekly sessions which will be heid on Tuesday evenings from October 8 through November 19; each session wiii last approximately from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m. Included in the course will be the basic principles and techniques in tying flies commonly used for trout and other fresh water fish. At each session, a lecture, covering materials and methods will be followed by step-by-step instructions in tying representative patterns of each of the basic types of flies.

This is purely for one's enjoyment and it is hoped that you will find it very interesting.

Since the class will be limited to 10 people, it would be advisable to sign up early. All the equipment will be furnished and the oniy cost will be for the feathers, books, and thread. This will be minimal.

Anyne interested should contact Mary Alden in the S.U. Program Office before Tuesday, Oct. 8.

Amherst Opera To Present 'Il Trovatore'

On October 18 and 19 at 8:15 p.m., at Amherst Regional High School, the Amherst Community Opera Company in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the birth of Giuseppe Verdi, will present this year's production, a favorite ever since its first performance at the Apollo Theater in Rome on January 18, 1853.

A long roster of highly competent people have been working hard ever since before the first rehearsal on July 10, under the musical direction of Prof. Edwin London of Smith College.

Singing the title role, Henry Falcetti of Holyoke, as Manrico, is appearing for his third successive season with AMCOP since he first responded to the notice about open auditions. Those who have been attending rehearsals predict that he may outdo even his "Pagliacci."

The part of Azucena, the gypsy who adopted Manrico when a baby, is sung by Calliope Shenas of Springfield, remembered by AMCOP patrons for her "Carmen." This role so appealed to Verdi that he nearly called the opera "La Gitana" ("The Gypsy"). The relationship between Azucena and her foster son is all the more poignant when one recalls that Verdi composed this the year his own mother died.

Leonora, Manrico's sweetheart, will be sung by Dorothy Feldman of Amherst, one of AMCOP's stanchest supporters and hardest workers. A regular trouper, a very competent singer, Mrs. Feldman can always be counted on to turn out a professional performance.

Eugene Baker of Springfield, our Escamillo in "Carmen" and Silvio in "Pagliacci," sings the hot-headed Count Di Luna, pursuing the gypsies and battling with Manrico for the hand of Leonora.

In charge of stage direction this season is Naomi Ornest of New York known to AMCOP for "Madame Butterfly" and the "Marriage of Figaro." Mrs. Ornest says she is enjoying working out a new concept for the production of "Il Trovatore," using a unit set, similiar to Shakespearian theater, in order not to hold up the action by cumbersome changes of scenery.

Peter Kerns, Mayo Smith Fellow in the Admission Office of Amherst College, from which he graduated last June, is the scene and costume designer. Working with him are Hal Hatch, Trevor Robinson and A. E. Johnson, Jr.

The chorus is under the experienced direction of Richard R. Rescia, former president of the company and highly skilled musical jack-of-all-trades. Singing will be old and new luminaries, such as the Barrett sisters, Lorraine Teller, Fred Stockton, Dean Allen, Jack Cooper, Hermon and Jack Goodell, Tom Hamilton, Ralph Intorcio, Joseph Langford, Florence Muller, Mr. and Mrs. William Rice.

The orchestra is being organized by Prof. Donald O. White, assistant professor of German at Amherst College, who frankly admits that music is his hobby. New to AMCOP's production committee, one of his tasks has been to procure two anvils for the orchestra to use in "The Anvil Chorus." He is now considered an authority on the whereabouts of anvils in Hampshire and Franklin Counties.

Those who wish to whet their appetites for this annual musical feast may watch "Western Massachusetts Highlights" on October 3 and "At Home With Kitty" on October 9, both on Channel 22.

Josephine Peppard of Amherst, chairman of the production committee, announces that tickets will go on sale on September 25. They may be obtained by mail from AMCOP, 236 N. Pleasant St., Amherst, and in person at the lobby of the Jones Library Auditorium, Monday-Friday 2-4 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday 7-8 p.m. (Phone AL 3-3761). Mornings call AL 3-3272. Until October 12 they will also be available at the Melody Corner, Northampton.

Notices . . .

(Continued from page 5)

FRESHMEN

Beanies again become manditory on Mon., Sept. 31, and must be worn until UMass scores its first touchdown of the Bucknell game. Freshmen will not be admitted to the game without beanies.

GYMNASTIC TEAMS

There will be a meeting of the Freshmen and Varsity gymnastic teams in room 14 of the Curry Hicks Building at 5:45 p.m. Mon., Sept. 30. All persons interested in trying out as well as former members are invited to attend.

NAIADS

There will be tryouts at the Wope. Pool Wednesday and Thursday at 6:30 p.m. Optional practice will be held Monday and Tuesday at the same hour. All classes are welcome to tryout.

S.U. DANCE COMMITTEE

There will be a meeting of the SU. Dance Committee Tuesday., Oct. 1, at 11 a.m. in the Worcester Room of the S.U.

TAU EPSILON PHI

On page 138 of the Handbook the telephone number of Mrs. Bethschieder should read 6-6624 and not as printed.

PAYING JOBS IN EUROPE

Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, Oct. 2, 1963 — The American Student Information Service is accepting applications for summer jobs in Europe. Openings include office jobs, lifeguarding, factory work, shipboard work, child care work, resort and sales work. Wages range to $400 a month.

ASIS also announced that residual funds permit the first 4000 applicants travel grants of $165 each. Interested students should write to Dept. O, ASIS, 22 Ave. de la Liberté, Luxembourg City, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, requesting the ASIS 24-page prospectus with job selection and travel grant and job applications. Send $1 for the prospectus and air mail postage. The first 8000 inquiries receive a $1 credit towards the new book: Earn, Learn and Travel in Europe.

Volunteers . . .

(Continued from page 4)

you give these lonely people some enjoyment?

The rewards in this type of volunteer work are not always visible. A student can Not be expected to make a person who has not spoken in years, utter his first words. Nor can he be expected to aid greatly in a patient's recovery. However, your presence adds enjoyment and hope to a patient's life. And when they say "thank you" or "please come again soon," you feel as if you have accomplished something wonderful. After all, what could be more wonderful than helping a fellow human being!

Watch for Wednesdays Collegian in which another article concerning the program will appear, and if you are interested, pick up an application from your dorm representative or in the Collegian Office, or contact Jerry Kagan—Tel. 253-7498.

A Modest . .

(Continued from page 3)

serve to reduce much of the headaches in the Dean's offices, infirmary and mental health office. (As is pointed out by Ellis, Freud, Jung et al.)

Rev. Jones Inaugurates Hillel Series

Commencing its lecture series on the Social Issues in American Society, the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation will present a lecture by Rev. John Paul Jones on The Religious Approach to War and Peace Tuesday evening, October 1, at 8:00 p.m. at the Student Union.

Rev. Jones is well acquainted with Amherst and its vicinity. He was minister at the Amherst Unitarian Church (1958-1960), and lives in nearby Ashfield. Having one time or another served on the governing board of the Protestant Council of New York, the American Civil Liberties Union, the National Urban League, and the National Peace conference.

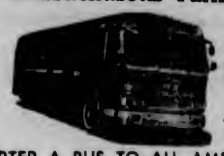
—LOST & FOUND—

LOST: A small gold cross on chain. If found call Carol Hermsdorff, 320 Knowlton.

LOST: Will the person who found a man's gold Hamilton watch in the Men's Phys. Ed. Building please return it to James Connelly, 160 Hills South.

LOST: Sept. 25 in the Commons: reversible ski jacket — black and red. Reward. Return to Norm Condit, 315 Brett.

I profess, in the Sincerity of my Heart, that I have not the least personal Interest, in endeavoring to promote this necessary work; having no motive other than public good. I live off campus, am married and a true Friend of my wife.

PETER PAN BUS LINES
BOSTON EXPRESS BUS
Via Massachusetts Turnpike
—Also Serving—
HOLYOKE
SPRINGFIELD
PALMER
WORCESTER


8 ROUND TRIPS DAILY
For Schedule and Information Call at the THE LOBBY SHOP Student Union
CHARTER A BUS TO ALL AMERICA

University Faculty Members Promoted

Dr. John W. Lederle, president of the University of Massachusetts, today announced the names of 49 faculty members who have received promotions. The promotions, by departments, are as follows:

Agricultural Engineering
Lester R. Whitney to associate professor Agriculture and Food Economics
John H. Foster to associate professor
Agronomy
Jonas Vengris to associate professor Athletics
Victor Fusia to professor
Theodore Schmitt to associate professor
John J. Delaney to assistant professor
Frederick L. Glatz to instructor
John A. Leaman to instructor
Chemical Engineering
Kenneth D. Cashin to professor Chemistry
John E. Roberts to professor
Trevor Robinson to associate professor
Cranberry Station
Irving E. Demoranville to assistant professor
Dairy and Animal Science
Donald L. Black to associate professor Economics
Reuben Miller to assistant professor
English
Richard Haven to associate professor
Arnold Silver to associate professor
John Weston to associate professor
Albert Madeira to assistant professor
Entomology and Plant Pathology
Bert M. Zuckerman to professor
Richard A. Rohde to associate professor Marion E. Smith to associate professor Food Science and Technology
Kirby M. Hayes to professor
Herbert O. Hultin to associate professor
Wassef W. Nawar to associate professor
Ward M. Hunting to assistant professor Government
Loren P. Beth to acting head of department
Geology
Gregory W. Webb to associate professor
Peter Robinson to assistant professor
Home Economics
Virginia Davis to associate professor
Marjorie M. Merchant to associate professor Marjorie F. Sullivan to assistant professor Horticulture
George E. Goddard to assistant professor Landscape Architecture
Gordon S. King to professor Management
Arthur Elkins to assistant professor
Mechanical Engineering
Richard W. Trueswell to associate professor
Charles R. Bissey to assistant professor Philosophy
Joe W. Swanson to associate professor
Physical Education—Men
Richard Bergquist to assistant professor
Physical Educatiton—Women
Sally A. Ogilvie to associate professor
Esther A. Wallace to associate professor
Physics
Philip Rosen to acting head of department
William D. Foland to associate professor
Public Health
Karol S. Wisnieski to assistant professor Romance Languages
Robert B. Johnson to professor
Waltham Field Station
Franklin Campbell, Jr. to assistant professor
Dean of Men
William H. Burkhardt to assistant dean of men
Dean of Women
Isabelle L. Gonon to assistant dean of women
Forestry
William MacConnell to professor
Herschel G. Abbott to associate professor

YALE PROFESSOR OF PHILOSOPHY TO LECTURE HERE WEDNESDAY

The philosophy Dept. will present a lecture by Dr. Norwood Russell Hanson, professor of Philosophy at Yale University on Wednesday, Oct. 10. The lecture, entitled, "Equivalence, the Paradox of Theoretical Analysis," will be given at 8 p.m. in the Middlesex-Nantucket rooms of the Student Union.

Doctor Hanson, who received his B.A. degree from the University of Chicago and a Ph.D. from Cambridge University, is the author of many articles and of two books, entitled Concept of the Position, and Patterns of Discovery.

In addition to his teaching at Yale, he has taught at Indiana and Cambridge, and served as University lecturer at Oxford, educational adviser for the University of Maryland Overseas program. His studies have included work at Columbia University, Oxford University, St. John's College at Cambridge, and the Curtis Institute of Music, in Philadelphia; and he has held several scholarships and fellowships for advanced study in England, France, and Italy, as well as in the U.S.

Ken Palm dives over line in the only Redmen scoring threat.

Goalline Stand ...

(Continued on page 10)

THE UM LINE PLAY was a bright spot in the contest for Redmen followers. Harvard got nowhere trying to run straight ahead. The Crimson's biggest gains come on the passing of Bassett and the halfback sweeps around end. But on first and goal at the UM one-yard line, Harvard insisted on ramming its heads against a brick wall four times in a row.

Sophomores Bernie Dallas and Bob Ellis had big days on defense. Dallas broke through Harvard's line to smear Mike Basset for big losses. Ellis put the stop on Bill Grana on the fourth down of the goal line stand, intercepted a Bassett pass and made a half dozen crisp tackles of Crimson runners.

NEXT WEEK Bucknell University will be the guest at UMass' first home game of the season.

Coast Guardsmen Down Briggsmen Booters 2-1

by STEVE SCHUTZ and ROSS JONES

NOT EVERYONE WAS AT HARVARD Saturday afternoon as the UMass booters hosted the Midshipmen of the Coast Guard Academy, dropping a tough decision 2-1 before a crowd of 200.

From the opening kick, the first period was lively with both teams trying to gain the early advantage. UMass inside right Buzz Whitman, in and out of the game as opportunities for corner kicks developed, was unable to lend the scoring punch to the booters as the first period ended scoreless.

UMass drew first blood at 1:37 of the second period when a Middie Fullback used hands to prevent Pat McDevitt, in alone, from scoring. Dick Leete, responsible for last week's lone score against Army, scored on the penalty kick. The booters were unable to capitalize on their advantage due to the fine saves of Middie centerhalf Bob Walker which broke up several UMass scoring attempts. There was no serious Coast Guard threat to the Redmen goal due to almost constant pressure on the Middie half of the field.

A REVITALIZED COAST GUARD team bounced back in the third quarter to punch through the tying goal. With less than a minute played in the period, Middie inside Gerry McGill set up Bill Carr for the score. Six minutes later center forward Marty Hoppe scored from close inside to move the Coast Guard ahead 2-1. The Redmen kept the pressure on in the last minutes of the period as Dick Leete failed on a second penalty kick.

A third penalty shot by Pat McDevitt went high. Tom Astaldi, driving in, set up Pat McDevitt several times, only to have the shots go wide or bounce off the Coast Guard goalie. The Middie goalie Morgan, along with center half Walker combined to stop repeated drives by Dick Leete and Kevin Lyons set up by fullback Dick Repeta's long boots. The fourth quarter and the game ended at 2-1 Coast Guard.

THE REDMEN NEXT FACE the rugged booters of Williams at 11 a.m. Saturday on the UMass home field.

MANAGER

Any person interested in serving as either Freshman Basketball or Soccer Manager should report to Coach Leaman Room 6 of the Curry Hicks Building or on the soccer field 4-6 p.m.

SPORTS STAFF

All persons interested in writting for the Collegian Sports Staff contact one of the Sports Editor at the Collegian Office Tuesday, Thursday, or Sunday 6-10 P.M.

INTERNATIONAL TENNIS

Intramural Tennis Tournament

The intramural Tennis Tournament will start Monday Sept. 30, with 59 enries already being accepted. If interested call Steve Harrington at T.E.P.

GYMNASTIC TEAMS

There will be a meeting of the Freshmen and Varsity Gymnastic teams in room 14 of the Plysical Education Building at 5:45 p.m., Mon., Sept. 30, 1963. Tryouts will also be held for those interested.

Harriers Trample Coast Guard Brouillet Sets Meet Record

by JIM RYAN

THE UMASS VARSITY CROSS-COUNTRY team opened their season Saturday afternoon against the Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn. with an 18-40 triumph, a very impressive showing for what is practically a new team. With only senior Bob "Digger" Brouillet returning from last year's team, the Redmen took five of the first six places.

"Digger", ran away from the field as he covered the 3.9 mile course in the record time of 20:29.5. The old record of 20:38 was held by Terry Merritt of Springfield College. Brouillet, headed for another great season as one of New England's top runners, came in over 70 seconds ahead of second place finisher Bob Ramsey of UMass, who ran very well and finished in 21:41. Ramsey, a junior, has been running very well in practice, and after Saturday's performance, will be one of the top men on this year's squad.

UMASS SWEPT 4th, 5th, and 6the places behind Faurot of C.G. who finished 3rd. Soph Bob Molvar, who finished 4th in 22:18, was in second place for a good part of the race, but suffered cramps on one of the hills and was unable to shake them. The other two UMass scorers were Gene Colburn, 22:22, and Al MacPhail, 22:23. Only five seconds separated these last three boys. Also placing for UMass were Tom Panke, 9th, and Bob Larson, 11th.

Quarterback Jerry Welchel nails Harvards Bill Grana to stop Harvard advance.

Harvard drive stopped at line of scrimmage by Fullback Mike Ross.

Precisionettes ...

(Continued from page 1)

and continue to bring the same credit to the University as they have in the past.

Field congratulated the group on their "marvelous co-operation" in helping the band to adapt to large formations, before the band itself has to membership to do so.

AMHERST FOLK WORK SHOP

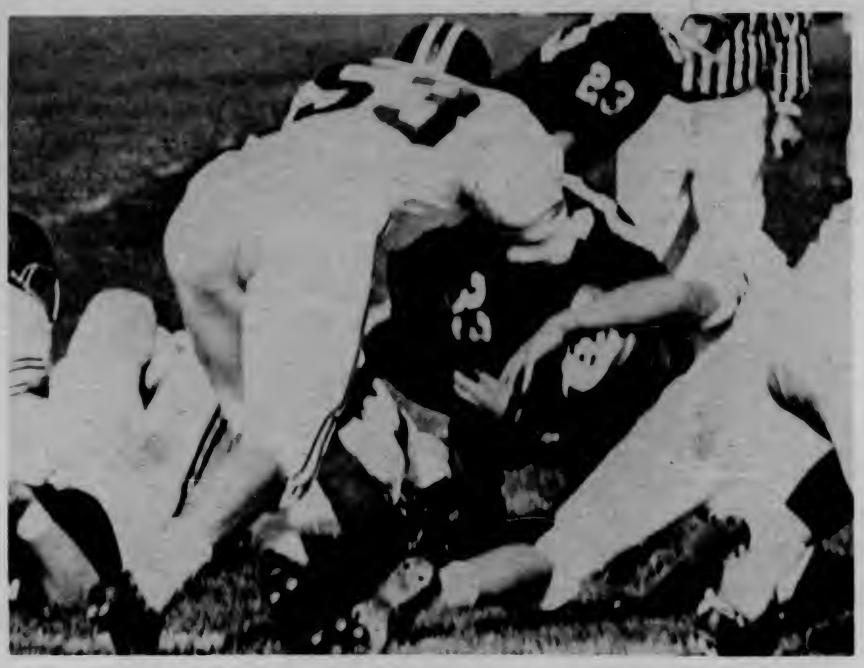
• PRIVATE GUITAR & BANGO - LESSONS

• GUITARS, BANGOES, AUTOHARPS - BOUGHT & SOLD

BOB WEBER GEORGE WEBB AL 3-5905

Collegian Photos on pages 7 and 8 by Darryl Fine and Ron Goldberg

Crimson Holds Redmen 0-0



UM center Charlie Scialdone stops back Stan Yastrzemski to begin decisive goal line stand.

Goal Line Stand Stops Harvard

by STEVE HEWEY

CAMBRIDGE. The University of Massachusetts, sputtering and impatient on the oflensive but courageous and determined on the defensive managed to hold off a more impressive Harvard University team to a 0-0 draw before a crowd of 16,500 onlookers at Harvard Stadium Saturday afternoon.

A brilliant goal line stand saved what seemed to be a sure Crimson score. In the last period it was the clock that saved the UMass eleven from what seemed to be doom as a last ditch Harvard drive ran out of time on the UMass five.

Harvard was off and running the first time it got its hands on the ball. After taking Milt Morin's game opening kick the Crimson began sweeping and running the left side of the Redmen defenses and reached the Massachusetts 24 yard line and a first down. Three downs later Harvard was still on the 24. A fourth down field goal attempt from the 30 fell short and wide to the right.

THE REDMEN RAN five sets of downs in the first half, most of the plays trying the left side of the Crimson defenses for little gain. On the fourth down of each series UM fullback Paul Vandersea was called upon to punt. The Fusiamen failed to pick up a single first down during the whole first half.

During the second quarter it was Harvard that again dominated the game. Starting on its own 24 the Crimson steadily advanced downfield to the UM 18 before halfback Bob Ellis intercepted a Mike Basset pass intended for halfback Scott Harshbarger.

Five plays later Harvard had the ball again via a Vandersea punt. In six plays the Crimson came from its own 40 to the UMass one and a first down and goal to go situation. For four plays the Redmen line took on the qualities of a brickwall.

HALF STAN YASTRZEMSKI carried on first down only to be met by UM center Charlie Scialdone for no gain. Yastrzemski tried the right side and again was stopped cold, this time by end John Hudson. Halfback Wally Grant on a third down try was halted by the center of the UMass line. On fourth down and still one to go fullback Bill Grana was nailed by Bob Ellis for no gain as the time ran out. The Redmen defenders left the field to the standing ovation of 5000 UM rooters.

In the second half UMass appeared to have more life in its game but still could not put together even an appearance of a scoring threat. Harvard also seemed to have lost some of its spark that ignited its offense in the first two quarters.

The deepest penetration into Harvard territory by the Redmen came in the fourth quarter when a drive highlighted by a Whelchel to Morin pass, good for 23 yards, conked out on the Harvard 22. The Redmen had the ball on two occasions after this but gave it up on a punt and a fumble.

WITH TIME RUNNING OUT the Crimson unrolled its second big threat of the day, Tom Bilodeau took Vandersea's 6th punt on the afternoon on his own 41. Wally Grant scooted around right end for a ten yard gain but the play was called back on a back-in-motion penalty.

Back on its own 36 Harvard took to the air. Quarterback Mike Basset hit Dave Poe on the Harvard 42 for a 6 yard gain. Basset connected with end Tom Stephenson who was stopped by Whelchel on the UM 32. Guard Joe Doyle spilled Basset for a 9 yard loss and Basset's next two passes went astray. On fourth and 19 the Crimson quarterback found Ken Boyda at the 16 and Boyda was stopped by Whelchel on the 11.

ON FIRST DOWN DAVE POE went off tackle to the UM 5. But the ball was still there as the final gun sounded and Harvard could not get off another play. The Crimson had already squandered its allotment of time outs and could not call another to get a field goal kicker into the game.

The UMass offensive was rather unimaginative. Jerry Whelchel, rated for his passing threat, tried only six during the contest, three of which found their marks. But Whelchel was the object of numerous blitzes by Crimson ends and tackles before he could get set to throw. Several times he was nailed for big losses on third downs. After the game Vic Fusia said that the Crimson pass defense was tighter than he had expected that it would be, another reason for the de-emphasis on passing.

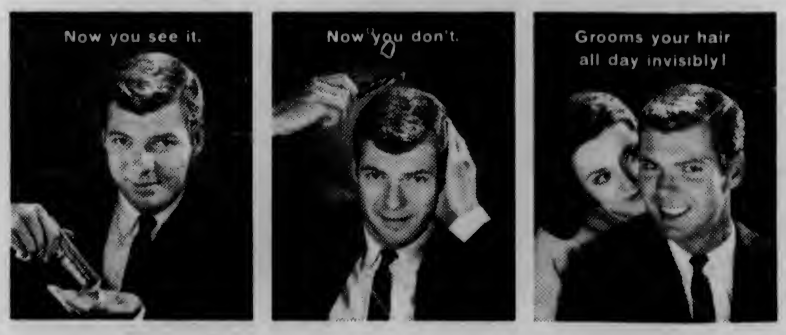
Poor timing in the backfield still plagues UMass. The Redmen were penalized five times Saturday, four of them for backfield in motion violations. The other was a personal foul in the first quarter.

(Continued on page 7)

it's invisible, man!

It's *in*credible, *in*comparable, *in*fallible! Code 10 for men, the new kind of hairdressing from Colgate-Palmolive. The new *in*visible way to groom a man's hair all day. Non-greasy Code 10 disappears in your hair, gives it the clean, manly look that *in*flames women, *in*furiates *in*ferior men. Be in. Get the non-greasy hairdressing, Code 10. It's *in*visible, man!

code 10 HAIR DRESSING FOR MEN



RIDE

wanted from Northampton to U.M. on MWF to arrive in time for an 11 a.m. class. Call Northampton JU 4-3428 ask for Janet

LIBRARY

LIBRARY
OCT 8 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 7 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1963

Kennedy To Attend Amherst's Convocation

Forestry Building Begins New Trend

by KATHLEEN OSTERBERG

The beautiful new Holdsworth Hall, located behind Stockbridge Hall, is the most recent addition to the University. The building houses the Wildlife and Forestry Departments, plus the new Fisheries Department.

The contrast between Holdsworth Hall and the Conservation Building where the Departments were previously located is impressive.

The Conservation Building, built in 1867 was one of the original five buildings on campus. The old wooden-framed building can hardly be compared to the 3 story Holdsworth Hall which is equipped with mauve-colored chalkboards and beige diamond-effect cinderblocks. A lengthy covered pavillion runs to the birch panelled entrance of the new building. The faculty lounge has an ultra modern decor with a small terrace overlooking the hillsides.

Holdsworth's third floor boasts of the newly formed Fisheries

(Continued on page 4)

WMUA Holds Open House Sat. And Sun.

On October 5 and 6, 1933 from 9:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M., WMUA is cordially extending an invitation to visit its studios located in the Engineering Building. On display will be the new $10,000 broadcasting system, including a Gates transmitter, Ampe tape recorder, Collins control board, and three Gates turntables.

'Tosca'

See Review page 2

Robert Frost Library Dedication Draws Poets And Presidents

An estimated 4,000 persons are expected to attend the special Amherst College Convocation to honor President Kennedy October 26.

The ceremony will be followed by the ground breaking for the new Robert Frost Library at Amherst and includes an address by the President. Other participants will be Archibald MacLeish, poet and critic; John J. McCloy, chairman of the Amherst Board of Trustees and presidential advisor on disarmament and by President Calvin H. Plimpton of Amherst.

President Kennedy will receive the degree of doctor of laws and will make an address at the Convocation. He is also expected to take part in the ground breaking ceremony on Amherst's central campus quadrangle.

Due to the limited amount of seating space for the Convocation, the ceremony will not be open to the general public.

The two ceremonies form part of Amherst's annual Alumni Weekend which this year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Amherst Alumni Council. Other events scheduled October 26 include football, soccer and cross-country competition with Wesleyan University.

President Kennedy's appearance at Amherst is the first official campus visit by a president of the United States in the College's 142-year history. Calvin Coolidge, though a graduate of Amherst and a trustee of the College from 1921 until his death, never visited Amherst during his term as president. William Howard Taft received an honorary degree from Amherst in 1913, shortly after leaving the White House.

Approximately 2500 persons will be seated in the Amherst Indoor Athletic Field where the Convocation will take place, while 1500 others will be seated in Kirby Theater and Alumni Gymnasium to witness the events on closed circuit television. Admission to all three buildings will be limited to invited ticket holders.

WFCR To Broadcast Philharmonic Concerts

Funds contributed to radio station WFCR-FM in Amherst will enable it to bring all 32 weekly concerts of the New York Philharmonics orchestra to listeners in western New England during the coming season.

The concerts will be broadcast live on Sunday afternoons from 3 to 5 p.m. direct from Philharmonic Hall at New York's Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts. The series will begin on Sunday, Oct. 6, and continue for 32 weeks through May 10, 1964.

The broadcasts are made possible by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Adams of South Hadley, Mass., who have been interested in WFCR since it first went on the air three years ago.

WFCR is a non-commercial, educational facility owned and operated by Amherst, Mount Holyoke, Smith and the University of Massachusetts as part of their cooperative program (FCR stands for "Four-College-Radio").

(Continued on page 4)

Revelers Student Activities Prog. Rated Success

The annual Student Activities Night was sponsored and held Tuesday evening by the Revelers.

Despite the fact that not too many of the campus organizations took this opportunity to introduce Freshmen to their groups, the program was a success.

Many campus clubs; service, scholastic, religious and specific interest groups participated.

The program was highlighted by the performance of the University Musigals and Statesmen.

BUCKNELL RALLY

There will be a rally and dance at the Student Union on Friday for the Bucknell game. The parade will start at Van Meter at 6:30 p.m. and proceed to the Student Union via the girls' dorms. All Freshmen must wear their beanies.

SENIOR PICTURES

A post card assigning the exact date will be sent to those who sign their name, campus address and day and hour.

Senior photographs will be taken in the last two weeks of October.

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

The Brown-Noser

by MARK CHEREN

Ah, you remember that oft used high school epithet. 'Made your blood just about curdle, didn't it. Indeed, was not many a worthy question left unasked for fear of the sign of the fist-affixed nose?

But you're right. That was justified. It really did make a difference to the all too many aimless veterans and frustrated burlesque-house throwbacks who ended up teaching in our war baby high schools. They lacked the insight and plain common sense to judge our performance rationally—that is, by what we produced relative to our ability.

Funniest thing, though. Some people still think that the term applies, right here in college. Imagine, these people are actually paying for an education out of their own parents' pockets, and yet they habitually hesitate and usually desist from asking their professors about things that sincerely interest but puzzle them because of the aforementioned foolish neurosis*. (Symptomatic of this sort of neurotic is the appearance of goose bumps at the mere suggestion that a (shudder) "close" student-professor relationship might be enjoyable as well as intellectually stimulating.)

Even though they realize that the problem of relative ability has been largely reduced by university admissions requirements; and even though they remember that, in their own experience, about nineteen out of twenty professors (or their behind the scenes assistants) determine marks on a basis of objectively determined grades. (Admittedly, the standards aren't always the best, but for the most part everyone in the class is judged by the same norm); and even though they realize how many professors would give anything for the bashfully mumbled sounds that indicate that someone's listening to them, or for the termite soft knocking on their office doors which never seem to come during those eternally lonely "office hours". Yes, despite all this they still maintain their cadaverish silence. Aren't you glad you're not like them?

*i.e. based on fear of rejection by the same or opposite sex, depending upon the subject's interests.

Tosca--A Review

by LOIS SKOLNICK

With a superb performance of Tosca by the Goldovsky Grand Opera Theater, the University Concert Association began its 1963-1964 season on Monday night.

Playing to a well-dressed and entuhsiastic audience of about 1800, Mr. Boris Goldovsky directed his company in a skillful and dramatic presentation of Puccini's Tosca.

This highly dramatic Italian opera takes place in Rome, relating the drama of the love between a painter and an opera singer (Tosca). Tragedy evolves with the arrival of an escaped political prisoner, complicated by the jealous love of his pursuer, the Chief of Police, for Tosca. The story dramatically ends with the death of all four protagonists.

The presentation is an example of Mr. Goldovsky's unique concept of operatic production, "one in which realistic, convincing stage action was happily united with musical and vocal excellence."

Although enunciation could have been clearer, Mr. Goldovsky's flowing English verses of Tosca were very skillfully acted and sung by the talented Lucien Oliver, Dean Wilder, Josephine Busalacchi and Sherill Milnes in leading roles.

The effective set design was a further result of Mr. Goldovsky's particular concepts of operatic production, which aim to ensure authenticity of presentation.

Mr. Goldovsky and company deserve commendation for giving a splendid performance in spite of the great physical discomforts offered by the makeshift auditorium.

Letters To The Editor

Two Sick "Heroes"

To the editor,

In the process of living at a University such as ours, one encounters vast differences of beliefs, behavior, and mentality. Though we must accept many of these differences, some can only be termed "sick" or abnormal.

In the past summer someone from this growing monster called a University had the mentality to realize that our concrete, steel limbs are crushing out all natural beauty. A plan was set forth to not only preserve the pond area but to add life to it in the form of 16 ducks and 4 swans. It is safe to say that many students welcome the addition and appreciate the University's efforts.

Today (Tuesday) students will notice 15 ducks, 4 swans, and one ball of feathers with a rock embedded in it. Last night two "sick" students did their utmost to destroy these pond residents. Their efforts were startling: carrying and throwing as many stones as possible and then running the length of the pond to get more stones from the street. Their drive to kill these harmless, helpless creatures, and the joy they derived from it was repulsive to all onlookers. Only one, with the mentality of a mad, frustrated, little boy, could have taken such delight in these efforts.

Perhaps they were having some "Hero" delusions—for they were shocked at my intrusion. I would like to ask them why? Were they out of rocks? Was it getting past their bed time? Or, was it because I am bigger than the duck they hit?

If such people have no respect for nature and helpless living creatures perhaps they can respect property rights. These birds are the property of our University. DON'T STONE OUR PROPERTY!

W.R.D. '65

A Plea For Authenticity

Despite Boris Goldovsky's excellent overall production of Tosca, there was one flagrant shortcoming, namely the text. The meager program contained no synopsis of the story and not many students had ever heard or seen the work performed. Italian opera is meant to be sung in Italian and there is only one slight justification to attempt yet another "new" English version: that the dramatic action be made clear to an American audience. This noble aim was not achieved last Monday night, nor does our idiom lend itself to reproduce the dramatic coval quality inherent in Puccini's great arias.

What was understandable made the opera seem more comic than tragic. "Why must you now withdraw your hand?" is highly inadequate as the conclusion of "Vissi d'arte" and "Here lies the man who made all Romans tremble" cannot convey the awesome fear of "Davanti a lui tremava tutta Roma." Cavaradossi's last lament turns to parody—always dangerously close in opera—when "E lucevan le stelle" is rendered by "I remember the moonlight." My wife claims that Tosca's last line as she throws herself down from the top of what seemed a particularly unfortunate replica of Castel Sant'Angelo was: "Mario, my dear, with you!" which is both unfair to God and to Tosca's villainous victim Scarpia. Only two lines were clearly understandable: "How can I be certain?" and "I can stand it no more." Is any additional comment necessary?

Paul A. Mankin
Department of Romance Languages

The Logician

To Dick Cass

Mr. Cass, I happened to notice your criticism of Mr. John Child's views, in which you point out faulty procedure in his logic. Since you manifest a liking for logic, I suggest that you investigate the definition of the word "inference" before you use it again. Inference is a process in logic whereby conclusions are drawn from given premises. People infer; facts imply. The wording of your criticism uses the the word "infer" as though it means "to mean" or "imply," which it does not. Before you make open statements criticizing other individuals' usage of logic. Mr. Cass, I suggest you check your own.

Shawn Cooper
Graduate Student

The Old Tow Line

I looked out from class the other day
And watched my car get towed away.
It reminded me quite a bit of Boston—
All those tow-signs, and cops accosting.
Some Jones or Shumway bought a wrecker
And is building a home, now; a double decker!
And the Col. has a new car . . .

YH

To the Editor:

I would like to ask J.S.D., whoever he may be, if he has ever lived in an emergency triple.

G.M.

He claims he has. —Ed.

Redeem Thyselves

There exists on this campus an organization. It is a fine organization. It is called the Student Senate. There is in the Student Union an office. It is a big office. It is called the Recognized Student Organizations Office. There is in the RSO office a table. It is not a very big table. But it is big enough. There are on this table nomination papers. They are blank nomination papers. There are many of them—TOO MANY!!

Did you ever wonder how many complaints are voiced in the Collegian and the Senate? Did you ever stop and think what these complaints mean? Are they so numerous because we're just miserable or because we like to be arbitrary?

I don't know the answer and neither do the Senate or class leaders. We don't know because many people are satisfied to have their say and not do anything about it. They complain about housing—that seems to be quite the thing now—and they complain about that awful thing that invades every year about this time that has six letters and begins with an "a".

This week, these people who feel so strongly about the existing conditions on campus could have walked into that big office in which is that not very big table with too many blank nomination papers on it, and they could have signed for one of these papers and gotten twenty-five of their fellow complainers to support them—then they would have had the opportunity to remedy some of these conditions. But the number of complaints still heavily outweighed the number of nomination papers returned to the Senate on the deadline!!

It is this type of negative response that creates even more dissatisfaction, and we all know that things are so horribly-horrible now that we can't allow this to happen. But we still can ACT to prevent this from happening. Tomorrow—from 6:00 to 9:00 in the rec-rooms of the dorms, we can elect dorm senators; and from 8:30 to 5:00 in the lobby of the student union, we can elect fraternity, sorority, and commuter senators—who care enough to do our complaining for us and voice our opinions (negative or affirmative) where they will count.

If we don't stop talking and start acting NOW, we may lose our privilege to act — WE SHOULD KNOW BY NOW THAT JUST TALKING GETS US NOWHERE.

Marilyn "Sam" Singer, '65

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

Former Sig Ep

New Dean For Fraternities

by DAN GLASBAND

With the UMass campus now caught up in the furor of rushing, an introduction to our new Fraternity Dean, William Barnard, and an insight into his policies might be appropriate.

Mr. Barnard was graduated from the University in 1958, and has since travelled throughout the United States as an advertising promotion manager for a national firm. Recently married, the Dean devotes much of his time to mountain climbing and working on his hi-fi set.

While he was a student at the University, Mr. Barnard served as President of his pledge class and pledge trainer of Sigma Phi Epsilon. He also was editor-in chief of the Index.

Although Dean Barnard's position is administrative, he plans to lend active advisory support to both fraternities and the individual members, in order to bring the houses closer together and adjust their aims so that they can act unitedly for the good of the fraternity system and in a manner consistent with the educational aims of the University.

With the University planning to expand to 20,000 students within the next ten years, the life or death of the fraternity system depends on a concurrent growth with the University. Dean Barnard expressed the desire to see the fraternities accomplish this expansion in a "healthy fashion." To realize this goal, he plans to follow the houses in day to day activity, and to offer guidance to them and to act as consultant on rushing, pledge training, and in any advisory capacity where he can be of assistance.

Mr. Barnard shows a positive attitude toward the fraternities, and wishes to be of assistance without taking direct administrative charge. Although the houses are subject to University regulations, they are individually responsible for their affairs and are jointly responsible to the Inter-Fraternity Council.

G.E. College Bowl

Those interested in trying out for the team and as yet have not taken the preliminary test should contact Mr. Madeira in his office Thursday afternoon.

University Psychiatrist Describes College Life

by PAT LONG

"A competitive, demanding life, conducive to stress" — this was how Dr. Julian Janowitz, Director of Mental Hygiene at the University, summed up campus life in a recent interview. Preventing the problems that can arise in such an atmosphere is, Dr. Janowitz feels, the principal task that he and his colleagues at the Infirmary face.

This most important "team" consists of Dr. Janowitz himself and two staff psychologists, Dr. Havens and Dr. Allen, who share among them the heavy load of students who come seeking help or advice. "In an average week, we see about 60 students for interviews, although the number may vary anywhere from 40 to (near examination time) 120 students."

More than two-thirds of the personal problems brought to the suite of offices on the second floor of the Infirmary are cleared up in less than five interviews. Dr. Janowitz finds that the large majority of these problems are, in some form or another, "those of transition from adolescence to young adulthood. Students find themselves in situations in which they are forced to readjust their values, and the process can be a difficult one."

These difficulties are not necessarily an effect of the pressures of campus life, but often the atmosphere of stress and constant challenge can aggravate them. Dr. Janowitz feels that an important part of his job lies in the field of "preventive mental health." Thus, in an effort to create a social climate conducive to good mental health, and to develop a proper attitude towards this problem on the part of the University community, the staff spends a great deal of time talking to dorms, to counselors-in-training, to the school's Deans.

Dr. Janowitz emphasized that their job is shared by others on campus. "Often our functions as sympathetic listeners and advisors overlap with those of the Counseling and Guidance Services and the chaplains."

The image that many college students have of psychiatrists is dominated, he feels, by stereotypes and clichés about "headshrinkers" and "big black couches." Much of the work of the

(Continued on page 6)

UM Dame's Club Stresses Service

by IRIS ANN DECELLES

There exists at UMass a dedicated, self-supported organization of females known as the 'Dames'. These females are no ordinary gals; they are the drive behind every UMass husband. They are the wives!

Who can be a 'Dame'? According to the National Constitution ratified in 1933 and adopted by the UMass Chapter in 1954, "any wife of an undergraduate or graduate student or any wife who is herself a student can become a 'Dame'."

The 'Dames' are not just a group of girls who get together to swap receipts or discuss children. Although they do enjoy themselves at their monthly meeting every third Thursday of the month, 'Dames' special reason for organizing is never forgotten—that is, the promotion of friendship and fidelity among families where one or both members is trying to further his education at the University. The symbol of the 'Dames', a wedding ring pierced by an arrow, expresses this goal adequately.

Some of the traditional activities of Dames Club are giving a scholarship to a married student, sponsoring a dinner dance for all 'Dames' and their husbands, planning a family picnic, and giving the children a Christmas party. The money to support these events is earned by having cake sales, rummage sales, or bazaars.

The UMass Chapter of Dames Club, a recognized member of the RSO since 1956, cordially invites all married student wives and female married students to join its organization and become an active 'Dame'. President Gloria Blodgett or Vice-President Trudy Brown, who can be reached at AL 3-5631 or AL 3-7779 respectively, would be pleased to tell you more about 'Dames'.

One last word about 'Dames'. While the male partner is receiving his Bachelor or Doctorate degree at Graduation in June, 'His Dame' will receive her PHT—Putting Hubby Through. Don't you wish you could become a 'Dame'?

The Folk Scene

by BOB WEBER

This area abounds with people who have worked or are working on a professional basis within the "folk idiom." This week's column will survey some of these people.

On our own campus, we have Gill Woods who lives in Granby, Mass. Gill was a member of the "Tikis," a commercially orientated folk quartet. Gill plays guitar and has been singing as a single in the Western Mass. area this summer.

Brooks House is the abode of Anne Baxter, a member of the class of '65. Ann sings ballads and worked this summer in Provincetown on Cape Cod.

This summer, UMass welcomed Dick Doherty, who transfered here from Northeastern. Dick sang with the Rovers 3 who recorded on the Columbia label. Dick is currently forming a trio here on campus, tentatively called the Bondsmen. They'll be making their debut on campus in the near future.

The town of Amherst is fortunate to have George Weir as a resident. Familiar to a great many people on campus, George recently returned from New York City where he spent a year singing in village coffee houses. George is a partner in the Amherst Folk Workshop and is currently teaching and performing in the Western Mass. area.

For those of you who have the transportation, there will be a

(Continued on page 6)

How come you always buy Keds Court Kings every Fall? Why can't you be like me and try new things—like KEDS' new 'WALKING TWEEDS'?? They're the AUTHENTIC Scottish 'Fannich' check, loomed by Guilford in washable wool, and EXCLUSIVE WITH KEDS!! Why don't you ever try new things, hm?

I guess I just like COURT KING, that's all.

LOOK FOR THE BLUE LABEL*

the Keds

*Both U.S. Keds and the blue label are registered trademarks of

United States Rubber

Rockefeller Center, New York 20, New York

If you don't get it from this description
I think we'll cancel
our subscription.

3
AEPi CLUE
4

You probably thought it
To be a fad
When you read our ad
Not really knowing what you had.

Placement Convocation Change

The following changes in the schedule of Placement Convocations have been made:

(1) A Special Convocation for boh men and women will be held in the Student Union Ballroom Thursday, October 3, at 11:15 a.m. The purpose of this special convocalton is to acquaint Seniors with opportunities for graduate studies both scholastically and financially. Dr. Edward C. Moore, dean of the graduate school, will speak about prerequisites and entrance, methods of applying, types of fellowships available, overseas appointments and the like. There will be an opportunity for questions.

Because of the increasing competition for the limited number of places in graduate schools, it is of the utmost importance for seniors to formulate plans as early as possible. Whether genuinely or merely tentatively considering graduate study following graduation, this convocation will be most helpful.

(2) The second and third overall Senior Convocations for women (previously scheduled October 3 and November 21) will be combined and held on Thursday, October 10, in the Student Union Ballroom. At this meeting the following matters will be discussed: job opportunities for women, recruiting procedure, interviewing techniques and job hunting procedures.

(3) The Special Convocation for Education majors will be held at 11:15 a.m. Thursday, November 21, in the Student Union Ballroom. This meeting will be held to discuss certain aspects of occupational planning pertinent to the teaching profession.

Again Seniors are urged to complete their registration and make an appointment for their individual interview.

Northampton Hospital Orientation Saturday

This is the second article to appear in the Collegian concerning the program for volunteers at the Northampton State Mental hospital.

An orientation will be held at the hospital this Saturday, Oct. 5th, during which time interested students will have an opportunity to view the hospital facilities, talk with the directors of the hospital, and decide which program interests them.

The Wednesday night program of social activities gives the student an opportunity to work on the wards, directly with the patients, toward a goal of resocialization. Volunteers teach the patients and participate with them in table games, group singing, dancing and other quiet activities. This program has met with great success in past years.

The Thursday night program of remotivation offers the student a chance to work with patients in an effort to help them express themselves. The process of remotivating a patient is a difficult but interesting one, and this program has also met much success in the past.

On weekdays, student volunteers may become involved in programs such as arts and crafts, athletics and recreation, music and case aid. It should be pointed out here, that in all these programs adequate hospital supervision is provided and general discussion sessions between volunteers and hospital personnel are held after each program.

Do your part to help these people. Two hours a week is certainly not too much to ask of you. Remember, you will be participating in activities along with students from other colleges and universities. Any students interested are urged to attend the orientation which will take place this Saturday morning. Rides will be leaving from the Student Union lobby at 9:45 a.m. If you have not as yet filled out an application form, you may do so on Saturday. For further information, call Jerry Kagan at 253-7498.

—Photo by Darryl Finc

Yesterday's bike auction on the Terrace of the Student Union netted over four hundred dollars for the Scholarship Fund.

WMUA To Bring Controversial Topics

On Thursday, October 3, Impulse, an hour series dealing with controversial subjects on campus begins over WMUA, the campus radio station.

This week Dr. Venman, from the Provost's Office, Dr. William Field, Dean of Students, and Dr. Harold Gordon of the History Department will join in an "on-the-air" discussion of the advantages and disadvantages of year-round operation of the University. The main purpose of the program is to clear up the confusion and misinformation which exists on the subject.

Drs. Venman and Gordon are members of the Faculty Senate

(Continued on page 6)

Four-College Radio ...

(Continued from page 1)

It operates at a frequency of 88.5 megacycles on the FM dial.

The New York Philharmonic concerts, longest symphonic series in U. S. radio history, will begin its 34th year of broadcasting next Sunday. Other musical events to be heard over WFCR during the coming year include live concerts by the Metropolitan Opera company and the Boston Symphony orchestra.

Listeners may subscribe to WFCR's monthly schedule at $2 per year through its subscription office, Box 611, Amherst Mass.

Todays Voting Will Elect New Senators

The results of today's election will name 44 new senators from the 80 candidates running. Competition will be keen for the six seats alloted to commuters with 11 candidates on the ballot. In contrast, Married Dorm and Gorman House will have to depend on write-in voting for senators to fill their seat quota.

Students are encouraged to vote at the designated times and places: Fraternities, Sororities, Commuters, At Large; 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. Dormitory students 6-9 p.m. in the lobby or recreation room of their respective dorms.

Forestry Building ...

(Continued from page 1)

Department under the guidance of Dr. McCann-Leader of the Massachusetts Cooperative Fisheries Research Unit. The Fisheries Department is presently offering Master's Degrees with plans for Ph.D 's within the next 2 years.

Pre-dedication ceremonies for Holdsworth Hall will take place at Old French Hall on Friday, October 4.

1963 INDEX

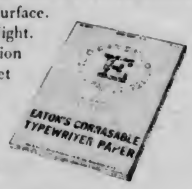
Copies of the 1963 Index are still available to students who failed topick them up last semester.

They may be obtained at the Index office on the second floor of the Student Union by presenting a student ID.

ERASE WITHOUT A TRACE ON EATON'S CORRĀSABLE BOND

Touch-type, hunt-and-peck, type with one hand tied behind your back—it's easy to turn out perfect papers on Corrāsable. Because you can erase without a trace. Typing errors disappear like magic with just the flick of an ordinary pencil eraser. There's never a telltale erasure mark on Corrāsable's special surface.

Corrāsable is available in light, medium, heavy weights and Onion Skin. In convenient 100-sheet packets and 500-sheet ream boxes. Only Eaton makes Corrāsable.



A Berkshire Typewriter Paper

EATON PAPER CORPORATION (E) PITTSFIELD, MASS.

RAHAR'S

presents

Four College Folk Festival

Sunday, Oct.6 2-7

NOTICE Save

Worcester County Students!

Direct Bus Service

University of Mass.

Amherst

Worcester

Express

EASTBOUND to Worcester

Amherst
U of M, Girls' Dorm	12:45 pm	4:45 pm	12:45 pm	6:25 pm
U of M, Student Union	12:50 pm	4:50 pm	12:45 pm	6:25 pm
Center, (Walsh's Store)	12:55 pm	4:55 pm	12:55 pm	6:35 pm
Arrive
Belchertown (Jackson Store)	1:15 pm	5:15 pm	1:15 pm	6:55 pm
Ware (Town Hall)	1:35 pm	5:35 pm	1:35 pm	7:15 pm
West Brookfield (Town Hall)	1:42 pm	5:42 pm	1:42 pm	7:22 pm
Brookfield (Crossroads Inn)	1:55 pm	5:55 pm	1:55 pm	7:35 pm
East Brookfield (Main St.)	2:00 pm	6:00 pm	2:00 pm	7:40 pm
Spencer (Town Hall)	2:06 pm	6:06 pm	2:06 pm	7:46 pm
Leicester (Center)	2:15 pm	6:15 pm	2:15 pm	7:55 pm
Worcester (Union Bus Terminal)	2:40 pm	6:40 pm	2:40 pm	8:15 pm

WESTBOUND to Amherst

Leave
Worcester	2:50 pm	7:00 pm	2:50 pm	8:30 pm
Arrive
Leicester	3:10 pm	7:20 pm	3:10 pm	8:50 pm
Spencer	3:20 pm	7:30 pm	3:20 pm	8:00 pm
East Brookfield	3:25 pm	7:35 pm	3:25 pm	9:05 pm
Brookfield	3:32 pm	7:42 pm	3:32 pm	9:12 pm
West Brookfield	3:39 pm	7:49 pm	3:39 pm	9:19 pm
Ware	3:50 pm	8:00 pm	3:50 pm	9:30 pm
Belchertown	4:10 pm	8:20 pm	4:10 pm	9:50 pm
Amherst—(Center)	4:30 pm	8:40 pm	4:30 pm	10:10 pm
Amherst—(Univ. of Mass.)	4:35 pm	8:45 pm	4:35 pm	10:15 pm

Save NOTICE

KEEP YOUR PARTY TOGETHER

CHARTER COACHES FOR ALL OCCASIONS

Western Mass. Bus Lines, Inc.

Northampton, Mass.

Tel. 584-6481

Last of A Series: The Peace Corps

Improved Selection And Training

(Editor's Note: This is the last of a three part series on the Peace Corps.)

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS)—The Peace Corps is attempting to learn more about its effective Volunteers—and how to find them.

"It's frustrating to know that a given project has been a smashing success—and yet not know why, or how, it can be duplicated elsewhere," Mr. Joseph G. Colmen, head of Peace Corps Research, said in an interview with CPS.

"Yet how can we tell—in advance—who will be an inspired Volunteer and how a project can be made successful?"

Colmen and his staff have launched a four-part research program to provide answers to these questions, and are building it around extensive interviews and "de-briefings" with returning Volunteers.

The first area of research, according to Colmen, is an attempt to identify and measure the success of overseas Volunteers.

"To a very real extent, we are not sure what makes success in an overseas program,: Dr. Gilman said. "For example, a specific building project may be destroyed by floods—yet the Volunteers involved may have left behind an example of determination more valuable than the would-be project."

Colmen's staff is using psychological techniques to identify, where possible, changes in the mental attitudes of people involved in Peace Corps projects.

A second area of research deals with changes and adjustments in the personalities of the Peace Corps Volunteers themselves as they serve overseas.

"In this connection, we've asked returning Volunteers if they experienced 'low points' during their tours of duty," he said. About 95 percent admitted to having one or more serious problems which they had to cope with as part of their project. And, we find, almost all of them succeeded.

"We found that perhaps the most valuable part of the Peace Corps experience for most of these Volunteers was the ability to be on their own, responsible for discharging a high level of responsibility on their own initiative."

A third area of research, he said, centers around the effect of a Peace Corps project in a given country.

"We want to study how the school system in a given country, for example, changes when a third to a half of its teachers are Peace Corps Volunteers," he said. "Do the other teachers show a change in attitudes? Are the students more eager to learn? Do side effects travel up and down the educational scale from the levels where Volunteers are teaching?"

This project has required a good deal of factual data on grades and student testing, Dr. Colmen said, and will probably prove to be very interesting when completed.

The last area of current Peace Corps research involved the Corps own operations—its staff structure, methods of training and supporting Volunteers, teaching languages and so forth.

"Long range research of this sort,: Dr. Colmen said, "is aimed at providing studies which the Corps can use in improving its future operations.

"We know, now, that Peace Corps service involves a good measure of loneliness, heat, routine, solitude, and boredum. We know the stereotypes of Volunteers marching into the setting sun are not accurate.

"But the Corps has grown so rapidly, and with such enthusiasm, that often we have not been sure why certain methods are successful. If we can discover the reasons, we should be able to increase the level of success."

The 'Flying Redmen' Start A New Season

The AFROTC Flying Redmen, perennial New England area drill champions, have positions available for all interested AFROTC basic cadets. Last year's team, under the leadership of Cadet Lieutenant Colonel Peter Cabana, placed high in the National competition at Washington, D.C. Out of more than 90 teams competing the 'Flying Redmen' managed to place nineteenth.

This year's 'Flying Redmen commander is looking forward to another big year. Those cadets interested in joining UMass' only drill team should report to the drill team practice on Tuesday and Thursday at 11:15 a.m. behind Dickenson Hall.

University Announces Summer Session Plans

The University's 1964 Summer Session will consist of two six-week main sessions, it was announced today by Dr. William C. Venman, Director of the Summer Session.

The first session will begin on June 15, one week after Commencement, and close on July 25. The second will open on July 27 and close on Friday before Labor Day, September 4.

In a move aimed at providing greater educational opportunities for both undergraduate and graduate students, the change lengthens by two weeks the previous ten-week period considered by both faculty and students to be too rushed.

If a student enrolls in both terms, he can come within three credit hours of taking a full semester's work. The normal load for a student will be six credit hours per term, with students who desire to do so being permitted to take required physical education in addition. Students with good scholastic records will be allowed take an extra course.

While there are many ways of accomplishing the goal of early graduation from the University, summer attendance is one of the most widely used.

More than 2,500 students are expected to attend the 1964 summer sessions.

Once again there will be special courses in engineering, home economics, forestry and nursing. A special "study abroad" course is being planned by the department of English.

With "year-round operation" on everybody's minds, this move will permit almost all of the advantages to the student of such a plan, retaining the present characteristics of the two regular semesters.

"The announcement is being made at this early date to permit students to make their plans carefully," said Dr. Venman.

Fall Planting Program Beautifies University

by Oleh Pawluk

An extensive fall planting program, designed to beautify the campus, is currently in progress at the University.

In the past 2 weeks many students have undoubtedly noticed large pits being dug in various areas of the campus. Fortunately, the purpose of these pits is not to install more road signs. Rather, the pits are there to accommodate nearly $2,000 worth of young trees recommended by the Department of Landscape Architecture.

There is no question of need for the new trees. Dutch Elm disease combined with construction work has greatly reduced the number of trees on campus. Even many healthy trees will have to be cut down in the future to make way for new dormitories and departmental buildings.

The planting program is under the direction of Kenneth Billings, Grounds Supervisor, and his two assistants, Walter Feldman and Alan Cameron.

Grounds employees have recently finished planting young Ellis Drive. Young oaks are now hemlocks on the President's residence and Locust trees along being planted on both sides of North Pleasant Street.

Altogether, some 14 different varieties of trees will be planted. The reason for this great variety of different trees is to prevent total destruction of any one species in case of disease.

"I hope students will appreciate the newly planted trees," Mr. Billings said, "and not merely regard them as objects on which to affix campaign posters." "Campus beautification should be a concern of everyone," he added.

With so much of the campus

(Continued on page 6)

★ NOTICES ★

UMASS FIRE DEPARTMENT

There will be a special drill for new members Tuesday evening at Amherst Fire Headquarters. Interested students should contact Chief Richard Floyd, 204 Chadbourne or Deputy Chief Leon Alford, 209 Chadbourne.

THE TRIANGLE OFFICE OF

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

OF AMHERST

located at

243 Triangle Street, Amherst

provides a drive-up window, free parking and all Commercial Bank Services with the exception of Trust and Safe Deposit.

A cordial invitation is extended to all University Students, Faculty and Personnel to use its facilities.

Monday through Thursday 9 A.M. to 3 P.M.

Friday 9 A.M. to 6 P.M.

Closed Saturdays

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF AMHERST

11 AMITY STREET

Member Federal Reserve System

Member F.D.I.C.

CLUB DIRECTORY

A.I.Ch.E.
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 2, at 7 p.m. in Goessmann 157. All are urged to attend. Refreshments will be served.

CHESS CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 2 at 8 p.m. in the Worcester B room of the S.U. Anyone interested is welcome. For more information contact Richard Strange, 218 Gorman.

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
Vesper services will be held on Wed., Oct. 2, at 9:30 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. Everyone welcome.

COMMUTER'S CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 3 at 11:15 a.m. for the election of officers in the Middlesex room of the S.U. All members are urged to attend.

EDWARDS FELLOWSHIP
Meeting on Sun., Oct. 6, at 6:30 p.m. at First Congregational Church. Rides leave Hills and Arnold at 6:15 p.m.

HEYMAKERS
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the Ballroom of the S.U. Lessons will be given.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 3, at 7:30 p.m. in Skinner Aud. All home ec majors urged to attend.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB
There will be a social evening and dance on Sat., Oct. 5, at Farley Club House from 8-12 p.m. No charge for members and friends. Refreshments.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Supper meeting on Sun., Oct. 6, at 6 p.m. Also, the fellowship will sponsor a hayride on Sat., Oct. 5, at 1 p.m. Rides for both events will be available in front of Arnold 10 minutes before each event.

NEWMAN CLUB
On First Friday, Oct. 4, masses will be held at 6:50 a.m. and 12:15 p.m. Confessions on Thurs., Oct. 3, will be at 4-6 p.m. and 7-9 p.m.

OUTING CLUB
All those who intend to go on the New York Lake George trip must attend the meeting at 6:30 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. Those who cannot attend must arrange to talk with Bruce Meyers by leaving notes in the Club folder.

PIONEER VALLEY FOLK-LORE SOCIETY
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 3, at 8 p.m. in the S.U. Check spaghetti board for room. Open to all interested in membership; bring your instruments.

POLITICAL SCIENCE ASSOCIATION
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 3, in the Franklin room of the S.U. Gov't majors and all interested are invited.

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 3, at 7 p.m. in the lobby of Men's Phys Ed. New members welcome. Instructions given.

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 2, at 8 p.m. in Worcester A room of the S.U. The program will be "Israeli Self-Defense."

YOUNG INDEPENDENTS
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 2, at 7 p.m. in the Franklin room of the S.U. All interested are invited to attend.

1. What's the matter, no appetite?

I have more important things to think of than food.

2. Worried about exams, huh?

No, about getting old.

3. You're kidding?

Not at all. I've reached a milestone today. I'm 21. The days of my youth have flown.

4. You should be celebrating not brooding.

The age of responsibility is upon me.

5. How come you're not a member of the Drama Club?

Already my father's talking about my being "self-supporting." I see responsibilities all around me—wife, children, lawn, leaves.

6. Relax. You can let Living Insurance from Equitable take care of responsibilities. It can provide for your family, your mortgage, the kids' education ...even build a sizable retirement fund for you.

Say, this is good spaghetti.

For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For information about career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write to William E. Blevins, Employment Manager.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States
Home Office: 1285 Avenue of the Americas, New York 19, N. Y. ©1963

Speed-reading Class Given For Students

The first offering of the reading skills improvement course will be from October 3rd to November 4th. The course will meet in Room 125 of the Education Building—6:30-8:00 p.m.—Monday and Thursday evenings. The course is open to undergraduate students and is designed to help individuals who feel their various reading skills are inadequate in meeting the demands of the university curriculum.

Registration will close at 4:00 p.m., Thursday afternoon, October 3rd. You are urged to register as soon as possible due to the limited enrollment. Registration may be accomplished at the Counseling and Guidance Office, Room E12, Machmer Hall.

Univ. Psychiatrist ...

(Continued from page 3)

members of the Department of Mental Health is devoted to dispelling this image.

"We are trying to meet as many of the needs of the University in the field of mental health as is possible," Dr. Janowitz said. "One of our plans for the future, for example, is the development of a program of group therapy for students with marital problems which we feel is something that needs attention."

Fall Planting ...

(Continued from page 5)

terrain being defaced by construction work, it is heartening to know that definite strides are under way to retain the aesthetic qualities of the University.

International Students Day To Be Held At State House

—Photo by Mary Roche

Left to right: Kevin H. White, Secretary of State for the Commonwealth and administrator of International Students Day, Russy D. Sumariwalla, graduate student in government at the University, and Mr. Welles, International Director for the Amherst Junior Chamber of Commerce. Taken at conference in the Sheraton Building in Boston on Monday.

Foreign students at the University are invited to attend International Students Day at the State House in Boston on Friday, October 25. This annual event is designed as a welcome by the Massachusetts community to those students from other countries who are studying at the different colleges, universities, and training programs within the Commonwealth.

During this day students have a chance to meet their fellow countrymen who are attending institutions throughout the state and are given a chance to get to know more about the United States as a whole and Massachusetts in particular.

The program this year will include lectures, guided tours to historic sites around Boston, a panel discussion, and a chance to meet constitutional officers, Senators, and Representatives.

Last year nearly 2000 students attended the observances and more are expected this year.

The day is administered by Secretary of State Kevin H. White, with the cooperation of the Massachusetts Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Boston League of Women Voters.

Students interested in attending these observances are asked to contact Mr. Welles at the Housing Office, telephone ext. 2-385. Buses will leave the University on the 25th immediately following breakfast probably between 7 and 7:30 a.m. More information on the exact arrangements will be given at a later date.

NOTICES

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS
Volunteers are asked to sign up across from the telephone in the S.U. Lobby by Thursday. Rides will leave from the Dining Commons at 1:15 p.m. Saturday and will return at about 4:45.

CAESURA
Deadline for Caesura manuscripts is Wed., Oct. 16. All poems, stories, and essays may be left in Box 104 in the R.S.O. Office. Art work may be submitted to Joseph Egan, 422 Mills.

CONCERT ASSOCIATION
There will be a meeting of the Concert Association Executive Board in the Nantucket Room of the S.U. Wednesday, Oct. 2, at 6:30 p.m. Response to the opera, a faculty advisor, and other pending matters will be discussed.

CLASS OF '66
Applications for the Executive Council, Class of '66 are now available in the R.S.O. Office.

NAIADS
There will be tryouts at the Wope. Pool Wednesday and Thursday at 6:30 p.m. All classes are welcome to try out.

NEWMAN CLUB MEMBERSHIP
The Newman Club membership drive will start Wed., Oct. 2. Dorm captains will have membership cards for those who are interested.

Impulse ...

(Continued from page 4)

ad hoc Committees on Year-Round Operation.

The Panel welcomes all questions on the subject of the tri-semester plan. Anyone may present them to the panel by dialing WMUA at Extension 2425. All are urged to listen and present their questions and objections on the plan.

Impulse is a new series which will appear every other week on WMUA at 91.1 fm starting October 3 at 7:00 P.M.

Folk Scene ...

(Continued from page 3)

hootenanny at Rahar's in Northampton Sunday, Oct. 6 from 2-6 P.M. Anyone who wishes may sing, and there will be, I believe, a small cover.

Brett House and AEPi are the local homes of Dave Gitelson '65, who specializes in ballads and Israeli folk songs. Dave spent a summer in Israel collecting folk songs, and last semester appeared in many a hoot in the Western Mass. area. Dave will present a music hour early this November.

WHERE'S CHARLIE?

Reward for information leading to the return of Charlie, a 3 months old male shepard-setter, looks like a Beagle. Black with brown legs and white chest. Contact Collegian office.

Redmen Wrestling Team Has High Hopes For Next Season

by HELEN FORSBERG '65

Here's your female-type sports reporter back with a round-up of this year's wrestling team hopes. Wrestling is one sport which I knew quite a bit about before writing this article but I discovered it's not quite the same as competitive college wrestling. However, with a few modifications I think I can understand the sport.

This year's team is shaping up to be one of the best wrestling teams UMass has had in many years. After a much improved season last year the varsity is returning intact with a loss of only one senior. Coming up from the freshman team are Jesse Brogan, in the 147 weight class, and Dave Kelly in the 177 who placed first and third respectively in the Freshman New England Wrestling Tournament last season.

The team also has high hopes for Boris Chevone in the 123 who placed third for the varsity in the N.E. Tourney.

The only senior is Captain Craig DeWallace, who feels quite enthusiastic about the coming season.

The team has already started practicing and will have until early December to get into top shape. The first match is with Worcester Polytechnical Institute and should prove to be quite exciting as UMass lost in a squeaker to W.P.I. last year. The squad has also received an invitation to wrestle in the Coast Guard Invitational Tournament over Christmas vacation.

Contributing greatly to the team's spirit will be the wrestling room in the new Men's Physical Education building. As of now the squad is practicing in the Cage, but hopes to be moving into the new building as soon as possible. The main advantages of this room are temperature control which is necessary for the wrestlers to keep their correct weight and also complete privacy from the rest of the building. This is also very important because of the high degree of concentration which is called for in wrestling.

IFC Standings

League A	W	L	T	League B	W	L	T
T.K.E.	1	0	0	S.P.E.	1	0	0
K.S.	1	0	0	S.A.E.	1	0	0
T.S.	1	0	1	T.E.P.	1	0	0
P.M.D.	1	1	0	Q.T.V.	1	1	0
P.S.D.	1	1	0	B.K.P.	1	1	0
L.C.A.	0	0	1	A.E.P.	1	1	0
Z.N.	0	1	0	P.S.K.	0	1	0
A.T.G.	0	2	0	A.S.P.	0	2	0

Fraternity Football

T.K.E. and K.S. showed high scoring offenses and rugged defenses as they shut-out opponents in their first week of play.

T.K.E. in winning 28-0 over Z.N. scored 21 points in the second half of their game. The second half saw the size and speed of this team jell to overpower a good Z.N. team.

Monday night found Q.T.V. shading A.E.P. 19-13, T.C. smashed P.M.D. 25-0, B.K.P. outscored A.S.P. 32-13, and P.S.D. downed A.T.G. 14-6.

The dormitory and independent leagues swing into action this week on Tuesday and Thursday night.

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Any student who would like to work for the Collegian Sports Staff in any capacity should come to the Collegian Office on Sunday, Tuesday, or Thursday night between 7 and 10.

Cross Country Men To Run In Tri Meet

The varsity cross country team will take to the road again this week as it travels to Boston on Saturday for the tri-meet with Northeastern and Maine. This meet is shaping up to be one of the toughest of the season for the Redmen, and one of the top cross country meets of the year.

Maine always fields a strong team, and this year figures to be no exception. This will be the first meet for the Bears so not much is known about them. They lost several top runners through graduation, but some of last year's freshmen are expected to fill in.

Prior to this year Northeastern had never been very strong, but this years team is shaping up to be one of the best in New England. Saturday will tell just how good the Huskies are. Paced by Dave Donsky, N.E. has shown considerable strength in it's meets so far this year.

The Redmen's biggest worry Saturday will be to close the gaps between its top five runners, particularly between the second and fifth man. The team has a spread of almost 50 seconds in this area, and it will have to lessen this distance if they are to win on Saturday.

Saturday will, also give captain Bob Brouillet his first crack at Dunsky, who is considered one of the better runners in New England. "Digger" has been running even better then he did last year, as indicated by his record-breaking performance at Coast Guard. Saturday could well see him produce his second record in as many weeks.

Redmen Asst. Coaches Act as Scouts for Head UMass Coach Vic Fusia

by JOHN GOODRICH

Last Saturday while the Redmen were doing battle with Crimson on the gridiron, two members of the coaching staff were some hundred miles away. Coach Chet Gladchuck was observing the Bisons of Bucknell play Dartmouth and Coach Fred Glatz was sitting in the Yale Bowl watching the UConns take on the Elis. These two congenial gentlemen handle the scouting duties for the 1963 Redmen.

If the average football fan were asked what the duties of the scout were, his answer would vaguely mention patterns and individual performances, that were observed during the game. Actually there is much more to the job of scouting then what occurs on the day of the game. The work begins sometime earlier in the week when the scouts examine the films of the opponent they will be seeing. These films are broken down so that formations the team has used previously can be studied. While this would seem to give the scout an advantage, Coach Glatz noted, "You can never be sure what you will see, for instance, UConn came out with an entirely new offensive formation last Saturday. The scout has to note the plays that occur off a formation and note them for later use."

According to Coach Gladchuck, "The ideal scout can see the offense, the defense, and the individuals at the same time. This, of course, is impossible." Some of the things a scout tries to notice during the course of the game besides the all important offensive and defensive alignments are who the best runner is, favorite receiver for the passer, favorite plays the QB calls in a given situation, and any changes the team makes in its alignments to adjust to the opponent during the game. As can be seen, scouting is a job that requires alertness on every play. Coach Gladchuck then proceeded to outline some of these things he noted while scouting Bucknell, with regard to the individuals in the Bisons' lineup. After this brief explanation, he outlined a few more things that the scout has to look for. Among others, he noted, there were basic movements, does the QB run or not, new offensive plays that have been added, and generally expecting anything.

After the completion of the Saturday afternoon chores, the scout returns to the University to examine his notes. Coach Glatz explains, "Now is the time when the scout must dicipher the notes taken in haste during the game and transfer them into something useful that the team can use." For this purpose, the scouts use a large card, on the bottom of which the particular offensive formation is drawn, and above this the plays that are run from this formation are shown. Coach Glatz observed, "Usually you will only get to see a particular formation once or twice a game because the team may only run one play off that formation." By this time the information is ready to be given to the team, and while the team studies the notes, the scouts are preparing for next week's assignment. When the Redmen take the field Saturday, do not be surprised to see two of the coaches, namely Gladchuck and Glatz, are among the missing. They are merely carrying out their job on a different gridiron.

Rule Changes ...

(Continued from page 8)

time outs in order to make substitutions. Thus teams will be substituting after an incompleted pass or a running play that goes out of bounds.

Probably the result of all this is something best called "unlimited limited substitutions". This new rule makes room for the individual specialist, who otherwise might never see action, rather than a special team.

However, rule changes involve the techniques of football, not the fundamentals. The fundamentals remain the same as in the "iron man" days of football when it was a matter of pride to finish a game with the same eleven men who, started it. The basic requirements still remain: "vigorous bodily contact, a courageous heart, the ability to fit individual daring into a team framework, and the discipline that comes from playing to win but being able to accept defeat like a gentleman".

The superficial of this very basic game of football may change but not the game itself.

A New Look In Depth Too
At Campus Events
And Personalities

EVERY WEEKDAY
AN ENTIRE PAGE WEDNESDAYS

Plus

- Local, National, International News
- Smith and Amherst Colleges' Events
- Movie Theatre Schedules
- Local Entertainment
- Where To Buy What

THE DAILY HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

SAM APGAR, 253-5831, Will Take Your Subscription

RENT A CAR
ECONO-CAR RENTAL SYSTEM
FEATURING CHRYSLER PRODUCTS
• GAS INCLUDED
$5.99 PER 24 HRS.
Plus Small Mileage Charge
Springfield 785-5314
Northampton 584-7277
Greenfield 774-4443

FRESHMAN COACH FRED GLATZ who directs the efforts of the Little Redmen football team. He also is an assistant coach for the varsity team.

New Substitution Rules Will Seriously Affect Football Style

by BOB HEALY

One of the beauties of college football has been that, like the English language, the stock market, or a girl's mind, it is subject to constant change.

For the past two Saturdays, coaches, players, and especially spectators have been confused by the radical revision of the substitution rule made last January. Due to this change there have been several delays of the game penalties called and unwanted time outs forced on college teams due to improper substitutions. These penalties result from the effort of the coaches to come to terms with the new substitution rule and deploy their manpower for maximum effect.

Briefly, the new rule is this: either team can substitute freely on second or third down or on first down earned on a drive if, in all cases the game clock is stopped. No more than two players can enter the game for a fourth down play or one on which the ball has just changed hands.

The big change in the rule is on the fourth down or on a play on which the ball changes hands. This means there is a risk of being compelled to take the offensive with a defensive team and vice versa.

Thus the death knell is sounded for the three platoon system consisting of a first or two-way team, and two others, one defensive, one offensive. This system had just reached its peak of popularity last year and now is obsolete.

The restrictions of the new rule simply mean that players will now need the ability to "go both ways". There will be plenty of substitutions but under controlled conditions. For one thing that phrase, "if the clock is stopped", is all important. Teams do not like to relinquish precious

(Continued on page 7)

Freshmen Football's Main Aim Is To Develop Varsity Men

Like Freshman academic subjects, freshman football is a proving ground, a place to learn the fundamentals.

Freshman football coach Fred Glatz, believes that his first responsibility is to develop his charges into good varsity ball players, even at the cost of losing some of his games.

Following this basic philosophy has proved successful for the Redmen organization as a look at the Sophs on this year's varsity team will show. Bob Meers, Bob Ellis, Milt Morin, are all talented Sophs who have made the step up from Frosh to varsity, and that is a very difficult step to make.

Because Coach Glatz feels that a Freshman's first worry should be marks, there are only three practice sessions a week and these are only an hour and forty-five minutes long. During this time, the basic fundamentals of hard-nosed football, blocking, tackling, running and other skills, are developed to a higher degree than the players have learned in high school. Only a handful of plays are taught at this time.

Later on, if a player makes the transition to the varsity, he will spend a great amount of his time at first in learning new plays.

It is very difficult for a Soph to break into the varsity for these reasons. That is why the performances of some at this year's Sophs are all the more impressive. Bob Ellis and Bob Meers are some of those players who have developed rapidly into varsity caliber men. Brooks and Morin are two others who should improve greatly during this season and see quite a bit of action.

Because it is still so early in the season, no definite statements can be made about this year's team. Coach Glatz mainly hopes to develop more players of varsity caliber. The Redmen have placed their emphasis during recruiting this year on getting big, strong backs, especially fullbacks. The coaches feel that because of the increased emphasis on passing, bigger backfield men will be an important asset, especially on defense.

Backs can also to taught to play other positions more easily than linemen. Most of the interior line positions are wide open with no definite starters assigned as yet.

Manlius, the team's first game on October 12, could also be their first defeat. Manlius has the natural advantage of its players having worked together for at least two years, and they are out to avenge last year's loss.

It is the team's only home game this year and for those students who cannot make the varsity game at UConn, it would make interesting watching.

BOB MEERS and MILT MORIN, two of last year's freshman football players who have made spots for themselves on this year's varsity team. They are shown talking to their new coach, Vic Fusia. Freshman Coach Glatz is especially proud of such men who graduate quickly to the varsity.

SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS

AMHERST Cinema

NOW • Engagement Ends SAT.

"INGMAR BERGMAN HAS MADE A THOUGHTFUL, ENGROSSING, SHOCKING FILM... PIERCING, STARK AND UNSETTLING!"

—Bosley Crowther, N. Y. Times

INGMAR BERGMAN'S

WINTER LIGHT

Daily at 7:10, 9:15 — Saturday 4:30, 7:20, 9:20

THE ALPS... made in Italy by FABIANO

Handmade Imported Boots for the Outdoor Man and Woman...

For Men or Women. Suede Rock Climbing and Hiking Boot. Leather lined, Padded Quarter and Tongue, Vibram lug soles. Men's N and L—6 to 12 (Cocoa Brown only). Ladies M—5 to 11 in these Fashion Colors: #4364 — Cocoa Brown, #4361 — Green, #4362—Red, #4365 — Gray.

STYLE #436

$13.95 plus postage

Write for free brochure, FABIANO SHOE CO., Dept. MC, South Station, Boston 10, Mass.

STUDENT WIVES

Season tickets for wives of UMass students are now on sale in room 10-A Men's Physical Education Building. The price of the ticket is $5.00 and it will admit the bearer to all home football, basketball and baseball games. Seating will be in the section reserved for students.

RIDE

wanted from Northampton to U.M. on MWF to arrive in time for an 11 a.m. class. Call Northampton JU 4-3428 ask for Janet

LIBRARY

comp.

LIBRARY
OCT 8 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

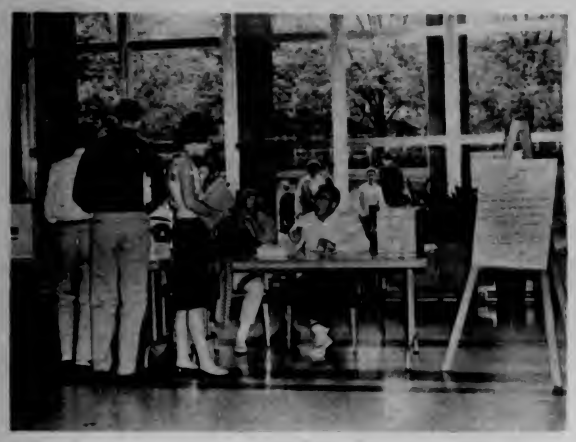
THE MASSACHUSETTS

COLLEGIAN

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 9 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1963

Thousands Vote In Senate Elections



—Photo by Elaine Maltzman

Last night's senatorial elections produced two ties necessitating two new elections. Gorman and Fraternities each will go to the polls again to fill the third spot in their representation.

The results are as follows:

ARNOLD: Karen Gavin, Michele Potvin
BROOKS: Paula Stephens
DWIGHT: Brenda Bryan
CRABTREE: Carol Ann Caron
JOHNSON: Marilyn Singer
LEACH: Maureen Flanagan
HAMLIN: Candy Holtzman
KNOWLTON: Bonnie Stokes
THATCHER: Toby Kaplan
VAN METER SOUTH: Mary Martl, Gail Moran
VAN METER NORTH: Jenney Crispen, Ginny Mallison
MARY LYON: Diane McNeill
LEWIS: Wendy Hall

MEN'S DORMS

BUTTERFIELD: Bill Mahoney
CHADBOURNE: Tom McMullin
GREENOUGH: Donald Boyd
BRETT: Ross Jones, George Michael
HILLS NORTH: Alden Blodgett, John Murphy
HILLS SOUTH: Tom Kiernan, Carl Olson
MILLS: Phil Howard
WHEELER: Ethan Pollack

(Continued on page 5)

For Frosh Only

Dean Curtis, Mr. Burkhardt, and Dr. Southworth are pleased to be able to invite the freshmen to join a group that will discuss college life and college goals.

The small groups are designed to stimulate students to search out their personal, educational, and vocational goals in a very active fashion. It is hoped that freshmen will leave their seminar experiences with deepened appreciation for the intellectual opportunities at the University.

Each group will be coeducational, will consist of eight-to-ten freshmen, and will be led by an upperclassman. They will meet in one of the dormitories. There will be no tests, no cred-

(Continued on page 5)

Insults Thrown As Campus Tiddlywink Crisis Nears

by TERRY STACK

It is quite possible that a bloody and hardfought battle might take place on the otherwise quiet UMass campus within the next few days.

A jurisdictional dispute between the Ancient Free and Accepted Squidgers and Squoppers (AFASS) and the Western Massachusetts Tiddlywink Association (WMTA) threatens to rip asunder the University of Massachusetts Tiddlywink community.

Challenges and insults have been hurled by members of both teams and it is expected that the crisis will reach its highpoint early next week.

The newly formed AFASS Tiddlywink team held an informal practice session on Wednesday night, Oct. 2, in the Hatch.

Several tables padded with Gordon Linen towels served as mats.

One participating group consisted of Bob Wilfong, President, Sue DeBeaumont, Secretary-treasurer, Taj Fredericks, and Ronald Reynolds. Another table sported Barbara Murphy, Mike Berrini, Harold Gushue, and Ted Taranto.

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

It has been announced that WMTA, the official University of Massachusetts Tiddlywink team which was recently defeated by Harvard, will have its first organizational meeting in the Worcester Room of the Student Union at 7:30 p.m. on Monday night.

In a recent interview, a member of the WMTA's Board of Directors termed the newly formed AFASS as "upstarts" and inexperienced Tiddlyers, who

(Continued on page 5)

DVP To Present Revival Of Famous Pirandello Play

The Theodore Mann-Claude Giroux production of Luigi Pirandello's "Six Characters in Search of an Author," will be presented here on October 9, 1963, Wednesday at the Student Union Ballroom under the auspices of the Distingulshed Visitors Program.

Howard Taubman writing in the N.Y. Times termed it an "exceptionally provocative revival" and went on to say that it "captures the humanity, wonder and humor of Pirandello's best-known play."

"Pirandello's 'Six Characters in Search of an Author' is being done with such high spirits that it is hard to keep in mind that the production is a revival of a classic," according to Edith Oliver in The New Yorker.

Pirandello's masterpiece deals with psychological and ethical concepts and the tragic enigma of human existence. It has been produced with great success many times in this country's leading theatrical centers and is also a favorite with many college theatrical groups.

When "Six Characters" was first produced in this country in 1922 in Boston, the drama critic

(Continued on page 4)

Contestants Apply For "College Bowl"

by DAVE HARACZ

Student response to the request for applicants for the "GE College Bowl" show has been described as extremely good by those in charge of selecting and coaching the UMass team which will travel to New York for the November 24 show.

Dr. Albert Madeira, who is currently administering written tests to those who have already made applications, points out that there is still time to apply, but that those interested in trying out must have their applications in by Wednesday, Oct. 9.

Written tests will continue for the first part of the coming week, in Dr. Madeira's office at 451 Bartlett Hall. Testing will be from 4 to 5 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and

(Continued on page 3)

First Rally Planned For UM Opener

The season's first rally will kick off the home opener for the Redmen tonight at 7 with bonfire, football squad and rally dance.

Starting on the hill between Van Meter and Butterfield, the parade led by the revamped Redmen Marching Band, Maroon Keys, Scrolls and Adelphia will step off promptly at 7 p.m.

Marchers will go down the hill, past Hills North, to Stockbridge Rd. as far as Clark Hall. At Clark Hall the parade will swing right at the rotary across from the Public Health Building, down the road by the women's dormitories, to Eastman Lane, where the route runs past WPE, then onto Route 116 as far as the lights at Ellis Drive, ending behind the Student Union.

Women from Lewis, Thatcher and Johnston, as well as those from the quadrangle, will join the parade as it comes by.

(Continued on page 3)

UM Hillel Starts Series Of Lectures

by STEVE LEVINE

On Tuesday evening at 8:00 p.m., the UMass Hillel organization began its series of lectures on social problems with a discussion by Rev. John Paul Jones of Ashfield on "The Religious Approach to War and Peace".

Following an introduction by Rabbi Ruchames, the Director of Hillel, Rev. Jones gave a lecture which touched on political as well as religious aspects of world society. First stating that world peace, more than any other cause, needs the support and energy of religious people, he then defined religion as faith in God and life rather than adherence to any specific dogma. Those persons with religious faith are the ones he feels will

(Continued on page 3)

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

Of Acid And Art

by JAMES CORTESE

The splendid turnout for Boris Goldovskys "Tosca" last Monday night is a perfect example that culture among the student generation of today is not, as some would have us believe, atrophying, but, on the contrary, is full of life and growing as experience in the arts becomes greater and more profound.

Though Monday's operatic production was somewhat modest, as such things go, and though the Cage was not quite the setting for high tragedy, Puccini's sublimely beautiful music ultimately prevailed. We are inclined to think that the standing ovation at the finale was not so much a tribute to the performance as it was to the music itself.

In these times when beauty is conceived as an electric twang accompanied by an echo chamber, when art is a dappled canvas in the vague corner of the mind, when experience is sex, the enthusiastic appreciation of something that is true art and true beauty by such a following as was present at "Tosca", negates any thought that culture is dying.

Travels In Collegian Montaigne

by JOHN B. CHILDS

It came to pass that after several months of hardship in the great red-tape waste of the Eastern Graftridden Desert we traveled up a broad river, and disembarking at a certain point purchased the services of several native guides.

On the third day of our travels we entered a wooded hilly area which our guides informed us was known in a local dialect as Universityofmass. We recognized the name as being part of the great Metawampian language stock but could not postulate any further concerning its meaning.

This Universityofmass is an area of small rolling hills which rise on one side of a flat plains region. Vegetation is lush and wildlife abounds. We could hear calls of wild bison and boars from the western grasslands off in the distance.

..The social system is a complicated one but revolves around a strong central government which controls the numerous tribes of wild hillmen who inhabit the hills and higher plains areas. From its central location on the plain the government deploys great armies of blue armored cavalry, tax-collectors, governors, and other disfunctionaries.

The people of the hills, though under this strong plains control, still take part in raiding from time to time which is called in Metawampean, rye-arting. These raids strangely enough are not directed against the central government but is between the hill-men themselves. These raids, we were told, remind the people of more independent days under certain legendary leaders who they called Mazagie King Philip and Cosa Nostra.

It was noted among us that certain of the hill-men did not participate in raiding but were always the subject of it. It was further noted that these particular hill-men were women. It was thought amongst us that some reason for this dichotomy of raiding existed but as of yet we have not come to understand it.

These raids or rye-arts into the hills and lowlands usually take place over certain well traveled mountain passes and by-ways and usually occur at night. We suspected a religious significance here and upon asking were informed that indeed there was a famous oracle located in a huge red stone fortress, deep in the hills where the hill-men went with their troubles which in Metawampean are called "Nu-rozeees" and sometimes "zy-ko-zees," though the former name was less used.

The blue-armored troops of the central government upon learning of the raids usually quell them with great dispatch. Peace falls once again upon the area of turmoil and mayhem.

We bade farewell to our guides and struck out south to visit another people the Smithii, their exact location was not known to us but we were aided by a popular myth called For-coleze-carparazion.

BEWARE! THE FASCIST MENACE

by DON ALIFERIS

There are evidently some people who are blinded by the "hate Communists because they are against us" propaganda as revealed by the article, "Beware! The Communist Menace". The author of that article falls into one of two groups; those who are totally ignorant of political reality, and make statements as fallacious as "under capitalism it is the states' function to serve the individual" or those of a second group, the neo-fascists.

Those who believe that because in theory Communism is antithetic to capitalism the world cannot and never will live in peace fail to grasp the portents of history and the realities of today's world. To say that there is only one possible road to peace, the existence of one ideology, is to deny the fact that there has always been and always will be more than one ideology as long as there is more than one person.

Furthermore to say that capitalism and communism can never be reconciled is not only to abandon humanity to nuclear suicide but also to deny the existence of international politics and pressures. Both the United States and the Soviet Union are subject to these pressures for peace; both have economic considerations and foreign involvement which prohibits overt conflict and lastly both are forced to realize that war would eliminate their own society as well as that of the other.

There is a road to peace and it is not one of mutual extinction. The two ideologies despite the aggressiveness of each can and will find this road. They will find it with the old aid of cooperation, negotiation, and compromise.

The Massachusetts Collegian

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press

Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

STUDENT RESPONSE

Re: Letter to the editor from John Medeiros

Dear Mr. Medeiros,

Genuine optimism and faith in man are often labeled naivete. The fact that the United States and the Soviet Union seem to have "mutually exclusive" ideologies does not make it impossible for them to realize that they are approaching the same goal—betterment of man's life on earth (not world peace, though that also may ensue)—from different directions.

This realization, if and when it does occur, will perhaps make possible a mutual toleration if not outright friendship between the two nations. This hope may seem unattainable to the skeptics who see the future as an eternal struggle between communism and capitalism, only to be terminated in the destruction of one belief by the other or the total devastation of the world by an atom bomb.

The belief that these two ideologies are basically alike in their goals is founded on the fact that all men are alike in wishing the best in life for themselves and their loved ones. If Americans and Russians would strive for an understanding of each other, maybe the useless slaughter which took place during the World Wars would have been for a good reason—that humanity could learn from its mistakes and begin to work positively toward a new goal of peace through understanding.

Sandra Burlingame

Hampshire House

Dear Sir:

In reference to the letter carried in your column on September 30, 1963, we, the men of the second floor of Hampshire House, offer the following rebuttle:

Our relationship with the families on the first and third floors has been above reproach. Friendliness and cooperation has been expressed by them, in order to help us bridge the difficult situation. This we appreciate.

Concerning the children, we realize that problems will arise, but we also realize that someday most of us will have children of our own, and we are, therefore, willing to put up with the situation.

We are predominantly transfer students and, with one exception, we are grateful to the University for the accommodations afforded us. This housing, we realize, is saving us great personal difficulty and monetary expense.

Concerning public health, it is true that the drainage in the men's room is poor, but we appreciate the cooperation that we receive from our janitor in alleviating this problem.

Sincerely,
The Men of Hampshire

(Ed. Note: There were 27 signatures of Hampshire House residents affixed to this letter, but lack of space prevented us from printing them.)

Cadets

Dear Sirs:

It would give me great pleasure if you gentlemen, and ladies, would use the correct terminology when referring to those that are undergraduates of the Coast Guard Academy. They are not midshipmen, a term reserved for students of the Naval Academy, as any good dictionary (Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary, sixth (6th) edition), when referred to will tell you. On the contrary, the young undergraduates are referred to as cadets. Also, their uniforms are blue, not black, as stated in one of your articles (I believe it to be the one written by the girl).

Thank you for your kind attention. Any further reference to the Coast Guard in correct terms the next time will be a pleasant change. I hope that the University paper is not always so careless as to informing, or rather, misinforming the public.

Sincerely yours,
Meredith A. Houston, '67

Me, Madness, Humor

by MIKE HENCH

"What Price Glory?"

I sit here this evening anxiously awaiting the results of my quest for glory. As a very few of my readers may know, I have been seeking the position of commuter senator for the last week or so. To what heights I aspire for glory!

Perhaps there are some who aren't aware of the glory that accrues to a senator. One is looked up to by the masses. One is allowed to debate over nickels, dollars, even thousands of dollars. One can attend Senate meetings, committee meetings and sub-committee meetings; at least three nights a week. And everyone knows that employers are interested whether or not one is a senator.

Hence there is much glory. I have just learned that 101 of my fellow commuters sought to place me on the glorious pedestal. But there were more commuters who found me out, darn it, and so about six other guys get all the glory. But you can't win 'em all. I'll just continue to bat out this column, and rake in the glory from same. At least until the editor finds me out, and replaces me with a more properly motivated person.

Musicale

Sunday, Oct. 6—Beethoven: Sym. No. 2 in D, Op. 36 (Koussevitzky/BSO), Sym. No. 3 in E-Flat, Op. 55 "Eroica" (Koussevitzky/London Philharmonic Orch.); Elgar: Enigma Variations, Op. 36 (Toscanini/NBC Sym.)

Monday, Oct. 7—Poulenc: Trois Pieces, Melanolic, Suite Francis, Presto in B-Flat (Previn); Chausson: Poeme (Ormandy/Philadelphia Orch.); Offenbach: Gaite Parisienne (Ormandy); Faure: La Bonne Chanson, Op. 61

Tuesday, Oct. 8—Mahler: Sym. No. 1 in D "Titan" (Walter/Columbia Sym.); Beethoven: Concerto No. 5 in C Minor, Op. 37 (Rubinstein/Kripps/Sym. of Air); Vivaldi: Concerto in C Minor for Flute, Strings, and Continuo (I Musici)

Wednesday, Oct. 9 — Brahms: Academic Festival Overture, Op. 80 (Walter/Columbia Sym.); Bach: Toccata and Fugue in D Minor, Passacaglia and Fugue in C Minor Biggs); Schumann: Fantasiestucke, Op. 12 (Rubinstein); Bach: Concerto for Violin and Orch. in E (Heifetz / Wallenstein / Los Angeles Phil.); Mendelssohn: Sym. No. 3 in A Minor, Op. 56 "Scotch" Munch/BSO)

Thursday, Oct. 10—Haydn: Trio No. 1 in D Major, No. 2 in G Major (Birkelund / Karecki / Petersen); Mozart: Quartet in G, K. 387 (Juilard String Quartet); Delibes: Coppelia Monteux/BSO); Bach: Partita No. 2 in D Minor for Solo Violin (Heifetz); Bach: Brandenburg Concerto No. 2 in F Major (Prohaska/Vienna State Opera)

Brooks Wins Interdorm Sing

—Photo by Bill Green

The girls from Brooks House sing out in fine style to capture first place in the Women's Inter-dorm Sing.

by JOAN ST. LAURENT

Attired in school girl costumes, the members of Brooks House sang their way to first place honors at the annual Inter Dorm Sing held recentiy at the Women's Physical Education Building. Led by Paula Stevens, the girls sang "A Lesson in Brooks", a parody on "Do Re Mi" from the Broadway show, The Sound of Music.

Hamlin, led by Kathryn Donelson, placed second with the harmonious strains of "Halls of Ivy".

Third place went to Van Meter South, led by Joan Schoppe, for a medley of Civil War songs.

Judging the entries from the thirteen dormitories were Miss Esther Wallace of the Physical Education department, Miss Edith V. Antunes from the Placement Office for Women, and Mrs. Doric Alviani.

Presiding over the event at which Dean Helene Curtis, the several housemothers and over 300 girls attended, was Ruth Feinburg, president of the Women's Interdorm Council.

The Musigals provided the entertainment during intermission.

Japanese Educators Visit UMass

Old ties of friendship will be renewed this week when five top Japanese educators visit the University as part of their visit to educational institutions in this area.

The five university administrators are part of a 14-man Japanese team now in the U.S. on a 45-day inspection tour of educational institutions in the United States, Canada and Europe.

The team will also visit Amherst, Smith and Mount Holyoke Colleges during the week. The team, three university presidents and two deans, will pay particular attention to the Four College Cooperation program. They will also study admission systems, student personnel and guidance programs, scholarship programs, university-town relations, and various aspects of university administration.

Coming to the Amherst area are Kazuo Kato, President of Nihon University; Takashi Oizumi, President of St. Sophia University and President of the Japan University Accreditation Association; Kyuji Tanikawa, President of Chiba University; Tokutaro Koike, dean of the department of economics at Keio University; and Naoki Toida, dean of liberal arts and science at Kyushu University.

Japanese-University of Massachusetts friendship goes back to 1876 when William S. Clark, the third president of UMass, went to Japan to help establish what is now the University of Hokkaido, and became its first president. Several UMass graduates joined the faculty in Sapporo, Hokkaido in Northern Japan in succeeding years.

The program was renewed in 1957 when UMass and the University of Hokkaido began a five-year exchange under sponsorship of the U.S. government's International Cooperation Administration (ICA). ICA has since been reorganized into AID, the Agency for International Development.

Under the exchange program, UMass professors from the College of Agriculture provided technical assistance in agriculture at the University of Hokkaido, while Japanese professors came to UMass. In the five years of the program, 40 professors were exchanged between the two universities.

In 1956, UMass conferred an honorary degree on Harusada Suginome, President of the University of Hokkaido. The Japanese institution reciprocated last year when President Suginome traveled 10,000 miles to confer an honorary degree on President John W. Lederle at Charter Day exercises marking the 100th anniversary of UMass.

In 1956, the cornerstone was laid for Japan's first Student Union building—at the University of Hokkaido. It is named, fittingly, for the man who began the historic friendship—William S. Clark, third president of UMass and first president of the University of Hokkaido.

College Bowl ...

(Continued from page 1)

from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

Persons having already taken the written test who have not signed up for an appointment for the oral testing which begins this week should see Dr. Madeira, and those with appointments should check at his office to see when the tests will be held.

Anyone who is interested in the College Bowl and has not yet applied may do so by seeing either Dr. Madeira or Mr. Melley in the News Office in South College. He may also, if he wishes, ask the Collegian secretary for a biographical sheet. The sheet should be filled out and returned by Wednesday to either Dr. Madeira or Mr. Melley.

NOTICES

COLLEGE BOWL

Applicants who were unable to make Tuesday's meeting should see Mr. Madera in B451 for testing on Mon., Oct. 7, from 4 to 5 p.m. Other appointments will be made for those unable to come at this time.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA

There will be a business meeting for all members Tues., Oct. 8, at 6:30 p.m. in the S.U.

GRADUATE STUDENTS

There will be a coffee hour for graduate students Sunday night after Sunday devotions at the

(Continued on page 6)

UM Hillel ...

(Continued from page 1)

have the patience, perseverance, and confidence in the future to work continuously for peace despite all failures and adversities.

He compared the problem of peace to the slavery problem which faced the U.S. after it first gained its independence. Abolition then, like world peace now, was a vision which could not yet be attained. The problem reguired work by people who never lived to see the solution. He said that the person with faith is the one best equipped to work under such discouraging conditions.

Another example cited was that of the Negro non-violent movement. Aimed at the oppressor's consciences, this movement is achieving the kind of gradual success which Jones feels can be made on the problem of war. In short, he declared the value of religious faith to be the constant nourishment of hope, the providing of a force to lift morale.

Rev. Jones is a Presbyterian minister who has long been known for his work in the area of social problems. While living in Brooklyn, he was among the most active ministers in New York in Supporting peace, civil liberties, and aid to the poor.

Swingline
Fables for Fun

Confucius say, one day in fun,
To a friend and Number One Son,
"With my Swingline I'll fuse
Your most honorable queues
Because two heads are better than one!"

SWINGLINE
STAPLER

98c
(including 1000 staples)
Larger size CUB Desk Stapler only $1.49

No bigger than a pack of gum
• Unconditionally guaranteed!
• Refills available anywhere!
• Get it at any stationery, variety, or book store!
• Send in your own Swingline Fable. Prizes for those used

Swingline INC. LONG ISLAND CITY 1, N. Y.

'DON' CALL
Optician

Why not stop in and have us
RECORD the POWER of your
present EYEGLASSES
This will PREVENT difficulty
in case of LOSS or BREAKAGE
In case of BREAKAGE you can bring in BROKEN PIECES
for DUPLICATION
Sunglasses available with or without power
SHATTER-PROOF LENSES
Made in our own laboratory

'DON' CALL—Optician
56 Main Street AMHERST AL 3-7002

—FOR SALE—
1952 PLYMOUTH SEDAN
Good tires, full tank. A little noisy, but runs well. $30. Call and re-call AL 6-6223 after 6 p.m.

Ptomaine Problems?
UMass Students Overcome Them at ...
Grandy's Restaurant
i.e.: For Friday
99¢
Fish Sticks
Mashed & Gravy
Choice of Vegetable
Rolls
Coffee, etc.
Desert
—ACROSS FROM THE FIRE HOUSE—

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

by SANDI MAY '64

Women's Judiciary Meets With House Councils

The Women's Judiciary is a campus governing body composed of two seniors, two juniors, and one sophomore who meet weekly to discuss disciplinary measures in regard to the women students.

The Judiciary holds elections every spring. Those girls who are interested must take out nomination papers and obtain signatures for their endorsement. These papers are returned to the RSO office and Women's Judiciary then interviews the candidates. The best qualified girls are chosen by the Judiciary and an open election is then held.

At the beginning of the school year, Women's Judiciary meets with all the House Councils. Any cases which exceed the jurisdiction of the House Council become matters of the Women's Judiciary.

There have been no new decisions or rules passed recently by the Judiciary.

The Chief Justice of Women's Judiciary is also a representative of the University Disciplinary Board.

Although Women's Judiciary is not as well known to the women on campus as are the House Councils, it plays a large part in helping students to adjust to student life at the University.

The Skinner Scoop

The first edition of the "Skinner Scoop" a monthly publication written and edited by the students of the School of Home Economics, was recently issued to all Home Economic majors. The newspaper's purpose is to inform these majors of events and topics of interest and importance on campus and within the department.

Special articles in this issue included an article on the recruitment program; a listing of the building, lounge, and library hours of Edna Skinner Hall; an article concerning the Home Economics Club; and a calendar of home economic and university events for October.

Any home economics student

(Continued on page 7)

PINNINGS

Lynne Knubbe, IGU, to Rick Kiliham, PDT, Boston University.

Joan DiBaisi, New Bedford Tech., to Jim Medieros, QTV.

Kay Cashman, Brighton, Mass., to Jim Norton, QTV.

Sharon Premo, Lewis, to Alan K. Deaett, DU, Amherst College, 1962.

Kathleen M. Brosnahan, West Boylston, Mass., to Lawrence L. Vandiford, Wheeler.

Nancy Kenyon, KAT, to Richard Morse, Theta Chi.

MARRIAGE

Wallis Smith, Brooks, to Bill Kitchen, QTV.

DORM NEWS

BAKER

For the first time in the history of Baker House there are more than 50 seniors in residence. To honor this achievement, a Senior Banquet was held at the Stockade in Deerfield.

Following a beef supper, a birthday cake was presented to Don Tracy and Wait Bozenhardt.

Mrs. Lillian Hunter, and Gryphon Doug Pearsall wrapped up the evening with a few tales which form part of Baker's tradition.

ENGAGEMENTS

Announcement is made of the engagement of Norma Wolfson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wolfson of Winthrop to Maurice Kelsey, son of Mrs. Jay Kelsey and the late Mr. Kelsey of Easton, Penn. Norma is a music major in the class of '64 and a resident of Arnold House. Her fiancé is a graduate of Lehigh University and completed work for his master's degree in chemistry at the University of Massachusetts. He is presently employed by the National Starch and Chemical Co. in Plainfield, New Jersey. An early summer wedding is planned.

ENGAGEMENTS

Maxine Levy '65, Thatcher House, engaged to Saul Greenblatt of Emerson College.

GREENOUGH

Approximately forty couples attended Greenough's first party and dance of the season on Saturday evening, September 28. Brightly tinted leaves and fall-colored decorations turned Greenough's "rec-room" into an autumn ballroom. Cider and doughnuts were served, and a lively tape recording added further to the evening's enjoyment. Preparations for Greenough's Homecoming Float and Halloween Dance in the Student Union ballroom on November 2 are well under way.

Exam Is Next Week

The Annual Handbook Examination which is required of all women students will be given sometime next week. This examination is given by Women's Judiciary in conjunction with the Women's Affairs Committee of the Student Senate. The examination is taken by all women students and must be passed. Failure to pass the examination requires taking it a second time.

The purpose of the examination is to acquaint the student with the rules of the University concerning dormitory and sorority living.

DVP To Present ...

(Continued from page 1)

for the Boston Transcript interpreted Pirandello's message in these words: "We humans can only understand our lives if we accept the fact that experience is an endlessly moving stream, but that through art, and art alone, can we crystalize certain moments of emotion, freeze them into a fixed pattern which time cannot obliterate or change."

"Six Characters" is the second play and a twin offering in the third national tour being presented by Circle In The Square with Theodore Mann as Executive Producer.

Circle In The Square, in the twelve years since it was founded by Mr. Mann and Jose Quintero, has become one of New York's most successful and distinguished off-Broadway theaters, and has won acclaim throughout the country for its fresh, vigorous approach to contemporary theater productions.

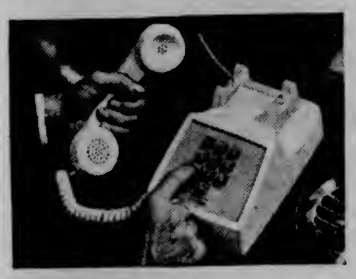
Progress in the Bell System...

SWIMS...

ORBITS...

BEAMS...

FLASHES...



PUSHES...

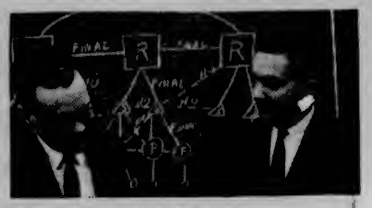
PULSES...

TALKS...

BURROWS...

WINKS...

BLINKS...



AND LIVES AND BREATHES...

Progress takes many shapes in the Bell System. And among the shapers are young men, not unlike yourself, impatient to make things happen for their companies and themselves. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing phone business.

Bell Telephone Companies

Your Campus Personalities & Events

Featured in

THE DAILY HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

Sam Apgar 253-5831

Will Take Your Subscription

Diamonds of Fine Quality

MODERATE PRICES

Credit Arrangements

WINN JEWELERS

31 So. Pleasant — Amherst

Noted Physiologist Speaks On Athletes And Food

Dr. Peter Karpovich, internationally known research physiologist at Springfield College, spoke in the Physical Education Building on the effects of various foods on athletic performance.

DR. KARPOVICH

Born in Russia in 1896, and naturalized as an American in 1935, Dr. Karpovich received his M.D. in 1919 from the Leningrad State Military Academy. He served in various capacities in Russia before becoming Professor of Physiology at Springfield College in 1927.

He spoke about the effects of certain foods on the performance of athletes, and cited examples where college athletes were given sugar or other stimulants before games. Dr. Karpovich added that tests have shown that these foods made no appreciable difference in the performance of the athletes.

With Dr. Karpovich was his former pupil, Dr. Benjamin Ricci, Human Anatamy and Physiology Professor here at UMass.

Dr. Karpovich and his electrogoniometer, invented by him and his son in 1958, attained nationwide prominence when he showed that high-heeled shoes did not cause women's arches to fail.

Employees To Pick Queen Candidate

University of Massachusetts employees will choose a queen candidate on Wednesday, Oct. 2, to compete for the title of Miss Massachusetts State Employee.

The local contest is scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union.

Arthur Benoit of South Hadley Falls, maintenance foreman at the University, is in charge of the contest. Mrs. Bertille Brozdai is assisting with arrangements.

The campus competition is open to all girls, married or single, who work at the University. Employees who want to make nominations should call Mrs. Drozdal at 545-2631.

The local winner will represent UMass at a dinner-dance in Boston on Oct. 10, when the Massachusetts State Employees Association will crown a queen and four princesses.

Freshmen ...

(Continued from page 1)

its, no grades. They will meet once a week for six weeks.

The groups will offer, first of all, an opportunity to express yourself freely and to discuss with fellow students a topic of common concern; secondly, a learning situation free from the temptation to pursue marks rather than knowledge; third, a chance to come to know a small number of your classmates quite well; and finally, a lot of fun and a worthwhile experience for the student who likes to exchange ideas, debate subjects, differ with each other, etc. The student who likes just to hear others doing these things will also enjoy attending.

Insults Thrown ...

(Continued from page 1)

have as yet been untried in the heat of intercollegiate competition.

A crowd of over fifty is expected at WMTA's first meeting, and all those who want to join the organization are urged to attend.

Eskimo Graphic Art Show

THE ARCHER, sealskin stencil, black and 1 color, by Niviaksiak.

"Eskimo Graphic Art," an exhibit of 50 stone-block and sealskin prints, both color and black and white, will open this Sunday, Oct. 6, in the Commonwealth Room of the Student Union.

The exhibition of native Eskimo art will continue until Oct. 27. The public is cordially invited to view the exhibit.

The prints, collected in 1960, come from Cape Dorset, a small, isolated community on Baffin Island in the Canadian Arctic.

The exhibition is being circulated in the U.S. by the Traveling Exhibition Service of the Smithsonian Institution.

Prints in the exhibit depict the customs and major concerns of Eskimo artists.

Day-to-day experiences furnish subject matter for most of the prints. Some also reflect Eskimos' preoccupations with a spirit world.

Because the Eskimos conceive their subject images as simplified, rhythmic forms, many of the prints are almost abstract in their execution.

The Eskimos use both sealskin and stone-block processes. In the first of these, they use a sealskin stencil in a process by which the design is transferred to a piece of sealskin. The sealskin is then cut out in the manner of a stencil and placed on a sheet of paper with color being added to the openings in the stencil.

In the second, called the stone-cut process, the design is transferred to and then cut out in low relief on the surface of a flattened and polished piece of soapstone. The stone is inked and a sheet of paper placed upon the surface to receive the impression.

Villanova To Hold Jazz Festival

Villanova University is proud to announce that applications are now available for the Fourth Annual Intercollegiate Jazz Festival, to be held in the University Field House on Friday evening, February 7, 1964.

As was the case last year, Stan Kenton is Chief Advisor, and will again attend the show. He was quoted after the show as referring to the affair as a "spectacular," and added that "Never in my life have I ever seen a more talented group of performers."

Kenton also signed Bob Curnow, winner of the Best Trombonist award and leader of the second-placed West Chester Criterions, to travel with his band.

The judging panel is incomplete at this date, but will include Philadelphia disc-jockey Sid Mark, Bob Share of the Berklee School of Music, and Ira Gitler of Down Beat Magazine. Plans are being made to have two musicians serve on the panel.

The ABC Radio Network carried two hours of last year's show live, and reported an average listening audience of well over one million; the network has already begun negotiations for complete coverage for IJF '64.

Down Beat Magazine is again giving the Festival full coverage. Scouts from most of the country's record companies and booking agencies will be in attendance.

Because of the early date, deadline for applications will be November 15. Final selection of contestants will be made by taped auditions to be held at and conducted by the Berklee School of Music on January 4, 1964. Interested groups should submit a tape of about fifteen minutes to our address above. If possible, the tape should be a recent one, made since September 1. Deadline for tapes is December 18

We anticipate a large number of applicants again this year, and minute delay or complications.

Bridge Game Winners Are Announced

There were eleven even tables in play Thursday, Sept. 26th. In order to stop at 10 as announced only ten of the eleven moves or two boards each couid be played. Therefore average was 90 match poitns. The winners were:

NORTH-SOUTH

		Points
1st	Schwartz-Horvitz	131
2nd	Glennon-Harwood	108½
3rd	Matta-Sprongberg	102½
4th	Patz-Savery	97½
5th	Blum-Morse	97½

EAST-WEST

		Points
1st	Bennett-McDevitt	116
2nd	Ferguson-Gray	99½
3rd	Matta-Quadrine	98½
4th	Cox-Carlson	98
5th	Granholm-Walton	89

—LOST & FOUND—

FOUND: Man's watch in the cage. Call Paul Page, 104 Greenough.

LOST: Elementary Statistical Methods for Statistics 50. Lost Oct. 3 near Bartlett or the S.U. If found contact Sheila Cooper, 208 Thatcher.

LOST: A black raincoat, London Fog lable, at QTV Sat. night. Will finder please return to Betty Korpinen, 313 Crabtree.

LOST: Acu-Math slide rule in Machmer E36 on Tues., Oct. 1. If found call Paul Jariviere, B-8 Gorman.

LOST: A brand new U of M reversible jacket was taken from the rack in the Game Room of

(Continued on page 6)

Senate Results ...

(Continued from page 1)

PLYMOUTH: Charles Seavey

• • •

MARRIED DORMS: Peter Brown
FRATERNITIES: Dave Clancy, Peter Graham
SORORITIES: Joan Labuzoski
COMMUTERS: Ric Steliga, Judy Crooker, Bill Donovan, Elwin McNamara, John Blackmore, Peter Bosworth
BAKER: Frank Laski, Joe Piecuch, Richard Hatfield
GORMAN: Sarkis Simon, Paul Richardson
CLASS OF 1965: John Reynolds

Numerical results are posted in the Collegian office.

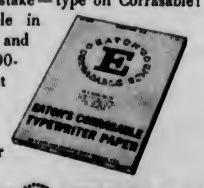
We all make mistakes...

ERASE WITHOUT A TRACE ON EATON'S CORRĀSABLE BOND

Typing errors never show on Corrāsable. The special surface of this paper makes it possible to erase without a trace—with just an ordinary pencil eraser. Results: clean-looking, perfectly typed papers. Next time you sit down at the keyboard, make no mistake—type on Corrāsable!

Your choice of Corrāsable in light, medium, heavy weights and Onion Skin. In handy 100-sheet packets and 500-sheet boxes. Only Eaton makes Corrāsable.



A Berkshire Typewriter Paper

EATON PAPER CORPORATION PITTSFIELD, MASS.

TWIN CLEANERS of Northampton

The FIRST Dependable Dry Cleaning and Shirt Service has come to UMass!

• 3 Day Service • First Quality Work

• Student Prices

LOOK FOR IT, USE IT, AND SEE!
IN YOUR DORM TODAY!

MOUNTAIN PARK
—Route 5, Holyoke, Mass.—
—Every SAT. 8 p.m.—
COLLEGE MIXER
★ 2 BANDS ★
Bobby Kaye plus College Twisters

The Music Man

by JOAN JONES

One of the most popular musical shows in American stage history, Meredith Willson's The Music Man, is coming to Bowker Theatre on Oct. 31, Nov. 1 and 2, with an additional Saturday matinee. This is the tune-filled tale of a brassy, sassy, lovable rogue who comes to a little Iowa town in the 1912 era to fleece its citizens with an original gold-brick scheme.

His intention is to excite in the townspeople a desire to organize a brass band, to collect their money for instruments, uniforms and sheet music, and then to disappear with the loot without teaching anyone to toot a horn as he had promised.

One of the numbers that invariably stops the show is "Ya Got Trouble," a warning to the Mothers of River City to watch for the telltale signs of corruption in their youth. The solution, says the Professor, is to direct them into the wholesome activity of blowing horns and beating drums, triangles and cymbals.

The trick works. The townspeople load Harold Hill with their money, but the rascally trickster can't skip town—he has met the lovely librarian—Marian the librarian, who at first is suspicious and cool to him.

The plot's complications, of course, bring about the conman's reform, and he wins the librarian, but not before the audience is worn with laughter and lifted by seventeen lilting or rousing songs.

The shows ends on what the New York critics agreed was one of the most stirring "happy endings" of any musical comedy: the town has its brass band, and everybody is grinning and prancing as it plays the famous rafter-shaking "Seventy-Six Trombones." Audiences have "joined the show" at this point, delighting at the wholesome fun that every child as well as every adult can take pleasure in.

Jack Singer (Harold) will be seen in the role of the effervescent con-man, Peggy Jones (Marian) will be the charming librarian who changes his plans. Others in the cast will be Richard Martin (Winthrop) as her shy kid brother with an unshakable faith in the swindler, David Bachmann (Mayor Shinn) as the mayor of the town, Jane Abbiati (Eulalie) as his wife, and Janet Bilodeau (Mrs. Paroo) as the heroine's mother.

Wayne Lamb, as director and choreographer, is staging the pulse-raising marching of the "Seventy-Six Trombones" number, the tippy-toed ballet spoofing the command for silence in Marian's library, the "Shipoopi" gala of bloomer-clad girls in a high school gymnasium and the other exuberant dances in the show.

Panhellenic Council Helps National Drive

On Saturday representatives from sororities in Panhellenic Council will be canvassing parts of Amherst for donations to A.L.S.A.C., Aiding Leukemia Stricken American Children. ALSAC, a project of Danny Thomas, achieved great success in California resulting in the establishment of the St. Jude Hospital, a non-denominational hospital, to which all contributions will go.

Lost & Found ...

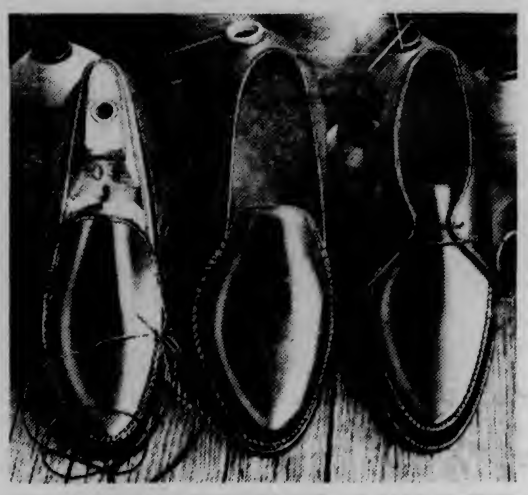
(Continued from page 5)

the S.U. Please return it as I can't afford another one. Contact Paul Klorer, 311 Wheeler.

LOST: K+E Log Log rule on Wed. at 9 between Butterfield and Engin. Building. Please return to William Gilbrook, 102 Butterfield. Reward.

LOST in the vicinity of the S.U., Public Health Building, and Morril Sept. 30th.—a 14kt gold circle pin. Reward. Contact K. De Brest, Dept. of Microbiology, Public Health Building or call AL 3-7374 after 6 p.m.

MEN'S FASHION FOOTNOTES



HOW MANY HAND-STITCHES DOES IT TAKE TO SHOE A MAN IN STYLE? Why count hand-stitches? Simply this: hand-stitching shapes and fits leather perfectly. In Flex-O-Mocs it takes additional expert hand-stitches to "gather" and mould the leather to the contours of your foot. (The number of stitches varies with the style and size). Result: The moccasin seam, sewn by hand, gives a foot-hugging fit plus extra softness where your foot bends. Flex-O-Mocs by BOSTONIAN—available at

Bolles Shoe Store
Amherst Center

'HELP SANDY OLSON' COMMITTEE GROWS

by DAVE HARACZ

We are all familiar with the stereotype of the "old fashioned country doctor," making his way through a storm in the night to a patient's home with just the contents of his black leather bag as weapons against disease. We are just as much aware of the modern teams of doctors, working in close co-operation with technicians and specialists with the latest drugs and equipment to produce what would be termed miracles a few decades ago.

There is, though, one factor in medicine that has remained constant; that is the need for time for the body to recover from the rigors of attack by disease and even from the effects of the life-saving treatments. By the combination of speed and modern medical techniques and equipment, Sandra Olson's life has been spared; but the story does not end here.

The story indeed continues for a long time, since "Sandy," as she is known to her friends here and from Worcester's North High, from which she graduated last year grst in her class of 435, faces a long recuperation from her recent historic operation in the pressure chamber at Boston's Children's Hospital.

Originally, it was a small group of Sandra's friends from North High who saw the need to help her through the difficult months ahead. Forming the "Committee to Help Sandra Olson," their first act was the procurement of a large get well card to be signed by any interested friends, and, as the committee grows slowly, they hope to be able to expand the movement to campus-wide proportions.

Those who feel that, in groups or individually, they can contribute ideas or any other form of assistance, may learn more details by contacting Tom Christensen at 222 Brett House.

Students Whirl During Square Dance Meeting

—Photo by Nina Pearlmutter

Every Wednesday night the S.U. Ballroom is the home of the "Heymakers," UMass square dancing club. All interested in square dancing are urged to attend.

Army ROTC Holds Drill

On September 17 the first mass drill for the entire Army ROTC Brigade was held under the new voluntary program. The Brigade is divided into three battalions, two of which have four companies each, with each company being further divided into two platoons.

The first battalion, under the command of Lt. Col. Robert Covalucci, is staffed by Major George Carvalho and M/Sgt. Pinto. The second battalion is under the command of Lt. Col. Arthur Collins whose staff is composed of Major Don Ramos and M/Sgt. Harris. The third battalion is commanded by Lt. Col. Edward Dowdy and staffed by Major James Blanchard and Capt. Richard McLaughlin.

Vespa Motor Scooters
While They Last
CLOSE OUT SALE

125 cc VESPA MOTOR SCOOTER
Retail Selling Price $375.
Wholesale Price $291.25

150 cc VESPA MOTOR SCOOTER
Retail Selling Price $425.
Wholesale Price $328.75

GRAND LUX VESPA MOTOR SCOOTER
Retail Selling Price $460.
Wholesale Price $355.00

— 90 Day Warranty on Parts and Labor —

COLLEGE SUNOCO
292 College Street AMHERST AL 3-9279

Senior Class Exec. Council Plans Big

With the intention of working off Senior Blues, the Senior Class is now working on an aggressive and an enthusiastic program for the class members as well as for the University. Besides planning for reorganization of Senior Week Activities, the Class Gift, a Class Fund, and a Spring Concert, the Class of 1964 is lining up plans for Special Fall Activities.

Under the guidance of the Senior Class Officers, Jim Medeiros, Ray Kodzis, Betty Mercer, and Carol Esonis the Senior Executive Council will be very busy this year. The Senior Executive Council members are:

Judy Clark
Lee Ann Mansel
Margaret Walter
Pat Sweeney
Linda Swenson
Jane Bemis
Debbie Downey
Ann Miller
Merry Arnold
Bev Botelho
Pat Bourbonnais
Jane Lenny
Gail Jensen
Helena Lewanotowicz
Ellen Vyce
Vi Albertson
Leah Shepardson
Kay Reagan
Edie Leahy
Diane Smith
Art Collins
Jim Norton
Ken Robbins
Jack Nevers
Dave Lemon
Corky Brickman
John Burke
Dave Anderson
Kim Wallace
Paul Mahoney
Jim Gallagher
Roger Bacchieri
Steve Salhus (Senate)
Dave Mathieson (Senate)

First Rally ...

(Continued from page 1)

Coach Vic Fusia, the Redmen squad, Marching band and cheerleaders will be on hand for Metawampe's first bonfire of the season.

A rally dance sponsored by Adelphia will follow immediately after the bonfire.

DEERFIELD Drive-In
ROUTES 5 & 10
S. Deerfield, Mass.
—FRI., SAT., SUN.—
Joanne Woodward
in
THE STRIPPER
—ALSO—
Jackie Gleason
in Gigot
In Color
Show begins at 7:30

Tough Competition Hilites Intramural Play

INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL

Intramural football for the dorms and independents started this week as the I.F.C. league moved into its second week.

In the Independent league the Buggers shutout the Mets 13-0 while the Newman Club was being downed by the Shamrocks 19-16.

In the dorm league, last year's dorm champions, Hills North, rolled to a 22-6 victory over Baker. In other action. Butterfield shaded Middlesex 13-6, Chadbourne slammed Plymouth 27-0, and an all freshman team from Hills South bounced Brett 14-6.

In the I.F.C. league there were many surprise results on Wednesday night. The biggest surprise of the night came when unbeaten T.K.E. shut out a strong L.C.A. team, only to lose on a forfeit because of an ineligible player who played the last 15 seconds of the game. Elsewhere in the league, K.S. downed Z.N. 21-6, S.A.E. nipped S.P.E. 12-6 and P.S.K. fought T.E.P. to a 12-12 tie.

Standings as of Thursday, October 3

League A	W.	L.	T.
S.A.E.	2	0	0
A.E.P.	1	0	1
S.P.E.	1	1	0
B.K.P.	1	1	0
Q.T.V.	1	1	0
P.S.K.	0	1	1
A.S.P.	0	2	0
T.E.P.	2	0	0
League B	W.	L.	T.
K.S.	2	0	0
L.C.A.	1	0	1
T.C.	1	0	1
T.K.E.	1	1	0
P.M.D.	1	1	0
P.S.D.	1	1	0
Z.N.	0	2	0
A.T.G.	0	2	0

Notices ...

(Continued from page 3)

Newman Center. Devotions start at 7 p.m. All graduate students are invited to attend.

MEET THE PROFS.

The English Dept. will be the guest of the initial program of Meet of the Profs., sponsored by the Special Events Committee. The program will be held in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U. at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 9.

MUSIC HOUR

A music hour with Paul Bartsch at the piano will be held Sunday, Oct. 6, at 3 p.m. in the Cape Cod Lounge.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Qualified students interested in Scholarships Abroad should contact W. B. Nutting, Rm 328 Morrill Hall immediately. Deadlines are nearing for such Fulbright and Marshall Scholarships.

RIFLE PRACTICE

ROTC white teams No. 3, 4, and 5 will attend team practice on Tues. evening, Oct. 8, at 6:30 p.m. at the Dickinson Hall Range. ROTC white teams No. 1 and 2 are exempted from this session.

SENATE

Those interested in the position of Senate Recorder should pick up applications in the R.S.O. Office. The position will involve taking abstracted minutes at Wednesday night Senate meetings.

SORORITY RUSH

The Pan Hellenic Council will hold a Rush Convocation and Round Robins on Sunday, October 6, from 1 to 5 p.m. in the S.U. Ballroom. All women students interested in rushing are urged to attend. Those who have not registered may also attend, as another opportunity to register will be offered next week.

S.U. DANCE COMMITTEE

There will be a meeting Tues., Oct. 8, at 11 a.m. in the Nantucket Room of the S.U.

Frosh Upset

In a gruelling cross country race Saturday afternoon at New London, Conn., the Mass frosh were bested by the Coast Guard 26-29. Despite strong efforts by Bob St. Clair, New Jersey high school record holder, and Charley "Flash" Mitchel, former Fairhaven high captain, who finished first and third, respectively, the Coast Guard displayed power in sweeping second, fourth and sixth places, while Mass took seventh, eighth and tenth places.

A pleasant surprise for the Redmen proved to be Mike Duggan, who exceeded pre-season expectations and finished a strong seventh. The turning point of the 3.1 mile track came when Manfredi of Mass, running a strong second half way through the race, suddenly received an attack of stomach cramps and barely managed to eke out tenth place.

This was the first loss for the freshmen cross country team in three years. As a result the squad was called upon Sunday afternoon to jog a few miles, athough prevailing conditions were under par.

Next week the Redmen travel to Northeastern in quest of their first victory.

Footrick Apprehensive

Coach Bill Footrick looks with apprehension at this Saturday's cross country tri-meet between the University of Massachusetts, Northeastern and Maine at Franklin Park, Boston, at 2 p.m.

Footrick's harriers opened their season last Saturday with a one-sided 18-40 win at Coast Guard. But the Redmen mentor points out that Northeastern won its opening meet handily and that Maine is always a dangerous opponent.

Redman ace Bob Brouillet (Phillipston) broke the Coast Guard course record covering the 3.9 mile course in the time of 20:29.5 breaking the old mark of 20:38 set by Springfield College's Terry Merritt. Junior Bob Ramsay (Brockton) placed second over 70 seconds behind Brouillet.

UMass also swept fourth, fifth and sixth with sophomore Bob Molvar (Melrose) senior Gene Colburn (Needham) and soph Al MacPhail (Wellesley Hills) finishing in that order. Junior Tom Parke (Feeding Hills) placed nintht and soph Bob Larson (Worcester) placed 11th.

The UMass frosh will meet the Maine and Northeastern frosh at 2 p.m.

Varsity Booters Face New England Champs

The UMass varsity booters face the New England champion and Sampson cup holders, Williams College, Saturday, Oct. 5, at 11 a.m. on the varsity field.

After an intensive week of practice there have been slight changes in the line with Patt McDevitt being shifted to inside to replace Mike Zawrotny who is being changed to McDevitt's center forward position. Ron Merrill might secure a starting berth with Pat Dougherty being added to the injured list of Yando, Repeta, Leete and McDevitt.

Williams has not been defeated in 16 games, a span covering 2 years. With seven returning starters they have a good chance to retain their rank as number one in New England.

Frosh soccer opened Wednesday as the freshmen defeated Deerfield academy, 5-1. Aba Johnson, Garry Gibbons and Collin Garstang connected for one each with Stavros Garst accounting for two. Fine defensive play by Laurine Tarr and Allen Kline held the Green to only one goal.

STUDENTS' WIVES

Season tickets for wives of UMass students are now on sale in Room 10 A—Men's Physical Education Building. The price of the tickets is $5.00 and it will admit the bearer to all home football, basketball and baseball games. Seating will be in the section reserved for students.

Skinner Scoops ...

(Continued from page 4)

interested in becoming a member of the "Skinner Scoop" staff should contact one of the co-editors, Judith Barry or Janet Preissler, through the Home Economics Club.

MUTUAL
FOR STUDENT NEEDS

Zenith Radio
Alarm Clocks
Curtain Rods
Window Shades
Window Screens
Towel Bars
Sports Goods
Tools
Gifts
Extension Cords
Bulbs
Clothes Racks

MUTUAL Plumbing & Heating Co.
63 S. Pleasant Amherst

Your Perfect Companion for the Bucknell Game
Pendleton "ROBE IN A BAG" 100% Virgin Wool
In your college color with Massachusetts Seal
The Ideal Gift for the Visiting Family or that Special Gal! $17.95

Attention Girls!
From our growing Ladies' Dept. an extensive line of Ladies' Outercoats!
Featuring "The WENDY" by LODENFRY of Munich
The spotlight is on this Classic Double-Breasted Coat with its charming new closings of contrasting fabric.
This Wind-Breaker Coat is self-lined in a contrasting color, features cut-in flap pockets, hood, and comes in a choice of colors. Only $34.95

House of Walsh
"MORE THAN A TOGGERY • A COLLEGE INSTITUTION"
AMHERST MASS.

Quality Fruit Store
Amity Street
The Little Store Near the Theater

Does a man really take unfair advantage of women when he uses Mennen Skin Bracer?

All depends on why he uses it.
Most men simply think Menthol-Iced Skin Bracer is the best after-shave lotion around. Because it cools rather than burns. Because it helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Because it helps prevent blemishes.
So who can blame them if Bracer's crisp, long-lasting aroma just happens to affect women so remarkably?
Of course, some men may use Mennen Skin Bracer because of this effect.
How intelligent!

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Bucknell Bisons Expected To Bring Redmen Trouble

by STEVE HEWEY

Take one Bucknell quarterback who has completed 23 of 29 passes this season. Then, add to this two glue-fingered Bucknell ends who have eight receptions each. What you have is a stew that may boil over onto Alumni Field when the Bucknell University Bisons appear on tomorrow's Redmen home menu.

Bison head chef Bob Odell has one favorite recipe. And when he has the proper ingredients his favorite dish is a spicy passing attack.

The chef seems to have the ingredients this year. He has Don Rogers at quarterback and Tom Mitchell and Phil Morgan at end. And for a little added flavor Odell throws in reserve quarterback Bill Lerro. And so far this season passing has been the bread and butter of the Bison offence.

THIS MAIN course has given rival coaches indigestion two weeks in a row. Dartmouth coach Bob Blackburn had the more painful case last Saturday. His Dartmouth eleven nipped the Bisons, 20 to 18, but not before Bucknell completed 18 of 22 passes. The week previous Bucknell bested Gettysburg, 19-7, thanks to some crafty passing work.

The Bisons' first string signal caller, Senior Don Rogers, spent two years on the bench while a couple of other pass-minded boys, Don Giordano and Norm Garrity, gave opponents the fits, including UMass. With these two no longer around, Rogers is earning a name of his own.

In two games Rogers has clicked on 23 of 29 passes for 255 yards and 4 TD's. In the Dartmouth game he found his man on 14 of the 17 he threw. His understudy, Bill Lerro, also has a knack for hitting receivers. He has 5 for 7.

ENDS PHIL MORGAN, 6'0, and Sophomore Tom Mitchell, 6'2, have helped Rogers' flashy start. Mitchell has caught eight passes for 165 yards and two TD's. Morgan has eight receptions good for 78 yards. Both boys are speedsters and have sure hands which they can put to good use.

The Bisons' running game is not as tangy as their main course. Dartmouth held Bucknell to a scant 26 yards rushing. In two games the Bucknell rushing yardage totals 234. Halfback Bob Laughton, 5'11, 195, has accounted for 132 yards of that total in 30 carries.

Bucknell has spent most of the past week on drills to bolster its ground game and point after conversions. Failure to achieve conversions after touchdowns last Saturday cost the Bisons a victory at Dartmouth. Bucknell wants to be especially sure of extra points tomorrow because the Redmen beat them by the margin of one point last year.

UMASS COACH Vic Fusia, disappointed with the Redmen offense, has had his backfield going through extra effort in workouts the past few days. Fusia is attempting to cut down on the backfield in motion and illegal procedure penalties that hurt the Redmen in the Maine and Harvard games. Since its 25-0 scrimmage win over Colgate UMass has not displayed any offensive consistency.

Pass defense has not been overlooked in recent drills either. UM defenders realize that an extra effort is in order to retain an air minded Bucknell offense.

UMass could become a little air minded itself tomorrow. In two games to date quarterback Jerry Whelchel has yet to throw the ball with the frequency and accuracy that he is capable of. With 6'4 Milt Morin at one end and 6'3 Bob Meers at the other end serving as tempting targets and with a heavier Redman line for protection, Whelchel could give the Bisons fits with a passing attack of his own.

AFTER THE Harvard contest Fusia has made some changes in his starting lineup. Sophomores Bernie Dallas and Bob Ellis have been moved up to the starting center and left half positions. Junior Ken Palm has been moved up to the right half slot.

UM vs. Bucknell Last Year

The Redmen met Bucknell for the first time in their football history last season and escaped with a 21-20 win. It took a Whelchel pass to halfback Loren Flagg with two seconds left to accomplish the feat. Whelchel had one of his finest days as he completed 10 of 17 passes for 161 yards and two TD's.

Bucknell quarterbacks Ron Giordano and Norm Garrity teamed up to complete 24 of the 41 passes they attempted against the Redmen in a losing effort.

BOB ELLIS, earning a starting slot against Bucknell, after his great Harvard effort.

REDMEN LETTER CLUB

Two weeks ago UM Coach Vic Fusia initiated his REDMAN Letter Club. For each outstanding play he takes part in, a UMass player gets a little decal letter for his helmet until the word REDMAN is spelled out. Halfback Bob Ellis has already earned the seven letters that spell out REDMAN across his helmet for his outstanding work against Harvard. Other players receiving letter decals:

	Maine	Harvard
Pietz	R	ED
Burke	R	E
Dallas	RE	DM
DeMinico	R	E
Meers	RED
Hudson	RED	MA
Hagberg	R
Brophy	RE
Graham	RED	M
Tedoldi	RE
Whelchel		RE
Doyle		R
Ross		RE
Ellis		REDMAN

Tomorrow's Probable Starting Lineup:

Massachusetts			Bucknell
Meers	205	LE	Mitchell	210
Graham	235	LT	Fitcher	200
Pietz	210	LG	Boyd	205
Dallas	205	C	Williams	200
Tedoldi	225	RG	Dzurinko	195
Burke	225	RT	Brown	210
Morin	235	RE	Morgan	200
Whelchel	185	QB	Rogers	175
Ellis	190	LH	Connell	180
Palm	185	RH	Lau'ton	195
Ross	212	FB	Elliott	190

BOSA NOVA PIZZA

10 Varieties Of Pizza
Cold-cut-Meatball
Sausage Grinders

Take-out And Delivery Service Available

★ FREE DELIVERY ★ with every order over $3.00

OPPOSITE C & C PACKAGE STORE
Tel. AL 6-6776 — Open 4-12 Sun.-Thurs.; 4-1 Frl., Sat.

SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS
AMHERST Cinema
NOW • Engagement Ends SAT.
INGMAR BERGMAN'S
WINTER LIGHT

"BRILLIANTLY DONE... THIS IS A FILM TO SEE AND PONDER!"
—Bosley Crowther, N. Y. Times
Daily at 7:10, 9:15 — Saturday 4:30, 7:20, 9:20

B'NAI B'RITH HILLEL
BAGEL & LOX
SUPPER
Movie: "Pal Joey"
Sunday at 6:00 p.m.
Commonwealth Room
Members 25¢
Non-Members 75¢

TABLE TENNIS
Paddles
Balls
Nets Tables
A. J. Hastings, INC.
NEWSDEALER & STATIONER
South Pleasant — Amherst

RIDE
wanted from Northampton to U.M. on MWF to arrive in time for an 11 a.m. class. Call Northampton JU 4-3428 ask for Janet

LIBRARY

comp.

THE MASSACHUSETTS

COLLEGIAN

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 10 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1963

LIBRARY
OCT 8 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Redmen Band At First Home Game

—Photo by Bill Green

UMass Redman Marching Band under their director, John Jenkins, presented History of Hi-Fi Saturday at first home game of season against Bucknell.

Sandra Olson Survives Ordeal To Make History

UMass freshman Sandra Olson will celebrate her 18th birthday Friday thanks to the pressure chamber at Children's Hospital and to the quick-acting doctors who set a new milestone in medicine in her recovery.

Sandra is the first person in the United States known to be saved from gas gangrene death by a compression chamber.

The experience that the doctors gained will save other lives in the future.

The tank, believed to be the only one in the nation available at present to a hospital, is leased from the Harvard School of Public Health. It is the same one used recently in a vain effort to save the life af Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, who died of prematurity and hyaline membrane disease.

Here are the circumstances leading to the oxygen therapy that saved Sandy Olson:

She was brought to the Children's Hospital partly on the suggestion of Mrs. Patrick (Foley) Jackson, a Children's Hospital nurse up to last June who was familiar with the pressure chamber.

She is the wife of Dr. David Jackson at Cooley Dickinson Hospital, Northampton, who was caring for Sandra there. He also knew about the pressure tank and had read of experiments abroad with it.

Dr. Robert E. Gross, surgeon in chief at the Children's Hospital, and Dr. William Bernhard, associate surgeon, who agreed to try the pressure chamber therapy on Sandra, had no personal experience on gas gangrene treatment in the tank to guide them.

The Boston surgeons, who have operated on 29 blue babies (with heart defects) in the pressure chamber the past year, knew of experiments at the University of Glasgow by Sir Charles Illingworth with oxygenation of gangrenous patients.

With only this to go on, the doctors placed Sandra in the pressure tank shortly after she arrived in an ambulance from Northampton at 8:45 on Wednesday, Sept. 25.

The medical history of Sandra's case is this:

On Sept. 19 she was admitted to Cooley Dickinson Hospital and underwent emergency surgery for a ruptured appendix. She seemed to be making an excellent recovery for three days. Then on Sept. 22 she complained of severe local pain.

Between that time and Sept. 25, surgeons at Northampton operated twice to remove dead tissue They cut out all the muscles on the right side of the abdominal wall and most of those on the lower left side.

Dr. Gross and Dr. Bernhard said that synthetic materials will be used in a future operation to give Sandra support to make up for the missing muscles. It is expected that she will live a normal life and that this would not interfere with her having children.

Just how gangerene gets under way is a bit of a mystery. Certain environmental conditions must exist in the system, including a lack of oxygen.

What happens is that common organisms called clostridia, which always are in the intestinal tract, multiply when the conditions are right. Oxygen lack is a component of such conditions. The organisms give off a poison which kill surrounding tissues. The dying tissues give off the gas.

The process is repeated at an increasing rate, and usually, unless the gangrene is in a limb that can be amputated the patient will die.

In Sandra's case it is believed that the organisms entered the abdominal cavity from the intestinal tract through the rupture

(Continued on page 3)

FRESHMEN TO DISCUSS COLLEGE LIFE AND GOALS

Today, freshmen will have an opportunity to sign up for the freshmen discussion groups in the Counseling and Guidance Office, Room E12, Machmer Hall. Each freshman should be sent an information sheet which can be brought to the above office any afternoon this week except for Friday. The Freshman will discuss college life and college goals. The small groups are designed to stimulate students to search out their personal, educational and vocational goals in a very active fashion. It is hoped that the freshman will leave their seminar experiences with deepened appreciation for the intellectual opportunities at the University.

Preparation for these groups need not be extensive. Suggested topics or reading will be made ahad of time. It is unlikely that you would feel it necessary to spend more than 15-30 minutes thinking about or preparing for each session.

Some topics may be "What Makes A Good Professor" Finding Purpose in Day to Day Studies "The College Student and Religious Belief" Sex on the College Campus" "The Care and Feeding of Parents."

If you decide to join, you are asked to agree to attend all six sessions. You will need to devote 1½ hours of your time to each of the six meetings.

You may consult your counselor, Head of Residence, or Mrs. Asmussen, Extension 2562 if you need information before making up your mind.

A number of upperclassmen are already actively and enthusiastically preparing to lead the seminars.

Two Students Involved In Car Accident

A rear end collision in front of Memorial Hall Saturday afternoon caused "extensive damage" to two cars operated by UMass students.

There were no personal injuries, reported Campus Police Officer Frank Mazzei.

A black 1957 Chevrolet sedan, operated by John L. Puzine '67, struck the left rear end of a red and white 1957 Chevrolet sedan, operated by Anthony Simone '64, at 4:10 p.m. Puzine's vehicle was damaged in the right front.

Both students are residents of Northampton, Puzine at 384 South Street, and Simone at 280 Elm Street.

The car were traveling north on Ellis Drive. Campus officers Mazzei and Donald Zedik were in the vicinity of Ellis Drive when the accident occured, Mazzei said. Officer Mazzei said there was no estimate on the cost of damage as yet.

With Puzine were five passengers, including three UMass students. They were Mary Boynton, Edna Shea, John Schodegg, Jon Campbell '67; Bruce Schumikowski '67.

Bill Passed For Senate Recorder

A motion which has been pending for more than a year was finally resolved by the Senate last night, when a bill, calling for the appropriation of $150.00 for hiring a Senate recorder, was approved.

As was pointed out by Senator Ross Jones (Brett), chairman of the Finance Committee, this recorder will "take abstracted minutes, type up mimeo copies of said minutes and such other functions as assigned by the Senate secretary."

Associated Industries Presents Organ To UM

The beautiful new Hammond Electric Organ now located in the Cape Cod Lounge, was presented to the Student Union through the courtesy of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts and the Conference Department of the University.

Mr. Robert A. Chadbourne, Executive Vice President of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, Mr. Philip A. Singleton, President of Pro-phy-lac-tic Brush Company, and Mr. Richard Frey, Associated Industries of Massachusetts Regional Director, will be present on Tuesday, October 8, 1963, at 11:00 A.M., to officially present the organ to the Student Union and the University campus.

On hand to receive the organ will be Mr. Harold Durgin, University Conference Coordinator, Robert Brauer, Chairman of the Student Union Governing Board, Mr. Harold Watts and Miss Mary Alden of the Program Office, and Mr. William D. Scott, Director of the Student Union.

Following the presentation, the Hammond Organ Studios of Boston will present an organ

(Continued on page 5)

Special Elections Tuesday

Special elections will be held this Tuesday as a result of two ties in Thursday's general Senate election.

Fraternities will go to the polls to elect a third Senator between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. in the Lobby of the S.U.

Gorman House will elect its third Senator in the dorm lobby between 6 and 8 p.m.

A special election for Vice President of the Class of 1966 will be held Thursday in the S.U. Lobby from 8:30 to 6.

NOTICE TO ALL JUNIORS

A representative will be in the University Store starting this Thursday, October 10, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. to take orders from all Juniors for their class rings. Because ten weeks must be allowed for delivery from the time the order is placed, class members who wish to purchase rings should try and order on Thursday.

Precisionettes And Band See Rift Widen

The growing rift between the Precisionettes and the band burst into the open last week as the women's drill team refused to appear Saturday, and seemed headed for disbandment.

A series of meetings between leaders of the group, Band Director John Jenkins, and Dean of Students Field is taking place in the hopes of resolving the dispute.

Senate President Jon Fife has also attended the meetings and has acted as mediator.

An importaant meeting is scheduled today between the leaders and Jenkins in the hope of a final solution to the problem.

YAHOO

YAHOO Deadline: October 16th. Cartoons, jokes, humorous esays wanted! RSO Box 106, Student Union Building.

Important Staff Meeting: Tues., Oct. 8, 6:15, Barnstable Room, S.U.

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

A Plea For The Return Of Old ID's

by OLEH PAWLUK

Although my old student I.D. card was a far cry from a work of art, I felt no embarrassment when asked to exhibit it. The old I.D. possessed an emblem of the University, a color photograph of the student, the description of the student's physical characteristics, and the student number along with the class year.

The introduction of the new I.D.'s has brought a drastic change. My new I.D. makes me feel more like an inmate of a federal penitentiary than a student of a state university. Gone is the UMass emblem. Gone are the physical features of the student. The color photo has been replaced by a black and white one which bears only the slightest resemblance to the actual person.

The student number has been taken from its inconspicuous place in the right bottom corner of the I.D. and printed boldly above the sutdent's name. I realize that in a school of this size classification of students by numbers is necessary. However, let us not replace the individuality of a name by a series of digits. Yet, this is exactly what has happened with the new I.D.'s. In looking at the current I.D. card, one notices the large student number before he is even able to read the name of the student.

Students let us unite and break one spoke in the wheel of progress at the University. LET'S BRING BACK THE OLD I.D.'s.

"Git Up Yo' Slobs"

by DAVE HARACZ

If there are others who read the Times for news but are unsophisticated enough to have a subscription to another paper with "funnies," perhaps they too noticed a striking similarity between the current adventures of Mammy Yokum and an article on the New York World's Fair in the October 5 Times.

Al Capp, one of the masters of disseminating small portions of wisdom in the guise of comics in mass-circulation papers, has sent Mammy to the Homeland of the Mideastern oil sultan, where, observing the populace bowing before the approaching monarch, she shouts, "Git up, yo' slobs!!—yo' is free to act any way yo' wants, as long as it's th' AMERICAN WAY!!"

According to the Times article, Japanese artisans erecting a huge sculptured stone wall designed and executed by sculptor Masayuki Nogare for the Japanese pavilion at the fair site have their own Mammy Yokum in the form of American labor unions. Although the men would like, as is their habit in their homeland, to complete their work before the onslaught of winter, they are prevented from doing so by union regulations which prohibit their working longer than a standard American work day, and, as well, by required American "assistance" to lift, move, or set the stones.

Ironically, there appears on the editorial page in the same issue a stand in favor of lower rates for school children wishing to visit the fair, on the grounds that the fair is in essence more a means of education than a business venture. If the fair is indeed to be an attempt to educate, let the host be first in learning to be tolerant of the customs of their guests.

Despite the fact that this is an instance of artists at work, this is not a plea for artistic freedom; it is rather an indictment of a society which cannot see its way clear to suspend a few minor rules for the sake of much-needed understanding.

A Review: The Wheel Of Summer

by DAVE AXELROD

Analytically, Joseph Langland's new book of verse, The Wheel of Summer, contains 65 poems separated into three sections: "Sacrifices," "Equations," and "Poems from The Green Town." The striking orange, yellow, and white book jacket, after the intial shock, grows on you. Diving headlong into the first section, "Sacrifices," the cover seems even more appropriate. Among a myriad of allusions to glimmering nature—cool spraying trout streams, "sunflooded woodlands," and "fragrant hayfields"—there is the stark, detailed confrontation of death. The poems, often in a child's voice, impress, along with a closeness to a farm existence, an acceptance of the ways of life—the killings, the dying, the making impotent. The violent, piled higher and higher but always viewed with simple emotions and affections, forces the reader to accept, as a maturing youth must, the commonness if not the naturalness of the sacrifices in our world.

Part two, "Equations," presents a more varied view of life, though often set in the same sunlit and shining nature. In many of the poems here and throughout the book, the repetition of lines is effectively employed. The device might be in the form of a single phrase, echoing at the end of a line, or a single thought, repeated at the end of a stanza, successfully guiding the intended thoughts ("our peace will come"). By juxtaposing lines, repeating stanzas, the poems philosophize, question, point out.

The third section of poems, from one of Mr. Langland's previous books, The Green Town (Poets of Today III), is a tribute to his "versatility." The thirteen poems selected employ a variety of rhymes and subject matter. Still, the outstanding frame of reference comes with the "nature images" (perhaps better described in Mr. Langland's own words as "language of the barn and the house"). There is a mastery shown in the concluding lines of so many of the poems—endings with a forcefulness that slams a foot into the reader's senses.

Of all the comments that might be made, the poems taken as a whole, are much like the cover—shocking at first (in the outset of "Sacri[illegible]") but carried around awhile they grow on you. They communicate.

The Last Testimony

by JOHN CHILDS

Now on display in the Student Union is a display of Eskimo graphic art. Those who are interested will see this art, with its scenes of hunting, of the people and animals of the northern tundra. A recent article appeared in the Collegian concerning the technicalities involved in this art work.

The technicalities tell only part of the story. The pictures, with the stark beauty hold within them a sadness.

If we move away from the Student Union, north to the "Barren Lands" in the great artic circle we will reach the land where these works of "graphic art" were made. It is still a wild land where the winds of the long winter vent their rage and fury. It is also a land of change. Many years ago the first missionaries entered this wild land speaking of other ways. Other ways followed, the ways of the Hudson Bay traders and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Today the ways of change still fall upon his land, they fall heavily and are not removed. Today the ways of the hunt are vanishing with the thinning herds of animals.

It is an old sob story you may say and shrug your shoulders.

It is an old story, this is true. But for the hunters of the Barren Land who call themselves Ilhamuat, meaning, "The Men", it is the story which is happening to them.

Those who make the graphic art, now on display at the University, paint the ways that are dying. As these ways die the artists themselves are dying.

Already the jails are filled with the drunken Ilhamut as poverty and starvation, the twin "Demons of the White Nothing," called by the Eskimo Na-gar-iak and Sha-Ondesson, rule the land.

Look well at the graphic art that you see. It is the art of last people. It is their last testimony.

Me, Madness, Humor

by MIKE HENCH

For many years the philosophic attitude of this great institute of higher education has been a source of constant amazement to me. They seem to have the crux of all the philosophies of the world rolled into one big ball of twine.

Let me offer a few examples of the logic of this most difficult ball:

We have a parking problem. Motor scooters might help alleviate some of this problem. So the University taxes motor scooters as vehicles, demands insurance on motor scooters and tickets motor scooters, for they are, after all, motor vehicles. Now the fact that the only company that will issue "guest" insurance on a motor scooter is Lloyd's of London does not deter this bulwark of Socratic method. For they are protecting you from yourself, knowing that you are not capable of doing so.

Another example is the "road" that runs in front of the Old Infirmary and behind the women's dorms. The University reasons as follows: Students walk on the road; cars drive on the road; cars may hit students; hence we will make the road a sidewalk and build another road for cars. And everyone knows that it is much cheaper to build a road than a sidewalk. One cannot help but feel a little humble in the presence of such reasoning.

One final example should suffice to acquaint one with the essence of this philosophical method. But here the blame or praise rests with the University's Daddy, Aristotle Legislature.

The University police used to collect traffic fines and put the money in a scholarship fund. When the University got fiscal autonomy it was realized that the taxing agent couldn't also be the collecting and receiving agent (like the government isn't). So somebody named Meno or something like that decided that we could pay our fines in Northampton and then the court there would turn the money over to the University for a scholarship fund. And since most of us live closer to Northampton than Amherst, it is quite easy to see that this is a great example of the Philosopher King's mind. I stand in awe.

The Massachusetts Collegian

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP — MEMBER — I.P.

Editor-in-Chief: Jeffrey Davidow '65

Editorial Editor: John B. Childs

News Editor: Elwin McNamara '64

Photography Editor: Ron Goldberg '66

Sports Editors: Scott Freedland '66, Richard Ryan '66

Business Manager: Courtney Brickman '64

News Makeup Editor: James Schmalz '65

Feature Editor: David Axelrod '65

Advertising Manager: Ted "Omar" Weinberg
Staff: Roy Blitzer, John Darnuck, Al Kudish, Jeff Gale
Subscription Manager: Marty Rosendorf
Business Co-ordinator: Ingrid Krohn

NEWS

Sunday Rewrite: Jackie Beauvais, Rita Cerutti, Elaine Corsi
Tuesday Rewrite: Marilyn Rosen, Sally Shea, Marcia Sutherland
Thursday Rewrite: Harold Gushue, Karen Shelley
Assignment: Nancy Devlin, Judy Doyle
Reporters:
Ann Baxter, Ken Berk, Joe Bradley, Steve Curtis, Mike Dymerski, Nancy Fogg, Dave Haracz, Don Johnson, Steve Levine, Ann Miller, Lee Mullane, Russell Murphy, Mary Norton, Ethan O'Brien, Kathleen Osterberg, Linda Paul, Oleh Pawluk, Lois Skolnick, Joan St. Laurent, Leo Stanlake, Terry Stock

Feature: Don Johnson, Pat Long, Carol Lufkin, Anne Pincess, Micheal Herrini, Edna Hughley, Doris Peltonen, Jay Isaur, Oleh Pawluk, Bob Weber, Rosaire Malone, Don Glassbund, Harold Gushe, Linda Valonen, Ethan O'Brien, Margaret Vanderburah, Andrew Dolnin, Doris Peltonen
Makeup: Michael Rothschild, Robert Martin, Michael Stone, Selig Adler, Richard Cunliff

PHOTOGRAPHY

Mary Roche, Andi Beauchemin, Darryl Fine, Bill Green, Don Willoughby, Jan Baker, Nina Pearlmutter, Elaine Maltzman, Harvey Stone

SPORTS

Gene Colburn, Steve Hewey, John Goodrich, Robert Healy, John Reynolds, Dave Garber, Marsha Karol, Helen Forsberg

EDITORIAL

Marc Cheren, Marcia Ellsworth, Sandra Burlingame, Mike Hench, Dave Haracz, Rick Cass, Ron Allferis, Joan Shustra, Steve Orlen, Sam Gorvine, James Cortese, Joe Dolan, Elwin McNamara, David Axelrod, George Masselam

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

Professor Langland Opens Poetry Series

Prof. Joseph Langland of the English department at the University of Massachusetts will open this year's series of Tuesday night poetry readings sponsored by the Amherst Art Center.

Langland will read from his "The Wheel of Summer," a volume of poetry published recently by the Dial Press, at Jones Library in Amherst on Tuesday, Oct. 8, at 7:30 p.m.

Langland's poetry readings will be accompanied in part by musical settings composed by Elliott Schwartz of the UMass music department.

Musical settings by Schwartz were voted among the most outstanding presented this past summer at the Bennington Composers Conference, Bennington, Vt.

Temporary Parking Permits Available To Students

Col. John Marchant has announced that temporary parking permits will be available to students of all classes beginning Monday, Oct. 7.

The permits will be issued for limited periods, according to the student's need, by Mr. Harold Watts in the S.U. Program Office.

"As a very limited number of the permits is available," Mr. Watts said, "the reasons for needing a car must be very good ones." Legitimate reasons would include committee work for major University events.

The permits will allow students to park anywhere on campus with the exception of those areas expressly restricted to students.

The student, upon being issued a temporary permit, should provide the registration number of the car for which it is being used, the reason for needing a car, and the length of time for which the permit has been issued.

Langland's latest collection of poems is drawn largely from the Mid-western background of his youth.

Langland is the author of one previous collection of poems, "The Green Town," which was published in 1956. He is also co-editor of "Poet's Choice," an anthology published last year.

Langland's own poems have appeared in several anthologies. He has published widely in literary magazines and is co-editor of "The Short Story," a college text. Last year he represented UMass on ABC television's "Meet the Professor" program.

The public is cordially invited to the event. Refreshments will be served.

Sandra Olson ...

(Continued from page 1)

of the appendix. Conditions were right for the clostridia to multiply.

Rushed to Boston

The doctors at Cooley Dickinson Hospital, finding that they could not get oxygen to the site, and could not cut out more tissue, rushed Sandra to the Children's Hospital.

She arrived at 8:25 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 25, and was placed in the tank at 11:45 for two hours at three atmospheres (the same pressure as in a diving suit 66 feet below the surface).

The saturation of her tissues thus was raised 15 to 18 times normal. Oxygen was forced into her body tissues by the overall pressure of 30 pounds per square inch. At the same time she breathed pure oxygen from an oxygen tank.

When oxygen surrounds the organisms that cause gangrene they curl up and die and the spread of the disease is halted.

Just how much oxygen under pressure this would take, the doctors still don't know. It is possible that even the first tank session, which included some surgery to remove additional dead tissue, did the trick.

But to make certain they put

(Continued on page 7)

Father Owen Bennett To Teach Course In Christian Philosophy

by ANN MILLER '64

Perhaps the most important issue facing today's college student is to see "that his religious development keeps pace with his intellectual development," said the Reverend Owen Bennett.

Father Bennett is this semester teaching a course in Christain Philosophy at the University's Newman Center.

Wednesday evening he led the second in the weekly series of classes at the Center. The classes are open to all interested persons.

"Most falling away from religion comes at the College age," Father Bennett commented, due to the student failing to develop an intellectual approach to religion as he does in other spheres.

Father Bennett is a Franciscan who received his education at St. Michael's College in Winooski, Vermont, at St. Anthony-on-Hudson Seminary in Rensselaer, New York, and at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. He received his doctorate in Philosophy in 1943 at the Catholic University.

Defining his subject, Father Bennett said Christian Philosophy is that philosophy in which the conclusions of reason are completed by the revelations of Christianity, which finds its natural "crowning and completion" in the revealed Christian truth of God.

Presently teaching a similar course at Renssaelaer Polytechnic Institute in New York, Father Bennett favors the metaphysical approach over the historical approach in studying religious philosophy.

The Historical approach, that

FATHER OWEN BENNETT

which systematically builds up and tears down each school of thought is "very necessary", he said, but "generates a sort of skeptic mentality in the student."

"Only in the metaphysical tradition can one find a strong foundation," he said. This is the tradition of Plato, Aristotle, Aquinas and, among contemporaries, Gilson, Maritain and Marcel, he added.

We could, today, "do a lot less categorizing in philosophy," he suggested, and "introduce a great deal more dialectics in discussion."

Father Bennett has written articles on philosophy and theology for: "The Thomist," "The Homiletic and Pastoral Review," "Franciscan Studies," and for the reports of the Catholic Theological Society of America.

He is presently a resident philosopher at St. Hyacinth Seminary, Granby.

CLUB DIRECTORY

DAMES CLUB
"Activities Night" will be held on Tues., Oct. 8, at 8:30 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the Middlesex Dorm. The Modern Dance group will meet at 8 p.m. Casual dress.

FLYING CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 9, at 8 p.m. in the Worcester B room of the S.U. All interested in learning to fly on a limited budget, or just curious about private aviation, are welcome.

GEOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 9, at 7:30 p.m. in 249 Morrill. Mr. Erwin Otvos will speak on "Hungary—the Country and Geology."

HEYMAKERS
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Bowditch Hall. Lessons will be given.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB
Annual elections will be held on Tues., Oct. 8, at 8 p.m. in the Commonwealth room of the S.U. Only members may vote.

ORTHODOX CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 8, at 6:30 p.m. in the Ballroom of the S.U. Slides will be shown. All invited.

SCIOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 8, at 8 p.m. in Machmer E37. All invited to attend.

WESLEY FOUNDATION
Communion service on Wed., Oct. 9, at 7 a.m. in Cushman Chapel of the Thompson House. Transportation provided.

YAHOO
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 8, at 6:15 p.m. in the Barnstable room of the S.U. Very Important.

ZOOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 8, at 7:30 p.m. in 138 Morrill. Dr. Hanson will speak on evolution.

Students Explore Interpretations Of Prof's Remarks

Many college professors seem to have an unerring talent for not saying exactly what they intend to say. THE DAILY UNIVERSE, Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, therefore offers the following translations:

What the Professor says

"The textbook for this course will be one you will want to keep for the rest of your life."

What the professor means

The book costs $15.95, and they won't be buying it back next semester.

"My philosophy of teaching embodies the principles of certain academic disciplines."

I'm a bear!

"I appreciate your remarks; unfortunately, we don't have the time to pursue that line of thought."

Quit interrupting my lecture!

"The final grades will be determined on a bell-shaped curve."

I plan to give one 'A' in this course.

"It might be well for me to cite one or two concrete examples of this principle."

Prepare to hear the history of my life.

"The final exam will be nothing more than a brief review."

Memorize the text book.

Watch out, though. There are some cagey professors who actually say what they mean.

History Club Sponsors Discussion Of Vietnam

The History Club is holding its first meeting of the year on Wednesday, October 9, at 8 p.m. in the Nantucket Room of the Student Union. There will be a short business meeting until 8:15 during which the program for the year will be discussed and members will be recorded. History majors are encouraged to join the club as many opportunities will be afforded to meet department members and to discuss subjects of both timely and historical interest.

The program will start at 8:15 with Dr. Luthor Allen leading an informal lecture and discussion on the Vietnam Situation. Dr. Allen, a well-known authority on Vietnam, has spent several years there and has become well acquainted with its problems. He is also presently serving on several committees studying Vietnam.

The meeting promises to be of great interest not only to history majors but to the general public. All are welcome to attend. Those interested in joining the club are urged to come particularly to the business meeting at 8:00.

Campus International Programs Increase

by MIKE SCHWARTZ

(Editor's note: Mr. Schwartz is a Special Assistant for the International Commission of the United States National Student Association and has been in charge of various international campus programs at the University of Wisconsin.)

All across the United States, student leaders and student governments are pushing for a change in their international campus programs. As witnessed by the discussions on campus international programs held during the 16th National Student Congress at Indiana University this summer, student leaders realize that the old standard types of international programs, such as international nights, Brother-Sister programs, foreign student teas, etc., are not fulfilling the needs of any one on the campus.

The reason for the concern of these campus leaders is that today we are living in a world in which all nations have closer ties than ever before, whether these ties be friendly or not. We are not just part of the world, but the world is part of our daily lives and is something which we cannot really escape.

This must be important to us, because of the role of the United States in this new and different world; and because of the role of each and every citizen of the United States in the actions of our country. One purpose of university training, under the American theory of education, is the creation in each student-citizen the awareness of the role which he is to play in his society and his world. Since 1898, the United States has become increasingly important in world affairs, and the people of the U.S. have played with the responsibility thus thrust upon them, sometimes taking a great interest, sometimes trying to escape from it all by hiding from it.

Since World War II, the American public has shown it realizes we cannot avoid the world, but must face up to it. The debate is not now concerned with whether or not to be concerned, but with what action the U.S. should take in world affairs, how we should do this, with whom we should work, etc. There is disagreement on this, as there should be in a democratic society, but not disavowal.

If awareness of the international scene and the ability to grasp its basic concepts and use them is part of the responsibility as a citizen, and the educational system is given the responsibility to develop these qualities, then th university has a responsibility to either develop or encourage the development of student interst or awareness in international affairs. This becomes an issue of educational policy, of the role of the university in the society, the structure of the university in relation to the first two items, and many other items, and many other questions.

On many campuses, there is another factor added to all this, one which can be both an aid to international programs or a troubling matter all by itself. This factor is the foreign student, whose numbers and importance are steadily increasing. Both students and university administrations have become increasingly concerned with the problems of the foreign student, as witnessed by the continuing re-evaluations and re-directions of the programs during the past

(Continued on page 6)

WELCOME STUDENTS

★WIN★

IN THE MARLBORO

BRAND

ROUND-UP

CONTEST

RULES AND PRIZES TO BE AWARDED WILL BE ANNOUNCED SHORTLY

★

SAVE YOUR PACKS

MARLBORO ★ PARLIAMENT ★ ALPINE

PHILIP MORRIS ★ PAXTON

Students Only

New Yorker Magazine

$3.75 — 8 Mos.

$5.00 — Year

(Reg. $8.00 per year)

Ski Magazine

6 Issues $1.50

2 Years $3.00

(Reg. $3.00 a year)

CHECK OR MONEY ORDER

BOX 418

AMHERST, MASS.

UT Starts Second Season

1963-64, the first academic year of UMass' second century of outstanding achievement also marks the second year of the University of Massachusetts Theatre.

After a successful first season of plays, lectures, and courses, the Theatre, a UT spokesman said, is continuing its promise to present the very best dramatic literature in distinctive productions which are related to the spirit of the age that produced them.

This year the University Theatre will offer five plays, four lectures, and two exhibitions of theatrical art. The first play planned for the '63-'64 season will be The Twin Menaechmi, by the master of Roman comedy, Titus Plautus. Hendrick Ibsen's Ghosts will be next, followed by Shakespeare's Othello, which wil be presented during the March Fine Arts Festival.

Also in March there will be a new feature of the University Theatre, a reading production of a new play by an American playwright. The current season will then come to a close in April with an Arena production of Robert Penn Warren's All The King's Men.

Season tickets for this year's program are now on sale for $5. The supply of season tickets is limited, and may be obtained from a member of the Roister Doister Drama club or by sending a check to the University Theatre, Department of Speech.

"What did you say was his disorder, Sir? Inform me, is he mad, or is he frantic? Is it a lethargy, or is he dropsical?" Tom Kerrigan (father-in-law of Menaechmus I) and Robert Thornley (doctor) rehearse a scene from "The Twin Menaechmi, a farcical Roman comedy. The first University Theatre production of the year will be staged October 17, 18, and 19 in Bowker Auditorium. Tickets are available from members of Roister Doisters or from the Speech Department. Season tickets for the five-play season are still available.

Amherst Has New Physics Lab

Amherst College has established a modern teaching laboratory for nuclear and atomic physics, matching its own funds with those from a $14,130 grant from the National Science Foundation.

The laboratory is composed of flexible electronic circuits and other devices installed during the past year in various parts of the College's Physics Building. These, together with previously available equipment, can be used in various combinations for experimental studies of the properties of matter and radiation and their interaction.

The equipment will be used primarily for undergraduate teaching and for senior honors research in physics. Prof. Bruce Benson, who is in charge of the laboratory, said that the equipment was chosen to enable students to come into experimental contact with as many of the important ideas of modern physics as possible. For example, experiments have been designed to verify Einstein's relativistic equation for the variation of mass with velocity, to illustrate the wave and particle aspects of both matter and radiation, to test current ideas about the structure of atoms and the way they emit electromagnetic radiation, and to study the properties of x-rays and crystals.

Students will study nuclear transformations and the characteristics of alpha and beta particles and gamma rays, using modern research apparatus such as fast amplifiers, scaling circuits, timers and oscilloscopes, pulse-height analyzers, strip chart and X-Y (two-dimensional) recording potentiometers, high voltage supplies, coincidence circuits, and vacuum equipment.

Some experiments employ Geiger or proportional counters, while others involve scintillation counters and the new solid state detector.

NOTICES

ALPHA ZETA

There will be a meeting of Alpha Zeta Tues., Oct. 8, at 7 p.m. in the Berkshire-Bristol Room of the S.U.

CONCERT ASSOCIATION

A meeting of the entire membership of the Concert Association will be held Wednesday, Oct. 9, in the Nantucket Room of the S.U. at 6:30 p.m. All members are urged to attend.

NEWMAN CLUB

The Newman Club will sponsor a bus for the UConn game this Saturday, Oct. 12. Cost will be $2 for members and $2.50 for non members. Reservations must be made in the secretary's office of the Newman Center by 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 8.

Daily Rosary at the Newman Center has been changed to 6:45 p.m.

There will be a dance at the Center this Friday.

PANHELLENIC DECLAMATION

The Panhellenic Council will sponsor its annual Sorority Declamation Tuesday, October 8, at 7 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium. The "Statesmen" will be on hand to provide entertainment. Tickets will be $.35 and may be purchased at the door.

UNIVERSITY BAND

The University Band Staff will meet Monday, Oct. 7, at 6:45 p.m. in Old Chapel.

WMUA

Thursday, Oct. 10, WMUA will present music of Hungary from 7 to 8 p.m. The listeners will have the opportunity to hear a student from this country describe his homeland.

S.U. DANCE COMMITTEE

There will be a meeting of the S.U. Dance Committee Tuesday, Oct. 8, in the Nantucket Room of the S.U. at 11 a.m.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA

There will be a business meeting for all members Tues., Oct. 8, at 6:30 p.m. in the S.U.

MEET THE PROFS

The English Department will be the guest of the Meet the Profs program Wednesday, Oct. 9, in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U.

Newman Center To Hold Open Retreat Starting Next Monday

REV. RICHARD BUTLER, O.P.

Rev. Richard Butler, O.P., the National Chaplain of the Newman Apostolate, will conduct an open retreat this month at the Newman Center.

The retreat will open at 7 p.m. Monday, October 14, and will continue each day until Thursday, October 17.

Each evening during the retreat the rosary, a sermon, Benediction, and confession will take place starting at 7 p.m. There will be a conference each day at 5:15 p.m.

Masses for the retreat will be daily at 6:50 a.m. and 12:15 p.m. Father Butler will give a short sermon at all Masses.

Before becoming National Chaplain for the Newman Apostolate, Father Butler was Director of the Aquinas Newman Center at the University of New Mexico.

Of the five books he has and published, two are The Life and World of George Santayana, and God on a Secular Campus.

Articles by Father Butler have appeared in numerous magazines including America, The Critic, Wisdom and the Sacred Heart Messenger.

Father Butler, holder of a Bachelor of Arts, Lector of Sacred Theology, and Doctor of Philosophy, received his education at St. John's Preparatory School in Danvers, Massachusetts, Notre Dame University, The Catholic University of America, and Angelicum University in Rome.

Father Butler has given courses and lectures at various Colleges and universities throughout the United States, including The University of Arizona, Xavier University, and the Newman School of Catholic Thought at the University of Houston.

LIBERAL ARTS

ALL DEGREE LEVELS NEEDED

- Analytic Research
- Language Program
- Computer Programming
- Mathematics
- Statistics

ALL ACADEMIC MAJORS

Training in Specialized Techniques are Provided by NSA

Liberal Arts Majors (except mathematicians) are required to take the

PROFESSIONAL QUALIFICATION TEST

given on

26 October and 7 December 1963

Applications for 26 October tests MUST BE IN NOT LATER THAN 14 OCTOBER.

See your COLLEGE PLACEMENT OFFICER now for a Test Bulletin containing further details. Since no test is required for math majors, they should contact their college placement officer for an interview with an NSA representative.

National Security Agency

WASHINGTON D.C. AREA

An Equal Opportunity Employer

Hillel Lecture: The State Of Civil Liberties Today

In a world distraught by conflict between brothers over the right of each and every person to "life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness," the lecture, The State of Civil Liberties Today, to be given by Mr. Luther Knight MacNair is indeed timely.

Also, there is no one person more able to talk on this topic. Mr. MacNair is the executive secretary of the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts. He attended Harvard University, and has been a teacher of history at the Tilton School and Tilton Junior College, and dean and professor of history at Lyndon State Teachers College in Lyndon Center, Vermont.

The lecture will be presented on Tuesday evening at 8:00 p.m. in the Student Union. A question and answer period will follow.

Associated Industries ...

(Continued from page 1)

concert and demonstration of the versatility of the instrument. A noon hour concert will be continued, with a University of Massachusetts student at the organ, Paul Bartsch.

It is interesting to note that since 1958 the Associated Industries of Massachusetts have made the following contributions to the Student Union and the University campus, to show their appreciation of the courtesies extended to them during their annual seminar:

1958 Presented blonde upright Everett piano.

1959 Contributed to the purchase of an organ.

1960 Presented a silver service.

1961 Contributed to the purchase of an organ.

1962 Final contribution to the purchase of an organ — completed arrangements for its purchase from the Hammond Organ Studios.

CONTINENTAL STYLE

CORDUROYS

In Loden Green or Antelope Tan

$5.95

Thompson's

CLOTHING STORE

IN AMHERST

Collegian Feature

Watch Your Language

Watch your language!

You may be insulting your friends without knowing it—and perhaps getting away with it if they, too, are unaware of the sinister meanings concealed in such harmless words as "pal," "neighbor" or "guy."

"Pal" is a gypsy word meaning brother—or accomplice. In America, a "guy" is any human male, but to Britons a "guy" is an odd, funny-looking character. The word goes back to Guy Fawkes, who in 1605 tried to blow up Parliament.

"Neighbor" literally means "the boor who lives nigh us!" "Boor" carried no stigma in golden days; it means simply farmer.

Many common words have changed, even reversed, their meanings—with amusing results. "Silly" once meant good or happy, in the sense of innocenct, while "nice" means what "fastidious" now means: overly fussy and finicky. ("Fastidium" is Latin for loathing!) Call a woman a hussy today and she'll slap your face—but a few centuries back "hussy" was just the shortened form of "housewife."

Believe it or not, a "gossip" was once a "God-sib," or a "relative in the sight of God!" The term was applied to godparents who were expected to form a close and intimate relaitoiship with the family whose child they sponsored. From this mood of confiding intmacy, it's not hard to see how the present morning of "gossip" evolved.

Words come into being in a fascinating variety of ways. Some are imitative of sounds—like "hiss" "bang," "gurgle," "gibberish." Some words are named after men like Dr. Guillotin, who suggested the "guillotine." According to Webster's Third New International Dictionary, an Irish landlord named Boycott gave us that word—by being so harsh and downright ornery that his tenants finally "boycotted" him.

Many words, especially the scientific ones, are made up to mit a need. Feeling that the octane method of rating gasoline should be improved because it measures only two attributes, scientists developed the megatane rating system to measure all 21 of the qualities that are important in gasoline. The systhem, which any gasoline manufacturer may use, was named from the Greek "mega," many or much, and "tane," the suffix

(Continued on page 6)

Gulf Research Director Inspects UM Facilities

Dr. Henry A Ambrose, director of the new products division at Gulf Research and Development Co., in Harmarville, Pa., will meet with University of Massachusetts officials this Friday, Oct. 4, and then inspect the University's growing research facilities.

Dr. Ambrose will confer with a number of leaders in various research fields during his day-long visit at UMass.

Programming ...

(Continued from page 5)

few years.

The student concern in this area is, and should be, in the curricular and co-curricular aspects of the university experience of the student body. The university has the responsibility to provide the students with the opportunity to study all areas and questions dealing with international affairs, history and methods on whatever level the student chooses. A wide variety of courses in internationai studies, languages, anthropology, history, economics, political science, geography and sociology should be offered. But it is up to the student to pressure the university to offer such courses.

The university can also foster international awareness programs through presenting speakers in the area of international affairs through its all-campus lecture program, and through encouraging departmentaliy sponsored study groups or other activities. Students can use similar channels, sponsoring speakers through forums, symposia, and other media of exchange, and through establishing groups interested in the various aspects of world affairs.

By encouraging academically oriented international programs, the student government can tap the ever-expanding resources of the university in international affairs. This kind of program can aiso aid students in uncovering new areas for research and study in the international field. The student leaders who met at Indiana University this summer have become aware of the possibilities for student activity. It is important that all not only become aware, but also make use of all of the opportunities open to us.

The Gulf research official is slated to meet Dr. E. E. Lindsey, acting Dean of the School of Engineering; Dr. I. Moyer Hunsberger, dean of the College of Arts and Science; Dr. Richard S. Stein, Commonwealth professor of chemistry and director of the Polymer Research Institute; Dr. Franklin W. Southwick and Dr. Mack Drake in the agronomy department; Dr. Warren Litsky, Commonwealth research professor of microbiology; and Dr. William B. Esselen, Commonwealth head of the University's food science and technology department.

Dr. Ambrose, a native of Newton and a graduate of Norwich University, received his Ph.D. from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1929.

He has been associated with Gulf Research and Development Co. (GRDC) since 1929, when he started as a fellow at Mellon Institute in Pittsburgh, Pa.

He was appointed assistant head of the GRDC chemistry division in 1937. Dr. Ambrose has been director of the new products division since 1952.

A member of the board of trustees at Norwich University, Dr. Ambrose is also active in several scientific and professional societies.

Words ...

(Continued from page 5)

normally applied to hydrocarbons, of which gasoline is one. Thus the megatane rating sys tem measures the many qualities of total gasoline performance.

Less logical was Belgian chemist Van Helmont, who in the 17th century saw a mysterious vapor in a glass cylinder and christened it "gas." What led him to originate this name, he couldn't say—except that the formless puffs vaguely reminded him of the Greek word "chaos."

The word "oxygen" was born of a scientific mistake. Because Antoine Lavoisier, the French discoverer of oxygen, thought it was an essential component of all acids, he named the substance from the Greek "oxys," sharp and "gignesthai," to be born.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE SPONSORS EXHIBITION OF ENGLISH TOY THEATRES

Amherst, Mass. — An exhibition of English toy theatres, relics of the early middle years of the 19th Century, will go on display this Saturday in the lobby of Bartlett Hall at the University of Massachusetts.

The display will continue through Sunday, Oct. 20. The public is cordially invited to view the exhibition.

The 18 pieces to be shown at UMass are from the collection of famed actor Alfred Lunt.

The exhibition is sponsored by the speech department at the University in conjunction with the University Theatre's 1963-64 drama series. The toy theatre display is on loan from the Museum of the City of New York.

"Two Penny Colored, One Penny Plain," the title of Lunt's collection of miniature stages, includes scenes from "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Oliver Twist," "Robinson Crusoe," "Jack and the Beanstalk" and "Sleeping Beauty."

The name of the Lunt exhibit dates from the first days of the juvenile theatre in England, when reproductions of action-heavy scenes from plays were reproduced and sold—the colored sheets for tuppence, the black-and-white for one penny.

Lunt has improved on the originators of the idea by presenting scenes in all three dimensions.

The stages of his toy theatres are complete miniatures of theatre scenes—painted, lighted, and furnished with actors and props.

Although Alfred Lunt is best known as an actor, he started his career in the theatre as a producer and scene designer.

When he and his wife, Lynn Fontaine, were acting in London during the World War II blitz, Lunt, in his spare time, hunted up the antique toy theatres, then spent a great deal of time refurbishing and arranging them.

According to theatre authorities, the exhibit of little theatres is "immediately amusing and permanently valuable," " a lively commentary on theatrical history."

One of our most commonly used words was originally a made-up nonsense syllable! The story goes that a man named Daly, manager of a Dublin playhouse, bet a friend that within 24 hours he could have the whole town talking about a meaningless word. He won the wager—by chalking all over Dublin's walls the letters Q U I Z.

Some words are literally nicknames for other, longer words. In this category is the sports "fan" (short for fanatic) ... the tough "cuss" (for customer) ... the old "chap" (for chapman, an ancient English word for merchant) and the "mob," an abreviation of the Latin phrase "mobile vulgus," fickle crowd.

"Nincompoop" is a telescoped version of the Latin "non compos mentis, mentally incompetent.

"It's amazing how picturesque some ordinary words turn out to be, upon investigation. "Disaster" is from the Latin for stars; astrologers believed stars had both benevolent and malignant phases, the latter leading to "disaster." "Preposterous," amusingly, is a combination of the Latin "prae," before, and "osterus," behind. "Calculate" is from the Latin "calculi," little pebbles used by the Romans to cast their votes—and reckon up their gambling debts. "Cliche" is French for a stereotype plate in printing; "conjugal" means what many husbands may have sunspected—"yoked together." On the other hand, what student would connect "grammar" with "glamor?" Yet word experts know that both derive from an old Scottish word for "magic spell"—centuries ago, "grammar" conveyed the idea of mysterious lore.

Would you ever guess that "idiot," in the original Greek, simply meant "a man who holds no public office?" Or that "kidding," in its early 19th century meaning, was "to amuse or divert your victim while your accomplice robbed him?" Or, for that matter, that "robe" and "rob" are related words—the idea being that a robber bedecked himself in the spoils stolen from his victim!

Another pair of verbal relatives is "shrew" and "shrewd" (formerly spelled "shrewed"). "Crummy" or "crumby" a scant hundred years ago was a term of high praise—it meant good, handsome, buxom. "Buxom," incidentally, has also changed its meaning drastically—it used to mean "obedient," "pliable" (in its old form the word was "bough-some," i. e., bending like a bough of a tree.)

Some words, however, are always stable. People have been joking about "elbow-grease" since 1672, talking about "the gift of gab" even longer. ("Gab" is a very old Gaelic word for mouth.) And it has always been safe to call the boss, the boss—ever since we borrowed the word from the Dutch "baas," master!

It's Here!!

A Treasury of the Stock Words of Science

THE SCIENTIST'S THESAURUS

The Key to Your Understanding of Scientific Terminology

Now at THE COLLEGE BOOKSTORE

Only $2.00 per copy.

Soph-Frosh Picnic Success

—Photo by Harvey Stone

The Sophomore Class assisted by the Scrolls and Maroon Keys "wished the freshmen well" at the annual Soph-Frosh picnic, held Saturday on the S.U. lawn.

Freshman and sophomores were treated with soft drinks and hot dogs by the banks of the pond. Music was provided after the meal with a mediey of tunes by the Statesmen.

Afterwards, the Soph-Frosh Ball was held, featuring the Esquires.

Award Winning Play Here Wed.

Circle in the Square Theatre, one of New York's most successful and distinguished Off-Broadway theatres, has received the coveted 1963 Obie Award for the best production of an Off-Broadway play, with its production of Pirandello's famous play, "Six Characters in Search of an Author."

Circle in the Square Theatre will present this play here on Wednesday in the Ballroom of the Student Union.

This play has also won for its talented director, William Ball, the Outer Circle Award for the most important contribution to Off-Broadway. Mr. Ball also received the Lola D'Annunzio Award for his outstanding direction of "Six Characters in Search of an Author."

In its twelve lively years in New York, Circle in the Square Theatre has received many of the nation's most prized awards, including the Newspaper Guild's Page One Award, the Antoinette Perry and Variety Awards, the Vernon Rice Memorial Award as well as the Lola D'Annunzio Award.

Admission is free.

—LOST & FOUND—

LOST: Mon., Sept. 30, in the vicinity of the Public Health Building, Morrill Hall or the S.U. —a gold circle pin. Reward. Contact K. De Brest, Dept. of Microbiology, Public Health Building or call AL 3-7374.

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

WHELCHEL is brought down by Bucknell's defensive end after grinding out yardage on end run in the first period.

Redmen Shutout . . .

(Continued from page 8)

the Bucknell 28. A half dozen plays later Lewis vaulted into the endzone but an offside penalty cost UM the TD.

On the next play Whelchel tossed a seven yard pass to Bob Meers all alone in the endzone. Once again Whelchel booted the extra point.

Besides Lewis' nullified score the Redmen had two other TD's called back for penalties. A clipping violation cancelled out a dazzling 64 yard touchdown run by Jerry Whelchel. A holding penalty cost Phil deRose a score late in the fourth period.

TD's Cost

In three games UMass has had five touchdowns called back for various rules infractions.

Bucknell's running game Saturday showed why the Bisons rely mainly on the forward pass to eat up most of the yardage. Redmen defenders held Bucknell to only 44 yards on the ground. And Bucknell had some of the fire taken out of its passing game. UM pass defenders allowed quarterbacks Rodgers and John Lerro only 11 completions in 28 passes thrown, far below the Bison average.

Fred Lewis led all ball carriers Saturday with 84 yards on six carries. Big Mike Ross was the Redmen workhorse all afternoon, grinding out 73 yards with 14 attempts. Ross picked up several key first downs to keep the UM scoring drives rolling.

Whelchel Completes 7

Jerry Whelchel enjoyed a fine all-around afternoon. He completed seven of 11 passes for 89 yards and one TD. Jerry also ran for 71 yards in 12 tries in addition to the 64 yards TD run that was called back.

The Bisons' leading rusher was John Barron who gained 21 yds. in eight attempts. In the passing department Rodgers threw 17, completed seven for 77 yds and had three intercepted. John Lerro was four for 11 for 61 yards.

The win over Bucknell was the second win of the season for UMass. The Redmen have tied one and have lost none.

Bucknell's loss was their second against one win.

Only One TD

UMass defenses have been stingy with giving up touchdowns so far this season. In 12 periods of play Maine has scored the only TD allowed by the Redmen.

Bucknell's two losses this year have come at the hands of New England teams. Last week the Bisons were edged out, 20-18, at Dartmouth.

Redmen center Bernie Dallas appears to have joined the UMass starting unit for keeps. The spirited sophomore made several unassisted key stops on Bucknell runners and teamed up on several others. Dallas also had one interception that paved the way to UMass' first score.

For the second week in a row the UMass defensive linemen proved that it's impossible to go through them once you're inside the five yard line.

Huskies Next Week

Next week finds the Redmen on the road again. This time the UConn Huskies roll out the welcome mat in a Yankee Conference match at Storrs. Last year UM pinned a 16-6 loss on the UConns at Alumni Field.

Brouillet Sets Record Harriers Lose Tri Meet

by GENE COLBURN

DESPITE A RECORD breaking effort by Bob Brouillet, the varsity cross country was upset for its first loss of the year by the aroused Northeastern and Maine teams in Boston on Saturday. This marks the first time in the last four years that the Redmen have lost this traditional tri-meet. Northeastern won with a score of 34, Maine followed with 41, and UMass had 48.

The only bright spot for UMass was Brouillet's great performance. Prior to the race it was felt that Dave Dunsky, considered one of the best runners in the area, would give "Digger" a good race. The only time the two boys were close was at the start. By the two mile mark the only question was how much Brouillet would win by. When Digger crossed the finish line the judges didn't believe their watches. Bob had covered the 4.1 mile course in a time of 19.02, thoroughly wiping out the former record of 19:38. Dunsky was a far distant second with a time of 19:52.

OUTSIDE OF BROUILLETT's performance, the Redmen did not have a very good day. As had been feared, the spread in time between the runners was the cause of their defeat. Junior Bob Ramsey was second for UMass with a ninth improving on his last year's time by 45 seconds. Sophomore Bob Molvar and Gene Colburn followed close behind Ramsey. Al McPhail, Tom Parke, and Bob Larson rounded out the top finishers for the Redmen.

Although the team was very disappointed on losing the harriers now realize just how disastrous the time between runners can be. The next meet will be at home on Friday with UMass hosting a quadrangular meet with Providence College, UConn, and Boston University. This will be a double test for the Redmen. They will be able to see if they can close the gap between the runners. In P.C. they will face a team that is considered a definite dark horse for the New England Championships. UMass is going to have to perform well if they expect to do well the rest of the season.

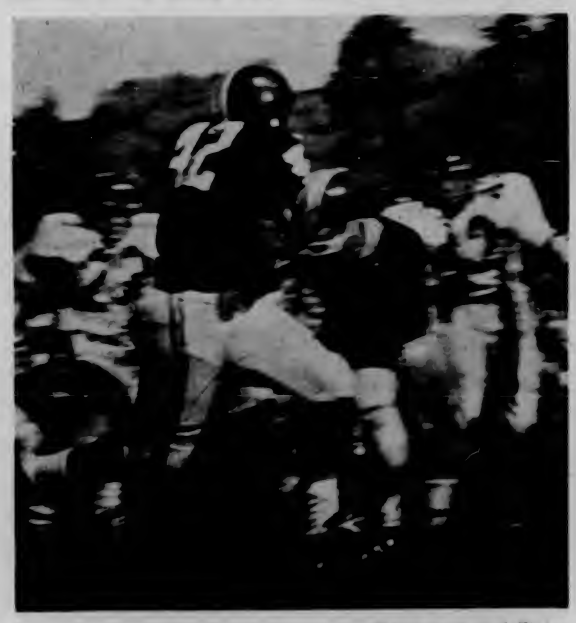
Golf Team To New York

MISQUAMICUT, R.I.—UMass and UConn qualified here Saturday to play in the finals of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference (ECAC) golf competitions. The finals will be played at Beth Page Country Club in Long Island on Oct. 19.

John Rocher (UM) tied for medalist honors by firing 73 on the windblown course. Close behind him in the scoring were teammates: George DeFalco, Charlie Noble, John Danowski.

There were 12 teams competing in this sectional qualifier. On the same day, six other sectional qualifier rounds were held in New England.

This is the first time UMass has competed in golf in the ECAC. These competitions have been held for the past five years.



—Photo by Darryl Fine

FREDDY LEWIS turns on the speed after receiving Jerry Whelchel's lateral in the fourth period. Lewis galloped 45 yards as Whelchel is seen providing some blocking.

STUDENTS' WIVES

Season tickets for wives of UMass students are now on sale in Room 10A — Men's Physical Education Building. The price of the tickets is $5.00 and it will admit the bearer to all home football, basketball and baseball games. Seating will be in the section reserved for students.

FROSH FOOTBALL

Anyone interested in managing freshman football please get in touch with Eugene Burgin at 419 Mills or during football practice.

Williams Downs . . .

(Continued from page 8)

ball outside Kevin Lyons drove in from the right in vain as did Mike Zawrotny. With another corner by Dillman in the offing the half ended at 2-0 Williams.

KEVIN LYONS OPENED the third quarter with a shot which threw the Williams goalie in the air as he made an excellent save. Play roughed with warnings being given to three Purple players which led to the ejection of two in the third period. Redmen Pallitano, Leete, and McDavitt combined to keep the pressure on though the booters only had five shots on the Williams net in the quarter.

The combination of Upton and Dillman from the fourth quarter though they did not score thanks to the quick recovery of loose balls by the Redmen defense. Centerhalf Ron Merrill collided with a Purple back and a fight started which caused both players to be ejected. The Williams captain was then ejected for rough play as the Redmen offense ran out of energy and time unable to break the 2-0 Williams shutout.

THE BOOTERS FACE a Trinity College team out for revenge Wednesday at Trinity. Saturday will be the Briggsmen first YanCon game as they face the booters of UConn at Storrs.

Bucknell Statistics

Final score: UMass 21, Bucknell 0

Massachusetts
Ends: Meers, Morin, DeMinico, Swanson. Tackles: Graham, Burke, Kehoe, Hagberg, Tombarelli, Jordan. Guards: Pletz, Tedoldi, Brooks, Brophy, Spidle. Centers: Dallas, Sciaidone, Kuczynski. Quarterbacks: Whelchel, Schroeder, Caln. Backs: Lewis, Palm, DeRose, Ross, Warren, Ellis, Vandersea, Morris, Kelley.

Bucknell
Ends: Mitchell, Morgan, Kinsey, Sense, kus. Guards: Boyd, Durinko, Ellis. Tackles: Fichter, Lodeski, Brown, Rat-Haerring. Swineford. Centers: Williams, Steen. Quarterbacks: Rodgers, Lerro. Backs: Connell, Elliot, Laughton, Barron, Thornton, Hart, Cook.

Score By Periods:

	L	2	3	4	T
UMass	7	0	7	7	21
Bucknell	0	0	0	0	0

Scoring:
UMass Ross (Run 3) Whelchel kick
UMass Lewis (Run 25) Whelchel kick
UMass Meers (Pass from Whelchel 7) Whelchel kick

Official Statistics	UMass	Buck.
Total First Downs	17	13
Net Yards Gained Rushing	286	44
Number Passes Attempted	13	28
Passes Had Intercepted	1	3
Number Passes Completed	7	11
Net Yards Gained Passing	89	138
TOTAL OFFENSE YARDAGE	375	182
Number Times Punted	3	4
Punting Average	27.0	29.0
Total Yards Penalized	70	39
Number of Penalties	8	6
Number of Fumbles	2	3
Number of Fumbles Lost	2	2

Sandra Olson . . .

(Continued from page 3)

Sandra back into the chamber twice on Thursday, twice on Friday and for a final time on Saturday, Sept. 28, for periods of an hour to 90 minutes.

Her rapid recovery surprised even the doctors. At first they had been rather dubious about their chances of success. . . . .

Miss Olson still has two operations in her future. One is a skin graft to cover the present incision and another to replace the lost muscles.

"At last, Twin Cleaners of Northampton is on campus," Tom said neatly.

"Now I can get my raincoat done, using their wonderful three-day service," Tom said trenchantly.

"First quality dry cleaning and shirt finishing done at STUDENT rates," said Tom penuriously.

" In my dorm now!" you'll say joyfully.

PETER PAN BUS LINES
BOSTON EXPRESS BUS
Via Massachusetts Turnpike
—Also Serving—
HOLYOKE
SPRINGFIELD
PALMER
WORCESTER
8 ROUND TRIPS DAILY
For Schedule and Information Call at the THE LOBBY SHOP Student Union
CHARTER A BUS TO ALL AMERICA

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN, MONDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1963

Redmen Shutout Bisons 21-0

Linemen Star As UMass Handcuffs Bison Offense

by STEVE HEWEY

The University of Massachusetts finally took the wraps off its offensive game and rolled over visiting Bucknell University, 21-0, at Alumni Field Saturday afternoon. Some 8100 sunburned fans saw an explosive UM backfield reel off scoring drives of 80, 34 and 80 yards while the opposition was held scoreless for the second game in a row.

The contest, billed as a passing duel between UM's Jerry Whelchel and Bucknell's Don Rodgers, was actually won on the ground as the Redmen tore up the turf to the tune of 286 yards.

The biggest crowd-pleaser of the afternoon turned out to be UM halfback Freddy Lewis who displayed some of the old form that made him a menace as a sophomore.

UMass got its first scoring march underway in the first period. Jerry Whelchel deflected a Don Rodgers pass into the hands of UM center Bernie Dallas at the UMass 18 and Dallas carried to the 20. Fifteen plays and 80 yards later fullback Mike Ross bulled his way forward from three yards out for the score. Whelchel kicked the extra point and the Redmen led 7-0.

Another Goal Line Stand

Bucknell's only real threat of the afternoon came in the closing minutes of the second period. Bison fullback Joe Elliot recovered a Bob Ellis fumble on the Mass 37 and Bucknell pressed forward to the UM 6 and a first down. Halfback Bob Langton carried to the five where he was stopped by Dallas. Langhton carried again, to the one. Halfback John Barron took two cracks at the Redmen line and was stopped cold twice by Dick Warren, Bernie Dallas and Bob Meers.

A Bucknell punt set the stage for Freddy Lewis and UM touchdown number two. Deep in his own territory Bucknell halfback Mike Connell punted to the Bucknell 34. On first down Whelchel plowed forward for five yards. Fullback Mike Ross slanted off the right side to the 24 and a first down.

Freddy Lewis was trapped for a yard loss on the first down carry but on the next play there was no stopping him. On second down from the 25 Lewis swung right, cut through the Bison line and streaked untouched into the endzone for the third period score. Whelchel split the uprights for point number 14.

Lewis Sparks Drive

It was Lewis once again that who sparked UMass during the nine play 80 jaunt to touchdown number three. On third down and three from the Mass 23 Whelchel carried to the 30 and at the last second flipped a lateral to Lewis who galloped to

(Continued on page 7)

SUPERLATIVE DEFENSE was shown Saturday by the Redmen line as demonstrated by Ken Palm, Bob Burke, Bob Tedoldi and friends. Bucknell made little gain in this set of plays as UMass stalled them in their own end of the field.

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

Williams Downs Booters

UMASS and Williams College varsity soccer teams played a hard game Saturday morning that resulted in a 2-0 loss for the Redmen.

—Photo by Elaine Maltzman

A DETERMINED UMASS VARSITY SOCCER team was unable to overcome a well drilled, experienced Williams College team, losing 2-0 in a game which saw one fight and three men being thrown out of the game.

Controlling the ball from the opening kick Williams using its halfback line to control play, was able to score after 5 minutes of play on a boot by outside left Dave Wilson. Redman Tom Astaldi, aided by the excellent ball control of Pat McDevitt, was able to break in for a shot only to have it go wide to the left. UMass goalie Dick Phillips, succeeding in breaking up attacks by his saves, aided the offense by his half-field boots. Wilson again went in alone with a clear net only to have an offside called on him.

As the second quarter opened it seemed as if the Redmen were about to seize the play. Center forward Dick Leete drove down the middle only to have the Purple goalie make a diving save. The Williams booters took three rapid shots on the UMass net which goalie Phillips knocked down. All American Dick Repeta cleared two balls in front of the net which Goalie Phillips was unable to hold onto. A cornerkick by Purple outside Dillman set up a head by his centerforward Upton which accounted for the second and last Williams goal. With UMass now in possession of the

(Continued on page 7)

THE ALPS...made in Italy by FABIANO

Handmade Imported Boots for the Outdoor Man and Woman...

STYLE #91

For Men or Women, Siena Brown Italian Suede, soft and supple, will never crack or harden. For Rock Climbing or Hiking. Padded Tongue and Quarter for extreme comfort at the ankle. Vibram lug sole. Men's N and L— 6 to 14, Ladies N and M— 5 to 11. (Sizes 13 to 14 $3.00 Extra).

Style 91 $22.95 Plus Postage

Write for Free Brochure, Fabiano Shoe Co., Inc., Dept. MC, South Station, Boston 10, Mass.

Your Campus Personalities & Events

Featured in

THE

DAILY HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

Sam Apgar 253-5831

Will Take Your Subscription

TIDDLYERS WANTED

There is a meeting this evening of the Western Massachusetts Tiddlywink Association in the Worcester Room of the Student Union. All interested in the game of tiddlywinks are urged to attend.

The WMTA urges that the five or six other Tiddlywink teams on campus send representatives to this meeting so that an attempt can be made to coordinate the Tiddly teams on this campus, with the eventual purpose of intra- and intercollegiate competition.

Dorothy M.
LIBRARY

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 11 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1963

LIBRARY
OCT 10 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASS.

Holdsworth Hall Termed "Springboard"

by DEIDRE HALEY

In a dedication speech here Saturday morning, Charles H. Foster, Commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Natural Resources, viewed the University's new Natural Resource Center as a "spring-board for what might become the finest resource program in the country."

Addressing a crowd of nearly 200 in Holdsworth Hall, the new Department of Forestry and Wildlife Management named after Professor Emeritus Robert P. Holdsworth, the Commissioner stated:

"Peabody's recent act has established in the Department of Natural Resources a State Conservation Committee. This group serves the soil conservation districts located throughout Massachusetts."

These districts, the Commissioner stated, have in the past worked mainly with farmlands, but in more recent years have been asked to serve towns. He pointed out that the co-ordination of these rural and urban efforts has been a legislative move that has gained nationwide attention.

Mr. Foster pointed out the panorama of resources available in the valley and surroundings. The total land area of woodland in Massachusetts, he stated, is heavier than in either Washington or Oregon. Also, he added, the cultural location of the building will help it to realize its goals, the most important being the co-ordination of rural and urban efforts in resources programs.

The Commissioner was introduced by John W. Lederle, President of the University. The program began with an invocation by Reverend Jere S. Berger, Protestant Chaplain.

(Continued on page 4)

Mystery Gas Brings Fire, Police To Goessmann 2d Floor

Police, fire officials and Dean I. Moyer Hunsberger were baffled Monday night by a strange gas which filtered through a second floor corridor in Goessmann Lab.

The gas, generated from a broken flask being stored in a large refrigerated vault, was discovered by Prof. George Oberlander who called campus Fire Marshal Edmund Goetzl, who immediately notified police and the Amherst Fire Department.

Responding to the alarm was an Amherst pumper under command of Capt. Alfred Tidlund. Upon arrival at the lab, Tidlund and Louis Carpino, who was working in the building at the time, entered the vault and removed the chemical.

High velocity fans were used by the fire department to ventilate the corridors.

Dean of the College of Arts

(Continued from page 6)

—Photo by Andi Beauchemin

'62 Alumna Sings for U.N. Week

Buffy Saint Marie, the girl who made good in the world of professional folk singing, and an alumna of the University since 1962 returns to old home grounds this Sunday night. Buffy will be the feature opening of the coming United Nations Week program in the Ballroom of the Student Union, at 8 p.m., this October 13.

Buffy, who will be coming by special arrangement to the University, has recently completed numerous tours one of which included participation in a concert at Carnegie Hall. Of late she has traveled in the Midwest and South, and is presently engaged in a program of television appearances in Boston.

Door cost will be 75¢ per person; the proceeds of which will go to the United Nations Week "Student Aid" project in South America.

Buffy, Favorite Daughter of the University, returns this Sunday night.

BUFFY ST. MARIE

Birthday Cards, Campus Gifts Sent To Recovering Sandy

by DAVE HARACZ

Thanks to the efforts of her doctors and the aid of oxygen therapy in the pressure chamber at Boston's Children's Hospital, this Friday Sandra Olson will celebrate the eighteenth birthday she almost didn't have.

To make this birthday a high point in the dreary road to recovery, the committee organized to help Sandy has sent her a birthday card and Tom Christensen, who is heading the committee, plans to travel to Boston Friday to present her a birthday cake. President Lederle, Dean Field, and Dean Curtis have already sent cards, and the committee asks that any students interested in sending a card to Sandy do so at the Children's Hospital.

Other developments in the drive to make Sandy's recuperation easier have been the adoption of the committee's cause by the pledge class of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, and arrangements for the Collegian and Ya-hoo to be sent to Sandy throughout her recovery.

Besides this, the committee

(Continued on page 4)

ALL FRESHMEN

All freshmen in the College of Arts and Sciences, School of Engineering and the Department of Public Health are requested to meet with the appropriate members of the facuity at 11:10 a.m. October 10th, to learn more about the facuity advisement program within their departments. Meeting places are scheduled as follows:

Arts and Sciences
Bowker Auditorium
School of Engineering
Public Health Auditorium
Public Health Majors
Rm. 40, Public Health Bldg.

FRESHMEN SEMINARS

Now is the time for freshman to sign up for discussion groups in the Guidance and counseling office E12 Machmer. The groups are filling fast. It will be an opportunity that no other freshman class has been able to experience. Class of '67, you are very lucky. Don't miss out.

Economist To Begin Series Of Lectures

On October 11, at 4 p.m. in the Student Union Council Chambers, the History Department and the School of Business Administration will sponsor a lecture by Professor Joseph P. McKenna on "The Future of the Common Market."

Professor McKenna, noted scholar on European economic and political integration, received his B.S. (1946) and Ph.D. (1951) at Harvard. He taught at the University of Minnesota and at Saint Louis University before becoming Professor of Economics at Boston College in 1961.

On leave since 1961 from Bos-

(Continued on page 6)

Precisionettes And Band Still Without Solution

by ELWIN McNAMARA

A definite decision as to the future of the Precisionettes is in the offing as the result of a confrontation between the drill team's squad leaders and the staff of the marching band.

Senate President Jon Fife stated that while no definite decision was reached, "an atmosphere of co-operation" exists between the two groups. However, further meetings will be necessary.

Last night's meeting was the product of a rift between the groups which has grown since the beginning of the semester.

The dispute began with the fall semester, at which time the drillmaster and squad leaders learned that there was to be a great change in the band, and in the relation of their organization to the band.

They discovered that UMass was to eventually have a "Big Ten" type band—a high stepping, all male marching band. To expedite this, the administration had hired John Jenkins, who was recognized as a rising person in the field.

This struck many of the group to believe that this new policy was to prove the death kneli of the Precisionettes. They saw a gradual falling into disuse and eventual abandonment of the group by the bands.

The Harvard game saw the rift break into the open. The Precisionettes, dis-satisfield with their part in the half-time ceremonies, disbanded after an emotion-packed meeting. Thus the dispute, which had been underground, broke into the open with a crash.

Five days after the disbandment, the whole University was made starkly aware of the rift. For the first time in years the pre-game rally and the halftime show were conducted without the Precisionettes. For the first time in years, the "long straight line"

(Continued on page 7)

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

To Faculty And Administration

Today for the first time each member of the University's faculty and administrative staff will receive a free copy of the Collegian.

This is a big step forward for the Collegian and entails among many other things, an expenditure of a considerable amount of student funds

The Collegian has taken this action because it feels that it can better serve the University community being readily available to both students and faculty.

It is hoped that you along with your students will make every use of the open editorial and news pages of the Collegian.

This is the perfect opportunity for you to establish a permanent and reliable liason between yourself and the student body. Also, we believe you should make use of the Collegian's pages both editorial and non-editorial, to communicate pertinent ideals to your colleagues.

We have taken the first step.

It is now up to you.

The Collegian opens its pages to you, so that you may use them in any manner that will be of benefit to the student body and the general campus community.

Use the Collegian to state your mind. We are offering you a valuable way of reaching one another and your students.

For the good of the University please accept our offer.

J.S.D.

X

by DAVE AXELROD

There was once a group of conscientious people who wanted to keep their country-side beautiful. It occurred to them as they rode through the hills and old farm lands, that something really should be done about the terrible slum problem presented by those weedy gardens and broken-down farm buildings. The smell was abominable. The houses were old beyond use; not to mention the terrible health dangers presented by those pollen-ridden fields! And where could the children play? Certainly not in the fields! Everyone knows the sin that children could find in the high grass.

Thus, these good souls began a vigorous Rural Renewal campaign, tearing down the old buildings, lawning-over gardens, cutting down the high grass. Surely the few farmers that were reluctant to leave their homes were simply too stubborn for progress. At last, the entire country side boasted a bevy of shady parks and beautiful buildings. And when the Rural Renewal was complete the people settled back to enjoy the fruits of their labor, and eventually starved to death!

United Nations Week-The Purpose

The following is a reprint from the Unesco Office at Place de Fontenoy, Paris.

"Guillermo Giacosa is a student in the provincial city of Rosario Argentian . . . He has organized a local chapter of the International Student Movement for the United Nations. Guillermo and his friends have devoted most of their energies to organizing short workcamps in the barrio miseria, the poverty stricken slum quarter, of Rosario. Guillermo and his friends want to work in inland rural areas where education is lacking and hopeless degradation is widespread.

To meet the needs of such students, regional workcamp leader training projects in newly developing countries are being organized. This is the kind of training that Guillermo's group—and other promising young men and women all over Latin America need and want."

This is the kind of training they want, this is the kind of training they can receive through aid of students in other areas of the world such as the University. United Nations Week which begins with the concert by Buffy Saint Marie this Sunday night October 13 hopes to answer in part the needs of these students. Where dictatorships tend to spring into bloom so rapidly feeding on the fertilizer of economic discontent it is the work of those such as Giacosa which will run counter to that dictatorship.

This is the ultimate purpose and final hope of United Nations Week. You can help it succeed.

J.B.C.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.

Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press

Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

"The Good Life"

Ed. Note: This letter "The Good Life" was found on the Editorial Editor's desk recently. Though it is anonymous the Collegian felt that it was pertinent to the campus and therefore needed to be published.

Living at the University of Massachusetts has changed my ideas about many things. When I first came to this school I thought that I knew just what I wanted but, after living here for a while, I am not sure that I know what I want.

When I see the boys that I am supposed to consider men, I can't help wondering when they are going to mature. These "men" are usually found at fraternity parties with a cigarette dangling from their mouths, while they hold a drink in one hand and a girl in the other. This shows that the boys are not always to blame. The girls at the University of Massachusetts often are the cause of many of the boys acting as they do. The girls are willing to date anyone who asks them even if the boy doesn't ask them out until Saturday night at eight. Not only do the girls accept dates at the last minute, (they do this because it's considered a crime to sit home on a Saturday night) but also the girls, once they are out with these boys, act as if they had been dating the boy for years. Very often in the living rooms of the girls' dorms there are such passionate scenes that it makes me wonder how long some of these couples have been "married."

Some of these mature college men actually invite girls to parties and expect the girls to wear anything from pajamas for a pajama party to a toga, formerly a sheet, for a Roman orgy. I have no respect for a girl who leaves her dorm with her pajamas on and goes to a fraternity which was built on one level so as to avoid the rule that girls aren't allowed above the first floor of a fraternity house. When the girls come home from these parties they are usually sick because they have had too much to drink. The innocent girl, when she goes to her first fraternity party, often finds her date offering her fruit punch which ends up having more of a punch than she expected.

The question raised at the Mortar Board Dormitory Discussion with the freshman class summarizes the way some of the girls at the University feel. The question asked in all sincerity was, "Where can we find some nice boys?" The members of Mortar Board were unable to answer this question. There are, of course, some boys who are decent, but most of them don't like to admit that they don't believe in the things that take place at college.

In the few weeks that I have attended the University of Massachusetts I have decided to postpone my goals. I still want to teach, to marry and to have children, but I am no longer in a hurry to do these things.

Before coming to college I assumed that after I received my degree I would want to get married. Now I feel that I have a lot of growing up to do and so do the boys. I want to wait before I rush into the world. College is only the first of many experiences. There are many wonderful things waiting in my future when I will be prepared to meet them, but for the present I want only to be educated so that I will be able to meet my future when it challenges me.

To the Editor:

WMUA's Sunday night program "Interaction" is the most significant advance in bettering student and administration understanding in a long time. Now it is possible to bring controversial issues out in the open and hear members of the administration publicly defend such policies as those on parking and student housing. I am surprised that they allow the callers to remain anonymous since the calls are on the air live.

If WMUA is able to maintain the cooperation of the administration in getting such guests as Dean Field to answer to the students via a radio broadcast of a telephone conversation then maybe there can be some understanding on both sides about the main campus problems. For example — commons food, almost non-existent parking space, and overcrowded housing conditions have been a few of the topics handled so far. The Student Senate has been represented on this program and I suggest that Collegian add its support to this program. To those people who write to the editor column there is no satisfaction so great as to hear a member of our esteemed administration answer student gripes

(Continued on page 3)

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"I MADE THE MISTAKE OF LETTING HIM SHOW ME THE SIGNA PHI NOTHING SECRET HAND CLASP."

To the Editor:

I would like to take this occasion to thank the 280 commuters who took time to vote in last Thursday's Senate election. I wonder if they realize that their efforts resulted in nearly eight times the total of last year's vote? Their interest in the campaigning of the candidates—yes folks, there was campaigning—was extremely high. For the first time, the commuting student body was invited to hear their eleven candidates deliver their platforms, thanks to the Commuters' Club. For the first time, there was a real contest—eleven candidates for six seats. In contrast, last year three people ran for four seats.

Apparently, commuters are finally waking up to the fact that they too are a part of the University. Perhaps they are also waking up to the fact that they pay more than $18,000.00 to the SATF and want to know where it goes. In any event, the commuter residential area can no longer be looked to as an "easy" ticket into the Senate.

Bill Donovan '65
Commuter Senator

Curfew Inadequate

Sex Education Suggested

This is the first of a series of articles dealing with matters pertaining to and about sex at the college level. It is an analysis of the stand taken by the adminnstration, as far as it is made known to the student, and of the attitude of the average college student, both male and female.

Recognizing the fact that the University has never openly expressed its opinion with regard to the problem that sex creates on the college campus or even acknowledged that such a problem does exist, we can only infer from the sundry allusions to the relationship of male to female (and vice versa) exactly what the attitude of the University is.

The "rules and regulations" pertaining to the behavior of coeds, i. e., the use of the sign-out sheet, the penalty for lateness and the ruling on visiting undergraduate and graduate males' apartments and dormitory living quarters, are designed for one basic purpose: to keep UMass girls "out of trouble." But are these rules effective and can they be (or are they) adequately enforced? The answer to both these questions is obvious. What can be done after curfew can easily be done before, and, certainly, there are many ways in which these "rules" can be avoided.

Our University, however, is not unique in this ostrich attitude; it is prevalent in almost every college and university in the country. Besides their primary purpose, education, colleges cannot escape responsibility for the emotional and physical life of the students on campus. Since it is known that a certain number of students will have premarital sexual relations despite official disapproval, the colleges should try to make sure that all students know how to avoid the most serious conequences.

Certainly the colleges could help students understand better the psychological, social and moral implications of sexual maturity. To do this effectively, however, they should take into account the sexual activity that exists on campuses today and try to match their policies to deal with it as realistically as possible.

Granting that this problem does exist, an effort should be made to insure that such information is made available to all the students, be it in the form of a lecture series, a required course, or group discussions. This information is necessary not only for the female members of our population but also for the males.

Every generation, of course, has had to deal with the problem of illegitimate pregnancies among young people, some on the college level. But as was aptly stated by The Springfield Student, "Two factors make the current crop (of college students) different: 1) premarital sex in all its forms is much more widespread and openly discussed among students; and 2) in the midst of this apparent sophistication, at a time when highly reliable methods of birth control exist, the majority of students are nearly as ignorant of the facts as the poorest illiterate Indian peasants."

The Vernacular

By Inez Brand

Were you on the tribal census of American Cherokees in 1907? It seems the federal government bought a piece of land from the Cherokees in 1880 and did not pay a fair price for it. The government is now making additional payments, that total $12 million, to 12,392 living Cherokees who were in the tribal census of 1907. Payments to heirs of 30,000 deceased tribal members are also included.

☆ ☆ ☆

Beauty scientists in Springfield, Mass., are busy in their laboratories trying to discover what happens to a girl's curls when she's caught in the rain. You wonder why they don't just ask some UMass girls who have to "swim" from the Wope building to Bartlett during these fall showers. But, you know scientists don't want just any answer, they want an empirical answer. How do the scientists at John H. Breck, Inc. get this empirical answer? Locks of hair are positioned in a horizontal wheel and then twirled at 1,400 revolutions per minute. This produces, in empirical language, the "centrifugal G ratio" of waving preparations. (That's why they say, always read the directions on the outside of the package before you buy it.)

☆ ☆ ☆

"Sing Along With the Dust." A new record album? No, but it might become a possibility because a team of scientists in Chicago have developed an instrument which lets them listen to dust. The instrument was developed to detect air-borne dust by its accoustical effect. Can't you just see the possibilities this creates for Madison Avenue advertising. For the smart set, particle-repellent tweeds; for the campus clod, sweatshirts with the greatest dust capacity. Maybe you can think of some others.

☆ ☆ ☆

A small note for fad-seeking college girls, and men. The Madison Avenue push will soon be given to men's stretch dress shirts. These are expected to make a big hit on the market. Exactly who will make this hit has not yet been disclosed.

☆ ☆ ☆

Did your grandmother ever tell you that baking soda makes beans more digestible? Well, put aside the baking soda and read this. The Stanford Research Institute has developed a quick-cooking process with a "gas-reducing efect on beans," it was reported in the "Idaho Bean News.' Idaho Bean Commissioner, Harold West, noted, "Beans are not used in hospitals, nursing homes, old age homes, and other institutions, or in baby foods," because of their gas-producing effect. Thanks to the Stanford developed process, grandmothers baked bean may gain still more popularity.

☆ ☆ ☆

Sweden turns to the right. After almost 200 years of driving on the left hand side of the road, Sweden will switch to the right hand side in 1967. Sweden is the last country on the continent with left hand side of the road driving.

Dateline Chicago

NAACP Stresses Job Equality

Once again the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has met at a convention in Chicago to discuss the civil rights issue. Essentially the first meeting on civil rights since the recent racial upheavals, the convention concentrated on Negro labor problems, political action and school integration throughout the country.

The difference between median incomes of Negro and white wage earners and the continuing high unemployment rate among Negro workers was discussed by the NAACP. They are seeking to end this difference through picketing and demonstration and to secure fair employment for the Negro. There will be an aim to "intensify the national program to eliminate the broad pattern of discrimination and segregation within the American labor movement."

According to a statement issued by President Kennedy, it will become illegal for companies under government contract or using government funds, to practice discrimination in employment, even if their union membership demands it. If discriminnation takes place, the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity has the authority to halt construction. The Negro workers will be assisted in organizing demonstrations before union offices which continue to refuse the Negro his right to work in a desegregated area.

Appropriate complaints will be filed with state and municipal fair employment commissions and appropriate federal agencies whenever unions either refuse to negotiate with NAACP representatives or Negro workers, or when such negotiations prove fruitless.

In Gary, Indiana, schools have been attended on a segregated basis according to neighborhood, and teachers have been hired on the basis of race. The NAACP has moved, in a petition beore the U. S. Supreme Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, to eliminate this discrimination on the basis of the U. S. supreme court decision in Brown v. Board of Education that educational opportunities cannot be secured in a case where there is a segregated school system. This applies even in a case where discrimination is "a result of educational policies and procedures that necessarily produce separate Negro and white schools."

The Negro continues to fight for his right to equal recognition by demanding reform in school textbooks and teaching which will recognize the Negro role in the history of America.

Further arguments have taken place in the fields of medicine and dentistry against racial discrimination practices.

Throughout the country, according to resolutions made at the NAACP convention, picketing, sit-ins, mass action protests, selective buying campaigns and all appropriate constitutional means of attacking discrimination and segregation in public accommodations, housing, education, employment and political practices, will continue.

During the summer there has been action in the country focusing directly against "Jim Crow institutions."

In Clarksburg, Mississippi, for example, there has been picketing against the local government, press, churches, circuit court clerk's office, where applicants register for voting, and the public library. The NAACP hopes that action of this type will eventually result in the more complete protection and integration of the Negro.

Campus Mail Service

By Harold A. Gushue Jr. '65

There is a free mail service on campus for use by the Administration, Departmental offices, and R.S.O. groups. This service, under the direction of Mr. Frederick K. Utley, is in the experimental stage.

Mail is picked up thrice daily from the Administration buildings, South College, and Machmer; twice daily from all other offices and classrooms; and once daily from dormitories. The majority of the mail consists of notices to students. The mail is delivered to the Girls' Quad. in the morning and to the rest of the campus in the afternoon. The Lincoln Apts. are served by the U. S. Postal Service.

The on-campus service is used primarily by departments and publicly and to be able to immediately debate the questions.

WMUA ...

(Continued from page 2)

It will be interesting to see such persons as the Dean of Women and perhaps President Lederle take their turn answering WMUA's telephone on "Interaction."

A Commuter looking for a parking space

Mr. Utley says, "We can't handle the mail under the present system if all the R.S.O. organizations use this service." He would appreciate any groups planning to use the service to contact him in Draper Hall as the service is on a tight schedule and arrangements may have to be made to cope with the greater volume of mail. Students can't use the service now and it may be discontinued next semester.

However, Mr. Utley says, "There are tentative plans to expand to a certain extent." An inserter, which prepares material for mailing, now located in South College, "will eventually be located in a central mail area. Automation is a definite factor in determining how far we can go in this service." If automation is kept up the service may be made available to students.

In conclusion Mr. Utley said, "At the present time our staff and facilities do not allow us to increase the service to all organizations. Perhaps in the future with automated facilities and a larger staff and if the administration so desires we might be able to serve the individual student."

RENT A CAR
ECONO-CAR RENTAL SYSTEM
FEATURING CHRYSLER PRODUCTS
• GAS INCLUDED
$5.99 PER 24 HRS. Plus Small Mileage Charge
Springfield 785-5314
Northampton 584-7277
Greenfield 774-4443

Your Campus Personalities & Events
Featured in
THE DAILY HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
Sam Apger 253-5831
Will Take Your Subscription

Bay Singers Boom

The BAY SINGERS, a trio of fine folk entertainers, recently performed at THETA CHI. The brothers, rushies, and their dates thoroughly enjoyed themselves, both listening to and singing with the trio. Roy Michaels, Fred Geiger and Jean Gurney, the BAY SINGERS have been acclaimed as the fastest rising folk music group in New England. The group under the personal management of David P. Bourdeau have their own radio program in Springfield, Massachusetts and are rapidly carving themselves a niche in the world of folk music.

LIBERAL ARTS

ALL DEGREE LEVELS NEEDED

- Analytic Research
- Language Program
- Computer Programming
- Mathematics
- Statistics

ALL ACADEMIC MAJORS

Training in Specialized Techniques are Provided by NSA

Liberal Arts Majors (except mathematicians) are required to take the

PROFESSIONAL QUALIFICATION TEST

given on

26 October and 7 December 1963

Applications for 26 October tests MUST BE IN NOT LATER THAN 14 OCTOBER.

See your COLLEGE PLACEMENT OFFICER now for a Test Bulletin containing further details. Since no test is required for math majors, they should contact their college placement officer for an interview with an NSA representative.

National Security Agency

WASHINGTON D.C. AREA

An Equal Opportunity Employer

The Music Man Promises To Wow UMass Audience

The Operetta Guild, in association with the Opera Workshop, will present The Music Man, the most beloved musical comedy since Oklahoma!, with Jack Singer starred in the title role. The curtain will rise at 8:15 p.m. Oct. 31 thru Nov. 2 and at 2:00 for the Saturday matinee.

Written in its entirety by Meredith Willson—book, lyrics, and music—The Music Man ran in New York for 1,376 performances to place it among the top ten musical hits of American stage history.

The show introduces its audiences to its setting of a small town in 1912 with the famous number, "Rock Island." It has no musical accompaniment, and not really any singing, only a pulse-raising chant. As the overture ends, the audience hears a steam—locomotive's whistle, its chuggety-chug, and the lights go up to reveal a group of traveling salesmen being jiggled as they sit in an old-fashioned day-coach of a train. To a clackety-clack rhythm of a train they toss one another an antiphony of shop-talk phrases like "Ya gotta know the territory," rendering not only the sound of a train but also the atmosphere of the period, creating what has been declared the most delightful and unusual beginning of any musical comedy.

Other notable song-hits of The Music Man include the "Professor's" warning about the town's new pool table. He says, "Ya Got Trouble—with a capital T—that rhymes with P—that stands for POOL!" Also there is the charming "Piano Lesson," in which the heroine (Peggy Jones) teaches a simple tune to a child; Marian's ballad of loneliness, "Goodnight My Someone"; her lyrical portrait of "My White Knight"; and the song her little kid brother with a lisp sings, "Gary, Indiani."

More favorites are "Till There was You," a ballad; the comic song "Pickalittle," and "Shipoopi," a song-and-dance shindig in the high-school gymnasium. Vying in popularity with "Seventy-Six Trombones" is the show's "Marian the Librarian," in which the mischievous "professor," admonished to silence in the library, where he has come to woo the heroine, leads a mocking tip-toe, sh-sh dance through the book-stacks.

Wayne Lamb, musical and stage director, is also choreographer for The Music Man. He is assisted by Paul Bartsch, Ernest Bilodeau, and Herb Mongue.

NOTICES

ARTS AND MUSIC COMMITTEE

There will be a meeting of the Arts and Music Committee at 11 a.m. Thurs., Oct. 10, in the Plymouth Room of the S.U. All members and applicants should attend.

CONCERT ASSOCIATION

There will be a meeting of the entire Concert Association Wed., Oct. 9, at 6:30 p.m. in the Nantucket Room of the S.U. The previous concert, plans for the next concert, and the election of a faculty advisor will be discussed.

CO-REC NIGHT

There will be co-ed swimming, volley ball, and badminton Fri., Oct. 11, at 7:30 p.m. in the Woman's Phys. Ed. Building.

NEWMAN CLUB

A "Massacre UConn" dance will be held at the Newman Center this Fri., Oct. 11, at 8 p.m. Music will be provided by the band of Paul Collins. Men are asked to wear ties and jackets. There will be a charge of 50¢ for non-members; members will be admitted free.

An open retreat conducted by Rev. Richard Butler, O.P. will start Mon., Oct. 14, at 7 p.m. in the Center.

PHI ETA SIGMA

There will be a meeting of all brothers in the Norfolk Room of the S.U. Thurs., Oct. 10, at 11:15 a.m.

WOMAN'S INTERDORM COUNCL

There will be a meeting of the Woman's Interdorm Council Thurs., Oct. 10, at 11 a.m. All old officers and newly elected members must be present.

(Continued on page 6)

Junior Class Rings Go On Sale Thursday

Starting Thursday, October 9, from 9 to 4, a representative will be in the University Book Store to take orders from all Juniors for their class rings. This year's Junior Class will deal with the firm that has been handling the University's rings for the past five years and has proved to be reliable. Herff Jones, the name of the firm, has said that it takes approximately six to ten weeks for the orders to be filled, so the earlier the rings are ordered the earlier they will be received.

The prices for the Class of 1964 were as follows:

Wt.	Stone	Price (tax in.)
5½	Ruby	$25.85
12	Ruby	37.95
16	Ruby	41.25
5½	Garnet	27.50
12	Garnet	39.60
16	Garnet	42.90

A change in prices for the Class of 1965 is not indicated, and if there is one, it should be small. These prices also include, if desired, Greek and degree letters. A ten dollar deposit is required.

Sandra Olson ...

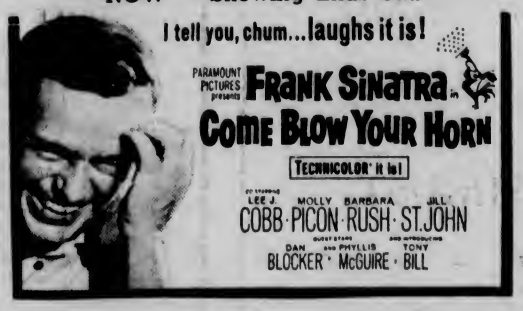
(Continued from page 1)

has announced plans for a project in which all members of the campus community are asked to participate. Beginning Thursday and running through Friday, committee members will be in the Student Union lobby with a bed sheet upon which they hope the majority of students and others on campus will affix their signatures in indelible ink. Members of the committee will also bring the sheet to the lobbies of the various dorms, beginning Monday, according to a schedule to be published in Friday's Collegian.

SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS

AMHERST Cinema

—NOW -- Showing Ends Sat.—



Sun. — "CONDEMNED OF ALTONA" Sophia Loren
Wed., Oct. 16 — It's "MONDO CANE"

Holdsworth ...

(Continued from page 1)

Arless A Spielman, Dean of the College of Agriculture, gave a brief talk on the purpose of landgrant colleges. He pointed out that these colleges have a new goal: helping people apply knowledge to new problems. Specifically, he stated, there is the challenge of resource development and its use in a rapidly urbanizing society. The key purpose of the landgrant college, he ended, is knowledge for use.

Following the main address, a tribute to Robert P. Holdsworth was given by Arnold D. Rhodes, Head of the Department of Forestry and Wildlife Management.

In his response, Professor Holdsworth pointed out the personal satisfaction he received from the study of expanding resources to public availability. He said, "It gives a sense of dedication to one's fellow man."

A congratulatory message from Governor Peabody was read. The Governor pointed out that lands were no longer rural or urban; resource efforts must apply to all lands.

John W. Haigis, member of the University Board of Trustees, presented a portrait of Professor Holdsworth. The painting was done in oils by his son, William Curtis Holdsworth, a professional artist in New York City. After, Mr. Haigis formally dedicated the building. Refreshments and a tour of the building followed.

W.F.A. Meets To Celebrate Anniversary

The Wesley Foundations in America will celebrate its Fiftieth Anniversary at the Wesley Methodist Church on Sunday evening, October 13. One of the first religious student organizations in the country to serve state and private campuses, the Wesley Foundation began on the University of Illinois campus on October 13, 1913.

The speaker for the occasion will be Dr. Robert Hamill, Dean of the Chapel at Boston University. Dr. Hamill is in constant demand as lecturer. He has delivered the Willson lectures at Southern Methodist University and speaks annually at Sage Chapel, Cornell University. He is the author of two books, "Gods of the Campus" and "How Free are You?", and numerous magazine articles.

The campus community is invited to attend Dr. Hamill's lecture which will be held in the sanctuary of the Wesley Methodist Church at 6 p.m., October 13.

Summer Session Will Equal Other Semesters

by D. SHEA

Starting this year students attending the summer session will be participating in the year round operation of the school.

It is the aim of the administration to make the summer term equal, in both course offerings and credit hours, to the other two terms.

With the new summer session of twelve weeks, the student can take within three credits of a full semester's work.

It is both an easy step and the next step to be taken to turn this year round operation into trisemester.

The Ad-Hoc committee has listed the following as inducements for the thrid term of year round operation:

1. The curriculum for the summer of third term is carefully planned as an academic unit.

2. Remedial work may be offered in the third term only.

3. Full year courses can be scheduled in the third term.

4. Special programs are run during the summer.

5. Financial inducements such as reduced tuition, scholarships, and loans, and assistance in finding fall and winter employment can be arranged.

6. Experimentation with staggered admissions is possible.

7. Students on probation may be required to attend the summer term.

8. Admission immediately following graduation from high school can be encouraged.

What are your opinions about year-round operation? Compulsory or not. Write to me % the "Collegian" and state your views or ask any questions.

Pol. Sci. Club Plans Debate Mon. Oct. 14

Mrs. Bruce B. Benson, President of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, and Governor's Councillor Raymond F. Sullivan of Springfield will debate "Should the statutory powers of the Governor's Council be limited?" next Monday, Oct. 14, at the University of Massachusetts.

The debate, scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Middlesex and Nantucket rooms of the UMass Student Union, is open to the public.

The University's political science club will sponsor the debate. Dr. David Mayhew of the UMass department of government will moderate the discussion.

An initiative petition seeking to repeal the Executive Council's statutory powers is currently being circulated throughout the state.

If the organizations are successful in getting 64,000 certified voters' signatures, the measure to limit the Executive Council will be placed on the General Court's 1964 agenda.

University Theatre Brings "The Twin Menaechmi"

Long lost brothers! Menaechmus I, a young man of Epidamnus, played by Larry Wilker; and Menaechmus II (Sosicles), a young man of Syracuse, played by Jim Wrynn. Sitting is Messenio, slave of Menaechmus II, played by Roland Laramee. After a play full of action, "The Twin Menaechmi" ends with recognition on the part of the twins. The curtain will rise at 8:15 on the evenings of October 17, 18 and 19. Tickets go on sale next week. Season tickets for the five-play season are still available from the Speech Department and from members of Roister Doisters.

The University Theatre of the University of Massachusetts will present the famous Roman comedy by Plautus, "The Twin Menaechmi," as its first offering of the 1963-64 season.

Tickets will be available after Oct. 13 at the Student Union ticket window. Season tickets may be purchased by calling 545-0111 for information.

Performances are scheduled for Oct. 17, 18 and 19 in Bowker Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. There will also be a special high school matinee at 2:15 p.m., Oct. 19.

Plautus, who lived from 254 to 184 B.C., is thought of today as the originator of type characters and standard plots. His plays emphasize farcical situations.

The "Twin Menaechmi" story deals with twin brothers who have been raised separately. They are mistaken for each other when one arrives in the town where his brother, stolen in infanthood, has been raised.

The play moves at a fast pace until the final scene, when the two brothers recognize each other. Along the way, many misunderstandings and Roman-style slapstick events provide the comedy.

Cosmo Catalano, a member of the speech department faculty at UMass, is directing "The Twin Menaechmi." Other speech department faculty members involved in the production are University Theatre Director Orville K. Larson, designer: Harry E. Mahnken, production coordinator; Terry H. Wells, technical director.

Students are working on all phases of the production as well as acting in the comedy.

Lawrence J. Wilker, a junior from Newton, and James M. Wrynn, a senior from Lynn, play the parts of the two Menaechmi. Paula Norton of Brookline and Deena Ferrigno of Amherst have leading female roles.

3 Days Only

ENTIRE STOCK

OF

Corduroy

Skirts

Culottes

and

Perts

In a host of fashion colors.

All sizes.

$5.00 and $6.00

Regularly Priced to $10.98

ANN AUGUST

104 NORTH PLEASANT — AMHERST

• FREE PARKING IN REAR •

ERASE WITHOUT A TRACE ON EATON'S CORRĀSABLE BOND

Don't meet your Waterloo at the typewriter—perfectly typed papers begin with Corrāsable! You can rub out typing errors with just an ordinary pencil eraser. It's that simple to erase without a trace on Corrāsable. Saves time, temper, and money!

Your choice of Corrāsable in light, medium, heavy weights and Onion Skin in handy 100-sheet packets and 500-sheet boxes. Only Eaton makes Corrāsable.

A Berkshire Typewriter Paper

EATON PAPER CORPORATION PITTSFIELD, MASS.

The Showplace of Pioneer Valley

NORTHAMPTON'S ACADEMY

AT THE GATES OF THE COLLEGE

SEE IT NOW!

EXCLUSIVE AREA SHOWING!

Mat. At 2:00 P. M. Eve. at 8 P. M.

• Sunday Evening At 7:30 •

BEST PICTURE OF THE YEAR!

ACADEMY AWARD WINNER

All Matinees 90c

Sun. Thru Thurs. Evenings $1.25

Children Anytime 50c

Vandals Invade Gorman House

UMass students David Blau, '66, and Robert Singer, '67, have some cleaning up to do today.

Monday night, at approximately 7:30, vandals entered room 131 Gorman House by ripping the screens out and forcing open a window, and proceeded to tear the room apart. There seemed to be some method in the destruction as Mrs. Eugenia L. Hale, housemother, suggested that the way the room was torn apart the vandals were apparently looking for money or other valuables.

When Blau and Singer returned at 11:30 from the library, they were greeted by a room that looked like it had housed Hurricane Flora for the night. Clothes from the dressers were dumped on the floor and the drawers were thrown around. Clothes in the closet were also tossed on the floor. The stripped beds had been pushed around the triple room, and the mattresses were on the floor.

It was determined that the intruders actually took nothing, but did leave their mark.

Written on the wall was this message: "Blau: You should be thankful that you is still alive." The note was signed by a person named "Book."

But Blau, a busines major, and Singer, an English major, took the whole situation in good spirits, and posted the following notice on their door:

"Pardon our appearance, but business as usual!!!"

CLUB DIRECTORY

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
Vesper service on Wed., Oct. 9, at 9:30 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. Everyone welcome.

COMMUTERS CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 10, at 11:15 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. for all commuters interested in working on homecoming float.

EDWARDS FELLOWSHIP
Open house at the Fellowship House, 263 Sunset Ave., on Sun., Oct. 13. Cars leave Arnold and Hills at 7 p.m.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 10, at 7 p.m. in Grinnell Arena. Plans for trip to clinic will be made. All welcome.

FLYING CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 9, at 8 p.m. in the Worcester room of the S.U. All persons interested are invited.

GEOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 9, at 7:30 p.m. in 249 Morrill. Mr. Ervin Otvos will speak on "Hungary — the Country and its Geology."

HEYMAKERS
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 9 at 7:30 p.m. in Bowditch Hall. Lessons will be given.

HISTORY CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 9, at 8 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. Dr. Allen of the Govt. Dept. will speak on the Vietnam situation. All interested invited.

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
Meeting on Fri., Oct. 11, at 7 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. Gil Hunter, geographer at Clark U., will speak.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Supper meeting on Sun., Oct. 13, at 6 p.m. Rev. Thomas Frazier, resident UMass theologian, will speak on "Contemporary Trends in Christian Ethics." Rides leave from Arnold at 5:50 p.m.

MANAGEMENT CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 9, at 6:30. p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. Coffee hour follows. All interested are invited to attend.

MARKETING CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 9, at 8 p.m. in 117 Draper. All are invited.

OUTING CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 10, at 6:30 p.m. in the Hampden room of the S.U. New memberships taken at this time.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLUB
Short business meeting on Thurs., Oct. 10, at 8 p.m. in WoPe. There will be a guided tour of the new Men's PE. All majors are welcome.

RUSSIAN CLUB
Organizational meeting on Mon., Oct. 14, at 7 p.m. in the Worcester room of the S.U. Anyone interested welcome.

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 10 in the Men's PE Bldg. Instruction will be given at 6:30 p.m. and experienced members will meet at 8 p.m. There will be a dive to Newport on Sat., Oct. 12.

WESLEY FOUNDATION
Meeting on Sun., Oct. 13. Celebration of the 50th Anniversary of the Wesley Foundations in America begins at 4 p.m. in the Thompson House.

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 9, at 8 p.m. in the Worcester A room of the S.U. All interested are welcome to attend.

Lost and Found

REWARD: $5.00 For the recovery of a green 50 page notebook with the word "Seminar" and two or three pages which are written on. Contains two composition sheets with research data of which there are no copies. Please return to Lawrence Miller, 117 Butterfield.

LOST: A wallet Mon., Oct. 7, in or near Morrill. Reward. Contact Mark Tobin B-12 Wheeler.

LOST: Micronta slide rule in leather case. If found please return to Carol Hermsdorf, 320 Knowlton.

LOST: A man's silver gold I.D. bracelet with the name JACK on front. Believed lost between S.U. and Brett. Please return to Jack Petterson, 117 Brett.

LOST: A pair of black riding boots, size 8. Return to Merle Hurwitz, 426 Van Meter North.

FOUND: A white overnight case, American Tourister. Left all day Friday in front of Lewis House. It has the initials G.P.K. Contact campus police.

Economist . . .

(Continued from page 1)

ton College, he has spent the last two years as Visiting Professor at the Bologna Center of The Johns Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies. While administering the economics program at the Bologna Center, Professor McKenna had the opportunity of consulting with many specialists in the field of European integration.

Professor McKenna has been on the Executive Council (1957-59) of the Catholic Economic Association and was editor of the Review of Social Economy (1961-1962).

Among his several books are Aggregate Economic Analysis (1955) and Intermediate Economic Theory (1958).

ROTC Instructor Receives Medal

U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Roy D. Simmons, Jr., a recent arrival at the University of Massachusetts' Air Force ROTC detachment, is congratulated by UMass President John W. Lederle on receiving the Air Force Commendation Medal. Colonel Simmons, a veteran of 110 World War II fighter missions, came to UMass from a three-year assignment at Torrejon Air Force Base near Madrid, Spain.

SWAP Delegates Briefed For Upcoming Conference

SWAP delegates were briefed on procedures for their annual two-day conference, when they met yesterday in the Council Chambers of the Student Union. This year's conference will be held Friday and Saturday, October 11 and 12 at Mount Snow Ski Resort in West Dover, Vermont.

Approximately 120 delegates, including 35 from the University's faculty and administration, will be discussing the following topics:

Communications on campus; Extra curricular activities in a growing university; University image; Faculty backing in extra-curricular activities.

Buses will leave from the Student Union at 2:30 and 4:30 p.m. on Friday. The SWAP schedule includes a panel discussion Friday evening in which Dr. Schumer of the Psychology Department and Dean Field will take part. The discussion will be moderated by Assistant Registrar Starkweather after which John W. Haigis, a University trustee, will speak. Saturday's schedule will begin with a question-answer session followed by an afternoon devoted to workshops. Dr. Varley of the English Department will be Saturday's after-dinner speaker.

Returning buses will leave Mount Snow at approximately 9:30 p.m. Priscilla Bradway at Sigma Kappa or Bruce Albro at Beta Kappa Phi are prepared to answer any questions concerning SWAP.

Notices . . .

(Continued from page 4)

WMUA—HISTORY 5

On Sundays at 7 p.m. WMUA will present a series of lectures on the material covered in History 5. Members of the History Dept. will explain and expand upon material presented in the classroom.

For this week only the series will be presented Wed. instead of Sun. This week's lecture will be "Ancient Rome" and will be presented by Mr. Williams.

Serious Gas . . .

(Continued from page 1)

and Sciences Hunsberger, who was in the building at the time, lauded firefighters and Fire Marshal Goetzl for their quick work. "They were really on the ball," said Hunsberger.

LEGAL NOTICE

1. Oct. 1, 1963
2. The Massachusetts Collegian
3. Three times a week
4. Student Union — UMass, Amherst, Hampshire Co., Mass.; 01003
5. Student Union UMass Amherst, Mass.
6. Published and edited by the Students of the University of Massachusetts
7. Owner: the Students of the University of Massachusetts
8. Known bondholders etc.,: None
10. Total copies printed 6200

I certify that the statements made by me above are correct and complete.

/s/ Jeffrey S. Davidov
Editor

Vespa Motor Scooters
While They Last
CLOSE OUT SALE
125 cc VESPA MOTOR SCOOTER
Retail Selling Price $375.
Wholesale Price $291.25
150 cc VESPA MOTOR SCOOTER
Retail Selling Price $425.
Wholesale Price $328.75
GRAND LUX VESPA MOTOR SCOOTER
Retail Selling Price $460.
Wholesale Price $355.00
— 90 Day Warranty on Parts and Labor —
COLLEGE SUNOCO
292 College Street AMHERST AL 3-9279

Peter Pan Travel Service Inc.
144 BRIDGE STREET :: SPRINGFIELD
(Across from Bus Terminal)
Open 9 a.m.-9 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.
FOR ALL VACATION and TRANSPORTATION NEEDS
AIRLINE TICKETS AND RESERVATIONS
Tours - Cruises - Sightseeing
Official Tariff Rates
Limousine to Bradley Field Leaves from Our Front Door
Call Collect to SPRINGFIELD 781-3343

Students Only
New Yorker Magazine
$3.75 — 8 Mos.
$5.00 — Year
(Reg. $8.00 per year)
Ski Magazine
6 Issues $1.50
2 Years $3.00
(Reg. $3.00 a year)
CHECK OR MONEY ORDER
BOX 418
AMHERST, MASS.

Redmen Team Has Improved Backfield

by JOHN GOODRICH '65

"Offensive football is turning into a science today. No longer is the straight-T enough. It just isn't possible to play a pound 'em out game," said backfield coach Jack Delaney in a recent interview. "Today's teams use split ends, winged-T and double wing formations, counters, and other variations."

The 1963 Redmen backfield has many of the qualities inherent to outstanding backfields. They possess speed and power in the forms of Mike Ross and Fred Lewis. Phil DeRose has good speed, while Ken Palm shows a good deal of power. Dick Warren and Bob Ellis are both fine all around players. Even an average backfield will have players that fit the above mentioned abilities, but there is still one intangible that is needed, and that is of course desire. Coach Delaney feels that these players have that quality. He said, "I've been coaching for eleven years, but the finest players I've ever seen are right here at the University. They a great deal of desire to learn and improve. We never have had a disciplinary problem with these men."

Coach Delaney has developed a fine backfield this year. While the team has scored the unspectacular total of 35 points so far this year, one cannot omit the fact that the team has had five touchdowns called back. "Many teams, UConn for one, hasn't even scored five touchdowns this year," the coach added.

So far this year, the shining light in this backfield has been the quarterback Jerry Whelchel. The modern QB has to be able to think on his feet. He has the pre-game plan to carry out as well as calling some audibles, plays called at the line of scrimmage, and being alert to any defensive adjustments. "While we are trying to find a play that will offset the adjustment the defense has made, Jerry is on his own," said Coach Delaney.

While the coach is quick to compliment his players and give them the credit, it is well to note the job that he has done with only one veteran. Whelchel was the only returnee from last year's squad. Both Lewis and Palm were out of school, so they did not play at all last year. Ross was only a substitute on that squad. The second team has John Schroeder at the QB position, DeRose is one halfback, the only halfback with experience from the previous year; soph Bob Ellis is the other, and Dick Warren is the fullback.

In this year's game against Harvard, it appeared to many fans that the Redmen played extremely conservatively. Such was not the case; the fact is that on every roll-out by Whelchel he has the option to run or pass, both of which he does well. If it appears conservative to the fan, it was only that the pressure from the Harvard line forced the QB to rush, and Jerry Whelchel is not the type to throw unless there is somebody open to receive. He would rather "eat the ball". So if the roll-outs were taken into account, Mass might have thrown 16 passes rather than only the six that were thrown.

The last two games Mass has made spirited goal line stands. Coach Delaney is proud to note that the defensive backfield made many of the tackles in those crucial series of downs. Ellis in the Harvard game and Warren in the Bucknell game led the charge.

On the whole Coach Delaney is proud of the progress of the 1963 Redmen backfield both offensively and defensively, and well the fans might also take pride in the results of the backfield and the entire team to date.

Intramural Sports

(Continued from page 8)

energies of the students. This outlet could be found in intramurals.

A 45 team facility in the Cage makes it possible to carry out a successful program. This allows for the fifteen fraternity teams and eighteen dormitory squads as well as some independent teams.

Touch football, basketball, bowling and volley ball are some of the most popular activities available to the student body, but others include softball, lacrosse, tennis, badminton and many more. The number of sports played depends entirely upon the student interest and participation in intramurals.

To increase this student interest, an elaborate point system has been set up. This system is distinctly separate from the IFC system and applies to all teams playing in intramurals, whether they be dorm, fraternity or independent Coach Cobb has also perfected a system ensuring that each team eventually plays all other teams in their respective sports.

TROPHY AWARDED

One of the main stimuli to the participation in intramurals is the hope of obtaining the coveted Stephen Davis Trophy. Victories in the various sports would earn points throughout the year. At the end of the year whichever dorm, fraternity or independent team had garnered the most points would be awarded this plaque. Thus the total number of points and not merely the possession of a few first places, is the deciding factor in the winning of the prize. The Davis trophy is a beautiful one, and a proud addition to the trophy room of any dorm or fraternity.

The fraternities have always been strong in intramurals, and, although in recent years the dorms have been making rapid progress, there is still much room for improvement.

It's up to the student to provide for his own health, enjoyment and honor, and there is no better channel of obtaining all of these than the University's Intramural program.

Freshmen Harriers In Four Way Meet Friday

by JOHN POTASKY

This Friday afternoon at 2 p.m., the freshman cross country team will play host to Providence College, UConn, and Boston University in a quadrangular meet. Coach Justin Cobb's runners will be trying to recover from an upset defeat in the year's opening meet with the Coast Guard Academy. This loss was the first for the frosh harriers over a span of three years.

A mixup in scheduling resulted in no meet this past Saturday for UMass. The Maine and Northeastern squads were not able to participate, so the Mass frosh had a brief holiday.

Coach Cobb is looking forward to this week's meet with concern. He realizes that his boys will be running against some of the toughest competition in New England. Mr. Cobb is once again hoping for fine efforts from his two leading runners, Bob St. Clair and Charles Mitchel. These two boys finished first and third respectively in the Coast Guard meet.

On the whole, the frosh should make a strong try at first place this Friday. The boys have responded well to training and are just about ready to make a strong bid to go undefeated for the remainder of the season.

Intramural Football

INTRAMURAL AND IFC FOOTBALL are in full action under the lights of the lower football field. The third week of play saw two dorm league and four IFC games.

Gorman House overpowered Hills North 24-0 as Mills House blanked Berkshire 15-0. In the I.F.C. league the brothers of PMD rolled over ATG 32-6. T.C. shaded T.K.E. in a well played, rough game which hung in the balance until the last seconds ending 13-12. S.P.E. shutout Q.T.V. 6-0. The brothers of A.E.Pi led by the running and passing of John Parnell downed B.K.P. 20-12. The play of Larry Kalevitch, Paul Feinberg, and Mike Tesler aided the Pi's in their win.

NEXT WEEK play continues toward the all important Intramural and I.F.C. crowns, campus championship, and the Nose Bon.

★ NOTICES ★

WANTED

Anyone interested inmanaging freshmen football should report to, the practice football field any weekday between 4:30 and 6:00 or contact Eugene Burgin 419 Mills. No previous experience needed.

TICKETS

There are a limited amount of tickets available for the football game between Massachusetts and Connecticut Saturday at Storrs. Student tickets may be purchased for $1.00 upon presentation of ID card and reserved seats may be bought for $2.50 in Room 10A of the Men's Physical Education Building .

Precisionettes ...

(Continued from page 1)

was not seen.

Since then, the series of meetings has gone on with charges and counter charges being thrown, all of which led up to last night's confrontation.

it's invisible, man!

It's *in*credible, *in*comparable, *in*fallible! Code 10 for men, the new kind of hairdressing from Colgate-Palmolive. The new *in*visible way to groom a man's hair all day. Non-greasy Code 10 disappears in your hair, gives it the clean, manly look that *in*flames women, *in*furiates *in*ferior men. Be in. Get the non-greasy hairdressing, Code10. It's *in*visible, man!

code 10 HAIR DRESSING FOR MEN

It's Here!!

A Treasury of the Stock Words of Science

THE SCIENTIST'S THESAURUS

The Key to Your Understanding of Scientific Terminology

Now at THE COLLEGE BOOKSTORE

Only $2.00 per copy.

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Redmen In Quadrangle Meet Friday Face Providence, UConn, and B.U.

Gene Colburn '64

The varsity cross country will have its first home meet of the season this Friday when it is host to Providence College, the University of Connecticut, and Boston University. The meet is scheduled to start at 3 P.M. on the field between the Women's Phys. Ed. building and the girl's tennis courts.

The Redmen will be looking to get back into the win column after having been upset last Saturday by Northeastern and Maine. The team's record currently stands at 1-1. Bob Brouillet has a perfect record. Not only has he won both meets for UMass, but he has also set course records each time. "Diggers" performance Saturday marks him as one of the top runners in the East. He'll not only be a threat to win the New England Championships, but also the IC.4A's, which is symbolic of Eastern supremacy. Brouillet is the first runner in UMass history to have as good a chance as he does of placing among the top finishers in the IC.4A's. If he does well there, Digger could well go to the national championships.

It takes more than one man to make a team though, and it's the six men behind Brouillet who will decide whether the Redmen will win or lose. Coach Footrick is optimistic. He feels that the team learned a lesson Saturday and that they should be able to triumph Friday by closing the time gap between the runners. If the boys run as well Friday as they have been running in practice this week, they should win.

Providence has a strong team and has given such powerhouses as Army and Harvard a strong run for their money. B.U. and UConn are not likely to have strong teams, but each will have several outstanding runners who could well act as spoilers. Friday will present Digger with a chance to break an unprecedented third straight record, and the varsity will be given a chance to prove it is as good as it is supposed to be.

CROSS COUNTRY RUNNERS. The view UMass' opponents get of our harriers. The team is often seen practicing on the campus.

Women's Field Hockey Match Hampshire vs. South Africa

Thursday, October 10, at 4 p.m. a women's field hockey match will be held between a South African team and the Hampshire Field Hockey Association. The match will take place on the fields at the Women's Physical Education Building.

The South African team has been selected from the best of its provincial players. This selection occurs annually at the culmination of the field hockey season which lasts about five months in South Africa. It corresponds to our spring season.

The Hampshire team is represented by the best players of the Hampshire Association, one of thirty-two active associations in the United States. Two University of Massachusetts graduates are included on this team: Dotty Bemis, who was president of the WAA and an outstanding athlete; and Peg Bagdon, who majored in physical education, graduated in June, and is now teaching in the South Hadley school system.

Field hockey is a game which has the same formations as soccer and the same modus operandi. One point is scored for each goal and the out of bounds rules are essentially the same as in soccer. Unlike soccer, however, the game is played with a small white ball which may not touch the body, and a one-sided stick. Playing time is two thirty minute periods with no time outs and no substitution allowed. The game is not rough, but it is quite strenuous.

This is the last of a series of three matches held in this area. The first, on Tuesday, pitted Wales against Mount Holyoke, and the second saw Wales playing South Africa at Smith College.

Following the game at UMass there will be a reception for the visitors and a dinner in the Student Union sponsored by the physical education majors.

"COCA-COLA" AND "COKE" ARE REGISTERED TRADE-MARKS WHICH IDENTIFY ONLY THE PRODUCT OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY.

botany...monotony
notes...quotes...trig
...dig...review...stew fuss...discuss...cram exam...wow...whew
...pause

things go better with Coke

Drink Coca-Cola

TRADE-MARKS

Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by:
THE COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO. OF NORTHAMPTON

Intramural Program Develops Team Spirit

With much talk on the UMass campus these days about intramurals, the Collegian is reprinting this article which was published last year and which we feel explains the workings and ideals of the Intramural Program.

The purpose of this program is to provide a broad pattern of organized recreational activities to attract the leisure time pursuits of the student body.

It is hoped that at least 50 percent of the male student body will take advantage of the facilities available to them. As Provost Gilbert Woodside puts it: "Intellectual work is the most important activity in a college student's life . . . But I know that the vast majority of people simply cannot engage in intellectual activity all of the time. The human body is not geared to do this. A student who tries it will be endangering his health. Therefore we urge the student body to take part in the intramural program of the University."

To meet this need, the program of intramurals has been expanded for the benefit of all students who wish to participate.

Intramural competition is designed especially to fulfill the desire for athletic participation among the large group of students who because of skill level, or inclination do not wish to compete on a varsity level. The Intramural program is a supplement to, and a continuation of the general physical education program. Provision is made for the inclusion of all members of the University community in the programming of events.

The Intramural Department is administered by the Director of Intramurals, a supervisor representing each class, an IFC Athletic Chairman, Dormitory representatives (chosen by the Dean of Men), and the Intramural Editor of the Collegian.

The council shall interpret and enforce the rules and regulations, make additions and changes when necessary, rule on protests, develop a system of appropriate awards and in general advise the director.

Extramural Events

In addition to the regular schedule of men's intramural activities the campus champion in Touch Football and the campus champion in Basketball represent the University of Massachusetts in an annual game with the respective campus champions of the University of New Hampshire.

The inclusion of faculty members on teams and in tournaments is encouraged. Faculty groups may compete in the Independent Leagues and when possible will be scheduled to compete against other faculty groups.

The Department of Intramurals is always in need of qualified officials. Students who are interested should apply directly to the Intramural Office. Those who are selected receive $1.00 per hour for their services.

According to Coach Cobb, due to the efforts of the IFC and because of the sense of purpose that pervades fraternity life, there always is a fine host of fraternity teams in intramurals.

But this esprit de corps should also apply to dormitories. Dorms can and should have a purpose and a unity similar to that of the fraternities. Because of the relatively small percentage of male students in fraternities (about 35%) the key to the enjoyment of life on campus is the development of an esprit de corps in the dorms.

Identity with the dorms, believes Coach Cobb, an identity somewhat similar to that between a fraternity and its members, is the key to disciplinary problems on campus. The denial of certain varied activities to students and the pressure upon students to behave requires an outlet for the

(Continued on page 7)

Dorothy Nedle
LIBRARY

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 12 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1963

LIBRARY
OCT 15 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Curtis Requests Protestors Leave

Senate Membership Enlarged To Cope With Big Problems

by DON JOHNSON

By virtue of Senate approval of bill number S10, a motion for acceptance of the recent election results, Senate membership swelled to fifty-four last night, making this Senate the largest legislative body in UMass history, and a tacit implication, the one having to deal with the greatest problems. After a brief congratulatory speech by Senate President Jon Fife, the Senate was called to order and the regular meeting began in earnest.

The first order of business brought an abrupt end to the lightness that had been prevalent throughout the chamber. It was a motion to repeal the act which stipulates that each meeting of the Student Senate be opened with a brief prayer, offered by a Senator designated by the Student Senate President. Before the pros and cons had time to congregate on their respective sides of the fence, Senator James Watson (At Large '65) raised his voice in objection to consideration of the question, which is, in fact, an objection to having the motion recognized on the floor. A vote was taken on Senator Watson's objection, which requires a two thirds majority, but this was defeated. Senator Dave Mathieson (At Large '64) then moved that the Senate table the motion. This was passed and the bill was tabled for one week, when it will again come up for consideration.

THE FIRE WAS HARDLY out when President Jon Fife read the names of those Senators he had chosen to chairman the various committees; now, the President of the Senate has within his power the right to appoint, or to remove, the chairmen of all committees except Finance; that is, to appoint or remove with the advise and consent of the Senate: Immediately after the reading of the names, there was an objection to the chairman of the Activities Committee; an objection strong enough to warrant Senator Marilyn "Sam" Singer (Johnson) to remind the Senate that, "... it's time we stood behind our

(Continued on page 6)

Capt. Keliher '64 Advisor

by JANET CHARLES

Last evening the Senior Class Executive Committee was honored to have as a speaker their new Senior Class Advisor, Captain John Keliher of the R.O.T.C. As Captain Keliher stated, he does not have any specific plans as yet, but he definitely does have some feelings about the roll of the Senior Class here at UMass.: "I think that the Senior Class has a responsibility toward the student body as a whole—that of leadership. It should set a good example for the underclassmen and it should give its aid and support to the many activities here on campus."

Captain Keliher also feels that as a general rule, the graduating class has a tendency to lax off and to become "apathetic toward campus activities." It is his desire that the Class of 1964 will not follow this pattern, but rather that they will continue to do their best at all times.

One point of interest concerning his attitude toward the Senior Class is Captain Keliher's belief that more recognition should be given to the class as a whole, not just individually. Despite the enormous size of UMass. and the increasing rate of enrollment of students, Captain Keliher still thinks that special attention should be focused on these seniors, and that they should be singled out for their respective achievements, including the very fact that they are seniors!

(Continued on page 4)

International Club Holds Elections

The members of the International Club held election of officers Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Commonwealth Room of the Student Union. Those elected are:

President, Denys Voaden; Vice President, Arun Jhaveri; Treasurer, Mary Louise Apelian; Joint Secretaries, Claudette Cacciabeve, Valerie DuBois; Council Members, Brandford Giddings, Amr Ismail, Moso Motsete, K. Narayanaswami, Ganesh Chanmugam.

President Voaden said that the Club, of over 110 members of forty nationalities, 50% of whom are Americans, is looking for-

(Continued on page 5)

Two Protesting Apartheid Quit Field Hockey Match

by ELWIN McNAMARA

Two students protesting the policy of South Africa were "requested to leave" yesterday's women's field hockey game by Dean of Women Helen Curtis and Ruth Totman of the Women's Physical Education Dept. The game was between a team from South Africa and a local club.

Abdul Samma, former student senator and head of the International Club, was distributing leaflets protesting South Africa's apartheid policy when he was approached by Dean Curtis and told "not to do that here." He was then asked to leave the field by Miss Totman.

Samma stated that he was "surprised at the harsh words of Miss Totman." The former senator told the Collegian that, "if in this great democratic country, I cannot express my feelings, freely, what kind of impression can I carry back home.

"I came 8000 miles to witness democracy in action, in this great country. To me this was the saddest moment of my stay here, for the two administration officials to tell me not to distribute these leaflets."

Collegian reporter Don Johnson, a veteran of the civil rights struggle in the South was also approached, and asked to leave. Miss Totman told Johnson that distributing the leaflets would "cause trouble." Johnson added after that while Miss Totman said that it would cause trouble, she never stated how his would happen.

The leaflets were a reprint of a letter sent to President Lederle reading.

Our attention has been drawn to the impending game scheduled on the 10th of October, 1963 between the Hampshire Field Hockey Association and a team from the Republic of South Africa on the University playground. Two University of Massachusetts graduates are included on the HFHA team.

While we approve of the spirit of international sports, we cannot but register our strong protest at the willingness to make facilities available to the South African team, by a University with which we are closely associated. We also vehemently protest the reception for the visitors and a dinner in the Student Union sponsored by the Physical Education majors of the University of Massachusetts.

We hold that so long as the policy of apartheid is the goal of the South African government, all well-meaning Organizations

(Continued on page 6)

RESULTS OF '66 V-P ELECTION

John Parnell	139
Arnold Wolfson	104
Walter Gustavson	27
Write-Ins	2

MacNair Gives Hillel Lecture

by STEVE LEVINE

Last Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, the Hillel Lecture Series featured its second speaker, Luther Knight MacNair. MacNair, who for the past 14 years has served as executive secretary of the Massachusetts Civil Liberties Union, lectured on "The State of Civil Liberties Today."

At the opening of the discussion, MacNair described the nature and purpose of his organization and of the parent body, the American Civil Liberties Union. Both groups, operating on the theory that the Constitution must defend everyone or it defends no one, work to prevent any abridgement of any freedom granted by the Bill of Rights. Incidental to this work has been the defense of many individuals and organizations, some of which have been unpopular.

The demand of the organization is that Constitutional law be observed for all persons, no matter what their character or offenses might be.

MacNair discussed several laws that he feels are dangerous to civil liberties. Among such laws is the McCarren Act of 1950 which authorizes the Justice Department in time of emergency, to detain without trial anyone suspected of being subversive. He cited liberties in the nation's history.

At present, we are in a crucial period as regards civil liberties. The McCarthy period brought about a strong reaction on the part of rights groups. In the Negro Civil Rights drive, we are able to witness for the first time a great progressive force in action. The outcome of this struggle may provide the key to the future of American democracy.

'67 Ballot Papers Available At R.S.O.

Nomination papers for the class of '67 are available in the R.S.O. October 7, 1963 and are due back in the R.S.O. October 14, 1963.

As very few papers have gone out, it is urged that Freshmen take action.

Primaries:
Thursday, October 17, 1963

Finals:
Thursday, October 24, 1963

SIX CHARACTERS IN SEARCH OF AN AUTHOR — See review on page 6.

Understanding COLLEGIAN *Editorial Page Objectivity

PROTEST

by GEORGE M. MASSEDAM

Civil Rights has become an individual question with which each American must confront himself. No longer is it an abstract ideal mentioned in our constitution. No longer is it merely a Lockian maxim reflected in our Declaration of Independence. It is a question every individual must decide to live and coordinate in his every day life—or not to coordinate.

Yesterday afternoon at the invitation of the University, the South African Field Hockey Team played the Hampshire Field Hockey Association. A mimeographed letter to President Lederle, drawn up by a group of African and American students was being distributed as a pamphlet to the spectators of the game. The letter protested the invitation of the South African team and their use of University facilities, since they represent a government whose policy is that of apartheid. We understand the sensitivity of these students to the hateful policy of apartheid and we identify with them.

Dean Curtis, who was watching the game, approached the distributor, Abdul Samma, a foreign student prominent in student affairs at the University, and expressed her feelings, that she would hope that he would not continue to distribute these letters. She felt it was appropriate to have letters such as these drawn up, sent to President Lederle, and distributed to various sources. However, she thought this letter might cause unpleasantness for the women hockey players from South Africa. Miss Totman, Head of the Department of Women's Physical Education also asked an American student if he might stop distributing. Let it be said that we are conscious of the strong non-discriminatory policy Dean Curtis has set up in woman's housing, and that we are very proud to have it here at the University. As individuals Dean Curtis and Miss Totman had the right to ask these students to stop. And the students could have continued to distribute these letters. They didn't.

The central issue involved here is truly basic to the academic community. For here academic liberty and freedom of expression are the foundation of all scholarly pursuits and educational philosophy. These students were utilizing their freedom of expression. Their protest did not lie with these women playing hockey. Rather their protest was directed at the government this team represented. As long as the protesters acted gentlemanly and sincerely they should continue in their protest. For them to stop for the sake of social appeasement is violating the roots on which our institution is founded. Some of the African students are too acutely aware of the apartheid policy of South Africa (as we all should be) to let this situation occur without comment. Although we understand the concern of Dean Curtis and Miss Totman for the social unpleasantry that could have occurred for these hockey players from South Africa, we are also committed to the fact that sentiments concerning unequal relations between races must be voiced. Especially in the case of a country such as South Africa.

Dean Curtis and Miss Totman, as individuals, have the right to ask the protesters to stop. But as voices of the administration, their presence and feelings carries great influence. Influence over the protesters as members of the administration, not as individuals.

The freedom of expression is a treasured value. Let us hope that foreign students, American students, faculty, and administrators will never underestimate its importance in our way of life at the University, America, the world.

Harvesting Our Over-Production

by RAY WOODIS

President Kennedy's announcement of his decision to allow the sale of U.S. wheat to Russia and Communist nations of Eastern Europe came as no great surprise. The obvious economic advantages to this country overshadow the fears of opponents that by such sales we are indirectly contributing to the fulfillment of the Soviet claim, "We will bury you!"

The United States is at present holding 900 million bushels of surplus wheat, purchased from U.S. farmers at price support levels. At the world market price for wheat of $1.30 per bushel, $250 million worth of sales would eliminate one-fifth of the standing supply. The cost of storing this perishable monument to agricultural efficiency will be reduced, and that portion of the tax dollar diverted to more constructive endeavors.

U.S. dollars or gold will be demanded in the transactions all of which will be carried out through private agencies. Payment will be on "cash on delivery" basis or arranged "under normal commercial terms." The government will replenish dealers' supplies by sales from surplus stocks. The balance of trade deficit and drain on U.S. dollars will be reduced. Additional income for U.S. citizens will be realized by transporting the commodities on American ships.

As the President stated, it would indeed be foolish to prohibit direct sales of U.S. wheat. Friendly nations can buy our wheat, convert it into flour and resell it to Communist nations, thus reaping the profits of our over-abundance for themselves.

The sales are not unconditional. Shipments of wheat are expressly for use in Russia and the satellite nations of Czechoslavakia, Hungary and Bulgaria. Resale to Cuba and Communist China have been definitely ruled out. U.S. response to appeals for food from other countries has always been accompanied by requirements that the foodstuffs go where intended and that the recipient be aware of the origin of the product. Russia has agreed to meet these conditions. The appearance of U.S. wheat in Communist countries should prove to be an effective testimonial to agricultural production and technology under a system of free enterprise.

The United States has not entered into any new trade policies with the Soviet Union and the wheat deals do not reflect many changes or softening in our attitude toward Russia. The decision to sell U.S. wheat to Russia was made solely on economic considerations, advantageous to this nation, not on political contemplations.

SENATE

To the Editor:

With regard to last night's Senate meeting it is quite apparent that there is a misunderstanding on the part of many Senators with regard to my objection to President Fife's appointment of the Chairmanship of Activities Committee.

I in no way meant to slander or despoil the character of this appointment.

My main purpose was to object to this appointment as being, in my opinion, unqualified on the basis that I put forth last night. In this respect, I do not regret what I did or what I said. I am sorry, however, that my words carried a meaning that was never intended.

Under the prevailing conditions of that moment, having received no co-operation from other members in the Senate that might well have prevented such an incident, I felt it incumbent upon me to speak my mind. I believed I was right then—I went ahead. I still believe I'm right.

To my knowledge, this has never been done on the floor of the Senate in the past. Yet, the very fact that such an objection was raised on the floor leads me to believe there is some substance behind it. I am not at all alone in my belief.

It is unfortunate that most of the new Senators are unfamiliar with this appointment for they are not in a good position to form a fair, objective decision as to the qualifications or to the objections that were presented.

My only purpose was to do what I believed was right; to do what I believed was in the best interests of the Senate and the Student Body as a whole. Whether I am right or wrong is another point entirely.

I honestly hope I have clarified the situation and my intentions.

Sincerely,
Phil Howard '64
Senator—Mills

Senatorium

by MARK CHEREN

Let's pretend I'm a new student senator . . . .

My first meeting was last Wednesday night. I was sworn in by a ceremony which was so brief, I hardly had time to raise my right hand. But any doubts I might have had as to the sobriety of the organization were quickly dispelled. Mutual respect and obvious reserve are apparently demanded of veteran senators, and for the most part, they seem equal to that demand.

One thing comes across loud and clear. Jon Fife, the Senate President, is in control. While he may lose a battle now and then, it was evident that the Senate is looking to him for leadership, and he means to supply it. While he spoke from the chair, expressing his views freely, throughout the evening, a cardinal parlimentary sin, not a protest was heard from the body. It would appear they value his opinion.

As you learned on page one, the highlights of the evening were the motion to substitute meditation for the opening prayer; and the storm of protest which broke over the pro tem appointment of Bill Nichols to the Activities Committee chairmanship.

The Matheison-Howard meditation bill is basically a question of whether or not the Senate will go along with the spirits of the Supreme Court's decision regarding public prayer. The strong vote in favor of the objection to consideration raised by Senator Watson, makes passage seem doubtful; however a week's "meditation" might turn the tide.

While Howard's blast of Nichols was much too severe, support of his sentiments by other senators made it clear that a reasonable doubt exists as to Nichol's ability to chair a committee. As a result, he has but one week to prove he intends to be a creative leader in this position. Unless he comes out with something positive on the Senate floor next week, there promises to be strong objection to his permanent appointment. It seems unfair to force him, alone, of the appointments, to produce such rapid results; but at least it is assured that whoever chairs that committee will, for the rest of the year, be watched closely by the whole senate and important new legislation in the area of tidying up R.S.O. organization will be expected.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press: Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

Physotmous Phthariasis

Miscegenation

by SAM GORVINE

I PLEDGE ALLEGIANCE TO THE FLAG OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND TO THE REPUBLIC FOR WHICH IT STANDS.
ONE NATION, INDIVISIBLE, WITH LIBERTY AND JUSTICE FOR ALL WHITE PEOPLE.

Now that we have finished the customary salute to the flag and prayer to the Great White Father, let us open the discussion on a subject very dear to our hearts: Resolved: That White People are great and We ought to keep the Race pure.

Am I attacking the big bad south whom all good northerners hate for breaking the "law of the land" and causing so much trouble? No. I am talking to you, yankee protestant jew catholic immigrant northern white man! If any one asks, you are all for Civil Rights and Governor Wallace is a fool to oppose the power of the Federal Government. But what do you really think, liberal or conservative, or whatever you choose to call yourself, when you see a Negro with a white girl or vice versa? What do you think if your daughter comes home one day with a black man and said, "I want you to meet a good friend of mine, Daddy."

I don't have to write what you think. You know what you think. But do you know why you think so? No, not that stuff about social mores. People have to feel a crtain way about something before it becomes a more and then a law.

When your daughter brings home a Negro (if you are so fortunate to have a daughter with that much courage, or so unfortunate to have one that hates you that much) you are wondering if Mr. Jones across the street saw them together, because everyone knows that his daughter is engaged to a very promising Yale man.

As regards the purity of the race as a whole, everyone knows us White Folks are responsible for all the great religions of the world (the only ones that are right, anyway), all the technology, such as the Atom bomb, mass production of labor saving devices such as electric martini-stirrers and gas chambers; also for economic systems such as Capitalism which makes the poor poorer to help the rich, and Communism which makes the poor poorer on general principles.

It should be clear by now that the Caucasoid race is vastly superior and great care ought to be exercised to prevent contamination by inferiors.

A Thought

by DON JOHNSON

You are an American; you have been bred and born in the land of promise, the land of plenty. You and your relatives, fathers, and brothers, have fought for this country. —Yes, and in so doing many have died. You have stood by silently while your country has rightfully opened its arms to welcome foreigners, equally oppressed, in search of the freedom America promises, indeed, is.

You have a son, a baby boy. No crime in being a baby boy, is there? Jesus was a baby too, once, wasn't he? But the truth is, Mr. American, that there IS a difference between the Jesus baby and your baby.

You say that your baby is no different? Look again, Mr. American, look and know that if your baby grows up to be a man, he will suffer as the Jesus baby never did.

Look again, Mr. American, your baby is a Negro.

The Dave Brubeck Quartet Feature Of '63 Homecoming

THE DAVE BRUBECK QUARTET

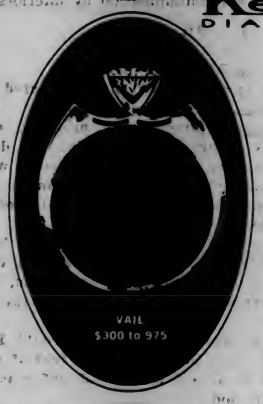
Homecoming Weekend 1963 will conclude with the sounds of jazz featuring the Dave Brubeck Quartet. The Brubeck concert will be presented Sunday afternoon, October 20 in Curry Hicks Cage at 2:00 p.m. This event is being sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity with all proceeds to benefit the University Art Acquisition Fund.

Dave Brubeck is the symbol of progressive jazz and his group has been awarded both national and international acclaim. The quartet consists of Brubeck at piano, Paul Desmond, alto sax, Joe Morello, a native boy born in Springfield, on drums, and Gene Wright on bass. The quartet has been seen often on television and is well known to college students for their recorded experiments in polyrhythms featuring the "Time" series.

The University Art Acquisition Fund, for which this concert is a benefit, has as its goal the procurement of a collection of origional art works for study and exhibition making a proud addition to the projected Fine Arts Center and contributing to the culture and prestige of our university.

Tickets for the Brubeck Concert will be on sale daily from 10:00 to 4:00 at the Student Union ticket window beginning October 9. The price will be $1.50 per ticket.

Keepsake
DIAMOND RINGS



For Style Quality and Value

True artistry is expressed in the brilliant fashion styling of every Keepsake diamond engagement ring. Each setting is a masterpiece of design, reflecting the full brilliance and beauty of the center diamond . . . a perfect gem of flawless clarity, fine color and meticulous modern cut.

Authorized Keepsake Jewelers may be listed in the Yellow Pages. Visit one in your area and choose from many beautiful styles, each with the name "Keepsake" in the ring and on the tag.

HOW TO PLAN YOUR ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING

Please send two new booklets, "How to Plan Your Engagement and Wedding" and "Choosing Your Diamond Rings," both for only 25¢. Also send special offer of beautiful 44 page Bride's Book.

Name_____

Address_____

City_____ Co._____ State_____

KEEPSAKE DIAMOND RINGS, SYRACUSE 2, NEW YORK, 13202

Amherst Community Opera Prepares 'Il Trovatore' For Verdi's Birthday

The 1963 production by Amherst Community Opera, Verdi's "Il Trovatore", on October 18 and 19 at Amherst Regional High School will be of particular interest to the University of Massachusetts as a number of University people are participating in this annual community undertaking.

The role of Leonora in this anniversary presentation, honoring the birth of Giuseppe Verdi 150 years ago, is taken by Dorothy Ornest Feldman, a voice and piano teacher at the University.

Stage director for "Il Trovatore" is Mrs. Feldman's sister, Naomi Ornest (Mrs. William Yokel) of New York. Mrs. Yokel is the permanent director of Actors' Opera in New York and also directs opera at the Henry Street Music School. For "Il Trovatore" she has evolved a new concept for coping with the numerous changes of scene: a unit set, similar to Shakespearian theater.

Playing in the orchestra for his second season will be William C. Venman, assistant to the provost. Singing in the chorus are a number of University people: Dean Allen, Prof. Joseph Langford, Mr. and Mrs. William Rice. Mrs. Bruce Archibald has been serving as a rehearsal accompanist, and Mrs. Mary Troxell as Wardrobe Mistress. Prof. Albert Madeira is stage-manager; Mrs. Madeira is in charge of make-up.

Those thinking of attending "Il Trovatore" are advised to obtain their reserved seats as soon as possible. They may be obtained in person in the lobby of Jones Library auditorium Mondays through Fridays from 2 to 4 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 8 p.m. Mail orders may be sent to: AMCOP, Amherst. All seats are $2.00.

Courses In Religious Literature

The United Christian Foundation has outlined a varied study program of religious literature for the fall semester, according to Rev. Thomas R. Frazier, resident theologian.

One of the three courses offered is a critical introduction to the Bible. Part I, Old Testament, will be taught by Mr. Frazier starting Wednesday, Oct. 16, at 12:20 p.m. in the Lobby of Memorial Hall. The Protestant Chaplain's staff will assist Mr. Frazier in a course of study of the book For the Light of the World.

An Inquiry Program is open to all upperclassmen with at least a 2.0 average, and will examine problems of society seen through the eyes of literary artists. Those participating in this course will read a number of books, attend a weekly lecture, and weekly seminar. Starting Oct. 15, Mr. Frazier will lecture for this course on Tuesday evenings at 7 p.m. in Machmer E-15.

Students who would like more information may contact Mr. Frazier, 12 Old Chapel, or the Protestant Chaplain's Office in the Student Union Building. Students intending to take these courses are asked to register at the Protestant Chaplain's Office.

Kicking Off The Season

OPENING A NEW STEAK HOUSE IN THE AREA

Lamp Lighter Steak House

ON ROUTES 5 & 10 • WHATELY, MASS.

(15 Minute Drive from Campus)

Featuring ★ STEAKS ★ LOBSTERS

Cocktails

"Start Early" Suggests Safety Officer

One of the most frightening experiences a driver can have, short of an accident, is a near miss. Frequently, only a fraction of an inch stands between a motorist and disaster.

Motor vehicle laws intend to provide the motorist and pedestrian with a comfortable margin of safety, thus assuring safe arrival if they are complied with. Campus Safety Officer Edmund Goetzl asks motorists to start early enough to arrive at their destination without exceeding the speed limit of 20 m.p.h. while on campus.

Motorists are also reminded of seven key rules to keep in mind while driving:

1. Keep speed down, so that you have complete control of the vehicle at all times.
2. Stay far enough behind the vehicle ahead so that you can stop without running into it; at least one car length for every 10 m.p.h.
3. Signal when you intend to turn or stop.
4. Obey traffic signs and signals.
5. Watch out for pedestrians—especially at crosswalks. Be alert for jaywalkers.
6. Be sure the road is clear before you pull out of a parked position. Be sure there is enough clearance before backing into a parking space.
7. If you drink, don't drive. If you drive, don't drink.

UM Grad Authors Book

An early graduate of the University of Massachusetts, Harrison M. Tietz, is author of a new book.

Dr. Tietz—who took his B.S. in 1921, his M.S. in 1923 and his Ph.D. in 1928, all from the University of Massachusetts—was a professor at Penn. State University for 34 years before accepting his current post at Howard Payne College in Brownwood, Texas, as professor of biology.

His new book, Illustrated Keys to Families of North American Insects, is scheduled for publication late this summer by Burgess Publishing Company, Minneapolis.

GERMAN NATIVE

Available for Conversation.

Call AL 3-5728 Evenings

GREEK PAGE

by SANDI MAY '64

The Panhellenic Chorus, composed of two members from each of the sororities has performed at Round Robins and the Inter-Sorority Declamation. The Chorus slags a song from each of the sororities.

Motar Boards Attend Conference At UNH

The Mortar Boards participated in a District Convention of the National Mortar Board Society on Saturday, Oct. 5 at the U. of New Hampshire.

The Mortar Boards who were in attendance from UMass were Pat Stankiewicz, Linda Schechterle, Judy Rosenthal, Judy Clark, Nancy Andrade, and Bev Botelho.

Five schools in the New England States were represented in th District Workshop in addition to UMass: Cornell, UConn, UVermont, Middlebury, and UNH.

Each school discussed a particular topic, among which subjects were Mortar Board service, scholarship, and its future.

At the Workshop the Mortar Boards shared ideas and discussed a new aspect of service which will hopefully come into effect soon: the service of aiding the students in a more cultural and thought-provoking manner.

Through this service, the Image of the Mortar Board Society on campus would take on a new and fuller meaning. Such projects as editorials and sponsored trips to cultural performances would enable the Mortar Boards to reach the Student Body on a more personal level.

Captain Jack ...

(Continued from page 1)

As Senior Class Advisor, Captain Keliher strongly stressed the point that he plans to stay in the background as much as possible, and work through and with the class officers. He feels that the leadership belongs in the hands of the class officers and that he should only be involved in behind-the-scenes activities.

Captain Keliher is a graduate of the University of California and he has been serving with the U. S. Army for seven years.

Reminder For Panhellenic Round Robins

The Panhellenic Council wishes to remind the girls going on Round Robins this Sunday that the schedule will be as follows: last week's 1:00 p.m. group will meet again at 1:00 p.m. in the Student Union, the second group will meet at 3:00 p.m. in the Student Union.

The Council wishes to express its thanks to all those participating in the Declamation. The winners were: first place, Beverly Botelho, KAT; second place, Deena Ferrigno, AXO; tied for third place were Frances Rae Castine, IGU, and Lynette Arcasdi, SK.

PINNINGS

Pam Ellson, Ludlow, to Jerry Whelchel, SAE.

Lynne Knubbe, IGU, to Rick Kilham, PDT, Boston University.

Carolyn Hulton, SSS, to Bob Milkey, KT, Amherst College.

Mary Wilcox, LDP, to Bob Elder, PMD.

Sharon Hartnett, St. Vincents Hospital, Worcester, Mass., to Bill Rorand, TKE.

ENGAGEMENTS

John Soares, Mills House, to Lois Consolini, Springfield, Mass.

Carol Rose, IGU, to William Edmunds, American Institute of Banking.

Priscilla Bradway, SK, to Lawrence Tassenari, Munson, Mass.

SORORITY NEWS

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

The latest word around Van Meter these days is: "Alpha Chi is building a house." As many around campus have noticed, most of the Alpha Chi's returned to school this September as residents of Van Meter's Penthouse (5th and 6th floors), while awaiting the completion of our new home. Our modern contemporary house, being built on Nutting Avenue, is to be completed in early January. Our new home will house sixty sisters plus having the dining facilities for everyone. Needless to say, we are all a little anxious and quite excited.

With initiation a few weeks ago, we proudly welcomed three new sisters: Carol Atwood, Diane LaFrance, and Sharon Merrill.

The victory of Saturday's game, over Bucknell was spurred on by the enthusiasm of our new cheerleader, Mary Jane White.

Congratulations are extended to our new Musigal, Linda Willis; and our new Naiad, Sharon Merrill. And finally congratulations go to Deena Ferrigno who did a fine job in the Pan-Hellenic Declamation with her selection from Thornton Wilder's "By the Skin of our Teeth". Thanks, Dee, for giving us a second place.

LAMBDA DELTA PHI

The sisters of Lambda Phi would like to officially welcome Mrs. Langlois as a new advisor to our Chapter. We appreciated having Mrs. Langlois and Miss May Alden of the Student Union Staff as our recent dinner guests. It was most enjoyable.

We would also like to welcome back our cook, Mrs. Carrie James, after a long absence because of illness.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

While the Tri Sigmas were redecorating their newly acquired house, one of the sisters, Laurie Niemgski, was chosen in Boston to represent District I in the Polish National Alliance Convention. For three days, she remained in Philadelphia competing against seven other finalists. She came back wtih many memories of that wonderful experience.

Many thanks are extended to the brothers of Lambda Chi Alpha and Phi Mu Delta for their enjoyable exchanges. At these events, the sisters introduced their charming house mother, Mrs. Alice Drake, to the brothers.

Presently the Sigma Sigma Sigma are busily preparing for the Homecoming Weekend and for their Chapter Inspection.

Beverly Botelho Wins Sorority Declamation

Once again UMass sorority life came into the spotlight as each of the ten houses gathered to compete for honors in this year's Panhellenic Declamation.

Chairman of the competition for the Panhellenic Council, Barbara Farrell, gave the introduction by explaining the purpose and future plans for the declamation. Some of the changes expected to come to the council include a Jr. Panhellenic program for pledging and greater attempts in improving relations between sororities.

The three judges who were assigned the task of deciding the best dramatic performance were Miss Audrey Duckert of the English department, Richard Strongren and Mr. Arthur Niedeck, both of the Speech department. Each performance, six minutes in length, was evaluated 40 points for quality of interpretation, 20 points for choice of selection, 20 points for visual attributes, and 20 points for auditory attributes.

The subject matter formed a variety of famous works from T. S. Elliot's, The Hollow Men, to Thornton Wilder's By the

(Continued on page 6)

Greet the shirt with an Oxford education by ARROW

Any scholar will appreciate this new Decton oxford shirt... the latest graduate to the world of wash-and-wear by ARROW. A blend of 65% Dacron* polyester and 35% cotton... it outlasts all cotton shirts. From that famous button-down collar to the back button and back pleat, it's University Fashion at its best. Tapered to trim you down, "Sanforized-Plus" labeled to ensure a lasting fit, Decton oxford comes in white, colors and British stripes. Short sleeves as illustrated only $5.95

*DuPont T.M. for its polyester fiber

The Showplace of Pioneer Valley

NORTHAMPTON'S ACADEMY

AT THE GATES OF THE COLLEGE

SEE IT NOW!

EXCLUSIVE AREA SHOWING!

Mat. At 2:00 P. M. Eve. at 8 P. M.

• Sunday Evening At 7:30 •

BEST PICTURE OF THE YEAR!

ACADEMY AWARD WINNER

LAWRENCE OF ARABIA

All Matinees 90c

Sun. Thru Thurs. Evenings $1.25

Children Anytime 50c

Musicale

Saturday, Oct. 12 DeFalla: Dances from the "Three Cornered Hat." (Feidler/Boston Pops)

Sunday, Oct. 13 Beethoven: Sym. No. 4 in B-Flat, Op. 60 (Toscanini/NBC Sym.) Wienlawski: Concerto No. 2 in D Minor, Op. 22 (Heifetz/Solomon/RCA Sym.); Beethoven: Sym. No. 2 in E-Flat, Op. 55 "Eroica" (Toscanini/NBC).

Monday, Oct. 14 Ravel: Valses Nobels at Sentimentales (A. Iturbi); Chausson: Poeme (Francescatti/Ormandy); Debussy: Petite Suite; Satie: Trois Morceau en Forme de Poire; Chabrier: Trois Valses; Faure: Dolly (Robert and Gaby Casadesus); Debussy: Claire de Lune (Ormandy).

Tuesday, Oct. 15 Grieg: Sonata No. 3 in C Minor, Op. 45 (Rachmaninoff / Kresier); Korngold: Violin Concerto in D, Op. 35 (Heifetz/Wallenstein/Los Angeles Phil.); Beethoven: Coriolan Overture. Op. 62 (Munch/BSO); Prokofiev; Sym. No. 6 in E-Flat Minor-Major, Op. 111 (Ormandy)

Wednesday, Oct. 16 Brahms: Lullaiy: (Distrakh); Grofe: Grand Canyon Suite (Feidler/Boston Pops); Tchaikovsky: Francesca da Rimini. Op. 32 Munch/BSO); Brahms: Sym. No. 1 in C Minor. Op. 68 (Munch/BSO).

Thursday, Oct. 17 Bach: Partita No. 1 in B-Flat Major (Gould); Mozart: Serenade No. 10 in B-Flat Major for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361 Craft/Columbia Sym.); Bach: Sonata No. 1 for Solo Violin in G Minor (Silverstein); Beethoven: Quartet No. 13 in B-Flat Major (Budapest String Quartet).

On Saturday night every week on WMUA, there is a three-hour program of classical music, one up by calling in requests. Be

(Continued on page 6)

Scholarships, Fellowships Now Available

By Oleh Pawluk "65"

The Placement and Financial Aid Services at the University recently announced that there are currently a number of scholarships and fellowships available to qualified students.

First of all, there are Marshall Scholarships which consist of awards for study in Great Britain. Interested students should consult Professor William B. Nutting of the Zoology Department in room 328 of Morrill Science Center by October 20, 1963.

Woodrow Wilson Fellowships, requiring a recommendation by a faculty member, are also available at the present time. A sincere desire to become a college instructor is a prerequisite for these fellowships. Applicants must ask a faculty member to recommend them to Professor Thomas O. Wilkinson of the Sociology Department.

In addition to the Woodrow Wilson Fellowships, application papers may also be obtained for Danforth Fellowships from Professor John T. Conlon, in room 227 of Draper Hall. The deadline for the Danforth Fellowships is October 25.

Several more fellowships are being offered and for further information students are urged to visit the Officers of Placement and Financial Aid Services in Machmer Hall.

Lost and Found

LOST: A Micronta slide rule in leather case. If found please return to Carol Hermsdorf, 320 Knowiton.

LOST: Two rings and one watch in the Men's PE Building. Please return to Carlos Inaclo, 420 Brett.

LOST: A green and plaid reversible jacket somewhere on campus. Please call Richard Roman, 433 Baker.

LOST: One maroon and white ski parka ($30). Taken from outside of Machmer 37 W. Contact Joe Melanson, 208 Plymouth House.

LOST: Black rimmed glasses in a dark brown leather clip case. If found please contact Robert Zuckerman, 415 Wheeler House.

ERASE WITHOUT A TRACE
ON EATON'S CORRĀSABLE BOND

Touch-type, hunt-and-peck, type with one hand tied behind your back—it's easy to turn out perfect papers on Corrāsable. Because you can erase without a trace. Typing errors disappear like magic with just the flick of an ordinary pencil eraser. There's never a telltale erasure mark on Corrāsable's special surface.

Corrāsable is available in light, medium, heavy weights and Onion Skin. In convenient 100-sheet packets and 500-sheet ream boxes. Only Eaton makes Corrāsable.

A Berkshire Typewriter Paper

EATON PAPER CORPORATION (E) PITTSFIELD, MASS.

Student Leaders Attend SWAP This Weekend

Amherst, Mass. — Student leaders, faculty members and administrators from the University of Massachusetts will meet this Friday and Saturday, Oct. 11 and 12, at Mt. Snow, Vt., for the school's 1963 Student Workshop Activities Participation (SWAP) conference.

Conference participants will be generally concerned with the role of individual leaders in overcoming problems of the rapidly-growing University.

Four discussion groups will use the workshop approach to talk about campus communications, extra-curricular activities, the relationship between the University and the people of the Commonwealth, and the part played by faculty members in extra-curricular activities.

John W. Haigis of Greenfield, a member of the UMass Board of Trustees, will speak following dinner Friday evening. Haigis will talk on the trustees' plans for the University.

Dr. H. Leland Varley, professor of English and director of honors at UMass, will be the main speaker on Saturday evening.

University President John W. Lederle, Provost Gilbert L. Woodside, Dean of Students William F. Field and Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences I. Moyer Hunsberger, will be among the University officials present at the conference.

All plans for the SWAP conference were made by a student committee.

UM Hosts 400 Debaters From Mass. High Schools

More than 400 debaters from 21 Massachusetts public, private and parochial high schools will meet at the University of Massachusetts this Saturday, Oct. 12, for a one-day symposium on the 1963-64 general debate proposition concerning the desirability of federally-aided medical care.

The debaters will have two sessions Saturday—one from 10 a.m. to noon, one from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Both will be held in the auditorium of Bartlett Hall.

The symposium will be sponsored by the University's department of speech. Prof. Bruce Morris of the department of economics at UMass, Prof. Colston Warne of Amherst College's economics department, and Dr. David W. Wallwork of North Andover, former president of the Massachusetts Medical Society, will discuss three medical-care debate propositions and answer participants' questions.

Prof. Morris, a member of the UMass faculty since 1948, teaches several labor-economics courses that deal extensively with the Social Security system and related matters.

Prof. Warne has directed the work of Consumers Union, an organization that has made many studies of medical care problems in the U.S.

Dr. Wallwork, a Harvard graduate and former president of Lawrence General Hospital, is currently secretary of the State Board of Registration in Medicine and a delegate to the American Medical Association's house of delegates.

The arrangements for the debate program have been made by Jay Savereid, assistant professor of speech at UMass.

Debaters will come from the following high schools: So. Hadley; Shrewsbury; Keith Academy; Quincy; Chicopee; Danvers; Silver Lake Regional; Westfield Academy; St. Joseph's, Pittsfield; Notre Dame, Fitchburg; Cathedral, Springfield; Grafton; Precious Blood, Holyoke; Northampton; Chelmsford; Frontier Regional, So. Deerfield; Catholic Memorial, Roxbury; Norwood; Winchester; Thayer Academy, Braintree; and Braintree.

Tues: Lecture On Plautus' Comedy

As as part of the University Theatre program, a public talk will be given Tuesday, in conjunction with the upcoming presentation of the Roman comedy, The Twin Menaechmi.

The talk, on Plautus' Perpetual Principles of Comedy, will be given by Professor Betty Quinn of the Department of Classics at Mount Holyoke College, and a noted authority in this field.

The play, which will be staged the evenings of October 17, 18 and 19 in Bowker Auditorium, deals with events that occur when twin brothers are mistaken for each other by one's wife, courtesan, father-in-law, parasite and a host of characters.

The lecture will be given Tuesday, October 15, at 8 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium. The public is urged to attend.

CREPE PAPER
STREAMERS CONFETTI

A. J. Hastings
Inc.
NEWSDEALER & STATIONER
So. Pleasant St. — Amherst

Pemple, Harvey Top Bridge Club

There were twelve tables at the Thursday evening game, October 3rd. Eight rounds were played. Therefore top was seven points and average 63. for N-S and 56 for E-W

The results:

NORTH-SOUTH

1st Pemple & Harvey 80½ pts.
2nd Crawford & Baxter 75½
(for the third time)
3rd Smart & Bowman 73
(for the second time)
4th Auger & Konsevich 71
5th Kraft & Blinn 68½

EAST-WEST

1st Lidman & H. Cowles 76
2nd Maltz & Burgress 67½
3rd Andrew & Oaks 66½
4th Misiaszek & Horvitz 64½
5th David & Gentry
Smart (Mrs. & Walker) 62

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn
Breakfast — 50¢
Lunch — 50¢ up
THE OPEN HEARTH
STEAKHOUSE
BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

Club Directory

CANTERBURY ASSOCIATION
A panel discussion will be held on Sunday, Oct. 13, at 6 p.m. at Grace Church. Come with questions. Refreshments.

DAMES CLUB
Meeting on Mon., Oct. 14, in the S. U. at 8:15 p.m., with Dr. Julian F. Janowitz as guest speaker.

EDWARDS FELLOWSHIP
Open house on Sun., Oct. 13, at the Fellowship House, 263 Sunset Ave. Groups leave Arnold and Hills at 7 p.m.

FLORICULTURE CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 15, at French Hall. Speaker will be Stanley Gray from Flion Plastics Co.

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
Meeting on Fri., Oct. 11, at 7 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S. U. Gil Hunter, geographer at Clark U., will speak.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Supper meeting on Sun., Oct. 13, at 6 p.m. Rev. Thomas Frazier, resident theologian, will speak on "Contemporary Trends in Christian Ethics." Rides leave Arnold dorm at 5:50 p.m.

PRE-MED CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in Morrill Aud. Dr. James W. Bartlett, assistant dean of Rochester School and Dentistry, will speak on medical and dental school admissions.

RUSSIAN CLUB
Meeting on Mon., Oct. 14, at 7 p.m. in the Worcester room of the S. U. Anyone interested is welcome.

WESLEY FOUNDATION
Celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Wesley Foundations begins at 4 p.m. on Sun., Oct. 13, at the Thompson House.

International Club ...

(Continued from page 1)

ward to a successful year, continuing to promote the friendly exchange of foreign scholars through social functions and to present cultures of foreign countries. He added that the main social function of the club, the weekly coffee hour, to which everyone is invited, will be continued to generate self confidence and to give the foreign students the opportunity to meet Americans. It will also continue its weekly dancing class for beginners.

The only other social function planned as yet, is the sponsoring of the United Nations Week Dance, October 26, 1963 in the Student Union Ballroom.

Bike Rentals And Sale Aid Scholarship Fund

The Student Union Program Council would like to thank the Students and Faculty of the University of Massachusetts for the contributions they have made toward the Loans and Scholarship funds. The Program Council has turned over all the proceeds from the Registration Dance, the bike rentals, and bike auction held October 1 to Mr. David Lawrence, Assistant Director of Placement and Financial Aid Services.

The following is a breakdown of the funds:

Bike Rentals	$160.00
Registration Dance	784.88
Bike Auction	408.50
Total	$1,353.38

Declamation ...

(Continued from page 4)

Skin of Our Teeth. Winning first place was Kappa Alpha Theta's Beverly Botelho with her interpretation of John Brown's Body by Stephen Vincent Benet. Beverly described a young girl's desire for a mirror as she was kept in a virtual prison made by the Civil War and the "hiders" seeking it. With understanding she described the girl's confusion as she came upon a starved and wounded Union soldier. As the soldier healed in her family's home, her mixed emotions of wonder and desire to experience the war contested with her more practical and real need of a mirror.

Taking second place was Alpha Chi Omega's Deena Ferrigno who performed By the Skin of Our Teeth by Thornton Wilder. It was an amusing view of the perils and hardshihps of the entertainment world, as well as a parody on the "typical" social-climbing American family.

Tying for third place were Iota Gamma Upsilon's Frances Rae Castine with A Summer in the Country by David L. Wright and Sigma Kappa's Lynette Arcardi with So Long, Brother by Edna Means. The first of these was amusing and moving as it described the death of a childhood and of a love set in the natural beauty of the southern wilds. The second was a delightful performance of the problems arising from a brother's leaving the family for the army. It is translated through a closed car window by an exuberant and captivating younger sister.

'Il Travatore' On WMUA

This we feel is an impressive total, and therefore, we thank you for the intereest you have shown.

Beginning Sunday night, October 13 and continuing until Thursday night, October 17, Musicale, a weekly night two hour show of classical music will present a special tape of the upcoming opear, Il Trovatore by Verdi to be given Friday and Saturday nights, October 18 and 19 at the Amherst Regional High School.

This tape contains Dorothy Feldman and Margaret Loomis singing the aria from the second scene of the first act. All are urged to hear this interesting and informative preview to the weekend production.

A Review

Pirandello—Excellent, Depressing

by EVE MARCUS

"Each of us believes ourselves to be one person—but it's not true . . . . " This introvertial line was heard Wednesday night in the crowded S.U. Ballroom, at the first Distinguished Visitors program of the year. The Circle In the Square off-Broadway theatre company played the very arousing Pirandello play, "Six Characters in Search of an Author" to an intrigued and enthusiastic audience.

The title of the play gives a skeletal summary of the plot. Act I begins as eight actors arrive casually. Finally the Director appears, William Young, a wonderfully humorous actor, playing a nervous and slightly effeminate role. He tells the audience that "this is a rehearsal." The "rehearsal" becomes slapstick for a few minutes. Then suddenly the actors stand aside, shocked, and six statue-like humans, dressed in black, stand family-groupish, before the audience. The Father introduces himself and them all as Characters, in search of an author.

His Stepdaughter, Irene Baird, violently pushes him aside. She claims to have the most accurate and horrible story, having been made a prostitute by and to her stepfather to support her family. She declaims her woe with fantastic, energy and emotion throughout the performance.

The Mother of the story, Elizabeth Moore, portrayed well, with her weakness, grief, horror, eternal suffering over the death of her lover, murder of her two young children, guilt in her daughters profession, and anguished love for her psychotic son, played emotionally by James Valentine.

These agonized characters hang in the midst of a horrible existence and cannot die. The father says, "It's unjust that our whole existence is based on one fleeting moment of eternity." The play becomes full with these philosophical double - entendres, between the character and the actors.

The Characters finally persuade the Director to be author for their play, their lives. Thus the second act begins. The Actors try to perform the scenes as the Characters relive them. This brings opportunity for philosophical argument: "One person can't get into another . . . ."

The Characters resent the Actors' attempts at "interpreting" and "distorting" their story. The frustration of putting on this "illusion of reality" builds with rhythm and extreme tension.

The peak of the third act, all terror and sorrow, and no comedy, brings the Father to say to the Director, "You have no reality at all. Your so-called reality turns to illusion through time." The very end of the play seemed suddenly to falter. The usually comic Director, left alone on the stage, after the Characters have vanished, isn't comic anymore, but can't break the mood by talking to the audience, so his soliloquy of sorrow goes a little flat.

The production was expertly directed, by Byron Ringland, the acting lively and on the whole excellent. Thanks to the aid of the University Theatre Guild the lighting was smooth and professional. The play provided a thoroughly enjoyable evening — though a bit depressing if you thought about it.

Musicale ...

(Continued from page 5)

which you, the listener, makes sides the one work programmed regularly in the Collegian there will be ample time for members in the audience to call 545-2425 and to request music classical in nature.

All listeners are invited to participate in this special program of requested classical music Saturday nights at 7 p.m. on WMUA, 91.1 FM.

Two Protesting ...

(Continued from page 1)

and Institutions should show their distaste of this inhuman practice by refraining from fraternizing with South Africa in any way.

May we once again reiterate that we are not so much against the spirit of the game as against an avowed policy of apartheid.

Senate ...

(Continued from page 1)

president . . . stop haggling and start working."

New Senators looked bewildered, and old ones chose sides. Senator Al McNamara (Commuter) moved to divide the question, a measure that would have allowed the Senate to vote on each individual appointment; however, President Fife dissented, stating as his reason that, ". . . all the appointments are relative to each other." This decision was appealed, and again refused. A vote of confidence on behalf of the Senate President was called for and approved; a vote of confidence on his appointments was approved. The appointments, all pro-tem until the Senate elects its officers, were finally realized by Executive Order of President Jon Fife.

Under the heading of Special Business was consideration of two bills sponsored by Finance Committee Chairman Ross Jones (Brett). The bills provide a $350.00 appropriation toward purchase of furniture for the new Senate office and for Senate appropriation of the Budget submitted by the U.N. Week Committee.

NOTICES

CAESURA

Caesura manuscripts are needed. Leave in Box 104 in the R.S.O. Office. Poems, stories, and essays may be submitted.

HILLEL

Friday evening services will be held in the Middlesex Room of the S.U. at 7 p.m.

NAIADS

There will be optional practice Tues., Oct. 15, at 7:30 p.m. for all senior Nalads interested in working on stunts.

A regular meeting will be held for Sr. Naiads Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. in the W.P.E. Pool. Jr. Naiads will meet in the pool Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

NEWMAN CLUB

The Newman Club will hold a "Massacre UConn" dance tonight at the Center. Music will be provided by the band of Paul Collins. There will be a charge of 50¢ for non-members. Members will be admitted free.

An open retreat conducted by the Rev. Richard Butler, O.P., will start next Monday, Oct. 14, at 7 p.m. at the Center. There will also be a conference each day at 5:15 p.m.

NORTH CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Beginning next Sunday, students who wish to attend the North Congregational Church can secure rides from in front of Hills House as well as in front of Arnold House. Cars will leave from 10:30 to 10:50 a.m. each Sunday, exclusive of vacation periods, during the school year.

SMORGASBORD SUPPER

A public Smorgasbord Supper will be served in the Masonic Hall on Main St. in Amherst Sunday evening from 5 to 7 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door.

S.U. PUBLICITY COMMITTEE

There will be an open meeting of the Publicity Committee at 6:45 p.m. October 16 in the Worcester Room of the S.U. All those interested are welcome.

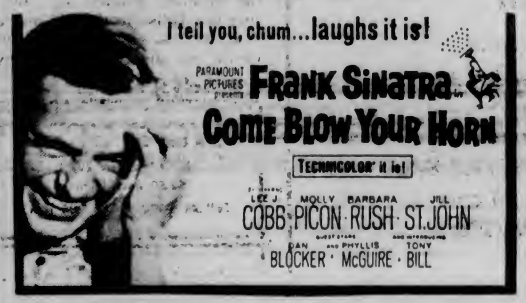
WMUA

On Sunday at 7 p.m. WMUA will present a history lecture covering the material presented in History 5. This week's lecture will be presented by Mr. Williams of the History Dept. and will be on "Ancient Rome".

CO-REC NIGHT

There will be a Co-Rec night this Friday evening at 7:30 p.m. at the Wo. P.E. Building. There will be swimming, volleyball, and badminton.

SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS
AMHERST Cinema
—NOW - - Showing Ends Sat.—



Sun. — "CONDEMNED OF ALTONA" Sophia Loren
Wed., Oct. 16 — It's "MONDO CANE"

MUTUAL
FOR STUDENT NEEDS
Zenith Radio
Alarm Clocks
Curtain Rods
Window Shades
Window Screens
Towel Bars
Sports Goods
Tools
Gifts
Extension Cords
Bulbs
Clothes Racks
MUTUAL Plumbing & Heating Co.
63 S. Pleasant Amherst

U. of M. Charms
Trophies
Giftware
Keepsake Diamonds
Clocks
Watch Repair
Free Engraving & Soldering
on any purchase made at:
SHERMAN JEWELERS
FOR THE PERSONAL TOUCH!
134 Main St., Northampton, Mass.
JU 4-4029

ART SUPPLIES & ART GALLERY
AMHERST PAINT & WALLPAPER COMPANY

Freshmen Football To Start Play Sat.

by RALPH PROLMAN '67

Tomorrow morning the freshman football team opens its season against Manlius Prep. For the last three weeks the team has been practicing every other day in preparation for its opening contest. Freshman Coach Fred Glatz is hoping to upset Manlius for the second straight year.

Coach Glatz does not believe that this year's freshman club will have as good a record as last year's, but is hoping to develop some good players for the future At the present time the team is hampered by injuries to some key lineman, but hopes to switch some players from the backfield, where the team is deep, to the line.

So far the team has held only ten practices and the inexperience is expected to show against their opponents who have been practicing every day. The reason for this small number of practices is that Coach Glatz wants the squad to be able to keep up with its studies.

Some of the players who have looked good in practice and may be heard from in the Manlius game are Al Carusoe, a real take charge quarterback and a real student of the game; Jim Lockhart, 6'0", 225 lb. fullback with good speed; Rich Qualey, a 6'0" 205 lb. end who is a good receiver but could be better if he cut his playing weight; and Bob Santucci, a 5'11", 205 lb. guard who is one of the most aggressive linemen on the squad.

Coach Glatz believes the opener against Manlius will be a tough one, and about the season he said, "It looks like a long year."

So this Saturday's game against Manlius should be a brutal, exciting grudge match with the Cadets eagerly trying to avenge last year's loss.

MANAGER

Any student interested in applying for freshmen basketball manager please contact Coach Jack Leaman in Room 9 of the Men's Physical Education Building any afternoon—1 to 3 p.m.

LIBERAL ARTS

ALL DEGREE LEVELS NEEDED

- Analytic Research
- Language Program
- Computer Programming
- Mathematics
- Statistics

ALL ACADEMIC MAJORS

Training in Specialized Techniques are Provided by NSA

Liberal Arts Majors (except mathematicians) are required to take the

PROFESSIONAL QUALIFICATION TEST

given on

26 October and 7 December 1963

Applications for 26 October tests MUST BE IN NOT LATER THAN 14 OCTOBER.

See your COLLEGE PLACEMENT OFFICER now for a Test Bulletin containing further details. Since no test is required for math majors, they should contact their college placement officer for an interview with an NSA representative.

National Security Agency

WASHINGTON D.C. AREA

An Equal Opportunity Employer

Baker Football

Two years ago, Baker's Intramural Football Team won the campus championship; last year, their league championship; and this year, they are on their way to win it again. The high-spirited Baker Boys feel confident that they will promptly subdue any opposition placed before them.

Their best game was their first shut out of the current season. Baker blanketed Hills North 18-0. The offense sparked under the capable leadership of quarterback Al Doblin. Utilizing the capabilities of his two ends Charles (Hov) Clifford and "Chip Wyser, the offensive unit scored every time they took possession of the ball. Baker's defensive unit was unsurpassable. Under the direction of hard charging "Les" Ward and the rugged defensive play of Ira Yavner, the Hills North offense was unable to gain more than one first down, being constantly spilled for a loss in their own backfield. Offensively and defensively, Baker is the team to watch.

Yan Con News

The race for the Bean Pot, symbolic of supremacy in the Yankee Conference, should take definite shape this weekend as all six conference teams are in action.

At Durham, the defending titlists from the University of New Hampshire will be out to make the University of Maine's Black Bears their second victim. The Wildcats turned back Rhode Island 25-18 last Saturday while Maine has a record of one victory and two losses in conference action.

Graduate Students

Special tickets prices have been set for graduate students for athletic events for the 1963-64 season. Admission to home football games is $1.00. Home basketball games—season ticket $8.00: A $5.00 ticket may be purchased for wives of graduate students for admission to all home athletic events. Tickets may be purchased in Room 10A of the Men's Physical Education Building.

BERNIE DALLAS, leading defender of the Redmen team. He has received much praise from Coach Vic Fusia.

JERRY WHELCHEL, Redmen quarterback who will be directing the offense against UConn this Saturday.

UConn Football Game

(Continued from page 8)

Fusia stated.

These boys have illustrated their defensive talents by coming up with two successful goal line stands, two weeks in a row. Harvard had a first and goal to go on the 2. Four plays later the Crimson was still on the two. Bucknell found itself with the same opportunity last week. They had as much success as Harvard. One fan recently observed, "Once you get a first down inside the five against UMass, thats as far as you go."

Going into tomorrow's game Redman quarterback Jerry Whelchel is the team's leading scorer with one touchdown and five extra points for eleven points.

Fred Lewis, Bob. Meers, Ken Palm and Mike Ross each have one touchdown.

Fred Lewis, after enjoying a good day against Bucknell, leads UM ball carriers in rushing. In 22 carries Lewis has gained 145 yards. He is averaging 6.6 yards per carry. Ken Palm and Mike Ross are neck and neck for the number two spot. Palm has 103 yards in 22 tries for 4.6 a carry. Ross has 4.4 yards a carry with 103 yards in 23 attempts.

In the passing department Jerry Whelchel has attempted 29, completing 18 including one touchdown toss to Bob Meers. Jerry has gained 230 yards in the air and is currently averaging 12.7 yards a pass.

Both UMass and UConn will be without their top punters tomorrow. UMass punter Phil Vandersea, who has been averaging 34 yards a punt, is sporting a cast on his right arm. John Janisewski, averaging 41 yards a punt for the Huskies in addition to being their top pass receiver, suffered a torn ligament in his leg against Temple and will be lost for the season.

Intramural Football League Continues Play

The intramural league ended its third week of play with the teams looking stronger because of added practices and experience.

The I.F.C. League's K.S. continued its winning ways by defeating L.C.A. 18-0. Roger Twitchell scored once and Bob Hughes twice for the winners while Vasin captured L.C.A.'s lone touchdown. Bob Mitchel scored three touchdowns and Ed Shea scored two more as P.S.K. dropped A.S.P.

30-6. S.A.E. led by Jim Paintern and Bob Baretti shaded T.E.P. 14-12.

In the dorm league Hampshire rolled past Plymouth 21-7. Chadbourne shut out Berkshire 6-0 on George Johnson's touchdown.

In other games Baker found the winning column by shutting out Hills North 18-0 and a spirited Hills South team continued its unbeaten streak by downing Wheeler 14-12.

'DON' CALL Optician

Why not stop in and have us
RECORD the POWER of your
present EYEGLASSES
This will PREVENT difficulty
in case of LOSS or BREAKAGE
In case of BREAKAGE you can bring in BROKEN PIECES
for DUPLICATION
Sunglasses available with or without power
SHATTER-PROOF LENSES
Made in our own laboratory

'DON' CALL—Optician

56 Main Street AMHERST AL 3-7002

Rides to UConn

TAKE THE BUS (VW)
$2.50 Round Trip
Call AL 3-7027 after 5:00 p.m.

Students Only

New Yorker Magazine
$3.75 — 8 Mos.
$5.00 — Year
(Reg. $8.00 per year)

Ski Magazine
6 Issues $1.50
2 Years $3.00
(Reg. $3.00 a year)

CHECK OR MONEY ORDER
BOX 418
AMHERST, MASS.

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Redmen Meet Huskies Saturday UMass Is Favored To Win

by STEVE HEWEY

The undefeated UMass Redmen take to the road this weekend in search of win number three. The Redmen have won two while tying one this season. Supplying the competition tomorrow will be the University of Connecticut, winless after two starts.

Tomorrow's UConn - UMass clash scheduled for 1:30 p.m. at Storrs is the initial Yankee Conference test for the Huskies. UMass has already won its first Conference start, downing Maine in its season opener.

UConn has gotten off to a shakey start this season. Yale pinned a 3-0 loss on the Huskies two weeks ago. UConn now has failed to beat Yale in 15 tries. Last Saturday Temple University nosed out the Huskies 9-7.

Husky Coach Bob Ingalls hopes the arrival of UMass will cure his woes and bring a change of luck. After the Temple defeat some irate UConn fans hung Ingalls in effigy on the UConn campus.

The two losses Ingalls has suffered could very easily have been wins. Costly errors in both the Temple and Yale games kept the UConn record from being 2-0, instead of the dismal 0-2 that it is.

After winning 16-6 last year and 31-13 the year before that, UMass holds a 17-16 edge in the overall series. UM Coach Vic Fusia has not yet lost to Ingalls.

The impressive 21-0 win over Bucknell last Saturday left Fusia pleased. The Redmen seem to have broken out of the lethargy that plagued their offensive game in their first two contests. The week has seen the Redmen concentrate on passing to give them a stronger offensive punch.

The UMass defense has been just short of sensational in the three games played. Out of Maine, Harvard and Bucknell only Maine has managed to push across a single touchdown.

Fusia had praise for tackles Paul Graham, Bob Burke, Dick Kehoe and Don Hagberg. "These four along with guards Peter Pietz and Bob Tedoldi and Soph center Bernie Dallas have been the keys to our strong defense,"

(Continued on page 7)

FRED LEWIS, one of the most aggressive backs for the Redmen. He is the leading rusher for UMass. In twenty-two carries he has averaged 6.6 yards per carry.

Varsity Booters Lose To Trinity; Frosh Team Defeats Stockbridge

by SCOTT FREEDLAND

The Varsity booters went down to defeat at the hands of Trinity College 5-3 in a game which saw severe injuries to several players on each side.

Play on both sides was rough as Dick Pallatino suffered a fractured shoulder adding him to the injured list. Dick Leete had his best day of the season. Ray Yando at fullback was superb looking, as good as All-American Dick Repeta. Coach Briggs was pleased by Pat McDevitt's two goals and Tom that a loss in which you score three goals is nothing to be ashamed of.

Saturday's ballgame against UConn at Storrs should prove to be a good one. With UConn playing a tough one against Bridgeport yesterday there is a chance that they will be tired for the Homecoming game. The addition of several Jamaicans from last year's Frosh could prove decisive for Connecticut.

The UConn and URI games will provide an insight into potential Yan Con soccer champions when the Yankee Conference League makes its debut in 1965.

The Frosh soccer team won its second game defeating Stockbridge School of Agriculture 4-0. Aba Johnson scored two, Collin Garstang one, and Gibbons one. Defensive play by goalie Larry Martin who made four beautiful saves and backs Laurine Tarr and Al Kline aided the Frosh booters win.

Fusia's Redmen Club Grows In Membership

After viewing films of the UMass-Bucknell game Vic Fusia has made additions to his Redmen Club. Membership to the club is gained by outstanding performance on the gridiron by a UMass player. For each outstanding play a UMass player gets a little red letter for his helmet.

The first letter a player earnes is R, the second is an E and so on until the player has earned enough letters to spell out REDMAN across his helmet. After a player receives all six letters that does not remove him from further consideration. He then gets a star to put above each letter in REDMAN.

The only ones to have won all six letters spelling out REDMAN are sophomores. Tackle Bernie Dallas has all six letters plus two stars. Halfback Bob Ellis has all the letters plus one star. End Bob Meers has the six letters.

TICKETS

Tickets for the Boston University—UMass football game Oct. 26 at Boston will go on sale Monday Oct. 14 in Room 10A of the Men's Physical Education Building. Reserved seats are $3.00 and General Admission tickets are $2.00.

First Area Showing!
DEERFIELD Drive-In
ROUTES 5 & 10
S. Deerfield, Mass.
—FRI., SAT., SUN.—
MERLE OBERON STEVE COCHRAN CURT JURGENS
If you are adult in every sense of the word you will see a picture that is, too!
OF LOVE and DESIRE
—ALSO—
"MARILYN"
Narrated by Rock Hudson
Show Begins at 7:30

The Perfect "A"..
A Suit of Enduring Elegance . . . To Be Enjoyed Now, Years From Now.
Choose from these Superior Houses . . .
• BENTLY
• PENDLETON
• CHAND 'HABITS
• JOHN MEYER of Norwich
Our fine selection of suits bring a gallantry of sureness of touch to the country concept.
Their strong lines are quite at home in the city or at college. They have no equal.
The colorings are brave and fresh.
Sizes 8 to 18
House of Walsh
AMHERST • MASS.

Gifts
Pewter Mug
with Glass Bottom
and
Etched U of M Seal
$10.00 No Tax
WINN JEWELERS
31 South Pleasant — Amherst

Quality Fruit Store
Amity Street
The Little Store Near the Theater

Your Campus Personalities & Events
Featured in
THE DAILY HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
Sam Apgar 253-5831
Will Take Your Subscription

LIBRARY LIBRARY
OCT 15 1963
UNIVERSITY OF

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 13 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1963

Card For Sandy Hits 1,500 Will Be Brought To Dorms

by DAVE HARACZ

The great enthusiasm shown by the student body toward the mammoth get well card for Sandra Olson has prompted the Committee to Help Sandra Olson to extend the cards to the dormitories.

This week, members of the committee will circulate through all dorms on campus soliciting signatures. According to the head of the committee, Tom Christianson, over 1500 signatures have already been affixed to the bedsheet which will probably prove to be the largest such card ever sent.

Friday, Sandy received cards from President Lederle, Dean of Students Field, and Dean of Women Curtis, as well as a birthday cake from the committee.

The committee was formed when it was learned that Sandy will have to remain in the hospital many more months before being fully recovered from her bout with gas gangrene.

Sandy herself made medical history as the first person ever cured of the deadly disease by a pressure chamber. She developed the malady after she was operated on for a ruptured appendix. She was rushed from Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton to Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston.

Homecoming Semi-Finalists Selected

From a field of 44 UMass coeds nominated for the annual Homecomig Queen contests, 13 were adjudged semi-finalists last Thursday afternoon in Memorial Hall.

The Queen committee rated the girls on face, figure and poise. A tabulation of the votes showed 13 of the girls to be very close in number of points and they were invited to appear again before the Committee. The Queen and her court, comprising five girls, will be selected from the 13.

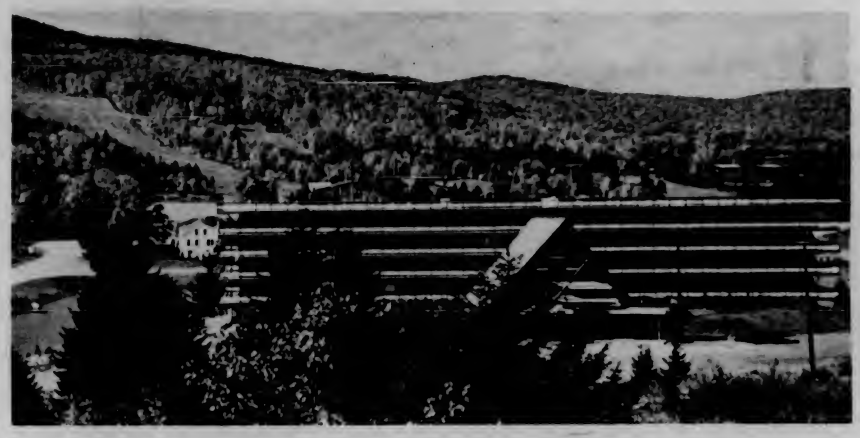
The 13 semi-finalists are Elaine Needham '64, Robbie LaBatte '64, Bev Botelho '64, Anne Creedon '66, Elaine Howe '66, Linda Peterson '66, Sandy Pierce '67, Diana Alvarez '67, Barbara Taska '67, Judy Sturtevant '67, Roxanne Gile '67, Nancy Field '67, and Vicki Lippner '67.

The other girls nominated were: Sheila Cohen, Marie Makinen, Jan Reimer, Judy Wilcox and Paula Wickens from the class of 1964; Sandra Jones, Rosemary Lawson, Ann McCallon, Kathy Meehan, Lynne Pierce, Maaja Sildoja and Doro-

(Continued on page 5)

AT SWAP

Extracurriculars Explored; Varley Proposes 20¢ Plan



THE MT. SNOW SKI LODGE—Scene on this past weekend's SWAP Conference.

Approximately one hundred thirty-five student leaders, faculty members and administrators spent an energetic and constructive weekend at the annual SWAP conference at Mt. Snow, Vermont.

Perhaps the most significant development of the conference was the emphasis placed on the need for closer faculty-student bonds. Many suggestions were made to remedy this situation. For example; making greater use of a club or organization advisor, club-sponsored faculty coffee hours, and the "20¢ Plan." This latter suggestion was introduced by Dr. Varley of the English department at the closing dinner. He feels that students should invest twenty cents and have coffee dates with professors which would in turn initiate a more relaxed student-faculty relationship. It's time for the student to take the initiative!

Many exciting ideas, both practical and idealistic, arose from the workshops and from casual conversations. Topics of discussion ranged from student evaluation forms of individual professors to the introduction of culture into the Greek program.

At all discussions and workshops a recording secretary was assigned. These reports are being condensed and a summary-evaluation is being produced. This paper will then be distributed to the SWAP delegates and their sponsoring organizations.

Saturday mornings question session solved a large number of campus queries. Mr. Watts, Union Program Director, Mr. Buck, RSO Business Manager, Mr. Scott, Co-ordinator of Student Activities, and Dean Field were most often called upon to answer these questions. A majority of these questions concerned the priority listing in the calendar office.

The facilities of Mt. Snow were well-used by the delegates. After a late dinner Friday evening, a very relaxed conference body danced and conversed in the lobby and adjoining areas. The Japanese Dream Pools became

(Continued on page 3)

Three Fraternities Draw Social Pro

Three UMass fraternities have been placed on social probation for varying lengths of time, according to informed sources.

Alpha Epsilon Pi, Beta Kappa Phi, and Phi Sigma Delta were placed on social probation Thursday evening by action taken by the Fraternity Presidents Association's Judiciary Board.

No news has been released by the FPA in regard to their decisions. However, usually reliable sources have reported that Beta Kappa Phi has been placed on social probation for fourteen days, Alpha Epsilon Pi, twenty-one days, and Phi Sigma Delta, twenty-eight days.

The disciplinary action stems from certain occurrences at the above fraternity houses on Saturday night, October 5.

All three of the houses were brought before the FPA board on charges dealing with the serving of liquor at their respective fraternities.

In other actions regarding fraternities this past week it has been unofficially reported that each fraternity house has received a letter from the Machmer Hall complex (the Deans' Offices) that new and stricter punishments are going to be placed in effect which will make even more prohibitive the serving of alcoholic beverages in fraternities.

The punishments range from social probation to the recommendation to the President of the

(Continued on page 6)

STUDENTS AFFIX their names to the giant birthday card for Sandy Olson. (See story above).

Foreign Students Day Presented In Boston

International Student Day will be observed in Boston on October 25.

Last year nearly 2000 students studying at Mass. schools and hospitals attended the event which is administered by Secretary of State, Kevin H. White with the cooperation of the Mass. Junior Chamber of Commerce and Boston League of Women Voters.

The program will begin at 10:30 a.m. with visits to the Supreme Judicial Court, Superior Court, and a tour of a Boston newspaper plant. At 11:00 a.m. a mock town meeting and a presentation on "Labor Organization in the U.S." will be staged.

Lectures on public and private health and welfare agencies will be included in the program. Lunch will be served all visitors in the State House followed by a welcoming address from Governor Peabody and other legislative officials.

Alternative tours of the State House and Freedom Trail are al-

(Continued on page 6)

Two Debate Governor's Council

Mrs. Bruce B. Benson, President of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, and Governor's Councillor Raymond F. Sullivan of Springfield will debers of the Governor's Council be limited?", tonight.

(Continued on page 5)

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

God And The Student Senate

At the start of each Student Senate Meeting its entire membership stands as one of their number mumbles a few incoherent words which is then followed by a louder but still as incoherently mumbled Amen from the rest of those assembled.

This is the Student Senate's way of prayer.

This Wednesday evening there will be a bill on the floor of the Senate which asks that the present prayer be replaced with a few seconds of silence at the beginning of each session.

The Mathieson-Howard motion is a significant one, for it will require a good deal of thought on the part of each Senator, something which is unfortunately quite rare.

Opponents of the motion have based their objections on one main assumption, the bill is anti-religious.

Nothing could be farther from the truth.

We are sure that the proponents of the motion have no desire to make the Student Senate an anti-religious body. Rather they would make whatever religious action the Senate takes more meaningful and worthwhile.

At present, the opening prayer is nothing more than a perfunctory mumble, with its real meaning subordinated to what is now its primary function; that of lending an air of respectability to the Senate.

This bill would have those Senators who truly wish to offer a devotional prayer to God, doing so, in their individual manner.

It would also allow those Senators who do not wish to pray, a short period of time to think of their responsibility not only to the Senate but also to those they represent.

No harm can come from this bill, only good. If properly used by each Senator those few brief seconds at the start of each Senate meeting will definitely be more worthwhile and certainly more meaningful.

JSD

The Great Pumpkin

The Seed Of Resistence

by AXEL

With Halloween fast approaching, many of my cohorts have shown curiosity about the origin of the legends of The Great Pumpkin (now so widely disseminated through the newspaper series, Peanuts). One or two of the more perceptive inquisitors realized by my toothy grin that I must be something of a pumpkin-head (as authorities on pumpkin are called) and asked me to explain this recently revived legend.

I shan't take time to brag about the substantial niche that I have carved for myself in the field of pumpkins, but, being a hard shelled and seedy old veteran of many an orange escapade, I will go right into the requested explanation.

The legend of The Rising of The Great Pumpkin is really much of a Cinderella story. There was once, in a quiet agricultural valley, a sadly oppressed pumpkin patch. For as long as could be remembered, the curse of the gods was upon every vine and leaf; and everyone knows that the curses of the father shall visit upon the child—the innocent pumpkins, born of the vines, were nightly ravaged; smashed innocently in their beds by bands of marauding fiends from nearby hostile Greek territories.

No Pumpkin was strong enough to stand up to the weapons of the raiders, and finally, when one brave attempt after another had cracked, the remaining few drew back to the shelter of the cornfields and the protection of that hardier stalk. But the older survivors yearned for their old homes, and talked of the prophesied day when a glorious leader would rise to lead them back to their rightful lands.

Of course, yearning hardly brings a positive resolution to one's problems, and in succeeding years the old strained to breed a leader of pumpkins. Finally, the time was ripe, and a warning was sent to the hostile Greeks that a giant pumpkin had been coached to carry the great orange wave to victory. The evil ones only laughed and mocked The Great Pumpkin as a hollow threat. That night they would go, in force, horrid clubs in hand, to murder and pillage in the quiet fields. When they would arrive, the story would be quite different! That midnight of October 31st, would go down in pumpkin lore as the most glorious of all days.

(To be continued.)

M M H

Barbie Doll

by MIKE HENCH

While sorting through my stack of erotic second class mail, I happened to come across a particularly informative piece of pornography called "The Sears Toy Book."

Not only did this beautifully put-together catalog arouse "prurient" interests in me, but it also made me slightly nauseated.

Before my eyes, in various fetching poses and states of dishabille, were the figures of "Ken," "Tammy," "Tressy," "Mom," "Dad," "Midge" and "Barbie." For those of you who aren't familiar with Barbie (and one should find this familiarity cheap at $1.92), she is a fantastically endowed minx with measurements that rival Playboy's Femlin. (And for those of you who aren't familiar with her, there is little hope.)

Having previously alluded to my acquaintance with the works of Freud, Ellis, Kinsey et al in this column, I am sure that the reader will see the theraputic value of these dolls in terms of the studies of these men. It is a veritable "theatre" for psychodrama. Think of it readers.

No longer will Dick and Jane have to kick Spot when they are peeved at Mom and Dad. They can now either stick pins in "Mom" and "Dad" or they can break one of Barbie's arms. When Mom says "No" to Dick, he can go in and kick "Mom" across the room. When Baby Sally isn't changed, she can refuse to change "Mom."

These little creatures may bring about a complete revitalization of our society. Did Orwell envision these creatures when he wrote 1984? Did Huxley know of Barbie and Ken when he wrote "Brave New World?" One can only guess.

For my own part I know that I have rejected these Dolls as gifts for my own kind, but I find them marvelous in other respects and commend them to others who are worried about either sex, or lack of sex.

Melange

A Degree Of Respectability

by STEVE ORLEN

A DEGREE OF RESPECTABILITY

Conversation 1945:

Guys: "Hey Marty, whatcha wanna do t'nite?"

Marty: "I dunno. There's nothin' much goin' on. We might as well go to a movie. That oughta pass the time 'til we can find some action."

Conversation 1963:

Guys: "Hey Marty, what's happening?"

Marty: "I dunno. There's a party in east village. We might as well try that."

Guys: "Forget it man, with your parties. We've got tickets to the Lincoln Center Festival. And after that, we're going to the Bogart revival at the Bleeker St. Theater. Can't miss that!"

Marty: "But there'll be too many intellectual broads there!"

Intellectuals at a Humphrey Bogart movie? An international film festival in New York City? See a flicker rather than go to a party? What is this generation coming to? Well, this generation of intellectuals and just plain aware people is coming to the movies all over the world—in droves. If you're not hip on movies man, you're out of it.

In 1963, going to the movies (the right movies, that is) has reached its highest degree of respectability since Charlie Chaplin flip-flopped, wadled and clowned across the screens in the 1920's. The box office is reaching status symbol proportions.

What is the reason for this relatively recent phenomenon? Simply this: certain perceptive groups in the film industry, domestic and foreign, have realized (1) the unlimited possibilities their medium has to offer and (2) the responsibilities they have towards their audience. As a consequence, film making is looked upon as an art form. It has evolved to such a point that many people have stopped going to the movies strictly to be entertained or to pass the time. They go to witness an art form, much as they might go to a Picasso exhibition, a Wagner opera or a poetry reading. And it is no longer the actors and actresses who receive top billing—it is the directors, the nouveaus artistes.

Who are these artists? In Italy there is Fredrico Fellinni, the celebrated director-author of La Dolce Vita, La Strada and his recent autobiographical 8½, and also Antonioni, for his L'Aventurra trilogy. In France, the audiences flock to see a Goddard or a Cocteau film, or Francois Truffaut's Jules et Jim, or Claude Renoir's Grand Ilusions (made directly after World War I, and still considered by most critics as the finest movie ever made). In Sweden, there is Bergman, in England, the makers of Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner and Taste of Honey, in Spain, the director of the church-banned Viridiana, and in America, we have such distinguished artists as Shirley Clark, Stanley Kramer and the master, Orson Wells. These are only a few of the artists in the world's film industry. These are the people with something to say, and an unlimited, fresh medium in which to say it: social criticism and good photography mix well.

As there are art festivals, now there are film festivals and even film museums. After Cannes on the French Mediterranean, there are festivals in Russia, in Poland (even the Communists are aware of the far-reaching possibilities of films), in Great Britain, in Italy and Germany, and finally, for the first time, in the U.S. The recently completed Lincoln Center Arts building in New York City offered an international film festival this past month.

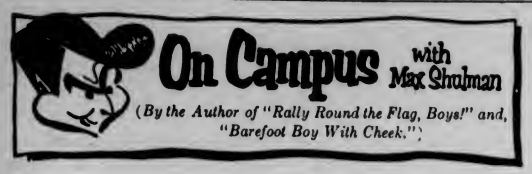
But what of us, the audiences out in Amherst, Massachusetts? What are we supposed to do—go to New York? No. For a nominal charge (and sometimes gratis), we can go to Smith College's Sage Hall on Saturday evenings and see the latest (or the oldest, for that matter) movie masterpieces the world has to offer. On Sunday evenings, Amherst College has the same fare and the same prices. The French Corridor at the University offers some of the finest French movies ever made. Even the local movie houses are showing good foreign and domestic art movies. And all for the price of a pizza. See you at the movies.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

Sex--

Reaction--

Rebuttal--



(By the Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and, "Barefoot Boy With Cheek.")

BOOM!

Today, foregoing levity, let us turn our keen young minds to the principal problem facing American colleges today: the population explosion. Only last week four people exploded in Cleveland, Ohio—one of them while carrying a plate of soup. In case you're thinking such a thing couldn't happen anywhere but in Cleveland, let me tell you about two other cases last week—a 45-year-old man in Provo, Utah, and a 19-year-old girl in Northfield, Minnesota. And, in addition, there was a near miss in High Point, North Carolina—an eight-year-old boy who was saved only by the quick thinking of his cat, Fred, who pushed the phone off the hook with his muzzle and dialed the department of weights and measures. (It would, perhaps, have been more logical for Fred to dial the fire department, but one can hardly expect a cat to summon a fire engine which is followed by a Dalmatian, can one?)

But I digress. The population explosion, I say, is upon us. It is, of course, cause for concern but not for alarm, because I feel sure that science will ultimately find an answer. After all, has not science in recent years brought us such marvels as the maser, the bevatron, and the Marlboro filter? Oh, what a saga of science was the discovery of the Marlboro filter! Oh, what a heart-rending epic of trial and error, of dedication and perseverance! And, in the end, what a triumph it was when the Marlboro research team, after years of testing and discarding one filter material after another—iron, nickel, tin, antimony, obsidian, poundcake—finally emerged, tired but happy, from their laboratory, carrying in their hands the perfect filter cigarette! Indeed, what rejoicing there still is whenever we light up a Marlboro which comes to us in soft pack and Flip-Top Box in all fifty states and Cleveland!

Yes, science will ultimately solve the problems arising from the population explosion, but meanwhile America's colleges are in dire straits. Where can we find classrooms and teachers for today's gigantic influx of students?

Well sir, some say the solution is to adopt the trimester system. This system, already in use at many colleges, eliminates summer vacations, has three semesters per annum instead of two, and compresses a four-year-course into three years.

This is, of course, good, but is it good enough? Even under the trimester system the student has occasional days off. Moreover, his nights are utterly wasted in sleeping. Is this the kind of all-out attack that is indicated?

I say no. I say desperate situations call for desperate remedies. I say that partial measures will not solve this crisis. I say we must do no less than go to school every single day of the year. But that is not all. I say we must go to school 24 hours of every day!

The benefits of such a program are, as you can see, obvious. First of all, the classroom shortage will disappear because all the dormitories can be converted into classrooms. Second, the teacher shortage will disappear because all the night watchmen can be put to work teaching solid state physics and Restoration drama. And finally, overcrowding will disappear because everybody will quit school.

Any further questions?

© 1963 Max Shulman

* * *

Yes, one further question: the makers of Marlboro, who sponsor this column, would like to know whether you have tried a Marlboro lately. It's the filter cigarette with a man's world of flavor. Settle back and enjoy one soon.

La Dolce Vita Revisited

TO: The author of "The Good Life"

Congratulations!! I am glad to find that there is someone on this campus who shares my sentiments.

Gerald M. Myers, '65

Dear Editor:

Regarding the article on sex education in Wednesday's Collegian, we feel that it was not only shocking but did not offer a solution to the actual problem—immorality. While we agree that sex education would be of some value, we do not agree with the author's obvious condonation of the use of contraceptives by unmarried students. Instead of offering a solution to the problem of immorality on campus, he presents only a way of hiding it or possibly spreading it. As far as avoiding the most serious consequences of premarital sex is concerned, it would be far more effective to inform students of the potential outcomes of premarital sex. Perhaps, then they might intelligently consider not only pregnancy, but also the possibility of venereal disease.

JJ; PK; ML; JS

'The Good Life' Is Good

by STEVE LEVINE

In Wednesday's Collegian there appeared an article by an anonymous author expressing great disillusionment with college life (The Good Life). It is indeed unfortunate that this young lady feels so dissatisfied, but I feel that it is appropriate to mention that this article consists solely of generalizations and unjustifiable implications.

The first charge levelled against UMass men is that they lack maturity. Well, perhaps this is true to a limited extent. Still, the senior is considerably more mature than the freshman largely because he has had the experience of college in all its aspects. This includes social life as well as studies. An interest in parties, girls, and an occasional drink are certainly a part of life, are very common, and by no means indicate a lack of character. The unhappy writer might be happier if she tried harder to find entertainments suitable to herself and spent less time finding fault with others. A sign of maturity is the willingness to accept life and other people, and to respect each person's right to live as he chooses. This critic of others' lack of maturity is herself lacking a mature attitude toward life.

As for the pajama and toga parties, these are parties—not orgies—and there is no need to lack respect for girls who attend them. The costumes are for laugh. and the parties are fun, but at neither of the two pajama parties I have attended was there any breach of good taste. As a member of the fraternity built on one level, I would like to say that this expensive structure was not designed with the avoidance of rules in mind. The house was constructed in accordance with the best principles of modern architecture and was designed for comfort rather than immorality.

In conclusion, I believe that this girl has been too quick to condemn. Admittedly we all have a good deal of growing up to do between our entrance and graduation from college. I feel that I am gaining maturity from social life as well as from my studies and that the person who neglects either will be sorely handicapped in future life.

MORTAR BOARD COUNTERS

Mortar Board, for those of you who don't know, is a senior women's honor society whose objectives are service, scholarship and leadership. In one of the past issues of the Collegian it was implied that Mortar Board members made uncomplimentary generalizations concerning the male population on our campus. If this impression was given, we of Mortar Board would like to apologize for this misunderstanding and hope the writer of the October 9th article will see that she was mistaken. We think the caliber of UMass students, both male and female, is a high one, where many "nice" people are to be found.

Mortar Board

Double Standard

To the Editor:

The recent action of the administration in bringing three fraternities before their peers for trial in a charge of policy has led to general criticism of the morals and standards of the campus houses.

Dormitory and off campus students have set up double standards for themselves and fraternities. Drinking and the having of women in rooms is no worse in a dormitory, fraternity, or apartment. There are students who drink and get sick in the dorms and have women in their rooms. The fraernities represent 20% of the campus. They can't possibly account for more than a minority of the men who have to be carried to their rooms or the girls whose hands are guided to their names on the sign out sheet. Wild parties in Sunderland or Hadley in "fabulous off campus houses or apartments" are not considered when students become disgusted at so-called horror shows at fraternities. Just because "liberals and others" hate fraternities as bigoted cliques there is no reason to make the houses scapegoats.

Sure students get drunk at houses, drive, get sick, etc. But so do dormitory residents and those off-campus. If the administration wishes to enforce drinking laws and enforce moral standards let them make a 100% drive.

The independent who goes to a bar with a group of "friends" or to a party off campus is no better or worse than those in houses.

S.A.F.

SWAP Conference...

(Continued from page 1)

the center of activity as students alternated between the hot and cold pools. Campus songs and folk tunes echoed as the swimmers splashed about.

Saturday's planned chair lift rides had to be cancelled as the mountain top winds were registered at 40 miles per hour.

The 1963 SWAP delegates have returned to campus with a greater awareness of campus extra-curricular difficulties and with an impetus to apply some of the ideas presented at the conference.

The Common Cold: A $5 Billion Thief

Man has unleasned the energy of the atom, has hurled satellities into orbit, but still is stymied by the mystery of the common cold.

Practically everyone has been victimized by the common cold. It blocks the nasal passages. It produces a "sandpaper' throat. It stuffs the head. It strikes the average person at least twice a year, and it steals more time and money than any other disease in the medical textbooks.

The common cold causes a loss of 150,000,000 work days annually in this country, according to the United States Public Health Service. Employee absenteeism, medical bills and production losses, it has been estimated, cost the country the staggering sum of five billion dollars a year. Thus, the common cold is considered the Number One health problem facing industry today.

Physicians have long been batfled by the common cold and its elusive hit-and-run tactics. Their sense of frustration was aptly characterized by Sir William Osler, a famous physician, who remarked, "There is only one way to treat a cold—with contempt."

The puzzle of the common cold has given birth to many theories. In 17th century England, some physicians thought that the sniffles were caused by a "flux," or discharge from the brain. This led some people to try sniffing snuff to "clear the brain." Lords and dukes inhaled snuff with gusto, sneezed like thunder, but made little headway against their colds.

In desperately trying to cope with the common cold, people have tried all kinds of remedies. These have included an odorous

(Continued on page 6)

1. Excuse me, sir. I'm conducting a poll for the college newspaper. I wonder if I might ask you a few questions?

Be my guest.

2. In your opinion, what are some of America's most significant achievements in the past 50 years?

Huh?

3. Let me put it this way. During the last half century what new ideas have led to important benefits for the American people?

Well, uh – there's the two-platoon system.

4. I'll rephrase the question. Since 1912, what developments can you think of that have made the lot of the working man easier?

Now you're getting tricky.

5. Give it a try.

Well, speaking off the top of my head, I might say stretch socks.

I'm sure everyone would agree they've been useful. But isn't there something with a bit more social significance that comes to mind?

There certainly is. There's Group Insurance, the principle of which is to help provide protection for those who need it most and can afford it least. Pioneered and developed by Equitable, it has proved most efficacious. Today, the working man and his family enjoy a broad spectrum of protection provided by Group Insurance. For that reason, I would most emphatically suggest its inclusion among the significant achievements. But I still think the two-platoon system is pretty important.

For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For information about career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write to William E. Blevins, Employment Manager.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States

Home Office: 1285 Avenue of the Americas, New York 19, N.Y. ©1963

World Famous Schola Cantorum Comes To University Campus

Schola Cantorum, a choral group comprised of 20 singers who are accompanied by six instrumentalists, will make their appearance at the University at 8 p.m. in the Curry Hicks Physical Educational Building this Thursday.

This concert marks the second in the 1963-64 series being presented by the University of Massachusetts Concert Association.

Recognized as one of the foremost choral groups in the world, the Schola Cantorum of New York has taken part in performances conducted by Toscanini and Leonard Bernstein. Under the direction of Mr. Bernstein, the group participated in the gala opening of the new Philharmonic Hall in New York's Lincoln Center.

The present director, Hugh Ross, has previously conducted the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood and in Boston, as well as the New York Philharmonic and other noteworthy orchestras. Mr. Ross is considered one of the greatest authorities on choral music in the world, and his advice is sought constantly by famous musical organizations and foundations.

The program, which covers a wide range of choral works, includes a chorus from Bizet's opera "Carmen", an excerpt from Puccini's opera "The Girl from the Golden West", the Children's Prayer from "Hansel and Gretel", five choruses by Handel, and selected choruses from Leonard Bernstein's musical "Candide".

The performances of the group under Hugh Ross' direction have received excellent reviews. After their 1962 Carngie Hall concert, the New York Herald Tribune praised the Schola Cantorum as a fine organization full of enthusiasm, and described Hugh Ross as a "first class musician".

Students are admitted free of charge upon presentation of ID cards. Single tickets may be purchased at the door for $1.50.

Volunteer Fire Dept.—For Whom The Whistle Screams

When the fire whistle screams on campus, it doesn't startle students in vain—at least not all of them. The volunteers of the University Fire Department, whose membership is made up entirely of University students, respond immediately, working with the Amherst Fire Department both in the town of Amherst and on the University campus.

Edmund Goetzl, University Fire and Safety Officer and advisor to the fire-fighting group feels that this department is well-trained, enthusiastic, and contributes a great service to the University and to the town of Amherst.

The group's Student Union display, in observance of Fire Prevention Week, October 6-12, exhibited types of small fire-fighting equipment and pictures of the Abbey and Hamlin fires of 1962.

Any student interested in joining the fire-fighting organization may apply for membership with Fire Chief Richard Floyd, '64, 204 Chadbourne.

JOIN

YOUR

NEWMAN

CLUB

NOW!

Naiads Open Season With Swim Tryout

The Naiads opened their season Thursday evening, October 3, with their annual Jr. Naiad tryouts. Some 50 girls spent both Monday and Tuesday evenings working with Sr. Naiads in perfecting the various skills required for admission into the club.

After formal tryouts Thursday at 6:30 and 8:00 p.m., the following girls were accepted into the club:

Margo Atwater, Barbara Bailey, Barbara Bolt, Henriette Coopee, Cheryl Daggett, Rachael England, Judy Hagemann, Patricia Hamel, Nancy MacLaughlin, Sharon Merrill, Daria Montanari, Susan Neet, Susan Penny, Kathy Pressey, Carol Pauik, Nancy

(Continued on page 6)

Student Cars Present More Parking Problems

Reprinted from The Wall Street Journal of Thursday, Oct. 10, 1963.

Student cars are a mounting headache for college administrators.

Ohio State estimates its car population, already overtaxing facilities, jumped 1,000 this year to 12,000. San Francisco State's neighbors complain that students monopolize street parking space. Los Angeles State figures facilities to solve its parking and traffic woes would cost $5 million.

To relieve the jam, more schools tighten student driving restrictions, State-operated schools in Kentucky now ban the use of cars by all freshmen and by sophomores with under a B average. Florida State makes its campus off-limits to undergraduate motorists. Wheaton College in Illinois holds that cars are "not good for morale or morals," and restricts their use to juniors and seniors who show a need to drive. Illinois sets up a nickel shuttle bus to campus points from outlying parking lots. Louisiana State uses a gaily decorated, rubber-tired "Tiger Train," for the same purpose.

At Berkeley, University of California sophomores petitioned the administration to ban car use by freshmen.

CLUB DIRECTORY

CAESURA
Meeting of staff on Wed., Oct. 16, at 6 p.m. in the Barnstable Room of the S.U. Manuscripts will be judged. All members please attend.

DAMES CLUB
Meeting on Mon., Oct. 14, at 8:15 p.m. in the S.U. Dr. Julian F. Janowitz will speak.

DEBATING CLUB
Meeting on Mon., Oct. 14, at 7 p.m. in 389 Bartlett. Practice debate vs. Amherst on Tues., Oct. 15 at 7 p.m. in 131 Bartlett. Future meetings will be on Tuesdays at 7 p.m.

I.E.E.E.
First meeting for Electrical Engineers on Wed., Oct. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the S.U. New members invited.

FLORICULTURE CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 15, at French Hall. Refreshments will be served.

PRE-MED CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in Morrill Aud. Dr. James W. Bartlett will discuss medical and dental school admissions.

RUSSIAN CLUB
Meeting on Mon., Oct. 14, at 7 p.m. in the Worcester Room of the S.U. Anyone interested is welcome.

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 17 at 6:30 p.m. in the Men's PE Bldg. Basic instruction will be given. Newcomers and co-eds welcome.

SPECIAL EVENTS COMM.
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 15 at 11:15 a.m. in the Nantucket Room of the S.U. All members should try to attend.

WESLEY FOUNDATION
Communion service on Wed., Oct. 16, at 7 p.m. in Cushman Chapel at the Thompson House. Transportation provided.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 16, at 8 p.m. in the Franklin Room of the S.U. Everyone welcome.

GSS To Hold Informal Coffee Hour

Gamma Sigma Sigma, Alpha Theta Chapter, will hold an open coffee hour Monday, Oct. 14 from 1-9 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge.

Based on the ideals of service, friendship, and equality, GSS is open to all University women.

The purpose of this coffee hour is to acquaint freshmen and upperclass women with the projects and ideals of GSS and to given them an opportunity to meet the sisters.

GSS became a chapter of the National Service Sorority in June and has already initiated 14 sisters and a pledge class of 12. Since a new class will start in November, the coffee hour will provide an opportunity for University women to see if the group has something to offer them.

Dress will be informal. Everyone is invited to drop in at any time to have punch and cookies.

Military Ball Will Be Held December 7

The joint Army-Air Force Military Ball will be held on Saturday night Dec. 7, 1963. This ball will be unique as it is the first one held under the voluntary program.

As a large attendance is expected, the Ball committee is now planning to give the Cadet Corps an insight as to what a Military Social Function constitutes. The overall chairman this year is Cadet Lt. Col. Robert Covalucci; in charge of the Queen Committee is Cadet Lt. Col. Henry Billings; in charge of the Entertainment Committee is Cadet Lt. Col. Arthur Collins; in charge of Publicity is Cadet Maj. George Carvalho; in charge of Ceremonies is Cadet Capt. Roger Cavanaugh; and in charge of the Ticket Committee is Cadet Capt. David Chiras.

Two Debate ...

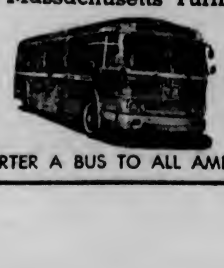
(Continued from page 1)

The debate, scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Middlesex and Nantucket rooms of the Student Union, is open to the public.

The University's political science club will sponsor the debate. Dr. David Mayhew of the UMass department of government will moderate the discussion.

An initiative petition seeking to repeal the Executive Council's statutory powers is currently being circulated throughout the state.

If the organizations are successful in getting 64,000 certified voters' signatures, the measure to limit the Executive Council will be placed on the General Court's 1964 agenda.

PETER PAN BUS LINES
BOSTON EXPRESS BUS
Via Massachusetts Turnpike
—Also Serving—
HOLYOKE
SPRINGFIELD
PALMER
WORCESTER


8 ROUND TRIPS DAILY
For Schedule and Information Call at the THE LOBBY SHOP Student Union
CHARTER A BUS TO ALL AMERICA

Brubeck Quartet To Provide Homecoming Closing Notes

On Sunday afternoon, Oct. 20, one of the greatest jazz drummers on the contemporary scene, perhaps in the history of jazz, will thrill percussion fans with another of his great performances. Joe Morello, a Springfield native, has gained fame and fortune with the Dave Brubeck Quartet, and rightly so for he is so highly regarded in the jazz world that he has made recordings which are purchased by drummers wishing to imitate his style.

Familiar to audiences in this area Morello's movements seems to defy possible human reaction time. His performances on recordings seem to be produced by at least two drummers, and his ability to improvise within rigid, but irregular rythms has made best sellers of all three of the quartet's recent "time" series.

Morello will be performing with the Brubeck Quartet at the Homecoming Concert, Sunday afternoon October 20 at 2:00. Tickets are currently on sale.

For those who enjoy jazz or percussion or just good music by contemporary artists, here is the way to climax Homecoming Weekend.

Michigan To Eliminate Membership Discrimination

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (CPS)—The University of Michigan Student Government Council passed a motion Wednesday night which seeks to eliminate discrimination in the membership selection practices of student groups.

The motion will become official Tuesday unless vetoed by the vice-president for student affiairs or ordered a 14 day stay by the advisory faculty committee on referral.

Entitled "Membership Selection in Student Organization," the motion establishes a membership committee to investigate alleged discriminatory practices in student groups. It also sets up a three-man student controlled tribunal to hear proceedings initiated by the membership committee.

The tribunal has the sanctioning power to withdraw recognition from student groups subject to veto by the vice-president for student affairs.

The Council's action is vested under the delegation of authority from the University Board of Regents. This delegation, reafirmed in a declaration last May, states that Council is empowered to establish rules and procedures to implement regent's bylaw 2.14.

This bylaw notes in part that the University "shall work for the elimination of discrimination in private organizations recognized by the University."

Questioning the right of the Regents to delegate this authority is a Grand Rapids law firm which is representing nine sororities on the campus, six of which listing their membership selection practices.

The motion passed Wednesday empowers the membership committee to call for these statements.

Passage of the motion climaxed a two-year struggle by the Council to create a motion regulating against discrimination in the selecton of members to student groups.

The moton specifically establishes a membership committee consisting of five student members including a chairman whose duties are to "receive complaints, collect and process relevant information, investigate suspected violation, attempt concilliation and initiate and prosecute proceedings before the appropriate campus tribunals."

The tribunal, consisting of three members selection by the Council executive committee is charged with hearing all proceedings initiated by the membership committee. Its purpose is to ascertain facts and impose where necessary on behalf of Council "appropriate sanctions upon student organizations found in violation of rules promulgated by Student Government Council pursuant to this resolution."

The tribunal will work along the general lines of a court trial, giving formal notification and appeal rights, but the actual procedures within tihe hearings will not necessarily adhere strictly to courtroom rules.

There have been unofficial objections raised by members of the faculty committee on referral to this tribunal. They feel that Council will be stepping over its limits of authority if it appoints a faculty member as one of the committee.

Only two of the three have to be student members, the motion states.

Homecoming ...

(Continued from page 1)

thy Stoklosa, class of 1965; Elaine Brisbois, Barbara Ford, Carol Hennigar, Sandra Kerr, Diane LaFrance, Barbara Mendelssohn, Sheila Murphy, Christine Poshkus, Donna Pratt, Susan West, Sue Whelpley and Chris Zwirko, class of 1966; Nancy Lupo, Pat McNally, Carole O'Malley, Sue Randolph, Deirdre Smith, MaryLee Sperry and Carolyn Zack, class of 1967.

The Homecoming Queen Committee is composed of Dick Bresciani and Dick Page, Sports Information Office; Evan Johnston and Wes Honey, Alumni Office; Ev Kosarick, University photographer, and members of Adelphia.

Lost and Found

LOST: A white geology notebook in the commons Wednesday night. If found contact Wendie Haas, 418 Arnold.

LOST: A pair of blue wraparound Sunglasses in Morrill Aud. or 343 Morrill Thursday afternoon. Reward offered. If found please contact Sandra Pratt, 218 Van Meter South.

FOUND: Half of a dollar bill in the treasurer's office. Contact John Calhoun, 201 Butterfield.

Placement Convocation Discusses Job-Seeking

Miss Edith Antunes, speaker at the Senior Women's Placement Convocation stressed the importance of the senior woman to "sit down and analyze her experiences and abilities in the four questions: what she has done successfully, what other people have commended her on, what machines she can operate, and what are her likes and dislikes." This evaluation sheet of one's capabilities is a valuable aid for a woman in her job interview.

The various aspects of job-seeking were discussed by Miss Antunes in detail. Among these were: the importance of the individual in making her own decision in job choice; the opportunities awaiting the college graduate of today; graduate school studies; and the interview.

The fact that there exists two major fallacies today relating to occupational choice was brought out by the speaker. One of these states that a woman has to be better qualified in her occupation than in any other field. The other fallacy claims that an individual's capabilities are classified with one's occupation. These two thoughts should definitely not interfere with a woman's choice of a career.

Miss Antunes discussed the opportunities available to the college woman, especially stressing the federal government openings. There are many jobs open for women today because of the rapid turnover in the Labor Department which has risen to 8.9% in the past two years. The Federal Government has a great deal to offer in the Foreign Service area to majors from "Zoology to Art" according to Miss Antunes. Many travel opportunities are open to women in this field.

The majors in the fields of Math, Physics, and Home Economics were encouraged by Miss Antunes to pursue graduate studies. She stated that the English, History, and Language majors, among others, should be prepared to break into an occupation through the typists' and receptionists' door because there is no immediate available room at the top in these fields.

It is extremely worth-while in long term thinking for a woman to continue her studies in graduate work. Yet, the speaker stated that it is not to be urged just because "it is the thing to do."

Miss Antunes concluded the Convocation with the statement, "The University can provide only half of what counts: knowledge. It is up to the woman to supply the other half: determination and energy. It is up to the person seeking a job to sell herself in the interview and continually in

NOTICES

NAIADS

There will be optional practice Tues., Oct. 15, at 7:30 p.m. for all Sr. Naiads interested in working on stunts.

A regular meeting will be held for Sr. Naiads Wed. at 7 p.m. in the W.P.E. Pool.

Jr. Naiads will meet in the pool on Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

SENATE NOTICE

Students wishing to be on some committee as non-senate members may pick up applications in the R.S.O. Office.

STUDENT LEADERS NEEDED

The S.U. Program Council need undergraduate students, especially Freshmen, to work on committees which will plan and execute many of the major events scheduled for the coming year at UMass.

Students will be interviewed for the following committees: Arts and Music, Dance, Games and Tournaments, Movie, Special Events Committee, Publicity, and Personnel.

If you are interested, come to the S.U. Program office this week.

S.U. PUBLICITY COMMITTEE

There will be an open meeting of the Publicity Committee Oct. 16 at 6:45 in the Worcester Room of the S.U. All those interested are welcome.

The Showplace of Pioneer Valley
NORTHAMPTON'S ACADEMY
AT THE GATES OF THE COLLEGE
SEE IT NOW!
EXCLUSIVE AREA SHOWING !
Mat. At 2:00 P. M. Eve. at 8 P. M.
• Sunday Evening At 7:30 •
BEST PICTURE OF THE YEAR!
ACADEMY AWARD WINNER
LAWRENCE OF ARABIA
All Matinees 90c
Sun. Thru Thurs. Evenings $1.25
Children Anytime 50c

Common Cold . . .

(Continued from page 4)

mixture of garlic and brown sugar candy, purges, hot baths, excessive sweating, sun lamps, laxatives, faith healing, special diets, alcohol and even the wearing of red underwear. None of these, scientifically speaking, has done much to deter the course of the common cold.

It took many years before scientists could pinpoint the germ involved in the common cold. Walter Kruse, a bacteriologist, reported in 1914 that he had successfully tranmitted the common cold to human volunteers with filtered nasal secretions free of bacteria.

Then came Dr. Alphons Raymond Dochez in 1931 with the finding that he had been able to grow a cold-causing germ in chick embryo tissues and had transmitted a cold to a chimpanzee. It is notable that only man and the chimpanzee are susceptible to the common cold. Subsequently, other investigators pinned down a virus or several strains of viruses as the culprits responsible for the common cold.

Nobody knows where the common cold virus or viruses go between colds. The virus may lie hidden in the body until special circumstances propel it into action.

B'NAI B'RITH HILLEL FOUNDATION
University of Massachusetts
Classes
Elementary Hebrew ..... Tuesday 4:00
Intermediate Hebrew ..... Tuesday 4:00
Advanced Hebrew ..... Thursday 3:30
Philosophy of Judaism ..... Thursday 4:15
Classes will begin on Tuesday, Oct. 15 in the Worcester Room, Student Union Building.

The Twin Menaechmi

Cast members in THE TWIN MENAECHMI are shown in rehearsal for the Roman comedy. Pictured are (l. to r.): Kenneth Feinberg as Brush, a parasite; Larry Wilker as Menaechmus I, a young man of Epidamnus; Paula Norton as Erotium, a courtesan; and Elaine Cherneski as the assistant maid. Tickets go on sale today at the Student Union ticket counter for the hilarious farce, to be presented this coming Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8:15 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. There will also be a Saturday matinee at 2:15.

Six Sororities Suddenly Suspended

PORTLAND, ORE. (CPS)—Six national sorority chapters have been suspended at Portland State College because they refused to pledge the only two Negroes who sought membership.

The sororities involved are Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Omicron Pi, Alpha Delta Delta Delta, Phi Beta Phi, and Delta Zeta.

The sororities were put on an inactive basis by Branford P. Millar, president of the college, because "there is enough doubt that no discrimination was involved."

Millar noted that the only reason the sororities had for rejecting the Negroes is the wish of the girls in the houses not to live with them.

The sororities feel they should have the freedom to choose whom they wish to associate with and that "to yield to faculty pressure eliminates all freedom of choice."

The two girls were "eminantly qualified" and "the kind of pledges all sororities are looking for," according to Millar.

There were only two other girls cut during the early stages of rush out of 115 who sought membership.

"There were many other cases in the past when sororities membership was questioned by the faculty," Millar said. "This was not a test case as far as the administration is concerned, but 'the straw that finally broke the camel's back.'

"No longer can sorority membership practices escape serious doubt," he added.

When national sororities were first allowed on the Portland State campus in 1960 the faculty decided the "serious doubt" would be the criterion for judging membership issues.

"The burden of proof is on the sorority," Millar said. "They must show that they do not practice discrimination."

In a joint statement the sororities said the college's request for such evidence amounted to an ultimatum to admit the Negro girls.

Millar said he will appoint a faculty board to review the case and to establish the future status of the sororities at the college.

Naiads . . .

(Continued from page 4)

Reid, Dawn Steele, and Nancy Wood.

On October 10, at 7:00 p.m. Naiads will go as a group to a synchronized swimming clinic at Mount Holyoke College. Here they will present a composition and spend the evening in discussion. Girls from Wellesley College, Smith College, Mount Holyoke, and the University will participate in this clinic.

Int'l Students . . .

(Continued from page 1)

so planned while in the afternoon students will hear a panel on "Politics in Massachusetts."

Guests will include students from UMass, Harvard, M.I.T., A.I.C., Smith, Mt. Holyoke, Boston College and Amherst.

Departure time is 7:30 a.m. and buses will assemble in front of the Student Union for those going from the Amherst area. There is room available on the buses for only 150 students from Western Mass. All expenses will be paid for by the Commonwealth of Mass.

Foreign students interested in attending should contact Mr. John C. Welles at the Housing Office by writing or by calling 545-2385.

Three Fraternities . . .

(Continued from page 1)

University that the house's charter be revoked.

It is expected that IFC or the FPA will place before the Dean of Students this week a new proposal which will suggest a new University policy in regard to alcohol and fraternities.

PHIL VANDERSEA—Redmen work horse in Saturday's third quarter.

B. U. TICKETS

Tickets for the Boston University-UMass football game Oct. 26 at Boston will go on sale Monday, Oct. 14, in Room 10A of the Men's Physical Education Buildng. Reserved seats are $3 and general admission tickets are $2.

Cross Country ...

(Continued from page 8)

by only a minute, which is the smallest spread that there has been between the first and second men so far this season. More important is the fact that only 21 seconds separated the second through fifth men. If the team can continue to lessen the time between the runners, they will bcome a truly formidable unit.

Redmen 21-3 ...

(Continued from page 8)

ting the ball on the UConn 42. Eight plays later UMass was on the three yard line of the Huskies again and Warren duplicated his feat of a few minutes earlier by plunging over for the score. For the third consecutive time Whelchel split the uprights for the extra point.

Trailing 21-3 in the late stages of the game, the Huskies went all out to register a TD of their own on the scoreboard. Quarterback Doug Gaffney, Aceto's understudy, took to the air and brought his team from the UC 20 to the UM 37 before he ran out of steam and the Husky drive was halted.

The Redmen almost added another score on the last play of the game. On second down and five from the UMass 41, halfback Dave Kelly took a handoff from sub quarterback Steve Trbovich and scampered to the UConn 22 before he was finally driven out of bounds.

The UMass line still continues to harass opponents' running backs and raise havoc with its blitzes of enemy quarterbacks. UConn's rushing total Saturday was a weak 66 yards. Quarterback Lou Aceto will probably see onrushing Redmen linemen in his sleep for the next few nights.

Linemen Bernie Dallas, Milt Morin, Bob Tedoldi and Bob Burke were the defensive standouts for the Redmen in containing Connecticut's offensive threats.

Halfback Fred Lewis found that UConn had assigned two or three defenders to watch his every move. The Junior speedster was held to 33 yards in 14 carries. Art Warren picked up 63 yards and two TD's in 14 attempts. Whelchel carried eight times for a total of 63 yards. Ken Palm had 28 yards on 7 tries.

The "M-Twins',, 6'4 Milt Morin and 6'3 Bob Meers continued to be Whelchel's favorite receivers. Morin caght three for 70 yards including one TD pass. Meers pulled in two tosses for 14 yards. Both boys are sophs.

THE WIN OVER UCONN gives UMass a 3-0-1 record in four games. The Bay Staters have now registered wins over Maine and Bucknell in addition to the UConn win. A 0-0 tie keeps the Redmen slate from being perfect.

UMass now is 2-0 in Yan Con standings as a result of Saturday's visit. UNH, the team that edged out UMass for the title last year and a top contender for the title this year had its 10 game win streak snapped by Maine Saturday.

THERE SEEMS TO BE a slight controversy as to the exact standings between UMass and UConn football teams. Joseph J. Saltys, Director of Sports Information at UConn claimed that prior to yesterdays contest, the series stood at 16-16.

Assistant Sports Information Director at UMass Dick Bresciani disagreed, saying that UMass held a 17-16 edge. "Where did the other game come from?" inquired Saltys. Bresciani pointed to a 34-6 UMass win listed in the UMass football brochure, which carried an 1899 date beside the score. "That must have been a fraternity game," joked Saltys. I'd like some more particularities on it." At last word Bresciani was going back to look at the grid records for 1899.

Favorite Baseball Stories Follow Dodger's Victory

by BOB HEALY

ANOTHER BASEBALL SEASON is by the boards. The Los Angeles Dodgers victimized the New York Yankees in only four games when the "experts" doubted that the "Bums" could do such damage to the former world champions in seven contests.

Now the players can go home to their families, the executives to meetings and the fans to the football games. Before closing the book on baseball until February, here's one last look at the ludicrous side of America's National Pastime.

These are the favorite baseball stores of years gone by.

The first major-league team ever to press spikes into the turf of the Los Angeles Coliseum was not the Dodgers but, ironically, the Giants. The transplanted Brooks were too busy being feted in a parade through town to take first licks at batting practice. So the former Polo Grounds tenants had the dubious honor of drawing first bead on the neighborly left-field fence.

THIS IS JOE McCARTHY'S FAVORITE story. Joe had a dream that he'd gone to heaven and had been ordered to assemble and manage a ball club. McCarthy's eyes glistened as he surveyed the talent around him —Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson, Cy Young, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Tris Speaker and all the other super stars.

"This will be the greatest team of all time," gloated the happy Marse Joe. "No one will ever best us." Just then the phone rang. It was Satan calling from downstairs and challenging the heavenly hosts to a ball game.

"But you haven't a chance or winning," protested Mac to the Devil. "I've got all the ballplayers."

"I know that," said Satan, "but I've got all the umpires."

THE GLOOM IN THE YANKEE CLUBHOUSE after the news that Billy Martin had been traded to the Athletics was so thick that an icebreaker could not have plowed through. Here was the most popular member of the squad.

On the bus young Bobby Richardson, the rookie who replaced Billy the Kid, sat alone in a double seat in silence staring out the window. He looked around when someone finally slipped into the seat beside him, and then he smiled gratefully. The newcomer was Billy Martin.

"Good luck kid," said Martin, extending his hand. "Don't worry. You're real good and you've got it made."

Only a big man could have acted that way, and Billy the Kid was showing his size.

One winter, a young Pittsburg outfielder named Casey Stengel lost a heated salary battle with owner Barney Dreyfus. Some months later, in an early-season game, Casey should have had a triple, but was tagged out at third when he chugged into the bag standing up.

"Why didn't you slide?" moaned the coach.

"With the salary I'm getting," said Casey, "I'm so hollow and starving that I'm liable to explode like a light bulb if I ever hit that ground too hard."

ON THIS NOTE the 1963 baseball season comes to a close. It was a pitchers' year as evidenced by the number of twenty game winners, and a Dodgers' year as evidence by a new world's championship.

Guitarist Wanted For Radio Work

A guitarist is being sought to provide background music for a documentary radio feature explaining the work of the University's speech and hearing clinic. Through the previous school year (1962-63), information and tape recordings were compiled and edited by Dan Melley and Woodbridge Brown, assistant news directors, for a tape show to be distributed to area radio stations, incorporating actual samples of clinical work, narrative, and interviews with those aided by the clinic.

The guitarist, who would be given a credit on the program, would help bridge the transitions in conversation. Any interested musician may contact Mr. Brown at South College, extension 2276.

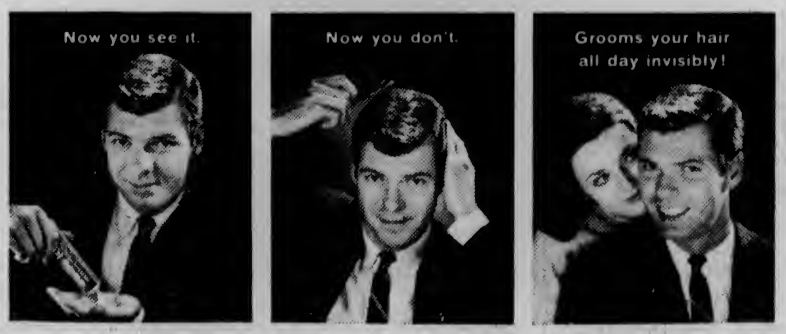
FROSH BASKETBALL MANAGER

Any student interested in applying for freshmen basketball manager please contact Coach Jack Leaman in Room 9 of the Men's Physical Education Building any afternoon—1 to 3 p.m.

only your hair knows it's there!

It's invisible, man! You can't see it. She can't feel it. Only your hair knows it's there! It's CODE 10 for men, the new invisible hairdressing from Colgate-Palmolive. Non-greasy CODE 10 disappears in your hair, gives it the clean, manly look that inflames women, infuriates inferior men! Be in. Let new CODE 10 groom your hair all day, invisibly.

code 10



COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Redmen 21-3 Over Huskies

Homecoming Crowd Of 11,000 Sees 2 Warren TD's

by STEVE HEWEY

STORRS — Undefeated University of Massachusetts, behind All Yankee Conference quarterback Jerry Whelchel, spoiled the University of Connecticut's Homecoming celebration by pinning a 21-13 loss on the winless UConns Saturday afternoon.

The crafty junior signal caller showed some 10,937 fans at Memorial Stadium how he came by the All-Conference rating as he completed seven of ten passes, ran for another 63 yards and did tricks with the ball that only a magician could accomplish.

Husky fans, hoping for a big upset after the UConns had lost their first two games, soon found out that their day had not yet arrived. Midway through the first period Whelchel unleashed a bomb to end Milt Morin who gathered it in at the 14, shook off a tackler and ambled into the end zone. Whelchel's pass came from his own 44 and settled perfectly into Morin's outstretched arms. Whelchel added the extra point and the Redmen were off and running, 7-0.

The Huskies took the kickoff following the UM score and reeled off 19 plays getting as far as the UMass four yard line before the drive bogged down. The Huskies had to settle for a field goal, a 32 yard affair by halfback Dick Seely. Up to Seely's three-pointer the Redmen had held all opposition scoreless for 186 minutes and 20 seconds of play.

Penalties and an intercepted pass killed off two more UMass scoring threats in the second quarter. A clipping penalty and a holding penalty hampered the Redmen as they operated deep in UConn territory. At one point the Redmen had a second down on the UC nine, but a holding penalty put them back on Conn's 24.

On fourth down on the UConn 20 UMass's Terry Swanson decided to get into the field goal act. His attempt was short and the ball was picked up by Husky back Dave Karponi who returned it to the 25 where he was hit and fumbled the ball which Freddy Lewis picked up.

A CARRY BY PALM, a pass to Morin, and another carry by Palm gave UM a first down on the UConn 13. A pass by Whelchel was intercepted by Brian Smith. Just before the half ended Whelchel intercepted an Ace-to pass to the UM five.

The third quarter turned out to be a contest between punters. UMass's Phil Vandersee, and UConn's Jeff McConnell each punted three times. Swanson had one of his boots blocked by the Huskies but no harm was done.

In the fourth and final frame the Redmen broke the game open when fullback Warren scored two TD's both from three yards out.

Warren's first score capped an 11 play, 90 yard drive. Starting from his own ten Whelchel mixed up his calls well, sending Phil De Rose, Lewis and Warren through the Husky defenses to the UM 44. A Whelchel to Morin pass put the ball at mid field for a first down. Whelchel carried himself to the 45 of UConn and then sent Art Warren on the draw play to the 13.

Freddy Lewis, closely surveiled all day by UConn defenders, was thrown for a two yard loss. On second down and 12 Ken Palm knifed forward to the three to set the stage for Warren's TD plunge. Whelchel kicked the extra point.

The Huskies ran three plays after the UM score and were forced to punt, the Redmen get-

(Continued on page 7)

DICK WARREN leading groundgainer for Redmen at Storrs.

Harriers Tri Meet Victors Brouillet Team Leader

THE VARSITY CROSS COUNTRY TEAM put on a great display of clutch running last Friday as the Redmen proved to be most impolite hosts. The team literally "ran away" with the meet. UMass had a score of 30, followed by Providence (46), UConn (72), and B.U. (95).

Captain Bob Brouillet continued undefeated as he walked away from the field. A cold slowed Bob down so that he did not get the course record, but his time of 24:31.4 was 43 seconds ahead of Paul Scott of B.U., the second place finisher.

The Redmen went into this meet knowing that if they wanted to do good the rest of the season they would have to beat Providence. Following Digger's example, the team let nothing stop them. Senior Gene Colburn ran one of the best races he has ever run while at UMass, as he beat junior Bob Ramsey for fourth place in the meet and second place on the team. Ramsey seemed to be dead tired at the 4 mile mark, but he put on a great kick to overhaul 4 Providence men in the last ¾ of a mile, and took fifth place in the meet. Ramsey's time of 25:39 is 15 seconds faster than his best time on this course last year.

Sophomore Bob Molvar took ninth in the meet, and junior Tom Panke was eleventh. Panke's performance was particularly encouraging as this is the first real good race Tom has run this year, and a lot of the team's hopes ride on his shoulders. Bob Larson and Al McPhail rounded out the top seven finishers for UMass. Although the places taken by Ron Oakland, Jim Collins, Russ Murphy, John Urban, and Paul Barents did not effect the Redmen's score, they all deserve credit for their fine performances.

PERHAPS more important than the fine performances turned in Friday was the fact that the Redmen started closing the gap between the runners. Bob Brouillet beat Gene Colburn

(Continued on page 7)

Manlius Prep Downs Little Redmen 19-12

by KEVIN COYLE

LAST SATURDAY, THE FRESHMAN football team opened its season against a strong Manlius Prep squad. The frosh put up a good show despite the result.

It looked like a good day at the start when UMass recovered its own kickoff on the Manlius 30 yard line. Al Caruso capped the thirty yard drive with a seventeen yard scoring pass to Dick Qualey; the conversion attempt failed. Manlius then put on a nice sustained march of eighty yards with Tom Kyasky scoring on a nineteen yard option run, Bill Boucek then kept the score tied by missing the PAT. Midway in the second quarter the freshman made a nice drive from their own 27 to paydirt where Ted Hoague grabbed Al Caruso's pass.

Dana Lockhart and Paul Campbell did most of the roadwork while Dick Qualey and Ron Durkin snatched Al Caruso passes to keep the drive varied. The team kept alive its tradition by not making the conversion again. Their commanding 12-6 lead lasted twelve seconds by the scoreboard clock as Tony Kyasky took the following kickoff ninety-six yards for a score. Manlius also bungled the conversion and things were even again. The first twenty minutes of the second half were even. Then UMass started making mistakes and suffering from an apparent lack of stamina. Manlius, capitalizing on UMass mistakes, marched forty-three yards with Bill Boucek plunging over from the 2 yard line. The PAT was good and it was all over for the class of '67. Manlius then played hard defense and ball control until the siren. The final score: 19-12, Manlius.

COACH DON JOHNSON was pleased by his club's showing against the experienced Manlius team which has quality, proven by its 3-0 record. The coach was particularly happy over the play of guard-linebacker Bob Santucci who played a good, hard-hitting game. Quarterbacks Al Caruso and Joe Belforte looked good with Caruso calling smartly and Belforte exhibiting a good arm with a couple of fifty yard almosts.

UNIV. OF MASS. THEATRE
Presents
The Twin Menaechmi
October 17, 18, 19 :: 8:15 p.m.
Matinee October 19 :: 2:15 p.m.
Tickets on sale at Student Union Box Office
CALL 545-0111 ALL SEATS RESERVED, $1.50

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn
Breakfast — 50¢
Lunch — 50¢ up
THE OPEN HEARTH STEAKHOUSE
BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

Dorothy Heath
LIBRARY

LIBRARY
OCT 21 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 14 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1963

Brubeck Quartet To Be Finale Of Homecoming

Coach Vic Fusia extends a telephone invitation to all alumni to fill stands for annual Homecoming game with the University of Rhode Island this Saturday. Vying for title of Queen of Homecoming Weekend are: (from l. to r., front row,) Anne Marie Creeden, '66; Elaine Howe, '66. (Back row) Sandy Pierce, '67; Judy Sturtevant, '67; Vicki Lippman, '67.

The Dave Brubeck Quartet, one of the world's leading progressive jazz groups, will present a concert this Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Curry Hicks Cage.

Tickets for the Brubeck concert are now on sale at the S.U. box office.

The event is being sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, men's service fraternity. Proceeds will go to the art acquisition fund, which is earmarked to furnish a gallery in the University's projected Fine Arts Center.

Brubeck has been improvising musical themes since his youth in Concord, Calif. At Mills College in Oakland, Calif., he organized an experimental jazz group known as "The 8."

"The 8" happened to be heard by impressario Jimmy Lyons and pianist Marie Coppin, who reported the find of a new jazz musician and composer to Paul Speegle, then NBC program director.

Since that time, Brubeck has made jazz history. For some years he has been the world's top record seller and one of the most sought-after personalities in the field of jazz.

Each member of the Dave Brubeck Quartet is an acclaimed musician in his own right.

Paul Desmond, alto sax, is considered by many critics to be far and away the world's number one musician on the alto saxophone.

Joe Morello, the Quartet's drummer, has won one poll after another in recent years.

Gene Wright, the newest member of the Quartet, joined the group in 1958. Before that, the outstanding bassist had been featured with Count Basie, Cal Tjader and Red Norvo.

The Quartet's latest record offerings include "Dialogues for Jazz Combo and Orchestra," done with Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic and a version of Brubeck's musical show, "The Real Ambassadors."

Governor's Council Topic Of Heated Debate

A debate (sponsored by the Political Science Club) held Monday night featured Mrs. Bruce Benson, president of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, and Governor's Councilor Raymond F. Sullivan debating on 'Should the powers of the Governor's Council be limited?" Sullivan said the council saved the taxpayers $350.000 by not approving two landtaking deals in Mashpee and Springfield. He said the land in Mashpee is now under water, and Springfield is now involved in settlements with the New Haven Railroad.

Concluding his 15-minute address, Sullivan said "if you don't like the individuals on the Governor's Council, get rid of them. But don't get rid of this important check and balance."

Mrs. Benson rapidly countered by saying that "It is important to remove the statutory powers of the Governor's Council in order to strengthen the executive branch of the government." The League of Women Voters is trying to obtain 64,000 certified voters' signatures on a petition

(Continued on page 6)

Phi Eta Sigma, the freshmen men's honor society, announces that it will begin its program of freshmen tutoring on Monday, October 21. The times when the help sessions will meet, as well as the courses in which they will be offered, will be announced later this week.

University Acts On Year-Round Operations While Students Sleep

by KEN BERK

Year round operation is now a part of UMass whether anyone likes it or not.

At the start of the academic year, there was an article in the Collegian discussing the three proposals of the AD HOC committee on Year Round Operation.

These three proposals were:

(1) A first term comparable to the present fall semester, but opening before Labor Day and closing before Christmas.

(2) A second term comparable to the present spring semester, but opening near January First and closing the first week of May.

(3) A split third term beginning early in May and ending the latter part of August, but divided into two parts—a six week session foliowed by a nine week session.

These proposals were put before the Student Senate, and the Senate sent them out to committee to be re-submitted as separate proposals. While the Senate has done this, the administration has gone right ahead and has already adopted proposal number three for the coming summer session. The only difference being that the session will start one week after the close of the second semester, and will have two six week terms (a minor change in the proposal).

The question now being asked is why did the administration adopt a proposal while the senate was still "acting" on it? Many feel that the students did not care enough to ask questions about the program. In fact, the student attitude towards the whole concept has been one of apathy, instead of one of criticism or enthusiasm.

There is still a chance before the administration adopts the other two proposals. Write into the Collegian and express your opinion—pro or con. The view that the administration has taken on the apathy of the students was expressed as follows: "unless the students express their opinions then the administration will feel that whatever they do concerning year round operation will be all right with the student body."

Famous Choral Group Will Appear Tomorrow

The Schola Cantorum of New York, one of the world's foremost choral groups, will appear in concert Thursday, Oct. 17, in the Curry Hicks Cage at the University of Massachusetts.

Sponsored by the UMass Concert association, the event is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door.

The Schola Cantorum company, under director Hugh Ross, consists of 20 singers and six instrumentalists.

The group was organized in 1909 by Kurt Schindler as a chorus for the New York Philharmonic. In 1927 Schindler resigned and Hugh Ross was made permanent conductor.

Arturo Toscanini engaged the Cantorum in Ross' second year as director. Toscanini never used any other chorus with the Philharmonic.

The Schola has participated in ballet performances with the Sadlers' Wells Ballet, at the Metropolitan Opera and with

(Continued on page 5)

Harp Trio In Concert In S.U. Ballroom Tonite

The Daphne Hellman Trio, who will appear here tonight at 8 p.m. under the auspices of Arts and Music Committee was formed five years ago. They are great favorites of colleges and concert series across the nation and the top supper clubs in New York, making their debut at the Waldorf. Their Columbia record "Holiday for Harp" is a top seller in both Stereo and Monaural.

For the past two summers The Daphne Hellman Trio played at Holiday House, Wellfleet, Massachusetts, for a wide audience ranging from Cape Cod intellectuals who clamored for Bach and Scarletti to army patrons from Camp Wellfleet who hoped for hillbilly music, and the cool jazz fans from Storeyville.

Miss Hellman loves to travel. She has played in Ireland, France, Germany, Ghana, Nigeria and Nassau, and is looking forward to a tour of the Far East, Australia and New Zealand.

FROSH ELECTIONS TOMORROW

Elections for the Freshman Class offices will be held in the Student Union lobby tomorrow from 8:30-5:00. A record turnout is expected.

Univ. Women Hold Dance For Alumni

Returning UMass alumni are cordially invited to attend a Homecoming dance for faculty, administration and alumni to be held on October 19, Saturday evening, starting at 9 o'clock.

The dance, to be held in the alumni building, Memorial Hall, will feature music by the Bob Jeffway Quartet.

Mrs. Frederick Glatz and Mrs. Jack Delaney, co-chairmen, announced that tickets will be on sale at the door or that reservations may be made by calling either Mrs. Daniel Melley, 253-5306, or Mrs. William Venman, 253-5155.

This will be the first of two alumni-faculty dances to be sponsored by the University Women. The second dance will be held in February. Tickets purchased for both dances may be obtained at a special rate.

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

A Conservative View

To Each According To His Need

Yes, of course, "to each according to his needs." Not according to what he produces, not according to what he earns, but ACCORDING TO HIS NEEDS. Think about this. This is the banner of socialism. This is the motto of the new rulers of the world, whether they be the Nikita Khrushchev of Socialist Russia, the Mao Tse Tung of Communist China, or John F. Kennedy of our own Welfare State.

—Oh!, I'm sorry!, this isn't a welfare state, is it. That's right too, it's a capitalist democracy. We don't believe in socialism do we. Of course not. Well, we may be a little "liberal," but not in the least pink.

We in the United States of America don't believe that collectivism is right and good. BUT WE PRACTICE IT ANYWAY. We pay farmers not to produce (farm support). The farmers need this. We pay unwed mothers more and more money for each new illigitimate child (ADC). They need this. (Besides, it lets us feel good—humanitarian and all.) We pay able-bodied men to sit on their asses (unemployment compensation). They need this. They are out of work. They can't find a job. (It also seems that they are unable to read the classified ads.) The poor, the needy, the destitute NEED us. Their need is a blank check—with YOUR signature at the bottom of it.

But again, that depends also on this: Are you "we," or are you "they." I stand as I (singular).

Rick Cass

A Liberal Poke

"See You Under A Tree"

Quick! The Russians have just dropped a bomb on Boston. What do you do, where do you go? Last year the answers to these questions would have stymied the best minds on campus. Now, however, answers to these questions are available. The 8500 or so students, faculty and administration would all go to the nearest fall-out shelter. Does it really matter if the fall-out shelters on campus do not have the total capacity of even a thousand? Of course not, for we realize that living conditions throughout the University are cramped.

But let us stop for a minute and think the problem out rationally. Who of these 8500 should be saved and who should not? It goes without saying that the administration (along with RSO) must be the first to be saved. It is they who must bring the enrollment of our school to 20,000 by 1975. Where would the University be if we were to lose them.

With the administration safely tucked away it would naturally follow that the faculty (or at least those who had published) would be the next to enter. We then find to our amazement that there is room for some students. It is obvious that not any average, run-of-the-mill student should be saved. The answer is really quite simple. It should be those "student leaders" whose dedication to the school up to now has been unrewarded that should be saved. Yes, it should be the most intelligent and dedicated of the student body who should survive.

One does not need to be a mathematician to figure that some of us will be left out. Well, see you under a tree.

R.S.P.

A REVIEW

Boston Symphony At Smith

by LANGDON F. LOMBARD

On Sunday night, October 13, at John M. Greene Hall on the campus of Smith College, a capacity house listened with what should have been great enthusiasm to the unfolding of two great works: the Beethoven Symphony No. 2 in D Major and the Prokofiev Symphony No. 5, Op. 100, and well they might have as these two works are too long neglected giants evidently unfamiliar with the audience.

The work by Beethoven is described by many to be his first "Pastoral" symphony. This was brought out with careful detail by Mr. Leinsdorf especially in the low strings and the higher woodwinds. Not only were the strings quite stoggy where it was applicable but the high lyrics of the winds sang much as Beethoven must have wanted them.

It was unfortunate that this work is not more familiar; the audience may have realized what sort of genius was taking place on stage.

Much the same could be said about the Prokofiev except that the message of the composer was quite different. Prokofiev intended it "as a hymn to free and happy Man, to his mighty power, his pure and noble spirit." To accomplish this feat, the composer scored a rather large tympani section calling for bass drum, cymbals, kettle drums, and military drum. It was felt that the audience because of its unfamiliarity with the work was loath to accept such bombastics.

But it was a concert to be remembered by the audience that knew the works as a mile stone, not only of Mr. Leindorf's insistance to present often neglected works, but also as a tribute to one of America's finest orchestras whose versatility one can no longer question.

Letters To The Editor

O. G. Not U. T.

To the Editor:

The review of Pirandello's "Six Characters" in last Friday's Collegian stated in part: "Thanks to the aid of the University Theater Guild, the lighting was smooth and professional." The fine lighting was the product of many hours of hard work by members of the Operetta Guild, not University Theater. Their contribution is an example of the cooperation which has always existed among STUDENT GROUPS on this campus.

John Burke, Chairman
Distinguished Visitors Program

THE DOUBLE STANDARD

Dear Double Standard:

After reading your article I could not help but write to show my 100% agreement with you concerning the problem of a double standard. The only trouble is that we seem to have a trifle disagreement as to where the double standard is to be found. It is my opinion (and that of many other students) that the only double standard involved is that of a "sincere, virtuous, and respectful picture of the molders of men's lives" that the fraternities disseminate via rushing media (I kept my 1960 copy of your IFC descriptions of fraternities for reference) and the actual breakdown of human dignity that the fraternity really represents. I often wonder if much of their literature is not for Parents Only.

I realize that I have left myself open to charges ranging from immature to prohibitionist (relax . . . the party gets fewer votes all the time), but I have a difficult time, as I consider what I have seen in the last three years, believing or supporting the theory that as a 20% minority (?) the fraternities account for only a relatively few of the supported legs or guided hands on this campus . . . what about those who go to the parties as non-members, and those being rushed?

The villain of our age is not hatred or bigotry but silence. "The Good Life" and all those who believe in it should speak and put forth their own ideas and stand openly in opposition to those things that they disapprove of . . . this is maturity. I extend this request to the administration as well as students for it seems to me that the administration must do more than send dainty little letters from the Complex.

For references to use by those wishing to do further study on the topics touched on here I suggest the following:

1. U.M. Handbook 1963-4, p. 61
2. Friendly Chats With the Housemother
3. Three years of Observation (close and distant versions)
4. Two books by Any Janitor titled "There's a Lot of Barf on Weekends," and "I Made . Fortune in 16 oz. Cups."

Sincerely,
Independent

Congrats To Collegian

To the Editor:

I was very pleased to learn that the Collegian will be distributed free to all faculty and staff members. You and those responsible for making this possible are to be congratulated for what I am certain will be a significant contribution to the welfare of our University community.

Sincerely yours,
Gerald J. Grady
Business Manager

To the Editor:

Please accept my sincere thanks for your decision to distribute copies of the Collegian to each member of the faculty. This is truly a forward-looking move and I am confident that it is deeply appreciated by the vast majority of the members of the faculty. It seems to me that both students and faculty stand to gain from this new policy. You and all of the students who participated in the decision deserve to be congratulated.

Sincerely yours,
Gilbert L. Woodside
Provost

To the Editor:

I want to express my deep appreciation to the staff of the Collegian and those responsible for the control of student funds for making the Collegian available to all members of the faculty. I value this very highly as a means for keeping in touch with student thought.

Sincerely yours,
Clarence Shute
Dept. of Philosophy

The Massachusetts Collegian

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP

MEMBER

Editor-in-Chief:	Jeffrey Davidow '65
Editorial Editor:	John B. Childs
Assoc. Editorial Editor:	George Masselam
News Editor:	Elwin McNamara '64
Photography Editor:	Ron Goldberg '66
Sports Editors:	Scott Freedland '66
	Richard Ryan '66
Business Manager:	Courtney Brickman '64
News Makeup Editor:	James Schmalz '65
Feature Editor:	David Axelrod '65

Advertising Manager: Ted "Omar" Weinberg
Staff: Roy Blitzer, John Darack, Al Kadish, Jeff Gale
Subscription Manager: Marty Rosendorf
Business Co-ordinator: Ingrid Krohn

NEWS

Sunday Rewrite: Jackie Benuvais, Rita Cerutti, Elaine Corsi
Tuesday Rewrite: Marilyn Rosen, Sally Shea, Marcia Sutherland
Thursday Rewrite: Harold Gushue, Karen Shelley
Assignment: Nancy Devlin, Judy Doyle
Reporters:
Ann Baxter, Ken Berk, Joe Bradley, Steve Curtis, Mike Dymerski, Nancy Fogg, Dave Haracz, Don Johnson, Steve Levine, Ann Miller, Lee Mullane, Russell Murphy, Mary Norton, Ethan O'Brien, Kathleen Osterberg, Linda Paul, Oleh Pawluk, Lois Skolnick, Joan St. Laurent, Leo Staniake, Terry Stock

Feature: Don Johnson, Pat Long, Carol Lufkin, Anne Pincess, Michael Herrini, Edna Bieghley, Doris Peltonen, Jay Isgur, Oleh Pawluk, Bob Weber, Rosuire Malone, Don Glosband, Harold Gushe, Linda Valonen, Ethan O'Brien, Margaret VanderBurgh, Andrew Dolain, Doris Peltonen

Makeup: Michael Rothschild, Robert Martin, Michael Stone, Selig Adler, Richard Cuniff

PHOTOGRAPHY

Mary Roche, Andi Beauchemin, Darryl Fine, Bill Green, Don Willoughby, Jan Baker, Nina Pearlmutter, Elaine Maltzman, Harvey Stone

SPORTS

Gene Colburn, Steve Hewey, John Goodrich, Robert Healy, John Reynolds, Dave Garber, Marsha Karol, Helen Forsberg

EDITORIAL

Marc Cheren, Marcia Elasowith, Sandra Burlingome, Mike Herch, Dave Harez, Rick Cass, Ron Aliferis, Joan Shustra, Steve Orlen, Sam Gorvine, James Cortese, Joe Dolan, Elwin McNamara, David Axelrod, George Masselam

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press: Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

National Newspaper Week — Oct. 13-19

Lord, Give Me This Day!

by Ralph McGill
Editor, The Atlantic Constitution

It is written in Proverbs that a word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver.

The beauty of that simile teaches rumility, especially to an advertising or newspaper man, whose job it is to use words. And I am one who believes (and I write as a sentimentalist about our business) that all of us, ad men, reporters, publishers, owners, editors—all of us—have need of humility before the power that is in the words which we produce. I never go down to the press room, hearing and feeling the smooth hum of its precision speed, but that I feel humble before it. It is something like holding a sea shell up to the ear and hearing in it what a poet has told is the noise that time makes as it passes by on its inexorable march. The steady, muted roar of the presses seems to me the noise that words make—all the written words tapped out on typewriters, caught in the hot lines of type, pressed into the matrixes, bolted in metal plates to the drums of the press—all of them speaking at once to produce the steady voice of the presses as they print, fold, cut and count the pages of our newspapers, and saying "I am the power and the beauty of words."

I recall being taken to see an old editor when I was a young boy who had framed by his desk the familiar old motto:

"Lord, give me this day my daily idea, and forgive me the one I had yesterday."

There are days when all of us toiling in the vineyard of words have reason for that motto—so fast do things change, and so often is that which seemed so sure yesterday, today demonstrated to be not so sure.

The fact of a free press, and the full meaning of that phrase, I honestly believe, is the chief prop of this free nation. And God knows we bear a heavy responsibility. And truth, if it becomes trite, is yet truth. But, I say quite frankly, feeling my own guilt as I do, and pointing no accusing finger at anyone, that every publisher, every board of directors, every editor, and staff need to examine into the meaning of the phrase, "Freedom of the Press" and determine if they are using it as a tool or a cliche?

Certainly a free and responsible press, and a press which has something to say on its editorial pages, is of great value to advertisers. The ads are of more value in a newspaper where character and integrity are established.

I strongly believe that if we do not use our freedom in public service, in controversial issues, and in compassionate awareness of the human condition, we may—and should—lose our freedom.

It is gauranteed? To be sure it is. But, we are up against a fact. It is an important one for all Americans, to whom the daily paper, with its ads, its news, features and editorials, is as much a casual part of their lives as the bottle of milk left on the doorstep; and to those of us who write and produce newspapers. It is, namely, that nothing is guaranteed except it be guaranteed in the minds of the people and their loyalties.

I recall going to Austria at the time the Germans moved there in the spring of 1938. For me it was a sort of journey on the road to Damascus. There, for the first time, I watched all rights, guaranteed in a written, published constitution, disappear because the will for them had disappeared long before. I saw men and women arrested without warrant; I watched abuses of people because of their religion; I saw books burned and I saw magazines and newspapers from outside Austria removed. None dared protest. In fact, so bad was the economic and political situation in Austria that a majority of the people cheered the changes. I have never forgotten it. I have no wish to forget.

And so, today we will continue to enjoy, and have available, freedom of speech and press only so long as the people recognize that we use it and that we deserve that freedom.

It is important now, I believe, in this time of racial crisis to defend the one great American ideal—that of equality of citizenship. We Americans are a synthesis of many peoples, many races, many languages, and a diversity of religions. It is the ideal, the principle, that makes us American. It seems to me highly important that American newspapers play a part in establishing this principle for all Americans.

I strongly feel that to do the job of protecting freedom of press, we must become more and more like the image of our true selves which the Constitution of our country envisions. And that applies to all of us—ad men, news men, business men, professional men.

The people can understand and defend the press and the American system only if we understand and express our freedom.

The Collegian And The N. Y. Times

It may seem hard for the typical Collegian reader to associate Ralph McGill and President Kennedy with the three times weekly publication that appears on the University of Massachusetts campus.

It is at first difficult to associate such grandoise terms as "fredom of the press" and "the American system" with the paper that, more often than not, serves as a table cloth in the Commons.

However, the fact of the matter is that the Collegian is a newspaper, regardless of its size or effect. We hold as basic tenets all that every respectable newspaper in this nation does.

We take this opportunity along with every other newspaper in this country, from the New York Times on down, not so much to honor ourselves, but rather to reaffirm and restate our belief in the system of government which allows us to exist.

J.S.D.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

To The Newspapers of America:

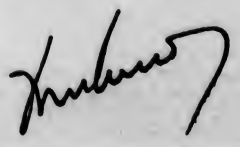
In these times of great events and decisions, the importance of which influence the entire world, newspapers play an increasingly important part in providing the information free people must have to be good citizens.

Critical examination of the policies and actions of our government by its citizens is essential to an open society. This primary role of the press carries with it the knowledge that with freedom comes responsibility.

No other nation in the world enjoys a press as responsive to the needs of freedom as the newspapers of our country. Newspapers in the United States make a big difference in people's lives, and have throughout our history.

In observing National Newspaper Week we are significantly aware that the vigilance of newspapers, together with their enormous capacity to inform, entertain, and provoke thoughtful analysis, is an essential ingredient of the framework of our daily lives.

We are fortunate to have a press which increasingly seeks higher standards of responsibility and service.



"COCA-COLA" AND "COKE" ARE REGISTERED TRADE-MARKS WHICH IDENTIFY ONLY THE PRODUCT OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY.

YEA TEAM fight... fight... fight... give em... the ax the ax the ax ...hold that line fight... fight... fight... ...YEA TEAM whew pause

things go better with Coke

TRADE-MARK

Coca-Cola

Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by:

COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO. OF NORTHAMPTON

Maintenance Department Services Our Campus

—Photo by Andi Beauchemin

The Maintenance Department is not only responsible for the upkeep of the campus, but must also repair University equipment.

by OLEH PAWLUK

As the average UMass student pursues his goal of acquiring a higher education, he has very little time to speculate on how the campus is kept in order. Such services as construction of sidewalks, campus lighting, and dormitory cleaning are taken for granted.

However, to see that such campus services, and countless others, are performed efficiently, is the responsibility of the University Maintenance Department. The nerve center of the Maintenance Department is a two story brick building located just below Flint Laboratory.

Six sections or sub-departments, each with its own director, comprise the Maintenance Department. Mr. Edmund J. Ryan, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, co-ordinates the work of the various sub-departments.

First of all, there is the Administrative staff. Under the direction of Mr. Thomas Quartulli, administrative employees process and estimate work requests, provide clerical services for the department, and maintain cost accounting information. Compiling budget information is also a part of their task.

A second sub-department is the Custodial Section, under the supervision of Mr. Paul Whitman. The responsibility of the janitors who comprise this section is to keep clean all dormitories and buildings on campus.

Perhaps the sub-department with the greatest variety of tasks to perform is the Grounds and Services Section. Here we find the motor pool where state vehicles are maintained and repaired by competent mechanics. This section also serves as the headquarters for the horticulturist and arboriculturist who care for the campus landscape. Road construction, trucking, and snow removal are but few of the numerous jobs which Superintendent of Grounds, Mr. George Mellen, has to direct.

Similarly, Mr. Francis Conway, Superintendent of the Building

(Continued on page 6)

In Defense Of Knowlege

by H. MAUN

The problem of immorality, as it were, exists only in the mind of the individual. The four girls who took issue with the article on sex education on the grounds of immorality were merely turning the other cheek. Without the use of contraceptives there is an excellent chance that those people indulging in premarital sex will contract both pregnancy and venerial disease. The question of whether or not there should be premarital sex was not dealt with because the author was dealing with reality; rather the issue involved was education as to the emotional, psychological and physical implications of premarital sex.

Society holds that while it is perfectly acceptable for a man to take a woman to bed, it is not in keeping with the "rules" of society of a woman to go to bed with a man. It is not necessary to get into a discussion of the relative merits and or implications of the double standard at this time but rather to concern ourselves with its application today, in real life, and here on the college campus.

By indulging in premarital sex, man is gratifying a basic and primordial urge. (The question of right or wrong must be left by the wayside—this can be determined only by the individuals involved—it is a matter of personal values and no one can expect to impose his values on the rest of humanity).

Again the problem of knowledge arises. Any male is free to learn from the experiences of his confreres because sexual relations are discussed openly and with a great deal of pride among the male population. The situation is precisely opposite for females; a woman rarely admits to having had sexual relations much less discuss them at length. A woman will go to a man for information because she knows, or feels that, another woman would condemn her.

Thus, the cry again goes out for more information. With a knowledge and understanding of premarital sex the woman is better equipped to handle the situation and possibly avoid getting "caught."

The Folk Scene

by BOB WEBER

The latest development in the folk idiom is the revival of jug bands. For those of you who don't know what a jug band is, as I didn't until this summer, a few words of explanation are needed here.

The jug band consists of guitar, washtub bass, kazoo, banjo, washboard and empty jugs somewhat akin to Snuffy Smith's corn squeezin' jug. The type of music played by these bands has been categorized as "Ragtime." Some range from "Walk Right In" to "Bill Bailey."

The leader of the current jug band revival is Jim Kweskin of Boston. Recently appearing at the Bitter End in the Village, Jim has recorded an album for Vanguard.

Folk music is being played on WMUA (91.1 FM) on Saturday nights from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. and on Thursday from midnight to 2 a.m. It's too bad that WMUA has not taken a realistic approach in its programming. There is not one folk show during weekday prime time (8 p.m. to midnight, according to a recent survey). If you wish to hear folk music on WMUA, and are unable to tune in the programs, write to WMUA, % Engineering Building, or call 545-2425.

The Vernacular

by INEZ BRAND

Don't feel doomed if someone has put a hex on you. Take a hint from Chickanga, Southern Africa's famous witch-hunter. Chikanga is presently engaged in freeing Nyasaland from witche.s Hundreds of possessed souls have come to him for treatment and he claims to have exorcised at least a thousand witches. Chikanga describes his method in this manner, "I make two cuts between the thumb and the index finger on each hand. Then I put a magic potion called 'dekani' on the cuts and the witch's magic goes away." In addition to his potion, Chikanga has numerous boxes and bottles to trap evil spirits.

A very Voodoo-like psychological method is practiced at an electrical plant in Japan. Employees of this plant who are ready to blow up at their boss are invited to step into the Human Control Room to let off steam. There they are provided with a stuffed effigy of their boss, which they may poke or punch or ram with a bamboo pole.

• • • •

Do you want to know how to chose your champagne? First-choice vintage wines available in the United States are 1943, 1945, 1947, 1949, 1952, 1953 and 1955. Connoisseurs consider many non-vintage wines excellent. Non-vintage champagne is a mixture of wines from various years and is less expensive than the vintage variety.

Maybe scotch is more your taste. If it is, bend elbows with forty thousand French men who seem to be rediscovering "le scotch". It all began when a solitary Paris bar (it loses something in the translation) began to serve straight scotch. The trend caught on and now straight scotch has become a status symbol.

(Continued on page 6)

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Birth Control Topic Of "Impulse"

Moral concepts of birth control will be discussed Thursday, October 17, at 7:00 on "IMPULSE" over campus radio station WMUA (91.1FM). The program will feature Reverend John A. Taylor of the Amherst Unitarian Church and Rabbi Arthur A. Langenauer of the Congregation B'Nai Israel in Northampton. A third participant will be announced shortly. Each guest will represent his church's beliefs concerning the morality of birth control.

Students, faculty members and all other interested listeners will be encouraged to submit questions to the panel members by telephoning WMUA (545-2425) during "IMPULSE." Unlike the "INTERACTION" series on Sunday evenings, the caller's voice will not be broadcast—his questions will be given directly to the moderator. "IMPULSE" is an hour-long program heard on alternate Thursdays at 7:00 P.M.

Dr. Bartlett Speaks On Medicine

Dr. James W. Bartlett, Assistant Professor of Psychiatry and Assistant Dean of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry, will speak on "Camels, Needles and Medical Education" Wed. at 7:30 p.m. in Room 203 of Morrill as a guest of the Pre-Med Club.

Dr. Bartlett received his A.B. at Harvard in 1948 and M.D. at Johns Hopkins in 1952. After completing his internship in 1954 at Strong Memorial Hospital, he became a resident at the University of Rochester with a USPHS Fellow in Psychiatry. In 1957 he remained at Rochester as an instructor; in 1961 he became Associate Psychiatrist.

After the lecture, pre-professional students will have an opportunity to discuss requirements, preparation, and applications for medical and dental schools.

NOTICES

ASTRONOMY CLUB

There will be a meeting of the Astronomy Club, Thurs., Oct. 17 in Room 100 of Hasbrouck Lab. at 8:00 p.m. All are invited. Dr. Yoss from Mt. Holyoke College will speak on Sub-Dwarfs.

CO-ED BILLIARDS

Co-ed Billiards Instruction to be offered in billiards area of Student Union on Thursdays at 11 o'clock. Starting date to be announced. Sign up in Student Activities Office.

BRIDGE LESSONS

Starting this Thurs. night at 7 p.m. for all beginners. In Nantucket room of S.U. at 7 p.m. for the experienced, there will also be available the regular contract duplicate game on Thurs. in the Plymouth Room 7 to 10 p.m.

CHESS CLUB

The Chess Club will meet Wednesday, Oct. 16 (tonight) at 8 p.m. in the Hampden Room of the Student Union. All potential members are invited to attend.

GAMES AND TOURNAMENT

The Games and Tournaments Committee is meeting in the Middlesex Room of the Student Union on Thurs., Oct. 17, at 11:15 a.m. The meeting is open to all those interested.

S. U. PUBLICITY COMMITTEE

There will be an open meeting of the publicity committee on Wednesday at 6:45 p.m. in the Worcester Room of the S. U.

(Continued on page 6)

New Parking Tags Issued

by TERRY STOCK

New parking tickets went into use on Tuesday, Oct. 15, as the drive to cut down parking violations on campus continues.

"These tickets will require that recipients wend their way to District Court in Northampton," stated Col. John Marchant.

The ticket, one copy of which will be placed on the vehicle, one sent to District Court, and one recorded in the campus police files, reads as follows:

This tag has been affixed because of a parking violation and must be returned personally to the Clerk of the District Court of Hampshire County, Main St., Northampton within 21 days, Sundays and holidays excepted.

Note: IF YOU ARE A VISITOR please provide the following and return this ticket personally, or by mail, to Police Headquarters, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.

Name .....
Address .....
Whom visited .....
Department .....

Campus drivers are reminded that a bona fide parking visitor is any person other than faculty, staff, or student parking a non-registered vehicle on campus.

Under the new ticket system the first parking violation will merely be recorded. The second ticket, however, will cost the violator $3.00, and all subsequent violations will involve a fine of $5.00 each.

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn
Breakfast — 50¢
Lunch — 50¢ up
THE OPEN HEARTH
STEAKHOUSE
BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

RENT A CAR
ECONO-CAR RENTAL SYSTEM
FEATURING CHRYSLER PRODUCTS
• GAS INCLUDED
$5.99 PER 24 HRS.
Plus Small Mileage Charge
Springfield 785-5314
Northampton 584-7277
Greenfield 774-4443

SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS
AMHERST Cinema
—NOW SHOWING --- Ends Saturday—
"MONDO CANE" DON'T MISS IT!
Sun. — "THE HAUNTING" Julie Harris

Music Man To Be A Campus Spectacular

Tickets will go on sale Monday for the Operetta Guild's production of Meredith Willson's The Music Man to be presented in Bowker Auditorium Oct. 31 thru Nov. 2. Evening performances are at 8:15 with a Saturday matinee at 2:00.

Jack Singer is starred in the title role of Prof. Harold Hill, the irrespressible swindler who cons an Iowa town into giving him money for starting a brass band—money he intends to run off with.

Peggy Jones will appear as the character of the spirited Marian the Librarian, who suspects the brash music man of some sort of skulduggery from the moment she meets him, thouh she is also attracted to him—as he is to her. Marian will sing some of the show's most lyrical songs. She also joins Harold in the lilting duet, "Till There Was You."

As her lisping kid brother, Richard Martin (Winthrop) has two show-stopping numbers to sing, "Gary, Indiana," and the "Wells Fargo Wagon" number that rings down the first act.

Dave Amsden, Jim Duncan, Doug Piersall, and Ben Winarski will appear as a quartet of Iowans who stroll in and out of the action with barber-shop harmonizing of three of Willson's most infectious songs. Some other roles are being filled by Dave Bachman as Mayor Shinn, Jane Abbiati as Eulalie Shinn, and Janet Bilodeau as Mrs. Paroo, the heroine's mother.

Wayne Lamb is director and choreographer for The Music Man. Costume mistress is Barbara Martin.

The Guild has rented original Broadway costumes from Van Horn; some of the Chorus costumes are originals from the 1912 period during the Taft administration.

Mass Women On WTTT

SDT sorority will face the University Women this Thursday on WTTT's Question Bowl, at 12:30. The program is similar to the College Bowl program which UMass will take part in late next month.

The program uses current events for its questions.

The SDT team is comprised of Roberta Bernstein, Bobbi Smith, and Elaine Kaplinsky.

Opposing them will be the University Women team of: Mrs. Bronislaw Honigberg Mrs. Robert W. Gage, and Mrs. Louis Gebhardt.

Deadline Extended For College Bowl

by DAVE HARACZ

"The sinking of the Lusitania was one of the events leading up to our entry into World War One. For ten points—of what European nation is Lusitania the ancient name?"

If you know the answer to this question, which was used in recent tests to determine eligibility of College Bowl applicants, you may be a good candidate for competition. Although the deadline for applications is officially past, Dr. Albert P. Madeira, who is conducting the tests, has indicated a willingness to accept applications of those who still feel that they might qualify.

In preparation for the November 24 competition, it was announced at a meeting Monday evening that the field has been narrowed to approximately 25 of the original 70 or more applicants. This number will be further reduced to 16 finalists after this week's testing, and it is hoped that the final team of four can be selected by November 1.

Incidentally, the answer to the above question is Portugal. If you got it, or even if you're interested in the contest and feel you could qualify, see Dr. Madeira at 451 Bartlett, or inquire at the News Office.

Schola Cantorum ...

(Continued from page 1)

the New York City Ballet.

The group has also appeared at the annual United Nations celebrations, and—under the direction of Leonard Bernstein—took part in the opening ceremony of Philharmonic Hall in New York City's Lincoln Center.

After the choral group's 1962 Carnegie Hall concert, the New York Herald Tribune wrote, "Mr. Ross is a first-class musician and a very cultivated one ... the Schola is a fine organization—they work with enthusiasm and are always well worth hearing."

The Schola Cantorum's soloists are Judith Keller, mezzo soprano; William Wiederanders, bass-baritone; Barbara Freeman and Kay Winkler, soprano; Jane Gunter, alto, and Richard McComb, tenor.

In its University concert, the Schola will present folk songs, traditional masterpieces and works of contemporary composers.

fashion notes to pass in class

CO-EDS . . . you're invited to see our "kicky collection" . . . casuals that put a swing in your step . . . a sparkle in your smile . . . town and campus clothes that rate straight A's for you in fashion!

Ann August

Charge Accounts EASILY OPENED!

104 No. Pleasant St. Amherst, Mass.
(FREE PARKING IN REAR)

Journalism Professor To Speak In New York

Dr. Arthur Musgrave, professor of English and Journalism, will speak this week at the New York convention of the Associated Press that will be attended by representatives of The Collegian and Index.

Dr. Musgrave is to report on "The Excessive Time Problem in College Student Journalism," at a convention session at the New Yorker hotel on Oct. 19, at 11 a.m.

The New York meeting is a joint convention of the A.C.P. and the Nat'l Council of College Publications Advisers. Other speakers include Dean Barrett of Columbia University, Professor Fred Kildow of the University of Minnesota, and professional editors who work on newspapers and magazines in New York.

When asked what he was going to say about the time spent by editors, Dr. Musgrave said he was going to present the results of a questionnaire survey financed by a faculty research grant.

Collegian Editor Jeff Davidow will be a delegate to the convention, as will Index Managing Editor Sussanna Rybak.

CLUB DIRECTORY

ACCOUNTING ASSOCIATION
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 22, at 7 p.m. in the S.U. All accounting majors are welcome, especially freshmen.

A.F.A.S.S.
Meeting for all members and prospective members on Wed., Oct. 16, at 6:30 p.m. See Bob Wilfong for place of meeting.

CAESURA
Staff meeting on Wed., Oct. 16, at 6 p.m. in the Barnstable room of the S.U. Manuscripts will be judged. All members please attend.

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
Vesper service on Wed., Oct. 16, at 9:30 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U.

COMMUTERS CLUB
Meeting of the facility committee on Thurs., Oct. 17, at 11:15 a.m. in the Franklin room of the S.U. All members urged to attend. Urgent business.

CONCERT ASSOCIATION
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 16, at 6:30 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. Final preparations for the Schola Cantorum concert will be made.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in WoPE. Lessons will be conducted.

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
No meeting this Fri., Oct. 18.

WOMAN'S INTERDORM COUNCIL
There will be a meeting of the Woman's Interdorm Council Thurs., Oct. 17, at 11:30 a.m. in the Worcester Room of the S. U.

OPERETTA GUILD
Anyone interested in working on any of the tech crews for the Music Man is asked to attend a meeting on Thurs., Oct. 18, at 8 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. If you cannot attend, contact Lang Reynolds.

PANHELLENIC REGISTRATION
Last two days of sorority registration are Wed., Oct. 16, at 4 p.m. and Thurs., Oct. 17, at 11 a.m. All those who intend to rush must register.

POLITICAL SCIENCE ASSOCIATION
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 17, at 11 a.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U. All members urged to attend.

PRE-MED CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in Morrill Aud. Dr. James W. Bartlett will speak on medical and dental school admissions.

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 17 at 6:30 p.m. in the Men's PE Bldg. Basic instruction will be given. Newcomers and coeds welcome.

Notices . . .

(Continued from page 5)

HOMECOMING DANCE
The 1963 Homecoming Dance will be held this Saturday evening at 8 p.m. in the S. U. Ballroom. The theme will be "Golden Harvest." Dress will be semi-formal. Gus Perfito's 7-piece orchestra will provide the music. Admission will be $1.50 per couple. Tickets are on sale at the S. U. ticket window.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEER'S
The first meeting of the IEEE Wed., Oct. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the S. U. New members are invited.

Fraternity Cross Section: Phi Mu Delta

This year, the UMass chapter of Phi Mu Delta is celebrating its tenth year on campus.

The chapter is proud to announce the election of five brothers to the Student Senate. Jay Blodgett, and John Murphy (Hills North); Joe Piecuch (Baker); and Richard Darling, who won as a write-in candidate in the special runoff election for Fraternity Senator.

Jim Watson, who also serves on the Senate has been appointed to chairmanship of the Men's Affairs committee.

Other brothers recently elected or appointed to campus organizations are: Richard Rose — Chairman, IFC Services committee; Robert Cavalucci, Chairman of the Military Ball committee; Robert N. Simmons— Vice President, Political Science Assoc.; and Robert L. Cady— President, Accounting Assoc.

In the academic sphere, David Conners has been selected for Tau Beta Phi, national honor fraternity for engineers.

In addition, the brothers would like to thank the sisters of Tri Sigma for their excellent participation at our exchange supper.

Maintenance Dept. . . .

(Continued from page 4)

Maintenance Section, has a variety of services to co-ordinate. Employees in this section include painters, carpenters, plumbers, masons, electricians, and steamfitters. There is even a typewriter repairman who keeps all campus owned typewriters clicking.

The Utilities Section, located in the power plant, has one of the most vital functions on campus. The power plant, under the supervision of Mr. Lionel David, is always a beehive of activity, for work proceeds around the clock to supply the university with constant electric service.

Mr. Wallace Janeck is in charge of the sixth section of the Maintenance Department, Central Stores. The main responsibility of this section is the procurement and issue of all materials used on campus, except foods and chemicals. Processing of stock items is done by IBM and the UMass Central Stores Section is one of the few pioneers in the development of an automated inventory control system.

Located with Central Stores is the receiving and shipping center of the campus, directed by Mr. Joseph Sarna. Mr. Sarna has a great length of service behind him, having worked over 40 years for the university.

Currently, there are some 285 full-time employees in the Maintenance Department. In addition, 8 students are now employed on a part-time basis. During summer the student help in the department increases to about 25.

In conjunction with the Placement Office, the Maintenance Department has always been ready to provide employment for students in need of financial aid. Many a student has paid his tuition bill from earnings derived in part-time work for the department.

Although errors sometimes occurr in campus services, such discrepencies should not be regarded as signs of antagonism toward the student body. The major concern of the Maintenance Department, as well as all other departments on campus, has been, and will continue to be, the welfare of the individual student.

New Student Publication Critique

Do you care about the quality of teaching on this campus? Do you wish there were more information available as to the nature of upperclass courses and the approaches taken by the men giving them? Do you want to help start a new publication on campus? If you've answered in the affirmative, then you (whatever your class) are the kind of person needed on the staff of the "Critique". No prior experience is necessary.

All that is asked is a sincere effort to contribute your talents toward creating a responsible publication to serve this campus. Whether you would like to design the cover or the questionnaires, do publicity or copy, interview professors or administrators, write articles, or compile results, or perform any of the many other functions that will make The Critique a reality, Critique has a position for you.

The Critique staff will be meeting every Thursday evening at seven, in the Student Union. The first meeting, this Thursday, will be held in the Council Chambers B.

Lost and Found

FOUND' Bike padlock found near Thatcher, Thurs., Oct. 10. Contact Sue Allen, Lewis House.

LOST: A light green jacket lost sometime last week. Reward. If found contact Gerald Irish, 469 Hills South.

LOST: A pair of glasses in a grey case lost between Men's PE Building and Brett. Reward. Contact Jerry Stefarski, 134 Brett.

LOST: Reward. Two rings and a watch lost in Men's Phys. Ed. Building. New Bedford H.S. ring with initials C.M.I. Contact Charles Inacio, 420 Brett.

LOST: Philosophy book "Knowledge and Value". If found please contact Dave Anderson at Zeta Nu; 253-2042.

LOST: Prescription sunglasses with brown frames. Please return to Rose Graboski, 337 Van Meter N.

STUDENT ZIONIST ASSOCIATION
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 16, at 8 p.m. in the Worcester A room of the S.U. The talk will be "Arab Rights in Israel."

UNITED CHRISTIAN FOUNDATION
The study of the book For the Life of the World will begin with an organizational meeting on Thurs., Oct. 17, at 6:30 p.m. in Machmer E-15.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 16 at 8 p.m. in the Franklin room of the S.U. All are welcome.

S.Z.O. Lecture: Arab Rights In Israel

On Wednesday, October 16, at 8 p.m. in room Worcester A of the Student Union, the Zionist Organization will present a talk, followed by a discussion, on "Arab Rights in Israel" by Yehoshua Tidhar.

Yehoshua—Josh as he is called by his friends—is studying at the University on a scholarship in the field of Agriculture. Josh was born in Haifa and attended elementary school in Tel Aviv. He then attended Kafar Silver, an agricultural high school near Ashkelon. Following his graduation Josh spent the next two and a half years in the army as a communications sergeant with the Paratroops. After his tour of duty he was chosen by the headmaster of Kafar Silver as the recipient of the scholarship which brings him here today.

S.Z.O. cordially invites all those interested to attend.

Vernacular . . .

(Continued from page 4)

A salute to you sports fans. Adios Butler was honored as harness racing's Horse-of-the-Year for 1960 and 1961.

Ladies interested in sports will find encouragement from Robert McGirr, president of the Billiard Room Proprietors of the United States. Mr. McGirr says that ladies are visiting pool halls these days. New attractive billiard rooms have drawn many ladies to this sport.

Debate . . .

(Continued from page 1)

to limit the powers of the council.

She also said one solution would be to eliminate the Council's power of approval of appointments in order to free the governor to make his own appointments. Mrs. Benson thinks the administration should handle the power of approving land deals and contracts, and suggested creation of an accounting commission.

In rebuttal, Sullivan, referring to Mrs. Benson's statement comparing the government to a large corporation, pointed out that a president of a large corporation has a board of directors.

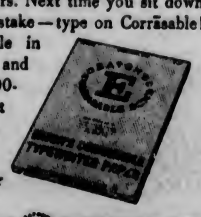
Mrs. Benson countered by saying that "The present governor is overchecked and unbalanced because of the Governor's Council."

We all make mistakes...

ERASE WITHOUT A TRACE ON EATON'S CORRASABLE BOND

Typing errors never show on Corrāsable. The special surface of this paper makes it possible to erase without a trace—with just an ordinary pencil eraser. Results: clean-looking, perfectly typed papers. Next time you sit down at the keyboard, make no mistake—type on Corrāsable!

Your choice of Corrāsable in light, medium, heavy weights and Onion Skin. In handy 100-sheet packets and 500-sheet boxes. Only Eaton makes Corrāsable.



A Berkshire Typewriter Paper

EATON PAPER CORPORATION PITTSFIELD, MASS.

144 BRIDGE STREET :: SPRINGFIELD
(Across from Bus Terminal)
Open 9 a.m.-9 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

FOR ALL VACATION and TRANSPORTATION NEEDS

AIRLINE TICKETS AND RESERVATIONS

Tours - Cruises - Sightseeing
Official Tariff Rates

Limousine to Bradley Field
Leaves from Our Front Door

Call Collect to SPRINGFIELD 781-3343

Warren Shines As Clutch Workhorse

by JOHN GOODRICH

Late in the fourth quarter of Saturday's game at UConn, the Redmen were driving for a score. A familiar cry from the stands was "Give the ball to Warren." Co-capt. Dick Warren did score that touchdown plus another one. He was also the leading yard gainer with 68 yards.

Warren had been relegated to the second team this year and got into the game on offense after Mike Ross had sustained an injury. It is not enough to say that Warren was placed on the second team, the story needs some explanation.

In his sophomore year, Warren was a 190 lbs. fullback. At the end of the season the coaching staff decided to try him at a halfback position. Warren reported that fall weighing a little over 170. Through a series of mishaps, UMass lost its fullbacks and Warren had to take over the position. Playing at that weight is no easy task, but Warren managed to come up with the vital yardage expected from a power driving fullback.

This year the Redmen have two proven teams. Warren plays defense on the first team and offense on the second. He was asked to take the position of leadership for this unit and he accepted. Yet from the way Warren hits in practice it is obvious that he does not want to let any one forget that he isn't first line material. Only the fact that both fullbacks had proven ability, led to Warren's being placed on the second team. Jack Delaney, backfield coach, sums up the consensus of opinion on the hard driving fullback this way, "Dick Warren is a symbol of what every football player strives to be."

Bits and Pieces: Kick-off specialist Milt Morin put three of his four kicks Saturday out of the endzone . . . The other was right down on the goal line . . . Jerry Whelchel amazes the fans in every game with his sleight of hand magic . . . On one fourth quarter play, Whelchel faked a handoff and stood ten yards behind the line of scrimmage waiting unmolested for the pass pattern to form . . . The Redmen are ranked either 3 or 4 in New England, depending on which paper you read . . . Boston papers list B.C., Dartmouth, Harvard, and UMass . . . A.P. has the same order only UMass ahead of Harvard . . . Star QB Lloyd Welles of U.N.H. has a shoulder separation and will miss about four games . . . He didn't play Sat. against Maine and the Black Bears won, breaking an eleven game win streak for the Wildcats . . . Colgate, a team Mass beat 25-0 in a scrimmage, is unbeaten having downed Cornell and Rutgers while tieing B.U. . . . Despite the fact Yale won over Columbia 19-7, star QB Archie Roberts got his usual rave notices . . . From all the good words about him, it would appear that he is a one man team and can do no wrong . . .

UMass representative on the ECAC team of the week is tackle Paul Graham . . . Despite the fact that UMass has one of the leading rushing defenses in the country, you won't find it mentioned in the major college statistics . . . It seems that Redmen don't play enough major schools to qualify . . . A team must play five to be considered a major school and as of yet they do not meet that NCAA standard.

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

DICK WARREN, a standout runner for the Redmen at the UConn game, breaks through the Husky line.

CAGERS PREPARE

Basketball Hopefuls Fight For Starting Team Positions

by BOB HEALY

If you should see a crew of "giants" heading for the Women's Physical Education building with basketballs under their arms. Don't throw away your season football tickets, thinking that you have slept through the football season.

This signifies the official beginning of basketball practice for the 1963-64 Redmen. Complying with National Collegiate Athletic Association rules which prohibit official basketball practice until October 15. The Redmen put the basketball back into action at the WPE yesterday afternoon. The floor in the Cage is being renovated and relocated, thus the reason for using the Women's Phys Ed.

Six lettermen were among the nineteen candidates who reported to new UMass basketball coach Johnny Orr for the initial session Tuesday afternoon.

Orr, former Wisconsin top assistant, put the Redmen through a brisk workout. He was aided by assistant coaches Jack Leaman and Vince Eldred. The Redman mentor stated he plans to use a fast-break offense and a pressing man-to-man defense.

Senior lettermen Pete Bernard 5'8" (Brockton), Rodger Twitchell, 6'6" (Westfield, N.J.), Mike Johnson, 6'7" (Quincy) and Dan Laakso, 6'4" (Norwood), and juniors Charlie O'Rourke, 6'7" (Hadley) and Charlie Kingston, 5'11" (Springfield) form the veteran nucleus from last winter's team. Two lettermen failed to report—junior John Reynolds, 6'4", (Canton) for personal reasons and junior Clarence Hills, 6'1" (Washington, D.C.) who is out of school this semester for medical reasons.

Other candidates are: senior Elliot Gventer, 6'5" (Malden), juniors Tom Ryan 6'2" (Pleasantville, N.Y.), Jim Painten, 6'5" (Quincy), and Karl Kamena, 6'2" (Teaneck, N.J.). Promising sophomores include: Dick Benjamin, 6'5" (Greenfield), Jeff Boyle, 6'6" (Hatfield) Ed Driscoll, 6'2" (Whittinsville), Tim Edwards, 6'4" (Duquesne, Pa.) Craig Farnsworth 6' (Altamont, N.Y.), Jack Forst, 6'4" (Union, N.J.), Paul Gullicksen, 6'4" (Quincy), Steve Bonds 6'3" (Washington, D.C.), and Ken Rowe, 6' (Milton).

Orr stated that all positions are wide open and that he plans to experiment with the squad until he finds the right combination for his offenses and defenses. The veterans will be hard pressed by several newcomers, especially sophs Tim Edwards and Steve Bonds and junior Jim Painten.

Edwards led the frosh with 20 points and 15 rebounds per game. Bonds was a frosh star two years ago and Painten missed last season with a thigh injury.

Top Redmen reporting was Twitchell. The New Jersey jumping-jack, with the soft touch on his shots, could end the season as the all time UMass high scorer and rebounder. He has scored 847 points in two varsity seasons and needs 411 for a new Redman record. He holds Massachusetts records for the most points scored by a soph, most by a junior, most rebounds in one year, best rebound average and best field goal percentage for one year. Twitchell has been All Yankee Conference twice, and the jolly Rodger led the league in scoring last winter with a 22.6 average. He was also first team All New England on the Basketball Coaches Association poll. In 48 varsity games he has scored 20, or more points 18 times and has been in double figures 43 times.

Orr expects Johnson, Bernard and O'Rourke all to be valuable performers this year. Johnson was rated last years most improved Redman as he averaged 9 points and 10 rebounds per game. Bernard had an off-year last year scoring 213 points compared to his soph total of 296, but Pete has the hustle and desire to bounce back. O'Rourke averaged 8 points and 8 rebounds as a soph and had single game high of 24 rebounds.

So while the football team is half-way through a successful season, the basketball team begins to work for its upcoming season.

Does a man really take unfair advantage of women when he uses Mennen Skin Bracer?

All depends on why he uses it.

Most men simply think Menthol-Iced Skin Bracer is the best after-shave lotion around. Because it cools rather than burns. Because it helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Because it helps prevent blemishes.

So who can blame them if Bracer's crisp, long-lasting aroma just happens to affect women so remarkably?

Of course, some men may use Mennen Skin Bracer because of this effect.

How intelligent!

CLUB '66
IS COMING

Lambert Cup

The UMass' Redmen football team received two votes in the poll for the Lambert Trophy, emblematic of Eastern College football supremacy.

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Women Do Well At Tennis Tournament

by HELEN FORSBERG '65

The Women's Tennis Team made a fine showing in the Women's Eastern Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament at Forest Hills, New York this past week-end. The team captured the distinction of being the only school out of 46 participating to have all its players reach the quarter-finals.

In the first round of play Carol Woodcock '66 tok an easy 6-1, 6-0 victory from C.W. Post College, Long Island. The doubles team of Helen Forsberg '65 and Nancy Smolen '67 also had an easy match defeating the University of Bridgeport 6-1, 6-2. Rosemary Connelly '66 ran into formidable competition and battled through a three set marathon match to beat Colby College 10-12, 6-2, 7-5.

The second round gave Rosemary a little rest as she trounced Bryn Mawr 6-2, 6-3. The other players ran into rough going as Carol Woodcock fought to a 6-4, 1-6, 6-2 victory over Hunter College, N.Y. Helen Forsberg and Nancy Smolen also pulled a surprise win over favored Skidmore College in a 6-4, 5-7, 6-3 duel.

In the third round Rosemary Connelly also pulled an upset victory over a favored Middlebury player 7-5, 6-3, and earned the nickname "scrapper' for herself. Carol Woodcock ran into an old rival from the University of Rhode Island and defeated her 7-5, 6-3.

Due to an unfortunate arrangement of the draw sheet the quarter-finals saw Carol and Rosemary pitted against each other. In a match where loyalties were much divided Carol Woodcock won 8-6, 6-2. The doubles team ran into stiff competition in the quarters and went down to defeat to a strong Bennett Junior College team from Milbrook, N.Y.

The semi-finals found Carol Woodcock up against an old friend and former doubles partner, Roberta Zimman from Bouve, Tufts, who was seeded second in the tournament Roberta defeated Carol 6-3, 6-1 went on to win the tournament.

The tournament is held annually at the West Side Tennis Club with schools from Washington, D.C. to Maine participating. Entrance is limited to two singles players and one doubles team due to the large number of colleges participating. The Women's Athletic Association sponsored and financed the three and one-half day trip. The four players were accompanied by Shirley Lord team manager, who proved invaluable to the team with her assistance, and the team coach, Miss Kilby. Miss Kilby is here on a one year leave from Western Washington State College.

—Photo by Harvey Stone

WOMAN'S TENNIS TEAM—Standing from left to right: Miss Kilby, team coach; Nancy Smalen, Rosemary Connelly, Shirley Lord, team manager; Carol Woodcock, Helen Forsberg.

Redmen Booters Bow As Leete Stands Out

by SCOTT FREEDLAND

The Redmen Booters were defeated 9-4 by the men of UConn in a game which may decide the fate of the varsity soccer team for the rest of the season.

Redman Pat McDevitt scored one, while Dick Leete scored three in an exceptional show of ability and stamina. However, both McDevitt and Leete were added, along with goalie Stuart to the injured list. With six of the eleven starters on the injured list the prospects for an already dismal season are not promising. The spirit and fight which the Booters have shown in the last five games cannot be sustained under game conditions without the added depth and ability of those on the injured list.

Today's game with Worcester Tech will tell a lot about the Redmen Booters' chances for Saturday's Homecoming game against URI. A win today is a good indication of a win Saturday, a loss will mean that the injury count is so high so as to be decisive in the remaining season's play.

Freshman soccer remains the bright spot on the soccer scene. The Little Redmen booters downed Nathaniel Hawthorne 9-1 last Friday. The first line of Garstary, Johnson, Ganius, accounted for most of the goals with five being scored in the first half.

The Frosh face Amherst in their first real test Saturday at 1:30 here at the University.

THE ALPS...made in Italy by FABIANO

Handmade Imported Boots for the Outdoor Man and Woman...

Vibram Lug Soles. Ideal for Rock Climbing and Hiking. Padded Quarters and Tongue. Women—5 to 11 Narrow and Medium Men—6 to 14 Narrow, 6 to 12 Large (Size 13 and 14 $3.00 Extra).

$24.95 Plus Postage

Write for Free Brochure

Fabiano Shoe Co., Inc.
Dept. MC, South Station
Boston 10, Mass.

Collegian Picks Pro Football Winners

by RALPH PROLMAN

This is the seventh week of the pro football season and so far it has been a season of big surprises and disappointments. The two most surprising teams have been the Cleveland Browns of the N.F.L., and the New York Jets of the A.F.L. The biggest disappointments have been the Buffalo Bills in the A.F.L. and the Detroit Lions and the Dallas Cowboys of the N.F.L. Now lets take a look at the games of this weekend.

In the A.F.L.: Denver at Boston—The Patriots should manage to make it two wins in a row at friendly Fenway Park, as a healthy Babe Parilli should be too much for the Denver defense to hold. The Broncos will be hurt by the probable absence of John McCormick, who twisted his knee last week against Houston.

Buffalo at Houston—A healthy Cookie Gilchrist and a good showing by Jack Kemp should help the Bills down the Oilers.

San Diego at Kansas City—A virtual tossup but I pick the Chargers over the Chiefs.

New York at Oakland—The surprising Jets should make the Raiders their forth victims.

In the N.F.L.: Dallas at New York—Tom Landry, formerly the Giants defensive coach, takes his Cowboys into New York looking for his second straight upset victory. The old man of the Giant's, Y. A. Tittle, should ruin Landry's day, as he should manage to pick the inexperienced Cowboy secondary to pieces.

Green Bay at St. Louis—The powerful Packers should manage to hand the surprising Cardinals their second loss of the year.

Washington at Pittsburgh—Pittsburgh should bounce back from last weeks loss to beat the Redskins.

Baltimore at Detroit—In what should be a close game, I pick the Lions over the Colts.

Philadelphia at Cleveland—The high powered Browns offense should roll up a big score against a weak Philadelphia defense.

Chicago at San Francisco—The Bears should hand the weak 49ers their sixth loss in a row.

Minnesota at Los Angeles—The Minnesota Vikings should give the helpless Rams their sixth consecutive defeat.

WE GOOFED

Due to an editorial error in last Monday's paper, Phil Vandersea, who did not play in the UConn game because of an injury, was credited with doing the punting so capably handled by Terry Swanson.

We extend our apologies to both men for any embarrassment caused by the story or accompanying picture.

UNIV. OF MASS. THEATRE

Presents

The Twin Menaechmi

October 17, 18, 19 :: 8:15 p.m.

Matinee October 19 :: 2:15 p.m.

Tickets on sale at Student Union Box Office

CALL 545-0111 ALL SEATS RESERVED, $1.50

Brouillet Vs. Keefe; UM Vs. C.Conn

by GENE COLBURN

Bob Brouillet will put his undefeated record squarely on the line Saturday when the Varsity Cross Country Team travels to Central Connecticut College. Although Central Conn. does not have a particularly strong team, they do have Jim Keefe. Keefe has won the New England Championships handily for the last two years, and he set a course record each time. He has yet to lose in a collegiate cross country race, and last summer Keefe was a member of the U.S. track team that went to Russia.

"Digger" has yet to come close to Keefe, but then, nobody else has either. This Saturday could very well see a reversal of form though. Brouillet has been running better that he has ever been, and Keefe is rumored to not be in top shape. He will have to be in top shape to beat Bob.

Outside of the race for first, the outcome of the meet does not appear to be too doubtful. The Redmen's strength and depth should be too much for the Conn. Runners. Tom Panke is showing a vast amount of improvement in practice, and he will be a big asset in helping the top five runners run closer together. Bob Larson and Al McPhail, the team's sixth and seventh men, have been hampered by not being able to practice with the team on same days due to late classs. If these boys improve enough though, it ought to give the Redmen a good solid team.

COLLEGIATE DIGEST
October 1963

Magazine Careers, page 3
Campus Photo Quiz, page 4
Books: Ten To Read, page 5
From Oxford to Cambridge, page 10

The football huddle was invented at Gallaudet in 1880 out of necessity, for these boys and their forerunners use only sign language, lip reading and writing to convey messages and to "hear." Photos by Three Lions

School of the Silent Signals

GALLAUDET students literally have a college education at their fingertips. Sign language is the principal means of communication at Gallaudet College, Washington, D. C.—the only college in the world for the deaf.

Founded in 1864, Gallaudet draws the bulk of its students from top graduates of state schools for the deaf.

Gallaudet students roam through studies from Aristotle to zoology, and they enjoy a full round of activities and athletics. Why a special college for the deaf? The blind can attend any college because they can hear lectures, engage in class discussions, have texts read to them. But deaf students dependent on sign language can get nothing from lectures or discussions.

Wrestling is a popular Gallaudet sport. When in an enclosed hall, cheering of visiting students may be heard by the athletes through floor vibrations. Gallaudet has enrollment of several hundred students.

Because students cannot hear bells, they do not exist in dorms. A plunger is used to raise and let drop a metal ball concealed within walls. Impact is transmitted to student's feet through floor boards.

Continued overleaf

School of the Silent Signals

Powerful earphones aid students who have some hearing ability. For such students, the college has telephones with amplified receivers. Gallaudet attracts students from many foreign countries as well as U. S.

Students use sign language exclusively when alone. Attempt to use only lip-reading has been abandoned as being frustrating, incomplete. Many sounds look alike, and some have no noticeable lip formation.

At college prom dancers "hear" the music through their feet. Floorboards of enclosed spaces transmit sounds. Leaning against the juke box is another way deaf students can dig the phonograph's beat.

Editorial

University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

'. . .bring wisdom into human affairs'

With the opening of a new academic year, these lines on college life are well worth reading by students and teachers alike. They are written by England's famed Poet Laureate, John Masefield.

THERE ARE FEW earthly things more beautiful than a University. It is a place where those who hate ignorance may strive to make others see; where seekers and learners alike, banded together in the search for knowledge, will honor thought in all its finer ways, will welcome thinkers in distress or in exile, will uphold ever the dignity of thought and learning and will exact standards in these things.

They give to the young in their impressionable years the bond of lofty purpose shared, of a great corporate life whose links will not be loosed until they die. They give young people that close companionship for which youth longs, and that chance of the endless discussion of themes which are endless — without which youth would seem a waste of time.

There are few earthly things more splendid than a University. In these days of broken frontiers and collapsing values — when every future looks somewhat grim, and every ancient foothold has become something of a quagmire, wherever a University stands, it stands and shines; wherever it exists, the free minds of men, urged on to full and fair inquiry, may still bring wisdom into human affairs.

Collegiate Digest

An official publication of the Associated Collegiate Press, Inc.; 18 Journalism Building: University of Minnesota; Minneapolis

President: V. Edward Canale; 18 East 50th Street; New York 22, N.Y.

Publisher: Fred L. Kildow; Associated Collegiate Press; University of Minnesota; Minneapolis 14, Minn.

Editor: Glenn Hanson; 604 Harding Drive; Urbana, Ill.

Contributions should be mailed—with a self-addressed stamped return envelope— to Editor, COLLEGIATE DIGEST, 604 Harding Drive, Urbana, Ill.

Fashion Care-Free Knits on European Jaunt

A JET-JAUNT to Switzerland for 20 college girls recently provided a rugged test for some of the new smart American knits that are taking off in all fashion directions.

For six days the coeds traveled smartly and easily in creative knit fashions of Du Pont "Orlon" acrylic fiber.

Caught in a summer blizzard high on the Jungfrau, they snuggled into handsome ski-look sweaters made of "Orlon" or of "Orlon Sayelle" bi-component acrylic. On planes, trains and while sight-seeing, the girls looked right (not a wrinkle in sight) and felt right in knits that will be first choice for class and campus this fall.

A summer blizzard is laughed off by Mary Lou Osborn, San Jose State, in a sweater jac by Apollo. It has zippered back, patch pockets, flat cowl collar. "Orlon Sayelle," about $19.

Red travel-knit of "Orlon" acrylic fiber by Mindy Ross is just right for wandering around Geneva. Suzanne Lesh, University of Cincinnati, enjoys the one-piece dress with jacket. About $30.

Sight-seeing in Bern, Suzanne Siminger, Chouinard Art Institute, looks smart and comfortable in her sweater dress of "Orlon" acrylic fiber. Here the sweater dress, actually a sweater that grew and grew, is partnered in doublet fashion with a long-sleeved turtle-neck pullover. By Bermuda. Sweater dress about $15, pullover about $8.

Careers Your Future in Magazines

MAGAZINES are big business in this nation, and magazines may offer you a satisfying career.

How big is the magazine business? Well, there are hundreds of consumer magazines in the country, some of which number their readers in the tens of millions. There are more than 2,500 trade, industrial, farm and fraternal magazines. Then add somewhere between 6,000 and 10,000 "house organs"—publications issued by firms to tell their story to their employees and the public. Total magazine readership is around half a billion persons.

In the consumer magazine field alone, the annual gross exceeds one billion dollars. These newsstand magazines employ more than 40,000 staff people—not to mention papermakers, printers, distributors, etc. If you toss in trade journals and house organs, you do have big business!

Magazines require a wide range of skills. The work is exciting, satisfying and offers financial rewards to boot. In the consumer field, for instance, salaried employees average better than $7,000 with a salary range of perhaps $60,000 to $3,600.

Are jobs available? Yes. In fact, the industry has recently moved to recruit good people to the field. Beginners probably do best in the trade and house organ field. One midwestern journalism school reports "a goodly number" of jobs available with a beginning range of about $90 to $110, the average perhaps $95. English majors, liberal arts and commercial art grads also can crack the field.

For further information read: Magazines in the Twentieth Century by Theodore Peterson; Magazines in America, Magazine Publisher Association, 444 Madison Ave., New York City (free).

Identify These College Landmarks

Answers

1. Northrop Memorial Auditorium stands at the head of the Mall, University of Minnesota.

2. The Old Well marks the site of the original water supply of the nation's first state university (founded 1795), University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

3. The Tower rises 307 feet above the University of Texas campus, Austin.

4. Granddaddy of all college skyscrapers is the 42-story Cathedral of Learning, University of Pittsburgh.

5. Newest of these campus landmarks is the McGregor Memorial Community Conference Center which was opened in 1958 on the Wayne State University campus, Detroit. The building was designed by the distinguished architect, Minoru Yamasaki.

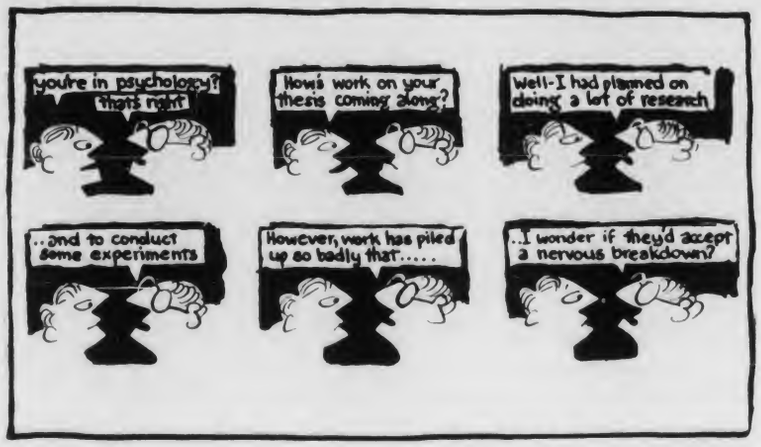
6. Perhaps the most famous campus statue in the nation is Columbia University's Alma Mater in New York City, created by Daniel Chester French.

7. Bancroft Hall, world's largest dormitory, houses the entire Brigade of Midshipmen at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

8. Stanford Memorial Church, Stanford University, Palo Alto, Cal., is famed for its exterior and interior mosaic murals.

The Grad Student

Michael Siporin
Southern Illinois University



Books Ten To Read

AS SUGGESTIONS for your out-of-class reading, COLLEGIATE DIGEST is beginning a new feature series. Each month a distinguished scholar will present "Ten To Read," a list of books that has meant much to him. These will not be the ten best books in the world, nor will reading them automatically make you cultured. But they will be worthy books, and are available in paperback so you can build a good library at minimal cost.

DR. ROBERT D. MURPHY, professor of journalism and chairman, newspaper department, Syracuse University School of Journalism, offers his "Ten To Read." Recipient of three Syracuse degrees, Dr. Murphy has worked on newspapers and picture services in New York, Ohio and Chicago, also has taught at Stanford, Kent State, Westminster College.

The Art of Writing, Andre Maurois, (Dutton). Scholarly and readable analysis of writing and of some classic writers.

Essays in Experimental Logic, John Dewey, (Dover). A guide to disciplined thinking.

The Federalist, (Anchor, Mentor). A document basic to an understanding of our history.

From the Closed World to the Infinite Universe, Alexandre Koyre, (Harper Torchbooks). The growth of man's concept of the Universe and its effect on his philosophy.

The Growth of Physical Science, Sir James Jeans, (Premier). A readable history of science designed for the layman.

The Island Civilizations of Polynesia, Robert C. Suggs, (Mentor). An exciting history of an early civilization and a good example of scientific evaluation of information.

Number: the Language of Science, Tobias Dantzig, (Doubleday Anchor). The lore of numbers and the development of our concepts about them.

On Liberty, John Stuart Mill, (Gateway). One of the documents which gave us the Anglo-American concept of the free trade in ideas.

Public Opinion, Walter Lippmann, (Macmillan, Mentor). A pioneering analysis when it first appeared, this book is still the authoritative work.

Today's Latin America, Robert J. Alexander, (Anchor). Practical information attractively presented about our neighbors in the Western Hemisphere.

Director of the St. Louis U seismograph station inspects equipment that could be the forerunner of atom test ban "black boxes." Seismograph detectors (foreground) shine a small beam of light into long drums (rear) which are loaded with photographic paper.

Those 'Little Black Boxes'

"LITTLE BLACK BOXES," so often discussed in connection with a nuclear test ban, may turn out to be "big gray boxes."

Geophysicists at St. Louis University have been busy this summer translating seismological data that may help detect and pinpoint underground nuclear explosions.

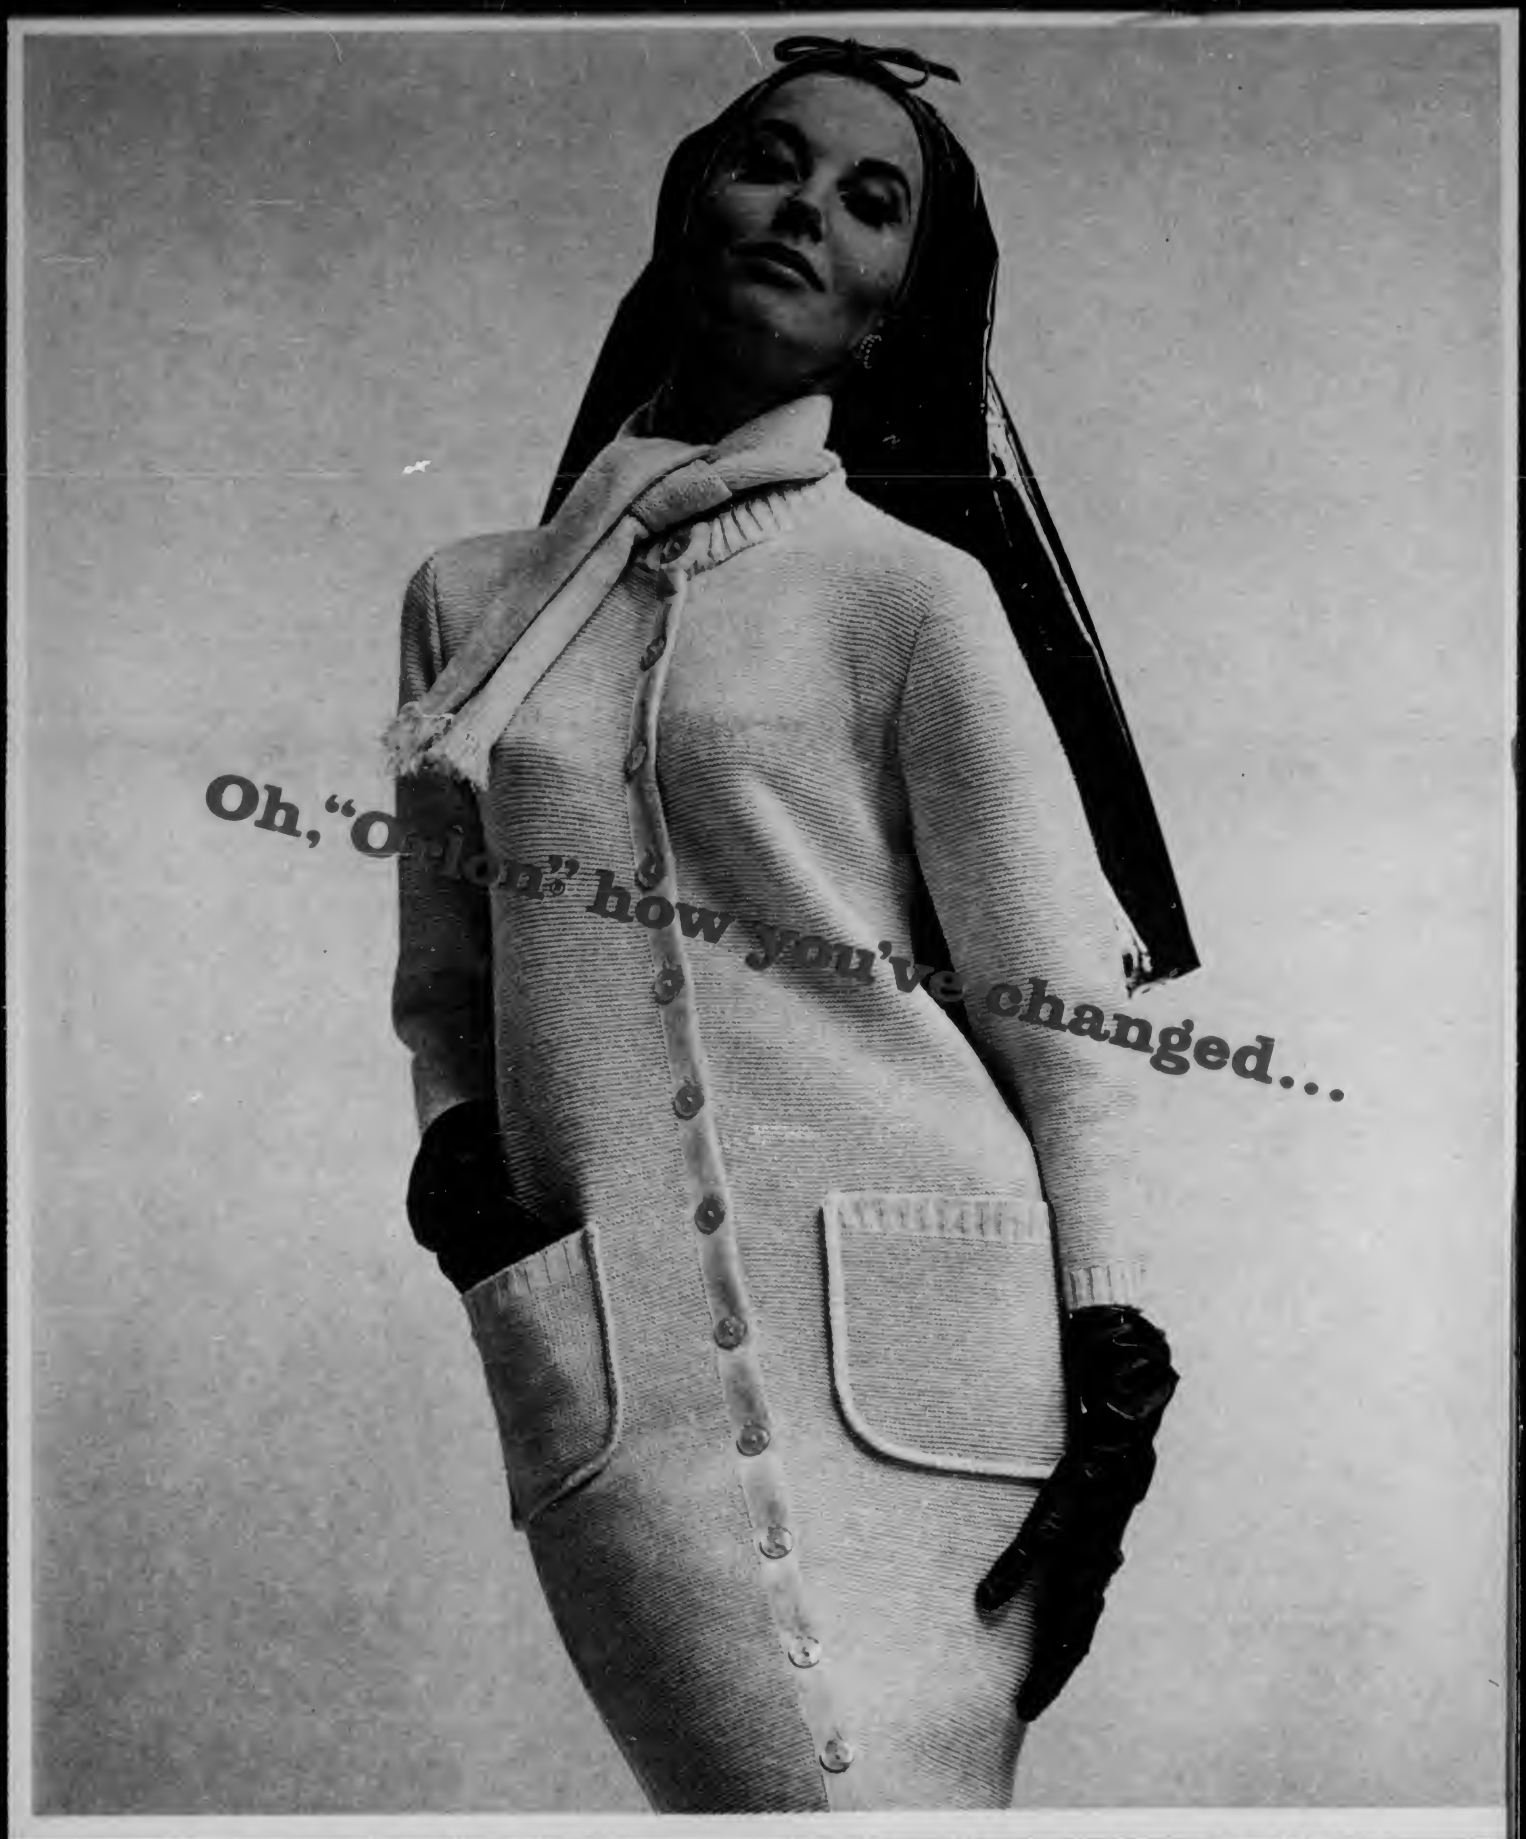
The Rev. William V. Stauder, S.J., director of the St. Louis University seismograph station, and three research assistants are poring over thousands of feet of seismograph tapes at the University's De Pere Hall. Information for the study was gathered this summer in surveys across Missouri.

During the field work, recording trucks, each with eight seismographs, were strung along a 60-mile line to record the travel time of the seismic waves set up by explosions.

Speed of the seismic waves is used by the geophysicists to determine the composition and thickness of the earth's crust. This information about the crustal structure can be used to distinguish between natural and man made seismic disturbances.

The work is part of the Vela Uniform program of the U.S. Department of Defense. The study is aimed at improving methods for detecting, locating and identifying underground nuclear blasts, which could be used as inspection tools in the event of a complete atom test ban.

Thousands of feet of seismographic tapes record shock waves sent by man made explosions in Missouri this summer. Processed data will indicate velocity of the seismic waves and thickness of the earth's crust. UPI photos. Copy adapted from Bruno Torres, UPI.



Oh, "O[illegible]" how you've changed...

you've put smash into the sweater dress!

I can hardly believe my eyes, "Orlon"*. You look so different, feel so different. Oh, you are different! You're the first to know, show, have all that's new in knits. Seeing is believing —so see the surprises in "Orlon" acrylic . . . where better knits live in your favorite store.

Opposite: Select Sportswear's Sweater Shift, about $18; at Peck & Peck, all stores; Frederick & Nelson, Seattle; and other fine stores. Above left: Bermuda's Sweater Dress, about $15; turtle-neck pullover, about $7.95; at Dayton's, Minneapolis; Frederick & Nelson, Seattle; and at other fine stores. Center: Beldoch Popper's Sweater Dress, about $25; at B. Altman & Co., Fifth Avenue, N.Y. and branches; Strawbridge & Clothier, Phila.; The Emporium, San Francisco. Right: Roman Stripe's Belted Sweater Dress, about $17; at Chas. A. Stevens & Co., Chicago; May Co., Los Angeles; Bloomingdale's, N.Y. and branches. *Du Pont's registered trademark for its acrylic fiber. Du Pont makes fibers, not fabrics or clothes. Better Things for Better Living . . . through Chemistry

DU PONT

This Collegiate World

Nearly two centuries of an all-male tradition were broken at Dartmouth College this year when 148 girls were admitted to a special summer term. The coeds in the photo above regularly attend, from the left, Boston University, Mount Holyoke, University of Florida, Lake Forest and University of Washington, Seattle. At the left, a pair of coeds from the University of Florida and Wells College chat with a Dartmouth man on the lawn in front of historic Dartmouth Hall. The Hanover, N. H., college was founded in 1769 by Eleazar Wheelock under a charter granted by King George III. Dartmouth Alumnus Daniel Webster in 1819 won the Dartmouth College Case before the U. S. Supreme Court which established the freedom of Dartmouth and other chartered institutions from state interference. . . . Wide World Photos

The language of Moses was taught for the first time this summer with new audio-lingual methods at Yeshiva University, New York City. Thirty-two teachers from all parts of the nation tested the new methods on high school students who had never studied the language before. The six-week program stressed new patterns of spoken Hebrew. Yeshiva is America's oldest and largest university under Jewish auspices.

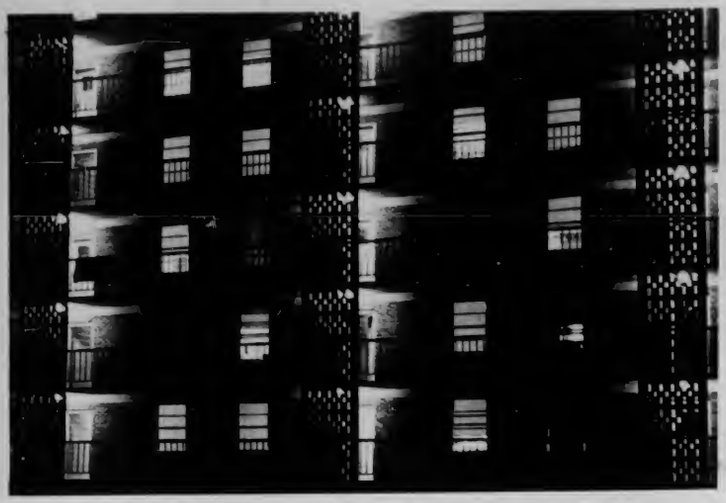
The bongo drums on which Ellen Cregan seems to be beating at Salina, Kansas, are far away. The "drums" are two new round dormitory buildings on the campus of Marymout College where Ellen is a student. The unusual dorms will house 174 women students when completed. The picture was made from the roof of a nearby building. . . . Wide World Photo

Foreign Enrollment Sets Record

FOREIGN enrollment last year at American institutions of higher learning jumped 5,700—7 per cent over the previous year's record figure—to a total of nearly 78,000. The University of California led the nation's universities with a foreign enrollment of 3,108 (5.7 per cent of its total enrollment). Cal was followed by New York University with 1,925 foreign students and the University of Illinois with 1,369.

A former janitor at Wayne State University, Detroit, is now teaching after receiving a certificate of retirement and a bachelor's degree in education from Wayne in recent months. He is Charles B. Lewis, 53. He was admitted as a part-time undergraduate student in 1947, five years after he accepted the job as a Wayne janitor. "I would rather have received my degree at 23 than at 53," says Mr. Lewis, "but I think my experience in various jobs is all to the good. Certainly it has placed me in a position to stimulate young people to seek college educations." His degree was a 14-year project.

This Collegiate World



Question--

What hair-raising use could imaginative students make of this handsome new dormitory on the University of North Carolina campus, Chapel Hill—a use un-anticipated by the architects?

"His tests are real killers."

Philip N. Frank, Michigan State

First Swedish royalty to study in the U. S. is Princess Christina who is scheduled to enter Radcliffe College this fall. United Press International

The camera eye catches John Pennel, Northeastern Louisiana State senior, as he hurls himself toward the crossbar at a track and field meet held recently at the University of Miami. He cracked the 17-foot pole vault barrier with a record leap of 17 feet ¾ inches. He broke his previous record of 16 feet 10 and ¼ inches set in London earlier this summer.

. . . UPI Telephoto

Drivers, Workers, Nurses, Students . . .

THE SAFE WAY to stay alert without harmful stimulants

NoDoz keeps you mentally alert with the same safe refresher found in coffee and tea. Yet NoDoz is faster, handier, more reliable. Absolutely not habit-forming.

Next time monotony makes you feel drowsy while driving, working or studying, do as millions do... perk up with safe, effective NoDoz® tablets.

Another fine product of Grove Laboratories

NEXT MONTH

For "Ten To Read," see the list of ten stimulating books in the November COLLEGIATE DIGEST, selected by Dr. Laurence Campbell, professor of education, Florida State University, Tallahassee.

Answer--

MOUNTAIN-CLIMBING enthusiasts at North Carolina found the seven stories of decorative masonry panels that run from ground to roof of the balconies excellent for practice!

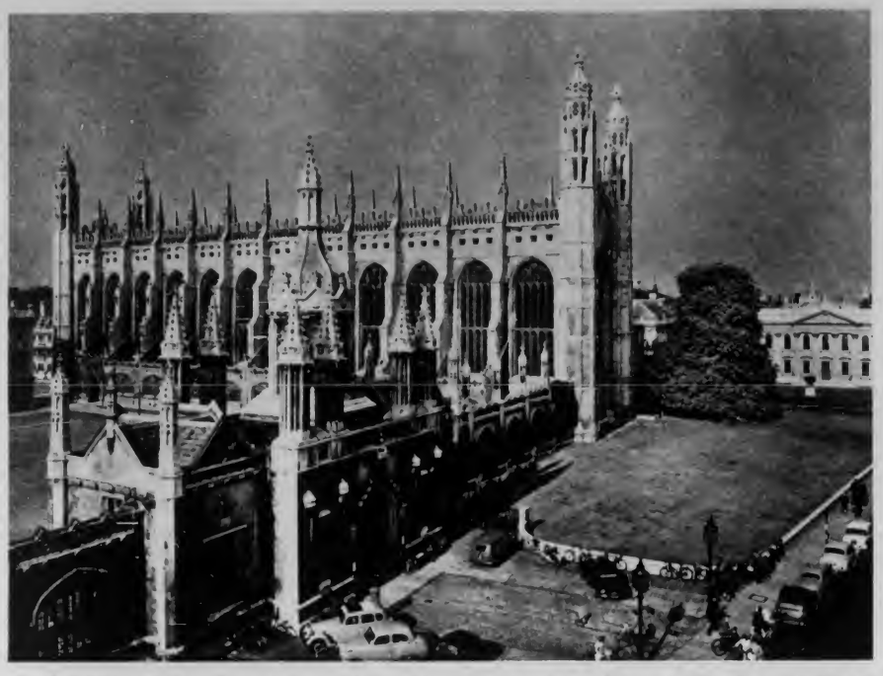
The strikingly modern Craige and Ehringhaus dorms—opened last year to 1,400 men students—are prominent additions to the campus buildings, most of which are time-mellowed structures three stories high or less.

While residents object to their remoteness from the main campus, the University seems satisfied with its "skyscrapers." School officials plan to build another dormitory of the same style, but larger, within the next two years.

Students have dubbed the pair of dorms the "Craige and Ehringhaus Hiltons."

From Oxford to Cambridge

Condensed from S. P. B. Mais



Cambridge University, 50 miles from London, is composed of 20 separate colleges. Above is the main gatehouse and Chapel of King's College.

Completed in 1513, the Chapel is considered one of the great Gothic buildings of Europe. The river Cam flows behind the Chapel.

WHEN I SAY that there are times when I find myself almost preferring Cambridge to Oxford, don't get me wrong. I am a graduate of the University of Oxford and I am naturally proud of that distinction. But Oxford is now a large and populous city, and I often enjoy the contrast afforded by Cambridge, which still manages to retain much of the character of a country market-town.

Comparisons, however, between two such remarkable places are pointless, and everyone who can should visit both Universities, which are graced by some of the loveliest medieval and Renaissance buildings in Europe.

Luckily there is a bus service which links them. There is also a train service, though this entails a change at Bletchley (see map on page 11). The bus follows a more or less direct road, by way of Bicester, Stony Stratford and Bedford, but I will suggest some diversions for those who go by car.

THE ROAD from Oxford to Bicester is fast and straight, with little to catch the eye except Weston Manor, once a medieval moated grange (now a hotel) in which Prince Rupert of the Rhine, during the Civil War of the 17th century, found sanctuary from his enemy Fairfax, who slept in the next room. The Prince escaped, disguised as a dairymaid.

Bicester is a stonebuilt market-town, traditionally famous as a fox-hunting center.

Buckingham used to be the county town of Buckinghamshire. That distinction is now held by Aylesbury, 17 miles to the southeast. During the Civil War Aylesbury was held by the Roundheads, in spite of the fact that Sir Edward Verney, who represented the town in Parliament, was a Royalist. Other well-known Aylesbury representatives have been John Wilkes and Benjamin Disraeli.

Time-mellowed stone archways frame this quiet scene at Oxford University. Oxford, also about 50 miles from London, dates back 800 years.

From Buckingham the bus continues by way of Stony Stratford, Wolverton and Newport Pagnell—just to the north of which is Olney, once the home of the poet William Cowper. On Shrove Tuesday each year the housewives of Olney compete with those of Liberal, Kansas, in a Transatlantic pancake race.

IF YOU HAVE a car, however, I would suggest taking the road via Bletchley to the little town of Woburn, which clusters outside the gates of the great zoological park surrounding Woburn Abbey. A public road crosses the park, and gives good views both of the animals and of the Abbey itself, the stately ancestral home of the Dukes of Bedford.

By a coincidence, another fine zoological park is only ten miles away to the south. This is the Zoological Society's extensive park at Whipsnade in the Chiltern Hills.

From Woburn we drive through the pleasant Bedfordshire countryside, by way of Ampthill (where the church contains a monument to the first British governor of New York), to Bedford, the county town, on the river Ouse. There is a fine bronze statue here to John Bunyan (1628-88), who was imprisoned at Bedford for his public preaching of nonconformity. It was while he was incarcerated in Bedford prison that he embarked on his Pilgrim's Progress and Grace Abounding.

Continued on page 11

We now enter a flat agricultural area, and in a few miles we join the Great North Road (A1) which links London and Edinburgh. St. Neots, where we we enter Huntingdonshire, was named after a dwarf possessed of the miraculous power of being able to create an inexhaustible supply of fish.

CAMBRIDGE lies due east of here, but I recommend the short detour to the north (continuing along the Great North Road) to visit two of the most interesting towns in Huntingdonshire —Huntingdon itself and St. Ives.

From St. Ives the road runs south to Eltisley.

A little farther on, close to the Caxton Gibbet Hotel, an ancient gibbet still stands at the crossroads, reminding us of the peremptory fate meted out to highwaymen in the old days. At Madingley we have our first view of Cambridge straight ahead, and we may well want to pause here in order to inspect the beautiful new American cemetery.

AT CAMBRIDGE even the most prejudiced Oxford man could not fail to concede the many distinctions enjoyed by the sister University city, apart from its having a quieter and more leisurely aspect—for example, the fact that the river Cam flows below the walls of several of the colleges and that King's College Chapel, built in the reign of Henry VI, transcends in architectural perfection almost any other edifice in the country.

There is not the space to describe all the architectural glories of Cambridge, any more than I could of Oxford, but let me end with some of the names of great men who studied there and perhaps found their greatness in its cloistered calm: Milton, Byron, Tennyson, Dryden. Francis Bacon, Isaac Newton, Macaulay, Samuel Pepys, Spenser, Thomas Gray, Christopher Marlowe, Rupert Brooke, Oliver Cromwell, Robert Herrick and Wordsworth.

So many of these are poets that Cambridge might truly be described as "a nest of singing birds."

Campus Folksingers Records Publish LP Albums

IF YOU LIKE your folk music honestly performed from authentic sources with scholarly notes to boot, you'll enjoy the two albums released by the Campus Folksong Club, University of Illinois.

"Green Fields of Illinois" is a recent release that is made up of 23 folk tunes from the central and southern areas of Illinois. The Club dug into their own backyard for this collection which covers the whole range of folk music from instrumental, fiddle tunes, to the short and funny vocals, the protest songs, ballads and sacred songs.

The Club's first release, "PG&MS" (for Philo Glee and Mandolin Society), has already sold 700 copies—pretty good for a record of its type.

Both albums boast booklets that contain complete background material on the music, research that is ladled out with scholarly loving care.

The LPs in both the instrumental and vocal selections have honest, direct performances that catch the flavor of the music in America's roots.

Collegiate Digest Visits Catbridge U

WHEN famed animal photographer Walter Chandoha recently visited the campus of Catbridge University, he found it to be pretty much like any other of the nation's colleges.

The graduate students were madly working on their PurrHDs. Coeds were making catty remarks about the new fur coats on campus. Vocalists were practicing for the school's famed alley capella choir.

Registration was understandably low in the Music School's courses in violin. Hot dogs elicited hisses, as usual, in the dorm dining rooms. And students, clad in their cat's pajamas, held bull sessions far into the night.

Profs sharpened their claws before grading a set of papers. The Dean of Students office, of course, cleverly placed the women's dorms on the far side of the campus from the tomcats.

Now dig a few of these cats.

Two freshmen stare in awe at the main building, Felix Felidae Hall. Catbridge has a cosmopolitan student body with scholars from Persia, Siam, Malta, the Isle of Man and many of the best alleys in the U. S. A.

Photos by Walter Chandoha

Star end on the football team is poised to catch the pigskin during a midweek practice session.

A jaded junior yawns after taking a cat nap during a long Psych 101 lecture on curiosity.

The Dean of Women takes a dim view of an excuse offered for a late return to the dormitory.

A senior winks meaningfully at a cool cat who has entered the campus hangout, Fish 'N' Liver.

Two fraternity BCOCs greet each other at the Union. Note the natty Ivy League stripes.

OCT 25 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Welcome Home, Alumni

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 15 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1963

10,000 Expected At Homecoming 1963

THE DAVE BRUBECK QUARTET

Dave Brubeck, Paul Desmond, Joe Morello, and Gene Wright form the Dave Brubeck Quartet. This group specializes in one thing—jazz. Each member of the quartet is an acclaimed artist himself, widely renowned in the jazz world. Put the above four jazz specialists together and you have a quartet producing the smoothest sound in jazz today. Their music can be enjoyed this Sunday afternoon at 2:00 in Curry Hicks Cage as the Dave Brubeck Quartet tops off Homecoming Weekend.

The University Art Acquisition Fund, directed by Walter Kamys of the Art Department, will benefit from this concert being sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity.

The Brubeck Quartet began to forge to the front of contemporary jazz with one of their early recordings "Gone With The Wind". More recently the "Time" series consisting of "Time Out", "Time Further Out," and "Time Out in Space' have become favorites of the college listening audience as well as best sellers.

The program for the afternoon will be typically Brubeck with the first half of the program devoted mostly to selected numbers and the second part of the program based on requests and impromptu improvisations. Brubeck seldom does a number twice in exactly the same way. This accounts, in part, for the diversity of their sound. Coupled with this are the experiments in polyrhythms which adds the unique Brubeck style to many numbers.

Tickets for this concert will be on sale at the lobby counter of the Student Union following the football game on Saturday. They can also be purchased at the door. Ticket price is $1.50. The concert is at 2:00 prompt on Sunday with the doors opening at 12:45.

Precisionettes Join ROTC, March In Parade Tonight

by ELWIN McNAMARA

For the first time since the Harvard game, UMass students and staff will see the Precisionettes march. Under the sponsorship of the Military Science Department, the girls' drill team will step off tomorrow night near the head of the float parade.

According to Captain Charles Huggins, Assistant Professor of Military Science, the Army ROTC detachment on campus has been trying to get sponsorship of the girls for about a year and a half.

When the rift developed, Huggins said, he contacted the leaders and made tentative arrangements for the department to assume sponsorship.

Under the new arrangement, the Precisionettes will become an independent unit, as they are presently considered a part of the University Bands.

It is felt that the new arrangement will lessen the competition between the units. In the future, the girls will appear as a separate organization, often marching to music provided by bands other than our own. Capt. Huggins stated that the girls would probably drill at some football games, at fall and spring review, and at town and city parades across the state.

THE PRECISIONETTES, shown in a practice session, sharpen up for participation in Friday night's gala float parade.

Fast-Paced Homecoming Greatest In UMass History

A gala float parade and a pep rally will kick off what promises to be an exciting and colorful Homecoming for 1963.

Weeks of preparation will culminate this evening as fraternities, sororities, and dormitories line up their floats for the judging; winners will be announced later in the evening. More than fifty floats will follow the designated parade route: Ellis Dr. to North Pleasant Street, down Main Street, up Triangle Street, back to North Pleasant Street, ending at the Student Union where the rally will begin.

At the rally dance, the University's 1963 Homecoming Queen will be crowned and her court introduced by Atty. Robert D. Gordon, alumni president. Taj and the Electras will be featured at the dance, in their first campus appearance in the S.U. ballroom.

Over 10,000 spectators will pack Alumni Field to watch the undefeated UMass squad line up against Rhode Island in the Yankee Conference game scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Saturday. The Alumni Office reports ticket sales for an unprecedented throng of returning alumni. Nearly 1,000 families are expected to gather around the campus pond for a pre-game tailgate picnic.

Saturday evening revelries include a Homecoming Dance for students in the ballroom, and a Memorial Hall dance for faculty, alumni and administration.

The Dave Brubeck Quartet of "Take Five" fame will wrap up Homecoming entertainment Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Cage.

Arabian Nights Feature Of Marching Band

The University of Massachusetts Marching Band will usher the 1963 Homecoming Queen onto the field with a special performance of the "Triumphal March" from Aida. The entrance of the queen will mark a musical trip to the magic land of the Sphinx and Pyramids, the land of the "Arabian Nights".

The halftime show will feature a brand-new toe-tapping dance routine to a special arrangement of Sigmund Romberg's "Song of the French Leglonnairrs", using a variety of fancy marching, dancing steps.

Next the band will present a swaying-dancing version of the Korsakov, "Scheherezade". With dancer immortalized by Rimsky-rolling eyes above a shimmering 30 foot veil, the band's dancer sways back and forth to themes from Scheherezade.

Finally, the band form a huge pyramid, only remalning example of the seven wonders of the ancient world and play "The Sheik of Araby," followed by a camel step to "Istanbul."

(Continued on page 4)

The Inter-fraternity and the Panhellenic Councils will be selling balloons at the Homecoming parade Friday night, Oct. 18, and before the football game on Saturday. All proceeds from the sale are donated by the Greeks to charity.

The balloons make fine souvenirs of Homecoming and add to the gaiety and atmosphere of the traditional fall weekend. The balloon sale is only one of the many useful and charitable activities of the Greeks that promotes the good will of UMass fraternities and sororities and the student body as a whole.

Understanding COLLEGIAN *Editorial Page Objectivity

STUDENT SENATE AND PRAYER

Wednesday evening thirty-one Student Senators told seventeen of their fellow colleagues that they did not think themselves capable of individual thought.

The issue in case was the Mathieson-Howard motion that would have done away with the opening prayer of the Student Senate, and would have substituted in its place a moment of silent meditation and deliberation.

It can be stated with much assurance that the bulk of the thirty-one Senators who voted against the motion did so on the grounds that they felt it was either anti-religious or anti-traditional.

As has been stated in previous Collegian editorials and on the floor of the Senate, the bill was not an anti-religious move. It did not intend to take prayer out of the Senate, but rather to reinforce it by making it a more personal, worthwhile and meaningful experience.

The second argument against the motion was that it was anti-traditional. This is true. However, those who opposed the Bill on this ground should be cognizant of the fact that not all traditions are good; i.e. Segregation, political corruption and so on.

The most distressing factor to the average student must be the fact that thirty-one of his representatives openly admitted in a public meeting that they did not think themselves capable enough to think for themselves.

It is even a more dismal fact that of over fifty members of the Student Senate, only seventeen are willing to take the obligations of their own religious convictions upon themselves, as individuals.

It is quite obvious that it is to these seventeen that the Senate must look to for its leadership now, and in the future.

J.S.D.-R.S.P.

A Review

Menaechmus

"Some of my best friends are courtesans —not that I'd want my son to marry one." So spake Menaechmus II last night in a farcical, frivolous rendition of Plautus' The Twin Menaechmi, presented by the University Theatre in Bowker Auditorium. The classical tradition was upheld very well indeed by the use of masks for the actors and some dramatic aisle entrances. But from there on, it was anyone's guess whether the play was Roman or recent. References to underground parking garages and hardening of the arteries seem hardly to be of ancient origin. Such inclusions help to make the play as enjoyable for our contemporary audience as the original lines must have been for the people in Plautus' day.

The best performance was turned in by James Wrynn as Menaechmus II, followed by Deena Ferrigno as the wife of Menaechmus I. Mr. Wrynn's activities provided the greatest hilarity, and Miss Ferrigno gave an excellent portrayal as a particularly shrewish fishwife. Larry Wilker gave a credible performance as Menaechmus I, as did Kenneth Feinberg as the parasite Brush, Roland Laramee as Messenio, slave of Menaechmus II, and Tom Kerrigan as the father-in-law of Menaechmus I. In a more minor role, Richard Doherty came across quite well as Cylindrus, the homosexual cook of Erotium.

Minor flaws were contributed by Paula Norton as Erotium; she was excellent when batting her inch-long eyelashes, but her lines were somewhat stilted, and Mr. Kerrigan's lines took on an occasional Gilbert-and-Sullivan rhythm.

The play was a worthwhile venture.

"Prayer is good. Our forefathers prayed, but ghastly trends are stopping this tradition. Do not stop it in the Student Senate."

"Tradition is good. We have lost Spring Day; we are now perhaps in the process of losing the Precisionettes. We must not lose the tradition of prayer in the Student Senate!"

"The Student Senate should be dignified. Prayer is dignified. Let us, therefore, have a dignified introduction, a prayer for the Student Senate!"

Thus we have our student senators appealing to their fellows not to prohibit their prayer. Thus pleaded three senators at Wednesday night's meeting as they opposed the Senate motion to replace its mumbled introductory prayer with a moment of silence.

"We must not lose this tradition," they said. "We must preserve Senate dignity," they said. "We must have a prayer introducing Senate meetings." Thirty-one Senators agreed; Seventeen disagreed. And the motion to omit the introductory prayer and substitute a moment of silence was defeated. The Student Senate, therefore, will continue to introduce its meeting with a prayer. Tradition and dignity will apparently be preserved.

These thirty-one senators are undoubtedly very self-satisfied. They have preserved the dignity of the Senate and the tradition of the country, the University, the Senate. But what have they done to prayer, to religion? Of what value is their prayer?

The Senate has degraded prayer, has rendered it into a formula, a magic potion which, when added to a hammer beat, brings instant dignity, perpetuates tradition.

The purpose of prayer is not to uphold the dignity of the Student Senate, as Senator Singer supposes. The purpose of prayer is not to uphold the tradition of the University, as Senator McNamara supposes, or to uphold the tradition of our forefathers, as Senator Landis supposes.

Rather, prayer is a personal and private correspondence between an individual and his God. It is a conveyance of an idea, a hope, a plea from the mind of a human to that of his God. Words bring prayer through unneeded channels, channels which distort its meaning. In this case, in the Student Senate, the meaning of prayer has been subordinated to Senate dignity and University and American tradition.

I appeal to each Senator to restore meaning to his prayer—to silently communicate with his God. And let those who would use prayer as an instrument do so; let them mumble indistinct, meaningless words and thereby "preserve" Senate dignity and tradition.

I condemn a Student Senate whose dignity is dependent on a ritual or formula, whose dignity requires mumbled words.

M.F.

The Massachusetts Collegian

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price: $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

Letters To The Editor

Social Welfare

Dear Mr. Cass:

I am the poor. I am at this University because some people more liberal than yourself recognized my need and my ability. If it were not for them, I would be in the army, a factory, or the gutter—apparently this would suit you fine.

My mother is the poor. Her husband died when her five thoroughly legitimate children were young; so in the past, when necessary, she turned to the ADC, and today she sweats out forty hours worth of meager pay in a hospital, to stay alive. She could easily be dead—and maybe that would make you and Senator Goldwater very happy.

My older brother is the poor. He is unskilled, shuttled from job to job, is very literate, reads the want-ads regularly, and is often unemployed. He belongs to that part of the labor force you and your kind feel is necessary to keep the unemployed on their toes.

My brother is the poor. He is not technically mentally retarded, but so "slow" to learn he will always be in part dependent on others, such as President Kennedy's government, to keep him alive. I suppose you hate him for that.

My sister is the poor. An unwise young marriage and a good-for-nothing husband have saddled her with three babies she must bring up by herself. To feed these babies, she turns to the ADC. I love her. You hate her. If it were your decision, would she and her babies starve?

We are the poor, the sick, the unemployed. I am I, but I am my family and my people also. When I encounter someone like you, I do not feel the same hatred you feel for me. I feel horror, nausea, nausea of those virtuous, self-reliant members of the middle class who laugh at me because I do not dress or think like them. You are a minority but an obnoxiously loud and significant minority.

I am the "they" of your article, Mr. Cass, and I am not ashamed. I am as good as you, perhaps better. I do not want to despise your section of the middle class, but you invite contempt. I am a liberal and a socialist and an anti-Communist and an American. But you are a capitalist, so our lives are doomed to hatred. At the same time, "I am you, and you are me, and what have we done to each other?"

Poor and Proud

To the Editor:

Rick Cass presents a political viewpoint which contrasts refreshingly with that of the ubiquitous "liberals," many of whom are thinly disguised freeloaders. However, his arguments are based on twisted logic and superficial, if any, thought.

Men are not unemployed because relief awaits; rather, relief is available because men are out of work. Merely ceasing to give aid to the unemployed and to unwed mothers does not mean that everyone will have jobs, or that illegitimate children will no longer be born. These problems are social dynamite, and in the long run it is cheaper to give them relief than to endure an increased crime rate.

The solution is to make relief so undesirable in comparison to gainful employment that demand for the former will decline. I suggest that if all those now collecting were put to work sweeping streets, we would not only have cleaner cities, but fewer on relief.

It pains me to have my tax money spent supporting derelicts, but it pains me far more to have those so blind that they will not see contending that by eliminating a solution, regardless of its merits, we can eliminate a problem.

I am sure that he will continue to stand as he (singular).

Liberal Republican

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Student Senate and the Student body, the Student Senate Elections Committee would like to extend our thanks to the various service groups and interested undergraduates who gave their time and energy in assisting the committee in conducting the Fall General Elections on October 3rd. Alpha Phi Omega, Maroon Keys, Scrolls, and Gamma Sigma Sigma helped make this election the most efficient ever run.

Bill Mahoney
Chairman, Elections Committee
Dave Mathieson
James Watson

Incumbents Win In Senate— Business Proceeds As Usual

The Senate election of officers at Wednesday night's meeting turned out to be reelection by acclamation. Reelected were: Jon Fife, President; Joan Lubuzoski (Sororities), Vice-president; Ross Jones (Brett), Treasurer; and Wendy Hall (Lewis) Secretary. The session was highlighted by Senate rejection of a bill that would have abolished the prayer that is said at the beginning of each Senate meeting.

In his acceptance speech, President Fife thanked the members for reelecting him, and outlined the responsibilities of each Senator. He reminded the Senators of their three main responsibilities, they being: 1) to their respective constituency (2) to their respective committee, and (3) a general responsibility to the University. He reiterated his promise that this year's Senate will be a working one; one that will follow through on all legislation to make sure that each is positively executed.

The issue as to whether the meetings would open with a prayer was the first order to business and, despite some rather fervent pleas to the contrary, a bill that would have killed the opening prayer was defeated. Shortly after the 'ban-the-prayer" bill was introduced, Senator Bill Landis (at Large; '65) objected to Senate consideration of the question. A vote was taken, his motion was defeated, and the Senate floor was opened for debate.

In view of the controversial nature of the subject under discussion, the debate proceeded in a surprisingly orderly and dignified manner. Sponsors of the bill stated that they had "no desire to make the Student Senate an irreligious body; rather, a moment of silence would give an opportunity for each to meditate as he saw fit."

Viewing the prayer as conducive to unification of the Senate body was Senator McNamara, who said that "[it] serves as a uniting factor with the Senate . . . the one thing that has remainded with us and the one thing that should remain with us—always."

(Continued on page 4)

FROSH ELECTOINS

Results of the primary election for freshman class officers:

President: David Cummings & Ken Feinberg

Vice President: Donald Hawkes & John Mullin

Secretary: Sue Hayes & Kathleen Seiscento

Treasurer: Kathryn Yukna & Susan Partridge

Final election will be held next week.

It's Now Funnier Than Ever "Menaechmi" Improves With Age

When is a twin not a twin? Before he's been re-shaped, re-clothed, be-wigged and painted by the University Theatre's make-up crew!

Larry Wilker and Jim Wrynn, who play the leading roles in this week's University Theatre production "The Twin Menaechmi," have discovered that their own funny faces are not sufficient for a comedy whose plot hinges on the uproar caused by a couple of look-alike brothers from Syracuse.

"For most of the other characters we used masks modeled after those used in the original Roman comedies," says Director Cosmo Catalano, "but Menaechmus I and Menaechmus II needed more freedom of movement and of expression. To prevent the acting from becoming too stylized, we have mixed actors with masks and actors without, a technique that was not uncommon in Roman times."

The crew has found an opportunity to use every trick in their make-up kits. "The Menaechmi costumes are identical, of course," explained Production Manager Harry Mahnken, "We are using extreme, almost clown-like make-up and two of the most horrible wigs we can find."

The result? "You are as alike as two drops of water or two drops of milk," says Messenio, the servant of Menaechmus I. Well . . . perhaps not.

As Director Catalano explained, "If we had really wanted the two Menaechmi to look alike, we would have used the same actor for both roles. We feel that the audience itself is willing to participate in a theatrical illusion like this one. And at the same time, the actual dissimilarity adds to the comic effect."

Tickets for "The Twin Menaechmi" can be purchased at the box office in Bowker Auditorium before the performances, tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15. Alumni are reminded that this long one-act play will be over in ample time for the Homecoming Dance.

BEFORE

AFTER

When twilight shadows deepen,
And the study hour grows nigh
When shades of night are falling,
And the evening breezes sigh,
'Tis then we love to gather,
'Neath the pale moon's silv'ry spell
And lift our hearts and voices
In the songs we love so well.

Chorus:

Song of old Massachusetts
Devoted sons and true;
Bay State, my Bay State,
We'll give our best to you.
Thee our Alma Mater
We'll cherish for all time,
Should old acquaintance be forgot,
Massachusetts—yours and mine.

CLUB DIRECTORY

ACCOUNTING ASSOCIATION
First meeting on Tues., Oct. 22, at 7 p.m. in the S.U. All accounting majors welcome, especially freshmen.

B'NAI BRITH HILLEL FOUNDATION
Services will be held on Fri., Oct. 18, at 7 p.m. in the Worcester room of the S.U.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB
Coffee hour on Tues., Oct. 22, at 5:15 p.m. in the Governor's Lounge of the S.U.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Supper meeting on Mon., Oct. 20, at 6 p.m. The talk will be "Reflection on a Near Eastern Visit." Rides leaves Arnold at 5:50 p.m.

NAIADS
No meeting of the jr. Naiads on Tues., Oct. 22. No optional practice on Tues., Oct. 22. Regular meeting of the Sr. Naiads on Wed., Oct. 23.

RUSSIAN CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 22, at 6:30 p.m. in the Norfolk room of the S.U. Slides of Russia will be presented. Anyone interested is welcome to attend.

SPANISH CLUB
"Tertulia" on Wed., Oct. 23, at 4:30 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of Bartlett. Anyone interested in conversing in Spanish is invited.

ZOOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 22, at 7:30 p.m. in 138 Morrill. The talk will be "Flora and Fauna of the Western Regions."

Philharmonic To Celebrate UN Week

The third broadcast by the New York Philharmonic to be presented by station WFCR will be a special program saluting United Nations Week, which is being commemorated between October 20 and 26.

Highlighting the program will be selections from Richard Strauss's popular opera, "Der Rosenkavalier". Other selections for the broadcast include Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 4 in A Major, Stravinsky's Symphony in C, and Debussy's "Iberia" from "Images for Orchestra".

NOTICES

BOWLING TOURNAMENT
Men and women of the class of '67 who wish to participate in the Freshman Bowling Tournament can sign up now at the games desk. The number of entrees will be limited. Trophies will be awarded. Date of tournament will be announced.

DANCE
G.D.I. will present a "Hills Homecoming" dance Sat., Oct. 19, from 8 to 12 p.m. in the Hills Dorm Lounge. Free admission to couples and stags.

FINANCIAL AID
Notice to recipients of National Defense Loans, University Scholarships, and Work Scholarships:

(Continued on page 6)

Winter's Snows Are Coming!
SKI AND WINTER SPORT ADVOCATES
DON'T WAIT UNTIL THE LAST MINUTE
Get SHATTER-PROOF
PRESCRIPTION SUNGLASSES
Something New
A WRAP-AROUND SKIER'S GOGGLE
Available for the first time in Prescription Form
DON CALL - Optician
MAIN STREET — AMHERST

DON'T MISS
Taj
&
The Electras
TONITE!

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn
Breakfast — 30¢
Lunch — 50¢ up
THE OPEN HEARTH STEAKHOUSE
BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

by SANDI MAY '64

DORMITORY NEWS

HILLS NORTH

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 9, Hills House North Dormitory held an informal coffee hour with Ass't Dean of Men William H. Burkhardt as guest speaker. The Dean and the students discussed the present problems of the University and of education as a whole. The University problems of automobile parking, social life, over-crowded classes, and the necessity of Graduate Work were of special interest to the group.

JOHNSON

Johnsonites are in the news again, including our favorite Johnsonite—Mrs. Johnson. As advisor to Women's Interdorm Council for the second year, she'll again do her best to make dorm living more comfortable and more fun. This year we have a special interest in the Council as Paula Freed '66, and Sandy Perreault '66, were recently elected vice-president and secretary respectively.

Elections brought some new and old faces on the scene. Marilyn "Sam" Singer '65, was elected dorm senator after serving on the Senate for two years as Senator-at-Large. Our officers for the year are: Mary Ann McAdams '66, treasurer; Ruth Goran '65, Dining Commons counselor; and Denise Welch '65, WAA representative.

We would also like to congratulate Mary Robison '65, a transfer from Westminster College, on her election to social chairman. Homecoming float, dorm and corridor suppers, and faculty teas should keep her busy. Congratulations are also extended to Cheryl Daggett '67, recently accepted into Naiads, and to Marilyn Singer '65, Glenda Stockwell '64, and Maggie Wenzell '64, chosen to model in the Fall Fashion Show. Our thanks to Nancy Thompson '65, and Linda Fisher '65, for leading us so beautifully at the Interdorm Sing.

We are pleased to announce a visit by Dr. Gage on October 22nd, at which time he will answer questions from Johnsonites and Lewisites, who will be our guests that evening. We will also host freshmen forums next week. Betty Cook '65, will be seminar leader.

HAMLIN

Hamlin House started their social activities for the year with a grinder supper for all their girls the second week of school. Soon afterwards a dorm breakfast was planned, and held the first Sunday in October.

The evening of the Interdorm Sing Hamlin was the proud recipient of second place. The girls got together with their house mother, Mrs. Rich the night after the event for an informal party in celebration of the occasion.

THATCHER

The girls of Thatcher have been occupied preparing for a busy "63-64" year. Work on our Homecoming Float has been progressing rapidly under the able direction of our Social Chairman, Pam Crowell. Our best wishes go to pretty Barbara Ford, Thatcher's nomination for Homecoming Queen.

Our first dorm social event was a fireside Corridor Breakfast, held on Sunday morning, October 6. This informal breakfast was such a complete success that we are planning another one very soon.

Also being planned is an informal gathering with Dr. Gage on Wednesday evening, November 6. Past meetings with Dr. Gage

(Continued on page 7)

Pinnings

Sylvia Piantoni, AXO, to Gus Allen, St. Anslems.

Gisela Wagner, AXO, to Frank Brodhead, EQV, Wesleyan.

Sandra Hand, Garland Jr. College, to Dave Elson, SAE.

Betty Veneri, SDT, to Bob Blair, BKP.

Lee Ann Mansell, KAT, to David E. Truesdell III, QTV.

★ Engagements ★

Ronnie Sue Fireman, SDT, to Sidney Katz, Beverly, Mass.

Lillian Rich, SDT, to Benny Wax, TEP.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Lance Crosby of Westport, Conn. wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Beth, to Donald C. MacLaren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anson A. MacLaren, also of Westport.

Beth is presently a senior landscape architecture major, living in Leach House. Her fiance studied at the University of Connecticut, and is now in residence at Bethany College, Bethany, West Virginia, where he is majoring in chemistry.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Nancy Andrade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Andrade of East Wareham, Mass., to Charles Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Reid of West Medford.

Nancy is a senior government major at the University. She is president of Lambda Phi sorority and Secretary of Mortarboards. Her fiance is a senior business major and president of Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity.

Wedding plans are indefinite.

Sorority News

SIGMA DELTA TAU

Returning to SDT this fall, we have a few world travelers. Shelly Esterguest spent last year studying at Trinity College, Dublin University. Debbie Lindbergh spent her summer teaching at a private school in Villan, Switzerland and Ellen Lief toured Europe. Judy Wilcox and Judy Addleson attended the summer session at Florida State University.

S.D.T. is buzzing with activity. Last week we had our first exchange supper of the year with Sig Ep. The sisters all had an enjoyable time at this event.

This week we are all pooling our efforts in preparation for the float parade. Preparations are also being made for the returning alumni.

We are presently entertaining Mrs. Lea Cassell, our National Advisor and Mrs. Patsy Linderman, our National Treasurer.

On October 15, Roberta Bernstein, Bobby Smith, and Elaine Kaplinsky represented SDT on WTTT radio on a current events quiz program.

The sisters would like to take this opportunity to congratulate Elaine Kaplinsky for being elected to Phi Kappa Phi honor society.

Dr. Janowitz Speaks On Student Marriages

By Iris Ann Decelles

"Most married people have problems," began Dr. Julian Janowitz at the second monthly meeting of the UMass Dames Club held October 14 in the Student Union. Dr. Janowitz, Director of Mental Hygiene at the Infirmary, focused his lecture primarily on the various emotional and physical difficulties that confront University student husbands and their wives.

In attempting to explain the relationships that exist between husband and wife, Dr. Janowitz presented a new theory consisting of the three roles that each of the partners plays at one time or another. The first, and most important of these roles, is that of adult to adult. This relationship consists of the responsibilities assumed by mature members of society both inside and outside the home.

A second communication between husband and wife may exist when one of the two plays the part of the parent exercising either parental discipline or parental affection or sympathy toward his spouse.

The final role considered by Dr. Janowitz was covered at length as it dealt with the "residual childhood acts or emotions experienced at sometime by all people." In other words, each person at one time or another regresses back to his childhood.

For example, the husband who insists on playing football with the boys when his wife is about to serve dinner and repeatedly appeals for "another five minutes" of play, is performing an act similar to the act he may have performed ten years previous when his mother had called him for dinner.

Following this segment of his talk, Dr. Janowitz conducted a question-answer period at which time intellectual equality, birth control, closeness, and sex were openly discussed and commented upon.

Dr. Janowitz concluded by outlining the most recent service group therapy available at the Infirmary to students and their wives. Tentative plans are now being made for a session to help married students with their problems. This session would be conducted on campus one day per week for at least an hour and a half. Four or five seriously interested couples are required for such a class and it is hoped that married couples interested in this group would contact Dr. Janowitz and make known their intentions.

'Dames' were reminded by Dr. Janowitz that the "surest way of solving a problem is to admit that a problem does exist and then seek professional means to help eliminate it."

Marching Band ...

(Continued from page 1)

Featured on the halftime program will be twirlers Betty Mercer and Susan Longfellow, who will present a fast-paced twirling exhibition, "Ma, He's Makin' Eyes at Me". As its special guests during pregame, the band will present the nationally famous "Flying Redmen". As a part of their tradition of promoting campus spirit, the Revelers, led by President Jim Norton will assist the band during halftime ceremonies, Revelers who will distribute copies of the worker to the Alma Mater and Fight Songs.

Incumbents ...

(Continued from page 3)

By rollcall vote the margin was 31-17; thus the prayer remains.

The Senate also approved the budgets of the Collegian, Index, WMUA, and Yahoo as presented by Senator Ross Jones (Brett), Chairman of the Finance Committee.

In other action, the Senate endorsed the distribution of the printed words to the Alma Mater at the Homecoming game, and urges the student body to participate in the singing of our Alma Mater.

Deerfield Drive-In Theatre
ROUTE 5 & 10 — SOUTH DEERFIELD, MASSACHUSETTS
FRIDAY—SATURDAY—SUNDAY
DORIS DAY
JAMES GARNER
A ROSS HUNTER-ARWIN PRODUCTION
The Thrill Of it All!
In EASTMAN COLOR
with ARLENE FRANCIS - A Universal Release
ALSO— Tony Curtis in "PERFECT FURLOUGH" Color
Coming Next: "THE LEOPARD"
—SHOW BEGINS AT 7:30—

Musicale

Saturday, Oct. 19 — Bernstein: Three Dances from "Fancy Free" (Fiedler/Boston Pops)

Sunday, Oct. 20 — Haydn: Sym. No. 103 in E-Flat Major "Drum-Roll" (Beecham/Royal Phil.); Beethoven: Sym. No. 5 in C Minor, Op. 67 (Toscanini/NBC Sym.), Sonata No. 8 in C Minor, Op. 13 "Pathatique" (Rubenstein), Sym. No. 4 in B-Flat, Op. 60 (Toscanini /NBC)

Monday, Oct. 21—ALL FRENCH MUSIC

Tuesday, Oct. 22 — Moussorgsky: Pictures at an Exhibition (Graffman); W. Schuman Sym. No. 3 in One Movement (Bernstein/NYP); Brahms: Violin Sonata No. 3 in D Minor, Op. 108 (Rubenstein/Szeryng); Mozart: Serenade No. 12 in C Minor, K. 388 (Fiedler and His Symphonetta)

Wednesday, Oct. 23 — Debussy: La Mer (Golschmann/St. Louis Sym.); Chopin: Military Polonaise (Piastro); Tachaikovsky: Nutcracker Suite, Op. 71a (Toscanini/NBC Sym.); Bizet: March of the Toreadors from "Carmen" (Ormandy); Liszt: Hungarian Rhapsody Nos. 1 & 2 (Ormandy); Moszkowski: Bolero-Spanish Dance No. 5 (Piastro); Wagner: Overture and Vennusberg Music to Tannhauser (Walter/Columbia Sym.)

Thursday, Oct. 24 — Corelli: Concerto Grosso in D Major, Op. 6, No. 1 (Societas Musica Chamber Orch.); Beethoven:

(Continued on page 7)

Bay State Special Forces Presents Berets To New Selected Applicants

On October 27, new members of the Bay State Special Forces were presented their berets by Col. Albert W. Aykroyd, PMS of the university. The awarding of the black beret is the culmination of an extensive selection process which they had to undergo in order to become members of this elite group. The following men were selected from over 60 applicants: James Boyle, John Carver, Michael Duggan, Joseph Duke, John Edelman, Robert Flynn, Gregory Goodwin, Donald Gourley, Philippe Gregoire, Daniel Grieco, Walter Jackson, Gary Lefort, Harold MacCaughey, Anthony Manfredi, Ted Monette, Thomas Murphy, Richard Norwood, Joseph Polito, Joseph Robicheau, John Slack, Daniel Smola, Marshall Southwick, James Taylor, Erick Tietze, Kent Warner, Mark West, James Wood.

The B.S.S.F. is an organization instituted last year to provide those individuals, who have more than an average interest in the military, an opportunity to learn military skills which are not available under the regular R.O.T.C. program. Participation is strictly voluntary as most of the training is extra-curricular in nature.

This year's staff includes Cadet Lt. Col. Edward C. Dowdy as commander, Cadet Maj. James A. Blanchard as executive officer, Cadet Capt. Richard J. McLaughlin as training officer, Cadet M/Sgt. Kenneth E. Needham as administrations sergeant, and Cadet M/Sgt. Richard F. Murphy as supply sergeant. The B.S.S.F. adviser is Capt. John G. Keliher.

Lost and Found

LOST: Economy book and notebook in vicinity of Dickinson's Hall Oct. 16. If found, please return to Wallace Lafayette, 223 Mills.

LOST: A blue and white bike from the side of Thatcher. There are two baskets in the back and one in front. It has a blue and white seat. If found or if someone knows of its where-abouts, please contact Lee Rugman at Thatcher.

LOST: A pair of glasses with light grey frames and brown clip case. Lost in Bartlett last Wednesday in room 202. If found contact Art Cohen, 342 Baker.

LOST: A pair of glasses in a brown alligator clip case. If found contact Frank Pelosi, 307 Butterfield.

LOST: Wed., Oct. 16, a Girard-Perraigeay Wrist Watch. If found contact Warren Graff, 440 Baker. Reward.

Hort Show Not To Be Held

The Horticultural Show at the University has been cancelled for 1963, it was announced this week.

The lack of availabity of suitable space in the Cage was given as the reason for the cancellation. Some of the equipment for the new Phys. Ed. Building must be stored in the Cage. Under these circumstances it is not possible to design a quality show. Arless A. Spielman, Dean of the College of Agriculture said, "The Hort Show as known has been a colorful spectacle for 50 years, attracting outputs of 20,000 persons annually."

The show started as a class exercise in flower arrangement in French Hall and later Wilder Hall.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: STANTON PEEL

With Southern New England Telephone in New Haven, Stanton Peel (B.S., 1962) handles important engineering assignments for the Current Plans Office.

His projects have been as short as a matter of minutes, as long as several weeks. They have ranged from studies such as he made on the telephone facilities layout around Saybrook and Middlesex Junction, Connecticut, to the very comprehensive package he put together on Weather Announcement Service. Even though he's been with Southern New England Telephone less than a year, Stanton Peel has already established an enviable reputation for his thoroughness and keen analytical ability.

Stanton Peel, like many young engineers, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.

BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES

FOR SALE

5-RM RANCH TYPE home. Aluminum siding, large living room with brick fireplace, kitchen with built-in cabinets and 3 bedrooms. Tile bath, insulated. 7 acres. Located in Leverett.

ASHFIELD REALTY
21 Pleasant Street
Northampton — JU 4-2713

DECORATING

SUPPLIES

A. J. Hastings,
INC.
NEWSDEALER & STATIONER
South Pleasant — Amherst

ART SUPPLIES & ART GALLERY

AMHERST PAINT & WALLPAPER COMPANY

Leo Robinson, "Keeper Of The Cats", Identified As Former UM Student

by C. M. MOORE

He works at the University; but, "without remuneration, vacation or sick leave."

His position, self-appointed, is "keeper of the cats," a career which he began some 15 years ago.

His name is Leo ("about as short a name as you can get") Robinson.

When a man sports a thirty-year growth of hair and beard, dresses unconventionally, and devotes his life to the care and feeding of a dozen cats, it's very likely that stories will circulate around such a person.

This is certainly true of 77-year-old Leo Robinson.

Perhaps the most prevalent 'rumor', particularly among students, is that Robinson is a retired University of Massachusetts instructor.

As opposed to rumor, Robinson's past association with the University was as a student. In 1919, a WWI veteran financed by the G.I. Bill of that era, he studied practical agriculture at Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Also contrary to popular thought, Robinson is not a vegetarian. This is evidenced by his firm convictions about the benefits of proper nutrition including meat and fish, and a well-balanced diet.

Providing for the University's twelve or so cats is a "full-time" occupation for Robinson. Twice daily, early in the morning and again at five, he makes the trip from his Fearing Street residence to the Horse Barn on campus.

LEO ROBINSON

Inasmuch as each cat and kitten is individually and methodically spoon-fed, the chore consumes the better part of each day, seven days a week, 52 weeks a year.

There has been much speculation as to the contents of the shop-worn canvas sack he carries on each trip.

His cargo, in fact, includes cat food which he has purchased or that which he has refrigerated at home. Also, powdered milk.

In the past 77 years, Robinson has run the vocational gamut from turkey rancher in Palm Beach to draftsman at Westinghouse in Pittsburg. He subsists now on a small WWI pension.

Once married and now a grandfather, he seems to be extremely well-read and uncommonly intelligent.

That he is eccentric we will concede, Leo Robinson remains, however, a living legend of the University.

Area College Students Start Tutorials In Springfield

Several groups in the four-college area are jointly sponsoring a program of tutorials in the Holyoke-Springfield cities. Individual college students tutor two or three eighth grade Negro students once a week, either Monday or Thursday, from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. in th basic elementary school subjects.

Cultural and economic deprivation along with poor or mediocre elementary and secondary school education is a block to the realization of potential in today's youth. The tutoring program aims at preparing selected students for the type of education which should be theirs.

It is hoped that interested persons from the University community can become involved in this project. The subjects needed most by the students are mathematics, reading, language skills, and foreign languages. If interested sign up this week in the Office of the Protestant Chaplain, Student Union.

B.C. Professor Lectures On The Common Market

by LOIS SKOLNICK

"The United States of Europe is building its government backwards. Many interstate commissions already exist. The last stage will be to write its constitution."

This is the opinion of Prof. Joseph McKenna of the department of Economics, Boston College, who spoke at a joint colloquium of the School of Business Administration and the Department of History last Friday afternoon.

In a lecture concerning the future of the Common Market, Prof. McKenna stated that the basic form of the present Common Market developed from the old European Customs Union. This Union had aimed at "dropping internal tariffs, and stabilizing external tariffs, while letting free play take care of this matter," Prof. McKenna explained.

"The planners of the Common Market realized the need for an unusual form of government which would aim at creating "harmony" among European enterprise, much of which is socialized, he continued.

The Common Market resulted in creating a government of two groups, an executive commission of commissioners appointed by each Common Market country, and a legislative body, the Council of Ministers, made up of the Foreign Ministers of each of the six member countries, Prof. McKenna explained.

But, he continues, the "built in dynamic" of this government lies in the executive body's obligation to make proposals to the legislative body. The legislative body must act on these proposals.

Prof. McKenna said that the Common Market has an original aim in the idea of both an economic and political union of Europe.

The most startlingly successful has been economic progress, with the rate of growth among member countries averaging from 6% to 8% per year, he stated.

In reviewing the present European economic conditions, Prof. McKenna notes a great similarity to the U.S. of the 1920's. "There are significant domestic opportunities which enterprise is busily exploiting. They are not interested in the rest of the world. As a result, they set up an economic wall against the outside world," he explained.

"Most European business men have all they can do to handle the new expanded market. They are in no position to fight for better external tariffs," he added. He used this concept to explain the recent Frozen Chicken Controversy.

In respect to political unity, Prof. McKenna does not believe that the Common Market has been as successful. He sees DeGaulle as a symbol of many European forces which consider the primacy of politics over economy.

He predicts, however, that Great Britain and the rest of the outer seven, with the exception of Switzerland, will soon come into the Market.

Ultimately, Prof. McKenna envisions a slowly developing United States of Europe. With the development of the present Interstate Commerce Commission, an Atomic Energy Commission, and other existing agencies, the government is already building itself backwards, he says, "The last stage will be to write its constitution."

Prof. McKenna recently spent two years in Europe studying economics. He took his undergraduate work at Harvard and received his PhD. from the same school. He has taught at the University of Minnesota, St. Louis University, and now at Boston College.

As author of International Economic Theory and Aggregative Economic Analysis, Prof. McKenna has contributed widely to economic's journals and is now writing a third book.

Tryouts For "Ghosts" Held By University Theatre

Ghosts

a naturalistic play,

by Henrik Ibsen, will be University Theatre's next production on the University of Massachusetts campus.

Tryouts for the great 19th century play, a masterpiece of realism and symbolism, will be Monday and Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Bartlett 125.

A whirlpool of violent controversy encircled the publication of Henrik Ibsen's Ghosts in 1881—for in it Ibsen had given naturalism what many thought was its most controversial work.

To answer critics who had roundly denounced his A Doll's House because the heroine left her home and husband (this was a time when women's rights were hotly argued), Ibsen reversed the situation of the earlier play in Ghosts. The result was irony; the heroine's conformity tragic.

Included in the cast of characters are: the desperate and ironic Mrs. Alving; the imbecile Oswald, symbol of the decay apparent in his family while the outside world remains beautiful; the illegitimate halfsister, Regina; and the back-looking Pastor Manders.

The 'ghosts' that haunt Mrs. Alving are not only Regina, child of her husband's indiscretions, and the unfortunate Oswald, but all the conformities she at last sees are evil.

Notices ...

(Continued from page 3)

If you have not signed your award check, please stop in the Cashier's Office, South College, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. to complete your requirements.

SWIMMING

Interdorm, Intersorority Swim Meet: To be held at the WPE building, Oct. 22, at 7 p.m. Anyone can participate. Sign-up sheets are posted in each dorm and sorority now.

Fifty Mile Swim: The American Red Cross is sponsoring a 50 mile swim which starts Monday, Oct. 21, at the WoPE Pool. More information is available at the WoPE Building.

NAIADS

On Wednesday, Oct. 23, a group of Senior Naiads will perform for the Woman's Club of Deerfield, Mass. at 8:30 p.m. in the pool of the Gables Restaurant.

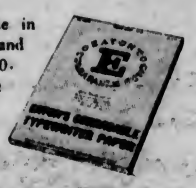
SENIORS

Professor Kirkpatrick from George Washington University Law School will be on campus Mon., Oct. 21, to talk with students who have some interest in attending law school. The meeting will take place from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Nantucket Room of the S.U.

ERASE WITHOUT A TRACE
ON EATON'S CORRĀSABLE BOND

Don't meet your Waterloo at the typewriter—perfectly typed papers begin with Corrāsable! You can rub out typing errors with just an ordinary pencil eraser. It's that simple to erase without a trace on Corrāsable. Saves time, temper, and money!

Your choice of Corrāsable in light, medium, heavy weights and Onion Skin in handy 100-sheet packets and 500-sheet boxes. Only Eaton makes Corrāsable.



A Berkshire Typewriter Paper

EATON PAPER CORPORATION PITTSFIELD, MASS.

GIRLS!!

White Dyeables $8.99
Satin
Peau de Soie
Spike or Illusion heels
—ALSO—
We can dye your old Pumps to match your Gown $2.00 & up

BOLLES SHOE STORE
AMHERST CENTER

Varsity Football

(Continued from page 8)

amassed 179 yards and averages nearly five yards a try. Whelchel is the number two grass burner with 155 yards on 39 attempts for 3.9 a carry. Halfback Ken Palm is third with 131 net yards and a 4.5 average and fullback Mike Ross is fourth with 109 yards and a 4.5 mark. Fullback Dick Warren is next with 98 yards and an average of 4.8 a carry.

The "M-Twins", Bob Meers and Milt Morin, sophomore ends, have been Whelchel's favorite targets. Meers has caught nine passes for 137 yards; Morin has gathered in seven aerials for 118 yards and one touchdown.

In the four contests to date the Bay Staters have amassed 223 yards in penalties or an average of 56 yards a game. Penalties have caused five Redmen touchdowns to be called back and have robbed them of numerous scoring opportunities.

Coach Vic Fusia stated that the Redmen are in fairly good physical shape for tomorrow's Homecoming contest that is expected to draw a sell-out crowd to Alumni Field. Fusia hopes that Junior end John Hudson and sophomore fullback Phil Vandersea will be ready for action. Hudson has missed the last two games and Vandersea was idle last week.

Freshmen Football

(Continued from page 8)

Caruso.

The team should have gained some valuable experience against Manlius last week, and this is what counts. The individual stars are there, its just a question of when the team is going to jell. The passing game is good and if the ground game improves the Little Redmen will be hard to stop.

Intramural Meet

This year's intramural cross country meet is scheduled for Saturday, November 2 at twelve noon. All male non-track students are eligible to compete for the individual prize, and a team prize will be given to the winning five man fraternity or dormitory team. The mile and a half course begins in front of the Student Union.

Candidates and team managers are asked to sign up with James Collins in Chadbourne 309 or at the intramural office in the Men's Physical Education building before October 30.

Freshmen Basketball

There will be a meeting of all freshmen basketball candidates Monday, Oct. 21 at 4:45 in Room 10 of the Men's Physical Education Building. Coach Jack Leaman will issue instructions concerning pre-season physical exams. Any player who can't make the meeting is requested to see Coach Leaman any afternoon between 1 and 3 o'clock in Room 9 of the Cage. Freshmen practice will start October 28.

Redmen Club Grows In Size

Here are the up to the minute standings in the Redmen Club. The first column carries the names of the Redmen varsity players who have won membership to this club through their outstanding play on the gridiron. The first column lists the names of the members. The other columns list the games in which the players have won the little decal letters they now carry on their helmets.

Player	Maine	Harvard	Bucknell	UConn
Pietz	R	ED	M
Burke	R	E	D
Dallas	RE	DM	AN
DeMinico	R	E		••••••
Meers	RED		MAN
Hudson	RED	MA
Hagberg	R
Brophy	RE
Graham	RED	M
Tedoldi	RE		DM
Whelchel		RE	D	MAN
Doyle		R		E
Ross		RE		D
Ellis		REDMAN	*
Warren			RE
Vandersea			R
Lewis				R
Morin				R
Palm				R
Kehoe				R
Spidle				R

The stars indicate the player has already won his second R, E, D or whatever the letter may be. Four players have already won the letters that Spell out REDMAN. They are Bernie Dallas, Bob Ellis and Bob Meers, all Sophomores, and Jerry Whelchel. Dallas, starting center, has already completed the cycle twice and has one star to begin the third cycle of letters. Look for these letters tomorrow when the Redmen take the field.

Dorm News ...

(Continued from page 4)

have been so informative that the girls are looking forward to this one with interest.

Congratulations go to recently elected dorm Senator, Toby Kaplan, and to our new initiate of Alpha Lambda Delta, Gretchen Snook. We also wish to express our hopes for a successful Freshmen Seminar to the seminar leader from Thatcher, Sandra Morse, and to Jeanna Young, Freshmen Study Skills Advisor. Thatcher would like to welcome Bonnie Huang Sun, a Food Technology graduate student from Taiwan.

Frosh X-Country

The University of Massachusetts' freshman cross country team was easily outclassed by a fine Providence College foe last Friday afternoon in a quadrangular meet. Also competing were Boston University and the UConn Huskies. The polished Friars put on an excellent display of running and easily won the meet. The Providence harriers were paced by the record breaking performance of Bob Powers, who ran the 3.1 mile course in 13:59, six-tenths of a second faster than the old record.

The best individual effort on the part of a UMass runner came from Bob Sinclair, who finished a strong eighth. He came in with a time of 15:08. The New Jersey High School record holder has been the only consistent performer to date.

It was definitely a case of being outclassed. The Providence yearlings rate as one of the better units in New England. UMass mentor Justin Cobb stated that the Friars are definitely too strong for area schools. He also commented that fine coaching and strong efforts on the part of the runners have contributed to Providence's superiority. These efforts led to the capturing of six out of the first seven places.

The UMass frosh have yet to show some running equal to that of the teams of the last three years. Stiff practice sessions are in store for this week in hopes of an initial victory this Saturday at Central Connecticut. Here's wishing Coach Cobb's charges the best of luck.

IFC Football Results

In the I.F.C. League last Monday night, eight teams played.

Q.T.V. tied T.E.P., 13-13

S.P.E. outscored A.E.P., 20-13

K.S. shaded T.C. by one touchdown

T.K.E. stomped over T.M.D., 30-0

L.C.A. whitewashed P.S.D., 33-0

Z.N. shut out A.T.G., 19-1

Musicale ...

(Continued from page 5)

Sym. No. 6 in F, Op. 68 (Toscanini/NBC Sym.); Mozart: Piano Concerto No. 22 in E-Flat, K. 482 (R. Casadesus/ Columbia Sym./Szell)

SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS
AMHERST Cinema
—NOW --- Ends Sat.—
"MONDO CANE" DON'T MISS IT!
Sun. — "THE HAUNTING" Julie Harris

HADLEY
DRIVE-IN ROUTE 9
BETWEEN NORTHAMPTON AND AMHERST
FRI., SAT., SUN. — OCT. 18-19-20

Praise Her! Condemn Her! - but by all means... SEE HER!

Gates Open 7 p.m.
Show Starts at 7:30
'Shame of Patty Smith' at 9 p.m.

NO ONE IS SAFE from THE SHAME of Patty Smith
plus Co-hit - "THE YOUNG GO WILD"

On Campus Photo — Ron Goldberg

Beat Rhode Island...

And for the game join Nancy & Bob with a warm 'Pendleton' ROBE IN A BAG
100% Wool with Redmen Seal in your college color. $17.95

NANCY'S MOHAIR SWEATER by Sebastian . . . it comes in White, Beige, Orange and Gold. Also available in Cardigan styles.

BOB'S SWEATER by L d Jeff from Shetland Isles in all sizes—and new Fall Heather Shades.

House of Walsh
AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS

Undefeated U of M Plays URI In Homecoming Game

by STEVE HEWEY

Homecoming 1963 finds the University of Massachusetts, undefeated in four starts, looking forward to a win over the University of Rhode Island tomorrow to keep its streak intact. A victory over the Rams would provide the Redmen with an overall record of four wins and one tie. In Yankee Conference standings UMass is now 2-0 to lead the pack with a good chance to boost that lead to 3-0 tomorrow.

Saturday's game will mark the 37th time the Redmen and the Rams have met on the gridiron. URI holds a big edge in the overall series standings with 22 victories, 13 losses and two ties. But for the past few seasons the Rams have found beating UMass a tough chore. In 1960 the Redmen romped 34 to 16, in 1961 they shutout the Rams 25-0 and in last year's contest ran away with the game 42-8.

Although URI has an overall record of 1-3 and stand 1-2 in the Yankee Conference they are big and have a scoring punch. New Ram head coach Jack Zilly has installed a pro-type offense that can produce touchdowns at any moment. Zilly's offensive sparks have been his alternate quarterbacks, junior Greg Gutter and sophomore Paul Briccocoli. Together, these boys have been averaging some 30 passes a game.

The recipients of most of these passes have been open end Bob Del Vecchio, tight end Dan Dean and flanker Fred Jackson.

Bruising fullback Tony Tetro, 6', 217, is leading the Ram ground game. His favorite spots are up the middle and off tackle.

Massachusetts comes into tomorrow's ball game with a great statistical edge mainly due to a superb effort on the part of the defensive unit all season. The Redmen have outgained the opposition 779 yards rushing to 197 in four games.

In the air the Bay Staters again have the edge. They have connected on 26 of 43 passes for 339 yards, a completion average of .605. The opposition is 46 for 95 for 494 yards but has a completion average of only .484.

Triple threat quarterback Jerry Whelchel has been the mainspring in the Redmen offensive machinery all season long. The junior signal caller has completed 25 of 39 passes for 334 yards and two TD's. Whelchel's passing average is a healthy 64%.

Whelchel is also the leading UM point getter in four games. He has one touchdown and has booted eight straight extra points for a total of 14 points.

Halfback Fred Lewis is the top ground gainer for Coach Vic Fusia. In 36 carries Lewis has

(Continued on page 7)

—Marcia Sutherland

BETABUNNIE — Playboy's pick to win the Yan-Con crown.

I.F.C. Football

Frats' Touch Football Features Upset Of League Leading K.S.

The I.F.C. touch football league closed its fifth round of play on Wednesday night with many surprises.

League leading K.S. lost to T.K.E. 20-13 in a hard fought game. The T.K.E. team had only been scored on once before this season while K.S. was unbeaten going into the game. T.K.E. took the opening kickoff and marched down field to score on a pass from Bunky Karampotsus to Paul Caise (?) K.S. came back to tie the score on a quarterback run by Bruce Crane. As the half ended Bunky Karapatsus followed suit by scoring T.K.E's second touch down on a quarterback run. In the second half Ken Rowe caught a 40 yard pass to score T.K.E.'s third touchdown and as the game ended Jim Harrington of K.S. caught a pass for K.S.'s second touchdown Q.T.V. rolled to a 38-12 win over A.S.P. The Q.T.V. team which has played very steady football this year behind Skip Owen and Hank Knitin scored easily throughout the game.

In an exciting game S.P.E. and T.E.P. fought to a 7-7 tie. The T.E.P. touchdown was scored by Ross Baker and Dawdow followed with the conversion. John Geneois scored for S.P.E. and completed the scoring with the conversion. Th final score was S.P.E. 7-T.P.E. 7.

P.M.D. and Z.N. playing the same type of defensive game battled to a 6-6 tie. Cescoco scored for P.M.D. while Landay kept the score tied for Z.N. with his T.D.

In the final game of the night L.C.A. outscored A.T.G. 31-12. L.C.A. found winless A.T.G. to its liking as Bob Shea scored 19 points while leading L.C.A. to its victory. Also scoring for L.C.A. was Varren and McNeal while Perry and Hayes scored for A.G.T. The final score was L.C.A. 31-A.T.G. 12.

Frosh Seek 1st Win Against Me. Central

The freshman football team travels to Maine this Saturday in the hopes of bouncing back from its loss to Manlius. The team showed promise in its opener against a team which already had two victories under its belt.

Maine Central Institute will field a team made up completely of post-graduate players. They have good size which is evidenced by the fact that their starting tackles both weigh 230 lbs, and the center tips in at 225 lbs. This team is big but suffers from the same problem as the UMass frosh: they haven't played together long enough.

Coach Fred Glatz will have every player at his disposal Saturday with the injured list finally non-existant. Ray Johnson, who had been bothered by a operate at quarterback in addition to his usual kicking job.

Bob Santucci, who was the team's best lineman against Manlius last week, will be out there leading the head-bangers again. He is a big aggressive guard-linebacker who came up with some key tackles last week. One prominent change in the backfield will be the moving of Dick Benoit to fullback from halfback. Dick shouldn't have much trouble with the transition because he has the weight (210) and the speed. The quarterback position will be split between three men: Al Caruso, who did a good job last week; Joe Belforte, who saw some action; and Ray Johnson, who has been unable to throw because of a shoulder injury. At the end position, Ted Hoague will play more; last week he scored the first touchdown of the game on a seventeen yard pass from Al

(Continued on page 7)

Kicking Off The Season

OPENING A NEW STEAK HOUSE IN THE AREA

Lamp Lighter Steak House

ON ROUTES 5 & 10 • WHATELY, MASS.

(15 Minute Drive from Campus)

Featuring ★ STEAKS ★ LOBSTERS

Cocktails

Gifts

Pewter Mug with Glass Bottom and Etched U of M Seal

$10.00 No Tax

WINN JEWELERS

31 South Pleasant — Amherst

MAJESTIC

WEST SPRINGFIELD

2ND LAUGH-FILLED WEEK!

Terry Thomas — Margaret Rutherford

"Mouse On The Moon" Color

PLUS—Academy Award Winner Anne Bancroft in "THE MIRACLE WORKER"

—WED., OCT. 23 -- 1ST RUN—

"THIS SPORTING LIFE"

A Drama of Sex and Soccer

Quality Fruit Store

Amity Street

The Little Store Near the Theater

LIBRARY

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

LIBRARY
OCT 25 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

VOL. XCIII NO. 16 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1963

New Supervisory Personnel To Speed Dorm Construction

THE UNIVERSITY of Massachusetts Building Authority, in an effort to speed up construction of the new six story residence halls on Van Meter hill, has arranged to have new supervisory personnel placed on the job.

Building Authority Chairman George Pumphret stated that work should have been completed on Oct. 8 of this year, but because of excavating problems and the severity of the winter, the Authority granted an extension to Dec. 11.

PUMPHRET STATED that when it became evident that the company, the M. J. Walsh Co. of Holyoke, could not complete the dorms on time, he began a discussion of the reasons for the delay with Walsh Co. officials.

He further stated that the Authority would impose a $50 a day penalty clause for each day the dorms are not completed past the Dec. 11 target date.

THE BUILDINGS, Pumphret said, would be completed for occupancy by next fall.

UMass Director of Housing John Welles stated that the housing problem caused by the lag in building has been solved "thanks to the help of area residents."

HE STATED that the number of off-campus residents has risen from 500 to almost 900 this year. In addition, more than 1200 graduate students are living off campus, bringing the total commuter population to over 2,000.

Accommodations for over 250 of these were obtained from area residents who heeded a newspaper and radio appeal for student housing. More than 200 homeowners responded to the appeal.

UN General Assembly President Here Thurs.

The Distinguished Visitors Program presents the U.N. week keynote speaker, Sir Muhammed Zafrulla Khan President of the seventeenth U.N. General Assembly. The title of his address is "United Nations at the Crossroads". He will speak on Thursday, October 24 at 11:15 a.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

He was born on February 6, 1893. He was educated at the Government College, Lahore, and later at King's College, London; he was called to the Bar from Lincoln's Inn, London, and practiced law in the Lahore High Court from 1914-1935. He is an Honorary Bencher of Lincoln's Inn and an Honorary Fellow of King's College, London. The L.L.D. Honorary Causa was conferred on him by the University of Cambridge in 1937.

From 1926-1935, he was a member of the Punjab Legislative Council. He was a delegate to the Indian Round Table Conferences in 1930, 1931 and 1932. He was also a delegate to the Joint Select Committee on India Parliamentary Reforms in 1933.

Sir Zafrulla Khan was elected President of the All-India Muslim League in 1931. He served as a Member of the Viceroy's Executive Council from 1935 to 1941. He represented India at the Imperial Conference in 1937 and at the Dominion Minister's Conference in 1939.

Sir Zafrulla Khan led the Indian Delegation to the Session of the Assembly of the League of Nations held in Geneva in December 1939.

He served as Agent-General

(Continued on page 6)

SIR MUHAMMED ZAFRULLA KHAN

LARGEST EVER

Float Parade, Dave Brubeck Hilite Homecoming Weekend

—Photo by Harold Gushue

Greenough's prize winning float "Ram Chop Suey" was followed by over 45 occupants of that dorm. This was a first in the history of the University that costumed residents of a men's dorm have followed their dorm's float.

by DAVE HARACZ

NATURE CO-OPERATED BY continuing the spell of Indian Summer weather as the 1963 Homecoming Weekend proved to be the biggest yet.

The weekend began Friday evening with the float parade, during which spectators crowded the parade route as more than 40 floats demonstrated the feelings of UMass Students as to the outcome of Saturday's football game with the Rhode Island Rams.

PRIZE-WINNING FLOATS were: Fraternities: 1. Beta Kappa Phi; 2. QTV; 3. Phi Sigma Delta. Sororities: 1. Sigma Kappa; 2. Kappa Kappa Gamma; 3. Pi Beta Phi. Men's Dorms: 1. Greenough; 2. Baker; 3. Wheeler. Women's Dorms: 1. Knowlton; 2. Van Meter North; 3. Johnson.

After the parade, a rally was held behind the Student Union, but there was no bonfire, due to extreme drought conditions brought on by the recent lack of rain. At the dance in the ballroom which followed the rally, Sandy Pierce was crowned Homecoming Queen of 1963. Her court included: Anne Creedon, '66; Elaine Howe, '66; Judy Sturtevant, '67; and Vicki Lappman, '67.

SATURDAY afternoon saw the alumni Tailgate Picnic on the South Terrace of the Student Union, followed by the football game, with the added attractions of half-time appearances of the Flying Redmen and the Homecoming Queen and her court.

Highlight of Saturday evening was the Homecoming Dance in the SU Ballroom. Besides the traditional parties at the fraternity houses, the alumni and faculty attended a dance sponsored by the University Women at Memorial Hall, featuring the mu-

(Continued on page 7)

The Dafne Hellman Trio Entertains Enthusiastic Group

The versatile and very talented Daphne Hellman Trio played before a relatively small group of students last Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. in the S. U. Ballroom. However, the audience was enthusiastic and the music, beyond comparison.

The Trio, consisting of Daphne Hellman, (harp,) Bob Bello, (bass violin,) and Joe Williams, (electric guitar,) played with a unique but refreshing sound. Their repertoire ranged from 18th century pieces down through the folk music we enjoy today.

The first selection, an 18th century piece by Bach, was originally written for the harpsichord, a stringed musical instrument that looked like a piano but sounded like a harp.

The next few pieces included "In Thee Is Joy" by Chopin, and three compositions by Scarletti, the first in B flat, the second in C minor, and the third in D.

A lively tune, "Burgha Meska," which was adapted from a dance, was followed by another 18th century piece by Parelli.

The Trio showed their versatility with an adaptation of Tchaikovsky's famous "Nutcracker Suite," as they played several selections from it. This was the end of the first part of the program.

A French folk tune, "The Little King of Ephto" was next, and then Bob and Joe gave the spotlight to Daphne as she played several solos on the harp.

Daphne explained that the present harp was developed in France about 80 years ago. The first harp was shaped something like a hunter's bow about three

(Continued on page 6)

Tryouts For Ghosts

Tryouts for parts in Ghosts will be held tonight and tomorrow night at 7:30 in Bartlett 125. The play, by Henrik Ibsen, one of the most controversial realistic dramas ever staged, is University Theatre's second production of the year.

All interested students are urged to try out for cast roles or for positions on the stage crew.

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

SCHOLA CANTORUM AT THE CAGE

by LANGDON F. LOMBARD

PROGRAM:

Handel: Soloman's Invocation to Music
Four Madrigals by Jannequin, Marenzio, Lassus, and Morley
Choruses from Puccini's "The Girl of the Golden West," Huperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," and Bizet's "Carmen."
Singer: Alcottiana, scenic cantata.
Two Yugoslav Songs by Sirola, and Slavenski
Orff's Laudes Creaturarum
Bernstein: Selected Choruses from "Candide"

One of the poorest crowds in UMass history witnessed some fine choral singing, the likes of which will not be heard again on campus for quite some time. Dr. Hugh Ross selected works ranging from Handel to opera. Yugoslavia to Leonard Bernstein. All selections by the chorus were well received.

Two of the choruses were augmented by the use of costume. These were Alcottiana, a scenic cantata by Singer and the selections from "Candide" by Bernstein. Both of these were especially well received by the small audience.

The now standard practice of a standing ovation brought two encores from the group, but we find little justification for having the group back when the student body, regardless of float parades and the like, refuse to patronize the more universally accepted arts.

The Great Pumpkin Part II

THE SEED OF RESISTENCE GROWS

by AXEL

We left the Great Pumpkin giving rise to a rising of some size, in the age-old oppressed pumpkin patch. The hostile Greeks had only chuckled over the idea that a leader of the down-trodden—the Lord of Gourds, the Veritable Virute of the Vegetable World—would ever come to the aid of their victims. Stalking their way through the corn fields, they finally reached what would be the gory battle field, and were immediately confronted by a hard and unbroken wall of orange. The fighting was long and bitter. Wave after wave of Greeks were cut down by heavy shelling. One or two profligate pumpkins fled in fear when their leader, momentarily lost footing and rolled stem over stern toward the enemy line. But the high bred, who had been planted as the rear guard, refused to see their leader stranded. The air was filled with the thumping of a noble Irish warrior, Jack O'Lantern, who had heard of the impending battle and brought a local tendril into the valley to aid the cause. The pumpkins were inspired by Jack's shining example. Nothing could stem their bulky hulks as they rolled, en masse, toward the enemy.

Seeing their impending doom, the Greeks turned to run, helter skelter, from the onslaught. They knew that from then on the spirit of opposition could never be rooted from the pumpkin patches. That valley would never again suffer the horrors of midnight and pie-eyed pumpkin smashers.

The story of the Great Pumpkin, as glorious as it is, did fade in succeeding generations. Only a few modern-day pumpkins had ever heard, through the vine, of their glorious past. At last patchwork dissemination of the legend reached the furtive ears of a certain Charlie Brown (now a world renowned pumpkin head) who took it upon himself to retell to the world, in art and song, the ancient tale. Pumpkins and people alike no longer merely sit and vegetate. On one day each year (October 31st), they go hand in stem, together under the harvest moon, into the quiet fields, there to venerate the Rising of The Great Pumpkin. So, you see, by my retelling this story, I hope you too will take the legend to heart.

Senatorium

CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

by MARK CHEREN

Last Wednesday's Senate meeting placed a heavy burden on the shoulders of 17 Senators. Based on the arguments given by those Senators calling for continued recitation of the customary opening prayer, one is forced to conclude that the only time many of the latter group gets to pray during the week is at the beginning of Senate meetings and that furthermore they don't even understand the significance of prayer then.

It therefore remains with the aforementioned seventeen to replace the usual "formula" with a more meaningful benediction when they are called upon to do the honors.

* * *

Undoubtedly, one of the most able and dedicated Senators is Dave Mathieson ('64). He was the only man not of the pro tem slate to be nominated during the election last Wednesday. He was nominated to the office of President. But Senator Mathieson declined the nomination. He chose not to run against Jon Fife, I think not unwisely, because he knew he could better serve the Senate on the floor, as a creative and resourceful Service Committee chairman. To date, Senator Mathieson has co-sponsored more bills than any other member of the Senate. Most of them have been significantly beneficial to Senate operations.

Last Wednesday, however, Senator Mathieson introduced a bill, co-sponsored by Senator McNamara (Commuters), which, though well intentioned, would thoroughly hamstring the Senate if passed.

The bill aims to protect the Senate against conflicts of interest which may arise in voting on appropriations from SATF funds, for various student dues supported organizations. The bill asks all OFFICERS in these organizations to refrain from voting. This suggests that mere members wouldn't be as interested in their respective organizations and that, more importantly, the interest of all organizations on campus do not coincide with the best interest of the Senate. It also seems that Senate officers are exempt from this ban, apparently they are pure as driven snow and of course we wouldn't want to tie them up with messy regulations.

But the worst thing about this bill is that it will start a precident of conflict of interest laws (and if all possible conflicts of interest were eliminated practically no one would be voting) that will positively smother the Senate in red tape. If anything, as the bill is now designed, it will prevent the very students who by their actions show most interest in extra-curricular affairs, from representing their constituents.

STUDENT MANIFESTO

by SANDRA BURLINGAME

Most editorials condemn apathy on the part of the university student as one of the worst sins of man. The time has come to defend this wide-spread practice.

College is a struggle. Not only does the student have to contend with day-today drudgery in keeping up with his studies, he is beset by demands on his time from extra-curricular activities and social contacts. Rarely does he have time to relax in the process of being pulled from all sides by professors, friends, or administrative officials. Through all this confusion can be heard the voices of the reformers saying, "Destroy apathy! Interest is needed to solve crucial problems in education and to deter impending world crises."

As the student looks up in bewilderment from his book or his coke at the Hatch, not knowing where to begin to conquer his supposedly disinterested attitude, he hears other voices telling him to study well and at the same time be well-rounded socially. The above motivations being strongest, he continues to live as he always has.

(Continued on page 3)

Throckmortimer

Senate Prayer

Innumerable factors have a pertinent bearing on the issue of "the Student Senate and Prayer". It is time to consider both sides of the argument and examine the primary facts, ideas, and influences connected with the issue.

On the Senate floor, the two opposing sides expressed themselves with dignity and reserve, emotion taking an insignificant part in the discussion.

The proponents of the bill to omit the prayer from Senate meetings maintained that it is the right of the individual to decide whether or not he should pray. And if the individual does decide to pray it is his prerogative to select the manner of prayer.

The opponents of the bill felt that retaining the prayer would provide Senators with an ample degree of individuality, as one Senator says the prayer and the words to the Senate prayer are non-denominational, and consequently can be liberally interpreted.

But in addition, the prayer affords to the Senate an element of unity—the Senators are united in their desire to contribute wisely and usefully to the University. For when a student decides to become a member of Senate, he is taking on responsibilities and must regard the interests of the University as more significant than either his own, or even those of his constituency. It is apparent that the thirty-one Senators who voted to keep the prayer consider it a manifestation of awareness of duty and responsibility.

Neither the recent Supreme Court decision to abolish prayer and Bible reading in schools, nor the current freethinking, liberal trend which is caracteristic of academic communities can be ignored. Obviously these two factors have a direct bearing on the issue, and although it is impossible to determine how influential this bearing is, it must be acknowledged.

By way of contrast, the value of the prayer as a tradition providing the Senate an identity with the past and a continuity for the future cannot be neglected.

Naturally no one can state absolutely whether the Senate was right or wrong in its decision. Both sides were trying to achieve a nidentical goal (i.e. to enable each Senator to act as a mature, responsible individual), and this undeniably subjective issue was ultimately resolved in the only way possible—Each Senator voted according to his personal convictions about the entire matter. Joan Labuzoski

Student Manifesto ...

(Continued from page 2)

Just because people do not attend certain important lectures or join in peace marches is no reason to call them apathetic. If, however, it is the consistent policy on campus to avoid responsibility and refuse to remedy situations which are possible to change—then, and only then, can the students of this University truly be called apathetic. I put it to you, the accused apathetic ones—are you content to sit in apathy and let others call you apathetic? It is time to talk back to those who condemn us. Let us point to our achievements with pride, and if we have none, let us attain some. Students of the world, arise in protest to the charge of apathy!

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of Rally Round the Flag, Boys and Barefoot Boy With Cheek)

HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY

With tuition costs steadily on the rise, more and more undergraduates are looking into the student loan plan. If you are one such, you would do well to consider the case of Leonid Sigafoos.

Leonid, the son of an unemployed bean gleaner in Straightened Circumstances, Montana, had his heart set on going to college, but his father, alas, could not afford to send him. Leonid applied for a Regents Scholarship, but his reading speed, alas, was not very rapid—three words an hour—and before he could finish the first page of his exam, the Regents had closed their briefcases crossly and gone home. Leonid then applied for an athletic scholarship, but he had, alas, only a single athletic skill—picking up beebees with his toes—and this, alas, aroused only fleeting enthusiasm among the coaches.

And then—happy day!—Leonid learned of the student loan plan: he could borrow money for his tuition and repay it in easy installments after he left school!

Happily Leonid enrolled in the Southeastern Montana College of Lanolin and Restoration Drama and happily began a college career that grew happier year by year. Indeed, it became altogether ecstatic in his senior year because Leonid met a coed named Anna Livia Plurabelle with hair like beaten gold and eyes like two sockets full of Lake Louise. Love gripped them in its big moist palm, and they were betrothed on St. Crispin's Day.

Happily they made plans to be married immediately after commencement—plans, alas, that were never to come to fruition because Leonid, alas, learned that Anna Livia, like himself, was in college on a student loan, which meant that he not only had to repay his own loan after graduation but also Anna Livia's and the job, alas, that was waiting for Leonid at the Butte Otter Works simply did not pay enough, alas, to cover both loans, plus rent and food and clothing and television repairs.

Heavy hearted, Leonid and Anna Livia sat down and lit Marlboro Cigarettes and tried to find an answer to their problem—and, sure enough, they did! I do not know whether or not Marlboro Cigarettes helped them find an answer; all I know is that Marlboros taste good and look good and filter good, and when the clouds gather and the world is black as the pit from pole to pole, it is a heap of comfort and satisfaction to be sure that Marlboros will always provide the same easy pleasure, the same unstinting tobacco flavor, in all times and climes and conditions. That's all I know.

Leonid and Anna Livia, I say, did find an answer—a very simple one. If their student loans did not come due until they left school, why then they just wouldn't leave school! So after receiving their bachelor's degrees, they re-enrolled and took master's degrees. After that they took doctor's degrees—loads and loads of them—until today Leonid and Anna Livia, both aged 87, both still in school, hold doctorates in Philosophy, Humane Letters, Jurisprudence, Veterinary Medicine, Civil Engineering, Optometry, Woodpulp, and Dewey Decimals.

Their student loans, at the end of the last fiscal year, amounted to a combined total of nineteen million dollars—a sum which they probably would have found some difficulty in repaying had not the Department of the Interior recently declared them a National Park.

© 1963 Max Shulman

* * *

You don't need a student loan—just a little loose change—to grab a pack of smoking pleasure: Marlboros, sold in all fifty states in familiar soft pack and Flip-Top box.

STUDENT RESPONSE

TRI-SEMESTER

To the editor:

Concerning the year round operation plan for the University, I would like to say that I think it is a very good idea. First, the University must adopt some kind of change to alleviate the problem of overcrowding. In a day when an education is so vital, living in a crowded condition for a short time of one's life seems a much better alternative to having no education at all. The administration realizes this and therefore plans to accept as many students as possible. Since there is no place to house these students, the remaining answer is to provide a three-semester year, in which students would attend all year round.

This kind of plan also benefits the student because he can graduate earlier and go to work earlier, enabling him to pay back any possible loans sooner. This is only common sense since he can make more money after he has his degree than he could possibly make during a couple of summers without it. Many colleges and universities have successfully gone through with this type of program, and, in fact, the trend is toward it because we are not the only educational institution faced with the problem of being overcrowded. Nevertheless, many students on this campus are against this proposed program simply because they are accustomed to thinking of college as a September to June hitch.

Among the arguments that they give for a two-semester year (of course they wouldn't admit that they're in a rut) is that they want quality in education rather than mass education. This is a fine argument on the surface, but just what exactly do they mean by "quality"? If they're really talking about education, why do they think they will get a poorer education in the summer than they will any other time? Perhaps it's because they don't feel like studying in warmer weather, or because the professors need the time during the summer to write off a few required papers (but that's another argument). Professors are here in the summer, however, teaching summer students (and writing papers). A student's dwelling on the illusion of poorer quality during the summer implies that he thinks that a professor's job is to brainwash the student, whereas in truth it is the student himself who must do the work in learning. Thus, I think those who are so much concerned with quality are barking up the wrong tree. The ability of the professor to teach, to clarify, to drive a point home is more hampered by his own lack of time to arrange a lecture exactly as he would like to (because of University requirements concerning papers, etc.) than by the time spent in the actual class hour.

However, I think what bothers some of the students against the three-semester system more than the imagined decline in quality of their education is the fact that they are afraid of having to cut down on their social life and extra-curricular if their four years are shortened to three. They forget that extra-curricular activities and parties can exist in the summer months and that now they are missing out during the summer by going home to get a job in a sweatbox for $1 an hour. (Of course I am assuming that the administration has thought about putting in air conditioning.)

I would like to ask one question conerning this program, however, The courses are now arranged so that one course is offered in one semester and the course following it comes in the second semester. How will the administration determine which courses are going to be offered in which semester? I think that this is a necessary measure, however, since new dormitories cannot spring up overnight, and I think that once the students who are opposed to this idea get used to it, they will see that it isn't as bad as they had thought, and maybe a little better.

Nancy Stanton '66

Student Responsibility

To the Editor,

Subject: The Oct. 14 story on SWAP

Do students really want "closer faculty-student bonds"? Item: of 140 freshman majors in one group only 15 turned out on October 10 at an hour specifically set aside for them to get to know their advisor better; of another group of 90 freshman majors only 12 appeared. Conclusion?

L. M. Bartlett
Zoology

P.S.—Distributing Collegian to faculty may be the smartest thing the students have ever done to achieve better faculty-student bonds!

L.M.B.

Ed. Note: Conclusion is that students have to accept responsibility in any relationship they enter.

To the Editor,

What is the purpose of the "tri-semester plan"? It is to enable the student to get out of school early so he can get to work and earn "lots" of money with his "knowledge." Knowledge in quotes because it seems the University is working towards its mass production with no concern for that ugly ideal quality. Step up the rat race, turn out the students in three years. Who knows, by 1975 the rate of production could be up to 20,000?

I don't mean to be snide, but the University seems to have enough problems organizing courses, schedules, classes, etc. for two semesters, let alone for three. For one, just look at the course requirement sheets on Counseling Day. Can your counselor figure it out? And regarding courses, is every course going to be offered every semester to accommodate those who elect not to Go Tri-Semester, or will these unfortunate people have to wait till next time around to take a course? What about those who must work part of the year to stay in school? Are they to be left behind in the production line? And what about the concept of class? I remember being told as a Freshman to always put your class year after your name. What then—second semester Soph, first semester Jr.? What about the class spirit that is emphasized here? Under The Plan where is the class?

I admit it! I'm ultra conservative. I don't like being pushed along a conveyor belt to the assembly line. I want to study at UMass, but I don't want to be mass educated. The tri-semester plan might be a good idea, but first let's see some facts to convince at least the few like me that it isn't crowding just too much into an already crammed and cramped UMass life.

JB '66

A Rather Delicate Subject

To the Editor:

A cry has been heard quite often throughout the campus during the past week. In the dormitories, class buildings and in various other buildings there has been sounded an earnest appeal, a plaintive plea, a painful moan, "Where is the damn toilet paper?"

It seems that, in their well meaning enthusiasm to produce their Homecoming floats as cheaply as possible, a number of fraternities and sororities have instituted raids on the lavitories for a "valuable booty"— rolls of toilet paper. This was done with utter disregard for the necessities of nature and the customs of a clean and civilized society. The result of this carelessness may be numerous cases of stomach cramps and extremely long lines of bloated students who will be awaiting their turns when the lavitories are once again satisfactorily restored with an ample supply of a paper product that we so often take for granted—common toilet paper.

HJR

Editor's Note: It is quite possible that it might not have been Greeks but rather independents who who stole your toilet paper. Dorms build floats, too.

The Massachusetts Collegian

Editor-in-Chief:	Jeffrey Davidow '65
Editorial Editor:	John B. Childs
Assoc. Editorial Editor:	George Masselam
News Editor:	Elwin McNamara '64
Photography Editor:	Ron Goldberg '66
Sports Editors:	Scott Freedland '66
	Richard Ryan '66
Business Manager:	Courtney Brickman '64
News Makeup Editor:	James Schmalz '65
Feature Editor:	David Axelrod '65

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

HOMECOMING — 1963

Photography By:

Ron Goldberg

Harold Gushue

Joe Ravida

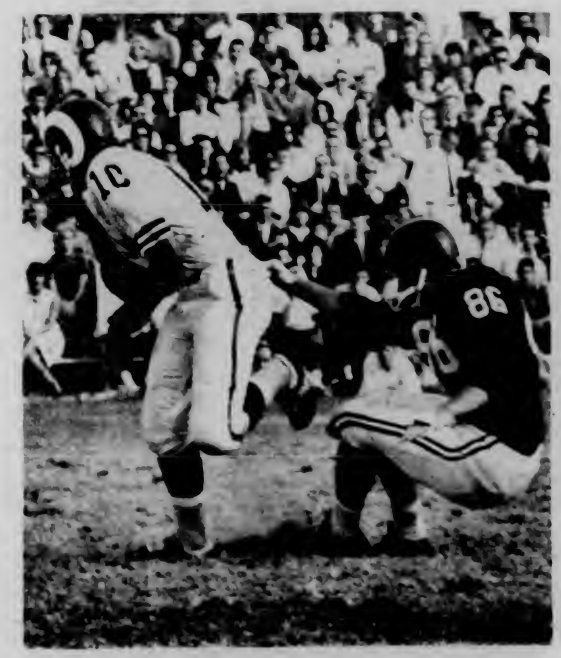
Andi Beauchemn

HOMECOMI

Sandy P

NG QUEEN

ierce - 1963



The 'Twin Menaechmi' A Success

James Wrynn, Menaechmus II, fumes from the enticements of Courtesan Erotium, Paula Norton. Attendant looks on.

U.N. President ...

(Continued from page 3)

for the Government of India in China in 1942 and as a Judge of the Federal Court in India from 1941-1947.

He became Foreign Minister of Pakistan in December 1947 and in that capacity led the Pakistan Delegation to the Annual Sessions of the General Assembly of the United Nations from 1947 to 1954, and to the Security Council of the United Nations on the India-Pakistan disputes from 1948-1951.

Sir Zafrulla Khan was elected a member of the International Court of Justice in 1954 and served in that capacity until February 1961. During this period he also became the Vice-President of the World Court 1958-1961.

He was appointed to his present position in July 1961 and was recently elected Chairman of the United Nations Congo Conciliation Committee. He was elected President of the Seventeenth Session of the United Nations General Assembly.

One such crisis that took his attention at a special Assembly session over which he presided this summer is the grave financial problem facing the UN because of non-payment of dues by Russia and other countries. This and vexing cold war matters took him on a tour of Iron Curtain countries when he accepted a bid to confer with Premier Krushchev in the Kremlin.

CLUB DIRECTORY

B'NAI B'RITH HILLEL
Lecture on Tues., Oct. 22, at 8 p.m. in the S.U. The talk will be on "The American Negro and the Jewish Community."

ACCOUNTING ASSOCIATION
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 22, at 7 p.m. in the S.U. Refreshments served. All accounting majors are welcome.

ALPHA ZETA
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 22, at 7 p.m. in the Hampshire room of the S.U.

GEOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in 249 Morrill. Slides of Montana will be shown. Refreshments served.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB
Coffee hour on Tues., Oct. 22, at 5:15 p.m. in the Governor's Lounge of the S.U.

NAIADS
No meeting of Jr. Naiads on Tues., Oct. 22. No optional practice on Tues., Oct. 22. Regular meeting of the Sr. Naiads on Wed., Oct. 23.

NEWMAN CLUB
The club will sponsor a bus to the B.U. game on Sat., Oct. 26. It will leave the Center at 10:15 a.m. and will return immediately after the game. Reservations must be made in the secretary's office by 8 p.m. on Tues., Oct. 22. Cost for members is $2.00, for all others $2.50.

Also, there will be a movie on Sat., Oct. 26, at 7:30 p.m. Charge for non-members.

Also, on Thurs., Oct. 24, from 2-4 p.m., Prof. John Noonan of Notre Dame Law School will be in the Center lounge to discuss law. All interested are invited.

RUSSIAN CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 22, at 6:30 p.m. in the Norfolk room of the S.U. Slides of Russia will be presented. All interested are welcome.

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 24, at 6:30 p.m. in the Men's PE Bldg. Instruction will be given — both beginning and advanced. Coeds welcome.

SPANISH CLUB
"Tertulia" on Wed., Oct. 23, at 4:30 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of Bartlett. Anyone interested in conversing in Spanish is welcome.

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 23, at 8 p.m. in the Worcester room of the S.U. Dr. Leonard of the Hist. Dept. will speak on "Zionism: A Betrayal of the Fulfillment of Judaism." All interested are invited.

WESLEY FOUNDATION
Communion service on Wed., Oct. 23, at 7 a.m. in Cushman Chapel at the Thompson House. Transportation provided.

ZOOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 22, at 7:30 p.m. in 138 Morrill. The talk will be "Flora and Fauna of the Western Regions."

SOPH CLASS MEETING
A sophomore class meeting will be held Tuesday, Oct. 22 at 7:00 in the SU Ballroom according to an announcement by Sophomore Class President Bernie Dallas.

Univ. of Mass. OPERETTA GUILD
in asociation with the OPERA WORKSHOP
presents
MEREDITH WILLSON'S
The Music Man
OCTOBER 31 thru NOVEMBER 2
All evenings at 8:15 p.m.
Saturday matinee at 2:00 p.m.
Tickets on Sale at the Student Union Box Office, Phone 545-2528
$1.50 ALL SEATS RESERVED $1.75

PETER PAN BUS LINES
BOSTON EXPRESS BUS
Via Massachusetts Turnpike
—Also Serving—
HOLYOKE
SPRINGFIELD
PALMER
WORCESTER
8 ROUND TRIPS DAILY
For Schedule and Information Call at the THE LOBBY SHOP Student Union
CHARTER A BUS TO ALL AMERICA

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn
Breakfast — 50¢
Lunch — 50¢ up
THE OPEN HEARTH STEAKHOUSE
BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

Fire In QTV Closet Summons Amherst Firemen

Amherst firefighters responded to a fire in a storage closet at QTV fraternity.

According to Capt. Homer Cowles, the fire originated in, and was confined to a storage closet containing paper and cleaning materials.

The fire was knocked down by the brothers before the arrival of the fire department.

Damage was confined to the contents of the closet.

While firefighters were working at the QTV fire, an alarm was received for a grass fire outside of Leach House. However, upon investigation, the alarm proved to be false.

Capt. Cowles reported the loss of his fire helmet while at the QTV fire. It was the sole casualty of the evening.

Outing Club Announces ComingEvents

The UMass Outing Club announced recently a schedule of coming activities. In making the announcement members of the club pointed out that students need not be a member of the club in order to attend outing activities.

The schedule of events is as follows:

October
19 — Hiking, Franconia Notch, N. H.
20 — Chapell Leges — Intermediate Rock Climbing
20 — Lost Cabin Hike
26 — Songfest at Smith College, I.O.A.C. activity
27—C.V.C. Caving

November
2 — Crazy Hat Halloween Haystack Ride
3 — Mountain climbing in N. H.
9-10-11 — Cave exploring in New York State

Students interested in attending any activities are urged to sign up in the SU lobby.

Frosh Forum Tuesday At 4 In Chambers

—Photo by Darryl Fine

Last Thursday over 1600 freshmen voted in their primary elections. This record turnout was due in part to the large number of candidates vying for office. Due to this exceptionally heavy turnout the tabulation of the votes was not completed until eight o'clock that night.

Tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock the members of the freshman class will have an opportunity to hear and question the candidates. A Freshman Forum will be held in the Senate council chambers with the intent of better acquainting the freshmen with their candidates.

Finalist candidates are reminded that there will be a short meeting tonight in the Senate office for the purpose of discussing procedures for the Forum.

Waitress Wanted
at Amherst Creamery. Married, who can work Saturdays and Sundays. Call AL 3-3461.

NOTICES

INTERNATIONAL CLUB
There will be a coffee hour in the Governor's Lounge Tues., Oct. 22, at 5:15 p.m.

A United Nations Week Dance will be held in the S.U. Ballroom Sat., Oct. 26.

SENIORS
Professor Kirkpatrick from George Washington University Law School will be on the campus Mon., Oct. 21, to talk with students who have some interest in attending law school. The meeting will be held in the Nantucket Room of the S.U. at 4 p.m.

SWIMMING
The Interdorm, Intersorority Swim Meet will be held at the WoPE Building Oct. 22 at 7 p.m. Anyone can participate. Sign up sheets are posted in each dorm and sorority.

The American Red Cross is sponsoring a 50 mile swim which begins Mon., Oct. 21, at the WoPE Pool. More information is available at the WoPE Building.

NEW PUBLICATION
Plans for the publication of a critique of professors and courses will be discussed Thurs., Oct. 24, at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers. All those interested in the quality of teaching on the campus are invited to attend.

Lost and Found

LOST: A green plastic covered notebook of Vert. Zoology notes. Phone 3-7397.

LOST: One 32-pound carved pumpkin from the balcony of 207 Van Meter South. Please return to Suzanne Hopkins, Lynda Callahan, or Vicki Buydon at Van Meter.

Hellman Trio ...

(Continued from page 1)

feet high. The nylon strings on the present-day harps are different colors, to enable the harpist to tell which note to play. The pedals are connected with a steel rod which circumvents the harp and pinches each string in two places.

All of the previous selections were written for other instruments, but her next solo number, "Chanson de la Nuit," was composed solely for the harp.

Daphne's impromptu number, "Music Box," was highlighted by a short commentary on her early life. She first began to play the harp when she was four, at her aunt's wedding. Her mother opened a studio and many famous people heard Daphne play, but ironically enough, her first job was as a singer.

Brouillet Outdistances Keefe At Central Conn

by GENE COLBURN

Captain Bob Brouillet turned in one of the finest performances of his career for UMass. last Saturday as he led the varsity cross country team to a 23-34 victory over Central Connecticut State College. The highlight of the meet was expected to be a dual between Brouillet and Jim Keefe, who is one of the best collegiate runners in the country. For 2 miles of the 4½ mile course the boys ran shoulder to shoulder. Then, slowly but surely, Bob drew away. At the finish Digger was a full 37 seconds ahead Keefe. This was a complete reversal of the pattern displayed in the past. Up to this year Keefe had yet to lose a collegiate cross country race. Although Keefe was not in top shape, he would have had to have been in top form to beat Digger.

Behind Digger the next four runners continued to display a continuous improvement. Junior Tom Panke ran his finest race so far this season as he was the second man for UMass. and fourth in the meet. He was followed by junior Bob Ramsey, sophomore Bob Molvar and senior Gene Colburn. This group continued to close the time gap between them as only 18 seconds separated the four. UMass' hopes for the rest of the season rest largely on this group's shoulders.

BOB LARSON AND AL McPHAIL also turned in good performances, as they were the sixth and seventh men for UMass. Larson, who was running under added incentive, turned in one of his best races so far this year. If both boys can continue improving they will help to give the Redmen some solid depth. Ron Oakland and Paul Barents rounded out the Redmen racers.

Although this meet did not present a serious challenge to the team, the results were most pleasing to Coach Footrick. Digger's triumph over Keefe fulfilled the coaches highest hopes. Just as important though, was the fact that the team continued to show steady improvement. They are steadily turning into a solid unit. If they can continue improving they will stand excellent chances in the Yankee Conference and the New England Championships. The team will be running at home this Tuesday against Rhode Island. The meet is scheduled to start at 3 p.m.

Homecoming . . .

(Continued from page 1)

sic of the Bob Jeffway Quartet.

THE FINALE of the weekend was the Dave Brubeck Quartet concert, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity. Over 2500 people attended the concert, the proceeds from which will be donated to the University's Art Acquisitions Fund for use as funds to obtain art works for a museum in the proposed Fine Arts Building.

BOB BROUILLET

Olympic Strife

DETROIT (CPS) — FOUR WAYNE STATE UNIVERSITY STUDENTS were arrested Monday on the charge of disturbing the peace at the Olympic tourch relay ceremonies here.

Detroit is seeking to have the 1968 Olympics. As a result, they started a torch relay that took 2,600 miles and two weeks to complete last Monday.

Hayes Jones, a 1960 Olympic gold medal winner, carried the torch the last yards of the relay. As he approached the ceremonies area in front of City Hall, demonstrators carrying blue and white placards bearing the words "Is Detroit's segregated housing ready for the Olympics?" separated from the crowd and flashed their signs to the Olympic caravan.

The police band played "Hail to the Victors" while the demonstrators chanted "We Shall Overcome." After the hissing, booing, and chanting throughout the national anthem, the demonstrators kept singing.

Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh talked loudly to be heard, but the demonstrators kept things stirring with their singing. They wore black armbands and ribbons signifying their mourning for the open occupancy bill which died in the Detroit Common Council last Tuesday.

Integrity — Service
Friendly Advice
ART RUGGLES'
SKI SHOP
17 High Street
GREENFIELD, MASS.
Ski Coach, Deerfield Academy
OPEN EVENINGS TO 9 P.M.
PHONE 774-4855

Little Redmen 32-0 Over Maine Central

by RALPH PRELMAN

THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSCHUSETTS FROSH football team gained its first victory of the season by defeating Maine Central Institute 32-0.

The scoring in the game went as follows, in the first period Paul Reid ran 55 yards on a counterplay and Dana Lockhart's point after made it 7-0. In the second quarter the frosh scored twice. The first was on a 12 yard run by quarterback Ray Johnson; and the PAT was no good. The period's second score came on a 5 yard run by Dick Benoit and the PAT attempt was blocked. The score at halftime was UMass 19 and MCI 0.

In the third period Dick Jualey intercepted a pass on the MCI 31 yard line and returned it for the fourth UMass TD. The final score of the game came in the fourth period on a fifty yard touchdown pass from Mike Henderson to Dave Giarla. The PAT try was blocked.

THE FROSH WILL TRAVEL to Worcester to play the Holy Cross freshman on Friday Nov. 1.

Redmen Trample . . .

(Continued from page 8)

minutes. DeRose fielded a long, high Ram punt over his shoulder, running at full speed. He then turned and raced upfield sixty-six yards to the Ram 19 before he was nailed from behind.

After Dave Kelly bulled forward to the 12, DeRose picked up the first down at the five. On the next play DeRose went over for the TD and Whelchel split the uprights again.

Score: UM 36, URI 0. Time: 14:40

THIRD PERIOD

A Schroeder to DeMinico pass on the Rhode Island 4 set up the next UM TD. On first down Tom daCosta swept his right end to score. The point after by Whelchel was good.

Score: UM 43, URI 0. Time: 7:27

Sophomore guard Rod Brooks intercepted a Gutter pass on the 45 of URI and returned it to the 32 to set up the second TD of the quarter. It took only three plays before Schroeder found DeRose with a scoring pass. Whelchel added point number 50.

Score: UM 50, URI 0. Time: 10:15

FOURTH PERIOD

Steve Trbovich, Vic Fusia's third signal caller of the day, directed the reserve unit 35 yards in seven plays for the last touchdown of the long afternoon. Halfback Ed Cody went nine yards to get this one. Whelchel's boot split the uprights.

Score: UM 57, URI 0. Time: 0:55

There seemed to be no stopping the Redmen Saturday afternoon. Even as the final whistle blew UMass found itself on the URI 4 about to add another score.

In dropping their fourth game of the season the Rams had their offensive game completely stymied by the Redmen defenses. URI quarterbacks, even when they had a bit of protection, could not seem to keep their passes on target. Big Tony Tetro, the fullback that heads the Ram's rushing department, was bottled up every time he got his hands on the ball.

Even if the midfield line represented the touchdown point for Rhody, UMass still would have won handily. The Rams managed to get beyond the 50 yard line only twice all day. At that their deepest penetration was the UM 45.

THREE RECORDS were broken in Saturday's contest and two were tied. Milt Morin tied a UMass record for touchdown passes caught in one game with two. The other record holder is Tony Chambers who turned the trick with two against UNH in '52 and against Northeastern in the same year.

Jerry Whelchel, who made good on seven of the eight extra kicks he tried, tied one record and set another. The record he tied was extra points attempted in one game (8) set in 1924 by Larry Jones against W.P.I. and again by Jones in 1925 also against W.P.I.

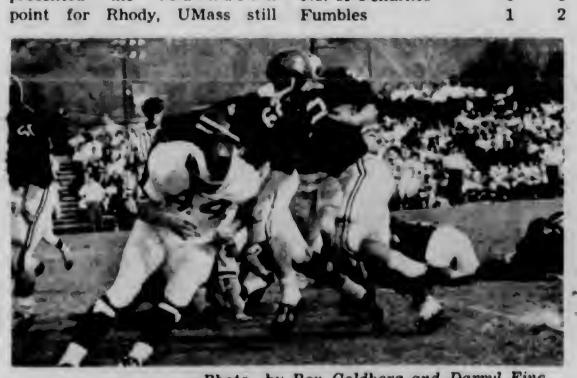
WHELCHEL BROKE JONES' RECORD of six extra points made in one game vs. W.P.I. in 1924 when he booted his seventh vs. Rhode Island Saturday.

As a result of Saturday's win the Redmen record for the season stands at four wins, no losses and one tie. The Bay Staters are now atop the pile in the race for the Yankee Conference crown with a 3-0-0 slate. Vermont and defending Conference champ New Hampshire are the two league opponents left for the Redmen to dispose of.

NEXT WEEK AT BOSTON comes the real test in the UMass effort to finish the season undefeated. The Boston University Terriers will be out to hand the Redmen their first taste of defeat. And UMass will be out to avenge last year's 20-6 setback by BU at Alumni Field.

FINAL STATISTICS

	UMass	URI
Total First Downs	20	8
Net. Yds. Gain. Rush.	292	35
No. Passes Att.	15	25
Passes Completed	10	9
Passes Had Intercepted	1	3
Net Yds. Gain. Pass.	123	88
TOT. OFF. YARD.	415	123
No. Times Punted	2	5
Punting Average	35.6	29.2
Tot. Yds. Penalized	75	30
No. of Penalties	9	3
Fumbles	1	2



—Photo by Ron Goldberg and Darryl Fine

LARRY SPIDLE clears way for PHIL DEROSE.

We can get it for you FREE! ~~wholesale!~~

We'll send you one full-size MENNEN SPEED STICK DEODORANT free (but only one per person—our supply is limited) if you send us the coupon below with only 25¢ for postage and handling.

You'll enjoy the clean, fast, neat way—the man's way—to all-day deodorant protection. MENNEN SPEED STICK, the man-size deodorant, goes on so wide it protects almost 3 times the area of a narrow roll-on track. Goes on dry, too—no drip, mess or tackiness.

So be our guest—send for yours today.

MENNEN FOR MEN

THE MENNEN CO.,
Box 200 SS, Morristown, N. J.

Gentlemen: Send me one free Speed Stick.
I enclose 25¢ for postage and handling.

NAME_____

ADDRESS_____

CITY_____ ZONE____ STATE_____

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Football, Soccer, X-Country

Varsities Sweep Homecoming

Redmen Trample Rams 57-0 Before 10,000

by STEVE HEWEY

UNDEFEATED University of Massachusetts put together its most devastating air and ground attack of the current season as it struck for touchdowns in each period to defeat Rhode Island 57-0 at Alumni Field Saturday afternoon.

From the opening whistle the game was strictly no contest. Even the Redmen reserves moved the ball at will through the staggering Ram defenses. The Redmen second and third units defenses were rugged enough to make URI the fourth opponent in a row that has failed to collect a touchdown against UMass.

Fullback Mike Ross, halfback Phil DeRose and end Milt Morin each tallied twice while halfback Ed Cody and halfback Tom da-Costa each tallied once.

FIRST PERIOD

URI received the opening kick-off and on first down went to the air. Bob Ellis picked off Greg Gutter's pass on the URI 45 and returned it to the 27. On first down Jerry Whelchel went to the air and met the same fate as Gutter as Bill Bryant grabbed his pass on the 14. The Rams then ran three plays and got nowhere. On fourth down Ram punter Jim Mello chased a bad pass from center into the end zone and was smothered there by Bob Meers for a safety.

Score: UM 2, URI 0. Time: 2:47

URI kicked off to UMass, Bob Meers returning the ball from the UM 45 to the 47. Three plays later fullback Mike Ross broke away on a 49 yard touchdown scamper. Whelchel's point after try was blocked.

Score: UM 8, URI 0. Time: 4:20

After the following kickoff the Rams tried three plays and made no considerable yardage and were forced to punt. Bob Ellis took the ball on his own 42 and carried it to the Rhody 33. On third and five at the 28 Whelchel hit big Milt Morin in the end zone for the score. Whelchel's point tr' was good.

Score: UM 15, URI 0. Time: 6:58

SECOND PERIOD

The Bay Staters' third TD drive began late in the first period after the Redmen took over on downs on their own 34. Nine plays later Mike Ross put the cap on the 66 yard drive with a 24 yard journey to paydirt. Whelchel added the point after.

Score: UM 22, URI 0. Time: 1:46

With quarterback John Schroeder now running the U of M forces TD number four came six minutes later. After Rhode Island ran its usual three plays with the usual no results, UM got the ball via punt, Ken Palm returning it to the URI 32. Palm and fullback Dick Warren then moved the ball to the 12.

A Schroeder to Meers aerial put the Redmen on the six. Palm knifed across but an offside penalty cancelled the score. Schroeder found Morin with a pass on the one and Warren went over on the next play for a TD. But another penalty again nullified the score. Two plays later Schroeder flipped a pass to Morin in the endzone with no red flags accompanying the play. Again Whelchel added the extra point.

Score: UM 29, URI 0. Time: 7:24

Halfback Phil DeRose came up with one of the prettiests plays of the day to set up a TD that he himself was to score in a few

(Continued on page 7)

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

KEN PALM, Redmen backfield star, about to be forced out of bounds on long gain end run.

FIRST WIN

URI Shutout 4-0 By UMass Booters

by SCOTT FREEDLAND

The Redmen soccer team defeated the Rams of the University of Rhode Island 4-0 in a game which saw the Rams the underdogs from early in the first period. As the booters' first victory of the season, it was a fitting Homecoming game.

Play had hardly begun in the first quarter when outside left Tom Astaldi stole the ball from a Ram fullback, as he tried to pass it back to the URI goalie, and drove it in for the first UMass goal of the game.

The Redmen put the pressure on stealing the ball from the Ram defense which began to tire early in the quarter, as the halfback line did its work by returning to play what few balls the Rams were able to clear. Outside right Kevin Lyons drove around the Blue defense passing to inside Mike Zawrotny who in the clear shot the ball over the net. Center half Algimantas Garsys then set up high scorer Dick Leeete who shot wide of the net. In the only Ram threat of the period Redman back Glabach got his head on the ball and cleared it to break up the attack. The weak Ram defense almost gave Dick Leete the chance to score that Astaldi had earlier in the period as a back bobbled the ball only to have the goalie make a diving save on Leete's shot to end the quarter.

The only URI scoring threat of the second quarter came moments after play had begun as Blue outside Ritcher missed his chance in front of the net. UMass center forward Pat McDevitt then passed across the front of the Ram goal to Kevin Lyons who streaked in to score at 2:40 of the period. Mike Zawrotny drove through the Ram defense only to have the goalie save URI again, as he did on Paul Bergan's attempt through two defensemen. The Redmen were all over the field passing when and where they wished as Pat McDevitt drove down the middle to score on a lose ball. Dick Leete almost immediately attempted to score on a head which missed the net by inches. With 30 seconds left in the period URI ruined its chance to score by dribbling around and running out the clock.

URI began to put the pressure on as Kushnir from URI was warned for rough play. With the Ram threat broken up by the defense Dick Leete scored on a pass from Pat McDevitt through two defensemen and the goalie to make it 4-0 Redmen. McDevitt then tried it again with Kevin Lyons on a head which missed, in alone on a shot which went over the net, then again alone to end the period.

The entire UMass bench played in the fourth quarter which was highlighted by goalie Phillips making a beautiful save on a Ram penalty kick. The game ended 4-0 Redmen.

ARROW

buttons-down a student of Oxford

From prof to frosh knowledge gets around... and the latest is the new Decton oxford by ARROW. Take Decton, ARROW's name for a shirt blended of 65% Dacron* polyester and 35% cotton, give it an educated new oxford weave and you have the equation for America's most popular wash-and-wear shirt.
Authentic University Fashion from the famous button-down collar to the button and pleat in the back, it's tapered to trim body lines. White, colors and stripes to choose from.
In long sleeves as illustrated
$6.95

*DuPont T.M. for its polyester fiber

LIBRARY
OCT 25 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 17 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1963

Satchmo At Smith

The Smith College Recreation Council is presenting LOUIS ARMSTRONG this Sunday at 3:00 in John M. Greene Hall. Tickets are $2.25, and will be sold in our S.U. lobby Thursday night between 7:30-8:30.

President Kennedy To Attend Frost Library Groundbreaking

Amherst, Mass.—PRESIDENT JOHN F.KENNEDY will be among the participants October 26 in the formal groundbreaking for the Robert Frost Library at Amherst College.

President Kennedy and Poet Archibald MacLeish will also speak and receive the degree doctor of laws at a special College convocation to honor the President earlier on the same day. The convocation also helps mark the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Amherst Alumni Council and the halfway point of the Amherst Capital Program, the College's three-year 17 million development campaign.

The Frost Library, to be erected at a cost of $3.5 million, will be Amherst's central college library. The gift of an anonymous alumnus, it will be named for the poet who was a long-time member of the Amherst faculty. When the gift was announced a year ago Mr. Frost said, "I don't live in a library and I'm not a terrible reader but my life has been a book life . . . the worst thing you can say about a nation is that it burned books . . ."

Mr. Frost's association with Amherst began in 1917; during the ensuing twenty years he taught at Amherst almost continuously. In 1949 he was named Simpson Lecturer in Literature at the College, a post he held until his death last winter. Mr. Frost's last appearance at Amherst was on October 20 of last year when he spoke at the College's Parents Day.

THE FROST LIBRARY is being built to house 550,000 volumes in an openstack arrangement providing easy access for undergraduates and faculty. Construction on the building will begin during the winter and is scheduled for completion in 1965.

President Kennedy, who is scheduled to make the major address at the morning convocation is expected to arrive on the campus shortly before the beginning of the ceremony (10:30 a.m.) The ground breaking, on the north side of Amherst's central campus quadrangle is scheduled to begin at noon.

The convocation ceremony, open to ticket-holders only, will

(Continued on page 3)

Khan's Speech Set For Thursday At 11

On Thursday, October 24, 1963 the Distinguished Visitors Program presents Sir Muhammed Zafrulla Khan who served as President of the 17th session of the General Assembly, and a permanent U.N. representative from Pakistan. It will be held at 11:15 a.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

In this capacity, Mr. Kahn joins the band of world leaders whose efforts shape the future affairs of our civilization. His experience at the United Nations provides him with the perspective and depth to speak authoritatively on world issues, be they problems of starvation in Africa, overpopulation in India, or economics in Europe.

And it is not his United Nations experience alone which so highly qualifies Sir Muhammad as an eminent expert in world affairs.

He was for several years the Foreign Minister for his native Pakistan. In this position, he led delegations to the annual sessions of the General Assembly of the United Nations from 1947-1954, and to the Security Council on the India-Pakistan disputes from 1948-1951.

His legal and diplomatic career was also broadened during difficult assignments as chairman of the United Nations Congo Conciliation Committee, and eight years of service on the bench of the World Court, serving as vice-president from 1958-1961.

Sir Muhammad's ties with the fascinating realm of diplomacy were established long before the present United Nations was formed. In 1939, he led a delegation to the session of the Assembly of the old League of Nations held in Geneva.

In the field of international law, Sir Muhammad is a recognized expert. He was awarded an honorary Doctor of Law degree from Columbia University last summer and his citation read: "for his patience, courage and mastery of international law that have served the cause of concord in many crises."

At the United Nations this past summer, Sir Muhammad

(Continued on page 4)

Men's Judiciary To Get Tough With S.U. Bookstore Thiefs

Men's Judiciary Chief Justice Bruce Albro today announced that all future cases of petty theft which appear before the judiciary body will be dealt with more severely than has been the custom. This decision on the part of the judiciary board is a result of an alarming increase in the amount of goods stolen from the University Bookstore. Mr. Cummings, Manager of the Bookstore, today reported that the store loses $6,000 annually as the result of such thefts.

Many students are unaware that the Bookstore is owned and supported by the student body and that each time an article is taken the students must absorb the loss. The judiciary wants to make it clear that anyone who appears before them for stealing from the Bookstore will be dealt with as though he were stealing directly from a fellow student. This is one of the most serious offenses brought before the board and Mr. Albro made it clear that it will not be tolerated by the present justices.

Because they feel that stealing on a college campus is indicative of a total lack of consideration for fellow students and Student Government, the Judiciary body feels that only the threat of dismissal is a sufficient determent for stealing.

Addition To Crowded Campus

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

Student finds a quiet, if passing, place to study, under the newest project of the Maintenance Dept.

Senior Photos

SENIORS, FRIDAY IS THE LAST DAY TO SIGN UP FOR IINDEX PHOTOS.

Seniors who wish their pictures to appear in the 1964 Index are asked by Index editors to sign up for a sitting time before the end of this week in the Index office.

Pictures are being taken daily in the Plymouth Room on the second floor of the Student Union until Nov. 1.

Halloween Party

On Sunday, Oct. 27, the Special Events Committee of the Student Union will sponsor a Halloween party. An invitation to this party is extended to the children of the faculty, administration, staff and married students at the University. Children must be between the ages of four and ten. The party will begin at 2:00 p.m. and parents may pick their children up at 4:00 p.m.

A variety of games have been planned and refreshments will be served. To add to the festivity, children are expected to wear costumes.

FROSH ELECTIONS

Freshman elections will be held tomorrow in the S.U. Lobby from the hours of 8:30-5:00.

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

The Greek Image

by OLEH PAWLUK

The opinions expressed below are not those of the Collegian or its Executive Board. They are, as in all signed editorials, the opinions of its author.

In recent issues of the Collegian there have been a number of letters to the editor such as "The Good Life" and "A Rather Delicate Subject" which seemed to pinpoint the fraternity system as the main source responsible for campus immorality. Let us examine if such a general condemnation of Greek organizations is justified.

Were a commuter or a dorm student to commit some campus violation, he would be punished according to the seriousness of the offense, and there the matter would end. Punitive measures would not be extended to the commuters as a whole or to the dormitories. Ah! But observe how drastically different the situation is in the case of fraternities. If a frater violates a university regulation, the incident does not merely terminate with his punishment. Not only is the offender's fraternity jeopardized, but the entire Greek System is implicated.

Realizing the damage caused by such wide-scale consequences, the respective houses on campus have attempted to limit transgressions to a minimum through such agencies as The Interfraternity Council and The Fraternity Presidents' Association. Yet, fraters, like other students, are human beings, and inevitably make mistakes. With this concept in mind, the misdemeanors of a few fraternity members are no license to condemn the entire Greek System.

As for the need and value of Greek organizations, the evidence speaks for itself. The cume of the average fraternity member is higher than that of the average non-fraterternity member. This fact is not merely an accident but an endeavor on the part of each house to stress scholastic achievement.

Secondly, a vast majority of the student leaders on campus are members of Greek organizations. Finally, were it not for the time and effort devoted by the Greek System, such events as Homecoming, Winter Carnival, and Greek Week, would lose much, if not all, of their splendor and gaiety.

The time has come for students to realize that the numerous contributions made to the University community by Greek organizations OUTWEIGH BY FAR the occasional transgressions committed by individual brothers.

The Conservative View

Welfare And The Federal Government

by RICK CASS

The problem of social welfare is not or should not be a concern of the Federal government. The government of this country was not constituted for this purpose, and the events since the inception of this country do not provide valid reason for this now.

Welfare is a private affair, to be taken care of by private individuals. This is the only basis upon which true concern for welfare can be preserved without being warped. This is, for these reasons: (1) The persons receiving aid know from whom it comes and that it was given of a free will and knowledge. (2) The recipients of the act of welfare will now look to the Federal government as a paternal organization whose duty is to support or help whenever the need for help arises. (3) So that welfare will remain what it should be—a charity given of a kind and beneficent will, not a grant of money gained by coersion or force.

Federal intervention in, or originating of welfare can only subvert its humanitarian effects, while extending further the power of the Federal government, which is already in position to seriously limit personal freedom. But this would be called ridiculous. The government has no desire to take from us our freedom. If this is true, let the government NOW remove itself from its present position as a potential dictator of moral values.

Let me say again, the federal government has no moral or legal right in the area of social welfare. If this problem must be overcome by government action (of this I am not convinced) then leave it to the states where the dangers are not as great and where the problems can be more readily seen and remedied. Even this is an extreme measure.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

ME, MADNESS, HUMOR

Atom Bombs For The Kiddies

by MIKE HENCH

From its inception this column has tried to be light and subtle, though often a clumsy subtleness. This time, and the next, let me speak of Madness. Let me speak of War. Yes, I said War. Spelled with a double-you.

Who among us can say "War has not touched me"? Didn't we learn with rubber 45's and ugly posters of the Nips, Nazi, Hun, Tojo; and with the "I gotcha" and the "You missed." We learned of War.

Having read "i sing of Olaf" by the late e. e. cummings in the Massachusetts Review, I was moved once again to consult my newly acquired slice of life—"The Sears Toy Book."

I see that my son must learn too. There are seventy or eighty types of 45's, M-1's, missile firing atomic cannons, bazookas, mortars, etc., that I can buy for him, (him named David in this age of Goliaths).

I can get him a hand grenade that goes "Bang" and falls apart or a plane that drops bombs and explodes a tank that also falls apart. Or he can recreate "D" Day with a 350-piece set of plastic soldiers.

I can also clothe him as a Union soldier, Confederate soldier, Ranger, Marine, or Special Forces Guerilla (green beret, camouflage suit and all.)

I can give him a game . . . a game. Let me list, in the same order, the games on page 82 of the "Toy Book." They are: Dogfight, Broadside, Battle Cry, Stratego, Strategic Command, Quest, How to Succeed in Business, Careers, Sorry, and The Game of Life. Need I say more.

My next column will deal with courage, which, due to the madness of some ancient philosopher, has been called a virtue.

A Review

The AMCOP Opera

by LANGDON F. LOMBARD

With packed houses in the excess of 800 people, the Amherst Community Opera presented Il Trovatore by Verdi in honor of that composer's 150th birthday.

Among the standouts were Henry Falcetti as Mamrico the hroubador, Calliope Shenas as Azucena, Eugene Baker as Count Di Luna. Not to be forgotten were the two people UMass came to see: Dorothy Feldman of the Music Department as Leonora and Margaret Loomis a senior at the University, as Inez.

On the whole, the Saturday night audience was rewarded most, as far as performance went. That audience was not only given a smoother performance but also an inspired one

(Continued on page 5)

Letters To The Editor

Conflict Of Interest

We have been moved by a desire for the truth to comment on Mr. Cheren's editorial on Monday concerning the 'Conflict of Interest' bill presently on the floor of the Senate. While the bill introduced by us roughly fills the form that Mr. Cheren gives it, he misconstrued part of it and failed to mention that the co-authors themselves moved to table it for further study and revision. The main purpose for introducing it at the time was to stimulate some Senate thinking about the concept of "conflict of interest". Tonight, the bill, in a revised, more complete, and, the authors hope, more satisfactory form will appear on the floor as S33.

An examination of some of the proposed revisions is in order:

"No person serving in the Student Senate who is a member of an RSO organization regularly receiving SATF monies may serve on the Finance or Budgets committees of the Senate." Persons criticising the previous form of the bill on the grounds that a Senate member of an RSO organization would lose his vote on the floor should be satisfied with this new clause. This is, we feel, good financial policy.

The second clause attempts to extend this concept to the Men's and Women's Affairs committees. "No persons serving in the Senate who are employed by the Office of the Dean of Students shall serve on the Men's or Women's Affairs committees of the Student Senate." The persons most directly affected by this are dormitory counselors, who are serving in the Senate. Some will say that this will be a detriment to those committees, since supposedly, counselors are the most knowledgable about men's or women's affairs. We think not, for they may in any case appear before the committees, and more importantly, we do not think that any counselor on either of these committees, when faced with any issue in which he or she will have to take a stand against his or her employer would do so because of the risk involved.

Most of Mr. Cheren's remaining arguments bear an air of irrelevency. He asserts in attacking the bill that it "suggests . . . the interests of all organizations on campus do not co-incide with the best interests of the Senate." We think that his logic is somewhat misplaced. Rather, it is the duty of the Senate as representative of the interests of the whole student body should have the power to decide whether the interests of any organization is consistent with the interests of the student body, and not vice versa.

Mr. Cheren further asserts that the bill would "prevent the very students who by their actions show most interest in extracurricular affairs from representing their constituencies." Our question here is; What does Mr. Cheren mean by constituents? If he means what he implies that constituencies are those interest groups to which some Senators happen to be members, we will readily and happily agree that his original assumption is correct. If by constituents it is meant (as is normally and legally the case) those voters in the Senator's district the bill in no way affects a Senator's ability to represent them. Rather it increases his ability to represent them as his obligations are to them, alone, rather than being shared with his loyalty to an organization.

As to Mr. Cheren's charge that the bill would create unnecessary "red tape", we only say, "what is better, a slight inconvenience, or the possible consequence of conflicts of interest?

It would seem, therefore, that Mr. Cheren's arguments in his editorial seem to be illogically considered, misconstrued, and irrelavent, and therefore, should be taken with a grain of salt.

David Mathieson
Senator-at-Large '64

Elwin McNamara
Commuter Senator

Facing the Alumni

To the Editor:

As a student at the University, and as a son of an alumnus, I would like to lodge a complaint publicly.

Past graduates of this institution were offered special tickets to the football game that would get them seats in an alumni section on the east side of the field. That was excellent. The problem arouse at half time. The Redmen Band came onto the field and presented an interesting show, the queen and her court arrived and received recognition, the president of U.R.I. was introduced, and our team returned. True, it was a good show, but it was presnted to the students in the west stand; the alumni missed all the activities.

It was always my impression that the Homecoming football game was dedicated to, and presented for the enjoyment of the alumni. Intentionally or not, it certainly looked as if the University of Mass. was trying to snub the graduates of Mass. Aggie and Mass. State.

It is my sugestion that the students take somewhat of a back seat next year. Let the alumni enjoy the ceremonies. Let's not forget, someday we may return.

R. Rodrigues
Class of '66

Panhellenic Council Announces Rush Schedule

The Panhellenic Council announces that Formal Rush is now in full swing. For those freshmen and upperclass women who have not yet registered, there will be one final registration at the Student Union on Thursday from 11-12 a.m. All rushees are reminded that they must be registered in order to receive an invitation to the closed parties. The remainder of the Rush Schedule is as follows:

Wednesday, October 23, open parties from 7-9 p.m.

Friday, October 25, open parties from 7-9 p.m.

These parties are open to all rushees, although some invitations will be extended by the sororities.

Saturday afternoon Theme Parties will be from 1-3 p.m. at the following houses:

Kappa Alpha Theta
Alpha Chi Omega
Sigma Delta Tau
Pi Beta Phi
Sigma Sigma Sigma

Theme Parties will be held from 3:30-5:30 at the following houses:

Iota Gamma Upsilon
Sigma Kappa
Lambda Delta Phi
Kappa Kappa Gamma
Chi Omega

In order to attend these parties, an invitation must be received.

On Sunday, October 27, Closed Date will be held from 5:30-7:00 at the following houses:

Sigma Delta Tau
Alpha Chi Omega
Iota Gamma Upsilon
Sigma Kappa
Kappa Alpha Theta

From 7:30-9:00 at:

Chi Omega
Lambda Delta Phi
Sigma Sigma Sigma
Kappa Kappa Gamma
Pl Beta Phi

Any registered woman who has received an invitation may attend Closed Date.

On Monday, October 28, at 8 p.m., in the Commonwealth room of the Student Union, Preferential Bidding will take place.

On Tuesday, October 29, from 3:30-5:30 p.m. in the Memorial Hall Lounge the bids to pledge will be distributed.

President Kennedy . . .

(Continued from page 1)

be broadcast live by Stations WWLP, Springfield, (Channel 22), and by other stations later in the day.

Mr. Kennedy's Amherst visit is the first official campus appearance here by a president of the United States. Although Calvin Coolidge, a graduate of the College, served as a trustee of Amherst through his term of office, he never visited the campus while he was president. William Howard Taft received an honorary degree from Amherst shortly after his term expired in 1913.

IN ADDITION to President Kennedy, the participants at the Frost Library ground breaking will be Amherst President Calvin H. Plimpton; Dean C. Scott Porter, representing the faculty; Judge Leonard P. Moore of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals representing the College's alumni; Newton F. McKeon, College librarian; John J. McCloy, chairman of the Amherst Board of Trustees; Harry W. Knight, chairman of the Amherst Capital Program and Harry W. Knight, Jr., the president of the Amherst Student Council, who is Mr. Knight's son. Kendall B. DeBevoise, New York attorney, will preside at the ground breaking ceremony. Music for the occasion will be provided by the Eighth Air Force Band of Westover Field.

About 4,000 persons are expected to witness the convocation in the Amherst Indoor Athletic Field and by closed-circuit television in adjoining building. Several thousand more are expected for the ground breaking.

Flying Redmen Appear

—Photo by Jim Marcuson
The "Flying Redmen," the University of Massachusetts ROTC drill team, as it appeared recently in the Columbus Day parade in Springfield.

The Flying Redmen, UMass AFROTC's top notch drill team, has been actively training and performing on and off campus. On Columbus Day, they went, by invitation, to Springfield to march in the city's annual parade.

For the first time since fall 1962, the Flying Redmen performed at a UMass game. Spectators at the Saturday afternoon Homecoming football fest got a glimpse of a "meat grinder"—and not by the hands of the college football stars. As vicious as it sounds, the term describes one of the stunts performed by the 26-man drill team. Called to perform at this prominent time, Cadet Captain Warren Vandenburg's area champions staged an impressive display of the meat grinder maneuver which helped them place in last year's competitions at the Nation's Capitol.

UMass Angel Flight Unit To Meet In Dickinson Hall

On Thursday, October 24, at 7:30 p.m. a membership meeting of the University of Massachusetts chapter of Angel Flight will be held in Room 207 of Dickinson Hall (ROTC Building).

All the girls who attended the first meeting on September 17, and are still interested in joining the Angel Flight must attend. Any girls who were unable to attend that meeting are strongly urged to come Thursday, since the charter members will be chosen from this group.

Angel Flight is primarily a service organization affiliated with the Arnold Air Society, a select group of Air Force ROTC cadets. It will serve the Detachment during social functions, aid in public relations, help community organizations, and work in close conjunction with the Arnold Air Society in any planned events.

The Angel Flight is a military organization under military discipline, but it does not have any formal connection with the Air Force nor does it require any obligation of its members in regard to the Air Force.

It must also be stressed that Angel Flight has no connection with the Precisionettes. It is a national organization of campus coeds interested in the Air Force and in campus service. At many schools it is also a drill team, performing at national conclaves, but whether it will be one here is undetermined and will not occur in the near future.

Col. Simmons, Professor of Air Science and advisor of both the Angel Flight and the Arnold Air Society, will be the main speaker at the meeting. He will further explain the functions of Angel Flight and tell of a recent visit to the chapter at Boston University. Also at the meeting will be Peter Gillon, Commander of the Arnold Air Society, who will explain the organization and role of Angel Flight in regard to the AAS.

Again, it is imperative that those who wish to join the Angel Flight come to this meeting. Those who do not attend will not be considered for membership.

AMERICAN FIELD SERVICE

All former participants in international exchange programs sponsored by the American Field Service proasked to leave their names and current addresses at the Office of the Dean of Students in Machmer Hall.

Students whose families may have entertained overseas guests as part of the Ameriacn Field Service program, or who have themselves gone abroad as part of this exchange, are included in this call.

Other returnees from the University and Amherst College are interested in getting this group together to exchange ideas and further the cooperation within this group.

This is no weak-sister deodorant!

. . . it's new

MAN-POWER

New Man-Power Deodorant has what it takes to do a MAN's job. Gives you the stepped-up penetration power, the staying power a man needs. Covers in seconds...controls perspiration... stops odor. And it's absolutely non-sticky. Try it...the new deodorant that does a MAN's job. New Man-Power. 1.00 plus tax.

EXTRA BONUS — the clean masculine aroma of OLD SPICE | SHULTON

Students Only
New Yorker Magazine
$3.75 — 8 Mos.
$5.00 — Year
(Reg. $8.00 per year)
Ski Magazine
6 Issues $1.50
2 Years $3.00
(Reg. $3.00 a year)
CHECK OR MONEY ORDER
PETER GUND
Box 418, Amherst, Mass.

SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS
AMHERST Cinema
—NOW SHOWING . . . ENDS SAT.—
Peter Sellers in "Heaven's Above"
Daily 6:50 & 8:50 — Saturday 5, 7, 9:05
—LATE SHOW THIS FRIDAY 11 P.M.—
"La Dolce Vita" Italian

College Bowl Finalist Announced

Dr. Albert Madeira, coach of the University College Bowl team, has announced the selection of finalists in the search for members of a team to represent UMass in the November 24 television show.

They are: Mike Berrini, Leone Kelley, Jeff Davidow, Sandra Graham, James Crawford, Charles Carter, Alan Klein, Mike Hench, Laura Cross, Walter Tordoff III, William Landis, Richard Levine, Susan Tracy, Patricia Long, Alan Scheinmen, and Joseph Troccolo.

In an attempt to narrow the field still further, these finalists will split into teams for competition much like that found on the show itself, and it is hoped that by the end of this week there will be eight persons from whom to choose the team members.

To simulate as closely as possible the atmosphere of the actual show, the teams will be given questions either from the show itself, or those provided by faculty members in the style of the original questions. They will also use a buzzer system which is a replica of that used in the show. The system was built by the electrical engineering department according to plans furnished by General Electric, sponsors of the show.

After the final team is selected, practice will continue with the alternates and other finalists until just before the team is ready to leave for New York and what is hoped a decisive victory.

Recent Legislation To Reduce Teenage Accident Rate

Two recent pieces of legislation designed to reduce the accident rate among young drivers were outlined by Eugene J. Fanning, assistant to the registrar of motor vehicles, Thursday.

No Liquor in Car

Fanning stated it is now a crime for an under-21 driver to have liquor in his car. Its presence alone is against the law and the driver is subject to a court appearance and fine, he said. In addition, the registrar is required to take the driver's license away for 30 days for a first offense.

The registry official also noted that effective Jan. 1, people without licenses must go to the registry office and obtain a learner's permit. No longer is it possible for a licensed driver to teach an unlicensed driver who does not have the permit, Fanning said. Furthermore, he pointed out, the holder of the permit may drive only when accompanied by a licensed operator who is at least 21 and has at least one year's driving experience.

Furthermore, he added, during 1962, 116,000 persons were injured and 701 were killed in Massachusetts. "We find that the younger drivers contribute in large measure to these grim statistics. For this reason the Registry of Motor Vehicles hopes legislation such as I have mentioned today will ease this serious problem."

Khan ...

(Continued from page 1)

was embroiled in the controvery over non-payment of United Nations dues by many of the member nations. This tough issue threatened for a time to create a crisis that could topple the mounting gains made by the United Nations in many parts of the world.

The noted diplomat looks on the United Nations as an organization which has contributed to the "widening and expanding of political freedom in Asia and Africa." He feels the U.N. has been essential as "a safety valve for the reduction of world tensions."

His studied and respected opinions on world affairs provide audiences with an exciting "inside" look at the serious problems that face our civilization today.

WMUA Airs Khan Speech Tomorrow

As part of its plan to bring the best in educational materials to the campus, WMUA will rebroadcast the DVP program tomorrow night for anyone who cannot attend. The speech of Muhammad Zafrulla Khan, which will be given at 11:15 tomorrow morning in the Student Union Ballroom, can be heard again over WMUA (91.1 FM) at 7:00. Muhammad Zafrulla Khan, President of the 17th U. N. General Assembly, will give the keynote address for U.N. week.

XEROX—914 SERVICE HOURS

Monday through Friday
8:45 a.m.-12 noon
1:00 p.m.-4:45 p.m.
7:00 p.m.-9:30 p.m.
Saturday 8:30 a.m.-4:45 p.m.

Lost and Found

FOUND: Girl's glasses in case in front of Goessmann Chem Lab. Contact Gerry Hull, 401 Baker.

FOUND: Between Dwight and Leach—a turquoise, Wearever fountain pen. Contact Meredith Farrell, 323 Dwight.

FOUND: A pair of girl's sunglasses in the Hatch Sat. morning. Contact Frank Berak, 235 Hills North.

LOST: Girl's pocketbook (green) with the name Holly Rogers, Springfield, Mass. Lost at the RI game Oct. 19. Reward. Contact Warren Graft, 440 Baker.

LOST: A Lady Waltham wrist watch with black leather band. band. If found return to Carolyn Dilendik, 207 Mary Lyon.

LOST: Slide rule in tan leather case. Name written in case. Lost in Goessmann Oct. 21 at 2:30 p.m. Contact M. L. Judd, 403 Johnson.

LOST: A dark checkered raincoat was left in W34 Machmer Wed., Oct. 16. Please return to the lobby counter of the S.U. or to Lo Halins, Van Meter S.

LOST: A red patent leather purse at Kappa Sig Saturday night. Please return to Laura Kunzler, 213 Van Meter S. Reward.

LOST: A pair of glasses with light grey frames somewhere between the Athletic field and Chadbourne dorm Sat. afternoon. Please contact Russell Murphy, 309 Chadbourne.

(Continued on page 7)

University Reproducer Open To Student Use

The Xerox-914 (pronounced Zerox), a device which is capable of reproducing printed research materials, photography, or handwritten notes, recently became the joint responsibility of the Student Union and the University Library. The copier is relatively new on the U. of M. campus, since it was only last year that Professor Vincent Ilardi, then chairman of the University Library Committee, waged his one-man camaign to obtain an adequate copying device for the use of students and faculty members. Professor Ilardi persuaded the University Research Council to provide funds for the initial expense, and Mr. Hugh Montgomery, University Librarian, promised to provide space and an operator, for the machine. As a result, the University obtained the Xerox-914 in March, 1963.

The Xerox machine is located on the 4th level, North entrance of the Library; service is available on a cash basis of 10 cents per sheet. Policy matters as to materials which may or may not be copied are determined by the Library.

The tremendous need for a copying device on a campus of this size has been evidenced by the extensive use of the Xerox-914. In view of this fact, the University hopes to enventually obtain another coyping device, namely the Xerox-1824. This machine would make possible the printing of 35 microfilm onto ordinary paper in any of the standard sizes. Mr. Anthony S. Carlisi, Xerox representative, says that much microfilm printing devices will be increasingly popular with universities and colleges as the use of the microfilm expands.

CLUB DIRECTORY

A.F.A.S.S.
Important meeting on Wed., Oct. 23, at 6:30 p.m. in the Franklin room of the S.U. All urged to attend.

ASTRONOMY CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 24, at 8 p.m. in 100 Hasbrouck. Dr. Yoss of Mt. Holyoke College will speak on Sub-Dwarfs. All interested are invited.

BLOOD DRIVE RECRUITERS
Briefing of all recruiters on Thurs., Oct. 24, at 11:15 a.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U.

BOWLING TOURNAMENT
All members of the class of '67 sign up now for the freshman co-ed tournament. Sign-up sheet in games area of S.U.

BRIDGE INSTRUCTION
Lessons for beginners start on Thurs., Oct. 24, at 7 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. At the same time, the regular duplicate game will be held in the Plymouth room of the S.U.

CANTERBURY ASSOCIATION
A hayride will leave Grace Church on Sun., Oct. 27, at 5:30 p.m. In case of rain there will be a Hallowe'en party. Anyone wishing to go must contact Diane Bartlett, Knowlton, Diana Carey, Hamlin, Leo Buske, Hills No. 225, or Pete Exeter, Hills So. 371. Musical instruments welcome. Small donation collected.

CHESS CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 23, in the S.U. All are invited.

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
Vespers will be held on Wed., Oct. 23, at 9:30 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U.

CRITIQUE
Plans for this publication rating the professors and courses on campus will be discussed on Thurs., Oct. 24, at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U.

FERNALD CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 24, at 7:30 p.m. in Fernald B1. Dr. Pratt will give an illustrated talk on his work in medical entomology at various locations.

GEOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in 249 Morrill. Slides of Montana will be shown.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Sunday afternoon gathering for church dedication at 3 p.m. and supper meeting at 6 p.m. in the new church. The talk will be "A Way to find Life."

NEWMAN CLUB
There will be a bus to the B.U. game on Sat., Oct. 26. It will leave the Center at 10:15 a.m. and will return immediately after the game.

Also, there will be a movie on Sat., Oct. 26, at 7:30 p.m. Fee $.25 for non-members.

Also, on Thurs., Oct. 24, at 2 p.m., Prof. John Noonan will be in the Center lounge to discuss law as a profession.

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 24, at 6:30 p.m. in the Men's PE Bldg. Basic instructions—6:30-8 p.m.; meeting 8-8:15 p.m. and advanced instruction 8:15-9:30 p.m. Coeds welcome.

SPECIAL EVENTS COMMITTEE
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 24, at 11:15 a.m. in the Worcester. A room of the S.U. All members should attend.

S.U. PUBLICITY MEETING
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 23, at 7 p.m. in the Norfolk room of the S.U. Elections will be held; all are welcome.

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 23, at 8 p.m. in the Worcester room of the S.U. Dr. Leonard will speak on "Zionism: A Betrayal of the Fulfillment of Judaism." All interested are invited.

WOMEN'S INTERDORMITORY COUNCIL
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 24, at 11:15 a.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U.

"COCA-COLA" AND "COKE" ARE REGISTERED TRADE-MARKS WHICH IDENTIFY ONLY THE PRODUCT OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY.

date...late...shower...
shave...nick...ouch...
...dress...rush...rip... change...drive...speed flat...fix...arrive...wait
...wait...pause...

things go better with Coke

Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by:
THE COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO. OF NORTHAMPTON

RENT A CAR
ECONO-CAR RENTAL SYSTEM
FEATURING CHRYSLER PRODUCTS
• GAS INCLUDED
$5.99 PER 24 HRS.
Plus Small Mileage Charge
Springfield 785-5314
Northampton 584-7277
Greenfield 774-4443

Orientation Program Sat. For Belchertown School

On October 26, there will be a special orientation program at the Belchertown State School for the mentally retarded. The purpose of this program is to help bring about a better understanding of mental retardation and a description of the type of volunteer work done by the "Belchertown Volunteers" on Saturday afternoons.

The two hour program will include a speaker using slides, a question-answer period, and a tour of the various buildings on the State School grounds. Few people ever get the chance to tour a mental institution. This should be a unique opportunity for all those interested to broaden their knowledge and understanding of mental retardatoin.

Cars taking the students to Belchertown will leave from The Dinning Commons parking lot promptly at 1:15 and will return to the University by 4:30.

In order to arrange for the necessary transportation all those interested in going to the Orientation Program are asked to sign up on the sheets available across from the telephone booths on the main floor of the Student Union before 5 p.m. on Thursday, October 24.

The Orientation program is recommended for all those specifically interested in doing volunteer recreational work at Belchertown on Saturdays. Going to the Orientation in no way obligates any one to do volunteer work.

AMCOP ...

(Continued from page 2)

by local talent singing the music they had come to love so well.

Like eevry live performance, it did have drawbacks including some unnecessarily fast tempo, over anxiousness on the part of some orchestra members, and occasional unwieldly notes issued by Leonora.

On the whole, we can congratulate the Amherst Community Opera in undertaking such a venture, which was so aptly Smith College Music Department who conducted the performances.

Four College Radio Officials Meet

At its annual meeting in Amherst, the Western Massachusetts Broadcasting Council, Inc., elected officers for the coming year. Operator of the educational FM Radio Station WFCR, the Council is supported by Amherst, Mount Holyoke, Smith, and the University of Massachusetts. Its transmitter is located on Mt. Lincoln in Pelham.

Named to the Board of Directors were George deVillafranca (Smith), Roger W. Holmes (Mount Holyoke), Horace W. Hewlet (Amhest), Raymond Wyman (University of Massachusetts), and Stuart M. Stoke (Four-College Coordinator). Elected to office were: Hewlett, President; Wyman, Vice President; George Mastroianni (Program Director), Secretary; and Kenneth W. Johnson (University Treasurer), Treasurer.

In its plans for the coming year the Council intends to originate more programs — both "live" and on tape—from the four supporting institutions. A number of concerts, lectures, and panel discussions have already been recorded for future broadcast.

Among its major musical programs announced for the year are the New York Philharmonic concerts (Sunday afternoons), the Metropolitan Opera series (Saturday afternoons beginning in December), and the Boston Symphony Orchestra (Friday and Saturday evenings) — all "live" from New York and Boston.

The WFCR Program Guide for November will carry a questionnaire to determine the preferences and listening habits of listeners in the station's broadcast area. Those interested in obtaining a Program Guide should apply to WFCR, Box 611, Amherst, Mass. A special rate is provided for students who identify their school and class.

SZO Presents Dr. Leonard Tonight

Wednesday, October 23, the Student Zionist Association will again have the privilege of hearing a most interesting and provocative lecture. Dr. David Leonard of the History Department has agreed to lecture on the subject, "Zionism-Betrayal or Fulfillment of Judaism," which last spring stimulated and aroused his listeners.

The lecture will be at 8:00 in the Worcester Room of the S.U.

NOTICES

BILLIARD LESSONS

Billiard lessons for both men and women will be given in the billards area of the S.U. Thursdays at 11 a.m. The starting date will be announced. Sign up in the student activities office.

DANCE

There will be a U.N. Week Dance in the S.U. Ballroom Saturday evening, Oct. 26, at 8 p.m. Music will be provided by Gus Perfito. Tickets will be 75¢ and can be purchased at the Gamma Sigma Sigma information booth in the S.U. All proceeds will go to UNESCO.

SENIORS

Dean Kendall of Boston University Law School will be on campus Thursday, Oct. 24, to speak to those students who are interested in going to law school. Students will be seen by appointment only. An appointment can be made at the Counciling and Guidance Office in Machmer Hall.

SCUBA CLUB

There will be a boat dive out of Beverly this Sunday for all experienced SCUBA divers. Those interested should attend the business meeting Thursday night at 8:30 p.m. at the men's cage in the pool stands.

They helped make a major advance in medical technology

...yet there's not an "M. D." in the house

These six men were members of a team that developed an x-ray system so advanced that, even with exposure to x-radiation reduced by 80%, images come out much sharper on the diagnostician's viewing screen. By bringing to the task the unique talents, experience, and educational background of each member, this team of experts has made it possible for radiologists and physicians to do a better job of medical diagnosis.

Of these six men from General Electric's X-Ray Department, Milwaukee, four have degrees in engineering, one majored in physics and math, and the sixth in economics. Not one was trained primarily in medical science—although, of course, their Department works closely with the medical profession. Nor did any of them anticipate, when in college, that their major subjects would be put to use in providing improved tools for diagnostic medicine. But they did recognize—as their record shows—that better-than-average performance could qualify them for challenging jobs with a forward-looking company like General Electric.

There are hundreds of such teams at General Electric today. Their make-up varies, and almost every field of specialization, technical and non-technical, is represented somewhere in the Company. The projects are just as varied: nose cones for missiles, desalinization of sea water, computers, or power plants to squeeze more electricity from a pound of coal or a gram of atomic fuel.

The more than 36,000 college graduates at General Electric comprise one of the largest and most varied pools of talent in the nation. But the Company's future is, in many ways, wrapped up in people still in school and college. As projects increase in size and complexity, so will the need for able young people. People who demonstrate, through their college record, the best use of their educational opportunities, who know the meaning of excellence, who understand the differences between specialization and narrowness, breadth and shallowness. Such people, working together, will make up the teams of the future, and be the architects of what we call progress.

The team (left to right): Jerry E. Rich, Georgetown College, Ky., '53; Robert J. Mueller, Marquette, '44; William A. Mayer, Univ. of Calif., '47; John P. Kelley, R.P.I., '47; William G. Waggoner, West Va. Univ., '33, Pratt Inst., '37; Arthur Pruneau, Univ. of Vermont, '52.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product

GENERAL ELECTRIC

First Area Showing!
DEERFIELD Drive-In
ROUTES 5 & 10
S. Deerfield, Mass.
—FRI., SAT., SUN.—

From 20th Century Fox
"THE LONGEST DAY"
"CLEOPATRA"
And Now...
BURT LANCASTER
IN THE LEOPARD

1st PRIZE WINNER
"BEST FILM" 1963 CANNES INTERNATIONAL FILM FESTIVAL

ALSO STARRING
ALAIN DELON CLAUDIA CARDINALE
—Also—
"POLICE NURSE"
Show begins at 7:30

Reconditioned TV's and Radios
• FULLY GUARANTEED •
T.V.'s from $29.95 up
Radios from $6.95 up
AT MIENTKA T.V.
57 S. PLEASANT ST. :: AL 3-2453

First Of A Series

Lotta Crabtree - The Gold Rush Kid

by TERRY STOCK

In the center of each dormitory hangs a plaque. Often students pause to gaze curiously at the brief biographies inscribed on these metal slabs. (Others inhabit a domitory for four years and graduate — still oblivious that such plaques exist.) Unfortunately these biographies are sadly inadequate, for they cannot, in their brevity, provide information about the personalities of the people to whom they pay tribute.

A dormitory is more than a building that houses students. It is a monument to an individual who greatly contributed to the advancement of higher education.

This article, the first in a series, will attempt to provide a glimpse into the life of one of these individuals whose names our dormitories proudly bear.

Lotta Crabtree, the "Gold Rush" kid, was born in New York City in 1847. In 1852 her father left for the gold fields of San Francisco, and when she and her mother went to join him the following year, he failed to appear.

Forced to support herself and her daughter, Lotta's mother conceived the idea of promoting Lotta's natural talents of singing and dancing. The child was an immediate success. Her beauty, grace, and spirit brought showers of gold nuggets upon her as she danced her way into the hearts of the miners in the barrooms of the western towns. She was six years old.

Lotta's popularity spread rapidly throughout California, and soon her lost father sent word that he had failed to appear because he was ashamed of his lack of success in the gold fields. The family was immediately reunited.

Lotta Crabtree in the '70's, from "Troupers of the Gold Coast" by Constance Rourke (Harcourt, Brace).

Meanwhile, Lotta's talents became more polished. She became a successful actress as well as a dancer, but her tremendous success stemmed from her complete freedom on the stage—she often smoked a black cigar while entertaining.

Because her aggressive, money-minded mother discouraged all sultors, Lotta's love-life was limited to one brief engagement, which ended with the young soldier's untimely death.

At the age of 17 she was taken on a theatrical tour of the East. Her gay and rollcking manner captivated eastern audiences, and her success was instantaneous. Outside the theater, she lived quietly with her mother.

In 1891, after an unsuccessful tour of England, she retired to a mansion in New Jersey where she took up oil painting and race horse breeding.

Known as the world's richest actress, this darling of the "Gold Rush" camps and Broadway died at the age of 77 in Boston on Sept. 25, 1924, leaving an estate of more than $4 million.

After providing varying amounts for relatives, disabled veterans, animals, discharged convicts, and needy actors and actresses, Lotta surprised the world by leaving the remainder of her estate—$1 million—to the Massachusetts Agricultural College. She provided that this money should eventually become a trust fund to benefit graduate and undergraduate students of the college and assist them in becoming farmers.

Now, Crabtree Dormitory, named in honor Lotta, houses 158 women, who, though not necessarily in the school of agriculture, are doing her name honor.

Bob Weber

The Folk Scene

HOOTENANNY—this is a word which in the past year or so we have heard more and more. We see Hootenanny on T.V.—I'll return to this point later—we see adds for traveling hoots, hoots on records and even in the movies. Where did this word come from?

Hootenanny was coined by Peter Seeger and Lee Hays when both were members of the Almanac Singers, the predecessors to The Weavers. The sad and perhaps ironic part of the story is that Pete Seeger, The Weavers, Mike Seeger, and the New Lost City Ramblers have been "blacklisted" by the producers of the T.V. show, "Hootenanny" because of supposed political beliefs of the above named people and groups. The man who has probably done more to promote folk music in America has been banned from millions of T.V. sets throughout the country.

In spite of protests numbering in the thousands, the producers refuse to relent. In support of Pete and the others, a great many performers have refused to appear on T.V. Joan Baez, Bob Dylan, Peter, Paul and Mary, the Kingston Trio and many others have refused offers to go on T.V.

This is the present situation, that is, a stalement. If you would like to voice an opinon write to Producers, Hootenanny Show, CBS T.V. Network, New York, New York.

THIS SATURDAY NITE there will be a hootenanny staring Taj, George Weir, Ann Baxter and Mark Winter from Amherst College for the benefit of the Braille fund. It is being held at Amherst Regional High School at 8:00 p.m. There is a small donation.

Bonnie Dobson will be at Springfield College Friday nite Nov. 8. Others who will appear in this series of concerts include Sonney Terry and Brownie McGee and the New Lost City Ramblers.

Speaking of the Ramblers, the Sing Out I reports that there is another group patterning themselves after them called the New Lost Avenue Ramblers.

University Chorale Starts New Year

This fall, the UMass Chorale begins its 7th year under the direction of Dr. John King. Dr. King, who came to us in 1955 from the University of Birmingham, England, has maintained the policy that any qualified person may join. Sponsored by R.S.O. and attached to a credit course, the organization is primarily for undergraduates; however, membership is opened equally to graduate students, faculty members, and townspeople. Consisting at the present time of approximately 60 people, Chorale has been expanding, and will continue to grow, keeping pace with the University.

Among past performances have been the traditional Christmas program and performances for small groups throughout Massachusetts. High points in these performances have been Haydn's "Creation", of which a record was made for the members; Bach's "Magnificat", in Latin; Britton's "A Ceremony of Carols."

In 1961 the Chorale taped a concert for the National Educational Television Network, which was broadcast twice from Albany, New York. Chorale also had the honor of being invited by the governor to sing at the Governor's Reception at the State House.

The coming year promises to be an exciting one, with such events as a 3-day tour in the Spring including 10 high school concerts and 3 evening concerts. The annual Christmas Concert is scheduled for December 8, 1963, at 8:00 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. The program will emphasize group-choral music, featuring carols of many countries.

Chorale is a closely-knit group with enough flexibility to admit many new members each year. Anyone interested in joining should contact Dr. King in Room 4 in the Old Chapel, Extensions 2227 or 2657. Rehearsals are held every Tuesday evening from 6:30 to 9:00 p.m. in the Old Chapel.

Unsung Heroes

Salute To UnderStudies

The role of understudy, although it has limited appeal, is a necessary and integral part of any production. Usually, understudy roles are assigned for the leading characters, and the amount of time, work, and energy required closely parallels that of the title role characters.

An understudy must be present at all rehearsals, and must learn all the lines, songs, and dances that are performed by the leading character he understudies. In other words, an understudy must "shadow" the lead and become just as versatile in the role as the lead, himself.

One may ask why an understudy must devote so much time to a task which is rarely brought into the limelight. The answer lies in the inevitable, for illness or unforeseen circumstances can strike a leading character at any time, and the understudy must be ready to take over immediately.

Unfortunately, the hard work and talent that is required of an understudy is rarely acknowledged by anyone outside of the immediate cast. Since the regular leads are on hand to perform in the final production 90% of the time, the understudies are almost never recognized for the important and necessary parts they play behind the scenes.

In the Operetta Guild's production of Music Man, to be presented October 31 through November 2, two such understudies have been working along with the leads constantly. Jim Duncan, who understudies Jack Singer in the role of Harold Hill, has proven his theatrical capabilities on the numerous occasions when he has had to assume the role of Harold Hill in the absence of Singer. In addition to this, Jim has been given the role of Charlie Coweli in the show, so his job is one of even greater responsibility than understudying alone. Serving as the very capable understudy for Peggy Jones, who plays Marion in the production, is Dona Pratt. Miss Pratt's vocal and acting ability have also shown their prowess on the occasions that she had to step in for Miss Jones.

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn
Breakfast — 50¢
Lunch — 50¢ up
THE OPEN HEARTH
STEAKHOUSE
BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

College Students
Faculty Members
College Libraries
Printed in BOSTON LOS ANGELES LONDON
SUBSCRIBE NOW AT HALF PRICE
Clip this advertisement and return it with your check or money order to:
The Christian Science Monitor
One Norway St., Boston 15, Mass.
☐ 1 YEAR $11 ☐ 6 mos. $5.50
☐ COLLEGE STUDENT ☐ FACULTY MEMBER
P-CN

Univ. of Mass. OPERETTA GUILD
in asociation with the
OPERA WORKSHOP
presents
MEREDITH WILLSON'S
The Music Man
OCTOBER 31 thru NOVEMBER 2
All evenings at 8:15 p.m.
Saturday matinee at 2:00 p.m.
Tickets on Sale at the Student Union Box Office, Phone 545-2528
$1.50 ALL SEATS RESERVED $1.75

PRO FOOTBALL

Prognostications

by RALPH PROLMAN

Last week in pro football was a week filled with surprises and one game which was the biggest upset of the pro season. The surprises in the A.F.L. came in the Buffalo - Houston game, where Buffalo, a six point favorite, walked into an inferno in the person of George Blanda, who led the Oilers to a 28-14 victory over the Bills; and in the game between New York and Oakland, as the two point underdog Raiders steamrolled the Jets 49-26. In the N.F.L. the Colts put on a great show in the second half to pull a minor surprise by downing the Detroit Lions 25-21. Also, the Los Angeles Rams won their first game of the season 27-24, as two field goals in the last quarter helped beat the Minnesota Vikings. But the biggest upset of the year took place in San Francisco, as the formerly winless 49ers defeated the previously unbeaten Chicago Bears 20-14. This means that for my first week I had six right and five wrong. Now here are my predictions for this week, and I am hoping to improve on last week's 6 and 5 record.

In the A.F.L: Boston at Buffalo — Babe Parilli looked like his old self last week in the game against Denver, and Gino Cappeletti was a virtual one-man team as he scored 22 points. This combination of Parilli's arm and Gino's talented toe should be too much for the disappointing Bills. I pick the Pats to win their 5th game of the year by ten points and stay on top in the A.F.L.'s eastern division.

Denver at New York — Two weeks ago the Broncs lost John McCormick, last week they lost Mickey Slaughter. Without a quarterback the Broncs should be at the Jet's mercy. It should be the Jets by ten or more points.

Kansas City at Houston —The Chiefs, smarting from last week's loss, should knock off the Oilers with six points to spare and give the Pats sole possession of 1st place in the east.

Oakland at San Diego — The Chargers, probably the best team in the A.F.L., should easily manage to defeat the Oakland Raiders by thirteen points.

In the N.F.L.: New York at Cleveland — When these teams first met two weeks ago Jimmy Brown ran wild. He picked up 123 yards rushing, over 85 yards on three pass receptions, and scored three TDs. In this game Jim Brown may not manage to match those figures, but a combination of his running and the passing and running of quarterback Frank Ryan, plus a greatly improved Brownie defense, should be too much for Y. A. Tittle and his Giants. From this corner it looks like the Browns will take their seventh straight by 14 points.

Philadelphia at Chicago — The Eagles will be minus starting quarterback Sonny Jurgenson, who was injured in the game with Cleveland. The Bears, smarting from last week's defeat, should walk over the Eagles by at least eight points even if Jurgenson could play.

Dallas at Pittsburgh — The high powered Steeler offense should have a four point edge and be too much for the defensively weak Cowboys to stop.

Minnesota at Detroit — In what should be a very close and exciting game, I pick the vastly improved Vikings to beat the disappointing Lions by a mere two points.

St. Louis at Washington — The Cards should bounce back from last week's defeat in Green Bay to down the Redskins by 3 points and stay in contention in the east.

San Francisco at Los Angeles — Both these teams won their first game last week but the 49-ers beat a much better club than the Rams and looked good doing it. I think the 49ers will win their second straight by beating their close rivals, the Rams, by six points.

Green Bay at Baltimore — The Packars will be without the services of Bart Starr for the next six weeks at least, but their sturdy defense should carry them to a seven-point victory over the Colts.

THE LORD JEFFERY
Choice Dates Still Available For Your Fraternity or Sorority Party.
A TREADWAY INN
AL 3-2576

Peter Pan Travel Service Inc.
144 BRIDGE STREET :: SPRINGFIELD
(Across from Bus Terminal)
Open 9 a.m.-9 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.
FOR ALL VACATION and TRANSPORTATION NEEDS
AIRLINE TICKETS AND RESERVATIONS
Tours - Cruises - Sightseeing
Official Tariff Rates
Limousine to Bradley Field Leaves from Our Front Door
Call Collect to SPRINGFIELD 781-3343

TRANSLATION
Girls of '67

Sign up for bowling tournament in games area of S.U. So far only one girl has signed. Are you going to let her win?!!

CLUB 66

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

BERNIE DALLAS earned his second "E" with this tackle of the Bucknell halfback in the second quarter of the October 5 21-0 victory.

CLASS PRESIDENT

Standout Defensive Player For Redmen Football Team

One of the most spectacular players on the team this year is center and linebacker Bernie Dallas. Many times during the course of a game the loudspeaker will blare out, "Tackle by Dallas." Yet Dallas is the first to admit that the appearance of his number 51 in the backfield is due to the work of the other linemen. As Bernie says, "The only reason I'm there is that our tackle has kept the offensive lineman from blocking me out of the play."

Originally Dallas was a halfback or a fullback, but when the team needed linebackers, Coach Fusia remembered that Dallas had played that position before. Dallas was happy to get the chance to play linebacker, because as he says, "At some schools the linebackers have a rather unexciting role to play, but here at UMass with the pro style defenses used it's really good." Much of the credit for the varied defenses used belongs to defensive line coach Ted Schmidt.

The way that the defensive team studies the offense of the future opponent is by reviewing all the films time and again. Dallas points out, "We study the films so much that we know how each of the opposing backs will react and what to expect in the game. If he likes to take a counter step before he hits a hole, it shows up in these films, se we can play him accordingly."

Besides being an outstanding player, Dallas serves as class president for the class of '66. Much of his ingenuity has been put to work here, as can be seen by the diversity of the projects the class has. This is his second term in the position of class president, and he is willing to discuss the class projects with anyone.

As to this Saturday, what can Redmen fans expect? Well, according to Dallas, "the team really wants to beat B.U. badly. The seniors want to return some of the treatment they have received from them. It will be a game similar to the Harvard game where everyone gave a hundred and fifty percent." One thing fans all hope to see is that now familiar 51 in on many tackles.

BITS AND PIECES

UMass Among Undefeated In NE; Morin On ECAC Team Of Week

by JOHN GOODRICH

Bits and Pieces: Before last Saturday's romp over U.R.I. the Redmen had scored but 56 points in 4 games . . . Now the figures read 113 points for and 10 against . . . It was the third shutout for the Redmen this season . . . John Schroeder proved to be an able sub for Jerry Whelchel by throwing two TD passes and general fine play . . . Milt Morin is the UMass representative on the ECAC team of the week.

Only five undefeated teams left in New England . . . Harvard (2-0-2), Dartmouth (4-0-0), Northeastern (5-0-0), Coast Guard (4-0-0), and UMass (4-0-1), . . . There will probably be one less at this time next week . . . Dartmouth travels to Harvard to play in a battle of the unbeatens . . . Mass tied Columbia for tenth place in the Lambert Trophy race this week.

To look ahead a week the Redmen face a tough opponent in Vermont on Nov. 2 at Alumni field . . . The Catamounts beat UNH 28-6, and are in second place in the conference . . . A victory would give the Redmen the undisputed conference crown for the first time.

On the national scene, most of the top teams barely squeaked out wins in supposedly easy games . . . Despite its narrow victory, Texas held first place, followed by Wisconsin and Pitt . . . All three face tough opponents this weekend . . . The Longhorns take on Rice, the Badgers play against Ohio State while in the big game in the East, Pitt travels to Annapolis to oppose Navy.

The experts list the two best QBs in the country as Roger Staubach of Navy and Billy Lothridge of Georgia Tech . . . each excels in virtually every game . . . Staubach is a great pass or run threat, while Lothridge does everything for Tech.

Rumors around UConn have Coach Bob Ingalls on the way out . . . His team lost 35-12 against Maine . . . This was the first game the Huskies have scored more than 7 points in a game this year . . . They have allowed 68 points while scoring only 22 . . . They stand 0-4 on the year with little relief in sight as they take on Delaware this week . . . The Blue Hens are averaging 47 points per game . . . Some of the UConn alumni have high hopes for Andy Robistelli of the Giants as a good chance to be coach.

Lost & Found . . .

(Continued from page 4)

FOUND: One 132 lb. pumpkin. owner can claim anytime after 9 p.m. See D. Dwyer, 328 Butterfield.

LOST: A green ski parka between the cage and the engineering building. If found please contact Harry McGruder, 408 Butterfield.

Frosh X-Country . . .

(Continued from page 8)

these boys have done this season.

Despite the defeat, the frosh have shown a great deal of improvement. It is hoped that the improvement will continue so that the team will have a chance in the Yankee Conference and the New Englands.

VARSITY HOCKEY MEETING
OCT. 30, WEDNESDAY 5:30 p.m.
ROOM 10—PHYS ED BLDG

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Boyden Building Still In Construction

Operations of the Physical Education department have been seriously hampered by the lag in the construction of the new Frank L. Boyden Physical Education Building. Because of a steel strike a summer ago, the contractors were not able to roof over the building before winter snows had caused added delay in the construction. The building which was scheduled to be completed last June will now hopefully be finished by the start of next semester.

All of the required men's physical education classes will stay outdoors past the usual mid-semester change until inclement weather forces the classes to be suspended. Then, the classes will move indoors on a modified basis.

Most of the old Cage floor has been torn up to make way for a new basketball floor. The indoor physical education classes will therefore operate on a once-a-week basis with a very limited choice of sports offered.

Both varsity gymnastics and wrestling have had to improvise practice sessions on the bare dirt of the torn up Cage floor. Varsity basketball has had to move its practice session to the Women's Physical Education Building.

Once the Boyden building is opened, the present over-crowded conditions will cease to exist. Among other facilities, the building will have its own laundry, bowling alleys, squash and handball courts, separate sports rooms, swimming pool, and a main gymnasium that will cover about an acre of floorspace. There will be an increase in basket space from the present 2000 baskets in the Cage to over 6000 in the Boyden building; space will also be made available to upperclassmen who wish to use the facilities. The faculty will also have a locker room available should they wish to use it.

The Boyden building will be open for a longer period of time each day than the present Cage, so that the University community will be able to use its expanded facilities to the greatest advantage.

—Photo by Darryl Fine

Exuberant TEP men pose for victory picture after their win in annual Nose Bowl.

Tep Downs AEPi In Nose Bowl Classic

The I.F.C. league started its sixth round on Monday night with the fraternities jockeying for play-off positions.

KS, with three touchdowns by John Neary, debated PMD 31-6. Herb Levine had the losers only touchdown while Rod Corey and Bill Crane scored for the winners.

ZN shaded LCA 12-7 on touchdowns by Bob Pederson and Shlitz. LCA could only manage one touchdown in losing their second game of the season.

SAE rolled over PSK 32-6. Cazalonis, Powers, Mahoney, and John Smith shared the scoring honors for SAE. Steve Shea crossed the goal line for PSK.

In the biggest game of the night, Alpha Epsilon Pi was beaten by Tau Epsilon Phi in the annual Nose Bowl classic. A strong TEP team outscored the Pi's 19-6. TEP's line played a hard-nosed brand of football that gave their backs time to pass for long yardage gains. Although AEPi played a hard game, especially Howie Schlosberg who deserves special mention for his work, they were never able to score after their only touchdown in the opening minutes of play.

Freshmen Harriers Drop Third In Row

by JOHN POTASKY

The University of Massachusetts freshmen harriers lost their third consecutive meet this past Saturday to a fine New Britain Teachers College unit by a score of 21-34. Once again it was just a case of being outmanned by a much stronger group of runners, as is evidenced by the fact that only one UMass harrier finished close to the top. This distance runner was once again Bob St. Clair, the New Jersey High School record holder. He ran the gruelling course in a fine time of 18:11.

The Connecticut team displayed some outstanding team running by capturing the first three places. It was paced by the Al Orloff's excellent jaunting as he came in with a time of 17:19.8. Orloff was joined by teammates Rich Stark and Jim Patton in the top three. Stark covered the distance in 17:30 and Patton came in on his heels.

Coach Justin Cobb is still very unhappy with the showing of his charges to date. Stiff practice sessions are due for the harriers It is hoped that a little extra workng out will have a good effect on the boys. Coach Cobb still did find some pleasure in the defeat last weekend. He was very exuberant over the showing of two particular freshmen, namely Fred Mitchell and Peter Thoms. The two boys ran the route in times of 18:11 and 18:37 respectively. This was the best that the knit look

(Continued on page 7)

The news is knit . . . new weaves, new textures, new colors . . . wonderfully wearable . . . wonderfully practical for campus life . . . your leisure hours . . . choose our knits for fashion this fall.

Ann August

Charge Accounts Invited!

104 No. Pleasant St. . . . . Amherst

(FREE PARKING IN REAR)

THE ALPS... made in Italy by FABIANO

Handmade Imported Boots for the Outdoor Man and Woman...

For Men or Women. Suede Rock Climbing and Hiking Boot. Leather lined, Padded Quarter and Tongue, Vibram lug soles. Men's N and L—6 to 12 (Cocoa Brown only). Ladies M—5 to 11 in these Fashion Colors: #4364 — Cocoa Brown, #4361 — Green, #4362—Red, #4365 — Gray.

STYLE #436

$13.95 plus postage

Write for free brochure, FABIANO SHOE CO., Dept. MC, South Station, Boston 10, Mass.

History Room

LIBRARY
OCT 29 1963
UNIVERSITY

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 18 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1963

Muhammed Khan Opens UN Week

—Photo by Janice Baker

SIR MUHAMMED ZAFRULLA KHAN

"Concern over international peace is not a monopoly of the great powers," the last year's president of the United Nation's General Assembly told 1200 students and faculty Thursday morning in the Student Union Ballroom.

In his keynote address for United Nation's weekend, Sir Muhammed Zafrulla Khan, permanent Ambassador from Pakistan to the United Nations, told the audience that if efforts to gain international peace fail, "the great powers have a great deal to lose in terms of culture and civilization. But, the 'have-nots' will lose something more precious—their human dignity and hopes. They have just emerged into the era of independence and all their dreams of setting up as prosperous dignified communities would be impossible to achieve."

The distinguished diplomat, just appointed a justice of the World Court, said, "We are not just brothers, we are a unity. Everybody is the responsibility of everyone else. Mankind cannot continue under present conditions without a collision—not while one-quarter of the people have sunshine of knowledge and science and three-quarters wallow in a morass of ignorance."

According to Sir Muhammad, the League of Nations failed because its membership was composed of the dominant powers who sought to preserve the status quo. The UN's objectives have been to preserve and maintain peace through universality of membership and process of change.

"The UN is not a world government. We are not ready for a world government now. The UN is a voluntary association of equal sovereign states seeking to achieve its purposes through persuasion rather than force. The UN's strength depends upon dialogue."

Senior Index Photographs Are Delayed

Index senior photographs are running behind schedule, according to an announcement Thursday from the yearbook office.

A number of persons have failed to sign for appointments and another large group have not kept their appointments, the announcement said.

The Index reported that late mail deliveries and changes of address have also contributed to the delay.

An Index spokesman urged all seniors to cooperate by keeping their appointments. "We can't have a yearbook without senior photos," he said.

Appointment signup sheets and postcards are available in the Index office on the second floor of the S.U. The Index office is open 12 hours a day. Seniors may sign at any time.

Two Senators Walk Out In Clash Over Conflict Of Interest Bill

by DON JOHNSON

A lengthy, explosive Senate meeting came to an abrupt end Wednesday night when two Senators, Marilyn Singer ('65 Johnson) and Jim Watson (At-Large '65) stormed out of the chamber over the protests of President Fife.

The bill in question was designed to eliminate any conflict of interest which might arise among organizations receiving Senate money who have members serving on the Budgets or Finance Committees of the Senate. The bill would further exclude from the Men's and Women's Affairs committee and person employed as a dormitory counselor.

The latter clause was objected to by Senators Singer and Watson, respective chairmen of the Women's and Men's Affairs committees.

Senator Joan Labuzoski ('64 Sororities) argued that the bill places the counselors in the position of "making the law and enforcing it, too."

Sen. Singer countered that "woman counselors should serve on Women's Affairs since they are closely involved with women's problems from day to day."

The Senate, however, disagreed, and the bill was passed.

Later, Senators Al McNamara (Commuter) and Dave Mathieson (At-Large '64), co-authors of the bill, stunned the chambers by asking reconsideration of the bill. Under these circumstances, if the Senate refused reconsideration, the bill would achieve permanence in that it could not be again considered throughout the session.

Noting that there were 37 Senators in attendance, 36 being a quorum, Watson and Singer began to depart. President Fife slammed his gavel down on the rostrum and ordered them to take their seats. They did not.

Their action was described by president Fife as "being detrimental to the best interest of the Senate" action against the two is planned.

New Engineer To Aid Lagging Dorm Const.

George Pumphret, chairman of the University of Massachusetts Building Authority, announced Wednesday that the M. J. Walsh Co. has agreed to place a new supervising engineer on their construction project on Van Meter hill.

The project, which was scheduled for completion last September, has now been rescheduled to a new completion date, August 14, 1964. Thus, students entering for the fall semester will be able to secure rooms.

The engineer, Robert P. Canedi, was formerly employed by the O'Connell Co., and has wide experience in the field, having supervised construction of the new Boyden Physical Education Building.

He is expected to give the authority a revised work schedule within the week. To date, after two days on the job, Canedi has already enlarged the work force.

After visiting the construction site, Chairman Pumphret stated that he was gratified with the speedup in the pace of work since Canedi's employment.

Pumphret told members of the Ad-Hoc Committee on Student Housing that he would inform them and the student body, of progress on the dormitories.

Campus Blood Drive Begins Next Monday

Monday will be the kick-off date for the annual Campus Blood Drive sponsored by the Campus Religious Council in conjunction with the University Women. This year's drive is headed by Mrs. Henry Korson and Ralph DeGregorio, '64.

Because of the great response received last year from the student body, this year the blood bank will receive donations only from students enrolled at the University. Faculty and staff will have an opportunity to pledge blood during the drive open to Amherst residents next Spring. For this reason the cooperation of every student will be necessary to make this year's drive as successful as those held in the past.

Anyone in normal health over 18 years old is eligible to give blood. Students under 21 must have parent's permission on a form which will be sent out to parents of those students who are under 21 and wish to give blood.

SUG Board To Review Food Prices

The Student Union Governing Board, the policy making board of the Union, intends this year to review various Union matters of student interest which have been requested by individual students. According to Bob Brauer, SUG Board Chairman, such matters as food pricing, book pricing, and the new Union Building will be discussed this year by the Board.

If you have any questions regarding SUG Board Activities or any problems regarding the Union which you wish the Board to look into, please contact any

(Continued on page 6)

Freshmen Class Has Final Elections

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

THREE OF THE NEW freshmen officers pose for Collegian photographer. Left to right: Kathy Scisento, Secretary; Don Hawkes, Vice President; and Dave Cummings, President.

Opinion COLLEGIAN Editorial Page Understanding

A TEST OF LEADERSHIP

The situation in regards to the now famous Conflict of Interest Bill is as muddied as the parliamentary maneuverings that went on at the last Senate meeting.

Whether their actions were technically legal or illegal, the fact remains that both the major proponents and opponents of the Bill acted in a manner uncomplimentary to the Student Senate.

It is not for the Collegian to judge which parties were right or wrong. This is the job of the leaders of the Senate, and in particular the President.

It has been reported that President Jon Fife has asked Senators Watson and Singer to either make a formal apology or resign their committee chairmanships, because of the disrespect they seemingly showed him and the entire Senate by deliberately walking out of the meeting in order to prevent the necessary quorum from being present.

Undoubtedly, they both felt and still feel justified in their actions. But if they are truly aware of the workings of the Senate, as we are sure they must be, they will comply with Fife for the good of the whole organization.

If they flaunt President Fife's decision, and enlist the support of other, perhaps less knowledgable Senators in their effort, they will be doing a great disservice to the Senate.

If Fife is stymied, if Fife does not get his way now, then his reputation, and ability to run the Senate will he greatly hindered. If the general body of the Senate supports Watson and Singer in opposition to Fife, it would constitute a vote of no-confidence, a vote which would probably be the signal for some key Senate resignation papers to be filed.

The implications that Senators Watson and Singers actions will have on the Senate are immense. They, along with those who might support them, should take into consideration the general welfare of the University of Massachusetts Student Government.

J.S.D.

Dear Mr. Kennedy

Dear Mr. Kennedy,

I personally would like to extend to you my hardiest welcome on your arrival in Amherst. Your arrival to this quaint traditional New England town signifies your knowledge of its importance in producing the future leaders of the United States and Massachusetts. I am sure that the citizens of Amherst and Amherst College feel exactly as I do. Yes, Amherst College has produced some very fine national leaders. The University of Massachusetts has contributed . . . the University of Massachusetts???? . . . . Oh, that's located just north of Amherst College. The University of Massachusetts is an excellent Massachusetts institution, founded in 1863. Since then it has grown to an enormous size with a total enrollment today of nearly 10,000 students. The school is solely responsible for educating many of the ordinary citizens of Massachusetts, the future voters of OUR state. It's surprising that you have never been invited to visit its beautiful campus. Oh, but you say that you have been invited. But you never came? I do realize how busy a man of your importance can be. I, a proud student of the University of Massachusetts, am very sorry that you have never found the time or opportunity as President to visit us. I again welcome you and hope that your visit to Amherst and Amherst College is an enjoyable one.

Sincerely,
Ted Weinberg

P.S.—I would also like to extend to you, as number one citizen of Massachusetts, congratulations on your state university's 100th birthday.

STUDENT RESPONSE

PROLOGUE: Once upon a time, there were two women's dormitories that had access to a small, but useful, strip of land. This strip of land served as a sort of "parking lot" on weekends about twelve o'clock midnight, and was also used by parents and students to load and unload cars around the beginning and end of each semester.

Then, one day, these two poor dormitories lost their little strip of land because, as everybody knows, the University has plenty of parking lots. This is the story of that day.

On the morning of October 23, 1963, ten men and one dump truck arrived at the little strip of land and proceeded to erect a curbing (fondly known as The Lump) alongside the adjoining road. The movement was well-organized.

Three men manned the machine which actually built The Lump. One man pushed it and one man pulled it. The other leaned on it to keep it from moving too much. Three men followed them, and occasionally each one dumped a shoveful of tar into the Lump-Building Machine. Two men with brooms followed them, and swept the tar that missed the machine into little piles. Sometimes they would get tired, and to preserve their energy, they would lean on their brooms and rest. One more man followed them and shoveled up the little piles, and dropped them on the other side of the Lump so that they wouldn't look messy and be noticeable. All these men took turns sitting on a roller telling passing people not to step on The Lump. No one was allowed to touch The Lump!—except a little man in a green suit who went around with his little trowel, kicking The Lump and then fondly smoothing out its dents. But the hardest job of all went to the truck driver. He had to both drive the truck a few inches every five minutes and lean out the window the rest of the time to see how the other men were progressing.

EPILOGUE: And now, after the men have left, we have a Landmark, a sandy little rut-filled strip surrounded by one six-inch tar Lump—a fitting tribute to the ridiculously intelligent Master Plan of the University.

THE END Grig '66

Tar and Ugly

To the Editor:

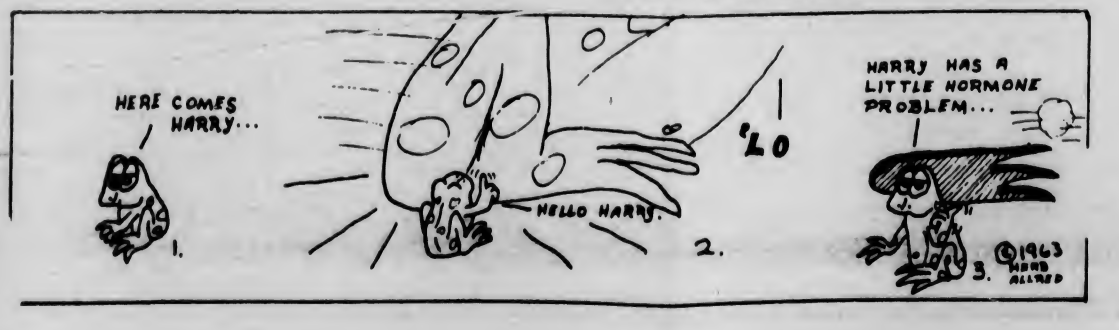
I would like to inform you of the latest constructional madness on campus. "They" do build stupid things around here. (Beside digging lovely holes, traps to alleviate the overcrowding?) Right now they're engaged in building a long horrid black lump from Johnson all the way down past Leach. It's about 6" high—made of tar—and ugly and all it does is prevent cars from parking alongside the dorm which is charming since we have a parking problem anyway and this just makes it decidedly worse. Plus the fact that parents at the beginning or end of the year will have to strap trunks to their backs and trudge in from town should there not be space near the dorm.

It, of course, takes 10 men to put this inanimate snake where it's "supposed" to go. One man builds the thing, one man drives the truck one inch every five minutes, two men put tar into a barrow, two men sweep up sloppy tar and furtively push it over the lump from street-side to dorm-side (no one look now) one man sits on the roller, one man follows behind kicking the lump and if it moves he smashes it with a trowel and two men yell at every one that looks like they might have homocidal tendencies and tells them to "Keep the hell off that," They don't know what to call it either.

I'm convinced (although I haven't checked) that there is only one man with a hammer and a saw building the new dorms moaning, "I'm never going to get this finished by next year even if my brother helps me on his day off!"

Yours sincerely (sigh),
Beverly Wisegold '66
Leach House

Throckmortimer



Dear Editor,

If ever you find yourself sitting bored in the Hatch on a Wednesday night I suggest for amusement that you stop up to the Senate Chambers to watch the meeting.

I have been doing this for the last few semesters and have come to find this true: The Student Senate is a circus full of self-important people who spend most of their time trying to think of 'mature' and 'important' things to argue about. I give as evidence these two instances that have recently occurred: 1) a hotly contested bill as to whether the prayer opening each meeting should be verbal or silent, and 2) an intricate bill introduced at the end of last year that would establish a complicated pattern of floor voting on committee measures, a pattern so complicated, in fact, that, and this was the main argument in its favor, it couldn't possibly make any difference in the long run. Actually, that's a good reason to pass a law, if it won't produce any change, then it can't make anyone unhappy.

The latest project of the self-important set is a Conflict of Interest bill. After all, all the big guys have them, why can't we? Last week the UMass version of a Conflict of Interest bill was introduced, and since the authors saw, after a little debate, that their baby didn't have a chance of passing they moved to table it for 'further study and revision.' What they will do, of course, is to include mutually contradictory clauses written in legal doubletalk that will again make this bill acceptable because in the end it won't make any difference whether its passed or not. I can jut picture it now, as some eminent Student Senator stands amidst the Senate chambers and utters, (in translation) "Gee Wizzis, Fellas, we been here all night talking about this bill, and since it really doesn't make any difference anyway, why don't we play Senate and pass the foolish thing."

I suggest that the Student Senate be turned over to the School of Business and turned into a course to be called Madison Avenue 25, meeting once a week on Wednesday night, and part of our copious student funds be used to hire an administartor whose sole job it would be to apportion the rest of the funds. In this way I think both students and senators would gain a great deal.

Respectfully submitted,
J.S.

Musicale

Saturday, Oct. 26—Saint-Saens: Danse Macabre (Fiedler/Boston Pops.)

Sunday, Oct. 27 — Liszt: Hungarian Rhapsody No. 11 in A Minor (Kapell); Beethoven: Sym. No. 6 in F, Op. 68 "Pastoral" (Toscanini/BBC Sym.); Mozart: Serenade No. 10 for 13 Wind Instruments in B-Flat K. 361 (Koussevitzky / BSO); Beethoven: Sym. No. 5 in C Minor, Op. 67 (Koussevitzky/BSO)

Monday, Oct. 28—Wagner: Die Walkure, Act. III (Munch/BSO); Strauss: Selected Waltzes (Ormandy); Mozart: Eine Kleine Nachtmusik (Weingartner / London Sym. Orch); Haydn: "Toy" Symphony (Weingartner / British Sym. Orch.); Wagner: Siegfried's Rhine Journey (Munch/BSO); Mozart: Sym. No. 41 in C "Jupiter" (Reiner / Chicago Sym.)

Tuesday, Oct. 29—Moussorgsky: Pictures at an Exhibition (Toscanini/NBC Sym.); Mozart: Concerto for Clarinet and Orch. in A, K. 622 (Goodman/Munch/BSO); Handel: Water Musick (Stokowski / RCA Sym.); Bruch: Concerto No. 1 in G-Minor, Op. 26 (Heifetz/Sargent/London Sym.)

Wednesday, Oct. 30—Moussorgsky: Night on Baid Mountain (Ormandy); Stravinsky: Firebird Suite (Rowicki / Hague Phil.); Beethoven: Sonata No. 14 in C-Sharp Minor, Op. 27, No. 2 "Moonlight" (Rubinstein); Dukas: Sorcerer's Apprentice (Mitropoulous/NYP); Prokofiev: March from "The Love for Three Oranges", Op. 33 (Kostalanetz/NYP); Dvorak: Sym. No. 5 in E Minor, Op. 95 "From the New World" Ormandy)

Thursday, Oct. 31—Bach: Brandenburg Concerto No. 2 (Prohaska/Vienna State Opera Orch.); Scarlatti: Sonata in F for Chamber Soloists (Societas Musica Orch.); Haydn: Concerto for Trumpet and Orch in E-Flat (Voisin/Unicorn Concert Orch.); Haydn: Violin Concerto No. 1 in C (Ayo/I Musici); Mozart: Symphony No. 29 in A, K. 201 (Netherlands Chamber Orch.)

(Continued on column 5)

Kennedy Comes To Amherst

President John F. Kennedy will arrive at Amherst College shortly before 10:30 a.m. Saturday to address a special convocation, receive an honorary degree and take part in the ground breaking for Amherst's Robert Frost Library.

The President will fly from Washington to Westover Air Force Base; from there he will come to Amherst either by helicopter or by motorcade, depending on weather conditions. Definite travel plans will not be known until Saturday morning.

An estimated 4,000 persons are expected to witness the convocation in the Amherst Indoor Athletic Field or on closed-circuit television in two adjacent buildings. The ceremony will also be televised to homes in Western Massachusetts beginning at 10:30 a.m., by WWLP, Channel 22, Springfield. Radio coverage will be provided by WAMF-FM, the Amherst College student station (89.5); by WFCR-FM, the four college radio station (88.5) and by a number of commercial AM radio stations; among them are WHMP, Northampton, WTTT, Amherst, and WHAI, Greenfield. WGBH-TV, Channel 2, Boston, will rebroadcast the complete ceremony on television at a later time.

Shortly after the convocation President Kennedy will take part in the ground breaking, scheduled for about 12 noon, of Amherst's $3.5 million Robert Frost Library. That ceremony will take place on the central campus quadrangle. About 10,000 persons are expected.

Among those taking part in the convocation, in addition to President Kennedy, are Archibald MacLeish, poet and Boylston Professor Emeritus at Harvard who will make an address and receive the degree doctor of laws; John J. McCloy, chairman of the Amherst Board of Trustees, and President Calvin H. Plimpton of Amherst.

Taking part in the ground breaking will be President Kennedy; Mr. McCloy, President Plimpton, C. Scott Porter, dean of the College; Judge Leonard P. Moore of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals who is president of the Amherst Society of the Alumni; Newton F. McKeon, College librarian, Harry W. Knight, chairman of the Amherst Capital Program, the College's $17 million development campaign; and Harry W. Knight, Jr.; president of the Student Council (he is Mr. Knight's son; both live at 107 Long Neck Point Road, Darien, Conn.). Kendall B. DeBevoise, New York attorney and Amherst trustee, will preside at the ground breaking.

The new library is named for Mr. Frost not only because of Mr. Frost's long association with Amherst, but because, as President Plimpton said when the gift was announced a year ago, "We wanted the name to symbolize many of the activities of a liberal arts college. We wanted the name to have a close association with Amherst . . . Mr. Frost's poetry, as poetry, transcends all departments: science, literature, everything one can think of, can be expressed in his poetry."

Mr. Frost first came to Amherst in 1916 and taught here almost without interruption until 1938. In 1949 he became Simpson Lecturer in Literature, a post he held until his death early this year.

Fellowship Available From National Science Foundation

The National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council has been called upon again to advise the National Science Foundation in the selection of candidates for the Foundation's program of regular graduate and postdoctoral fellowships. Committees of outstanding scientists appointed by the Academy-Research Council will evaluate applications of all candidates. Final selection will be made by the Foundaton, with awards to be announced on March 15, 1964.

Fellowships will be awarded for study in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological, and engineering sciences; also in anthropology, psychology (excluding clinical psychology), geography, economics (excluding business administration), sociology (not including social work); and the history and philosophy of science. They are open to college seniors, graduate and postdoctoral students, and others with equivalent training and experience.

Applicants for the graduate awards will be required to take the Graduate Record Examination designed to test scientific aptitude and achievement. This examination, administered by the Educational Testing Service, will be given on January 18, 1964, at designated centers throughout the United States and certain foreign countries.

The annual stipends for graduate Fellows are as follows: $2400 for the first level; $2600 for the intermediate level; and $2800 for the terminal level. The annual stipend for postdoctoral Fellows is $5500. Limited allowances will also be provided to apply toward tuition, laboratory fees, and travel.

Further information and application materials may be obtained from the Fellowship Office, National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20418.

Musicale ...

(Continued from column 2)

Handel: Water Music Suite Ormandy); Saint-Saens: Introduction an Rondo Capriccioso, Op. 28 (Grumiaux/Fournet/Orchestra Des Concerts Lamoureaux)

Tom Thomsen wanted challenging work

He found it at Western Electric

T. R. Thomsen, B.S.M.E., University of Nebraska, '58, came to Western Electric for several reasons. Important to him was the fact that our young engineers play vital roles right from the start, working on exciting engineering projects in communications including: electronic switching, thin film circuitry, microwave systems and optical masers.

Western Electric's wide variety of challenging assignments appealed to Tom, as did the idea of advanced study through full-time graduate engineering training, numerous management courses and a company-paid Tuition Refund Plan.

Tom knows, too, that we'll need thousands of experienced engineers for supervisory positions within the next few years. And he's getting the solid experience necessary to qualify. Right now, Tom is developing new and improved inspection and process control techniques to reduce manufacturing costs of telephone switching equipment. Tom is sure that Western Electric is the right place for him. What about you?

If you set the highest standards for yourself, enjoy a challenge, and have the qualifications we're looking for—we want to talk to you! Opportunities for fast-moving careers exist now for electrical, mechanical and industrial engineers, and also for physical science, liberal arts and business majors. For more detailed information, get your copy of the Western Electric Career Opportunities booklet from your Placement Officer. Or write: Western Electric Company, Room 6405, 222 Broadway, New York 38, N. Y. And be sure to arrange for a personal interview when the Bell System recruiting team visits your campus.

Western Electric MANUFACTURING AND SUPPLY UNIT OF THE BELL SYSTEM

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

Principal manufacturing locations in 13 cities • Operating centers in many of these same cities plus 36 others throughout the U. S. Engineering Research Center, Princeton, N. J. • Teletype Corp., Skokie, Ill., Little Rock, Ark. • Gen. Hq., 195 Broadway, New York

First Area Showing!

DEERFIELD Drive-In

ROUTES 5 & 10

S. Deerfield, Mass.

—FRI., SAT., SUN.—

From 20th Century Fox

"THE LONGEST DAY"

"CLEOPATRA"

And Now

BURT LANCASTER IN THE LEOPARD

1st PRIZE WINNER

"BEST FILM" 1963 CANNES INTERNATIONAL FILM FESTIVAL

ALSO STARRING

ALAIN DELON CLAUDIA CARDINALE

—Also—

"POLICE NURSE"

Show begins at 7:30

PRIVATE TUTORING

For that

"IMPOSSIBLE" Course

Call Dick Boyden or Dave Burnett

ALpine 6-6416

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.

Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press

Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

by SANDI MAY '64

Sorority News

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON

We have started off this year with four new advisors who are very enthusiastic and helpful to us in connection with buying our house. They have given us the much needed help in planning what to buy for it.

Last week a few of the sisters who plan to live in the house next semester and advisors were invited to a tea at Kappa Kappa Gamma. They were taken on a tour of the house and started to plan what would be needed. The tea was very helpful to us and we would like to thank the Kappas for their thoughtfulness.

Two new sisters have been initiated into our sisterhood. They are Connie Karl and Al Stawicki. Congratulations girls.

We would like to thank Alpha Sig for letting us build our float in their parking lot.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

A tea in her honor Tuesday evening extended a warm welcome to our new housemother at Kappa Alpha Theta. Mrs. Taimi Toko, a resident of Lunenburg who has already become an integral part of the life of Theta.

Active in her town's activities, Mrs. Toko was a group leader in 4H Club and member of the Grange and Women's Club of Lunenburg.

Mrs. Toko has had some previous acquaintance with the University through her daughter Lois who graduated from UMass in 1957.

Another addition to the Theta household is "Musty," a curly, jet black working cocker spaniel, the pet of Mrs. Toko and now guardian of the girls living in the house.

To Mrs. Toko a cordial welcome and fondest wishes for a happy year with us.

Homecoming Weekend, however, was not without its losses. Foremost in these was one six by four foot black and gold flag with Greek letters on it. It was lost in the vicinity of the flagpole to which it was tightly fastened. We suspect that a big wind took it. All attempts to find this flag would be greatly appreciated.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

We would first, like to congratulate Nancy Stearns Oliver on her recent initiation as our new sister.

Homecoming Weekend was a huge success for the sisters of Kappa. We started off the weekend by receiving second prize for our float, "They have no Fusia!", and for this we are very grateful to our Activities Chairman, Diane Tarrant. Thanks so much, Diane—we couldn't have done it without your help. Saturday we held an Alumni Tea, and we were pleasantly surprised to see so many sisters return. They met our new housemother, Mrs. Alderman, and saw the interior plans as well as the construction of our new home. Because this has been a dream of every Kappa for the last twenty years, they were as excited as we all are over the progress in the construction.

Finally, thus far this semester, we have held exchange suppers with TEP, AEPi, and BKP. To all the brothers in each house Kappa extends a sincere thankyou for an enjoyable evening. We also held a tea for Iota Gamma Upsilon in order that they might have a tour of their future surroundings.

PI BETA PHI

Homecoming weekend at 388 N. Pleasant was busy and exciting. It was so good to have the alums return and learn about their past activities and future plans. A reception was held for all the Pi Phi's right after the game. Everyone was excited about receiving third place in the float parade. We all want to thank Diana Mick for organizing our effort so effectively.

The Pi Phi's have been very busy since school started. It was our pleasure to participate in exchange suppers with the brothers of Lambda Chi and SAE, and we wish to thank them both for a wonderful time. Bev Brent, Marie Makinen, and Marion Smith were delegates to the SWAP conference at Mt. Snow, and they returned with many new and useful ideas.

A few weeks ago, initiation was held with four new sisters being welcomed. They are: Maureen Richardson, '64, Ann Jordan, Mary Ann Kuczynski and Bea Shafer, all class of '66. Congratulations from us all!

SIGMA KAPPA

The sisters still haven't calmed down after winning in the sorority float division with "Butt those Rams."

Wendy Hall and Joan Labuzoski were re-elected to their respective positions of secretary and vice-president of the Student Senate.

We would like to thank Lambda Chi Alpha, Kappa Sigma, and Beta Kappa Phi for the exchange suppers.

Sister of the month was Sharon Clapper.

WAA News

SWIM MEET

The results of the Women's Inter-dorm swim meet which took place October 22 are as follows:

1st place: Leach 34 points
2nd place: Van Meter So. 22.5 points
3rd place: Hamlin 22 points

Fifty people participated in the meet with ten different dorms represented. Of these ten dorms, Van Meter So. and Leach House had the largest number participating.

FIELD HOCKEY

The WAA Field Hockey Team played its third game of the season Tuesday, and came home with a win over Springfield College, 3-1. Mary O'Toole was responsible for all three UMass goals, but the win in itself was a product of a fine team effort.

UMass, coached by Miss Upton of W.P.E. now stands at 2 wins and 1 loss for the year, having previously beaten UConn and losing to Colby Jr. College.

Pinnings

PINNINGS

Carolyn Zack, Lewis House, to Daniel Houriban, George Washington University.

Joyce Kuhiac, Van Meter No., to William Fletcher, Chi Psi, Bowdoin College.

Angela Kearmann, Thatcher, to Dennis Shea, DKE, Colgate University.

Pam Chace,SDT, to Zene Glavas, BKP.

Victoria L. Bosworth, Van Meter So., to Allen M. Cohen, Rutgers Graduate School.

Joanne Pariseau, KAT, to Sean O'Leary, PSK.

Betty Mercer KKG,to Buddy Small, U.S. Naval Academy.

Glenda Stockwell, KKG, to Arthur Wolpert, AEPi.

ENGAGEMENTS

Ellie Stang, KKG, to Kurt Bailey, BKP, '62.

Dormitory News

GREENOUGH

On Tuesday evening, October 15, Greenough held the second of its Distinguished Visitors Programs in the current series. The speaker was Father Charles Thoman, S.J. who is doing graduate work here at the University. Subjects ranging from evolution to birth control were presented in a lively three-hour discussion. The men of Greenough Dormitory wish to thank Father Thoman for a most rewarding and enjoyable evening.

LEACH HOUSE

We would like to congratulate those girls who were elected to dorm offices for the 1963-64 year. They are Francis Kopcinski, Treasurer; Berma Vaughn, Social Chairman; Dolores Mello, WAA Representative; Karen Jokisaari, Social Coordinator; and Maureen Flaugeu, Senator. We would also like to congratulate Francis and Karen for their election to the Women's Interdorm Council.

The tea which we had for alumni after the Homecoming football game was well attended and it was good to see the alums.

Retailing School Adds New Curriculum

Senior Retailing majors will encounter a new experience this semester when they will be sent into the fashion and retail business to obtain practical experience in their field. This new curriculum is labeled "Retail Field Experience" and is included in a course entitled Textile Clothing and Related Arts. These women will receive credit for their field experience.

At present, the girls are preparing for their working term by attending lectures and conferences and doing case studies in retail-related areas which are planned to cover problems which they will encounter in their program. The following senior women will participate in the training programs of various stores: Wm. Filene Co. of Boston—Judith Barry, Joyce Blum, and Harriet Feingold; G. Fox Co. of Hartford — Constance Dwyer, Johanna Smith and Joan Strandburg; Forbes and Wallace Co. of Springfield — Sylvia Oakes; Jordan Marsh Co. of Boston — Margaret Chalmers, Linda Comras, Ronnie Sue Fireman; R. H. Stearns Co. of Boston — Anne Ledwith and Lee Porter; Steiger Co. of Springfield — Gunta Austrins.

The program will consist of retail sales training and experience from Nov. 4 until Thanksgiving. From Thanksgiving until Christmas, the girls will receive supervisory training and an opportunity for junior training experience during the Christmas rush in these stores. This program has been carefully planned by the personnel directors of the various stores and will be supervised by Mrs. Mary Troxell as retail co-ordinator from the university. It is felt that Retailing majors will benefit from actual work experience in the senior year and can evaluate their own experience before graduation. This experience also qualifies them for junior training executive squads directly after graduation.

Match-making For 3000 Males

The City of Chicago has gone into the match-making business with an order for 3000 girls. That's how many dates they need for the combined student bodies of the U.S. Military Academy and the U.S. Air Force Academy who are coming here for the city sponsored football game between the two schools.

Following the game on Nov. 2 there will be a dinner-dance and Colonel Jack Reilly, Mayor Richard J. Daley's director of special events is supposed to come up with attractive female companions for the cadets—all 3000 of them. Actually there will be more than 5000 cadets coming in for the game, but 2000 of them are expected to provide their own entertainment. The immediate question, of course, is where are they going to get 3000 pretty girls for the 3000 exuberant cadets?

Well, Colonel Reilly formed a committee of women who will choose them. The committee is to send letters to each college and university in the area asking that "typical American" girls be recommended and they will be assigned by age and height to young men.

"It is assumed," Colonel Reilly explains, "that they will measure up to the specifications of the cadets."

Only once before has the city performed such a job for the service academy students. That was in 1926, when Army played Navy to a 21-21 tie. The dinner-dance was a hilarious success.

Forestry Club Invites All To Competition

On Saturday, Oct. 26, grassers and ducks in the vicinity of the campus pond might be momentarily startled as the atmosphere of their pastoral habitat is invaded by the foreign sights and sounds of hissing cross-cut saws, rolling logs, flying wood chips, and grunting students running around the pond with 50-lb. packs on their backs. They'll be witnessing the Forestry Club's Second Annual Logger's Jamboree in which 4-man teams from UMass, UNH, and UConn will compete in the following ten events for speed and accuracy: log rolling, pulpwood throwing for accuracy, scoot loading, fire building, tree felling, cross-cut sawing, buck-sawing, speed chopping, splitting, and distance pulpwood throwing. The day will be climaxed by a sure-to-be-hilarious back pack race around the campus pond in which the contestants will traverse the pond in a rather unconventional manner.

The Forestry Club invites all to come to the pond on Saturday, anytime between 10 and 5, to witness part or all of the competition involving skills in which, contrary to popular belief, most forestry students get very little practice.

MUTUAL
FOR STUDENT NEEDS

Zenith Radio
Alarm Clocks
Curtain Rods
Window Shades
Window Screens
Towel Bars
Sports Goods
Tools
Gifts
Extension Cords
Bulbs
Clothes Racks

MUTUAL Plumbing & Heating Co.
63 S. Pleasant Amherst

MAJESTIC
WEST SPRINGFIELD
NOW—FIRST-RUN SHOWING
Raw Emotions in Love!!
Raw Emotions in Soccer!!
Richard Harris Rachel Roberts
'THIS SPORTING LIFE'
Next— "LILLIES OF THE FIELD"

Music Man On Stage Starting Next Weekend

Tickets are on sale—and are going fast—for the Operetta Guild's production of Meredith Willson's The Music Man Oct. 31 thru Nov. 2.

Shown here are Prof. Harold Hill (Jack Singer), sassy, brassy, lovable rogue, as he disrupts the silence of the River City Library, run by Marian the Librarian (Peggy Jones). Hill, professional swindler, tells the townsfolk that they must have a high school band or else their children will fall to sin and corruption. No more visiting the local pool hall and memorizing jokes out of Capt. Billy's "Whiz Bag" for them. The people are taken in, but not Marian—she sees right through the con-man's charm. Students, plan to get your tickets soon. Friday and Saturday evenings are nearly all sold out. Good seats still available for Thursday evening and the Sat. matinee.

Broadcast Of Recent Operas

The two most recent operas produced by Amherst Community Opera will be broadcast by WFCR (88.5 FM) these next two Saturdays at one P.M.

On October 26 may be heard "Cosi fan Tutte" by Mozart, directed by Nathan Gottschalk, with the following cast; Fiordiligi, Dorothy Feldman of Amherst; Dorabella, Margaret Epstein of Springfield; Despina, Roberta Cowell of Cummington; Don Alfonso, Leon Barron of Amherst; Ferrando, Henry Falcetti of Holyoke; Guglielmo, Robert Goss, formerly of Amherst.

"Il Trovatore" may be heard on Saturday, November 2 at 1 P.M. Edwin London is the musical director. Singing the principal roles are: Leonora, Dorothy Feldman of Amherst; Azucena, Calliope Shenas of Springfield; Manrico, Henry Falcetti of Holyoke; Count di Luna, Eugene Baker of Springfield; Ferrando, Richard R. Rescia of Northampton. Inez is sung by Margaret Loomis of Amherst and Ruiz by William La Fond of Springfield.

The first of these broadcasts will originate with WGBH in Boston and will be the only time it may be heard. The latter may be repeated at a later date

WMUA Schedule For The Coming Week

Beginning this week, WMUA will have a weekly column in the COLLEGIAN to give its listeners an opportunity to find out in advance what will be featured on WMUA during the following week.

OCTOBER 26 - NOVEMBER 1

Saturday, October 26

CLASSICS: 7-10 — Requests for classical music. Feature work —Saint-Saens: Danse Macabre (Fiedler/Boston Pops)

Sunday, October 27

SHOWCASE: 4-6:30 — I Can Get It For You Wholesale, Flower Drum Song, and requests for Broadway and show tunes.

HISTORY LECTURE: 7-7:30— ""Medeival Europe"

INTERACTION: 7:30-8 — The show where you, the listener, can air your gripes to one of the administration and of the student leaders. This week the guests will be Mr. Wells, Director of Housing and Senator David Matheison, chairman of the AdHoc committee on Housing.

ART OF JAZZ: The Art of Jazz, Sunday night feature, this week offers its first exclusive interview of the semester. This interview is with the prominent tenor sax artist Zoot Sims. He is perhaps best known as one of the "Four Brothers" sax team that played with Woody Herman from 1947 to 1949. He has toured Europe with such artists as Benny Goodman, Stan Kenton, Gerry Mulligan, and the Birdland All Stars.

Forthcoming interviews will be with Coleman Hawkins, Art Farmer, and Phil Woods.

Monday, October 28

MUSIC OF THE WORLD: 7-8 —In French.

MUSICALE: 8-10.

Tuesday, October 29

MASTERPIECES OF WESTERN LITERATURE: 7-7:30 — English 25 lecture on Dante.

HUMOROUS READINGS BY EVE MARCUS: 7:30-8.

MUSICALE: 8-10.

Wednesday, October 30

MASTERPIECES OF WESTERN LITERATURE: 7-7:30 — English lecture on Faust.

WASHINGTON REPORTS: 7:30 -7:45.

MEET THE PROFESSOR: 7:45-8 — Miss Doris Abramson of the Speech Department.

MUSICALE

Thursday, October 31

IMPULSE: 7-8 — On the Student Senate. Guests will be Jon Fife, Senate President, Jeff Davidow, Collegian Editor-in-chief, and a guest to be announced.

MUSICALE: 8-10.

Hootenany Features UM Students

A Hootenany sponsored by the Norwottuck Tribe of Red Men's Charity Committee is coming to the Amherst High School Auditorium on October 26, at 8:00, featuring well known singers such as George Weir, Bob Weber, Ann Baxter, and other area folk singers.

The committee has been working very hard to bring to the public a good, entertaining 3-hour program.

Tickets will be available at the Gazette Office, from Anne Whalen, Amherst Paint Store, and The Jeffery Amherst Music Shop.

Formation Of Sailing Club Initiated As New Project

Although unknown to many of the students here, plans are being made for the formation of the first Sailing Club on this campus. The energetic organizer of this new project is Doug Pearsall, a senior who has been interested in sailing for many years, and who is well-experienced in this sport.

According to Doug, the present deterrents to the immediate initiation of this club are membership and leadership. Innumerable students and faculty members have shown enthusiastic and genuine interest in the Sailing Club, but as yet no concrete action has been taken by any of these individuals except Doug himself. As he emphasized, "The time is ripe for the organization of a Sailing Club because of the many experienced sailors on campus; many are interested but no one really cares enough to take the position of leadership."

The obvious choice would be Doug, who is already certified by the American Red Cross for sailing instruction, but unfortunately he will graduate in June.

For all those interested, specific plans have already been formulated for the sailing season next spring. The boats will all be moored at the Ox Bow in Northampton, and they will be of a style similar to the Mercury: fiber glass hull, Marconi rig, and aluminum spars. The main advantage of this type of vessel is that it is relatively maintenance-free. The Sailing Club will attempt to encompass both instructions for pleasure and competitive sailing. The crewmen will receive these instructions from those who are certified by the American Red Cross for Small Craft and Water Safety Instruction.

There is a definite need for a Sailing Club, for, as Doug says, "On the University level, the emphasized sports all involve group participation and consequently little is done to further individual sports that can still be enjoyed after graduation." Sailing is one of the few sports that never becomes a fad, because a person who sails is either avidly interested or drops out in the beginning stages.

All that is necessary for the materialization of these plans is senatorial approval, but first the number of those who wish to join and will give their support to the formation of the Sailing Club must be made known. Anyone who has any interest at all in sailing is invited to a meeting to be held Tuesday, October 29, at 11:00 a.m. in the Nantucket Room of the Student Union.

Professional Dancer To Direct Music Man

Wayne Lamb, choreograhper and director of Operetta Guild's production of "The Music Man," has come to the University with much theatrical experience in the field of performance as well as many credits to his name in the in the field of staging and choreography.

Mr. Lamb has appeared as featured dancer in the Broadway Shows Yours Is My Heart, Call Me Mister, and Make Mine Manhattan; has performed in concert as a member of the Elena Imaz International Dance Trio completing three transcontinental tours with the group. During his concert work, Mr. Lamb also was featured on television on the Martha Raye Show, Toast of the Town, Stop the Music, and The Colgate Comedy Hour, appearing with such stars as Sarah Churchill, Enzio Pinza, Lily Pons, Rise Stevens, and as dancing partner to Collette Marchand.

Mr. Lamb's first step in choreography was with his own dance theatre group. He then choreographed an NBC variety show,

WAYNE LAMB

So Young and Gay and went on, choreographing for the Shakespearwrights, an off-Broadway Shakespearean company. The group's production of Twelfth Nigth received such acclaim by the New York critics that it was revived the following year.

Wayne's choreographing experience brought him to the Barn Theatre in Augusta, Michigan, where he was chosen to choreograph a production of Guys and Dolls. Since then he has been called back for productions of Annie Get Your Gun, Where's Charley?, The Pajama Game, South Pacific, Damn Yankees, Gentlemen Prefer Blondes, Bells Are Ringing, Say Darling, L'il Abner, The Music Man, Gypsy, Carnival, Unsinkable Molly Brown, and Bye Bye Birdie. After working for four years as assistant to the producer of the Barn, he is now General Manager for the company.

In the past few years, Mr. Lamb has become interested in working with college groups, spending a large part of his winters choreographing and staging musicals for such schools as Purdue University, Williams College, and the University, in Massachusetts, and Eureka College in Illinois. The Operetta Guild, pleased with his work with Guys and Dolls last fall, has engaged him for this fall's production of "The Music Man."

Under his direction, the show promises to be a success.

TRANSLATION
Girls of '67

Sign up for bowling tournament in games area of S.U. So far only one girl has signed, Are you going to let her win?!!

Bothered by Sun Glare
at Football Games
ALLEVIATE THIS PROBLEM ....
Fine Selection of AMERICAN OPTICAL and BAUSCH & LOMB
Sunglases at
"DON" CALL Optician
AMHERST

U. of M. Charms
Trophies
Giftware
Keepsake Diamonds
Clocks
Watch Repair
Free Engraving & Soldering
on any purchase made at:
SHERMAN JEWELERS
FOR THE PERSONAL TOUCH!
164 Main St., Northampton, Mass.
JU 4-4029

Students Only
New Yorker Magazine
$3.75 — 8 Mos.
$5.00 — Year
(Reg. $8.00 per year)
Ski Magazine
6 Issues $1.50
2 Years $3.00
(Reg. $3.00 a year)
CHECK OR MONEY ORDER
PETER GUND
Box 418, Amherst, Mass.

Quint Discusses Jewish And Negro Relations

Howard Quint, chairman of the University of Massachusetts History department, blasted the American Jewish community, in a speech Tuesday evening at the Student Union.

Quint's lecture, the final one in a series of four presented by the UMass Hillel society, was entitled The Negro and the American Jewish Community.

The history professor acknowledged the fact that the official Jewish philanthropical and social agencies have given much support to the current "Negro Rights" movement, but he suggested that this was not enough.

Professor Quint, who lived for eleven years in South Carolina and is considered an expert on racial problems, criticized the average Jew whose ancestors probably suffered much in the battle against intolerance and bigotry and who now sits back and does not actively support the Negro in his current effort.

Quint went further. Not only does the average Jew not actively support the Negro, but he, like many other white Americans, does much to discourage the Negro from reaching his goal of social, politcal, and economic equality in American society. He pointed out that Jews as well as Gentiles will move out of a neighborhood when Negro families begin to move in. In this light Professor Quint cited the case of New York City where in the past few years over five hundred Jews have made a mass exodus from Manhattan and Brooklyn to the suburbs because of an influx of Negroes and Puerto Ricans.

It has been reported that Professor Quints speech has caused some controversy and repercussions in local Jewish communities, notably Northampton.

Lost and Found

FOUND: One wrist-watch Contact Herb Gray, 235 Baker.

FOUND: One red, paten leather pocket book in the vicinity of Kappa Sig. Contact Kenneth Palm, Kappa Sig.

LOST: A silver charm bracelet in Bartlett Friday, Oct. 18. If found contact Pat Taft, #315 Thatcher.

LOST: A dark rain coat was left in W34 Machmer Wed., Oct. 16. Please return to the lobby counter or to Halina, Van Meter So.

LOST: A pair of girls glasses with black frames in a brown leather case. Please return to the Collegian Office.

LOST: A pair of prescription sunglasses in a brown alligator case. If found please return to Frank Pelosi, 307 Butterfield.

SUG Board ...

(Continued from page 1)

of the Board members. The Board is here to serve you, the student, and can operate effectively only with your help and suggestions.

Dr. Madiera Quizzes Quiz Finalists

Dr. Albert Madeira, coach of the University's College Bowl team, delivers a question to three finalists, using a buzzer system patterned after the original GE system on the popular quiz show.

NOTICES

BOWLING TOURNAMENT

Men and women of the class of '67 sign up now in the games area of the S.U. for the Freshman Bowling Tournament.

UN WEEK DANCE

There will be a United Nations Dance in the S.U. Ballroom Saturday, Oct. 26, at 8 p.m. Music will be provided by Gus Perfito. Tickets 75¢ can be purchased at the GSS information booth of the S.U. All proceeds go to UNESCO.

MOVIE

Citizen Kane, a movie starring Orson Wells, will be shown Saturday, Oct. 26, at 7:30 p.m. in the Newman Center, charge of 50¢ for non-members.

CLUB DIRECTORY

B'NAI B'RITH HILLEL

Services will be held on Fri., Oct. 25, at 7 p.m. in the Worcester room of the S.U.

CANTERBURY ASSOCIATION

There will be a hayride on Sun., Oct. 27, leaving Grace Church at 5:30 p.m. In case of rain there will be a Halloween party. Anyone wishing to go must contact Diane Bartlett, Knowlton, Diana Carey, Hamlin, Leo Burke, 225 Hills No., or Pete Exeter in 371 Hills So. Anyone who owns a musical instrument, please bring it. A small donation will be collected.

EDWARDS FELLOWSHIP

Supper meeting on Sun., Sept. 27, at 6 p.m. at First Congregational Church. Prof. Schaefer Williams will speak. Rides leave Hills and Arnold at 5:45 p.m.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA

Meeting for all members on Tues., Oct. 29, at 6:30 p.m. in the S.U.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP

There will be a gathering for the church dedication on Sun., Oct. 27, at 3 p.m. Supper meeting at 6 p.m. in the new church. The talk will be "A Way to Find Life."

NAIADS

Regular optional practice on Tues., Oct. 29, at 7:30 p.m. for all Naiads interested. Also, a regular meeting will be held for all Jr. Naiads on Tues., Oct. 29, at 6:30 p.m. Also, Sr. Naiads will hold their regular meeting on Wed., Oct. 30, at 7 p.m.

PHYSICS CLUB

Meeting on Tues., Oct. 29, at 7 p.m. in Hasbrouck 100. All interested are welcome, including astronomers.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

Dinner on Sun., Oct. 27, at 12:30 p.m. at Wesley Methodist Church. At 1:30 p.m. there will be a visit to Northampton State Hospital for tour and vesper service.

Now five kinds of Chevrolets for all kinds of people!

JET-SMOOTH LUXURY CHEVROLET—For luxury-loving people. Rich new styling, finer appointments in all four series and 15 models. Engines up to 425 hp*, manual or Powerglide* transmissions.

NEW CHEVELLE—For pacesetting people. A totally new kind of car with small-car handling, big-car comfort! Styling that makes expensive cars jealous. Three series and 11 models, and a full choice of engine and transmission teams!

CHEVY II—For practical people. Chevy II with new V8 power* for fun-on-a-shoestring. Stretches the shoestring further with 4- and 6-cylinder engines. Chevy II's six models in two series all act like they're bigger, more expensive cars!

CORVAIR—For fun-loving people. More fun than ever from Corvair's new bigger engine! Same Corvair handling and riding ease in 9 models—including the 150-hp Turbocharged Spyders!

CORVETTE—For sports-minded people. Corvette now rides softer, smoother—but loses none of its gusto because its big V8 offers versions from 250 to 375 hp*!

Want to get together with other car-loving people? Go see your Chevrolet dealer . . . he likes all kinds! optional at extra cost*

CHEVROLET

See five entirely different lines of cars at your Chevrolet Showroom — CHEVROLET, CHEVELLE, CHEVY II, CORVAIR & CORVETTE

A. J. Hastings, INC.

NEWSDEALER & STATIONER

South Pleasant — Amherst

Halloween Decorations

—FOR SALE—

1958 PLYMOUTH

8,000 Miles, Rebuilt Engine, 300 h.p.

4 New Tires — $550

PAUL KRZYNOWEIS — AL 3-9167

REDMEN RAMBLING

UMass Homecoming Spoilers; Sets Records Against URI

by Bob Healy

The University of Massachusetts Redmen will be out to spoil an opponent's Homecoming for the fifth straight time, when Fusia's Footballers travel to Boston University's Homecoming this Saturday.

Last year the Redmen ruined Homecomings for Rhode Island down at Kingston, 42-8, Vermont up at Burlington, 34-6, and Villanova, 19-18. They emerged victorious in their own Homecoming over UConn 16-6.

This year's Redmen have two Homecoming victories to their credit. Two weeks ago they turned Connecticut's festive occasion into a sad one down at Storrs. Last week the Redmen scored 57 points in their own Homecoming as opposed to Rhode Island's none.

Three records were set or tied by Massachusetts players in the 57-0 win over Rhode Island last Saturday. Quarterback Jerry Whelchel set a new extra point record that had existed since 1924 when he made 7 of 8 attempts. The old record was 6 of 8 by Larry Jones '26 in 1924 against Worcester Polytech. Whelchel's 8 attempts tied Jones' record. Milt Morin, 6'4" sophomore end, caught two touchdown passes to tie a record held by Tony Chambers '54 in 1952, Paul Majeski, '63 in 1961, and Loren Flagg '63 in 1962.

Boston University has defeated Massachusetts seven straight times since the series was resumed in 1956. UMass beat B.U. 62-0 in 1892 in the only other meeting. B.U. has won the past four games by almost identical scores of 20-6 in 1959, 20-7 in 1961, 21-7 in 1961, and 20-6 in 1962.

Massachusetts junior quarterback Jerry Whelchel has completed 28 of 44 passes for three touchdowns and 394 yards. Whelchel ha completed 64% of his passes for a naverage of 14.1 yards per completion.

The 57-0 win over Rhode Island was the biggest margin of victory for a Massachusetts football team since the Redmen beat C.C.N.Y. 59-0 in 1946.

Jerry Whelchel's favorite targets this fall have been sophomore ends Bob Meers, '63 and Milt Morin '64. Meers has caught 11 passes for 167 yards and one touchdown, while Morin has 10 receptions for 160 yards and three tds.

If you can't make the trip to Boston, Saturday the game will be broadcast over WMUA 91.1 F.M. starting at 1:25 by Bob Healy and Barry Morse.

BITS and PIECES

UConn Faces Delaware Hens Tragic Prank At Syracuse

YANCON FOOTBALL

Durham, Oct. 24—The shoe is on the other foot this year for the University of New Hampshire and Northeastern football teams which meet Saturday in Durham.

Exactly one year ago, UNH came into the Northeastern game undefeated while the Huskies had lost two games when their regular quarterback was injured.

This year Northeastern comes into the UNH game undefeated while the Wildcats have lost two games with their regular quarterback, Lloyd Wells, sidelined by injuries.

GAME IN THE STANDS

(ACP) — Gary Billion, track star at Syracuse University, Syracuse, N.Y., was jumping up and down, yelling, getting other people to yell at the football game. Someone decided to play the "game" of "passing up"—in which a limp body is raised and moved from hand to hand through the crowd.

THE DAILY ORANGE, campus newspaper, says Gary was dropped. In the confusion, his fellow Kappa Phi Delta fraternity brothers couldn't remember who actually had hold of Gary when he was dropped.

Gary, a 20-year-old junior in the College of Forestry, was paralyzed from the neck down and will be in a hospital for a long time. Thirty-five members of his fraternity held a meeting and decided to set up a work fund at which they will do odd jobs to make money to help pay his hospital bills.

"It was the least we could do," said Eugene LaMothe, president of the fraternity.

DELAWARE

STORRS, Conn. — What may prove to be the nation's finest small college football team invades Memorial Stadium here Saturday afternoon to play the winless University of Connecticut Huskies in a Band Day feature.

Coach Dave Nelson's defending Lambert Cup champions show off their high-scoring power and spectacular defensive might here for the first time since 1957. UConn Coach Bob Ingalls, Nelson's team mate at Michigan in pre-war days, hopes the Huskies can repeat their 1957 performance, a stunning 13-9 Husky upset.

Delaware is riding high on the crest of a two-season eight game winning streak, copped by four games this year which saw the Hens average a cool 46 points per game while limiting the foe to a meager 5.5. The Delaware average was compiled, as follows: Lehigh (30-0), Gettysburg (64-18), Lafayette (61-0) and Ohio University, (29-12).

Connecticut has lost all four games played to date: Yale (0-3), Temple (7-9), Massachusetts (3-21) and Maine (12-35).

X-Country Victory Brouillet Sets Mark

BOB BROUILLET beat out Bob Larson as these two were the sixth and seventh men for UMass. Ron Oakland, John Urban, and Paul Barents all ran well.

When Bob "Digger" Brouillet beat Jim Keefe last weekend there was some speculation that the results of the race might have been different if Keefe had been in shape. Tuesday Digger showed that his victory Saturday had been no fluke. Running one of his most well planned races ever, the South Philipston flash led the Varsity Cross Country team to a 17-44 victory over Rhode Island, at UMass.

Contrary to his past practice of starting with a killing pace Bob sped through the mile and 2 mile points with the "relatively" slow times of 5:15 and 10:20 respectively. He then proceeded to steadily increase his pace until he crossed the finish line with a time of 23:45.8, eliminating his old record of 23:58. This was Bob's last appearance on this course, as the Redmen have no more home meets this season, and he made it a fitting one. When "Digger" was a freshman, he set the UMass. course record also. He has come a long way since then. The freshmen record was set by a kid who ran as fast as he could for as long as he could. Those who saw Bob run Tuesday saw a man who has learned the meaning of pace and all the other ingredients that make a great runner, set a record.

Behind Bob the "fighting four" continued in their battle to beat each other as well as the clock. These four runners have finished in the same order twice, and Tuesday was no exception. Sophomore Bob Bolvar was the second man for the Redmen as he ran a really strong race. His time of 24:58 was 52 seconds faster than his last time on the UMass course. Not to be completely outdone, Junior Tom Parke continued to show steady improvement as his time was 20 seconds faster than previously. Senior Gene Colburn and Junior Bob Ramsey followed Panke, Al McPhail just

Fraternity Football

IFC Football Results TKE, QTV, TC Win

By Dave Garber

The I.F.C. league ended its sixth week of competition on Wednesday night with no major surprises.

In the first game of the night S.P.E. squeezed by A.S.P. 12-6. All the scoring was done by 2 players. Geanouks scored twice for S.P.E. and Rice scored A.S.P.'s only touchdown. Final score S.P.E. 12—A.S.P. 6.

In the other 7:00 o'clock game T.K.E. romped to its fourth shut-out of the season by beating P.S.D. 33-0. Paul Caisse scored twice while Herb Serpa, Dick Brown and Carl Abbey scored one touchdown each. Bunky Karampatsos directed the high scoring team on the offensive while George Poules and Carl Abbey led the stout defensive team. Final score T.K.E. 33—P.S.D. 0.

Q.T.V. in a carefully played contest outscored B.K.P. 13-6. Skip Bowen and Don Connoter did the scoring for Q.T.V. while Frank Corbet scored B.K.O.'s only touchdown. Final score Q.T.V. 13—B.K.P. 6.

In the final game of the night T.C. dropped A.T.G. 34-0. Dan Moryhan handled most of the scoring for T.C. as he has most of the season. Also scoring for T.C. was Vaughn Woist and North State. Final score T.C. 34—A.T.G. 0.

FROSH BASKETBALL

All freshmen basketball candidates will report for the mile run on Monday, October 28 starting at 4:30 p.m. on the Alumni Field varsity track. Practice sessions will start October 29. All boys interested who have not contacted Coach Jack Leaman in Curry Hicks Building should see him as soon as possible to make arrangements for their physical examination prior to running on the 28th.

"On Campus Photo" —Ron Goldberg

Beat Boston University

Bob and Nancy suggest that you join them at the game, with their favorite companion, the Pendleton "ROBE IN A BAG". 100% wool in your college color with the Redman Seal. Full size to keep two persons cozy.

ATTENTION!
Watch our Collegian advertisements for the opening of our New SKI SHOP
Featuring . . .
"HEAD"—The Sign of the Serious'.

House of Walsh
AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS
For the Very Finest in Men's and Ladies' Furnishings

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn
Breakfast — 50¢
Lunch — 50¢ up
THE OPEN HEARTH STEAKHOUSE
BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Redmen Plan To Ruin BU Homecoming; Fusia Wants To End Terrier Rule

by KEVIN COYLE

In September the UMass team went to Boston and played a hard-nosed game, which didn't accomplish much, against Harvard. Judging from some of the comments in the Boston papers, they were not impressed by the Univ. of Mass. football team; the Redmen are out to change this impression. Jerry Whelchel hopes to make up for his relatively poor showing against the team from Cambridge, and the whole team is going to put out everything it has for a win. A victory against B.U. would be especially sweet because they hold a 7-1 advantage in the series. UMass beat them 62-0 in 1892 but since the series was resumed in 1956, B.U. has had a perfect victory record. The last four games have all been decided by either thirteen or fourteen points.

This year's version of the Redmen will be the strongest one they have ever seen. The interior line has such standouts as Paul Graham and Bob Tedoldi, the only two seniors on the starting team. Jerry Whelchel is a fine quarterback and Mike Ross and Ken Palm are strong runners. The receiving is generally done by the two sophomores Milt Morin and Bob Meers. Milt Morin gained a spot on the E.C.-A.C. team last week for his two touchdown receptions against Rhode Island. That made the fifth straight week the Redmen have put a lineman on the ECAC squad.

The B.U. Terriers have had a rough time of it thus far as their 1-3-1 record shows. Their competition however has been tough, including such teams as West Virginia, Army, Colgate, and Holy Cross. B.U. coach Steve Sinko has a formidable backfield in quarterback Phil Caito, 6'1", 175; left halfback Joe Pietro, 6'2", 190; right half back George Byrd, 6', 205; fullback Bob Horton, 6'2", 220. The Terrier front wall has size and strength in outstanding guards Bill Budness, 6'2", 210, and Bill Lesineski, 6' 205. The fullback, Bob Horton, won a spot on the All Coast team last week.

MILT MORIN, a leading offensive and defensive player for the Redmen.

MIKE ROSS, one of the leading scorers against URI, who wishes to repeat his performance against B.U.

BOB MEERS, a favorite target of Jerry Wheichel and a standout all-around player.

Players like Milt Morin, Phil DeRose, and Mike Ross will be trying to match last week when each scored two touchdowns. Mike Ross was the most impressive because he only carried the ball twice to get his two scores. Milt Morin's pair of touchdowns were gotten through the air. Phil DeRose got in on both ways by running one over the goal line and catching the other once he was there.

Coach Vic Fusia was very calm, cool and collected when asked if there was any special significance to the B.U. game. He said he simply takes them as they come and that no game was easy and no game was too tough. He then made a rare display of emotion by pointing out that it would be nice to end our seven game losing streak to B.U.

A look at the statistics shows Freddy Lewis leading the rushers with 178 yards in thirty-six tries for a 4.9 average. A few feet in back is Mike Ross with 176 yards in only twenty-six storms for a dazzling 6.8 yard per carry average. Bob Meers leads the receivers with eleven reception for 167 yards and one touchdown. Milton Morin is close behind with ten receptions for 160 yards and a most respectful three markers. Jerry Whelchel has completed 64% of his passes for 394 yards and three touchdowns.

Physically, the Redmen are a little worried. Phil Vandersea will be unable to play. More important than this is the fact that the leading ground gainer, Freddy Lewis, is a question mark. He didn't play against Rhode Island, but his loss against B.U. could be important.

Booters Play Today

by SCOTT FREEDLAND

Today the Redmen booters face Tufts College in what promises to be a good, even game between two teams with almost identical records. Tufts is 1-5-0 while the Redmen are 1-5-1. As a home game, at 2:30 in the afternoon, it is an excellent opportunity for those who have never seen or for those who enjoy a good soccer game to see one.

Coach Briggs feels the club has lost so many of its best ballplayers that he marvels at what the team has done so far this season on sheer spirit and guts, which is almost as important to a team as ability. The injury list is still long and impressive; Kevin Lyons who tallied for one Saturday against URI is hurt badly and may be out for some time. Dick Pallitino who is out with a fractured shoulder might be back next week as is the case of Ron Merrill. Captain Dick Repeta should see limited action in tomorrow's contest but further action could only increase his injury.

The Tufts booters have an impressive list of defeats having fallen to Harvard, Clark, M.I.T., and two others. Coach Briggs feels that the Little Redmen booters approximate the Tufts line as closely as any team they have faced this year and has had the varsity scrimmaging them this week.

A win against Tufts today could foretell victories against Clark and Amherst in the two remaining games of the season.

PARENTS' DAY

Parents of all UMass athletic team members have been sent a circular by Louis Varrichione, President of the UMass Sports Dads, announcing that November 2nd, the date of the UMass-Vermont football game, has been designated as "Sports Dad's Day."

The parents have been invited to make reservations for the Sports Dad's luncheon that will be served in the Curry Hicks Cage at 12:00 noon to 1:00 p.m.

Mr. Varrichione asked UMass athletes to inform their parents. in the course of any contact they may have this current weekend with their parents, that the deadline to reserve luncheon tickets is extended to Monday, October 28th.

Reservations with check for $2.50 for each ticket can be made by writing to Keith Jordan, Secretary-Treasurer, 1 Ellis Terrace, Swampscott, Mass.

HADLEY
DRIVE-IN ROUTE 9
BETWEEN NORTHAMPTON AND AMHERST
FRI. SAT. SUN. — OCT. 25-26-27
IT'S A FLESH CREEPER!!
EDGAR ALLAN POE'S TERRIFYING CLASSIC OF THE HIDDEN ROOM OF 1000 HORRORS!
NOTE! The Management Is Not Responsible For Nervous Breakdowns!
"THE TELL TALE HEART"
"I buried his corpse beneath the floor... He was stone cold, and yet... the beat of his deathless heart shattered the silence of the night!"
LAURENCE PAYNE · ADRIENNE CORRI Starring DERMOT WALSH A Brigadier Release
CAUTION! Blow your breath on the star... ...If it does not turn red...
DON'T YOU DARE SEE THIS SHOW ALONE!
Co-Hit— "RETURN OF THE FLY"

AMHERST Cinema
SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS
—ENDS SAT.—
Peter Sellers
in
"Heavens Above"
British Comedy
—LATE SHOW—
Tonight 11:00 p.m.
"LA DOLCE VITA"
—SUN., MON., TUES.—
Steve McQueen
"Great Escape"

VARSITY HOCKEY MEETING
WEDNESDAY, OCT. 30
5:30 P.M., ROOM 10
PHYS. ED. BUILDING

Diamonds of Fine Quality
MODERATE PRICES
Credit Arrangements
WINN JEWELERS
31 So. Pleasant — Amherst

Quality Fruit Store
Amity Street
The Little Store Near the Theater

LIBRARY

OCT 29 1963

UNIVERSITY OF MASS

THE MASSACHUSETTS

collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 19 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1963

ART MUST BE FREE SAYS JFK

President Kennedy came to Amherst Saturday to dedicate a library in honor of the late poet Robert Frost, to receive an honorary Doctor of Laws degree, and to mark the place of an artist in a free society.

Speaking at a special convocation of Amherst College held in conjunction with the dedication the President told an audience of over 4000 "If art is to flourish the roots of our culture, society must set the artist free to follow his vision wherever it takes him."

The convocation, starting late due to weather delaying the President, began with a solemn procession of Amherst faculty led by a pike-carrying High Sheriff. When the procession reached the dias, the orchestra struck up "Hail to the Chief" and the Chief Executive, dressed in flowing academic robes, strode vigorously down the center aisle, to the thunderous applause of the assembly.

Honoring Robert Frost, Kennedy stated that "he gave his age strength with which to overcome despairs."

"At bottom, he held a deep faith in the spirit of man, and it is hardly an accident that Robert Frost coupled poetry and power, for he saw poetry as the means of saving power from itself."

The President charged those present with a responsibility. "Priviledge he said, is here and with privilege goes responsibility."

"In return for the great opportunity which society gives the graduates of this and related schools, it seems to me incumbent on this and other school's graduates to recognize their responsibility to the public interest.

"Unless the graduates of this college, and other colleges like it who are given a running start in life—unless they are willing to put back into our society those talents, the broad sympathy, the understanding, the compassion—unless they are willing to put these qualities back into the service of the Great Republic, then obviously the presuppositions upon which our democracy are based are bound to be fallible.

However, Kennedy said, "I am proud to come to this college whose graduates have recognized this problem."

Again honoring Frost, the President called him one "whose contribution was not to our size, but to our spirit, not to our political beliefs, but to our insight, not to our self esteem, but to our self comprehension."

Speaking earlier, poet-statesman Archibald MacLeish called Frost "too intrinsic for renown" He remembered that Frost had once said that all he would ask to leave behind would be a "few poems it would be hard to get rid of.

"Poems are not monuments— shapes of stone to stand and stand. Poems are voices. And a poem that is hard to get rid of is a voice that is hard to get rid of, and that is a man.

Amherst College President Calvin Plimpton told of the many men who answered the call to service for the Republic.

"What has been unique and special about Amherst and the liberating arts? If we wanted to claim one distinction, and only one, for Amherst College and its liberal arts—the one in which we can take the greatest pride—it would be the disproportionately large number of Amherst men who have entered into a life of service—either to individuals or to the public. These liberating arts have liberated men to serve . . ."

President Plimpton later conferred honorary degrees on Kennedy and MacLeish.

In his citation for Kennedy's degree he said: "A citation for the President of the United States reads more like a prayer to the heavens, for all hopes for the sanity of national and international understanding depend on you."

MacLeish's citation lauded him for his contribution to understanding. "Son of Yale, Harvard Lawyer, American soldier and statesman, international poet and author. Through your efforts and through yourself you have revealed that incandescence which is the human spirit. Your interest has been deeper than morphology, for you have seen into the mechanisms of the mystery

(Continued on page 5)

POET, STATESMEN, AND PRESIDENTS—Poet Archibald MacLeish, statesman John J. McCloy, President John F. Kennedy, ad Amherst College President Calvin H. Plimpton confer before Saturday's Convocation during which President Kennedy and MacLeish received honorary LL.D.

Campus Blood Drive Starts This Week

Beginning today, recruiters will go to individuals at all campus residences to seek volunteer donors for the annual campus blood drive. Registration forms will also be available in the S.U. lobby every afternoon this week for commuters and graduate students. Anyone in normal health, between the ages of 18 and 59, is eligible to give blood. Since parental permission is necessary for those under 21, a committee of the University Women will mail letters to parents asking permission and giving information about the Red Cross Blood Insurance Program.

Each donor becomes a member of the Hampshire County Red Cross Blood Insurance Program. The provisions of this program are as follows:

1) By donating a pint of blood, a person automatically becomes a member of the Insurance Program.

2) Membership entitles the donor and his immediate family living under one roof to any blood they need during the next twelve months.

3) Members of the Program and their families will receive free blood without having to replace it. Non-members are required to replace pint for pint, as soon as possible.

4) Blood supplied to hospitals by the Red Cross is not charged for. Hospitals and doctors charge for administering blood.

5) When you give a pint of blood at the University, it means YOU and YOUR FAMILY are insured.

Rev. Campbell To Speak On Civil Rights

The Rev. Lawrence G. Campbell of Danville, Virginia will be speaking and showing a movie in Smith's Sage Hall on Tuesday, October 29 at 8:30. His topic "The Next Birmingham" will cover events in Danville and explain why Martin Luther King is planning to move his task force from Birmingham to Danville around November 10. Campbell is a local leader of King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference and spearheads the Danville Civil Rights movement. Tickets will be 50c and will help lawyers' fees for court action against a local injunction ruling which prohibits legal demonstrations in Danville. It is sponsored by National Student Association and Religious Association.

A Night To Remember; The Abby Fire

A year ago last Saturday the University witnessed a tragic fire. The oldest and one of the best loved dormitories, the Abigail Adams House caught fire about 6:15 Saturday evening, October 27, 1962, completely destroying much of the residents' personal property and gutting the building's physical structure.

The fire started from the illegal use of a hot plate on the second floor. Cause of the rapid spreading of the fire was determined as the easy inflammability of the overhead tiles used in the corridors and wooden parts of the building.

Residents of the dorm received immediate aid from the University. Housing accommodations were obtained in the Women's Physical Education building, the infirmary, off-campus, and the recreation room of Mary Lyon Dormitory. The girls remained there until second semester when Plymouth Dormitory was converted for their use.

The girls received financial help through loans from the

(Continued on page 5)

Firemen battle the fire in the top floor of the Abbey as smoke billows out.

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

MOTARBOARD

A Statement Of Purpose

Mortarboard is the senior women's honorary society. We are a national organization consisting of one hundred and eight chapters on major college and university campuses. Here at this university, in the spring, Isogon chapter taps outstanding junior women who will serve as members during their senior year.

Mortarboards are selected for the qualities of scholarship, leadership and service which they have demonstrated during their three years at the University. Because we are selected on the basis of such high ideals, we realize that Mortarboard is not an end in itself, but an opportunity to serve in an even wider capacity as seniors. We are an active organization and not merely an organization in name alone.

It is the aim of Isogan chapter to exemplify the standards which National Mortarboard has set up. Each year we meet with members of other chapters and discuss ways in which we can serve our university and our fellow students. This interchange of ideas among chapers benefits all Mortarboards and also emphasizes the unity which our national organization provides.

Under the guidance of our very capable and cooperative advisors: Mrs. John W. Lederle, Dean Helen Curtis, Doctor Cody of the History Department and Doctor Gordon of the sociology department, this year's Mortorboards are working to develop a program which will benefit the entire campus. We realize that we are a small group in a large university, but we hope that by our own example in striving for the goals which we have set before us that we may help others to do the same.

This year our main program will be working with the foreign students. It is our aim to develop a harmonious relationship between the foreign and American students. We have planned a program of varied activities which will help both the foreign and American students to get to become better acquainted.

We attempt to reach the student body in many ways. Before arriving at the University, all freshmen women receive our Co-Etiquette book which is intended to answer some of their more personal questions concerning UMass life. We also hold freshmen talks in the dormitories during the first week of school.

Another way to try to reach the student body is through our Collegian editorials. We look into various problems or conditions on campus and try to get to the root of the problem. We then present the unbiased facts to you, the students, for your consideration.

Mortarboard attempts to be constructive and creative in its program. In the past, Mortarboard has organized an activity such as the Fine Arts Festival. Once this program was underway, it was turned over to its own committee. We realize that there is a need for new activities on a growing campus, and we hope to assist in their development.

This is Mortarboard and our aims and purposes. During the year, we, the members of Isogon Chapter, will be doing our best to fulfill our role at the University.

THE PARIAH

The Kid From The Slum

by JAMES R. CRAWFORD

You can take the boy out of the slums, but you can't take the slums out of the boy.

A kid who comes from the seamier side of Brooklyn or a housing project in Boston never forgets the misery of those early years, even if he makes it to the top of the social world. He may want to forget, he may turn his back on his old life, but it always haunts him.

In ancient India, these people at the bottom, the pariahs, remained in squalor all their life. They were spat upon, forced to follow their own specified religion, and were very often homeless. In modern America, however, they are given the choice to better themselves, to embrace the values of their fellow citizens, to settle, and live a happy life.

Some, however, are not altogether convinced of the validity of middle class values. Rather than forget, they try to give voice to the many miseries and peculiar joys of their people.

That is the point of adding this column to the others that appear regularly on these pages: to remind those who have tried to forget, to tell those who never knew, to stir up those who don't care. A society that ceases to criticize itself, to be really open and liberal, is doomed if not to destruction, then to stagnation and boredom. The seeds of modern liberalism are in the slums of Chicago, the coal mines of Wales, and the Negro section of Birmingham.

Wherever there are outcasts, there is a protest.

Each week, hopefully, this column will try to articulate and give foundation to the protest of the outcasts that wander through our culture in search not necessarily of a home, but of an open ear, a loaf of bread, a right to be.

Guest Editorial

Principle Or Expediency

The Collegian has asked Senators Landis and Boyd to write the following editorial to discuss the amendments they propose for a bill concerning Area Judiciary which is now in Senate Committee.

At last Wednesday's Senate meeting, a bill entitled S21 was presented to create a legal basis for the already-functioning Area Judiciary. The bill was simple in structure, yet it abounded in far-ranging weaknesses. If passed, this bill would have required that each residence hall have a representative on the Area Judiciary. This is the sole principle in the entire bill, and even at that it is the wrong one.

No Court or system of justice can be effective and truly objective when it has as its basis a requirement of representation of constituencies. Not only would S21 prevent a Justice from representing his Area, it would also militate against his serving on a real Judiciary. Is it really necessary that every residence hall have an "agent" on this body? Would this not sem to maximize the number of instances when justices must disqualify themselves because they have a personal interest in the offender brought before them?

Consider the additional problem of the obvious conflict of interest that would inevitably occur if a House Counselor were also to be an Area Justice. This is tantamount to having the "arresting officer" also meet out the punishment. Nevertheless, S21 as it was presented to the Senate was devoid of any understanding of these problems.

We have offered an amendment to S21 which would place the Area Judiciary on a fundamentally different, but sound and effective, basis. The amendment states, in effect, that "there shall be the same number of Area Justics as there are residence halls in the specified Area," but it does not require that each residence hall be "represented". If a member of the Area Judiciary should move from the Area which he represents, he will no longer serve as a member of that body . . ." The House Councils, however, still have the responsibility of recommending a group of applicants from their respective residences to serve on this Judiciary.

At the crux of this matter is a profound question: Would it seem just to pass over an extremely well qualified person simply because another individual had already been selected from that residence hall, while at the sam time selecting a comparatively mediocre individual from another residence hall who was, however, the best candidate offered by his residence hall?

Our position is based upon two assumptions: (1) That the Area Judiciary is necessary, and (2) that the most capable individuals possible should serve on it. S21 and the amendments have been tabled to the Men's Affairs Committee. It is our sincere hope that thought on this matter will result in more than the cursory consideration that prompted S21. The Men's Affairs Committee has the opportunity to demonstrate to our constituencies that the Student Senate regards principle more highly than expediency.

Donald Boyd '65 Greenough
William Landis '65 At Large

A Letter From Mr. President

The following is a letter received by two UMass students in response to their inquiry why President Kennedy could or would not visit the University on his recent trip to Amherst.

Dear Mr. Kornfield & Mr. Kohn:

This is to acknowledge your recent letter expressing dissappointment that the President will be unable to visit the University of Massachusetts when he comes to Amherst this weekend.

The President appreciates your interest in writing and is sincerely sorry that the brief time he will be spending in Amherst will not allow him to visit the University or to do any of the other very appealing things he has been asked to do while in the area.

With best wishes.

Sincerely,
Kenneth O'Donnell
Special Assistant to the President

The Massachusetts Collegian

Editor-in-Chief: Jeffrey Davidow '65
Editorial Editor: John B. Childs
Assoc. Editorial Editor: George Masselam
News Editor: Elwin McNamara '64
Photography Editor: Ron Goldberg '66
Sports Editors: Scott Freedland '66, Richard Ryan '66
Business Manager: Courtney Brickman '64
News Makeup Editor: James Schmalz '65
Feature Editor: David Axelrod '65

Advertising Manager: Ted "Omar" Weinberg
Staff: Roy Blitzer, John Darack, Al Kadish, Jeff Gale
Subscription Manager: Marty Rosendorf
Business Co-ordinator: Ingrid Krohn

NEWS

Sunday Rewrite: Jackie Beauvais, Rita Cerutti, Elaine Corsi
Tuesday Rewrite: Marilyn Rosen, Sally Shea, Marcia Sutherland
Thursday Rewrite: Harold Gushue, Karen Shelley
Assignment: Nancy Devlin, Judy Doyle
Reporters:

Ann Baxter	Nancy Fogg	Lee Mullane	Linda Paul
Ken Berk	Dave Harass	Russell Murphy	Oleh Pawluk
Joe Bradley	Don Johnson	Mary Norton	Lois Skolnick
Steve Curtis	Steve Levine	Ethan O'Brien	Joan St. Laurent
Mike Dymerski	Ann Miller	Kathleen Osterberg	Leo Stanlake
			Terry Stock

Features: Don Johnson, Pat Long, Carol Lufkin, Anne Pincess, Michael Berrini, Edna Bleghley, Doris Peltonen, Jay Isgur, Oleh Pawluk, Bob Weber, Rosaire Malone, Don Glosband, Harold Gushe, Linda Valonen, Ethan O'Brien, Margaret Vanderlurgh, Andrew Dolain, Doris Peltonen
Makeup: Michael Rothschild, Robert Martin, Michael Stone, Selig Adler, Richard Cuniff

PHOTOGRAPHY

Mary Roche	Bill Green	Nina Pearlmutter
Andi Beauchemin	Don Willoughby	Elaine Maltman
Darryl Fine	Jan Baker	Harvey Stone

SPORTS

Gene Colburn	John Goodrich	John Reynolds	Marsha Karol
Steve Hewey	Robert Healy	Dave Garber	Helen Forsberg

EDITORIAL

Marc Cheren	Rick Case	James Cortese
Marcia Ehrenwith	Ron Allferis	Joe Dolan
Sandra Burlingame	Joan Shustra	Elwin McNamara
Mike Hersh	Steve Orlen	David Axelrod
Dave Harea	Sam Gorvine	George Masselam

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member- Associated Collegiate Press: Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

CONCERN

A Joint Student - Faculty Effort

CONTRIBUTORS:

Dr. C. Wendell King
Dr. Julian Janowitz
Jerry Stock
Marcia Elasowich
George Masselam

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys" and "Barefoot Boy With Cheek".)

HOW SMALL CAN YOU GET?

Today let us address ourselves to a question that has long rocked and roiled the academic world: Is a student better off at a small college than at a large college?

To answer this question it is necessary first to define terms. What, exactly, do we mean by a small college? Well sir, some say that in order to be called truly small, a college should have an enrollment of not more than four students.

I surely have no quarrel with this statement; a four-student college must unequivocally be called small. Indeed, I would even call it intime if I knew what intime meant. But I submit there is such a thing as being too small. Take, for instance, a recent unfortunate event at Crimscott A and M.

Crimscott A and M, situated in a pleasant valley nestled between Philadelphia and Salt Lake City, was founded by What, exactly, do we mean by a small college?

A. and M. Crimscott, two brothers who left Ireland in 1625 to escape the potato famine of 1841. As a result of their foresight, the Crimscott brothers never went without potatoes for one single day of their lives—and mighty grateful they were! One night, full of gratitude after a wholesome meal of French fries, cottage fries, hash browns, and au gratin, they decided to show their appreciation to this bountiful land of potatoes by endowing a college. But their generosity contained one stipulation: the enrollment of the college must never exceed four students. They felt that only by keeping the school this small could each student be assured of the personalized attention, the camaraderie, the esprit, that is all too often lacking in larger institutions of higher learning.

Well sir, things went along swimmingly until one Saturday a few years ago. On this day Crimscott had a football game scheduled against Minnesota, its traditional rival. Football, as you can well imagine, was something of a problem at Crimscott, what with only four undergraduates in the entire college. It was easy enough to muster a backfield, but to find a good line—or even a bad line—baffled some of the most resourceful coaching minds in the nation.

Well sir, on the morning of the big game against Minnesota, its traditional rival, a capricious fate dealt Crimscott a cruel blow—in fact, four cruel blows. Sigafoos, the quarterback, woke up that morning with an impacted incisor. Wrichards, the slotback, flunked his taxidermy exam and was declared ineligible. Beerbohm-Tree, the wingback-tailback, got his necktie caught in his espresso machine. Yuld, the fullback, was stolen by gypsies.

Consequently, none of the Crimscott team showed up at the football game, and Minnesota, its traditional rival, was able to score almost at will. Crimscott was so cross after this humiliating defeat that they immediately broke off football relations with Minnesota, its tradtional rival. This later became known as the Sacco-Vanzetti Case.

So you can see how only four students might be too meagre an enrollment. The number that I personally favor is twenty. Why? you ask. Because, I reply, when you have twenty students and one of them opens a pack of Marlboro Cigarettes, there are enough to go around for everybody, and no one has to be deprived of Marlboro's flavor, of Marlboro's filter, of Marlboro's staunch and steadfast companionship, and as a result you have a student body that is brimming with sweet content and amity and harmony and concord and togetherness and soft pack and Flip-Top box.

That's why.

© 1963 Max Shulman

* * *

There are twenty fine cigarettes in every pack of Marlboros, and there are millions of packs of Marlboros in every one of the fifty states of the Union. We, the makers of Marlboro and the sponsors of this column, hope you will try our wares soon.

Psychiatrist Comments On Sexual Behavior

by MARCIA ELASOWICH

What causes free sexual behaviour on a college campus such as ours.

The student in college probably finds himself beset with greater frustrations and pressures than ever before. Also he is exposed to new philosophies through his mentors and friends. This leads to puzzlement, but does it foreshadow free sexual behavior.

Dr. Julian Janowitz, head of the mental health staff at the Infirmary, seems to place a minimal importance on these factors as leading to pre-marital intercourse.

He feels that if there is any difference in sexual behavior, it lies within the class structure of our society rather than the intellectual developments of the person.

He explained that middle class morality among college students causes abstention from free love, whereas the different attitudes of the upper and lower classes tend to have them react in a more permissive manner.

In addition to this class explanation, Dr. Janowitz offered the hypothesis that exposure to liberal ideas would be ineffective unless the personality of the individual were subject to change. Therefore another factor in creating free sexual behavior lies in the individual personality development.

He cited two extreme examples which might bring about free sexual behavior. For instance, if the person's background is one of the authoritarian rigid types, the person seems to feel stultified, he has no feeling of individuality. Therefore by indulging in premarital intercourse, he would be throwing off his rigid yoke. Those youths involved in strong adolescent rebellion might also assert themselves in free sexual behavior.

On the other end of the spectrum, families that have raised their children with a loose but consistent set of rules, might help them to develop their attitudes toward freedom which would allow them to make their own decisions once free from parental supervision.

Dr. Janowitz pointed out also that intimacy requires maturity to handle the strong emotional reactions of pre-marital intercourse. An immature outlook could lead to emotional self-destruction. He further stated that he doesn't feel that the partners are usually able to assume the potential responsibilities although they are able to perform the act.

Sociologist Discusses Sexual Mores

The following is a series of questions asked by Terry Stock, '65, to Dr. Clarence King of the Department of sociology.

1. How and why have sexual mores changed in American society?

The only really adequate information we have is the Kinsey Report, which unfortunately is sadly out of date because the data was gathered in the 1920's.

Those people born around 1900 and who came to maturity around WWI are called "The Lost Generation". There was not only an increase in premarital sex, but in infidelity in marriage also.

This break came about 1915, but since that time there hasn't been any great change! "Our grandparents criticize us, but it is their own generation which changed for the worse."

We must separate Premarital sexual behaviour into two categories:

(a). Promiscuity—the promiscuous female is still looked down upon and criticized as strongly as in former times.

(b). Relationships between those going steady or engaged (i.e. planning to marry each other)—The attitude toward sexual intercourse here seems to have loosened up. Because our society is so "sex centered", on one hand, the individual is constantly being urged to indulge by TV, radio, advertising, and the like. On the other hand, the old taboos still operate. This permissive attitude among engaged couples is a kind of compromise between the two conflicting influences in an individual's life. "If we're going to be married soon, why not?" Furthermore, the Ehrmann Study, Premarital Dating Behavior, shows that although there is a fair amount of sex among college students female students usually are intimate with men they intend to marry.

Finally, it must be noted that most of the changes that have taken place in sexual behavior have taken place in the middle class. The upper and lower extremes of society have always (within the last hundred years) been permissive of pre- and extra-marital relations. Socio-economic levels or classes are determined by occupation and education.

2. Is free love becoming a norm?

As previously stated, amount of promiscuity depends upon sex, class, etc. It isn't becoming a norm because there has been no increase in "free love" as such.

3. Is premarital sex among students prevalent?

Yes. The figures for premarital sex are high because of the "compromise" previously discussed.

4. Can sex education help cut down promiscuity or would education in the use of contraceptives cause premartial sex rates to increase?

There is no 1:1 relationship between peoples' knowledge of contraception and illegitimate births. Simply instructing people in the use of contraceptives is no guarantee that (1) they will use them (2) they will use them correctly. The lack of contraceptives hasn't limited people in the past.

Sweden, where contraceptives are as available as road maps, is still plagued with an unusually high illegitimate birth rate.

Finally, it should be noted that Mass. and Conn. are the only two states in the United States which prohibit the sale of contraceptives or the passing on of any information concerning contraception (sex education?). To complicate matters further, there is no completely reliable contraceptive, and this includes pills.

Perspective

Intimacy

by GEORGE MASSELAM

Each of us is confronted with a choice concerning sexual behavior in relationships. Society makes general demands on us, but the decision just how far one should go sexually in a heterosexual relationship ultimately rests with the individual.

It is not an easy question to ask, nor is it easy to answer. There is a great deal involved emotionally, such as "Am I a man now' or "Does sleeping with a man fulfill me as a woman"? Yet our psychiatrists answer "It is the easiest expression of manhood or womanhood, but does it make a man or a woman?" It involves our feelings towards our parents, families, and friends.

My intention is not to pass judgment on whether one should or shouldn't have pre-marital intercourse. But certainly in terms of all sexual activity from kissing and petting to intercourse basic questions have to be asked.

First of all, are most of us able to handle deep sexual experiences? Can we deal with the guilt that will confront us? Obviously the pressure is most acute for a woman; for on her society puts pressure for the control of passion in the relationship and blame for illegitimate births. For some the guilt may be so strong that sexual activity could emotionally destroy the person.

How much will it effect one's functioning and one's personality? Thus, the increasing growth of the Mental Health Department shows that students are not adequately dealing with their own problems

This brings us to a second question: What responsibility has one person toward another? It would be connected with the depth of the r'ationship. Is the sexual activity motivated by the physical alone or is it motivated by some deeper involvement? If the relationship exists for the physical it almost represents a denial of all emotional needs. We, as human beings, come to a 1:1 relationship with a desire for intimate communication as well as the expression of our deep inner feelings to love and be loved. Sexual activity seems to be the expression of this intimacy. Thus sexual activity fulfills a small part of us. Responsibility encourages a consciousness and an awareness for the feelings of each person involved in a relationship. Hence, responsibility involves a deeper, more meaningful experience for both parties.

Thirdly, directly connected with responsibility is respect: Respect for oneself and for one's mate. Sexual activity is intimate. It involves two people and their own privacy. Observations of this campus and others have shown that most people are loosing their sense of privacy. Sex can be one of the most meaningful communications that can occur between two human beings, or it can be an unfulfilling justification of our needs. Whether it has meaning or fulfillment depends on one's attitudes and values concerning this expression. The decision belongs to the individual.

Some Opinions On

S-19 - The Conflict Of Interest Bill

The Senatorium

An Explanation

by MARC CHEREN

The Conflict of Interests Bill introduced to the Senate by way of last Tuesday night's agenda was substantially different from the legislation which was tabled the preceeding Wednesday. The original law took voting privileges away from the officers of an SATF supported organization both in committee and on the floor.

The revised form asked that all members lose their right to belong to the Budgets and Finance Committees. Furthermore, it added prohibition of membership to the Men's and Women's Affairs Committees for the people serving as employees to the Dean of Students Office.

When the bill reached the floor last Wednesday, two further changes were made. Because objections were raised during debate on the motion that TOO MANY conflicts of interest existed under the heading "of those employed by the Dean of Students Office" (a minimum of 300), the restriction was narrowed to restrict the counselors alone.

This, I believe, is obvious discrimination against certain conflicts of interest. The effective date was pushed from whenever the bill was passed to the date of the spring Senate elections. Thus, for all intent and purpose, an entirely new bill was put before a group of Senators who didn't yet understand the original motion.

Lengthy debate resulted in the motion's passage in a line up of roughly 26 for and 15 against. After a recess during which Senator McNamara learned that reconsideration would be sought at the next meeting (after the Senate had time to think about and discuss the new motion), he called for reconsideration of the motion—hoping the majority which had passed the bill would vote not to reconsider thus precluding reconsideration at a future date.

During the storm of protest that followed this motion, Senator Clancy asked President Fife if it would be possible to repeal the law at a later date if reconsideration were voted down. President Fife's answer was a firm "No!"

According to Robert's Rules of Order, and his own subsequent admission, President Fife (who is his own parliamentarian) made a mistake. It is of course only logical that a bad or unsatisfactory law should be able to be repealed at any time during session of the Senate.

But this is not meant as a condemnation of President Fife. It was a wonder that he was able to keep as much order as he did during the meeting.

But to go on. When she first started to leave and was ordered not to by President Fife, Senator Singer made "an objection to the decision of the chair" (which calls for a two thirds vote to reverse the chair's decision.) President Fife completely ignored Senator Singer's objection, though it was quite in order, there being no rule in parliamentary procedure prohibiting a person's leaving a meeting whenever he or she wants. The chair is always obliged to call for a vote on an objection to the chair's decision. This was an unfortunate error on the part of President Fife.

It was AFTER this that President Fife ruled that anyone leaving the Chamber would be charged with conduct unbecoming a Senator. It therefore seems to me that President Fife's three parliamentary mistakes forced Senators Watson and Singer to leave the chamber in a final act of desperation.

While their decision was an obvious flaunt on their part, I am sure President Fife didn't realize the exact nature of the events which lead up to their decision.

With these facts known, I disagree strongly with the narrow range of alternatives presented by Mr. Davidow in his editorial of last Friday. It is hoped that neither President Fife nor the Senate body will be restricted by them.

It is also hoped that instead they will have seen the necessity of a parlimentarian, separate from the office of Presidency, so that mistakes of the Parlimentarian will no longer shake the very roots of the Senate's confidence in its President.

I will endeavor to make some suggestions concerning the bill itself in Wednesday's Collegian.

SATIRIC CLANCY

Praise Be: The Senate Is Saved

S19—Whereas Impartial functioning of the Student Senate is dependant upon the absence of any conflict of interest: Moved that the Student Senate adopt the following policy.

Section 1. No person serving in the Student Senate who is a member of an RSO organization regularly receiving SATF monies may serve on either the Finance or Budgets committees of the Student Senate. The term RSO cannot be construed to include the Senate.

Section 2. No person in the Student Senate who is employed as a dormitory counselor may serve on either the Men's or Women's Affairs committees of the Senate.

Section 3. All persons of the above categories must register as such with the Secretary of the Student Senate.

Section 4. Deliberate failure to comply with paragraph 3 shall be deemed grounds for impeachment from the Student Senate.

Section 5. This law shall go into effect on the day of the Spring Student Senate Officer's elections 1964 and shall not be retroactive.

At last Wednesday's Senate meeting, in the best traditions of the Salem witch hunters, Senators Mathieson and MacNamara, self appointed defenders of good, presented S19, the passage of which has at long last put the Senate on the holy and pure plane to which it has so long aspired. No longer will the Senate be forced to labor under the evil influences of conflict of interest which has so drastically tortured past Senates and reduced their efforts to incoherrent mumblings in the dark.

A recent D.A.R. poll estimated that the Student Senate under former president Don Cournoyer, during the week of December 19-December 26 of last year, ran afoul of approximately 786,327.45 conflicts of interest. The fact that the University was, at this time, recessed for Christmas vacation in no way mitigates this horrible offense. However, now the Senate is to be forever free of this terrible curse. REJOICE AND HALLELUJAH!

This miraculous bill, as shown above, is broken down into five wondrous sections to further implement its obvious perfection.

Section I GENERAL EVIL TENDENCY AND HYPOCISY CLAUSE

This section CLEARLY sets forth the reasons why an indiivdual Senator who may be a member of the Collegian or WMUA is inherently unfit to be on either the Finance or Budgets committees. Despite the fact that the Collegian or WMUA, like the Senate, is after all only an extracurricular activity and despite the fact that the primary goal of every student is to receive an education, these people are so fanatically loyal to their respective organizations that they would undoubtedly, if given the chance as in the past, vote millions of dollars to their organization under the fun and games category. Color these horrible indiivduals black and festoon them with clusters of white EVIL signs.

In addition, one can only agree wholeheartedly with the last sentence of section I. Of course the term R.S.O. cannot be construed to include the Senate. The Senate is obviously far above R.S.O. classification. In fact, it has burst through the roof of the Union and was last seen disappearing into a low cloud bank.

And since the Senate, when acting as a whole, is no longer an R.S.O. organization and doesn't come under the effect of the first part of section I of S19, it is of course not at all hypocritical to expect that the Senate will impartially and judiciously debate and decide on its own 801 account. There is no conflict of interest here (smirk).

Section II DIRECT INSULT CLAUSE

It is quite obvious that all Senators who are dormitory counselors are ipso facto tools of the administration and made of macaroni. They are paid University hirelings and as such are obviously unfit to decide on any issues that might come before the Men's or Women's Affairs committees. The possibility that they might have added knowledge and insight through their experience is of no consequence.—You have seen these people. They cringe through the darkened dorm corriders at night never knowing when the Dean of Men or Women will leap out at them from some dark corner and wind them up again.

Thse people are in direct collusion with the administration. Color them dark black with black EVIL signs (so as to distinguish them from the Senators that fall under the first section).

Section III THE BAD LIST CLAUSE

All of the evil people mentioned above must of course register with the Secretary of the Senate. We must keep an accurate and up to date list of these ghouls lest one of them sneak into a position of influnce in the Senate. Every Tuesday and Thursday morning, promptly at the stroke of twelve, Senate Secretary Wendy Hall will appear on the steps of the Union dressed in black and read this list. She will be accompanied by an appropriate funeral dirge on the Old Chapel bells. Senators Mathieson and MacNamara will be present to receive confessions and lead group prayers for these lost souls.

Section IV ENFORCING CLAUSE

Any back stabbing double dealer who fails to register himself on the BAD LIST is automatically unfit for this, the best and purest of all societies and should be drummed out of the Senate. In addition, he shall be trampled on by the Flying Redmen at Spring Review.

Section V MERCY CLAUSE

Anybody knows that all holier than thou organizations act only for the good of all concerned and are chock full of mercy. Senators Mathieson and MacNamara have included a mercy clause by putting off the execution of this law until late next semester. By doing this the following will be accomplished:

1. No one presently in a conflict of interest position will be immediately affected and therefore may not complain too loudly against this bill.

2. There is provided a six month period of grace during which all potential offenders are expected to devote their leisure time to soul searching and pietous walling.

3. If the law were to go immediately into force, Senators Mathieson and MacNamara would face each other on Wednesday nights in an otherwise empty Senate chamber. What good is a conflict of interest law if there is no one on whom to enforce it.

4. This law won't be retroactive because Senators Mathieson and MacNamara anticipate having their hands full dealing with next Spring's offenders. However if prospects for a dull summer arise, this rectroactive clause may be reconsidered.

Conclusion: THIS BILL ISN'T TOO RIDICULOUS.

Dave Clancy '64

Praising Graham

To Leave Or Not To Leave, That Is The Question

To the Editor:

To leave or not to leave, that is the question. This was the question that two Student Senators were faced with last Wednesday evening at the Student Senate meeting. They were put in a position whereby they had to make a decision.

The events which led up to this important decision on the part of the Senators were as follows: S19—the conflict of interest bill (Mathieson-MacNamara) —was reintroduced to the Senate floor after having been tabled for one week by the authors. S19 as now presented was completely different than the previous S19 because of drastic amendments added to it by S33 (Proposed by the same authors of S19). After great debate and further amendments the new version of S19 was passed.

Following a short recess, at which time a number of Senators "called it an evening" and left for home, the Senate reconvened. It was at this time that those favoring S19 realized that many of those against the aforementioned bill were not present in the chambers. Consequently, a motion was made, by one of the authors of the bill, to reconsider S19.

This was a perfectly legal maneuver, but when used in such circumstances was, I feel, an open and gross act of premeditated railroading.

The motion was recognized by the Chair and proceeded to be heard upon the floor after much discussion. If the motion to reconsider had been defeated then the bill would remain on the Senate Books for the duration of this Student Senate session.

It was at this point that the two Senators, Singer and Watson, were forced to make their unprecredented decision — to leave or not to leave.

To leave the Senate chambers would produce a lack of quorum, thus no further action could be taken on the bill this week and the meeting would have to be adjourned.

To remain present would create a quorum and thus enhance the defeat of the reconsideration of S19 which if defeated would prohibit those Senators not present from presenting their views and casting their votes pertaining to the reconsideration of the bill next week.

With these two options in mind the aforementioned Senators bravely stood up and left the chambers—thus ending the meeting before a vote was taken.

The decision on the part of these two Senators, I feel, should be applauded by the student body as a whole. Whether or not the Senators' actions were in complete accordance with accepted procedure is debatable but, nevertheless, I feel, they took the only step left to avoid the rights of students from being curtailed at a time when the student body was not completely represented.

Once again I commend the courage and direct action of Senators Singer and Watson in their effort to protect the student body and I look forward to the defeat of S19 next Wednesday evening.

Peter Graham

Paul Bartsch - Our Own Music Man

Paul Bartsch, member of the Operetta Guild, has been elected musical consultant and assistant director with full executive board privileges. Paul, a sophomore music major, is assisting Wayne Lamb in the musical direction of Meredith Willson's The Music Man to be presented next weekend, Oct. 31-Nov. 2.

Last spring the Guild voted Paul its best orchestra member. A student of piano for eleven years, Paul studied with Prof. Telesphore Leverault in Holyoke and is now studlyng with Elliot Schwartz of the UMass music department.

PAUL BARTSCH

Holyoke is his home town, where he was graduated from Holyoke high school with hon ors. At graduation he received the Joseph B. Weiss scholarship for excellence in music. As well as accompanying the high school choir, Paul played the trombone in the concert band aond was pianist in a dance band. Also, he was president of the Junior Extension of the Holyoke Music Club.

Paul furthered his music education in the summers of '60 and '61 at the University of New Hampshire Summer Youth Music school.

Paul's activities as a freshman at UMass included his positions as musical director of the Guild's one-scenes, pianist for Guys and Dolls, and organist for The Threepenny Opera.

His future plans include teaching music in the public schools. Paul now teaches piano in the Holyoke City band, leads his own dance band and is a member of Musicians Local 144 and 220.

Aside from music Paul lends his interest to scouting; presently he is an assistant Scout master in his hometown.

The Guild members wish to express their gratitude to Paul for his tremendous contributions, his invaluable knowledge and his devoted spirit.

NFS Awards Zoology Dept. Investiture

The National Science Foundation has awarded the University of Massachusetts a $239,825 grant for construction of additional research facilities in the University's zoology department.

According to Dr. Donald Fairbairn, Commonwealth Head of the Zoology Department at the University, the NSF grant will be applied to costs of an addition to the Justin Morrill Science Center, now under construction.

The Morrill addition will cost an estimated $3,500,000 and will give the zoology department an additional 20,000 square feet of research space.

The new laboratories will extend present research in biochemistry, physiology, infectious diseases and electron microscopy.

Work on the addition began in August and is expected to be completed in 1965.

Lost and Found

FOUND: A ladies' Benrus writwatch. Contact Jim McNeil, 154 Goessman Lab.

FOUND: A small key, probably a door or car-key. Found at the rear entrance to Gorman. Call Joseph Ross, 425 Gorman.

LOST: A tan Sociology notebook in Gunness Thursday, Oct. 17. Contact Cynthia Keohane, Mary Lyon House.

Students Only
New Yorker Magazine
$3.75 — 6 Mos.
$5.00 — Year
(Reg. $8.00 per year)
Sid Magazine
6 Issues $1.50
2 Years $3.00
(Reg. $3.00 a year)
CHECK OR MONEY ORDER
PETER GUND
Box 418, Amherst, Mass.

Abbey Fire

Continued from page 1

Placement and Financial Service Office and a gift of $2000 from the Student Senate.

In the past year the "Abbey" has been sufficiently cleaned up to accommodate several faculty offices on the first floor. The Operetta Guild is using part of the basement as a temporary workshop.

According to Dean Field, it is very unlikely that the building will be used as a dormitory again. The cost to rebuild the structure is great and, since the area is soon to house a new Science Complex, it would not be worth the expenditure. No definite decisions have been made as yet.

The old dorm will always be remembered by many who resided there, especially by Mrs. Teresa deKerpely, Abbey's former House Mother who now resides across the street at Arnold.

Alumnus Addresses Journ. 51

Harold "Hal" Dutton, '60, spoke at Wednesday's meeting of Journalism 51.

Dutton, invited by Prof. Arthur Musgrave, is currently police reporter with the New Bedford Standard Times, a daily newspaper with a circulation of 65,000.

With no intention of discouraging budding journalists, Dutton quoted the average starting salary of a reporter at $4,500.

—FOR SALE—
1959 Triumph TR-3
Best Offer!
Phone Doris, AL 6-6868

Hamlin Presents U.N. Night

Hamlin House sponsored their ninth annual United Nations tea Thursday, October 24, under the direction of Mrs. Rich, housemother, and Marcia Grueter '64, a member of the house council. The tea is held every year in recognition of the United Nations and the work it is doing.

This year Hamlin's speaker was Dr. Luther Allen, professor of government at UMass. Under the Smith-Mundt Grant, Dr. Allen spent the year 1960-61 as visiting professor of political science at the University of Saigon. Because of his close contact with the political situation of the country, his address concerned the Buddhist crisis in Viet Nam. Dr. Allen enumerated several causes for the dissension between the people and government of the country, and the problems that have arisen because of it. He pointed out the enormity of the crisis and the difficulty of finding a solution. The informative discussion was terminated by a short question and answer period.

Guests present at the tea were Dean Curtis, Assistant Dean Gonon, Dr. and Mrs. Southworth, several members of the faculty, and a number of foreign students.

Dr. Luther Allen of the University's government department chats with other paricipants in Hamlin's UN Night.

Kennedy Comes To Amherst

(Continued from col. 1)

in a way to give hope to the myopic and comfort to the blind For going from man to men, from the particular to the universal in a way to enlarge understanding, we salute you."

Approximately 75 pickets supporting the President's civil rights program stood quietly outside the Cage. The group which was composed primarily or robe-carrying Amherst professors and students, held placards reading; "Mr. President, we support your civil rights program," "A civil rights law in '63" and "Mr. President, we urge you to speak out now."

—Photo by Harvey Stone

The silent vigil was sponsored by the Amherst College Student Council, Christian Association Senior Honor Society, Students for Racial Equality, Phi Alpha Psi fraternity, and Newman Club.

At groundbreaking ceremonies for the Robert Frost Library, Kennedy recalled that Frost had often reminded him that the United States needed power and strength.

"He told me," said Kennedy, "not to let the Harvard in me get too important."

The President said that Frost gave lie to the belief "that poets are soft, and live out their lives in a dark garret. He was a very hard-boiled man."

He went beyond a personal tribute to Frost stating "the men who create power make an indispensible contribution to the nation's greatness, but the men who question power make a contribution just as indispensible, especially when that questioning is disinterested, for they determine whether we use power or power uses us."

The library is the gift of an Amherst alumnus who prefers to remain anonymous.

Frost was still living when the $3,500,000 gift was announced by the College a year ago last month, and President Plimpton recalled the poet saying then:

"The heart of a lot of my teaching is that a college man is different because he knows he has the resources of books. He knows there is a book side to everything. He may use it or he may not, but he knows it is there."

The Chief Executive described libraries as memories, "and this one is a memory of an extraordinary American and an extraordinary human being."

The ceremony ended with the breaking of ground for the new library by representatives of the student body, the administration, trustees, and alumni.

ROOM
For Rent
2 Miles from Campus
ALpine 3-7516

CLUB DIRECTORY

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
Meeting for all members on Tues., Oct. 29, at 6:30 p.m. in the S.U.

MARKETING CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 30, at 7 p.m. in 117 Draper. All are welcome.

NAIADS
Regular optional practice on Tues., Oct. 29, at 7:30 p.m. for all Naiads interested. Regular meeting for all Jr. Naiads on Tues., Oct. 29, at 6:30 p.m. Regular meetin gfor Sr. Naiads on Wed., Oct. 30, at 7 p.m.

NEWMAN CLUB
General meeting on Tues., Oct. 29, at 7:30 p.m. in the social hall. Mr. Frank C. Arricale, Catholic layman, will speak. Also, on Wed., Oct. 30, at 8 p.m. in classroom 2, Father James H. Flánagan will speak on the lay apostolate in New Mexico. Confessions on Thurs., Oct. 31, at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m.
Friday, Nov. 1, is All Saints' day, a holy day of obligation. Masses at the Center will be at 6:50 a.m., 8 a.m. 12:15 p.m., 5:15 p.m. and 7 p.m.

PHYSICS CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 29, at 7 p.m. in 100 Hasbrouck. All intersted are welcome.

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 31, at 7 p.m. in the Men's PS Bldg. A lecture on the physics of diving and diving diseases will be given by Mr. Douglas. All members should attend.

SPECIAL EVENTS COMMITTEE
Meeting on Tues., Oct. 29, at 11:15 a.m. All must attend.

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION
Meeting Wed., Oct. 30, at 8 p.m. in Worcester A room in SU. Color slides of Israel will be shown.

WESLEY FOUNDATION
Communion service on Wed., Oct. 30, at 7 a.m. in Cushman Chapel. Transportation provided.

WMUA
Station meeting on Wed., Oct. 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the studios. All are expected to attend.

SIGMA EPSILON
Meeting Thursday night in the back room Plans for next bang will be discussed.

Peace Corps Representative On Campus

Mr. Roger Landrum, a representative of the Peace Corps will be on campus today and tomorrow. All those who are interested in this project should make an effort to contact him in the Guidance Office.

WFCR Philharmonic Schedule

Funds contributed to radio station WFCR-FM in Amherst will enable it to bring all 32 weekly concerts of the New York Philharmonics orchestra to listeners in western New England during the coming season.

The concerts will be broadcast live on Sunday afternoons from 3 to 5 p.m. direct from Philharmonic Hall at New York's Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

The broadcasts are made possible by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Adams of South Hadley, Mass., who have been interested in WFCR since it first went on the air three years ago.

WFCR is a non-commercial, educational facility owned and operated by Amherst, Mount Holyoke, Smith and the University of Massachusetts as part of their cooperative program (FCR stands for "Four-College-Radio).

It operates at a frequency of 88.5 megacycles on the FM dial.

The New York Philharmonic concerts, longest symphonic series in U. S. radio history, will begin its 35th year of broadcasting next Sunday. Other musical events to be heard over WFCR during the coming year include live concerts by the Metropolitan Opera company and the Boston Symphony orchestra.

Listeners may subscribe to WFCR's monthly schedule at $2 per year through its subscription office, Box 611, Amherst, Mass.

Sunday, October 6
RUGGIERO RICCI, violinist
Schumann: Overture, "Genoveva"
Beethoven: Symphony No. 8
Ginastera: Violin Concerto
Revueltas: Sensemaya

Sunday, October 13
JAKOV FLIERE, pianist
Glinka: Overture, "Russlan and Ludmilla"
Shostakovich: Symphony No. 6
Rachmaninoff: Piano Concerto No. 3

Sunday, October 20
JUDITH RASKIN, soprano
REGINA SARFATY, mezzo-soprano
Mendelssohn: Symphony No. 4 ("Italian")
Stravinsky: Symphony in C (Conducted by ZDENEK by KOSLER)
Strauss: Excerpts from "Der Rosenkavalier"
Debussy: Iberia
KRIPS, conducting

Sunday, October 27
JEROME LOWENTHAL, pianist
Strauss: Don Juan
Bartok: Piano Concerto No. 2
Beethoven: Symphony No. 7

Sunday, November 3
Walton: "Scapino" Overture
Schuman: Symphony No. 3
Brahms: Symphony No. 4

Sunday, November 10
JOHN BROWNING, pianist
Haieff: Symphony No. 2
Barber: Piano Concerto
Mozart: Symphony No. 41 ("Jupiter")

Sunday, November 17
Haydn: Symphony No. 94 ("Surprise")
Strauss: Till Eulenspiegel
Schubert: Symphony No. 9
SZELL, conducting

Sunday, November 25
ROBERT CASADESUS, pianist
Beethoven: Leonore Overture No. 3
Beethoven: Piano Concerto No. 4
Beethoven: Symphony No. 5

Sunday, December 1
LEV OBORIN, pianist
Baird: Four Essays
Dvorak: Symphony No. 4
Tchaikovsky: Piano Concerto No. 1

Sunday, December 8
ERICA MORINI, violinist
Bach: Suite No. 3
Mendelssohn: Violin Concerto
Schumann: Symphony No. 2

Sunday, December 15
JEANNE-MARIE DARRE, pianist
Haydn: Symphony No. 93
Liszt: Piano Concerto No. 2
Debussy: Prelude a l'apres midi d'un faune
Debussy: La Mer

Cast Members Point To Success Of Music Man

—Photo by Janice Baker

THE MUSIC MAN, starring Jack Singer (foreground) opens Thursday night at Bowker Auditorium for a three day stand. The cast members ham it up in the S.U.'s Pool Room (spelled with a capital P which rhymes with T . . .).

Volunteers Needed For Belchertown

Every Saturday afternoon during the school year, 1500 people at Belchertown State School for the Mentally Retarded, await the arrival of UMass students who willingly volunteer their time, energy and talents at the school.

Volunteer work consists of holding a child's hand, learning the latest dances from the experts (the children), answering the child's natural questions of "why", and helping him understand his emotional and personal problems. Volunteers can use their own imaginations to suggest games and activities to the children who are usually so responsive that they will be asking the questions and suggesting things to do.

At Belchertown the people live in buildings according to their physical and mental ages. There is a nursery for boys and girls to about age ten and an infirmary for young babies and older men and women. There are also buildings for teenage girls and older women and for teenage boys and older men. Volunteers can work at any of these buildings.

Belchertown is a school for the mentally retarded, not an institution for the mentally ill or insane. Mental retardation is a permanent affliction incurred at birth or through accident.

One needs no special training to be a Belchertown volunteer—just a liking for people and a desire to make someone happy. Since there are so many people at Belchertown many volunteers are needed in order that each building receive some students each Saturday. Besides volunteers, drivers are urgently needed. To be a driver volunteer one does not have to work in the buildings. Quiet lounges are available for studying or for reading to any student willing to drive volunteers to and from the school on whatever Saturday they could make it. There is a great need for such help.

University volunteers leave the Commons Parking Lot at 1:15 every Saturday afternoon, work from 2:00 to 4:00 at Belchertown and arrive back on campus by 4:50. This Saturday there will be an orientation meeting led by the director of volunteers at Belchertown. Besides a talk there will be a tour of the grounds. Students who are interested are asked to sign up on the sheet provided in a booth across from the telephones in the Student Union.

Does a man really take unfair advantage of women when he uses Mennen Skin Bracer?

All depends on why he uses it.

Most men simply think Menthol-Iced Skin Bracer is the best after-shave lotion around. Because it cools rather than burns. Because it helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Because it helps prevent blemishes.

So who can blame them if Bracer's crisp, long-lasting aroma just happens to affect women so remarkably?

Of course, some men may use Mennen Skin Bracer because of this effect.

How intelligent!

"A nation reveals itself not only by the men it produces, but also by the men it honors, the men it remembers"

The following is the text of President Kennedy's address at Saturday's Convocation —Ed.

Mr. McCloy, President Plimpton, Mr. MacLeish, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen:

I am very honored to be here with you on this occasion which means so much to this college and also means so much to art and the progress of the United States. This college is part of the United States. It belongs to it. So did Mr. Frost, in a large sense. And, therefore, I was privileged to accept the invitation somewhat rendered to me in the same way that Franklin Roosevelt rendered his invitation to Mr. MacLeish, the invitation which I receved from Mr. McCloy. The powers of the Presdency are often described. Its limitations should occasionally be remembered. And, therefore, when the Chairman of our Disarmament Advisory Committee, who has labored so long and hard, Governor Stevenson's assistant during the very difficult days at the United Nations, during the Cuban crisis, a public servant of so many years, asks or invites the President of the United States, there is only one response. So I am glad to be here.

Amherst has had so many soldiers of the king since its first one, and some of them are here today: Mr. McCloy, who has been a long public servant; Jim Reed, who is the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; President Cole, who is now our Ambassador to Chile; Mr. Ramey, who is a Commissioner of the Atomic Energy Commission; Dick Reuter, who is head of the Food for Peace. These and scores of others down through the years have recognized the obligations of the advantages which the graduation from a college such as this places upon them to serve not only their private interest but the public interest as well.

Many years ago, Woodrow Wilson said what good is a political party unless it is serving a great national purpose. And what good is a private college or university unless it is serving a great national purpose? The library being constructed today, this college, itself, of course, was not done merely to give this school's graduates an advantage, an economic advantage, in the life struggle. It does do that. But in return for that, in return for the great opportunity which society gives the graduates of this and related schools, it seems to me incumbent upon this and other schools' graduates to recognize their responsibility to the public interest.

Colleges and Opportunity

Privilege is here, and with privilege goes responsibility. And I think, as your president said, that it must be a source of satisfaction to you that this school's graduates have recognized it. I hope that the students who are here now will also recognize it in the future. Although Amherst has been in the forefront of extending aid to needy and talented students, private colleges, taken as a whole, draw 50 percent of their students from the wealthiest 10 percent of our nation. And even state universities and other public institutions derive 25 percent of their students from this group. In March 1962, persons of 18 years or older who had not completed high school made up 46 percent of the total labor force, and such persons comprised 64 percent of those who were unemployed. And in 1956, the lowest fifth of the families in the United States had four-and-a-half percent of the total personal income, the highest fifth forty-five-and-a-half percent. There is inherited wealth in this country and also inherited poverty. And unless the graduates of this college and other colleges like it who are given a running start in life—unless they are willing to put back into our society those talents, the broad sympathy, the understanding, the compassion—unless they are willing to put those qualities back into the service of the Great Republic, then obviously the presuppositions upon which our democracy are based are bound to be fallible.

The problems which this country now faces are staggering, both at home and abroad. We need the services, in the great sense, of every educated man or woman to find 10 million jobs in the next two-and-a-half years, to govern our relations, a country which lived in isolation for 150 years and is now suddenly the leader of the Free World, to govern our relations with over 100 countries, to govern those relations with success so that the balance of power remains strong on the side of freedom, to make it possible for Americans of all different races and creeds to live together in harmony, to make it possible for a world to exist in diversity and freedom. All this requires the best of all of us.

Therefore, I am proud to come to this college whose graduates have recognized this obligation and to say to those who are now here that the need is endless, and I am confident that you will respond.

Robert Frost said: "Two roads diverged in a wood, and I, I took the one less traveled by, and that has made all the difference."

I hope that road will not be the less traveled by, and I hope your commitment to the Great Republic's interest in the years to come will be worthy of your long inheritance since your beginning.

This day, devoted to the memory of Robert Frost, offers an opportunity for reflection which is prized by politicians as well as by others, and even by poets, for Robert Frost was one of the granite figures of our time in America. He was supremely two things: An artist and an American. A nation reveals itself not only by the men it produces but also by the men it honors, the men it remembers. In America, our heroes have customarily run to men of large accomplishments. But today this college and country honors a man whose contribution was not to our size but to our spirit, not to our political beliefs but to our insights, not to our self esteem, but to our self comprehension. In honoring Robert Frost, we therefore can pay honor to the deepest sources of our national strength. That strength takes many forms, and the most obvious forms are not always the most significant. The men who create power make an indispensable contribution to the nation's greatness, but the men who question power make a contribution just as indispensable, especially when that questioning is disinterested, for they determine whether we use power or power uses us. Our national strength matters, but the spirit which informs and controls our strength matters just as much. This was the especial significance of Robert Frost. He brought an unsparing instinct for reality to bear on the platitudes and pieties of society. His sense of the human tragedy fortified him against self deception and easy consolation. "I have been," he wrote, "one acquainted with the night." And because he knew the midnight as well as the high noon, because he understood the ordeal as well as the triumph of the human spirit, he gave his age strength with which to overcome despairs. At bottom, he held a deep faith in the spirit of man, and it is hardly an accident that Robert Frost coupled poetry and power, for he saw poetry as the means of saving power from itself. When power leads man towards arrogance, poetry reminds him of his limitations. When power narrows the areas of man concerned, poetry reminds him of the richness and diversity of his existence. When power corrupts, poetry cleanses. For art establishes the basic human truths which must serve as the touchstone of our judgment. The artist, however faithful to his personal vision of reality, becomes the last champion of the individual mind and sensibility against an intrusive society and an officious state. The great artist is thus a solitary figure. He has, as Frost said, a lover's quarrel with the world. In pursuing his perceptions of reality, he must often sail against the currents of his time. This is not a popular role. If Robert Frost was much honored during his lifetime, it was because a good many preferred to ignore his darker truths. Yet in retrospect, we see how the artist's fidelity has strengthened the fibre of our national life.

—Photo by Curt Cowley

If sometimes our great artists have been the most critical of our society, it is because their sensitivity and their concern for justice which must motivate any true artist, makes him aware that our nation falls short of its highest potential. I see little of more importance to the future of our country and our civilization than full recognition of the place of the artist. If art is to flourish the roots of our culture, society must set the artist free to follow his vision wherever it takes him. We must never forget that art is not a form of propaganda; it is a form of truth. And as Mr. MacLeish once remarked of poets there is nothing worse for our trade than to be in style. In free society art is not a weapon and it does not belong to the sphere of polemics and ideology. Artists are not engineers of the soul. It may be different elsewhere. But democratic society—in it, the highest duty of the writer, the composer, the artist is to remain true to himself and to let the chips fall where they may. In serving his vision of the truth, the artist best serves his nation. And the nation which disdains the mission of art invites the fate of Robert Frost's hired man, the fate of having nothing to look backward to with pride and nothing to look forward to with hope.

I look forward to a great future for America, a future in which our country will match its military strength with our moral strength, its wealth with our wisdom, its power with our purpose. I look forward to an America which will not be afraid of grace and beauty, which will protect the beauty of our national environment, which will preserve the great old American houses and squares and parks of our national past, and which will build handsome and balanced cities for our future. I look forward to an America which will reward achievement in the arts as we reward achievement in business or state craft. I look forward to an America which will steadily raise the standards of artistic accomplishment and which will steadily enlarge cultural opportunities for all of our citizens. And I look forward to an America which commands respect throughout the world not only for its strength but for its civilization as well. And I look forward to a world which will be safe not only for democracy and diversity but also for personal distinction. Robert Frost was often skeptical about projects for human improvement, yet I do not think he would disdain this hope. As he wrote during the uncertain days of the Second War, take human nature altogether since time began, and it must be a little more in favor of man, say a fraction of one percent at the very least; or our hold on the planet wouldn't have so increased.

Because of Mr. Frost's life and works, because of the life and work of this college, our hold on this planet has increased.

Collegian Celebrates 93rd Birthday

By SHARON O'HARA

This past Saturday was a milestone in the History of the Collegian—its ninety-third anniversary.

On Oct. 26, 1870, the first student publication appeared in the Amherst Record, the town weekly, as a four-column spread across half its first page. Conducted by the senior class, it bore the headline: Massachusetts Agricultural College Department. Holding posts as editors were William H. Bowker, for whom Bowker Auditorium was named, and L. B. Caswell, who later wrote a history of the college. These men were members of our first graduating class.

However, this student-edited section in the town weekly was discontinued after July, 1871. The next nineteen years saw no student publication except the Index. There was a fraternity publication, "The Cycle", starting in 1879 and continuing for ten years. It contained items of interest to the entire student body, and very little fraternity news was printed.

Finally, on Oct. 1, 1890, the first real Aggie newspaper, the "Aggie Life", appeared. This was a two column paper of sixteen pages, published bi-weekly, and 8 by 10 inches in size. Subscription price was a dollar per year, and the first edition was sent as a sample to all friends and alumni of the college. In Aggie Life there was a wider discussion of subjects pertaining to agriculture, especially in regard to agricultural demonstrations conducted here at the college.

In 1901 student and alumnus dislike of the term Aggie led to the 105-4 vote excluding that word from all future publications. On Nov. 6, 1901, the paper adopted the name, The College Signal. The new form contained eighteen pages, on the average, with three columns to the page. Again, in 1914, the paper was renamed "The Massachusetts Collegian."

Since then, the Collegian has progressed from a weekly in 1909 to a semi-weekly in March of 1951 and to the present known tri-weekly paper on Oct. 8, 1956.

Since the beginning of the present fall semester, the Collegian increased its number of pages per week from twenty to twenty-four a jump of twenty per cent.

As we know it, the Collegian has always been an uncensored paper. It has been and is the main media of communications on campus and serves to unite a large student body such as ours.

At this time Helen Curtis, Dean of Women, says in regar to the Collegian staff, "I wis them success in living up to thei slogan—a Free and Responsibl Press."

Dean Field adds that the re sponsibility of the student pres is to the university "In th broadest sense—to the off cam pus people who own us (as w are a public university), to th student body and faculty, anc to all future students of the uni versity." The Collegian mus "work for those things which have meaning in the future."

1st Collegian Tells Much About Old Mass. Aggie

Published on Tuesday, Sep tember 15, 1914, the first issu of the Massachusetts Collegian formerly the College Signal, i a goldmine of information abou Old Mass. Aggie.

In addition to the appealin front page there are seven othe pages each chock full of new and entertainment.

Page two has an interestin story on the improvements mad on campus during the summe A new building, French Hall, an a new fraternity house, Phi Sig ma Kappa, are both almos ready for occupancy. Also, number of new sidewalks ha been constructed to make wal ing on campus easier and le muddy.

On page three, President Bu terfield urges each student "work for the character whi will bring you nearer the pe fect man."

The masthead of the Collegi appears on page four with th name of E. Sumner Draper ' as Athletic Editor. Also, the is an ad for E. M. Bolles, th shoeman.

Ads for BURPEE'S SEED and HUBBARD'S BONE-BAS FERTILIZERS for bigger an better crops, obviously aimed a the aggie man, highlight pag five.

The following two pages, si and seven are composed mostl of ads for more fertilizers, seeds drycleaners, druggists, and Jer sey cows. The last one place by the American Jersey Cattl Club of 324 W. 23rd St., New York.

Eight however is the most in teresting page of the paper Composed entirely of ads, on advertisement, the largest of al stands out. It is actually an ad vertisement for the College it self. Placed by Kenyon L. Bu ter field, President, the ad state that Massachusetts Agricultur College offers courses in instru tion in twenty-six teaching d partments, which embrace th study of: Agriculture, Horticu ture, Science, Humanities, ar Rural Social Science. Also, student may specialize in sub jects ranging widely from Agr culture to Agricultural Chemi try to Agricultural Education.

All those interested, presuma bly the paper reached those out side the University, should write for a complete catalog and illus trated booklet.

The final thing in the paper is an ad for Woodward's Lunch which proudly proclaims in italic print at the bottom: Open at 4 a.m.

·THE·MASSACHUSETTS·COLLEGIAN·

MASSACHUSETTS AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

VOL. XXV. Amherst, Mass., Tuesday, September 15, 1914. No. 1

RULES GOVERNING COLLEGIAN COMPETITION

Savan Positions Open to Competition—Three Freshman Vacancies.

The annual competition for membership on the COLLEGIAN board will be governed by the rules given below. In the editorial department there are five positions open and in the business department there are two vacancies.

Membership to the MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN board shall be gained as follows:

1. Candidates shall be voted on during the first week in March by the members then holding office. A two thirds vote shall be necessary for election.

2. The competition shall open at midnight on September 30, 1914 and shall end at midnight on March 1, 1915; and to become a candidate for election, each competitor must have (25) points to his credit before the close of the contest on March 1.

3. To be eligible to compete, a candidate must have handed his name in to Competition editor, J. A. Price 1915, before Nov. 1, 1914.

4. Points for the competition may be gained as follows: Those competing for positions in the editorial department will receive one point for each seven inches of original copy accepted, one point for each ten inches of assigned reprint matter accepted and one point for each two hour period spent in office work. Assignments will be in charge of J. A. Price, 1915 who will ordinarily make certain assignments on request. The reporting of assembly speeches, addresses, etc., is reprint work.

4. The number of positions open in each class, in the editorial department is, 1916–1, 1917–2,1918–2; in in the business department, 1917–1, 1918–1.

6. The board reserves the right to withhold election in either department, editorial or business, if, in its judgment the poor work of any one group of candidates justifies it. In such case the competition for vacancies will be in charge of the new board, after it has come into office on March 15.

An exception to rule three of the competition in the business department is also to be noted. All candidates for the position of circulation manager must have handed in their

(Continued on page 4)

FRESHMAN CLASS SMALLER THAN USUAL

Entrance Requirements and War Account for Decrease in Number.

The class of 1918 is entering college this fall with a registration of 177 men, 23 less than last year's Freshman class. Various reasons are assigned for this falling off, among them being the higher entrance requirements and the financial stringency due to the war in Europe. The list of the members of the class follows:

Addison, Miss	Newtonville
Allen, Amos	Dalton
Allen, Leland C.	Holyoke
Allen, Ralph E.	Everett
Babbitt, Frank M.	Fairhaven
Bainbridge, Frank	Paterson, N. J.
Baker, Foster K.	Fairhaven
Baker, H. Raymond	Amherst
Barbour, Francis C.	Hartford, Conn.
Barton, George	N. Sudbury
Baxter, Herbert H.	Brighton
Beadle, Herbert O.	Lima, N. Y.
Bennett, E. S.	Blackstone
Binks, F. J.	Maynard
Bolster, Rolfe N.	Worcester
Boyd, Robert L.	Lynn
Brigham, Miss	Newtonville
Brown, Robert E.	Sharon
Bruce, W. G.	Springfield
Burtch, C. S	New Bedford
Cameron, W. L.	Palmer
Canlett, F. H.	Bedford
Capen, H. B.	Canton
Carlson, F. A.	Pittsfield
Carter, Thomas E.	Andover
Chambers, Roger	Dorchester
Chapman, J. A.	Salem
Cheffords, L. D.	Worcester
Clapp, R. F.	Salem
Clark, Stewart S.	Holyoke
Clyburn, A. L.	Brooklyn, N. Y.
Comstock, C. P.	Housatonic
Davenport, W. B.	Fall River
Davis, D. S.	Derry, N. H.
Drummond, J. L.	Holyoke
DuBois, A. G.	Fall River
Duncan, G. J.	Arlington
Durfee, N. O	Fall River
Edes, D. O.	Bolton
Ellis, R. C.	W. Newton, Conn.
Emmrick, L. P.	Paterson, N. J.
Erickson, George	Brockton
Faber, E. S.	Plainfield, N. J.
Fairchild,	Newton, Conn.
Faneuf, L. J.	W. Warren
Farrar, D. B.	Amherst
Fellows, H. C.	Peabody
Ferris, S. B.	New Milford, Conn.
Fletcher, Walter	Newton
Foley, W. A.	Palmer
Foster, Hamilton K.	New Rochelle, N.Y.
Foster, Roy W.	Lynn
Fralick, A. L.	Everett
Fuller, C. B.	W. Quincy
Garvey, Miss M. E.	Amherst
Gasser, T. J.	Uxbridge

(Continued on page 4)

NEW INTERFRATERNITY CONFERENCE RUSHING RULES

Rules Adopted to Govern Shortar Rushing Season.

The Interfraternity conference adopted a constitution and by-laws relative to rushing, last spring. Copies of this constitution were printed this fall and distributed to all members of the class of 1918. For the benefit of those who have not received copies of the constitution the by-laws are reprinted below.

The conference desires that these rules be carefully read by all freshmen and by members of all fraternities recognized at this institution and demands that they be lived up to by all persons concerned. Several rules have been changed from those in effect last fall and especial attention is drawn to them. Dates or engagements shall not be made with any freshman for more than 48 hours in advance. This rule should be strictly observed. Rule V speaks of the wearing of the pledge insignia. It is understood that, as in former years, this insignia is not to be worn until the Monday morning after the rushing season closes when the candidate may wear said pin after the chapel exercises.

Any question as to the interpretation of the rules should be submitted to the Interfraternity conference. The rules follow:

1. Rushing season for freshmen shall be open until the second Sunday in October at six o'clock in the afternoon. The men shall be pledged in chapel the Monday following the second Sunday.

2. From the first pledge date, as above mentioned, no freshman shall be pledged until the first day of May.

3. Pledged freshmen shall not be initiated until the opening of the second semester, and a freshman not a member of the student body at the beginning of the second semester shall not be initiated into any fraternity represented in the conference.

4. No invitation to membership in any fraternity of the conference shall be given to any person who has not matriculated as a regular student in the Massachusetts Agricultural college.

5. The wearing of the pledge insignia binds a man to join the fraternity whose insignia he first wears

(Continued on page 3)

PROSPECTS FOR THE FOOTBALL SEASON

Interesting Schedule of Seven Games—Middlebury Game on Campus.

This year's football schedule is one of the hardest that the M. A. C. team has been up against in years. Despite the fact that the freshman elegibility rule, prevents the members of the class of 1918 from participating in varsity football, Coach Brides is very optimistic concerning the team and its prospects. The present prospects for a successful team are very satisfactory, thirty-five men having reported for varsity football, all being in splendid condition, and almost every man thoroughly familiar with Dr. Brides' system of coaching. Last week only light practice was held, but the excellent condition of the men, coupled with the knowledge of Dr. Brides' system admits of heavy practice being held earlier than usual. Tackling dummies appeared yesterday, and a scrimmage is expected to be held before the end of the week. The schedule is as follows:

Sept. 26—Dartmouth at Hanover, N. H.
Oct. 3—Holy Cross at Worcester.
10—Colgate at Hamilton, N. Y.
17—Colby at Portland, Me.
31—Tufts at Medford.
Nov. 7—Middlebury on Campus
14—Springfield Y. M. C. A. College at Springfield.

The first game on the schedule—Dartmouth—is one of the hardest of the year. Last year the team developed a strength unexpected by Dartmouth, and the Hanover team does not expect to be caught napping this year, as Dartmouth practice started a week before the M. A. C. men came back. This game should be one of the best on the schedule, as both teams will be fairly well developed when they meet Holy Cross, though defeated by M. A. C. last year—will prove a formidable opponent. A new coaching system is being developed at the Worcester college which will assure a more open game. The third game on the schedule—Colgate at Hamilton—is undoubtedly a hard game, as Colgate decisively defeated Yale last year. Colby is an unknown quantity, but her reputation for strong teams is unquestioned. But the latter colleges are new on the M. A. C. schedule.

(Continued on page 4)

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

JERRY WHELCHEL almost breaks clear from a Terrier defender. Jerry scored two touchdowns to lead the team in scoring.

Varsity Football

(Continued from page 10)

his third point after the touchdown to conclude the s oring. Behind, 21-0, the Terriers lost their steam. The second team held the opposition in check until the game ended; the final score: UMass 21, B.U. 0.

The amazing Redmen defense, which has done so well in the past, kept up the good work by allowing the strong ground gainers of B.U. only 117 yards. The defensive backfield did well, only allowing Terrier quarterbacks to complete nine of ninteen for 58 yards; they also came up with two interceptions. Bernie Dallas, Dick Warren, and Bob Ellis were standouts of the unit. The game Saturday marked the fourth shutout of the season for the Redmen.

The offense went very smoothly with the interior line opening up large holes for backs Ken Palm, Phil DeRose and Mike Ross. Jerry Whelchel had a poor day as a pitcher but faked well and kept the Terriers off balance with his fine running. He completed five of thirteen for 67 yards, gained 44 yards on the ground, and had one interception. He led the team in scoring with two touchdowns, and three PATs for a total of fifteen points.

Bob Meers had a good day as a receiver with five receptions for 67 yards. Whelchel led the rushers with 44 yards and was followed in this department by Ken Palm and Mike Ross. Terry Swanson was very consistant with his punting by kicking nine times for an average distance of 39 yards. The UMass depth was also an important factor with the second team working just about as smoothly as the first.

Next week, the Redmen meet Vermont here in Amherst for what could be the game which gives the Yankee Conference crown to UMass. The Redmen have never won the title outright and are very anxious to do so. Their undefeated record of 5-0-1 will also be on the line next week at 1:30.

—Photo by Bill Green

BOB MEERS catching a long pass in the first quarter of Saturday's game. The play set up the Redmen's first touchdown.

Varsity Soccer

(Continued from page 10)

Jumbos as they missed all their scoring opportunities, until left fullback Ed Solomon scored on a penalty shot, the first of his all important tallies on penalty shots. Score: 2-1 Redmen.

FOURTH QUARTER ACTION proved to be decisive for both teams. Tufts began to apply the pressure which was lacking in the preceding three periods. Center forward Jim Kaufman scored on a beautiful shot across the front of the net to the corner tying the game up 2-2. Dick Leete broke the tie by driving around the defense to drop the ball over the goalies head into the net making it 3-2, Redmen. Solomon then tied it up again on a penalty shot resulting from the use of hands by Redman fullback Gladback. With the score tied at 3-3 a double overtime became necessary.

Tufts dominated the first overtime period missing several chances on cornerkicks, until Ademola Babajide of Nigeria tallied with 15 seconds left in the first overtime period.

UMass tied the game at the end of the first overtime with a penalty shot and went on to win on a beauitful goal in the second overtime. The failure of Jim Kaufman to report in upon assuming goalie duties gave Dick Leete the chance to score on a penalty shot to tie the game. Pat McDevitt, so important to the Redmen effort, scored on a head shot from Paul Bergan to win the game for the Redmen.

EFFORT SUCH AS HAS BEEN EVIDENT in the URI and Tufts games could prove decisive in the Amherst College game coming up November 6 at the University.

THEY SING HONEST FOLK SONGS.

IN A WILD,
DRIVING,
SPIRITED, EXCITING, AND SOMETIMES QUIET
NEW WAY.

THE JOURNEYMEN

NEW DIRECTIONS IN FOLK MUSIC.

Capitol RECORDS

Just listen to their Capitol album, "New Directions in Folk Music."

You'll hear the rocking, driving way the Journeymen sing "Someday Baby," a low down blues out of Chicago. The fun they have with "Stackolee," the wild song about a legendary terror of New Orleans. Their quiet and moving version of "All the Pretty Little Horses," one of the most beautiful lullabies ever written. Their spirited ragtime rendition of "San Francisco Bay."

Then you'll know what's new in folk songs. And what's best. Capitol RECORDS

Look for—ask for—the Journeymen in concert on your campus.

PETER PAN BUS LINES
BOSTON EXPRESS BUS
Via Massachusetts Turnpike

—Also Serving—
HOLYOKE
SPRINGFIELD
PALMER
WORCESTER

8 ROUND TRIPS DAILY
For Schedule and Information Call at the THE LOBBY SHOP Student Union

CHARTER A BUS TO ALL AMERICA

UMass Redmen Overturn B.U.

Strong Offense, Stronger Defense; 4thRedmenShutout

by KEVIN COYLE

Last Saturday the University of Massachusetts football team scored its most impressive, and its most important victory, in its drive for an undefeated season. The Redmen defeated Boston University at Nickerson Field 21-0, before a packed house of 12,000. It was homecoming for the B.U. Terriers, who became the sixth consecutive homecoming victims of the Redmen over the past few years.

Fusia's men got a good break early in the game. After Milt Morin's kickoff, George Byrd fumbled for B.U. on their first down. Jerry Whelchel recovered on the B.U. 43 yard line. Four plays later Byrd recovered Mike Ross' fumble on the B.U. 17. A few plays later, another adroit Terrier back gave the ball to Milt Morin on the B.U. 32. Mike Ross and Jerry Whelchel ran well with Whelchel capping the drive by taking the ball over from the 10 on a keeper play through the center of the sleeping Terrier line. Whelchel kicked the extra point the score was 7-0, UMass. The rest of the half was played with much crashing of heads, but nothing very productive happened as neither side could put together a strong offensive push. Terry Swanson proved to be very valuable in this defensive battle with his booming punts constantly forcing B.U. to take the ball back in its own territoy. The score was still 7-0 when the half ended.

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

TERRY SWANSON punts UMass out of trouble during the second quarter.

After intermission, the Redmen offense became more explosive, and the defense more rugged. After receiving a B.U. punt midway in the third quarter, Jerry Whelchel threw thirty-five yards to Bob Meers on the B.U. 34 yard line. Ken Palm, Mike Ross, and Jerry Whelchel hit the Terrier line for yardage down to the B.U. 22, where Ken Palm took off around left end, made some great cuts and wound up in the endzone. Jerry Whelchel booted the extra point to put the visitors ahead 14-0.

The home team only got off one set of downs before it was forced to punt to Phil DeRose. Phil caught the ball within arms reach of a B.U. player. Expecting to be tackled, he clutched the ball; the Terrier just stood there, so DeRose stepped around him and went for more yardage. A clipping penalty put the ball back on the B.U. 49. The line moved very well at this point, making possible consistant gains by Bob Ellis, Mike Ross, Dick Warren, and Phil DeRose. At the 27 yard line Jerry Whelchel went all the way with good faking on a keeper play. He then kicked

(Continued on page 9)

Univ. of Mass. OPERETTA GUILD
in asociation with the
OPERA WORKSHOP
presents
MEREDITH WILLSON'S
The Music Man
OCTOBER 31 thru NOVEMBER 2
All evenings at 8:15 p.m.
Saturday matinee at 2:00 p.m.
Tickets on Sale at the Student Union Box Office, Phone 545-2528
$1.50 ALL SEATS RESERVED $1.75

—Photo by Darryl Fine

KEN PALM smashes through Terrier line on one of his many jaunts at Nickerson Field.

SOCCER TRIUMPH

Redmen Booters Defeat Jumbos; Victory After Double Overtime

by SCOTT FREEDLAND

Tufts College went down to defeat 5-4 at the hands of the Varsity booters, Friday, in double overtime. The two teams could not have been more evenly matched in conditioning and all around caliber of play than they were. Mike Zawrotny, Pat McDevitt, Tom Astaldi, and Dick Leete figured in most of the play for the Redmen.

Play had hardly begun in the first period when it became evident that the heat was sapping the strength of the players. Mike Zawrotny, who was to figure in much of the offensive and defensive action of the day, opened the game with a head shot on a loose ball which was saved by the Jumbo goalie, diving across the front of the net. Pushing called on the Redmen gave the Jumbo's their first real shot of the period, as Redman goalie Phillips picked off the shot in the manner which is now familiar to those following Redman soccer. Zawrotny had another shot on the enemy net but the booters missed their chance on the following cornerkick. Pat McDevitt driving in for the last shot of the period got off a beautiful shot as he was knocked to his knees, fortunately, without any injury.

THE SECOND QUARTER was only 37 seconds old when Ed Konieczny, in his third game of the season, tallied for the Redmen on a pass series from Astaldi and Dick Leete. Kevin Lyons followed by Dick Leete each had their shots on the net blocked by the Jumbo goalie. Tufts missed its chance in front of the net by pushing. The poor conditioning of both teams became apparent in the heat and humidity. Yomi Segan Falade of Nigeria almost tallied for the Jumbos on a fast shot in front of the Redman net; Phillips made the save. The Tufts goalie began moving out in front of the net to make saves on loose balls as the second quarter ended 1-0 UMass.

The setting of the sun and the resulting cooling effect helped play in the second half. Pat McDevitt crossing the ball to Buzz Whitman was unable to set up a tally as was Jumbo outside Antonio Camejo who lost his chance attempting to set up his left foot. The booters kept the pressure on until Buzz Whitman scored on a head shot, off a pass by Paul Bergan. Dick Leete followed Bergan to score on the Jumbo defense, only to have it called back because of an offside. The rapid fire Redmen goals seemed to have unnerved the

(Continued on page 9)

Dorothy Nestle
LIBRARY

LIBRARY
OCT 31 1963
UNIVERSITY
MASSAC

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 20 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1963

Senate 'Conflict' Debate To Be Broadcast Tonite

This evening the campus radio station will broadcast live the weekly meeting of the Student Senate. Those who have been reading the Collegian faithfully are aware that tonight one of the major orders of business to be dealt with by the Senate will be reconsideration of the Conflict of Interest Bill which was discussed last week but was not voted on because of two Senators' walking out.

The discussion and final vote on the reconsideration of this bill should provide interesting listening.

Another item to be brought up at this meeting is the Area Judiciary Bill which should also cause some controversy on the Senate floor. Since the seating capacity in the Council Chambers is so limited, WMUA has decided to carry the proceedings live and in full, incompatible color. The agenda for this evening's Senate meeting is as follows:

Old Business

S-21 Be it resolved that, in accordance with the Student Government Association Constitution, Article 1, Section 2, there shall be established an Area Judiciary as a subsidiary and assisting body to Men's Judiciary.

a. Said Area Judiciary shall have the power to try all violations of University regulations within the dormitory area referred to them by the appropriate student personnel officials.

b. Said Area Judiciary shall be composed of one person from each dormitory in the respective areas, to be chosen according to the method set forth by the Men's Affairs Committee with the approval of the Student Senate.

c. The Men's Judiciary shall have the power to subdivide the Area Judiciary as to living areas for Judicial convenience.

d. Decisions of the Area Judiciary may be appealed through the normal appellate procedures of the University.

Act: Mathieson-Jones-McNamara-Howard)

Amendment to S-21

b. The method of selection shall be as follows: each House Council shall recommend a selected group of applicants from its resective residence hall from which there shall then be chosen, according to the method in force for the General Court of Justices and the Men's Affairs Committee, th same number of persons as the number of residence halls in the specified area.

1. In this matter, it is not necessary that each residence hall be represented by a member of the Area Judiciary.

2. If a member of an Area Judiciary should move from the Area which he represents, he will no longer serve as a member of that body and a new Justice will be selected to fill the vacancy.

(Boyd)

New Business

S-35 Whereas the Student Senate has as its prime obligation the welfare of the Student Body and,

Whereas it has been shown that deficiencies exist in the fire protection afforded resident students,

Be it resolved that the Student Senate recommend to the President and Board of Trustees that all means of securing adequate fire protection for resident students be explored.

(Resolved: McNamara)

Unfinished Business

Moved to reconsider S-19.

Pipe Failure Brings Injury To Student

A break in a pipe carrying ammonia yesterday caused injury to one man and forced evacuation of Flint Laboratory.

The pipe was connected to a tank, and upon breakage, released over 300 lbs. of the deadly gas.

Myron Ball, who was working in the building at the time, was treated for slight irritation due to contact of the gas with exposed areas of his body.

Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds Edmund J. Ryan told the Collegian that two employes entered the building wearing self-contained breathing masks and closed the valves of the pipe system.

Senior Index Photographs Are Delayed

Senior photos appearing in the 1964 Index must be made by the Index photographers now photographing in the S.U., according to a yearbook policy statement.

Because of differences in head sizes, background and lighting, glossy photographs from other photographers can not be accepted, the statement said.

To date, 750 seniors have been photographed. Approximately 450 more seniors have not been photographed.

Index photographers will continue photographing in the Norfolk-Plymouth rooms until 11 a.m. Friday. There will be no photographs after that hour. Photographing will be done from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., excluding noon to 1 p.m.

Last year the 1963 Index published portraits of 1173 seniors.

Blood Insurance Plan Announced By Red Cross

—Photo by Nina Perlmutter

Aside from contributing to a worthy cause when he gives blood, the student makes blood available to all students in case of emergency. Each donor becomes a member of the Red Cross Blood Insurance Program, which applies anywhere in this country and parts of Canada.

Any student enrolled at the University, who is over 18 years of age and over 110 pounds, may pledge. Utmost care is taken to provide for the welfare of donors when blood is given. Donors are accepted only after their medical records have been reviewed and they have passed a brief and pertinent physical examination. Blood pressure, blood count, pulse, temperature, weight, etc., are checked. There are no harmful after-effects of donation; resistance to disease is not lowered.

The donation of a pint of blood is not a painful or uncomfortable experence. A few donors have a temporary feeling of weakness, but this is quickly alleviated by a brief period of rest and refreshment provided by the Red Cross. In effect, donatng a pint of blood is the equivalent of two hours of moderately strenuous exercise.

Smothers Brothers To Be Featured In S.U. Concert

The two Smothers Brothers will be the attraction of a concert to be presented by the Student Union Sunday, November 10.

The two, Jack and Tom thrive in the satire of commercial folk music. They have appeared in numerous television shows, and have performed in many of the nation's top nightclubs.

A cross country tour of the college concert circuit added to their fame.

Their first meeting with a national audience was on the Jack Parr Show in 1961, since then they have progressed up the ladder, with the use of their satire.

Tickets for the concert will go on sale this Friday in the Lobby of the Student Union.

SMOTHERS BROTHERS

Senate President To Appear On Impulse

In recent weeks the Student Senate has attracted a good deal of attention, praise, and censure on the campus. Many of the students, even as they praise or criticize, do not know much about the Senate.

Why was it organized? What is wrong with it? What does it do? What can be done to improve it?

To answer these questions, WMUA will present an hour panel discussion on the Student Senate on Impulse at 7 p.m., Thursday, October 21.

Panelists will be Jon Fife, president of the Student Senate; Jeff Davidow, Editor-in-chief of the Collegian; and Severt Severeid, Professor of Speech at UMass.

During the discussion, WMUA invites students, staff and faculty to call in questions for the panel. It should be an informative program to those curious as to the usefulness and functions of the Student Senate.

MID-SEMESTERS

A reminder that the mid-semester grade period ends on Saturday, November 2nd. The mid-semester grade reports will be available from advisers on Friday, November 15th and thereafter.

Car Strikes Pole On Hill

An auto driven by a Mass junior was damaged in an accident late Monday night.

According to University police, the car, driven by Steven H. Vengrow of 418 N. Pleasant St. (TEP), came in contact with a utility pole outside of Chadbourne.

Vengrow was driving down Van Meter hill when the accident occurred, causing damage to the right front side of the car, the hood, and grille.

Officers Francis Mazzei and Donald Zidik investigated.

Zoning Board Rejects Chi Omega's Case

The Amherst Zoning Board Oct. 17 denied Chi Omega a variance which would allow the sorority to build a house outside the campus residence zone. The variance was denied on the grounds that no hardship existed on the property at the corner of Fearing and Lincoln Avenue.

Miss Iona Reynolds, a member of the board of directors of Chi Omega, presented the petition for the house. The directors, she told the board, had taken an option on the land which needed a variance because they wanted the girls to get the best possible site for their money.

Most of the land in the campus zone is being bought up, she explained; what is available is too high in price, nearly double what was asked before the campus zone was formed. If purchased by an individual for a home, the asking price for the Lincoln Street property was $10,000; Chi Omega had to meet a verbal offers of $22,000 for the property.

According to architects and realtors, Miss Reynolds said, it is usual to pay 10% of the cost of your home for the land. At the present price a house on this piece of land would run around $100,000 and few people could afford this.

Citing the uses allowed "by right" in a limited residence zone, boarding house, church,

(Continued on page 3)

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

With "Equality" In Mind

by JOHN B. CHILDS

Two days ago Stanley H. Lowell of the New York City Commission on Human Rights announced that the Commission has decided that the "inequalities of 100 years" with regard to the American Negro can be overcome only by what he terms "preferential treatment" of the Negro. This treatment would involve giving the Negro preference over whites in the search for employment opportunity.

There is no doubt that the "inequalities of 100 years" do weigh heavily on the integration movement. There is no doubt that today qualified Negroes are in too many cases being refused positions on the grounds of their race. Furthermore there is no doubt that the integration movement must proceed with increased determination and energy.

What is the integration movement? It is a popular revolution directed toward the goal of providing for all individuals regardless of race a range of alternatives, from which they may choose. In essence it is a move to give the Negro citizen liberties which he deserves as an American citizen, civil liberties.

And what are civil liberties? They are those liberties which each citizen of the United States should possess from the very nature of his being such a citizen. However if we examine the foundation of the concept "preferential treatment" we see that citizens, white citizens, would be denied certain of those liberties because of their race. What we see in this so called "preferential treatment" is "preferential discrimination," discrimination in the name of anti-discrimination.

Those who support "preferential treatment" say that it will be temporary until equality is established. But how can equality be established when the establishment of such equality must arise from the use of inequality. This is somewhat reminiscent of the legendary dictator who stated that political turmoil in his country would end as soon as democratic elections were held and that furthermore elections would be held as soon as turmoil ended. That we should be unequal in order to become equal is a vicious endless line which one cannot escape from after stepping upon it.

The dignity of the individual achieved through equality in an environment of a wide range of subtle alternatives must be worked for. It must be worked for against the stone hard face of unequal practices. If it is worked for in conjunction with unequal practices, as it would be under "preferential treatment," it becomes no more than a discriminatory movement in itself. If this happens the fighting work of many integrationists will have been lost.

We stand against "preferential treatment" and for equality to be achieved always with "Equality" in mind.

A Conservative View

What Is Conservatism?

by RICK CASS

In today's world, with its complex relationships between men and nations, the political situation is often referred to as a battle between the Liberal and the Conservative. But in this conflict of ideas, a clear definition of Conservatism is sadly missing. No two people have the same idea of what it is. Yet, there is a basis for conservative policy.

Is Conservatism a reactionary movement, as often is said? Is it a plea for the "status quo" or a tool of the "exploiting capitalists" as the accusations go? No! It is none of these things. Conservatism is not a negative or static thought process. It is, in actuality, progressive. That is, it does not advocate a return to the past or a stagnant halt in the present. But it does advocate moving into the future on solid ground. That is, moving forward with a set of principles whose effectiveness has been proven through past experience, and can be applied to present and future situations.

Then a conservative is one who would look very closely at any new system—not with fear or ridicule, but with a questioning and probing mind. He would ask, "Is this a valid and effective solution to the problem?" He would ask, "What are the consequences of this solution?" These questions must be asked, and truly cogent answers must be produced. They must be effective, truly effective. They must be valid, logically valid. They must, before all, tend to preserve the sanctity of the INDIVIDUAL mind, person, and property.

Then, Conservatism is not the rejection of economic or "social" problems, but a true awareness of them and a search for the correct and meaningful solutions to these.

Senatorium

by MARK CHEREN

A Suggestion

The only legitimate fear of conflict of interests within the Student Senate is that the Finance or Budgets Committees could become "stacked" by the members of one organization and that an abnormally high budget might get passed for that organization. I therefore propose the following amendment to S19, replacing its present five clauses with the single one below.

Be it resolved that the Executive Committee shall be directed to review the memberships of the budgets and finance committees with the express purpose of restricting representation on these committees from any one SATF supported organization to not more than one position.

The only rational alternative is to vote down S19 altogether, trusting the Executive Committee to attend to this on their own volition.

Letters To The Editor

A Deplorable Situation

To the Editor:

Last Wednesday evening witnessed a drama on the floor of the Student Senate which, from any aspect, can only be termed deplorable. The merits of the Mathieson-McNamara Conflict of Interest Act not withstanding (and we might note that we favor the principle it embodies), the actions of all three parties: major proponents, the Chair, and the dissenting minority can be viewed only as something less than responsible.

Parliamentary procedure was designed as a tool for the smooth and effective conduct of business, in light of the democratic will of the majority, but with due regard as well for the full protection of the rights of the minority.

The Mathieson-McNamara motion for immediate reconsideration was an attempt to use parliamentary procedure as a weapon of policy with utter disregard for the rights of the dissenting minority. Two possible rationalizations occur to us, neither of which is becoming to the dignity of a responsible member of the Student Senate: first, a fear that the act could not withstand any close scrutiny at a later date in the light of additional information which might be offered in argument; or second, a doubt of the ability of the Senate to give a rational and intelligent reconsideration at some later date. We shall not attempt to discuss the particular merit of these presumptions, but the Senators' efforts to remove the question from any future competance of this session raises some interesting doubts about the maturity of at least some of the hands that wield our student government.

By accepting the motion on the floor, the Chair in effect condoned this misuse of parliamentary procedure as a policy weapon. In so doing, inadvertantly perhaps, the Chair abrogated its position of impartial responsibility not only for carrying out the will of the majority, but for protecting the rights of the dissenting minority.

Finally, the action of Senators Watson and Singer was at best hasty and ill-considered. Their indignation may well have been in order, but their proper recourse should have been to the rules of parliamentary procedure by means of a "point of order" or "point of personal privilege" to remind the Chair of its responsibilities for impartial protection of minority rights. This failing, an appeal from the ruling of the Chair, would, at least, have placed the responsibility (or irresponsibility) where it belonged—with the Senate as a whole and not with the five individuals comprising the principal proponents, the Chair, and the principal opposition.

It is to be sincerely hoped that this evening's session will find responsible Senators acting inthe spirit of parliamentary procedure in not only carrying forth the majority decision but in respecting the rights of the minority. By so acting, those involved can only gain stature, for it is not a question of anyone "getting his way or having his reputation hindered," but rather of all concerned parties earning the reputation for maturity and responsibility which should characterize our Student Government Association.

David S. Mitchell '65

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

Clear And Present Danger

The idea of conflict of interest refers to the advisability of placing in a position of public service, a person whose loyalty is divided between his public conscience and private interest. Such a person's ordinarily good judgment may be colored in a certain situation by his vocational interests, to the extent that he will act for his own gain at the expense of the community. This is why, on the national or state levels, the owner of a heavy construction company is usaully prohibited from also being on the Department of Public Works. He might conceivably attempt to swing business to his own company.

Tonight the Senate will decide the fate of its own conflict of interest bill, S-19, as proposed by Senators Mathieson and MacNamara. They have seen fit to try to abstract the theory of conflict of interest from its highly publicized role in state politics and apply it to the Student Senate.

However, no matter how estimable a concept may appear in theory, it often does not lend itself to certain situations. I believe the University environment to be such a situation.

The academic environment is unique in that the primary interests of the students are the educational process and graduation, rather than the usurpation of student funds to a particular extra-curricular activity at the expense of the rest of the student body. To insist the opposite is to admit the viewpoint of unqualified pessimism and suspicion toward the motives of individual students.

To restrict a Senator or any other student from full participation and responsibility in an activity, on these grounds, is to unfairly restrict his personal educational progress.

If the Senate is consciously willing to restrict a student, and thus assume such a responsibility for his education, there must be shown an ominous and present need for this legislation that will counter-balance the restrictive effects of its essential negativism. I submit that there is no such need, and that there has never been such a need on this campus. The burden of proof must rest with the proponents of the bill, and I challenge them to prove such a need.

This need must be one such that does now, and will always in the future, inundate and overwhelm the good sense of present and future committee chairmen and present and future Presidents of the Senate. For, under the present system, THEY are responsible for the selection of the committees, and are the positive checks on the abuse of committee power. It seems to me that this flexible system has worked remarkably well in the past, and that this system should be overthrown only if it can be proven to be completely inoperative. Such radical legislation should not be passed simply because one or two isolated and questionable instances may be dredged up out of the past.

I urge all Senators and their constituents to carefully consider this bill, and unless a clear and present danger can be shown to justify its passage to vote NO on the Senate floor Wednesday night. It is impossible to legislate perfection and common sense. Express your faith in the present system and its leaders by killing this bill.

David L. Clancy,
Fraternity Senator

Pastor Pancho Answers Querys

by JAY ISGUR

Pastor Poncho is a feature series by an ex-milk jockey who made his deliveries in a tennis-mad community. Often, he found cryptic questions (like the one below) that he perceived to be pleas for guidance from a people who spoke only one weird language. Pancho lists questions and his answers in this regular column.

Question:

"I am left-handed. On a very sunshiny morning recently I was to play a tournament match against a fellow club member who is a lawyer. He won the toss and instead of choosing either (a) to serve or receive, or (b) which court to start in, he said "I choose to have my opponent choose." If I chose to serve, he undoubtedly would elect the court that would cause me to serve the first game from the side giving me, a lefty, the most difficulty, while he, a righty, would not be so much bothered in serving the second game. If I chose the side, he could achieve the same result by his decision whether to serve or receive. Did he have the right to make this use of his having won the toss?"

Answer:

In the tossing sea of life, some of us are born on the winning side of the coin, others on the losing—some are Normal, some are Abnormal. Invariably the Abnormal enters into some sort of joyless relationship with the far more numerous Normals—they who play by The Rules.

The Abnormal, half blinded by the glare of these newly sensed rules, must now face the devastating Truth: here is Kafka's Metamorphosis, Heller's Catch 22, and Conrad's Heart of Darkness.

For this wretched protagonist there is no poetic justice. If he does not play by The Rules he will lose, says Kafka. If he does play by The Rules he will lose, declares Heller. He should lose, says a not overly optimistic Conrad.

As for myself, I can see but one way out, one answer—very symbolic, having all sorts of grizzly connotations. Play at night.

Question:

I would appreciate information on the following situations which I do not find covered in the Manual. (1). During the singles match, may a player receive advice, information or coaching from anyone? (2). During the rest period between sets, may a player proceed to the backboard and practice?

Answer:

There is nothing in the Old Testament, New Testament, Tao Te Ching, or Analects of Confucius which prohibits a person from seeking and receiving "advice, information, and coaching" as he goes through life. In fact, these great books are very explicit in their "coaching."

We must remember, however, that most vividly poetic, most strikingly dynamic, most exquisitely subtle phrase—"Experience is a harsh teacher, but a good one."

Anyway, subtle or not, this phrase is a call to go out and experience, to go out and react, react, react, and don't stop. Find your own meaning—your own order.

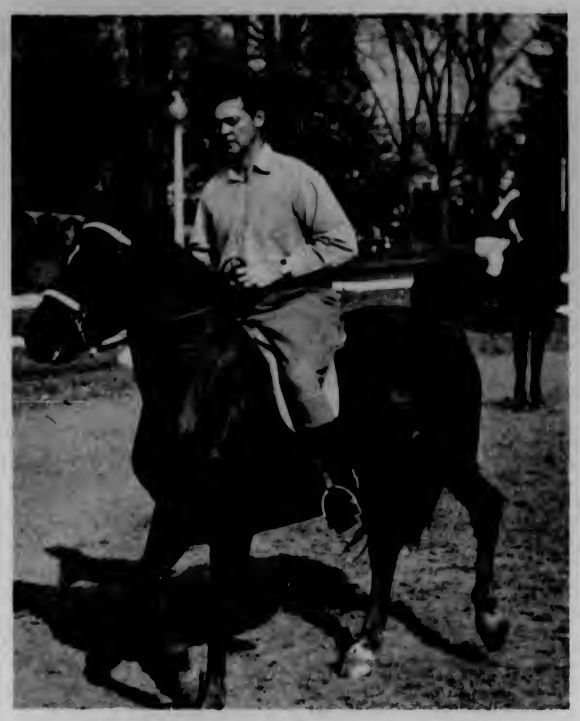
However, in reading the second part of your question, I feel that either you are right now contemplating a cessation of activity, or have already stopped. In either case, let me advise you to stop only momentarily. For no matter how absolutely indispensable is the advice you seek, it can never outweigh the harm done by too long a suspension from activity. Get coaching if you have to, but don't waste too much time. Even if you think you are going to lose, you might as well lose while playing the game. It's a pity to be knocked out while practising against a backboard.

Russian Club Holds First Meeting

Slides of Russia were shown by Mrs. Elizabeth C. Gladir of the Russian Department at the first meeting of the Russian Club that was held Tuesday night October 22 in the Norfolk room of the Student Union.

The slides depicted both the old and the new Russia, its people and the various spots of interest. Of special interest was that Mrs. Gladir said that the Russian people do not like tourists to take pictures of old Russia, but instead like them to take pictures of new Russia.

(Continued on page 6)



Gov. Endicott Peabody pictured last weekend on UM campus.

Cuba Visitors Barred

NEW YORK, N.Y. (CPS)—The four students indicted by a Federal Grand Jury for violating a State Department ban on travel to Cuba were barred from speaking at several campuses during the past two weeks.

Three of the city colleges, Brooklyn, City and Queens, refused to allow any of the students under indictment to appear on campus. The ban was allegedly based on a City University ruling which prohibited anyone under indictment for a felony from speaking at any of the city colleges.

City College, however, removed the ban when President Huell Gallagher declared that the City University ruling had been revoked in 1961, at a time when President Gallagher was not in New York. He indicated that a speaker policy was left up to each of the colleges individually, and that City College would not impose any ban. Queens and Brooklyn, however, still retain a ban on the indicted students.

Two of the leaders of the trip to Cuba, Philip Luce and Levi Laub, spoke at City last Thursday. A third student under indictment, Stefan Martinot, appeared at Hunter College last Friday. Hunter had indicated that no speaker under indictment "for political reasons" would be banned from the college.

—FOR SALE—
1956 OLDSMOBILE CONV.
Good condition. Inquire:
Courtney Brickman, AL 6-6831

Commuter Wanted!
Living or Going through
S. Hadley to deliver pkgs.
Mail name and address to Mike Rubin, 136 Sunset Ave., Amherst.

THE ALPS...made in Italy by FABIANO
Handmade Imported Boots for the Outdoor Men and Women...

STYLE #91

For Men or Women, Siena Brown Italian Suede, soft and supple, will never crack or harden. For Rock Climbing or Hiking. Padded Tongue and Quarter for extreme comfort at the ankle. Vibram lug sole. Men's N and L—6 to 14, Ladies N and M—5 to 11. (Sizes 13 to 14 $3.00 Extra).

Style 91 $22.95 Plus Postage

Write for Free Brochure, Fabiano Shoe Co., Inc., Dept. MC, South Station, Boston 10, Mass.

Integrity — Service
Friendly Advice
ART RUGGLES'
SKI SHOP
17 High Street
GREENFIELD, MASS.
Ski Coach, Deerfield Academy
OPEN EVENINGS TO 9 P.M.
PHONE 774-4855

Second In A Series

Minnie Dwight - Woman Crusader

by TERRY STOCK

Minnie Ryan, destined to become one of the nation's most outstanding journalists, was born in North Hadley in 1873. Although she attended Hopkins Academy in Hadley, took special courses at Mount Holyoke, and taught for several years at a country schoolhouse, her cherished ambition was to become a journalist.

Finally, Minnie was given an opportunity to prove herself, when Dr. William Dwight, her family physician (whose son owned and edited The Transcript of Holyoke) learned of the young girl's secret ambition. Minnie began writing editorials for William R. Dwight, whom she would later marry.

Minnie's writing style, unusually clear and concise, and her limitless variety of interests aided her in becoming one of the most important assets of The Transcript. In her role of writer she molded the paper's policy toward a firm championship of women's rights. Actively campaigning for women's suffrage, she exemplified in her personal life the highest ideals of public service.

Mrs. Dwight took an active interest in politics. She was a delegate to two national conventions and was offered an appointment as a member of the Republican National Committee.

Minnie's main goal in her writing was to educate her readers, and that she successfully accomplished for over fifty years in newspaper work.

The scope of her influence was enormous. Serving on the boards of six member agencies of the Community Chest, she was instrumental in organizing the Holyoke Community Chest itelf. She was a member of the Board of Trustees of the Hampden County Aid to Agriculture, and president, for twenty-two years, of the Hampton County Extension Service Home Bureau. Furthermore, she was a Trustee of American International College.

Listing all the community organizations in which Minnie participated would be impossible in this short space. A complete column is required in "Who's Who in America" to enumerate all her affiliations.

Above all, she had a sincere love for the University of Massachusetts. As a member of the Women's Advisory Council, she took great pride in meeting all woman students, and was always interested in making the best educational opportunities available to women.

In 1947 the University of Massachusetts presented her with the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, making her the first woman to receive that honor.

Having become editor and publisher of The Transcript after her husband's death in 1930, she ran the paper efficiently and expertly until her own death in 1957. Her outstanding work during this career was heralded by newspapermen across the nation.

She was an educator, writer, and protector of women's rights. She was also a woman with a perpetually young spirit. Her keen sense of humor was never abusive—always amusing. She had a way of bringing her audience to stitches with her clever remarks. Her philosophy was consistantly sound. She once said, "The soul of a community consists of what its people can do together." Now, Dwight House, named in her honor, is a community paying tribute to Mrs. William R. Dwight.

A New Twist To Your News

by INEZ BRAND

In "The Unfair Sex", authoress Nina Farewell offers helpful hints to the huntress. Nina notes that husband-hunters will not find New York a well-stocked game land as women by far outnumber men in the metropolis. Nina also advises against safaris. to Washington, D.C., Dallas, Savannah, Ga., and Richmond, Va. Favorable chances for a catch are at Lawton, Okla., Wichita Falls, El Paso, or Amarillo, Texas, Columbus, Ga., or Norfolk, Va., where the ratio of the sexes is 117 men to every 100 women.

Need more encouragement? Remember, about 65% of the female population get married by the time they are 21. According to reference statistics for 1961, 12% of our sister co-eds were married, and almost 6% of high school girls were married.

Have you ever asked yourself, "Will safflower oil help me lose weight?" Well, the answer is no. As a matter of fact, calories from safflower oil may cause you to gain weight. Stated tautologically, to lose weight you must either exercise away more calories than those provided by what you eat, or you must eat food with less calories than you will lose through exercise.

A surprising relationship between obesity and socio-economic status has been exposed by three New York doctors. They found that thirty per cent of the women from the poorest social strata were overweight, in contrast to four per cent of women from the top levels of society.

Chi Omega ...

Continued from page 1

library, school, tourist home, farm, market garden, club, nursery, storage garage, athletic field, playground, country club, Miss Reynolds pointed out that a sorority house would be a better use of the land for the neighborhood.

The University of Massachusetts is expanding, Miss Reynolds said, "we can't close our eyes to it; it is happening." "In recognition of the inevitable," she added, "a sorority house is the best use possible for the land considering the time and the change which will come to the area."

Education Television For Springfield - Amherst Area

Educational television for the Springfield-Amherst area is about to become a reality. Television repeaters are currently under construction on Mt. Lincoln and Mt. Tom to pick up and rebroadcast WGBH-TV, the educational station in Boston. Channel 82 will serve the Amherst-Northampton area while Channel 73 will broadcast for the communities further south. The repeaters, called translators, are being erected by the Massachusetts Executive Committee for Educational Television, parent organization of THE 21 INCH CLASSROOM, the nationally famous school television service currently reaching 750,000 children in Eastern Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Hampshire.

With contruction proceeding smoothly, it is expected that the educational telecasts will begin about November 4, 1963, barring unforeseen delays. These translators will make available to the schools in the communities served, the 28 different series of television lessons in science, literature, current events, music and conversational French presented by THE 21 INCH CLASSROOM. The programs are planned to bring to the classroom educational resources that would not normally be available. The programs, which seek to avoid duplicating those things the classroom teachers can do, have been used in many cities across the country and have received four national awards.

Although the basic purpose of the translators is the service to the schools, THE 21 INCH CLASSROOM presently plans to rebroadcast all the programs of the reknown educational station WGBH-TV so that the evening programs for home viewing will

(Continued on page 7)

1. Now that I'm a senior I have to start thinking about my future. Will you marry me?

Will you be able to give me all the things I crave—like pizza pie and chow mein?

2. I've lined up a terrific job. There's a choice of training programs, good starting salary, challenging work, and the chance to move up. That's Equitable.

I agree—but what's the company's name?

3. Equitable—it's Equitable.

It certainly is. It's also fair, square, and just. But I would still like to know the name of the company.

4. We're not communicating. I keep telling you it's Equitable—and you keep asking what's the name.

I keep agreeing your job sounds good. But you stubbornly refuse to tell me who you're going to work for.

5. Can it be you never listen to my words? Is it possible that what I thought was a real relationship was but a romantic fantasy?

Is it conceivable that what I took to be a solid foundation was just a house of cards? That what I thought was a bright flame was merely an emotional flicker?

6. I'd hate to lose you, but at least I'll still have my job with Equitable—The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.

Oh, The Equitable. Why didn't you say so? We'll have a June wedding.

For information about career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write to William E. Blevins, Employment Manager.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States

Home Office: 1285 Avenue of the Americas, New York 19, N. Y. ©1963

Dean Curtis Labuzoski On WMUA

Have you ever had any questions about University policy in regard to Women's affairs? Have you ever wondered why certain rules exist? This is your opportunity to find out. This Sunday evening from 7:30-8:00 Miss Helen Curtis, Dean of Women, and Joan Labuzoski, Vice President of the Student Senate, will be on Interaction, WMUA's weekly program where members of the administration and student leaders get together to discuss campus problems. They will be available to answer any and all of your questions. All calls will be given directly to whichever participant you prefer, and your voice will be heard on the air as you ask your questions. The number to call is 545-2425.

Remember, that's this Sunday evening, November 3 at 7:30 p.m. over campus radio station WMUA (91.1 FM) for Interaction with Dean Curtis and Joan Labasowski!

NAACP Holds Mock Election

JACKSON, Miss.—In addition to a symbolic Freedom Vote in which any adult Mississippian may participate, the NAACP and other civil rights supporters in the state are conducting a write-in campaign for the gubernatorial election, Nov. 5.

Aaron Henry, the Clarksdale pharmacist and president of the NAACP Mississippi State Conference, is the candidate for governor in both the symbolic Freedom Vote and the write-in campaign.

Some 20,000 Negroes are registered to vote in the state, Mr. Henry said. Even though write-in ballots are void under Mississippi law, Mr. Henry believes that 20,000 voided votes might well determine the outcome of a close election.

In the Freedom Vote, open to all Mississippi citizens of voting age, the names of all the candidates for governor and lieutenant governor will appear on the ballot.

Old Halloween Corn Now Put To New Use

Halloween means pumpkins, pranks, masquerades, giggles and spooky doings. It means knocking on strange doors and filling a bag with forty kinds of candy.

Fun-making customs of the half-holiday have changed over the years—and probably for the better. For example, an old-time prank, especially popular in the Midwest, was to throw a handful of corn kernels against the windows of a house; from the inside the sudden noise could be quite disturbing.

Today products from corn have a different role in Halloween festivities. Those frightening masks and oversized paper hats are made stiff with corn starch. Colorful costumes are probably woven with the help of starch, and the bright dyes and inks are held in place with special starches. Dextrin is most likely the adhesive holding together the bags carried from house to house by pirates, ghosts, tigers, Cinderellas and hoboes.

Corn candy, with its familiar orange, yellow and white colors, resembles a corn kernel and is a traditional Halloween favorite. Corn syrup is a major ingredient in the candy passed out to trick-or-treaters. Of more than 2 billion pounds of various syrups produced by corn refiners each year, almost half is used by the confectionery industry for many kinds of candy from soft, creamy fondants to lollipops. In addition, such candy as jelly beans, gumdrops and orange slices contain corn starch. Dextrose, or corn sugar, is also used widely in candy. In short, products from corn will be everywhere you turn on Halloween.

O.G.'s Music Man A Sellout

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY EVENINGS SOLD OUT!

Except for ten to twenty scattered seats throughout Bowker Auditorium, Friday and Saturday evening performances for THE MUSIC MAN are sold out. Good seats for Thursday evening and the Saturday matinee are still available. Tickets will be on sale at the Student Union Box Office tomorrow and Friday from 9 to 4:30. Whatever tickets are left may be purchased at the door before the performances.

CLUB DIRECTORY

AMATEUR RADIO CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. in Gunness Lab. All members and anyone interested are asked to attend.

BILLIARDS INSTRUCTION
Instruction for those who signed up in the RSO office will be held on Thurs., Oct. 31, at 11 a.m. The billiards area will be closed during this hour.

BOWLING TOURNAMENT
Pairings for the frosh tournament are now posted in the games area.

BRIDGE LESSONS
Instructions for beginners will be held on Thurs., Oct. 31, at 7 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. Also, the regular duplicate game will be held in the Plymouth room at the same time.

CAROL SING COMMITTEE
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. in the Norfolk room. Note change of time.

CHESS CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Oct. 30 at 8 p.m. in the Franklin room of the S.U. Instructions for beginners will begin at this time. Anyone interested in playing or learning to play is welcome.

CREW TEAM
Anyone interested in forming a crew team, contact Bob

(Continued on page 5)

CLUB

'66

Check Cashing

S.U. Starts Service For Students

Since the beginning of September, more than $250,000.00 in checks has been handled by the newly reorganized Student Union Check-Cashing Service. The service handles about 500 checks per day and is available to students, faculty, and staff members upon presentation of suitable identification (I.D.) In order to better serve the needs of students and faculty for cashing checks, the Student Union has increased the maximum per check to $25.00 (weekdays).

The Cashier's Office, located in room 224 on the second floor of the Student Union, is open Monday through Saturday from 8:45 A.M. to 4:45 P.M. At all other times checks may be cashed at the Lobby Counter (cloak room). A restriction of $10.00 maximum applies here. The University Store will accept checks only in payment for purchases.

In a check-cashing service of this size, there are bound to be a few checks returned by the bank for various reasons. When this happens, the person responsible is notified and is placed on a no check-cashing basis until the matter is rectified. In the case of a student, a copy of the notice is sent to the Dean of Men or the Dean of Women for filing. The person responsible must also pay a service charge for the handling of the disputed check. This charge was put into effect by the Student Union Governing Board to help defray the extra expense caused by the returned check. The service charge is $1.00 for the first check, $2.00 for the second check, and $5.00 for the third check. After three checks have been returned by the bank, the person is placed on a permanent no check-cashing basis.

The Student Union makes every effort to contact students about returned checks so that they may rectify the matter as soon as possible. In the event that the matter is not cleared up in a reasonable amount of time, the matter is referred to the Dean of Men or the Dean of Women. Students should be reminded that check-cashing is a service and they should take care to keep accurate checkbook records.

First Foreign Film Of Year At Union

The first foreign film of the year will be held Sunday, November 3rd at 7:00 P.M. in the Student Union Ballroom. The movie is THE MAGICIAN, directed by Ingmar Bergman, and starring Max von Sydow and Ingrid Thulin.

Bergman's most Pirandello-like discussion of illusion and reality, using one of his favorite vehicles; the company of strolling players. Bearing the symbolic burden is Max von Sydow in the title role of the "magician," Dr. Vogler, who may or may not be a hypnotist of horrifying skill, who may or may not have genuine supernatural powers. He is accompanied by his wife (Ingrid Thulin), by an ancient crone, a bluff business manager, and an innocent coachman. Arriving in town, they are placed under arrest by a hostile sheriff and subjected to withering examination by a skeptical medical man. What happens in the house in the course of that night, and during the following morning, constitutes a thinking man's horror film to cast doubt on our most ordinary perceptions.

Where Have All The Posters Gone?

—Photo by Andi Beauchemin

Thousands of useless posters, the aftermath of any UMass political election, find their final resting place in a trash can.

Phi Eta Sigma Offers Tutoring For Freshmen

The members of Alpha Lambda Delta and Phi Eta Sigma, the Freshman's women's and men's honor societies, announce that they will begin their program of freshman tutoring on Wednesday, October 30. The purpose of these tutoring sessions is to aid freshmen in their studies by answering questions they might have. The help sessions will be held weekly in Machmer. The times and rooms where the sessions will be held are as follows:

All sessions will begin at 7:00.

Zoology 1 — W14 Thursday
Physics 5 — W13 Tuesday
Math 9 — W16 Tuesday
Math 6 — W14 Monday
Math 1 — W36 Monday
Math 5 — W14 Wednesday
Psychology 5 — W13 Monday
Chemistry 1 — W21 Tuesday
French 1 — W24 Tuesday
German 1 — W22 Tuesday

Sessions will begin November 4. All students who would like assistance in any of the above courses are strongly urged to attend these free tutoring sessions.

Club Directory . . .

(Continued from page 4)

Ford, 420 Baker, and leave your name, class, campus address, and phone no. No previous experience necessary.

CRITIQUE

A new magazine critizing professors and courses—an excellent opportunity for all those interested in the quality of teaching on the campus. Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 31 at 7 p.m. in the Franklin room of the S.U.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB

Halloween meeting on Wed., Oct. 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the ballroom of the S.U. Please wear costumes. Everyone is welcome.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP

Supper meeting on Sun., Nov. 3 at 6 p.m. followed by a talk on "Religious Life in the Far East. At 9:30 a.m. a discussion group open to all students will have its first meeting.

NEWMAN CLUB

Father James Flanagan will speak on the lay apostolate in New Mexico on Wed., Oct. 31 at 8 p.m. in classroom no. 2. There will be confessions on Thurs., Oct. 31, at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. Also, Fri., Nov. 1, is All Saint's Day, a holy day of obligation. Masses will be at 6:50 a.m., 8 a.m., 12:15 p.m., 5:15 p.m., and 7 p.m.

MARKETING CLUB

Meeting on Wed., Oct. 30, at 7 p.m. in 117 Draper. All are welcome.

OUTING CLUB

Business meeting on Thurs., Oct. 31, at 6:30 p.m. in Council Chambers A. Activities chairmen are requested to bring with them a list of equipment needed for their activity.

Also, the sign-up sheet for the Hay ride on Sat., Nov. 2, will be taken down on Thurs., Oct. 31, at 5 p.m. Sign-up sheet is across from telephones in S.U. lobby.

(Continued on page 6)

CARCOATS
FOR coeds

39.98

Wool Cashmere . . . Corduroy . . . Cotton Suede . . . Melton . . . All with warm linings, some with scarfs or hoods. Your choice of colors in sizes for Juniors, Misses, even half sizes.

• Others from $25.00

CHARGE ACCOUNTS INVITED • BROWSING WELCOME

Ann August

104 No. Pleasant Street . . . . . Amherst

(FREE PARKING IN REAR)

BLOOD IS NEEDED!

Peter Pan Travel Service Inc.

144 BRIDGE STREET :: SPRINGFIELD
(Across from Bus Terminal)
Open 9 a.m.-9 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

FOR ALL VACATION and TRANSPORTATION NEEDS

AIRLINE TICKETS AND RESERVATIONS

Tours - Cruises - Sightseeing
Official Tariff Rates

Limousine to Bradley Field
Leaves from Our Front Door

Call Collect to
SPRINGFIELD 781-3343

★ PARKING NOTICE ★

Col. John Marchant wishes to remind students that visitor and official parking lots are reserved 24 hours a day and are not for use of students at any time. Students may, however, use faculty lots and student lots other than those to which they are specifically assigned at night.

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn

Breakfast — 50¢
Lunch — 50¢ up
THE OPEN HEARTH STEAKHOUSE
BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

RENT A CAR
ECONO-CAR RENTAL SYSTEM
FEATURING CHRYSLER PRODUCTS
• GAS INCLUDED
$5.99 PER 24 HRS.
Plus Small Mileage Charge

Springfield 785-5314
Northampton 584-7277
Greenfield 774-4443

ROTC Team Post Guard For President

—Photo by Harold Gushue

On Saturday, the 26th of October, the Army ROTC drill team, under the command of Cadet Major Ramos, went to Amherst College, having been invited to post an honor guard for President John F. Kennedy. Arriving at Amherst, the members of the team assembled on the baseball field, and were stationed at intervals around the landing area.

After the arrival of the President, the team was moved to the area of the ground-breaking ceremony and assumed the position of honor guard around the entrance to, and the vicinity of the speaker's platform. At the termination of the ceremony, the team reformed about the landing area in a farewell tribute to the Commander-in-chief.

Lost and Found

LOST: A light blue wallet on Mon. morning on campus or in Morrill or Bartlett. Please return to Kathy McCarthy, 303 Brooks.

LOST: Navy blue blazer at Mary Lyons mixer. Return to Collin Gaestrang, 318 Plymouth House.

LOST: One pair of Charles Chester loafers with cushion inner-sole, size 9½ D. Lost near campus pond. Contact Don De Hart, 348 Gorman.

LOST: A green short raincoat left in line 4 at the Commons October 28. Please notify Dave McComb, 207 Baker.

DESPERATE

Must have a ride to Buffalo, N.Y.

Leaving Thurs. or Fri., Oct. 31 or Nov. 1.

Sue Whitney, 206 S. Van Meter

Club Directory ...

(Continued from page 5)

Also, a sign-up sheet has been posted concerning a Mt. Monadnock climb on Sun., Nov. 3.

SCUBA CLUB

Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 31, at 7 p.m. in the Men's PE Bldg. A lecture on the physics of diving and diving diseases will be given by Mr. Douglas. All should attend.

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB

Meeting on Wed., Oct. 30, at 8 p.m. in the Norfolk room of the S.U. Election of officers will be held.

S.U. PUBLICITY COMMITTEE

Meeting on Wed., Oct. 30, at 7 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. All members please attend.

WMUA

Station meeting on Wed., Oct. 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the station. All are expected to attend.

WOMEN'S INTERDOM COUNCIL

Meeting on Thurs., Oct. 31, at 11:15 a.m. in the Norfolk room of the S.U.

Student Editor Silenced By Racial Prejudice

UNIVERSITY, Ala. (CPS)—The 1962-63 "student editor of the year" has been silenced by the University of Alabama.

Mel Meyer, whose editorials tention and drew repeated in the Alabama Crimson and White gained him national attthreats on his life has been told by university officials that he may not "write upon or comment upon" any racial matters.

Failure to comply with the the university's demands, Meyer said, will result in, "severe disciplinary action" and possible expulsion.

The Alabama administration required Meyer and all other students to sign statements agreeing not to write or comment on any racial matters for publication, Meyer said. The administration would not permit Meyer to keep a copy of the statement he signed. When he appealed the policy he was told there could be no change.

Meyer said he felt the new policy was aimed, at least in part, at him. He said the policy will prevent him from acting as southern correspondent for the Collegiate Press Service.

According to a spokesman for the university the new policy only applies to student correspondents on the campus. Edward Brown, director of the news bureau, said that the school "prefers professionals" to do the racial news writing and said that a claim that the policy would prohibit all comment by students was "silly."

The student correspondent ban, Brown said, was the result of long experience with student reporters and that there would be "no exception" to the rule.

Asked if the campus newspaper, the Crimson and White, would be allowed to carry news stories and comment on racial matter, Brown said, "They certainly will. They always have." He said that the paper had always done "pretty much what it wanted."

Brown said the policy was set by the president of the university who acted as the representative of the school's board.

The ruling was first affected last June and is being continued "until the trouble is over." Brown said he didn't know when to expect an end to the trouble, but guessed it would be "years."

Last February, the United States Student Press Association (USSPA) named writer Meyer the "student editor of the year" after he wrote editorials calling for obedience to federal law in Alabama. The editorials appeared during and after the crisis at the University of Mississippi.

Meyers life was threatened, crosses were burned on the lawn of his fraternity house, and the university administration hired two fulltime body guards for him.

"The thing that really bothers me," Meyer said, "is that this ban isn't just against writing about events at the university—it is a ban on all writing about all racial matters."

Such a ban is an infringement on the right of freedom of expression, Meyer said, and invites censure of the university.

Meyer said he signed the statement "under duress" and plans to continue his appeals against it. At the same time, he said, he will ask the newly formed Committee on Freedom and Responsibility of the Student Press to look into the matter.

Dean Gottehrer, General Secretary of the USSPA and Director of the Collegiate Press Service said, "This ban indicates that the University of Alabama administration is not as respectful of the rights of its students as we had earlier been led to believe. Meyer was going to provide the nation's student press with full coverage of the events in Birmingham and elsewhere around the South. Now under the terms of the pledge, a copy of which still has not been given to Meyer, he cannot do this."

The case goes beyond Meyer and the press, Gottehrer continued, but questions the rights of all of the students at Alabama to speak freely about the situation there.

The Committee on Freedom and Responsibility of the Student Press is presently being consulted and will probably investigate the situation, according to Gottehrer.

Pumpkin Bounce

TAJ

and the

ELECTRAS

SATURDAY — 8:30 - 12

S.U. BALLROOM

Russian Club ...

(Continued from page 3)

During the remainder of the meeting the new officers were announced. They are Alice Russil '64, President, Joseph Jones '64, Vice President, and Sharon Cole '64, Secretary-Treasurer.

The next meeting of the Russian Club is to be held on Tuesday November 5. All who are interested are cordially invited to attend.

it's invisible, man!

It's *in*credible, *in*comparable, *in*fallible! Code 10 for men, the new kind of hairdressing from Colgate-Palmolive. The new *in*visible way to groom a man's hair all day. Non-greasy Code 10 disappears in your hair, gives it the clean, manly look that *in*flames women, *in*furiates *in*ferior men. Be in. Get the non-greasy hairdressing, Code 10. It's *in*visible, man!

code 10

HAIR DRESSING FOR MEN

SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS

AMHERST Cinema

N O W — Feature Shown Daily 6:30 & 9:10

THE MIRISCH COMPANY AND EDWARD L. ALPERSON PRESENT

JACK LEMMON SHIRLEY MacLAINE

IN BILLY WILDER'S IRMA la DOUCE

TECHNICOLOR® PANAVISION® RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS

Sun.— "LONELINESS OF LONG DISTANCE RUNNER"

Wed., Oct. 6th— Frederico Fellini's "8½"

Non-Existent Univ. Of Chicago Football Team Loses 29-7

CHICAGO—With the administration stoutly claiming there is no such thing as a football game and students planning a protest demonstration, the University of Chicago's 1963 non-football season got underway last week.

THE UC TEAM, WHICH DOES NOT EXIST, lost its first game to North Central College 29-7 and entertained some 1000 spectators who dropped by to see what wasn't going on.

The University's administration claims that it is offering football classes and that the "practice scrimmages" are just part of the curriculum.

On the other hand, some students say that it looks like football to them and planned a sit-in across the 50 yard line and angrily protested in the campus newspaper, The Maroon.

The university officially dropped football more than 20 years ago, but resumed "scrimmages" six years ago.

THERE MIGHT NEVER HAVE BEEN A PROBLEM this year had it not been for the institution a year ago of a nationwide search by the university for two "scholar-athletes."

To many, the "talent hunt" climaxed alleged adminnstration attempts in recent years to change Chicago's image from a haven for oddballs and beatniks to a typical well-rounded university.

What, the students asked, would be the difference between Harvard and Chicago if they both had football teams?

So the University of Chicago football class met North Central in the first of four laboratory sessions planned for the term.

The many class auditors were lectured by eight coeds:

"We've got the team, team, team," they yelled.

"Class, class, class," corrected the auditors and North Central's quarterback returned the opening kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown.

Assistant Professor of Physical Education Sid Stein, who instructs the football class, envisions a football league including Chicago, New York University, Caltech and MIT.

The adminnstration and athletic department, however, are on record against the return of "big-time" football to het university.

THE UNIVERSITY IS ON THE HONOR SYSTEM.

The Prognosticator

Pro Upsets Seen For Sun.

by RALPH PROLMAN

In the A.F.L.: Boston over Houston — The Pats will be underdogs, but I pick them to beat the Oilers.

Denver over Buffalo — In a high scoring game the Broncos should be able to outscore the Buffalo Bills.

Oakland over Kansas City — The surprising Raiders hope to make the disappointing Chiefs their 5th victims.

San Diego over New York — The Chargers should bounce back from last week's loss to send the Jets flying.

In the N.F.L.: Los Angeles over Minnesota — The Rams have found themselves and look for their 3rd win.

Chicago over Baltimore—The Bears defense should defeat the passing of John Unitas and the Colts.

Detroit over San Francisco—The Lions will claw their way past the 49ers.

New York over St. Louis — Tittle is better than Johnson and the Giants should fly past the Cardinals.

Green Bay over Pittsburgh — This should be the best game of the day. The Packers should squeeze by the Steelers.

Cleveland over Philadelphia—The Browns will bounce back and make it a long Sunday afternoon for the Eagles.

Dallas over Washington—This should be a close game, but I am hoping things will work like they did in the old west and the Cowboys will defeat the Redskins.

Grad. Disappointed By Poor Publicity For Team

by KEVIN COYLE
THE COLLEGIAN SPORTS

office received a letter recently from an alumnus who is genuinely interested in doing something to help relieve the situation the football team finds itself in, as regards to publicity and acceptance as a football power. The interested alumnus feels that judging from the write-ups given UMass by the New York and Boston papers the Redmen are somewhat of a fluke. Nobody in the larger cities seems to believe that the University of Massachusetts has turned out a football team which is a match for anything outside of the Yankee Conference.

MR. WILLIAM KNOWLTON '61 is now an employee of the New York State Department of Commerce attached to publicity. Even though he has been separated from the University for a few years he has "long yearned to see the University turn out a team which could win ball games with the reguuarity of this year's squad."

He has been following the team by attending its games and by trying to read about it in the New York papers. Mr. Knowlton has been disappointed by the press coverage which the Redmen have received in the large city papers.

Mr. Knowlton requested some individual and team statistics which he plans to use in letters he intends to write to his friends in the newspaper business.

Fraternity Football

The I.F.C. football league moved into its final week on Monday night with only four games being played.

PMD shaded LCA 12-6 on two touchdowns by Herb Levine. John Powers scored LCA's only touchdown in a game which proved to be almost all defense. Final score, PMD 12, LCA 6.

In a high scoring game KS outlasted PSD 41-12. Bill Crane, Rod Corey, and Bill Harrington handled most of the scoring for KS, while Schlosberg scored both touchdowns for PSD. Final score: KS 41 — PSD 12.

SAF managed only one touchdown by John Smith in their game with AEP, but still emerged the victor. Their strong defense held AEPi scoreless for an 8-0 win.

In the final game of the night, TEP, shut out ASP, 19-0.

The final games of the I.F.C. league will be played on Wednesday night and anything can happen as the league's first three teams are separated by only a game.

Educational TV ...

(Continued from page 4)

be available as well.

The rebroadcasts can be seen on any receiver capable of receiving the UHF channels. However, because of a federal restriction on power, an outside antenna will be necessary in most locations. The Massachusetts Executive Committee for Educational television was established in 1960 to promote the development of educational television in Massachusetts. Among those serving on this committee are John Fitzpatrick, Superintendent of Schools in Chicopee, Frederick B. Robinson, Director of the Museum of Fine Arts in Springfield, and Horace W. Hewlett, Secretary of Amherst College.

Old Fire Trucks New Status Symbol

It seems the fraternity system at Iowa State University, Ames, has found a new status symbol —old fire trucks.

Says the IOWA STATE DAILY: Though this might be considered as sign that fraternities are finally going to take IFC's fire safety campaign seriously, that seems like too much to hope for, since none of the trucks has hoses.

The trucks apparently are just another sign of fraternity prosperity. Maybe the next IFC candidate will run on a platform of "a pledge in every closet and a fire truck in every parking lot."

VARSITY HOCKEY MEETING
WEDNESDAY, OCT 30
5:30 P.M., ROOM 10
PHYS. ED. BUILDING

Pardon me if I sound as if the executive position I've landed deals with the whole future of the world.

It does.

Certainly, there's no organization today conducting more vital business than the business of the United States Air Force. And very few organizations that give a college graduate greater opportunities for responsibility and growth.

As an Air Force officer, you'll be a leader on the Aerospace Team—with good pay, a 30-day paid vacation each year, educational opportunities.

How can you get started? For many, the best way is through Air Force ROTC. But if you missed out on AFROTC, or if there's no unit on your campus, you can still apply for Air Force Officer Training School. This three-month course leads to a commission as a second lieutenant in the United States Air Force.

For more information about Air Force OTS, see your local Air Force representative.

U.S. Air Force

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Harriers Travel To Yan-Con Meet

by GENE COLBURN

The varsity cross country team will travel to Vermont Saturday to participate in the Yankee Conference Cross-Country Championships. The team will be out to set two records. The Redmen have won this meet for the past three years, and are seeking an unprecedented fourth straight crown. Also, Bob Brouillet will seek to extend to four straight the number of times the Redmen have had the individual winner. Dave Balch won in 1960, and Bob Brouillet has won for the last two years. In each victory a record was set for the course.

Although the chances of Digger being beaten are slim, the team title appears to be up for grabs between Maine and UMass. Based on the Bear's victory earlier this season over the Redmen, Maine will probably rule as a slight favorite.

It will be the six men behind Brouillet who will determine the winner of the meet, and these boys seem quite capable of doing the job. The fighting four, composed of sophomore Bob Molvar, juniors Tom Panke and Bob Ramsey, and senior Gene Colburn, form the nucleus of the team. All of these boys have shown steady improvement throughout the season, particularly Molvar and Panke. Bob has run several really great races lately, and is performing even better than the high expectations that were held for him at the beginning of the season. Tom Panke has shown great improvement in the last few weeks. Bob Ramsey and Gene Colburn have been erratic during the season, but if both settle down and run as well as they are capable of doing it should provide the Redmen with a solid team that will be hard to beat.

Bob Larson and Al McPhail are the sixth and seventh men for the varsity, and as such they usually don't receive much recognition for their efforts. Howeevr, for every opponent that they displace, these boys help make UMass tougher to beat. If both produce good races the Redmen will have an unbeatable team.

Annual Intramural Cross Country Sat.

The annual intramural cross country meet will take place this Saturday at 12:00, beginning in front of the Student Union.

Entries thus far include record holder Everett Wilbur, a Stockbridge runner who covered the mile and a half course in 6:59 last year, and a strong Alpha Sigma Phi team, also hoping to repeat last year's performance when they captured the team prize.

Plenty of competition should be provided by the Stockbridge, Sigma Phi Epsilon, and Chadbourne teams who have also made fine showings in past intramural meets.

Runners are reminded to report no later than 11:45 on Saturday. All male non-track students are eligible, and entries will be accepted at the starting line.

FROSH BASKETBALL

All freshmen basketball candidates will report for the mile run starting at 4:30 p.m. on the Alumni Field varsity track. Practice sessions have started. All boys interested who have not contacted Coach Jack Leaman in Curry Hicks Building should see him as soon as possible to make arrangements for their physical examination prior to running.

RALLY

Support your team — attend the rally behind the S.U. Friday at 7 p.m.

THE LORD JEFFERY

Choice Dates Still Available For Your Fraternity or Sorority Party.

A TREADWAY INN

AL 3-2576

Univ. of Mass. OPERETTA GUILD in association with the OPERA WORKSHOP
presents
MEREDITH WILLSON'S
The Music Man
OCTOBER 31 thru NOVEMBER 2
All evenings at 8:15 p.m.
Saturday matinee at 2:00 p.m.
Tickets on Sale at the Student Union Box Office, Phone 545-2528
$1.50 ALL SEATS RESERVED $1.75

Alert Defense Grabs Terrier Fumble

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

JERRY WHELCHEL and BOB MEERS chase a B.U. fumble early in the first period during action at B.U. field last Saturday. BOB ELLIS and a lineman look on.

UMass Depth Key To Wins; Meers Makes ECAC Team

by JOHN GOODRICH

In the past years, Redmen football teams have always been confronted with one major problem. It would seem that the team would play the opponent equal for three quarters, only to lose in the last period. This was the fault of no one person, simply a lack of depth in the squad that forced the first team to play the entire game. This year the situation is just reversed. UMass has such great depth that they are able to wear the opponents down both offensively and defensively.

This can best be shown by looking at some of the personel that is waiting in reserve. The second team sports a fine backfield of John Schroeder, Phil DeRose, Dick Warren and Fred Lewis or Dave Kelly. In front of this group is as solid a line as you could hope to find any where. Included here are ends Roger Deminico, Dick Bourdelais, and John Hudson; tackles Don Hagberg and Dick Kehoe; guards Tom Brophy and Rod Brooks; and center Charlie Scialdone. These men are capable of filling in for any of the members of the first team in case of injury. There is also another possibility that grows out of such great depth and that is the presence of constant competition for the starting berths. This keeps the whole team awake to the possibility that there is someone just waiting to take his place. The concept of the indispensable player simply does not apply. An example of this can be shown by looking at the punters on the squad. At the start of the year, Phil Vandersea handled the tasking doing a fine job. Then he was sidelined by an injury and Terry Swanson has come on to do a commendable job averaging some 39 yards per kick in last Saturday's game alone.

While these men play with the desire to gain one of the starting positions, they also play as a unit that is used to spell the first team. The performance of the squad in this capacity also bears mention. Warren, Brooks, Kehoe and Hagberg all excelled in last Saturday's game primarily on defense. DeRose was outstanding while playing offense.

The quality of the second team this year has a great deal to do with the overall success of the squad this year. Whether filling in at subs, spelling the regulars as a unit, or merely pressing the regular team at practice, this team has shown the hardnose play that has come to be the trademark of this year's team.

Bits and Pieces: Bob Meers was rewarded for his fine play against B.U. by being selected for the ECAC team of the week . . . Mass continues to hold down tenth place in the Lambert trophy race . . . Saturday's game was one of the roughest of the year with numerous penalties and several minor skirmishes near the end . . . Terry Swanson booted one punt some sixty yards to keep B.U. deep in its own territory . . . Terrier fullback Bob Horton was one of the fastest 220 lbs. fullbacks seen in a long time.

Harvard took Dartmouth, 17-13 in the big game last weekend . . . Besides ending a fifteen game win streak for the Green it also reduced the undefeated list in New England to four . . . With all the recognition Harvard got in the papers you would think it was the biggest game of the year, but it wasn't . . . Harvard still has to take on undefeated Princeton in a game that looms as the decisive one in the Ivy League.

Among the major schools in the nation, only Texas, Auburn, Princeton, and Bowling Green have undefeated, untied records . . . Five stalwarts fell last week including Pitt and Wisconsin to really scramble the top ten ratings . . . The big ten has a three way tie for first and about four other teams about a game behind. Games of the week this Saturday: Texas-SMU, Yale-Dartmouth, Navy-Notre Dame, Pitt-Syracuse, Wisconsin-Michigan St., Army-Air Force, Ole Miss-LSU, and Mass-Vermont . . . Its getting toward the time of the year that traditional games take over and the form sheet can be thrown away.

LIBRARY

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

LIBRARY
NOV 4 1963
UNIVERSITY
MASSACHUSETTS

VOL. XCIII NO. 21 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1963

Traditional Hort Show Cancelled

Last year's Horticultural Show transformed the Curry Hicks Building from a bare gym to a riot of vegetative color.

by LOIS SKOLNIK

"Our first responibility is to our student." This was the reason given by Previous chairman of the Horticulture show, Professor Paul N. Procopio, Prof. of Landscape Architecture, for the cancellation of this year's show.

Prof. Procopio explained that a faculty panel had observed that most students were spending too much time on the Hort. show in comparison to the learning experience they were having. It has been the custom that student participants in the show were excused from about two weeks of classes to prepare for the event. The large number of required student participants usually included majors in the departments of: Landscape Architecture (plus junior and senior graduate students); Horticulture and often Agronomy. Furthermore Stockbridge School required participation by students majoring in Aboriculture and Park Management, Land Operation, Floriculture, Horticulture and Turf Management.

Prof. Procopio explained that only 20% of all of those students actually produced exhibitions or worked on administrative details. The other 80%, who performed routine, repetitive work, were not getting a sufficient learning experience. Although their work was valuable to the show, their time spent in class would be more educationally beneficial.

The questions of the future of the Horticulture show has been under consideration for the past five years. Not until this year, however, did the staff finally decide to cancel it. They received their impetus from difficulties in obtaining space in the cage.

The "Hort Show" was originated 50 years ago as a joint effort of: the Landscape Architecture, Horticulture, Forestry and Wildlife, and Agronomy Depts. The present staff felt that since their respective departments had originated the show, they had the right to cancel it.

When questioned about the long and honored tradition the Horticulture Show has had on campus, and in the entire area, Prof. Procopio explained that "traditions are nice as long as they dont' interfere. You should feel free to throw off a tradition."

The staff, however, will remain open minded. If they find that in the future students show a need for the practice and experience gained, they will be ready at any time to consider reinstating the show. As Prof. Procopio said, "We honestly feel that we are doing this for the benefit of the students."

While defending their decision, the staff admits that there were

(Continued on page 6)

IT'S EASY TO GIVE BLOOD
SEE FOR YOURSELF · BE A DONOR

Two Senators Resign Posts In Sudden Senate Move

Jones And Mathieson Drop Jobs

by DON JOHNSON

The Student Senate, thus the Student Government of this University, was rocked Wednesday night in the tumultuous wake of debate over the Conflict of Interest bill and the subsequent resignation, from their committees, of two Senators.

Senator Ross Jones (Brett), Senate Treasurer and Finance Committee Chairman, and Senator Dave Mathieson (At-Large '64) Chairman of Services Committee, advised the Senate that they could no longer continue to serve on their committees in view of a speech made by Senator Marilyn "Sam" Singer (Johnson '65).

The speech, read by Senator Singer, was a statement "re-evaluating" the position taken by her and Senator Jim Watson (At-Large '65) after walking out of last week's meeting. According to Senator Jones, the statement that was agreed upon at Tuesday's meeting of the Senate Executive Committee was different from the one delivered by Senator Singer. Immediately after Senator Singer's speech, Senator Mathieson arose and directed these words to Senate President Jon Fife: "Mr. Chairman, I object to the statement of Senator Singer and resign as chairman of Services Committee in protest thereof."

Photo by Don Littlefield

Ross Jones tenders his resignation as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee at Wednesday's Senate meeting.

Senator Jones' resignation was also "in protest thereof". Expressions of amazement and disappointment masked the faces of those present as he read his speech. The presence of WMUA's radio broadcasting equipment emphasized the drama. In an effort to ameliorate the grotesque turn of events, Senator Singer tearfully moved to censure herself in hopes that the resignations might be retracted; however, she was ruled out of order by President Fife.

President Fife, now obviously disturbed, lectured the Senate. He admonished, "It is time for the members of this body to stop considering their own special needs . . . we represent the student body . . . it is time to broaden our scope . . ." He added that he would accept the resignation of the two Senators, but he would not elaborate. The Senate Executive Committee meets on Tuesday, and further developments will originate at that meeting.

The Conflict of Interest Bill, one with far-reaching effect, was tabled to a committee for further study.

Legislaters To Put UMass Jobs Under Civil Service

Legislators from Hampshire and Franklin counties will sponsor a measure to put non-professional employees at the University under civil service, because they had received many complaints as to the procedure now in practice for hiring and promoting in theh University's labor force

The solons held a meeting on Tuesday and said that in view of efforts being made to adjourn the present legislative session, they will not seek passage of the legislation until the legislature reconvenes in January.

The legislation, which will affect all non-academic positions at the University, will be sponsored by the entire legislative delegations from the two counties.

Many employees have criticized "favoritism and other personal factors as playing a part in the hiring and promotion of employees. It has been reported that in many cases supervisory positions have been filled by 'outsiders" without regard to the seniority rights of present employees, and that in some instances promotional positions have even been given to persons from outside the state, the legislators said.

If their civil service bill is passed, the legislators pointed out that all tenure rights of present employees at the University would be protected and they would automatically be placed within the civil service system. However, hiring and promotion would be subject to civil service rules and regulations.

This would provide for set rules and procedures for hiring, in accordance with standard qualifications, veteran's rights, and in the order in which applications are submitted for various positions. Promotions, under civil service, would be based on examinations, seniority rights and standard qualification requirements. A continual list of

(Continued on page 6)

UM Coed Is Home Again After Gas Gangrene Battle

A 17-year-old coed, stricken coed, stricken with a form of with a form of dangerous gas gangrene practically unknown since World War I, was at home Wednesday after a "remarkable" recovery.

Freshman

Sandra Lee Olson, a University of Massachusetts freshman, suffered the gas gangrene attack following an operation for appendicitis at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton.

She was moved to Boston Children's Hospital Sept. 25 and placed in a special pressure chamber used by a team of doctors in their attempt to save the life of President Kennedy's infant son last August.

The gangrene bacilli were attacked with large amounts of oxygen as the girl lay in the chamber.

Doctors, who described her recovery as "remarkable," ordered her to limit herself to one trip a day up and downstairs. She was released from the hospital Tuesday.

RALLY TONIGHT!

Want to root the Redmen to the Beanpot? Want a Friday night blast? Got the time and the spirit for a winning team? Turn out for THE RALLY of the year. See today's Collegian (page 7).

Road Holdups Said To Be Fake Story

State police have washed their hands of what appears to be a hoax, allegedly perpetuated Wednesday evening by two UMass students.

The two told state and Chesterfield police that they were picked up by six youths, bound hand and foot, and left in a wooded area in Chesterfield, about 15 miles west of Amherst.

However, state police officials stated yesterday that it was "all up to the Dean's office" since they had determined that "there was no robbery," and that an apparent hoax had been perpetrated upon police.

University authorities remain generally mum on the subject, however Asst. Dean of Men William Barnard stated that "investigation is underway" and ac-

(Continued on page 6)

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

On The Senate Resignations

Tuesday evening the Executive Committee of the Student Senate was told by President Jon Fife that Senators Sam Singer and Jim Watson had apologized satisfactorily to him in terms he had stipulated, for their actions at the previous Wednesday's Senate meeting. The Executive Committee accepted President Fife's decision, however, not unanimously.

Two Senators, Ross Jones and David Mathieson, both members of the Executive Committee, objected strongly to the official position taken by the Senate Steering Committee.

Therefore, on the following evening, after Sam Singer had read a statement which these two gentlemen, among others, thought was substantially different than the one which she had submitted to and had been approved by the Exec Board, and after these people were seemingly thwarted in their attempts to gain the floor to register a protest, they both resigned.

Singer's action, one which she later asked to have herself censured for, was a ridiculous one, and it is difficult to know whether it was done out of a strong sense of political acumen or naivete.

If as these two gentlemen claim, President Fife knowingly refused them all recourse to protest, then perhaps their complaints are justified.

However, their decision to use the tool of a phoney resignation as a blatant Parliamentary move is deplorable. We say "phoney," for we truly believe that these two men do not want to resign their positions and will now use all of their political resources to retain their chairmanships.

It is almost ironic to note how Senators who only last week were condemning the political move of the two walking Senators would resort to more political shenanigans to get their message across.

JSD

Binding And Blinding

A fifty year tradition at the University has come to an end. The horticultural show, usually held annually in the Cage has been cancelled indefinitely.

Many have expressed disappointment at the cancellation of the show. Some feel that the University should hang on, so to speak, to its traditions.

We agree that tradition can be a binding tie. We too feel that the cancellation of the show is unfortunate.

However as Professor Procopio of the Department of Landscape Architecture explained only 20% of the students worked on the show in such a way to benefit their studies. The other 80% performed work which while time consuming did not provide compensating benefits.

If tradition is a tie that binds it also can be a tie that blinds. The administrative officials of the horticultural show have carefully considered the student time spent on the show (two weeks out of classes) and the benefits to be achieved from such time spent. They have come to the realization that the situation is one of tradition blinding rather than binding.

We are sorry to see the binding tie of a tradition be cut. However, we congratulate the administrators of the Horticulture show for having the courage to cut this tie which seems to also have become blinding.

JBC

A Review

Music Man Smash Hit

by LOIS SKOLNICK

The Music Man, by Meredith Willson, is a rich musical comedy of beautiful music, spirited comedy, and engaging plot. The Opera Guild's production of this lively musical, at last night's opening, was extremely skilled, abounding in fine singing, creative choreography, studied comedy, and fine acting.

Under the skillful direction of Mr. Wayne Lamb, the entire cast combined their talents with professional finesse, in creating quite a polished performance.

The comedy immdiately got to an inviting start with the well-timed, well-paced railroad scene, a fine example of the cast's ability to integrate their individual talent's into a full and rich performance. The play continued at a good pace, with the cast evidencing professional ability in quick transition.

Mr. Lamb's choreography and direction were shown to great advantage by the excellent performance of the entire ensemble in such memorable numbers as "Rock Island," "Trouble," "Seventy Six Trombones", "Marian the Librarian," and "Shipoopi." Although the dancing was somewhat stiff in the first few numbers, the ensemble garduaily loosened up to provide a carefree, energetic, and fun-filled atmosphere.

Margaret Jones and Jack Singer are to be praised for their fine performances. In her role as Marian Paroo, Margaret combined her marked vocal ability with superb acting. Jack Singer was a very suave Harold Hill, who was at his best heading the ensemble in the extravagent musical numbers, such as "Trouble," and "Seventy Six Trombones."

Jane Abbiati, as Eulalie Shinn, gave a creative, vivacious performance, while David Bachman deserves praise in his convincing portrayal of her eccentric husband, Mayor Shinn. From a general outlook it seems that good casting, combined with talented performers under good direction, gave skill to each performance.

Finally, the entire production was given a tremendous boost through the accompaniment by a well-coordinated and talented orchestra under the masterful direction of Paul R. Bartch.

Letters To The Editor

A Disappointed Senator

To the Editor:

It would seem from the action of last Wednesday night that the Senate President, Jon Fife, is attempting a heavy-handed purge of those officers and committee chairmen with whom he does not agree. President Fife, knowing that Senate Treasurer Jones and Services Chairman Mathieson are responsible to their consciences, as perhaps he is not, has pursued a policy of attempting to back these Senators, who are considered by some to be the work horses of this present and the immediately past Senate, into untenable positions. His strategy would further seem to be to appeal to these same Senators from the Chair, to "do it my way." He apparently feels that he knows what is best for the Student Body. It may well be that Senator Fife does, but he was elected Senate President, not Big Brother.

The pursuit of this policy may, indeed, have the effects President Fife desires. But if it does, it will do far more harm to the Senate than Fife is capable of repairing.

Mr. President, SHAPE UP!

A Disappointed Senator

To The Leapers

Get To Work

To the Editor:

The Student Senate of the University of Massachusetts is (believe it or not) a vitally important organization to the student body as a whole. An overall view of what has taken place in the Senate so far this year would lead most students to conclude that this organization (one might well be more accurate to call it a "disorganization") exists in order to give some students a forum wherein they can develop their talents of leaping highly, and screaming loudly. This is unfortunate, because the facts are that the Student Senate is charged with very important responsibilities to the student body as a whole, not the least of which is determining the fate of approximately $150,000 of student taxes. Yes sir, that's your money and my money!

It's time that the student senators started thinking more about these responsibilities and less about themselves.

In my two plus years here at the University, I have stood by quietly (closet case; apathetic student; etc.) watching the various "under-the-table" intrigues that surround our campus organizations and leaders. I've said to myself, "After all, the world has always been run by people who are motivated by various personality complexes and self-interests; so we, the apathetic general public, must be prepared to overlook these various idiosyncrasies in our leaders. Instead, we must look to, and be thankful for, the work accomplished for us by these leaders. After all, someone must carry the responsibilities of leadership."

But when these various complexes and self-interests are allowed to become so important and pervasive that they tear down and destroy the social organizations that these leaders are supposed to be maintaining, then it is imperative that we, "Joe—averages," yes, the closet cases and apathetic students too, demand an end to the destruction that these confused, self-centered leaders are heaping upon our social organizations.

It is time that the immature and misguided individuals that are in our student senate stop using this organization as a playground for their "leaping and screaming." As one of the 6800 "Joe-averages" whom you are supposed to be leading, I call upon you senate members to grow up and get to work for us, not yourselves!

Closet Case '65

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press: Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

MMH

by MIKE HENCH

If Courage Was a Sin

If Courage was a sin, if "bravery" was damned by the church and man, what sort of world would we live in. A world of cowards? A world without discoveries? A world without destiny?

But there are many kinds of courage. What type or types would we get rid of? What types would be sins? David and Goliath? Columbus and Nature? G.I. Joe and the hand grenade resting in his stomach? Audie Murphy and the hill crawling with Nazi soldiers? Man against something bigger than himself? No.

But there is another, more prevalent, type of courage. This is the courage of pride. The courage of face saving. This is the type of courage that makes mothers say "It is braver to walk away from a fight." and fathers say "You'll whip him next time." How many wars have been caused by this type of prideful courage? How many fights have you been in as a result of this type of courage? Isn't pride a sin?

Of course one could say that this pride is a part of every man. And so it is. But philosophers and theologians have seen fit to damn almost everything else which is innate in man. Sex drives, greed, covetousness, etc. have been damned as incontinence or intemperance; yet from a positive point of view they lead to love, procreation, discovery, wealth (which surely the church cannot damn) etc. But pride that leads to conquest is not damned. Pride that leads to "Defending at all costs" is not a sin.

It would be interesting for historians to go through history and pick out the wars caused by pride. It seems that the Algerian and Morrocan war is a result of pride. It would seem that World War I was caused by pride. Perhaps the Crusades. The invasion of England. I could be very wrong here, but it doesn't matter. What I fear most is the next war. What if Mr. K. had found it necesary to "save face" during the Cuban crisis. Oh, we would have been "in the right," and "on the side of God" and all, but I wonder if it would have mattered as we were atomized.

Since I, in my madness, see fit to violate most of the virtues, commit most of the sins, I cannot but add that I too have pride. My SVCC is an example of that. But some part of my madness cannot help but wonder "What the world would be like if pride-full courage was a sin." Will you imagine with me?

WMUA Schedule For The Coming Week

Saturday, Nov. 2

7:00-10:00: CLASSICS — Schonherr: Austrian Peasant Dances, Op. 14 (Fiedler/Boston Pops) followed by requests for classical music.

Sunday, Nov. 3

4:00-6:30: SHOWCASE — The full-length Broadway shows Oliver and Babes in Arms followed by requests for favorite show tunes.

7:00-7:30: HISTORY 5 — Lecture on The Holy Roman Empire by Miss Christman in connection with the History 5 course.

7:30 - 8:00: INTERACTION — Interaction is a new concept in administration-student relations. It is on this program that you the listener may call in to speak directly to the administrator and/or senator involved and have your questions answered on the spot. Check a rumor, clarify a point of confusion, inquire about a complaint no one seems to listen to. To do this, all you have to do is pick up the nearest phone on Sunday night at 7:30 and dial 545-2425, or on campus, just dial 2425.

This week Interaction will present Miss Helen Curtis, Dean of Women, and Miss Joan Labuzowski, Vice President of the Student Senate. We hope this program will accomplish the purposes for which it was instituted.

The success of Interaction is dependent upon audience participation. We hope that you the listener will help to make his program a success.

8:00-10:00: MUSICALE — J. Strauss: Blue Danube Waltz (Lheninne); Beethoven: Sym. No. 7 in A Major, Op. 92 (Walter/NYP); D'Indy: Sym. on a French Mt. Aire, Op. 25 Henriot-Schweitzer / Munch/ BSO); Beethoven: Sym. No. 6 in F, Op. 68 "Postoral" (Toscanini/NBC Sym.)

10:00-11:00: ART OF JAZZ — Works of George Russell. Main work will be his "New York, New York" album featuring many top soloists with narrations by Jon Hendricks.

Monday, Nov. 4

7:00-8:00: MUSIC OF THE WORLD — Music and dialogue in Spanish.

8:00-10:00: MUSICALE — Wagner: Preludes from Acts I and II of Die Meistersinger (Toscanini/NBC); Mahler:: Songs of a Wayfarer (Maureen Forrester/Munch/BSO); Wagner: Siegfried Idyll (Toscanini/ NBC); Beethoven: Sym. No. 9 in D Minor, Op. 125 "Choral" (Shaw / Cleveland Orch. Chorus/Szell/Cleveland Orch.)

Tuesday, Nov. 5

7:00-7:30: ENGLISH 25 — Lecture on Dante's Divine Comedy by Mr. Ferrigno of the English department.

7:30-8:00: Humorous Readings, by Eve Marcus

8:00-10:00: MUSICALE—Tchaikovsky: Sym. No. 5, E minor, Op. 64 (Bernstein / NYP); Haydn: Sym. No. 102, (Walter/NYP); Bach: Concerto No. 5 in F for Piano & Orch. (Gina Bachauer/Sherman / London); Prokofiev: Lt. Kije Suite, Op. 60 (Mitrouplos/Philla Sym. of

(Continued on page 4)

Study Help Offered In Residence Halls

Many of the students on this campus could greatly increase the effectiveness of their study time with a few simple improvements in their study techniques. In recognition of this fact, the offices of the Dean of Men, Dean of Women, and counseling have combined efforts to institute a program that will bring a basic knowledge of modern study techniques to all of the students.

Undergraduates sensitive to students' study problems, who have been trained in effective study techniques by the Counseling and Guidance Office, are now starting sessions in each major group of dormitories. Discussions on study techniques will be held, and students with particular problems will have an opportunity to seek advice about such things as how to take good class notes, read effectively, prepare for and take exams, and attached specific fields, such as foreign language or mathematics.

Notices of the time and place of these meetings will be posted almost immediately. In order to get the most benefit possible from the program, students should start attending whichever series of meetings are most convenient for them as soon as possible.

Students who would like to know more about this program are invited to contact any of the following study leaders, but preliminary arrangements are not necessary in order to attend the meetings: Georgina Young, 314 Thatcher; John Tanzi, 118 Greenough; Patricia Ryder, 317 Johnson; Edward Rushbrook Jr., 496 North Pleasant Street; Dick Premerlani, 246 Gorman; Pat Hoyt, B-42 Gorman; James Gabriel, 330 Brett; Robert Davison, 14 Gorman; and Elizabeth Cook, 312 Johnson.

Smith College To Host Civil Rights Leader

Smith College will be host Tuesday night to the Rev. Lawrence Campbell, a local leader of Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Mr. Campbell will show a film on the civil rights situation in Danville, Virginia, and give his reasons for describing it as "The Next Birmingham."

Dr. King's S.C.L.C. task forces will be moving into this potential civil rights hot spot around Nov. 10. All proceeds from ticket sales will go towards lawyer's fees for court action against a local injunction ruling which prohibits legal demonstrations in Danville.

Co-sponsored by the Religious Association, National Student Association, and UMass Christian Association, Mr. Campbell will speak at Sage Auditorium, Tuesday at 8:30. Tickets will be sold at the door and at J. M. Green Hall, on Monday from 8-4.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: PETE WILDE

Almost 90,000 telephone customers in and around Haverhill, Massachusetts, rely on the supervisory ability of a man few of them will ever meet. He is Pete Wilde (B.A., 1960), Assistant District Traffic Superintendent for New England Telephone in Haverhill.

It is not unusual for a man of Pete's ability to rise to such a promotion as swiftly as he did. Pete had made an impressive start on an earlier assignment in Fitchburg where he was responsible for the service rendered by nearly 150 telephone operators. The capable job he did in Fitchburg earned him a chance for further training, a good raise, and his latest promotion.

Pete Wilde, like many young men, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.

BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES

Pumpkin Bounce

TAJ

and the

ELECTRAS

SATURDAY — 8:30 - 12

S.U. BALLROOM

NAPKINS

&

TABLECOVERS

A. J. Hastings

Inc.

NEWSDEALER & STATIONER

So. Pleasant St. — Amherst

Sophs Import Gambling And Bunnies On Campus

No key is needed for Club 66, because the doors will be open for a night of gambling, drinking and floor shows as Las Vegas comes to campus November 16.

On that night from 8 to 12 p.m. the Student Union Ballroom will be divided in half, one half decorated as the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, the other as the Bunny Club in New York.

There will be gambling with play money using materials that various night clubs in Las Vegas are sending. Members of the class of '66 will serve as card dealers, bouncers, waitresses and cigarette girls. A floor show will entertain in the "Bunny Club," and exotic Hawaiian drinks (made from pineapples and cocoanuts sent from Hawaii) will be served at the "bar."

The winner of the Frontier girl contest, run especially for this event, will throw out the first dice to get this new and different evening rolling.

Proceeds will go to Campus Chest, admission price being 75¢ per person.

Folk Singers Featured At 'Music Hour'

On Sunday, November 3, at 3 p.m. in the Cape Cod Lounge of the S.U. there will be a music hour featuring folk singers Dave Gitelson and Dick Doherty.

Dave, a relative newcomer to the folk scene has appeared in many hootenannies in the Western Mass area and has presented several concerts in his home town of Pittsfield. He specializes in ballads and Israeli folksongs which he learned while in Israel.

Appearing with Dave will be Dick Doherty who has been playing professionally for many years, having toured the country as a member of the Rovers 3. Recently Dick has been playing in the Boston Area.

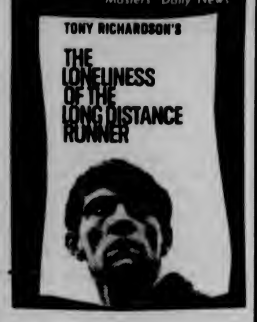
Dave and Dick have tried to arrange a program that will run the gambit from traditional to commercial.

SENIORS

Dean Godfrey of B.U. Law School, will be on campus Monday, Nov. 4, from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U. to talk with students interested in law school.

AMHERST Cinema
SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS
SUN., MON., TUES.

"A BRILLIANT PIECE OF WORK!" Beckley Herald Tribune
"★★★★ (FOUR STARS)" Masters Daily News



Sun.— 2:00, 4:40, 6:50, 9:05
Mon.-Tues. at 7:00 & 9:10

Literary Society Recites

The Literary Society will hold its first meeting Monday November 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the Bartlett Faculty Lounge. The program for the evening consists of a poetry recital by University faculty members, reading their own works.

The guests, four prominent poets from the English Department, Leon Barron, Robert Tucker and Stanley Koehler, three authors of The Curious Quire, will read from their book. Amidst these gentlemen, a lady will be present who has been the recipient of numerous poetry awards and has published in many national magazines. Her name is Anne Hally Chametzky.

WMUA Schedule ...

(Continued from page 3)

N. Y.); Prokofiev: Prelude in D, Op. 23, No. 4 (Richter)

Wednesday, Nov. 6

7:00-7:30: ENGLISH — Part 2 of a lecture on Faust given by Mr. Heller of the English department.

7:30-8:00 — Meet the Professor this week will feature Miss Doris Abramson of the Speach Department.

8:00-10:00: MUSICALE — Greig: Peer Gynt Suites nos. 1&2 (Fiedler/Pops); Saint-Saens: Carnival of the Animals (Fiedler/Pops); Tchaikovsky: Sym. No. 7 in E Major (Ormandy/Phil); Ravel: Bolero (Munch/BSO)

Thursday, Nov. 7

7:00 - 8:00: MUSIC AROUND THE WORLD this week features the music of India.

8:00-10:00: MUSICALE—Haydn: Sym. No. 83 in G Minor (Neth. Chamber Orch.); Franck: Sym. in D Minor (Munch / BSO); Hindemith: String Quartet No. 3, Op. 22 (the Kroll Quartet); Copland: Appalachian Spring (Copland/BSO)

Prof Knew The "Real" Music Man

—Photo by Nina Pearlmutter

The Operetta Guild will be privileged to have a very special person in its Music Man audience this weekend. Dr. Harold Hardy, head of the marketing department, claims a unique share of the same childhood memories as author-lyricist-composer Meredith Willson, for he was born in Mason City, Iowa, in "aught-3," knew the musical Willson family, and played in the first high school band with Willson.

Dr. Hardy, interviewed by Jane Abbiati (Eulalie Shinn), recalls that there was a "music man" who came to town—a Prof. Gorman, who did run into trouble because his ideas were new to the cautious Iowans. At first he, too, didn't have the support of the school committee, but the people soon came around to his way of thinking and have been enthusiastic supporters of music ever since.

Many of the River City townspeople were actual citizens of Mason City. Dr. Hardy remembers Major George Shinn and his wife Eulalie. He said they were a large family who lived in an upper middle section of town. Pompous Shinn and the Mrs. considered themselves town leaders; the other people affectionately ridiculed them, but enjoyed going along with the pair.

Hardy and Willson went to the same Congregational church. Their Sunday school teacher was Willson's mother, Rosalie, for whom the composer of Music Man wrote his delightful barbershop quartet song, "Lida Rose."

Dr. Hardy can also remember Dunlap, Hix and Squires families. There was a real Ethel Toffelmier, too, who taught Sunday school at the Congregational church.

The town's activities centered around their church life and community events like the Ice Cream Sociables that Willson brings back to life in Music Man.

Dr. Hardy also remembers the horse-drawn Wells Fargo wagon coming to town, bringing all sorts of mail orders to the excited people gathered in the block square.

As a whole, Dr. Hardy feels that Willson's recreation is very realistic. He says, "The Music Man is basically the story of the growing up of a small community-set to song and dance. What a thrill it is when this small community is your home town. The show is that much more realistic to the person who has grown up in Mason City."

The Guild wishes to thank Dr. Hardy for his story, adding insight and interest to their production of Willson's "all-American" Broadway hit.

CLUB DIRECTORY

AMATEUR RADIO CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. in Gunness Lab. All members and interested persons are asked to attend.

ARBORICULTURE & PARK MGT. CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the Commonwealth room of the S.U. The talk will be on wild flowers of the outer Cape.

B'NAI BRITH HILLEL
Services will be held on Fri., Nov. 1, at 7 p.m. in the Worcester room of the S.U.

CANTERBURY ASSOCIATION
Meeting on Sun., Nov. 3. Supper at 6 p.m. at Grace Church. Rides leave "768" at 5:45 p.m. The talk will be "Church and the College Campus." All Episcopal students invited.

CAROL SING COMMITTEE
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. in the Norfolk room of the S.U. Note change of time.

EDWARDS FELLOWSHIP
Meeting on Sun., Nov. 3, at First Congregational Church. Rides leave Hills and Arnold at 6:15 p.m.

FOOD DISTRIBUTION CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. The talk will be "Education and Employment." All are welcome.

FRESHMAN PUBLICITY COMMITTEE
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. in the Worcester B room of the S.U. Note change of time.

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
Meeting on Fri., Nov. 1, at 7 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. The lecture, part of a series, is "Christ and Man's Quest."

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Supper meeting on Sun., Nov. 3, at 6 .m. followed by a talk on "Religious Life in the Far East." At 9:30 a.m., a discussion group open to all students will meet.

LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. The talk will be "Man's response to Ancient Landscape."

LITERARY SOCIETY
Meeting on Mon., Nov. 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the Bartlett Faculty Lounge. A program of poetry readings is scheduled by University faculty members.

(Continued on page 6)

Winter Is Just Around The Corner
Better get your Snow Glasses
NOW
May we suggest Shatter-proof
PRESCRIPTION SUNLENSES
For all Snow Bunnies
We carry AMERICAN OPTICAL and BAUSCH & LOMB
"DON" CALL Optician
MAIN STREET • AMHERST

DON'T MISS
Oldies But Goodies
—TONIGHT After the Rally—
Steve And The Esquires
8:00 p.m. Student Union

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

by SANDI MAY '64

Fall Fashions For 1963 Highlight The Sportive Look

(The following is the result of an interview with Mrs. Mary Troxell of the Home Economics Dept.)

All fashions, like Gaul, are divided into four parts—the general silhouette, details of styling, texture of materials used, and color. These four faces of fashion encompass—and describe—the fashions accepted by any one group of consumers as expressed in their apparel and accessories.

The general fashion for Fall, is known as "The Sportive Look"—as popularly accepted in the city as it is in the country or on the campus. "The Sportive Look" results from wearing those fashions—both apparel and accessories—normally associated with sporting activities. Note the ski influence on sportswear; boots are worn on dry, city pavements, for leisure wear, in dressed-up fashion for after-five activities. Suede and leather, formerly seen only on active sportsmen, now go to cocktails, the theater, or dinner. The Layered Look, once worn only in deepest winter, today is, the fashion "look" for housewives, stenographers and coeds.

While "The Sportive Look" is an all-purpose, all-American look, and especially right for the campus coed, a trend may be noticed toward more feminity and dressiness in apparel and accessories, especially noted in the long skirtlines for leisure or evening wear, as well as the smaller shapes of handbags.

General interest in "The Sportive Look" centers mainly on the texture and color phases of the fashion picture. The silhouette (the shape or overall effect of the complete costume) is typified in the shift or skimmer shape of coats, dresses, suits. The general silhouette is simple, uncluttered, with natural body lines, with a slight trend noticeable to subtle fitting or shaping to conform more closely to natural body lines.

A complete change in silhouette fashion may not be far away since a general fashion usually has a life span of 7 to 10 years; The Natural Look first became a bona fida fashion in 1954.

Details, or styles, accepted as fashionable within the general look or silhouette, affect and shape the silhouette itself. Fall fashions in 1963 find fashion interest centered on two aspects of "The Sportive Look"—"The Muffled Look" and "The Layered Look".

"The Muffled Look" is typified by draped and built-up necklines; hoods; stoles and scarfs swathing the head, neck, and upper body; turtle-neck dickies and sweaters; long and often full sleeves, often French-cuffed; boots for any and all occasions—from ankle-height to above the knee; closed and built-up shoes, sometimes with lacings.

"The Layered Look" results from adding various items of clothing to a base, and may be seen in the wide fashion acceptance of three-piece suits—sometimes with a three-quarter, seven-eighths, or full length coat with can be worn with other costumes. Blouses or sweaters worn under jumpers depict the Layered Look fashion—dickies in prints, stripes, or contrasting colors worn with sweaters, blouses, jumpers, suits give a layered effect. Slender wrap-around skirts, apron effects, wandering waistlines, slightly lowered hemlines are all part of "The Sportive Look." Shoes reflect the general fashion in their stacked, straight, or shaped heels—always low or medium height.

One of the most significant features of "The Sportive Look," however, is found in the texture or surface interest of the fabrics or materials used for Fall, 1963, apparel and accessories. Nubby, spongy textures are the rage, as seen in the wide acceptance of mohair, mohair-type blends, tweeds. Fashion interest in leather centers around surface interest and grain, rather than in smooth surfaces— the ever-widening use of reptiles, each with their characteristic grainings or markings. Sueded leather apparel and accessories have reached new heights in fashion acceptance; synthetic suede combines all weather wear, practicality, with surface interest. Hosiery comes in a wide variety of textured patterns to be worn with the popular nubby or spongy textures of apparel to produce a Sportive Look. Knits in single, double or stretch fabrics are the season's outstanding favorites and add texture interest to the fashion scene. Long-haired furs are very much in the fashion picture—long-haired "fun furs" are the rage of the young-at-heart—fabulous fakes run the gamut from phony pony to look-like leopard. Surface interest lies behind the popularity of corduroy—spelled out in wide, narrow, or variegated-width wales. On the dressier scene, the rich, deep pile of velvet and velveteen—the luxury and drama of brocades and reembroidred laces—complete the fashion emphasis on texture interest.

Color highlights fashion excitement for fall, 1963, with accent on the chromatic colors—yellow, pink, red, green, blue, purple and orange. Color tints, rather than shades, distinguish the color story, and confirm the trend to white as a four-season wardrobe color. Further evidence

(Continued on page 6)

WAA News

SKI TEAM

The first meeting of the women's ski team will be held Thursday, November 7th at 7:30 P.M. in W.P.E. building. This will be an organizational and business meeting. Those interested in trying out for the team will meet weekly for indoor tralning and conditioning.

When the snow falls, practices will be held every Thursday at Mt. Tom from 6-10 P.M.

The WAA Ski Team will take part in at least five races this season, which will be held all over New England. So, if you like to ski and race or learn to race, come to the meeting this Thursday.

FIELD HOCKEY

The WAA Field Hockey Team travels to the annual Boston Field Hockey Association's playday this Saturday, which will be held at Beaver Country Day School near Boston.

Pinnings

Pat Flanagan, SDT, to Mike First, TKE.

Nancy DeBlasie, Beverly Hospital School of Nursing, to Barry Morse, TKE.

Liane Ludwig, Saugas, to Bill Stella, TKE.

Helene Kliman, Mary Lyon, to Steven J. Challis, Northeastern University.

Sandra Edmands, PiBP to Bruce Jordan, KS.

Peggy Chalmers, Johnson, to Jerry Soucy, ATG, '63.

ENGAGEMENTS

Judy Dow, Johnson, to Robert Yokes, '63.

Carolyn Oliver, SK, to Frank Pisiewski, QTV, '63.

Penny Hatch, SK, to John Champagne, '63, Holyoke.

Sorority News

SIGMA KAPPA

We were indeed fortunate this past week to have with us Mrs. Doris Chandler, the president of province IA.

Sigma Kappa is very happy with their new pledge class, consisting of sixteen freshmen, seven sophomores, and one junior: class of '67, Gina Testa, Connie Cronin, Laura Kunzler, Marycarol Lundberg, Carol Belonis, Phyllis McAteer, Carol Leavitt, Lynda Cody, Joyce Spooner, Ellen Rosenbaatt, Susan Deitch, Joanne Papuga, and Arlene Levine; clas of '66, Liz Ferry, Leone Noonan, Linda Paul, Vicky Scalvini, Carolyn Schmist, Andrea Doty, and Sue Miriam, class of '65, Joanne Buckley.

The Sigmas were very startled Tuesday at lunchtime when the Amherst fire engine pulled in our driveway, lights flashing. We soon discovered that one of our houseboys was merely burning trash.

On November 9 Sigma Kappa will be celebrating our National Founders' Day. Sigma Kappa was founded at Colby College in 1874. In honor of the occasion Mrs. Silvi, our province president, will visit our chapter on Wednesday, Nov. 6.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

A hectic week of rush parties and sleepless nights, interspersed with exams, was successfully climaxed Tuesday by the addition of a new pledge class of twenty-seven strong. With much pride Alpha Chi extends a warm welcome to our new pledges. Class of 1965: Merry Farrell and Margi Gibson; Class of 1966: Ellen Fiske, Carol Kalbko, and Sue MacDonald; Class of 1967: Eileen Blanchette, Judi Culverwell, Ann Cygan, Dotty Dame, Mary-Ellen Dorsey, Karen Gavutis, Marsha Grepp, Sue Hanlon, Mary Harrigan, Cindy Hatch, Barbara Jahn, Sue Keefe, Barbara Newman, Paula Ostromecki, Nancy Reid, Laurie Schmidt, Elaine Slavinsky, Phyllis Sobel, Elaine Stawasz, Linda Stetson, Ann Tierney, and Ann Yakavonis. The new pledges were greeted by the excited sisters and also a warm, crackling fire in the rustic fireplace at Farley Lodge. A pizza supper followed the ribbon pledging. Formal pledging was held Wednesday night. Many thanks go to Ann Williams, our rush chairman, for a job well done.

Delta Mu was fortunate in having an Alpha Chi Omega National Field Advisor present during Rush Week. Linda Holbrook, a 1963 grad of Denison College in Ohio, was a member of the Delta Xi Chapter there, and is presently making visits to many of our chapters throughout the nation. Linda was a great help in advising us through rush. We were all sad to see her leave Wednesday, and hope to have her visit us again as a guest in our new house.

Thanks go to SAE for the pizza party held a few week ago. And also to the Kappa Sig's who were kind enough to let us use their front lawn for the building of our float. Thanks so much for your helpfulness.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

Sigma Sigma Sigma welcomed four of its pledges into the sisterhood earlier this semester. Congratulations and best luck go to: Sue Longfellow '65; Carol Waikwitz, '66; Nancy Elwell, '66 and Mary Fiumara, '66.

After the Homecoming football game Saturday, refreshments were served informally to the alumnae, the sisters and their guests.

The Tri Sigmas feel lucky to have Mrs. Fredrickson, a graduate Sigma Sigma Sigma from Kansas State Teachers College living in the area, to guide them in sorority living. While her husband is working with the Education Department on campus, Mrs. Fredrickson resides in North Amherst.

Chapter Inspection, the third phase of Sigma Sigma Sigma Triennium, is rapidly approaching as the sisters make preparations to welcome Mrs. H. W. Morrison, the sorority's National Historian from Connecticut.

Dormitory News

JOHNSON

We were all very excited about winning third place in the float parade. Thanks go to Mary Robison, dorm social chairman, and those that helped her put together the winning float.

Congratulations also go to Anne Creeden, our finalist for Homecoming queen.

On Tuesday night from 7:30-10:00, Dr. Gage headed a lecture-discussion session in the recreation room at Johnson House. Approximately a hundred girls attended the affair and found it to be an interesting and informative evening.

MARY LYON

Reflecting on Homecoming Weekend, the residents of Mary Lyon have proud memories of our float which was beautifully decorated under the direction of Helen Roberts, and Harry DeWolfe, our janitor. We are also proud of Sandy Pierce, who made an elegant queen.

Sincere congratulations are offered to Kathy Sciocento who was recently elected Secretary of the class of '67.

This week the dormitory seemed alive with the excitement of the many freshmen girls who are participating in sorority rushing activities. Best wishes to all our prospective pledges.

We want to thank the men of Plymouth House for sponsoring a mixer, the Pumpkin Prance, Friday, October 25, in our recreation room. The decorations and dancing made it a most enjoyable evening.

WHEELER

On Wednesday, October 23rd, Wheeler House held the first in a series of Meet the Professor nights. Dr. Julian Janowitz, Director of Mental Health at the University was the guest speaker at this occasion. The night opened immediately with questions from the residents. Some of the questions asked dealt with the adjustments to college life, the use of hypnotism as an aid to medicine, psychological methods, and, of course, sex. The event, lasting from 8:30 to 12 o'clock, was well attended and very enlightening.

There is no finer Sweater than a
HIMALYA
Now on display in all colors and styles
at KELLERMAN'S
The Home of College Styles
— As advertised in Playboy and the New Yorker —

Watch Repairs
Trophies
Jewelry
and Gifts
at
WINN
Jewelers
31 S. Pleasant
Amherst

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn
Breakfast — 50¢
Lunch — 50¢ up
THE OPEN HEARTH
STEAKHOUSE
BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

After Abby

Fire Officials Take Steps To Greater Safety

Ever since the fire at Abigail Adams House, on October 27, 1962, greater concern has been given to fire prevention on campus. This fire prevention program is extensive.

Fire and Safety Officer Edward Goetzl and his team make periodic inspections of all dormitories and academic buildings; fire extinguishers have been provded for all buildings; many training programs in fire prevention and fire drills are offered; and bulletins with recommendations and procedures in case of emergencies have been distributed.

Through the Deans' offices, rigid regulations in regard to the use of heating devices such as hot plate mats, etc., are enforced by inspections. Limited use of certain appliances such as irons and hair dryers is allowed.

The fire department needs the cooperation of each student to comply with the fire prevention regulations. Vitally important: don't smoke in bed! This is the #1 enemy for starting fires.

The fire department has issued fire prevention cards, entitled: "What to do in the event of fire?" It may be obtained through each Head of Residence.

The Student Volunteer Fire Department on campus consists of ten men, under the direction of Chief Richard Floyd, (student,) and under advisement of Mr. Goetzl. Training programs in firefighting and inspection work and the use of students as fire prevention officers at all places of public assembly are employed. For example, fire prevention details are sent to every performance at Bowker Auditorium.

The Volunteer Fire Department is used by the Amherst Fire Department as a secondary defense for fire fighting. According to Mr. Goetzl, these volunteers are "most willing workers, most enthusiastic, and well capable." He remarked, "They perform a tremendous service, both to the campus and to the town of Amherst."

Club Directory ...

(Continued from page 6)

All are welcome.

NAIADS

Meeting for Jr. Naiads on Tues., Nov. 5, at 6:30 p.m., and an optional practice for all interested at 7:30 p.m. Sr. Naiads will meet on Wed., Nov. 6, at 7 p.m. Important: tryouts will be held for all Sr. Naiads interested in solo, duet, and trio parts in the show. Further information in the WoPE Bldg.

ORTHODOX CLUB

Meeting on Mon., Oct. 4, at 6:30 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. All are invited.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

Meeting on Sun., Nov. 3. Supper is at 6 p.m. at the Wesley Methodist Church. The program will be a panel discussion on mental health, beginning at 7 p.m.

Hoax ...

Continued from page 1

tion is "forthcoming."

Mrs. Daniel M. Selvatico, wife of the Chesterfield chief of police, verified the fact that no robbery had taken place.

The students allege that they were hitchhiking back from Boston when they were picked up in Northampton by 6 leather-jacketed youths in a Buick sedan.

State and local police combed the area for the alleged attackers, until subsequent questioning of the youths called a swift halt to the manhunt.

WOMEN'S INTERDORM COUNCIL

Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 11:15 a.m. in the S.U. Please bring candy money and left-over candy. Attendance mandatory.

Band To Play At Home With Brand New Routine

On Wednesday evening, October 30, the 1963 University of Massachusetts Marching Band, led by Drum Major Bruce Cutter, participated in the annual Halloween parade held in North Amherst. The band marched and played several excerpts from the band show for the Vermont game, Lerner and Lowe on Broadway.

On Thursday evening, the Band made what is fast becoming a traditional appearance in the Pittsfield annual Halloween parade. The band performed precision drill movements during the line of march.

The band is presently working on its show planned for the Vermont game this coming Saturday. This show will feature the band doing an entirely new type of routine. In contrast to the formation type show usually featured by the band, its performance on the gridiron this Saturday will present a wide variety of marching maneuvers; military drill, precision routines to well-known tunes and a grand finale of an especially written and toe-tapping camel walk—"Down on MacConnachy Square" from Brigadoon.

The songs, arranged especially for Marching band by conductor John A. Jenkins, will include Get Me to the Church on Time, The Rain in Spain, I could have Danced all Night, and Almost Like Being in Love.

Job Bias ...

(Continued from page 1)

applicants for most positions would also be possible under civil service, which is not now done for many positions at the University.

The legislators pointed out that the University has grown in great strides in recent years and is now the single largest institution on the state for the hiring of non-professional personnel. Because of the fast growth planned in the future years, they said they felt procedures established by the division of civil service, and used so successfully in nearly all other state institutions, should now be put in force at the University in order to improve morale, by insuring that hiring and promotion is based on standard and acceptable rules and procedures.

Hort Show ...

(Continued from page 1)

many advantages to any student's participation in the show above and beyond the questioned academic advantage. First of all, it served to bring staff and students together. By observing the student functionining under the circumstances of the show, the faculyt was given good material for recommendations. Finally, they all had the feeling of accomplishment of a job well-done for an appreciative public.

So far, the student reaction has been mixed.

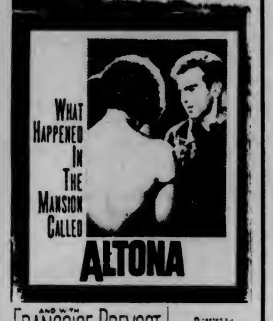
The Horticulture Show has had a 50 year history on campus. It started as an an exhibit of Floral arrangements, and later was expanded and moved to Wilder Hall, and even to an outdoor tent. Since 1933, the show has been presented in the Cage.

Fall Fashions ...

(Continued from page 5)

of the importance of white is found in its wide use in prints, plaids, and checks. Perhaps we can say that red is the most significant color of the season, with cranberry (a berry-toned brown red) most widely promoted in apparel and accessories. Yellow runs the gamut from pastel yellow to antique gold; greens may be found in a wide range from almond to bright kelly. Brown tones are popular from mere hints in champagne beige to spicy browns and occasionally blackened browns. Holiday season colors—pure and off-white, pastels—are just beginning to make their appearance on the fashion scene, for fresh, exciting wear under coats in the months ahead.

DEERFIELD
Drive-In
ROUTES 5 & 10
S. Deerfield, Mass.
—FRI., SAT., SUN.—
SOPHIA LOREN | MAXIMILIAN SCHELL
FREDRIC MARCH | ROBERT WAGNER
"THE CONDEMNED OF ALTONA"



AND WITH FRANCOISE PREVOST
William Holden in
Show begins at 7:30
Feature first Sunday

courses....ugh register....rush stand....wait.... shuffle....go....
twitch....fidget
....yawn....stop move....nearer nearer....filled
....pause
things go better with Coke
Drink Coca-Cola
TRADE-MARKS
"COCA-COLA" AND "COKE" ARE REGISTERED TRADE-MARKS WHICH IDENTIFY ONLY THE PRODUCT OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY.
Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by:
COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO. OF NORTHAMPTON, MASS.

U should try of - ten our
Mass - ive Grinders
just a short trot from Amherst Center
Featuring the STABLEBURGER DELIGHT
"BEST BURGER" IN TOWN
Route 9 Hadley

"On Campus Photo" —Ron Goldberg

Beat Vermont...

And now that Cool Days are here, join Nancy and Bob in enjoying the cozy comfort of a Pendleton 'ROBE IN A BAG.' 100% wool with Redman seal in your college color. Comes in attractive case with Bleacher Pad.

It makes an ideal gift for the family or that special gal. Can be used as a car robe or in your room.

Only $17.95

ATTENTION STUDENTS!

For those we have been unable to serve; our new shipment of LEVI's has arrived. Now available in all sizes.

House of Walsh

"Where Walsh's lead, other stores follow"

Football . . .

(Continued from page 8)

per carry. The Redmen pass defense has also been outstanding, with the seconday, led by Jerry Whelchel and Bob Ellis, coming up with twelve interceptions. The opposition has completed 46% of its passes, none for touchdowns.

Offensively UMass has charged for 1250 yards and thrown for 545 more. The leading rusher is fullback Mike Rose with 210 yards in 33 attempts for a 6.4 yard average. He is followed by Ken Palm and Jerry Whelchel. The balance of the ground attack is clearly shown by the fact that six players have run for over one hundred yards.

Jerry Whelchel, who was not as accurate as usual at B.U. last Saturday, has completed 33 of 57 passes for 462 yards and three touchdowns. Whelchel's favorite targets have been the two giant sophomore ends. Bob Meers has caught 16 passes for 235 yards and Milt Morin has 10 receptions for 160 yards.

The Redmen have been noticed by the E.C.A.C. and a UMass lineman has been selected every week of the season so far. Latest to be honored by a position on the team is end Bob Meers for his offensive show at B.U. last week.

The coaching staff has also been impressed by the second team. Their fine performance at B.U. Field was indistinguishable from the starter's. There were no serious injuries suffered in Boston with the exception of Freddy Lewis, who is out for the season, and Phil Vandersea. The team will be physically sound against Vermont.

Coach Vic Fusia said, "They have a fine all-around halfback in Ken Burton. He combines power with breakaway ability. Their sophomore back Scott Fitz has developed into a capable passer. We expect quite a battle."

Little Redmen Face Crusader Freshmen

by RALPH PROLMAN

This afternoon the UMass freshman go after their second win of the season as they play the Holy Cross frosh, in Worcester, at 2:30. So far, this season both teams are one and one, with the little Redmen losing to Manlius and beating Maine Central, while the Crusader frosh have beaten B.C. and lost to Dartmouth.

Today's game is being played with 12 minute periods instead of the usual 15 minute periods and unlimited substitution. In last year's game the little Redmen played a strong defensive game to defeat Holy Cross.

The quarterbacking chores today will be split between Al Caruso and Ray Johnson. Johnson, who has been injured, has appeared in only the Maine Central game. He has looked very good in practice this week and has been running the pass-option play well in scrimmage. Mike Henderson who threw a TD pass in the last game has been switched to halfback. The squad which started out at 47 players is now down to 33 for today's game.

Frosh Harriers Win Home Dual Meet

by MARSHALL KAROL

The Freshman harriers broke their string of bad luck by downing the Rams of Rhode Island in a closely contested meet. After a slow start, due to injuries and inexperience, the frosh displayed determination and fortitude in coming up with this important homecoming victory. Although Rhodie swept the first two places, Mass depth took third through sixth man to clinch the win.

UMass was led by Abraham St. Claire, who placed third, and followed closely by "Flash Mitchell, Bill Thomas, and Terry Carpenter. The most noticeable improvement has been the team's ability to close the time gap, which was so prevalent in earlier meets.

Deserving special mention is Terry Carpenter, who ran in true form after incurring a leg injury in the earlier part of the season.

The victory may have been indicative of future meets. The Little Redmen had displayed potential in their pre-season workouts, but defeats in the first two meets appeared to indicate a bleak season. Assistant coach Bob Pendleton reports that an improvement in the team's morale was evidenced by the recent victory.

The harriers are now looking forward to their next meet, Nov. 6, with a traditional powerhouse, Springfield College.

Fraternity Football Season To End With Campus Playoff

by DAVE GARBER

I.F.C league football comes to a close on Wednesday night.

The play-offs for the campus championship will begin next week.

S.P.E. behind touch downs by Francin and Lombardo shaded B.K.P. 14-6. Frank Corbet scored B.K.P.'s only touchdown.

Q.T.V. squeaked out a 7-6 win over P.S.K. Q.T.V.'s victory come on Jim McHigh's touchdown and a conversion by Hank Knutsen.

John Farrel scored touchdowns and Vaugh Rist carried the conversion over both times as T.C. outscored Z.N. 14-6. Pete Shanousky scored for Z.N.

T.K.E. scored its fifth shut-out of the season by beating A.T.G. 38-0. Paul Caisse scored four touchdowns for T.K.E. Also scoring for T.K.E. were Bunky Karampatsos and Dick Brown.

As in past years I.F.C. play has been dominated by the good sport and excellent sportsmanship which has made the intramural program so successful in the past.

—Photo by Bill Green

Fall football action as it will be seen Saturday afternoon at Alumni Field.

Fraternities Getting Quality Men

Athens, O. (I.P.)—Ohio University's fraternities are getting quality men, not average men, according to Dean of Students William Butler. "When we initiated the deferred pledge system in 1954, we were probably 10 years ahead of the other schools," he added.

Dean Butler pointed to statistics from the last three years which show that the men who have pledged have an average of 2.5 as compared with the 2.0, which is required to pledge. "We are head of the times in getting quality men," Dean Butler said. "The freshmen who go into the fraternity system surpass 65 per cent of all freshman males who enter the University as based on the Ohio State Psychological Examination which they take before enrolling."

More important, Dean Butler said, is that the fraternities initiate 75 per cent of their pledges as compared with the 35 per cent average around the nation.

HADLEY
DRIVE-IN ROUTE 9
BETWEEN NORTHAMPTON AND AMHERST
FRI., SAT., SUN. — NOV. 1-2-3
SHOCKING-SUSPENSE!
IT PLUNGES YOU INTO A NEW DIMENSION OF FEAR
The CRAWLING HAND
PETER BRECK
PLUS 2ND BIG HIT!
UP FROM THE BOWELS OF THE EARTH COME...
THE SLIME PEOPLE
—BONUS FEATURE AT 7 P.M. ONLY—
BOB HOPE — LUCILLE BALL in "FANCY PANTS" in color
Next— "THE L-SHAPED ROOM"

Beanpot Rally Tonight

Tonight's rally shapes up as "The Beanpot Rally" for the undefeated University of Massachusetts football squad.

A win Saturday over the Vermont Catamounts will virtually assure the Redmen of their first Yankee Conference title since Massachusetts has been in the conference.

The Redmen came close last year only to miss by a loss to New Hampshire.

The rally parade will get underway at 7 p.m. at the top of the hill with the Redmen marching band leading the way.

Ski Instructors

Weekend positions available for skiers to instruct high school boys and girls. Prior instruction experience not required. Good compensation. Excellent ski facilities. Write or Call:

SHAKER VILLAGE SKI GROUP
P.O. Box 1149, Pittsfield, Mass.
Lebanon Springs (N.Y.) 7-1255

The Draft & You

(ACP) — President Kennedy's executive order exempting married men from the draft is an especially heartening one. Previously, only young fathers had been exempt, and with this new order similar hardships have been acknowledged for those of us who are not fathers yet, but merely husbands.

THE SPECTRUM, (State University of New York, Buffalo) also would recommend that this liberalization be extended to other persons — namely, those men who give two years of service to the country in the Peace Corps.

—FOR SALE—
1956 OLDSMOBILE CONV.
Good condition. Inquire:
Courtney Brickman, AL 6-6831

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Vermont Possible Sleeper

Catamounts Invade Amherst

by KEVIN COYLE

Tomorrow Alumni Field will be invaded by the University of Vermont football team which is a surprise contender for the Yankee Conference title. The two teams picked by the experts to give the Redmen a run for the Beanpot, Connecticut and New Hampshire, will be fighting to stay out of the cellar when they play at Storrs, Conn. tomorrow.

The Catamounts come to Amherst with an impressive record of 5-1-0. Their lone setback was at the hands of the Maine Black Bears by the not overwhelming score of 14-13. Vermont victims include Rhode Island, 21-6; New Hampshire, 28-6; Norwich, 27-0; AIC, 14-6; and the Army "B" team, 12-0.

The Vermonters have a very respectable offensive machine which has piled up 1225 yards on the turf and 682 through the skyways. Catamount quarterback Scott Fitz, a sophomore, has completed 30 of 57 passes for 374 yards and two touchdowns. He has been improving with every game as is evidenced by last week's performance when he completed 10 of 13 passes for 117 yards and a T.D. He is no slouch on defense either as last week he made seven unassisted tackles. Last week's heroics won him the honor of being chosen E.C.A.C. Small College sophomore of the week.

The men from Burlington also have capable runners with halfback Ken Burton and fullback Richie Reynolds. Burton is a powerful flash who has also made the E.C.A.C. Small College team of the week. He has needed only 82 tries to get his 549 yards which gives him a 6.6 yard per carry average and five touchdowns. Fullback Richie Reynolds complements Burton with 300 yards in 73 carries for a 4.1 average.

Fitz has concentrated on three receivers with halfback Deane Kent heading the list with 14 receptions for 153 yards. Burton has caught 11 for 130 yards and end Pete Weiss has 10 for 188 yards.

A victory for the Redmen would give them their first private league championship. They have come close for the past three years but something always goes wrong. A victory tomorrow would give the Redmen over a .500 winning percentage for the first time since 1953; they currently stand 27-27-2 in league play since 1947. Since 1960 the Redmen put on quite a YanCon show consisting of 13 wins and only 3 losses. Vermont also has never won the Beanpot, the best they could do was fourth.

A brilliant UMass defense, which has given up only ten points all year could very well be the key to the battle. The cheapskates lead the nation in points allowed per game with a 1.67 figure. Only obscure John Carroll College has allowed less total points but they have only played four games. Other teams close to Massachusetts are Princeton, Mississippi, and Western Colorado State; all with twenty points.

The Redmen line has allowed only 336 yards rushing for an average of 56 per game or 1.6

(Continued on page 7)

THE REDMEN COACHING STAFF

Fred Glatz, End Coach; Ted Schmitt, Line Coach; Vic Fusia, Head Coach; Jack Delaney, Backfield Coach; and Chet Gladchuk, Line Coach.

RALLY

Support your team — attend the rally behind the S.U. Friday at 7 p.m.

Redmen Pistol Team Tops In N.E. Air Force Competition

For the first time in six years, the Redmen Pistol Team copped top honors in the intercollegiate event of the New England Air Force Gallery Championship at Hanscon Air Force Base last Saturday. With returning lettermen Capt. Jack Kelly, Dave Naylor, and Dan Sullivan setting the pace, an impressive array of sophomore shooters; Eric Mussen, Pete Thomas, Roger Yee, and George Wietecha provided the stuff to beat MIT, and Coast Guard, a strong fifth nationally last year.

This year's squad is shaping up as the best balanced and strongest unit to represent the University since pistol shooting was adopted as a varsity sport. With the present depth in sophomores the team should provide some tough competition for such power houses as Army and Navy and lesser ranked clubs — Coast Guard, Villanova, and King's Point.

The squad will be feted at a banquet on Nov. 16 at Hanscom AFB, when they will receive the tournament trophy. In addition, junior Dan Sullivan will receive a pistol for his efforts in beating the field of competitors in the Marksman category, and other individual awards will be presented.

REDMEN CLUB

At the beginning of the 1963 football season Coach Vic Fusia created a club which could be joined only by Redmen football players who excelled on defense. After six games and three more to go, there are twenty-seven players who have earned at least one of their six letters.

SET YOUR SIGHTS ON VALUE STYLE QUALITY

Enjoy the satisfaction of wearing shoes that are handsomely styled, carefully made and sensibly priced. Here's built-in stamina and lasting comfort, plus the smart good looks you want. Many new styles to choose from now. Come in soon and select your favorites.

OUTSTANDING VALUES at this LOW PRICE

$11.95

BOLLES Shoe Store

Amherst Center

WHAT'S NEW IN THE NOVEMBER ATLANTIC?

"The Eisenhower Administration: A Self Portrait": An assessment by historian Oscar Handlin, based in part on Ike's new book, Mandate for Change.

"Book Censorship in Paris": Peter Lennon reports on the rigid censorship of books and magazines in France.

"The Moment": A poem by Peter Davison, this year's winner, Yale Series of Younger Poets.

"The Nobel Prize Winners": A satire on American industrial research companies and their status-mongering, by W. J. J. Gordon.

PLUS AN ATLANTIC EXTRA

"Blame Me on History": South African Negro journalist, Bloke Modisane, tells of his bitter struggle to maintain integrity and self respect.

Every month the Atlantic provides a platform for many of the world's most articulate and creative men and women. The result is always entertaining and informative, often brilliant, occasionally profound. More and more, the Atlantic is finding its way into the hands of discerning readers. Get your copy today.

ON SALE NOW

SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS

AMHERST Cinema

NOW SHOWING • 6:30 - 9:10 Ends Sat.

JACK LEMMON SHIRLEY MacLAINE

BILLY WILDER'S IRMA la DOUCE

TECHNICOLOR® PANAVISION®

RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS

WED., Nov. 6th— Fellini's "8½" Don't Miss It!

Quality Fruit Store

Amity Street

The Little Store Near the Theater

Moreby Hall

LIBRARY
NOV 7 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII NO. 22 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1963

SAE Charter Suspended

"Ghosts Of UT" Will Haunt Bowker Stage

by ANN MILLER

"I didn't think there was a ghost of a chance to improve on past performances," said a Roister Doister officer about University Theatre's program since its inception last year, "until I saw what was coming up this month.

"Of course I refer to Ghosts."

The Department of Speech of the University of Massachusetts has announced that the University Theatre's second production this year will be Henrik Ibsen's Ghosts.

In his earlier A Doll's House Ibsen had revolted against the thought of his time when he had his heroine leave her husband and family. Some theatre managers refused to stage it until the ending was rewritten into something more acceptable to a late nineteenth century audience.

Ghosts—Highly Controversial

In Ghosts (1881) Ibsen reversed the situation ironically, to have Mrs. Alving stick it out at home. Her conformity was tragic and Ibsen made evident that this conformity was actually an unnaturalistic act—that the natural thing would have been for her to leave. Thus he answered critics and society.

A masterpiece of symbolic realism, Ghosts is also interesting for Ibsen's comments on many of the social problems of his time. His ideas were ones that scandalized the conservative Victorians, though they delighted the Ibsenite rebels.

Critics have often interpreted

(Continued on page 5)

Associate Alumni Elect Maginnis New President

A former director of state civil defense has been elected president of the UMass Associate Alumni for the year 1964.

John Maginnis, a retired U.S. Army major-general, will take over his duties as president on Jan. 1. A resident of Worcester, General Maginnis succeeds Robert D. Gordon of Lincoln, a member of the Boston law firm of Gordon & Gordon.

Sumner Kaplan, a Brookline Selectman and former representative to the General Court, stepped into the vice-presidency, succeeding Page L. Hiland of Meriden, Conn., advertising sales manager of International Silver Co.

Reelected to the secretary's post was George Benoit of Framingham, vice-president of the Sanborn Co., a Boston hospital equipment firm. Prof. Robert Fitzpatrick of the UMass agricultural economics department was re-elected treasurer.

Elected to the 25-member Board of Directors were Philip Burne and Miss Lois Toko, both of Boston.

Four others appointed to the Board were Dr. James T. Nicholson of Washington, retired executive vice-president of the International Red Cross; Dr. William O'Donnell, UMass professor of English; Edward M. Fouhy, news director of WBZ-TV, and Mrs. Lillian Moldaw Davis of Worcester.

John T. Sweeney of Reading, aide to Governor Endicott Peabody, was named regional vice-president for Eastern Massachusetts. David J. Flood of Pittsfield, publisher's representative for Random House, was named regional vice-president for Western Massachusetts. Norman P. Blake of Greenwich, Conn., vice-president of Pan American World Airways, was appointed the regional vice-president for New York.

Hoax On Police Prompts Action

by ELWIN McNAMARA
News Editor

A hoax, perpetrated on state and local police, has resulted in the closing of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, the legendary "Home of Champions."

The closing was the result of this and other events going back to last year.

According to a joint statement issued by the national organization of the fraternity and Dean of Men Robert Hopkins, the charter was suspended because of violations of "regulations concerning hazing."

Prior to the "kidnapping" episode, the house had been placed on disciplinary probation due to transgressions of alcoholic beverage regulations. According to University officials, the closing came as a result of these past actions as well as the alleged hazing.

The house will be closed, and those brothers residing there will be forced to seek lodging elsewhere. Also, those eating, but not living at the house, will have to seek other accommodations. They will probably not be able to be assimilated into dormitories, and will have to seek off-campus housing, University sources stated.

To date, no action has been taken on the two pledges who, after being dropped by brothers in Chesterfield told police that they were robbed by six leather jacketed teenagers.

Chesterfield Police Chief Daniel Selvatico told the Collegian that the two were picked up on a lonely road in the Bofat Hill section of the town, and were take by him to the state police barracks in Northampton.

Subsequent questioning of the two by Chief Selvatico, state, and campus police, and the Dean of Men, revealed that their story was a complete fabrication. Disciplinary action will be taken later this week.

The house has been under the supervision of an alumni commission for many weeks. Capt. John Keliher of the ROTC dept., a member of the board had no comment on the closing.

The house has been noted for the many athletes counted among its members.

While the UMass chapter has ceased to exist, the charter of the chapter still exists, in suspension. This means, according to administrative sources, that the chapter could be reinstated on campus at some future date.

Student Senate Passes Bill Legalizing Area Judiciary

by BOB MARTIN

Area Judiciary is one of the latest additions to our student government. It was created last semester to both lighten the burden of Men's Judiciary, and to replace the system of kangaroo courts run by the dormitory House Councils. Area Judiciary became official last week as a result of Senate Bill S21, which fully incorporated it into the Student Government.

Area Judiciary has jurisdiction over all violations of University law occurring within the dormitories, and over all violations of dormitory law.

There are two divisions of Area Judiciary. Area I is composed of Butterfield, Chadbourne, Greenough, Baker and Plymouth. Area II is composed of Mills, Wheeler, Brett, Gorman, Hills North and Hills South.

As to selection of justices, of which there are now seven on each Board, Senate Bill S21 specifies that:

"The method of selection shall be as follows: each House Council shall recommend a selected group of applicants from its respective residence hall from which there shall be chosen . . . the same number of persons as the number of residence halls in the specified area.

1. In this matter, it is not necessary that each residence hall be represented by a member of the Area Judiciary.
2. If a member of an Area Judiciary should move from the Area which he represents, he will no longer serve as a member of that body and a new Justice will be selected to fill the vacancy. If a member moves from his dorm, he shall, if requested, vacate his seat on the Judiciary."

Decisions made by Area Judiciary may be appealed to the Men's Judiciary and, ultimately, to the University Disciplinary Board. No penalty imposed by Area Judiciary may be increased as a result of such an appeal, although it may be lightened.

Area Judiciary may impose

(Continued on page 4)

22 Lucky Lasses Nominated For '63 Military Ball Queen

The Army and Air Force Cadets of the University of Massachusetts have completed nominations for the girl who will carry the title of Military Ball Queen, 1963. The girls, numbering 22 in all were nominated by each Cadet Army Company and the Cadet Brigade Staff; by each Cadet Air Force Squadron and the Cadet Wing Staff.

This year's nominees are: Miss Diane Alvarez, 67; Miss Susan Bailey, 67; Miss Marsha Billings, 65; Miss Janina Bruell, 65; Miss Victoria Bryden, 67; Miss Barbara Clauss, 67; Miss Dotty Donovan, 64; Miss Nancy Field, 67; Miss Evelyn Hansen, 64; Miss Elaine Howe, 66; Miss Diane Klein, 67; Miss Jean Lavoie, 67; Miss Vicky Lippner, 67; Miss Barbara Mendelsohn, 66; Miss Carol Mills, 67; Miss Sally Minick, 66; Miss Judy Norman, 65; Miss Elizabeth Peck, 65; Miss Susan Penney, 67; Miss Lee Sperry, 67; Miss Judy Sturdivant, 67; Miss Nancy Thompson, 65.

Voting, as well as nominating, is being done by the Cadets this year, and the results of who the finalists are will be made known at the Army Fall Review, Tuesday, November 5th at 11:15 a.m. on the lower athletic field. Presiding over the Review will be Colonel Albert Akyroyd, Professor of Military Science; and Honorary Colonel, Miss Kathy Manning, 1962 Military Ball Queen.

The Fall Review on November 5th, the first Fall Review held by the Army will be doubly colorful, for as well as presenting the 5 finalists, the honor of Distinguished Military Student will be conferred upon the following Army Cadets: Cadet Col. Paul Dexter, Cadet Lt. Col. Henry Billings, Cadet Lt. Col. Robert Covalucci, Cadet Lt. Col. Arthur Collins, Cadet Lt. Col. Edward Dowdy, Cadet Maj. James Blanchard, Cadet Maj. George Carvalho, Cadet Maj. Felix Mosakewitz, Cadet Maj. Donald Ramos, Cadet Capt. Roger Cavanaugh, Cadet Capt. Michel Lamoureaux, Cadet Capt. Craig Erickson, Cadet Capt. Edward Frado, Cadet Capt. David Chiras, Cadet Capt. Edward O'Connor, Cadet Capt. David Clancy, and Cadet Capt. Richard McLaughlin.

For those who are unable to attend the Review Tuesday, the 5 young ladies who become finalists will appear at half-time of the Redmen's football game on November 9th.

Seniors! Help Choose Class Gift

Seniors! Wanna get your two bits in?

About the class gift they're buying with your money, that is.

Well, don't just sit there—Vote, say members of the '64 Class Gift Committee.

Suggestion boxes will be placed at the Hatch entrance and in the lobby of the Student Union today through November 19 for Seniors to place their suggestions for the Senior Class Gift in.

The gift is traditionally presented to the University from the Senior Class on Class Night in June, before graduation.

This system will be used, Class Gift Committee Chairman Dave Lemon said, so that the gift eventually chosen will reflect as much as possible the desires of the Senior Class.

"Besides," he added, "we're too lazy to do the work ourselves."

Blanks for the suggestions will be available at the suggestion boxes.

Kirby Theatre Anniversary Celebrates 25th

Amherst College celebrates the twenty-fifth anniversary of Kirby Theater this year with five major productions, two of them directed by students.

The theater, which opened with Maxwell Anderson's play "High Tor" on November 3, 1938, will begin its anniversary season with six performances of Friederich Duerrenmatt's modern play "The Visit." The play is scheduled November 8, 9, 10, 15, 16 and 17.

In a double birthday celebration—Kirby Theater's as well as the four hundredth birthday of William Shakespeare—the Amherst Masquers will stage a production of "Twelfth Night" February 21, 22, 23, 28 and 29 and March 1 and 2.

The musical "Where's Charley" —a musical version of Brandon Thomas' comedy "Charley's Aunt" — is scheduled for the Kirby stage early in May.

Student Productions of Samuel Beckett's "Waiting for Godot" (December 13 and 14) and Moliere's "The Learned Ladies"

(Continued on page 4)

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

The Sick Man Of UMass

This is the first of three editorials dealing with the fraternity system at the University of Massachusetts. Other editorials will appear in Wednesday's and Friday's issues.

The fraternity system of the University of Massachusetts is comparable to an old dying man. Sometimes rapidly, sometimes slowly, but nevertheles, continually, it heads towards its inevitable death.

Occasionally a new doctor is brought in to consult and to view the patient. Once in a great while a thoroughly diseased organ of the body is removed. But despite the help and concern of many, it seems that the old man wants to die.

This is as far as the analogy goes. The old man has to die, UMass fraternities do not.

We believe that the Greek system has a role to play on this growing campus. However, before it can assume this new role it must undergo a thorough revision of many of its philosophies and practices.

Among other things, it must reappraise the value of its present rushing and pledging systems, and moreover, it must change its basic philosophy in regards to membership and its function on campus.

J.S.D.

The Pariah

The War Against Poverty

by JAMES R. CRAWFORD

If a foreign power attacked the United States, who would not expect the Federal government to direct our defense? I think it is agreed that no citizen would be forced to defend himself, or seek aid from his neighbor. Yet "conservative" theorists insist we should conduct the war against poverty in such a haphazard fashion.

I take it that these conservatives feel no affluent citizen woud turn away his less fortunate neighbors, when they need assistance. Then why are so many Americans starving? Why do elderly people die in dingy rooming houses, while their children drive Cadillacs and wear minks? Why do kids in Boston go barefoot, and babies in New York die of malnutrition? It happens! Have you ever walked through the slums of a big city? Or are you too conservative for that?

Hundreds of thousands of poor have failed to find any magical source of aid in the private sector of our society. And they have found that they can live on a small regular as clock-work check from the government, until they have a chance to improve their lot. If they lost the right to that check, they would live insecurely, wretchedly, or not at all.

How can conservative politicians contend that federal welfare is unconstitutional, when one of the purposes assigned to the federal government is to "provide for the common defense"?? Even if it may be unconstitutional, try to convince a widowed mother or an unemployed father of four children that it is the American way for them to starve and worry. You can't eat an ideology.

Student Response

To the Editor of the Collegian:

Is the Collegian a journal of college events or a commentary on sex? It seems that each issue tries to surpass the previous one in sex education. I believe most students of college age have already established a stable moral code, and these informative articles only rehash an old controversial subject.

My real objection is to the consistent publication of an increase in premarital sexual relations among students. Information of this type might easily contribute to the moral breakdown of a student whose curiosity out-weighs his better judgment.

If, as Mr. Massalem suggests in "Intimacy," the decision regarding sex belongs to the individual, why not leave it to the individual?

J.R. '67

Ed. Note—The Collegian believes that it has the duty not only to factually inform its readers, but also to present pertinent topics of interest to the University community so that they may be fully and frankly discussed.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

Hopefully —

THE FINAL WORD

It is regrettable that emotion seems to be the order of the day, but it is even more regrettable that a few of us in the Senate who are supposed to be conscientious representatives have been infantile enough to let this emotion override our sense of reasonableness and compromise. Many meae culpae have been uttered this past week—maybe this is a step in the right direction, maybe it is not. Words mean nothing unless they are reinforced with action. Some of us have made a start—now we must follow through.

The Senators who have yet to take any positive action have a duty to do so. The Senate is not an exclusive body of four or five Senators; it is a Representative body of fifty-four men and women who should have the respect of the entire student body. I say should have the respect, as I feel up to now we have not been worthy of this respect.

But fifty-four representatives do not and cannot constitute a government. Every single student of this University is a member of Student Government. Too often some forget that a responsible government goes hand in hand with an interested electorate. It is your right and your duty to inform your elected representative of your feelings. And as you all have an important stake in your government ($150,000 worth of stake), it is imperative that you support government and what it stands for.

It is easy to criticize—this ability seems to be innate in humans—but it is difficult to sit down and resolve our differences through compromise. Right now we need your support. That we have made mistakes I won't deny; that we are honestly striving to correct these mistakes and move on to serious business I cannot emphasize enough. To accomplish this end I appeal to all of you.

To every Senator I urge an individual evaluation of his capabilities and a second reading of the oath of the Student Government Association. To every member of the student body I recommend a serious evaluation of your elected Senator. If you are satisfied with what you find, give him your vote of confidence; if you are not satisfied with what you find, make your dissatisfaction known to him and inform him of your expectancies.

To everyone I say—Shape Up or Ship Out!!

Marilyn Singer '65
Senator (Johnson)

Letters To The Editor

To the Disappointed Senator:

I too am disappointed. Only I am disappointed in you who so valiantly shouted, "Mr. President, Shape up!"

I am disappointed, not in what you said—that is immaterial and of little consequence. I am disappointed because you did not have the courage to sign your name to that letter.

I find myself asking, What are you afraid of? What are you ashamed of?

Your constituency has the right to know what you are doing and YOU should have the courage of your convictions to tell them.

I say this to you, Mr. Disappointed Senator, Shape up!

Patricia Barnett '65

I Can't; I Must

This place just seems so big, so cold;
So few here know my name.
It's not like back in high school,
A degree is now my aim.

I came here with a special goal—
A goal that I held dear,
But days of classes, notes and tests
Have brought to mind a fear.

I may not ever reach the place
In life I wish to stand.
It may be just a golden dream
Two inches from my hand.

There's no one near who loves me, now—
Who cares what I may do.
It's up to me—to fail; to fame;
To quit or stick it through.

I cannot feel that I belong
So far away from home.
It's there my friends and loved ones live;
Its' there my heart must roam.

But if I left U.Mass. right now—
Gave up and didn't try—
I couldn't keep my own self-pride
Or look God in the eye.

In later life I know I'd think
Of years so far behind,
And wonder If I could have reached
The goal I had in mind.

So though my heart is far away,
My love, my life, must wait,
For I must prove first to myself
That I can rule my fate.
That I can be myself; my soul,
And I can do my best;
For knowing I have given these,
Who then can scoff the rest?

—Kathryn Wells

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Student Forum

Marks No Indication Of Student Desire To Learn

by SANDRA BURLINGAME

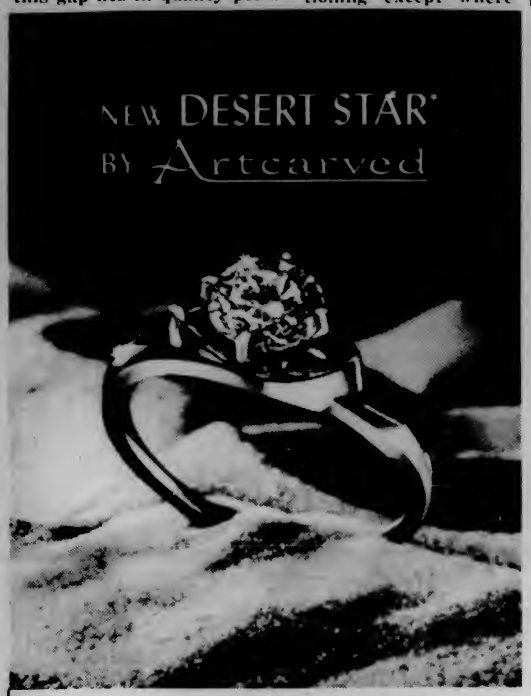
The student is always bombarded with lectures designed to get him to "think" or to fully appreciate the opportunities for education a university affords him. The necessity of these reproaches, however, indicates a gap between the quality of knowledge the student should be gaining and the "education" he actually does acquire.

A perfect illustration of this gap lies in quality point averages. It is commonly known that a high average does not necessarily mean that its possessor has an open, questioning mind or a love of knowledge that a real education is supposed to stimulate. High marks may be obtained in courses where one is simply expected to regurgitate facts. Here, there is no need for value weighing or reasoned answers to intriguing problems — in short, there is no brain functioning except where pure memorization takes place. When a person is called upon to reason clearly or argue intelligently, what good will it do him to know that the Boulder Dam is 727 feet high unless he realizes the more important fact that utilization of natural resources is increasingly significant in the modern world?

But because the idea that marks are all-important has been drilled in since grammar school, the student nowadays loses sight of what real education is and instead tends to think of it in terms of courses, credits, and grades. This type of reasoning can lead to serious consequences. Take for example the college product, the supposedly educated man. At the drop of a UM report card, he can cite examples and quote from the works of some of the greatest minds in history, but not once has he stopped to use his own mind. Instead, the ideas given by textbooks and professors he has copied "as if the Holy Ghost dictated it" and solemnly committed to memory. How different and more valuable would his university career have been if only once he had asked "why?" and not accepted the answer, but instead gone out on his own to find his own personal truth.

Lip service is given to the idea of thirst for knowledge at a university, but how often is a student motivated by that alone? How often can he say that neither marks, nor sense of duty, nor need for social acceptance prompted his actions, but instead that he was curious, he just wanted to know.

Any student may submit a signed editorial to the new student forum section of the Collegian editorial page.



Designed for you, forever

This is the look college women adore...styling as timeless as love itself, yet with a knowing contemporary flair that makes it very much "today."

It's the kind of look we've designed into Desert Star... newest of the famous Artcarved engagement rings. Like all Artcarved rings, it's styled to stay beautiful...guaranteed in writing for permanent value. See new Desert Star now at any Artcarved jeweler listed here. It's designed for you. ®TRADEMARK

See Desert Star only at these Authorized Artcarved Jewelers MASSACHUSETTS

Adams—LEON DUBUC
Athol—J. E. COX
Beverly—DESJARDINS JEWELERS
Boston—E. B. HORN CO
Brockton—ROMM & CO.
Fall River—MULLEN BROS.
Falmouth—FALMOUTH JEWELRY SHOP
Fitchburg—ELLIOTT'S INC.
Framingham—ROBERTSON'S
Gardner—STANLEY'S
Holyoke—ALBERT E. BISHOP
Lawrence—KUHN JEWELRY CO.
Leominster—M. M. SABATELLI
Marlboro—DONALD BRUNO, JEWELER
Nantucket—LENNON JEWELRY
New Bedford—NOVICK JEWELERS
Pittsfield—DENNO JEWELERS
Plymouth—LORING'S JEWELERS
Quincy—ROUSAYNE JEWELERS
Salem—JOSEPH R. RICHARD
Springfield—ARTHUR COOLEY, JLR., Inc.
Springfield—M. J. KITTREDGE
Taunton—HOMER'S JEWELRY

Letter To The Editor

HELP

A plea to whoever has the authority to do something about the situation:

Please help me! My problem is a very common one on this campus, and, I might add, a very annoying one for both myself and my classmates in my early morning classes. The crux of the matter is this—My stomach grumbles furiously when it is not filled at regular intervals during the day. Now, going without food from 6:00 one night until 12:00 the next afternoon is not my idea of a proper feeding interval. True, the solution to my problem seems simple enough; all I have to do is wake up at 6:30 each morning in order to get to the Commons in time to eat and get to my 8:00 a.m. classes. Sounds simple enough doesn't it? The only trouble is that my body just dosn't want to start its day quite that early in the morning; and thus the battle is on. My stomach says "Get up and feed me!" and the rest of my body says "The heck with you, stomach, I want to sleep!". This angers my gastrointestinal tract terribly and, in order to get back at the rest of me, my stomach contracts tighter and tighter until I ache all over. On the other hand; if I get up early enough to feed my stomach and keep it happy, the rest of my body revolts and aches all over to get back at my stomach. I'm just caught in a vicious circle.

There is one way, however, to break this circle. I've got no class at 9:05 and could eat breakfast then. But, alas, the Commons closes at 8:15. If only it would stay open one hour more serving just toast, juice, coffee, cold cereal and the like. Then I could eat breakfast without getting up so early and my body would be happy, which in turn would make my stomach happy, which would make me happy, which would make my girlfriend happy, which would make her friends happy . . . . etc., which would make for a happy campus.

Well, how about it? Do you want a happy campus? If you do, kee line one open for late breakfast. You did it last year. Why not this year with so many more students to take advantage of it?

B.R. '66

CLUB DIRECTORY

ALPHA ZETA
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 7 p.m. in the Commonwealth room of the S.U.

AMATEUR RADIO CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. in Gunness Lab. All interested are invited.

ARBORICULTURE & PARK MGT. CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the Commonwealth room of the S.U. The talk will be "Wild Flowers of Outer Cape Cod. All are invited.

CAROL SING COMMITTEE
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. in the Norfolk room of the S.U.

FOOD DISTRIBUTION CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. The talk will be "Education and Employment." All are welcome.

FORESTRY CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in 203 Holdsworth. The talk will be "White Pine Timber Operations in Canada."

FRESHMAN PUBLICITY COMMITTEE
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. in the Worcester B room of the S.U.

LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. The talk will be "Man's Response to Ancient Landscape." Refreshments following.

GERMAN CLUB
Meeting for all interested in speaking German and learning about Germany on Tues., Nov. 5, at 6:45 p.m. in the Council Chambers A room of the S.U. All invited.

HOME EC CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 7:30 in Skinner Aud. All members are urged to attend.

ITALIAN CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 7 p.m. in the Lounge of Men Hall. All interested are invited.

LITERARY SOCIETY
Meeting on Mon., Nov. 4, at 7:30 p.m. in Bartlett Faculty Lounge. A program of poetry readings is scheduled. All are urged to attend.

NAIADS
Regular meeting of Jr. Naiads on Tues., Nov. 5, at 6:30 p.m. with an optional practice for all interested at 7:30 p.m. Sr.

(Continued on page 5)

"COCA-COLA" AND "COKE" ARE REGISTERED TRADE-MARKS WHICH IDENTIFY ONLY THE PRODUCT OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY.

8 a.m. calculus...late rush...arrive...quiz... Eng...read...write... ...correct...Psych... psychotic...neurotic Pavlov...bell...lunch whew...pause things go better with Coke

Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by:
COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO. OF NORTHAMPTON, MASS.

High School Day Draws Many Students

Photo by Andi Beauchemin

High schoolers who wanted to know how the Collegian sports page gets put together need only ask Sports Editor Dick Ryan. Shown here are (l. to r.) Kathy Kilbride and Betty Gordon from Springfield and Steve Holdsworth and Andrew George from Lynn Classical, talking to Collegian Editor Ryan. These high schoolers were among those who visited our campus Saturday for this year's first High School Day.

Lost and Found

FOUND: A sum of money between Morrill and the S.U. Contact Fay Crossley, Lewis House.

LOST: A dark checkered raincoat with a velvet collar was left in room E34 of Machmer on Wed., Oct. 16. Would the finder PLEASE return it to the S.U. Lobby Counter.

LOST: A reversible black and blue jacket was taken by mistake. It has a medallion on the zipper and a name (Karl Geller) sewed inside the left hand pocket. I have the jacket that belongs to the person who accidentally picked up mine. Contact Karl Geller, 310 Chadbourne.

LOST: A green and orange ski parka in front of the Student Union after the football game Saturday afternoon. Please return to Joan Mitchell, 418 Arnold House. REWARD.

Prospective Pledges Invited To GSS "Carnival Tonight"

Gamma Sigma Sigma, Alpha Theta Chapter, will hold a rush party in the Worcester Room of the S.U. on Monday, Nov. 4, at 7 p.m.

The "Carnival" theme of the party will provide fun, song, and food for all. Women students will be able to meet the sisters of GSS and to learn about joining the organization.

Pledge applications will be available, and booths will be set up to display the service projects and social activities in which the group has participated.

The "Carnival" party will be followed by a "Come See, Come Serve" meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 6. This will be an open meeting, and interested girls will be given an opportunity to work on a project decorating pumpkins as favors for the children's ward of a hospital.

Girls who would like to join GSS are urged to attend both meetings, and they will be initiated as pledges Tuesday, Nov. 12.

NOTICES

BLOOD DRIVE RECRUITERS

Returns are due at the collection box in the S.U. no later than Wednesday at 5 p.m. Please make every effort to get your returns in as soon as possible.

LAS VEGAS NIGHT

Club 66 needs bouncers, waiters, waitresses, cigarette girls, cashiers, and many collectors for Las Vegas Night. Contact Mary Ann Brady in Dwight, Mike Brogan in Chadbourne, or Bill Nichols at Phi Sigma Kappa.

NEWMAN CLUB

Inquiry classes will be held Mon. at 8 p.m. in classroom 2 of the center.

The philosophy class conducted by Fr. Owen Bennett O.F.M. will be held in classroom 2 Wed. at 6:45 p.m.

The annual Newman Outing will be held at Babb's Beach Mon., Nov. 11. A Bus will leave from the center at 10:15 a.m. and return at 5 p.m. Reservations may be made this week in the secretary's office at the Center.

SENIORS

Dean Godfry from the University of Maine Law School will be on campus Monday, Nov. 4, from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge to talk to those students who are interested in law school.

TUTORING

The Phi Eta Sigma tutoring class for Psych. 5 has been moved two weeks ahead at the same time.

PETER PAN BUS LINES
BOSTON EXPRESS BUS
Via Massachusetts Turnpike
—Also Serving—
HOLYOKE
SPRINGFIELD
PALMER
WORCESTER
8 ROUND TRIPS DAILY
For Schedule and Information Call at the THE LOBBY SHOP Student Union
CHARTER A BUS TO ALL AMERICA

We Never Thought We'd Be In The
ICE BOX BUSINESS,
But We Are...
And They Are Marvelous
We Have Even Bought
One For Our Own
Staff Room.
SIZE: Length 14¾, width 12¼, height 13¼
WEIGHT: 15 pounds when empty
STORAGE CAPACITY: 18 pounds of food and beverages
OPERATION: two cords—one for your car lighter, one for regular 110 volt AC current GUARANTEE: Three years; completely approved by Underwriter's Lab.
PRICE: $49.95
USES: football games, picnics, recreation rooms, boats, motels, cabins, and offices
See it now on the First Floor of
THE HAMPSHIRE BOOKSHOP
Crafts Avenue, Opposite City Hall
in downtown NORTHAMPTON

ROOM
For Rent
2 Miles from Campus
ALpine 3-7516

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn
Breakfast — 50¢
Lunch — 50¢ up
THE OPEN HEARTH STEAKHOUSE
BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

Smith Judiciary Board Debates Social Rules

by STEVE ROSENHECK

Special to Collegian from the Amherst Student.

The future operations of the social rules at Smith College, may be affected considerably by a debate now engaging interest there, and centered on the student " Judicial Board."

The Judicial Board has two official functions: to judge all cases involving an infraction of the college's present regulations, except cheating, and to decide what proposals for changing the regulations should be presented to the administration.

Two sophomore and two junior class representatives, one girl selected by the House Presidents from among themselves, the vice-president of the senior class, and a Chairman designated in an all-school election, constitute the Board. An additional sophomore sits in at meetings until the freshman class holds an election in late November.

Debate Social Rules

At present the Board is involved in the issue of a campus-wide debate: whether or not social rules at Smith should be taken off the honor system and set forth simply as "policed" regulations.

Girls favoring the change, which was first proposed at a meeting of the student committee now re-examining the Smith Students Constitution, claim that school regulations involve only a question of practical necessity, not honor, and should be recognized in this way.

No Honor In System

They argue that even though students are responsible for reporting themselves when they break a rule, they are so closely observed with regard to a majority of the regulations that the sense of personal responsibility implicit in an honor system is completely lacking.

The question will finally be decided in a student referendum to be held on November 21, two weeks after a public debate by four students, representing all major positions on the issue, at an all-college meeting.

The Judicial Board is unanimous in its hope that the principle of an honor system will be upheld. Says Chairman Kay Herzog '64, "I think that to abolish the honor system would be a step backwards. Breaking regulations would become a game, because no one would feel any individual responsibility."

Amherst Discrimination?

Before the present debate, the Board was considering the possibility of changing the rule that prohibits girls from staying overnight within a thirty mile radius of Smith. Chairman Herzog, for instance, sees no real reason "for treating Amherst differently from any other school." Several girls oppose the proposal, however, and Miss Herzog feels that there is no way of predicting either the time or likelihood of eventual action.

Christian Association To Start Its Annual Drive Today

The Christian Association is starting its annual fund raising drive tomorrow, when representatives will begin going around to all Protestant students in their dormitories to collect contributions and acquaint them with the activities of the C.A. All Protestant students are considered members of C.A. and its primary source of funds is the student body. These funds are used to finance the C.A.'s activities such as their films and speakers. Protestant students are urged to support the drive as well as the various activities during the year, and if there are any questions they can ask their dorm representatives or drop in at the C.A. office in the Student Union.

Kirby Theater ...

(Continued from page 1)

(Les Femmes Savantes) are also on the Kirby Anniversary program.

The opening play, "The Visit," has been called a terrifying comedy by some, and was labelled a "tragic comedy" by its Swiss author. Duerrenmatt is noted for novels and plays which probe the dark side of the soul, a tendency that is clear in the grotesque representation of human nature portrayed in "The Visit." The play was produced to great acclaim in New York in 1958 where it was performed by a cast headed by Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine.

The Amherst production will be directed by Walter Boughton, with sets by Charles Rogers and lighting by Ralph C. McGoun.

Amherst students staged plays on the campus long before construction of the theater. The Senior Dramatic Society, the College's first formal theatrical organization, was formed in 1881, performing "Romeo and Juliet." Thereafter the group performed one play a year until 1907 when the Amherst Dramatic Association was formed. Formal organization of the Masquers took place shortly after World War I.

Since its opening in 1938, Kirby Theater has been the scene of productions of modern plays, classical Greek drama, Shakespeare, premieres of experimental drama, student productions of one acts and such experiments as the first complete American production of Henrik Ibsen's "Peer Gynt."

Area Judiciary ...

Continued from page 1

any one of four basic penalties: 1) verbal warning, 2) Disciplinary Probation, 3) Social Probation and 4) expulsion from the University. Disciplinary Probation is the most frequently used penalty. When a student is placed on Disciplinary Probation, a letter explaining the offense and the penalty is sent to his housemother, to the office of the Dean, to the Registrar, to his academic advisor, to the student loan office, and to his parents. Social Probation involves complete suspension from all but purely academic student organizations, and includes the loss of pledging rights.

Stockbridge Campus X-Country Champs

—Photo by Harvey Stone

EVERETT WILBUR crosses the finish line to lead Stockbridge to the campus cross-country championship.

A powerful Stockbridge team led by captain Everett Wilbur captured individual and team honors in the annual intramural cross country meet held Saturday. The rain-soaked course slowed Wilbur so that his winning time of 7:25.7 was well behind the record he set last year. Stockbridge placed six men in the top ten, including a close second by Robert Charlton and a tie for fifth by Bud Backery and Wendell Nooth.

The Forestry Club finished second in the team standings by placing Gerry Johnson, Bruce Spencer, and Richard Ginkus third, fourth, and eleven respectively.

A fine effort by Damian Gaffney who came in eighth led the Chadbourne team to a third place finish.

University Theatre ...

(Continued from page 1)

his ghosts to be the old-fashioned ideas of popular belief, as well as the characters that torment his heroine, Mrs. Alving.

Ghosts may be the most controversial play that University Theatre has done. At any rate, it was one of the most controversial plays that the century past ever saw.

Directing the play will be Harry Mahnken of the Speech Department faculty, whose skill was seen last year in Oedipus Rex and Murder in the Cathedral.

Ghosts will be staged Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 21, 22, and 23, in Bowker Auditorium.

Announcement of the cast will be made at a later date.

Roister Doisters in the Act

Assisting in the production will be officers and members of Roister Doisters, the campus student theatrical society.

In a coordinated program of theatre activities, University Theatre will also present a free lecture by Professor Denis Johnston of the Department of Theatre and Speech at Smith College.

Mr. Johnston will talk on "Hendrik Ibsen, Playright or Sociologist" Tuesday, November 19 at 8 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

Integrity — Service
Friendly Advice
ART RUGGLES'
SKI SHOP
17 High Street
GREENFIELD, MASS.
Ski Coach, Deerfield Academy
OPEN EVENINGS TO 9 P.M.
PHONE 774-4855

Club Directory ...

(Continued from page 4)

Naiads will meet on Wed., Nov. 6, at 7 p.m.

ORTHODOX CLUB
Meeting at 6:30 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. The public is invited.

POLITICAL SCIENCE ASSOCIATION
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 11:15 a.m. in Worcester A room of the S.U.

SPANISH CLUB
Tertulia on Wed., Nov. 6, in the Bartlett Faculty Lounge. All interested in conversing in Spanish are invited.

SPECIAL EVENTS COMMITTEE
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 5, at 7 p.m. All concerned with fashion show and publicity must attend.

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, at 8 p.m. in the Worcester A room of the S.U. The talk will be "Social Problems in Israel."

S.U. PUBLICITY COMMITTEE
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, at 7 p.m. in the Norfolk room of the S.U. All must attend.

WESLEY FOUNDATION
Communion service on Wed., Nov. 6, at 7 a.m. in Cushman Chapel of the Thompson House. Transportation provided.

WOMEN'S INTERDORM COUNCIL
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 11:15 a.m. in the S.U. Please bring candy money and left-over candy. Attendance mandatory.

WRESTLING
Meeting of all interested candidates on Tues., Nov. 5, at 7 p.m. in the Cage.

—FOR SALE—
1956 OLDSMOBILE CONV.
Good condition. Inquire
Courtney Brickman, AL 6-6831

Brouillet First In Yan-Con Meet; X-Country Team Second

by GENE COLBURN

The Varsity Cross Country team saw its string of three consecutive Yankee Conference Cross Country Championships snapped Saturday at Burlington, Vermont. The University of Maine put on a magnificent display of depth as they took places 2, 3, 4, 6 and 14 to win the meet with a score of 29. The Redmen followed with 47 points, then came New Hampshire (55), Rhode Island (113), Connecticut (144), and Vermont (151).

The only bright spot for the Redmen was Captain Bob Brouillet's performance, as he won the meet easily to stretch his undefeated record to 6 meets. Bob's winning time of 24:56:8 put him 50 seconds ahead of the second place finisher, but was nowhere near the course record on the 4:25 mile course. This is not really surprising considering the race was run in a combination of rain and snow.

Aside from Digger winning the race was all Maine's. The Bears seemed to do nothing wrong, and the Redmen could do nothing right. Bob Molvar was the second man for UMass placing 8th in the meet. He was followed by Gene Colburn (11), Tom Panke (12), Bob Ramsey (15), Al McPhail (25), and Bob Larson (27).

The Redmen will try to bounce back on the victory trail Wednesday when they have a dual meet with Springfield College, at Springfield. The Redmen have not beaten the once defeated Maroons in three years.

Redmen Carry Fusia Off Field

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

Jubilant UMass football team carries Coach Vic Fusia off the field after clinching the Beanpot.

Football ...

(Continued from page 6)

with its only serious threat besides his return when he ran through the Redmen secondary for twenty yards to the UMass 10 yard line. Outside of these two runs the defense kept him bottled up with his other five attempts netting him only seven yards.

For the Redmen the big offensive gun was Jerry Whelchel who stangely enough lead the rushers but was out-thrown by his understudy John Schroeder. Jerry, with 60 yards in fifteen attempts lead all the rushers. Second was halfback Ken Palm with 40 yards in ten tries. Third was fullback Dick Warren with 39 yards in seven cracks. Whelchel's total would have been higher but the yards he lost trying to pass were subtracted from the total.

In the passing department John Schroeder led the pack with six completions in eight attempts for 89 yards. Second was Jerry Whelchel with five successes in six ventures good for 60 yards to match his rushing total.

The total offense for the Redmen was an imposing 427 yards. The Catamounts were held to 80 yards rushing and 19 yards passing.

The defensive standouts for UMass were Paul Graham, Peter Pietz, Bob Tedoldi, Bob Burke, and as usual Bernie Dallas, Milt Morin and Dick Warren. An oddity was the fact that three UMass centers came up with interceptions. Bernie Dallas, Charles Scialdone, and Jim Kuczynski all stole one.

All of this fine play on the part of the Redmen could only make more significant the fact that they had won the Beanpot. They proved their supremacy in every game but they were most impressive in eliminating the one and only contender. UMass football teams have been in the thick of every fight and rated as the strongest team for the past three years but could boast only one tie with Maine in 1960 as evidence of championship quality.

—Photo by Bob Surette

DICK BOURDELAIS is brought down by the Catamount defense after catching a pass from Junior John Schroeder.

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

UMass Wins First Sole Beanpot

41-0 Victory Over Vermont Assures Title

by KEVIN COYLE

The Redmen wrapped up the Yankee Conference Beanpot last Saturday by beating the University of Vermont Catamounts 41-0 at Alumni Field. Again much of the credit for the win goes to defense which has not had its goal-line crossed for twenty-seven periods of play.

Not that the offense did not do its job (41 points) but it has become a Redmen tradition to shut out the opposition. It has lived up to that tradition five out of seven times this year. The last score against UMass was a field goal by the University of Connecticut four weeks ago.

FIRST QUARTER

One set of downs after Milt Morin's opening kickoff, the Catamounts were punting. The Redmen took over on the Vermont 40 yard line, and Jerry Whelchel ran and passed UMass for a score. The quarterback picked up big yardage on his keeper plays and a pass to Mike Ross actually set the scene for Mike Ross' drive over from the one. Jerry Whelchel then kicked the point after touchdown for a 7-0 lead.

SECOND QUARTER

In the middle of the second period reserve quarterback John Schroeder sparked another T.D. drive. For seventy-six yards John either had Warren plunging up the middle, Bob Ellis slanting, or end Dick Bourdelais receiving Warren scored the six points on a beautiful power play which was good for 6 yards. After the Redmen PAT the Green Mountain boys put together their best scoring threat. Catamount halfback Ken Burton broke away for twenty-nine yards to the UMass 10 yard line. The defense however stiffened at this point and Milt Morin pushed the Vermont quarterback out of bounds on the 4 on a fourth and goal situation. When the half ended the score was still UMass 14, Vermont 0.

THIRD QUARTER

On the opening kickoff of the second half things started to look bad for the visitors. Bob Ellis returned the kick to the UMass 42. Jerry Whelchel kept mixing up plays until Big Milt Morin set up the touchdown with a key reception on the UVM 9 yard line. Ken Palm finally scored on a sweep around the right side. Whelchel again kicked the PAT and the home team led by twenty-one points. Very shortly thereafter the act was repeated and it was time for the subs. It took the side-line drivers one play to get the ball back (an interception by Jim Kuczynski) and two plays to score (a five yard sweep by Phil DeRose).

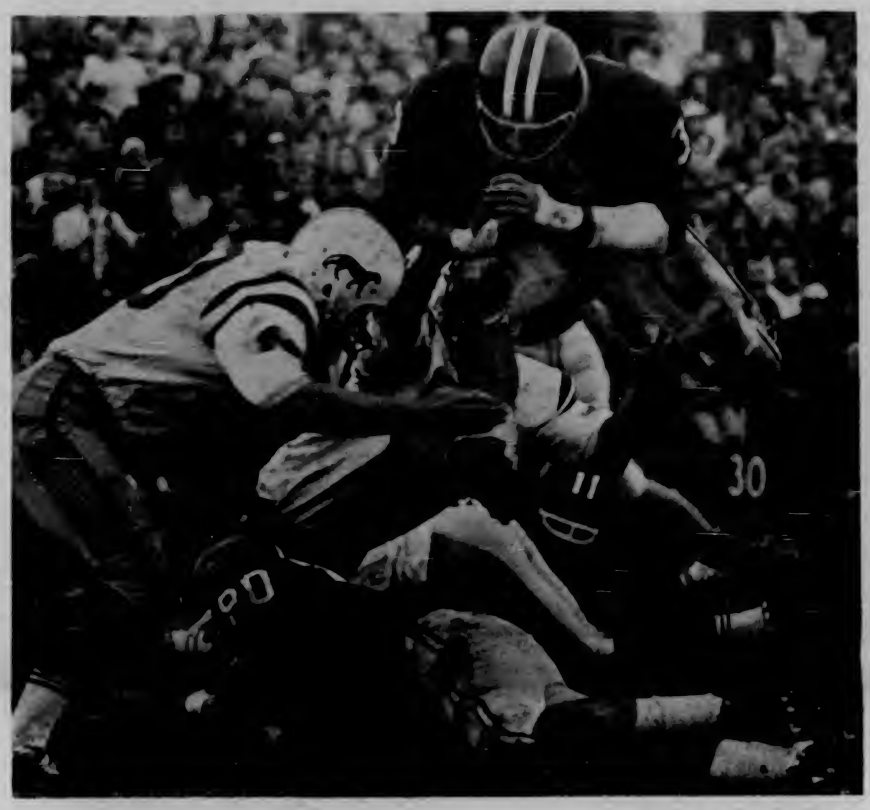
Palm scored again in the quarter but a bad hike from the reserve center prevented Schroeder from scoring on the PAT. Score: 34-0.

FOURTH QUARTER

Shortly after the fourth quarter commenced the Redmen got the ball back on a Vermont punt. With John Schroeder at quarterback directing the attack, the Locals marched sixty-two yards in ten plays to complete the scoring. Phil DeRose and Kelly did the roadwork while Dick Bourdelais caught a pass to set up Bob Ellis's seven yard scoring slant. The final score: UMass 41, Vermont 0.

The defense allowed just 99 yards total offense to the Catamounts, well below their average going into the game. The much publicized Vermont star, Ken Burton was held to 36 yards rushing for six attempts, he did however provide some very tense seconds in the fourth quarter when he took a kickoff in his own endzone and returned it to the Massachusetts 26 yard line. It looked as if he would go all the way before John Schroeder caught the elusive speedster from behind with a nice tackle. Burton also provided Vermont

(Continued on page 5)



—Photo by Ron Goldberg

Redman DICK WARREN carries from the six-yard line for the second score of the 41-0 rout.

REDMEN SOCCER
UMass vs. Amherst College
Wednesday, Nov. 6, 1963
Varsity Soccer Field 3 P.M.

REDMEN CROSS-COUNTRY
UMass vs. Springfield College
Wednesday, Nov. 6, 1963
Springfield College at 4 p.m.

THE ALPS... made in Italy by FABIANO

Handmade Imported Boots for the Outdoor Man and Woman...

Vibram Lug Soles. Ideal for Rock Climbing and Hiking. Padded Quarters and Tongue. Women—5 to 11 Narrow and Medium Men—6 to 14 Narrow, 6 to 12 Large (Size 13 and 14 $3.00 Extra).

$24.95 Plus Postage

Write for Free Brochure
Fabiano Shoe Co., Inc.
Dept. MC, South Station
Boston 10, Mass.

Plimpton's Panthers Down Lederle's Lollipops 20-0

by RICK RYAN
Sports Editor

The Amherst College faculty touch football team, Plimpton's Panthers, defeated the UMass faculty team, Lederle's Lollipops, by a score of 20-0 on Sunday. Broken eyeglasses and Phi Beta Kappa keys still litter the Amherst College gridiron.

The UMass team was only organized this week, and they practiced for several days to get in condition for the game. Arnold Silver was the Lollipops quarterback; he also thought of the names for both teams.

John Brentlinger, Stanley Koehler, Ron McHaffey, Jules Ryckelbusch, Ed Sarno, and Jay Savareid played on the team. In fact, one of the UMass professors played for Amherst during the first half when the Panthers were short one man. Following the honor code, he played equally hard for both teams.

The Amherst team was quarterbacked by John Spencer who threw two screen passes for touchdowns and ran the ball over the goalline once. In the last minutes of the second quarter, two scoring passes and a run by Spencer were called back because of penalties.

During the game the Lollipops strategy seemed to be one of bedazzling the Panthers with a razzle-dazzle style of football employing passes, many laterals, and quite often fumbles.

Although the Lollipops never scored, or even got a first down, their offensive maneuvers often left the Panthers gaping in open-mouthed wonder at their actions.

The men wish to start a tradition with this game, and perhaps to expand the competition to include Smith and Mount Holyoke teams.

Ski Instructors

Weekend positions available for skiers to instruct high school boys and girls. Prior instruction experience not required. Good compensation. Excellent ski facilities. Write or Call:

SHAKER VILLAGE SKI GROUP
P.O. Box 1149, Pittsfield, Mass.
Lebanon Springs (N.Y.) 7-1255

Booters Face Amherst Wed.

The Redmen booters face the Amherst College booters this Wednesday at 3:00 p.m. on the Soccer Field behind Curry Hicks Physical Education Building, to decide the unofficial champion of Amherst. It promises to be a tough and aggressive game because of the rivalry between the two schools.

Offensively the booters will have Tom Astaldi, Pat McDevitt, Kevin Lyons, and Dick Leete to apply the pressure which has made them the top scorers of the season. The defense will see All-American Captain Dick Repeta in the last game of his college career and sophomore Ray Yando displaying the ability which has characterized his play all season long. As the last game of the season Coach Briggs will be able to use the entire squad in an all out effort without having to worry about later games.

LIBRARY

Morrill Hit By Stray Bullets

Two plate glass windows in the facade of the Morrill Science Center were shattered by two shots fird by persons unknown, sometime around 9 p.m. Monday night. One of the shots entered a window in the second floor library where night librarian Barbara Medlar was on duty.

According to Miss Medlar, there are desks situated against the plate glass windows, and anyone studying at these desks at the time of the shooting could have been seriousiy injured. No one, however, was hurt.

A watchman working at the construction site next to Morrill Monday night reported hearing two shots in the area of the campus pond. He feels they might have been from a twenty-two rifle. So far, investigators have been unable to recover any bullets.

Because of the danger of falling glass and possible injury to students entering the door beneath the window, maintenance department workmen erected a barrier across the entrance. According to the department, the panes are costiy and hard to replace. Temporary panels of wood have been installed until replacements can be ordered and delivered.

Police officers Frank Mazzei and Don Zidik were on the scene investigating the incident. So far no new leads have developed.

—Photo by Andi Beauchemin

Morrill's two shattered plate glass windows. Arrow indicates where one of the bullets entered.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Vol. XCIII No. 23, 5¢ Per Copy | University of Massachusetts | Wednesday, November 6, 1963

Marching Band Honors Fusia

A highlight of the U. of M. Marching Band's A.I.C. halftime show will be a special performance honoring Redmen Coach Vic Fusia. After a sparkling entrance from the East end zone, the band will play the traditional "Fight Mass. Fanfare", followed by a sweep upfield, into a "VIC" formation. While the band marches this Fusia tribute down the field, the fans will be asked to join in singing. "Fight Massachusetts."

After expanding the letters VIC into a gigantic forty-yard tribute to Coach Fusia, the band will be joined by the U. of M. cheerleaders and the crowd, in cheering "Go-Go-Go-Go" while tom-toms sound the traditional thunder of the Indian war ceremony. The band's final tribute to the Coach will be a special performance of the ever-popular "Mister Touchdown, U.S.A."

For its final gridiron performance of the 1963 football season, the Marching Band will perform original arrangements of music of that favorite composer of Americana melodies, George M. Cohan. A highlight of the show will be a complex marching drill which features closely-timed, interweaving, interlocking maneuvers billed as "Patterns in Motion." Musical selections will include "Give My Regards to Broadway" and "Harrigan".

Recalling the vaudeville era in Chicago, the band will describe in marching maneuvers the favorite means of transportation on "State Street, that Great Street," in Chicago, the "Bone Shaker", or velocipede. Complete with a front wheel forty yards in diameter, the band's cycle moves merrily along until it starts to ride down an old cobble-stone street. What happens then can best be seen on Saturday!

Early in the halftime ceremonies, the U. of M. Band will introduce the queen of this year's Military Ball. Colonel Albert W. Aykroyd will pin the traditional yellow ribbon upon the queen, proclaiming her the first lady of the UMass military detachments for the festivities Saturday night.

Finale of this Saturday's halftime presentations will be a concert performance by the Band of the all time favorite march by America's greatest March King, John Philip Sousa. To conclude its 1963 season of outstanding gridiron appearances, the band, conducted by John A. Jenkins, will play the thrilling "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Only 200 Seats Remain For Sun. Concert

Only about 200 tickets are still remaining for the Smothers Brothers concert this Sunday.

The two, Tom and Jack thrive on satire of current commercialized folk music. They have appeared on numerous television shows, and have performed in many of the nation's top night spots.

Their first meeting with a nationwide audience shot them to immediate fame, after which they embarked on a national tour of the college campus concert circuit.

Tickets are on sale in the box office in the Lobby of the S.U.

TAJ and the ADELPHIANS?

Friday night's rally dance will see a rare performance by an old group. Electra, senior men's honor society will present Taj and the Adelphians. See Friday's Collegian for further details on this and other new developments as they are made known.

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

Rushing To Destruction

This is the second of four editorials dealing with the porblems of the fraternity system at the University of Massachusetts.

We have already suggested that UMass' fraternity system is in ned of some very vital major surgery if it is to stay alive. One specific area which needs attention is rushing.

Rushing can serve a good purpose in the fraternity system. It helps prospective and present brothers to form opinions about each other, and to decide if they want to be in the same organization for four years.

The most important thing in rushing should be that the rushees get a clear and correct picture of the house. A picture not made hazy by free alcohol. A picture that is not incomplete because the background has not yet been painted in, due to lack of time.

Therefore we suggest that for the betterment of the Greek system; 1) Eliminate alcohol and beer from Rush, impress people on your own merits, not on Budweisers', and 2) dispense with Early Rushing which seems to have as its philosophy "Get 'em while they're young, and haven't had the time to find out what's going on."

The Early Rush is designed to enchant freshmen. This coupled with the necessarily "great" image each fraternity gives itself, only serves to produce a great many thoroughly disenchanted upperclassmen.

J.S.D.

A Conservative View

In The Educational Process

by RICK CASS

In the process of getting an education in this or any other institution of higher learning, there are those we meet who advocate the censorship of our sources of information. Naturally, they say, this would be for the best. That is, for the best interests. But, WHOSE?

As Plato promoted censorship of the poets in his Republic, some modern professors advocate the censorship of the material in the educational systems of this country. This is, of course, for the good of the pupil in protecting him from unacceptable influence, and for the state in insuring the proper education.

I have but two questions to ask of this. BY WHAT STANDARDS is this the best for student OR state? WHO is to take the responsibility for this proposed censorship?

In fact, WHO MAY?

Letter To The Editor

A Liberal View

Much has been written lately by a certain Mr. Cass concerning Conservatism and the Welfare State. At first, one was tempted to believe that his articles were part of a complex liberal scheme to reveal Conservatism in its most absurd light. If this was the case he was most successful. Assuming, however, that he is sincere in his beliefs let us begin a brief discussion of his views with an accurate definition of Conservatism. Conservatism is "a disposition in politics to preserve what is established, a political philosophy based on traditions, stressing established institutions." As you can see it cannot, in truth, be called "progressive."

Mr. Cass has stated that his doctrine is not a negative or static thought process. If this is so, it is because Conservatism does not invoke a thought process at all. It involves, in reality, a negativistic, psychological attitude developed by those who already "have" the social and material satisfactions desired by all people.

The natural consequence of institutionalized Conservatism is institutionalized stagnation and subsequent retrogression. To live the present and future by the rules created strictly by and for the needs of the past is to chain men to a slavery devoid of any realizations and considerations for the radical changes which occur in worldly circumstances. It is, finally, to deny humanism in social organization.

A.M.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.

Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press

Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

Letters To The Editor

Give Hort Show Back

To the Editor:

Subject: Horticulture Show

For the first time in 50 years this University will not have a Hort Show. Why? According to Professor Procopio, the students were not getting "a sufficient learning experience" from the show. We disagree. The time spent working on the show is an invaluable experience that even a full semester of class work cannot replace.

The experience gained from the show develops interest in what the student is studying and provides him with an opportunity to put to work what he has learned in the classroom and laboratory.

Working together on the show improves student faculty relations and provides a real sense of accomplishment for the students for time and energy well spent.

"Our first responsibility is to our students." If this is true, Plant Science faculty, as you say it is, give us our Hort Show back next year.

Signed

Arboriculture Club Pres., Arthur E. Manthorne '64

Floriculture Club Pres., Richard Mackenzie '64

Forestry Club Pres., Calvin Gale '64

Lands. Operations Club Pres., Anthony W. Divver '64

Pomology Club Pres., Ken Fitzgerald '65

Turf Management Pres., Fred Scheyhing, Jr., '64

Hort. Society Pres., Mark Brenner '64

Hort. Society V.P., past Flori. Club President, Everett Emino '65

Alpha Zeta Chancellor, Ted Guilford '64

STOSO President, Richard A. Swanson '64

Dr. Ryan — Our Loss

In the glorious UMass tradition, another fine man, both as an educato' and administrator, and equally fine as an individual, has left the University for greener pastures. Dr. John W. Ryan, Secretary of the University and Assistant to the President last year, recently resumed his new post as Executive Vice President of Arizona University at Tempe, Arizona. Men like Dr. Ryan are rare indeed, and they are sought after and demanded by institutions all over the country. It is our loss and Arizona's gain that Dr. Ryan chose to leave our campus as he did.

To those of us who knew Dr. Ryan during his short one year stay on campus, he was a truly wonderful person. A helpful, friendly, outgoing man who was always interested in the student, he brought a distinct and alive personality into the top administration which will long be remembered. Humble and sincere, Dr. Ryan always had time to talk to students, although his busy schedule often saw him burning the midnight oil at South College, working as many as 16 hours a day. As Associate Director of the UMass Centennial, his freshman year at the University was quite successful. His warm and very vigorous personality highlights the dignity of the man, yet he always had time to enjoy a humorous story or joke with anyone who came in contact with him. His very down to earth, student oriented attitude, which before him had been lacking here at UMass, should be emulated by the present administration in their dealings with the campus and its problems. He was the well deserving recipient of the Adelphia Rookie of the Year Award, and his youthful personal charm radiated into the lives of all who know him.

A heartfelt "thank you" goes out to Dr. Ryan for all that he has done for the student and the University. As a fitting testimony to Dr. Ryan's remarkable spirit and dedication, the Amherst Jaycees recently announced his nomination for the National Jaycees Award of the Ten Outstanding Young Men. "He has truly shown himself to be a leading educator in this educational community," stated Thomas Fonda, Vice President of the Jaycees. "His impact on the University of Massachusetts has been recognized by all who have come in contact . . . with him. He has proven himself to be an extraordinary administrator." President Everett Kosarick of the Jaycees in making the nomination stated, "We are proud to have had Dr. Ryan in Amherst and as a fellow member of the Jaycees. Watching his work from close proximity makes us confident that he will be recognized as an outstanding young man in the field of education."

We of the University and Amherst community will all feel the loss of Dr. Ryan's presence on our campus. We are indeed thankful to him, and confidently add our best wishes for his continued success in his new position.

Manny Smith, Adelphia

Editorial Sex

To J.R. and the Editor:

Contrary to J.R.'s beliefs that "most students of college age have already established a stable moral code" and that "the consistent publication of an increase in premarital sexual relations among students . . . might easily contribute to the moral breakdown of a student whose curiosity outweighs his better judgment" are those of Dr. Esther Lloy-Jones of Columbia and those of the National Association of Women Deans and Councilors "Conference on Current Sex Mores." Your attention is directed to a review of Dr. Lloyd-Jones's report from the conference in the New York Times (11-4-63, p.26).

Serious and favorable attention is being given by academic administrative and guidance faculties and by the clergy to systematic, thoughtful student fora on moral values. They see such discussion as both pertinent and essential to the healthy growth of contemporary academic communities. The editor notes that it is the Collegian's duty "to present pertinent topics of interest to the university community so that they may be fully and frankly discussed." It appears to me that there is far from a closed case against discussion of moral standards on the Collegian's Editorial Page.

Michael Spencer

Brotherhood

A Girl's View

by C. B.

What is "brotherhood"? Is it an oath—a lot of pretty words? Is it a house—a cold, brick building? Is it a state of mind—to be turned on and off at will? Or is it just a word referring to a fraternity? No, it's so much more than that. It's the intangible something that gives the oath its true meaning, that makes the house a home, that makes men friends—the intangible something that makes a fraternity. Brotherhood is like a tree—brotherhood itself being the trunk or base. And from this trunk branch the different phases: admiration, respect, loyalty, sincerity . . . . Developing and living out each phase is all a part of growing up. But it's also the most important part of fraternity life. Sure the social life of a fraternity is a lot of fun—a lot of laughs. But the laughs are something temporary and soon forgotten. The mental and emotional gains of fraternity life and the golden rewards of brotherhood are the long-lasting qualities that live on in the characters of graduates.

The growth of a fraternity is also like a tree—brotherhood and all its phases being the base and from this base branch the different chapters. If you snap off one limb, the National won't die, but eventually the broken limb will for lack of nourishment. Each year the leaves fall off only to grow new ones again. How can a broken limb grow leaves?

What's happening to our fraternities? What does it take to fell a tree? It takes a big wind. The wind is irrational and un-

(Continued on page 4)

Amherst Dean Coming

Swartzbaugh At Sailing Club

by JANET CHARLES

As a result of the overwhelming success of the first meeting of the Sailing Club, plans have been formed to have Dean Swartzbaugh of Amherst College speak at the next gathering of potential club members. An expert sailor, Dean Swartzbaugh has sailed interlakes on the Great Lakes for many years, and now operates a Flying Dutchman both at Martha's Vineyard and at Lake Spofford. The issue Dean Swartzbaugh will discuss concerns the opening of Quabbin Reservoir for recreational use, particularly for utilization by the Sailing Club.

The strong turn-out exhibited at the last Sailing Club meeting (approximately 50 students) was especially pleasing to Doug Pearsall, the energetic organizer of this new sport on campus. The outcome was the appointment of a formulating committee of five, whose first duty it was to contact other New England schools concerning competitive frost-biting racing this fall. Unfortunately, however, such colleges as Harvard, M.I.T., and Merrimac have already hauled their boats out, and UMass. must wait until the spring season.

Among the 50 who were present at the meeting were students with an amazing skill and knowledge of sailing, ranging from fresh-water sailing to competitive racing in the ocean on almost every conceivable class of boats. The Sailing Club wishes to thank the faculty members who gave their support at this meeting also. Assistant Dean of Men William Burkhardt, who has been appointed advisor pro tem; Mr. Watts of R. S. O., who has greatly aided in the organization of the club; and Dr. Bishoff of the Phys. Ed. Dept., who has offered moral support and many fine ideas are all avid and competent sailors whose strong nautical spirit is greatly appreciated.

According to Doug, a discussion will be held at the next meeting concerning possible boat designs and preparations will be made for subsequent programs. He again urges all those interested in this sailing project to attend the meeting, which will be held Wednesday at 8:00 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and "Barefoot Boy With Cheek.")

I WAS A TEEN-AGE SLIDE RULE

In a recent learned journal (Playboy) the distinguished board chairman (Ralph "Hot Lips" Sigafoos) of one of our most important American industrial corporations (the Arf Mechanical Dog Co.) wrote a trenchant article in which he pinpointed our single most serious national problem: the lack of culture among science graduates.

Let me hasten to state that Mr. Sigafoos's article was in no sense derogatory. He said emphatically that the science graduate, what with his gruelling curriculum in physics, math, and chemistry, can hardly be expected to find time to study the arts too. What distresses Mr. Sigafoos—and, indeed, all of us—is the lopsided result of today's science courses: graduates who can build a skyscraper but can't compose a concerto; who know Newton's Third Law but not Beethoven's Fourth Symphony; who are familiar with Fraunhofer's lines but not with Shelley's.

The lopsided result of today's science

Mr. Sigafoos can find no solution to this lamentable imbalance. I, however, believe there is one—and a very simple one. It is this: if students of science don't have time to come to the arts, then the arts must come to students of science.

For example, it would be a very easy thing to teach poetry and music right along with physics. Students, instead of being called upon merely to recite, would instead be required to rhyme their answers and set them to familiar tunes—like, for instance, the stirring Colonel Bogey March. Thus recitations would not only be chock-a-block with important facts but would, at the same time, expose the students to the aesthetic delights of great poetry and music. Here, try it yourself. You all know The Colonel Bogey March. Come, sing along with me:

Physics
Is what we learn in class.
Einstein
Said energy is mass.
Newton
Is high-falutin'
And Pascal's a rascal. So's Boyle.

Do you see how much more broadening, how much more uplifting it is to learn physics this way? Of course you do. What? You want another chorus? By all means:

Leyden
He made the Leyden jar.
Trolley
He made the Trolley car.
Curie
Rode in a surrey
And Diesel's a weasel. So's Boyle.

Once the student has mastered The Colonel Bogey March, he can go on to more complicated melodies like Death and Transfiguration, Sixteen Tons, and Boo-Hoo.

And when the student, loaded not only with science but with culture, leaves his classroom and lights his Marlboro Cigarette, how much more he will enjoy that filter, that flavor, that pack or box! Because there will no longer be a little voice within him repeating that he is culturally a dolt. He will know—know joyously—that he is a complete man, a fulfilled man, and he will bask and revel in the pleasure of his Marlboro as a colt rolls in new grass—exultant and triumphant—a truly educated human person—a credit to his college, to himself, and to his tobacconist!

© 1963 Max Shulman

* * *

We, the makers of Marlboros and sponsors of this column, urge you not to roll colt-wise in the grass if you are carrying a soft pack of Marlboros in your pocket. If, however, you are carrying the crush-proof box and weigh less than 200 pounds, you may safely fling yourself about.

R.D.'s Work On Ghosts Norton Elected V.P.

Roister Doister members took time out from their work on the current University Theatre production of Ghosts to hold a meeting last night, headed up by the election of Paula Norton to the post of Vice President.

A Junior English major, Miss Norton has been active for some time in theatre activities on the UMass campus and was last seen as the courtesan in The Twin Menaechmi.

The intensely gripping Ibsen drama, Ghosts, will be seen on the Bowker stage November 21, 22 and 23.

Discussion of a national honorary theatrical society was high on the list of business last night.

A committee of RD members was selected to explore further the possibility of petitioning the National Collegiate Players, a national organization first started in 1911 at the University of Wisconsin and the University of Illinois.

Membership in the society comes through campus theatrical participation and academic work.

RD President Tom Kerrigan, Secretary Deena Ferrigna and Larry Wilker will comprise the committee.

University Theatre director Cosmo Catalano spoke tc the group about the possibility of a theatre trip to New York during the second semester. The trip would be for the purpose of seeing Broadway or off-Broadway shows, touring lighting companies, visiting rehearsing casts and other theatre activities.

Anyone who is interested in such a trip is asked to contact Mr. Catalano at the Speech Department. The group will not be restricted to members of Roister Doisters.

Head of Theatre Activities at UMass Orville Larsen spoke briefly at the meeting about University Theatre and the University's expanded theatre program.

Mr. Larson is presently working on UT's upcoming production of Ghosts as set designer.

Members of Roister Doisters are actively participating in the production as actors and stage crew. Membership in RD's is earned through such participation in University Theatre as well as with RD's independent productions.

Plans are still in the fire about the upcoming RD experimental theatre production on January 31 and February 1, 1964.

Although plans are not "concretely fixed" said President Kerrigan, playwrights under discussion for the program include Shakespeare, Tennessee Williams, Chekov and a number of other well-known writers.

Conclusive plans, including the subject, casting times, director and production crew will hopefully be decided on by early December, he added.

University Gets New P.A.S.

Commanding Detachment 370 of the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corp at the University of Massachusetts, responsible for the training of 499 students in the ROTC program here is Lt. Col. Roy D. Simmons, Jr., veteran of more than 20 years active duty.

A native of Bowling Green, Ky., Lt. Col. Simmons became a rated officer in the USAF in August 1943. Following pilot training, he was sent to Europe in 1944 and flew F-51 fighters on 110 combat missions before the end of the war. In eight campaigns over France, Italy and Germany, he earned the French Croix de Guerre, the Distinguished Flying Cross, with one cluster, the Air Medal with four clusters, the Distinguished Unit Citation and various campaign ribbons.

Since the war, the Colonel has added to his laurels, receiving the AF Unit Citation while with the 65th Air Division in Spain, and the Air Force Commendation Medal.

In addition to tours of duty in Europe during WWII and Spain, 1950 to 1953, he served as operations officer of the 91st Fighter Sq., Hawaii, and wore "two hats" as commander of the King Salmon Airport and Commander of the 705th Aircraft Control and Warning Sq. in Alaska, from 1955 to 1956.

A Command Pilot, with more than 4,500 hours aloft, the Colonel has flown many types of fighter aircraft (including century-series F-101 Voodoos and F-102 Delta Darts) and keeps proficient by flying jet trainers.

Lt. Col. Simmons graduated from the University of Maryland in 1959, winning a B.S. in Military Science, and earned his Masters in Business Administration from the George Washington University in 1960.

Assigned here in July, this year, Lt. Col. Simmons is accompanied by his wife and four children, residing at 65 Echo Hill Road in Amherst.

Looking forward to four years here, the Colonel is quick to praise the area, lauding its people and especially noting the school systems and "the challenges offered to both children and adults."

Concert Band Expands New Members Needed

The UMass Band Department announced today that auditions for membership in the 1963-1964 University of Massachusetts Concert Band will be held next Tuesday, November 12. Membership in the band is open to qualified students of both undergraduate and graduate level.

John A. Jenkins, recently appointed Conductor of Bands and Assistant Professor of Music, plans to perform a wide variety of band literature in concerts both in Amherst and on tour. Premiere performance of the band under Jenkins will be December 15.

For the first time, the band will perform in conjunction with other UMass musical groups in the Sunday evening ceremonies in the Union ballroom just prior to the Christmas holidays. In addition to traditional Christmas music, the band will perform works of representative contemporary composers.

Featured on the Winter concert will be a performance of the Music for a Festival by Gordon Jacob, written for the Festival of Great Britain in 1961 a work which uses, in addition to the full resources of the concert band, a solo brass ensemble of trumpets and trombones.

The band has announced completion of plans to tour Connecticut and parts of Massachusetts in January, during the between semesters break in classes.

Prohibition Of Cigarettes Rejected

THE STUDENT BODY of Springfield College rejected a proposed prohibition on the sale of cigarettes on campus in a referendum Thursday.

A two thirds majority was required to carry the proposal, but proponents of the bill were only able to muster 407 votes out of 892 votes cast. The Springfield Student Council had first petitioned the college administration asking that cigarettes' sales be banned on October 8.

COUNCIL TREASURER Clarkson Edwards proposed the resolution to the council a week after resident physician Dr. Irving H. Steinberg, during an address to the student body, cited the high rate of lung cancer among smokers. Dr. Steinberg suggested that the school discourage the sale of cigarettes.

The council endorsed the proposal but left the final decision up to the student body.

IRONICALLY THE BALLOTING took place in the only building in which cigarettes are now sold. Officials at Beveridge Center claim they sell about 200 packages a day.

Collegiate Press Service

New York BHE Refuses To Censor

NEW YORK (CPS) — The Board of Higher Education (BHE) of the City University last week refused to censor a college literary magazine for allegedly "anti-Catholic" material in last spring's edition.

The BHE announced its decision by accepting President John J. Meng's report on the controversy, which declared that he (Meng) "will not now nor in the future administer academic punisments for violations of literary taste nor for vulgarity of expression."

President Meng noted that he found the most controversial work in the magazine, a play, "Midnight Mass" by Allan Coleman, current editor of the Hunter newspaper, Arrow, personally distasteful, but added that "questions of literary merit have little relevance" to the controversy.

The dispute began with the publication of an unsigned critique of The Echo in the campus journal of the Newman Club. The reviewer, later identified as the chaplain of the club, termed Echo "a bit blasphemous, a bit tinted, and a bit tainted. Is it sheer accident," he queried, "that almost every issue of Echo has a major piece which in some form or another attacks, derides and blasphemes God, Christ, and, at times the Catholic Church?"

Several Catholic organizations in the city took up the cry against the magazine, demanding that the BHE take action against it. The Brooklyn Tablet, official newspaper of the largest Catholic diocese in the U.S., noted "the apparently unfettered ease with which some students at tax-supported institutions of higher education in New York City spew invective in school publications against morality and religion." The situation was described as a "festering sore."

The Tablet then continued to criticize Dean of Students Kathryn Hopwood who, in reply to a letter from the Newman Club chaplain, stated that "if I start to shape up the students to my sense of reality, I may dredge out a lot of the bad; yet, because my human judgment is fallible, I might also kill some things that have value."

The Echo incident is not the first time that Catholic groups in the city have intervened in New York campus publications. Last year, the Tablet demanded punishment for the Queens College newspaper Phoenix, for an editorial which allegedly blasphemed the Virgin Mary. The editorial was concerned with the House Un-American Activities Committee.

At that time, the BHE also refused to censor the paper, leaving the matter up to the President of Queens College. No official action was taken against the paper, but President Harold Stroke reportedly warned the editorial staff that a recurrence of such an incident would result in suspension.

Newspapers and publication of all the city colleges have been told that the BHE is under increasing pressure from outside groups for censorship, and that editors should keep this in mind in determining policy.

Brotherhood ...

(Continued from page 2)

fair. It has no heart, no feelings, no loyalties, no power to understand—just a lot of cold, misplaced force ready to eliminate anything if it so desires. When the wind is howling, it threatens every tree, the weak and the strong, the new and the old. And when one tree falls, it leaves a hole in the grove making every other tree more susceptible to damage. The branches can be snapped, but true brotherhood will never die. It can scatter the brothers, but it can never kill that intangible something. Keep the trunk of the tree alive. Keep the brotherhood firm and sturdy and a new, stronger branch will grow. Tomorrow the leaves of the first fallen tree will start to scatter. Where will they finally come to rest? That all depends on how far the wind decides to blow them.

How do you fight the wind? Either create a force more powerful than the wind itself or protect your trees and shelter them fromthe next senseless, irrational storm.

Prof Marcus Honored By NE Engineering Society

Prof. Joseph S. Marcus, left, of the Department of Civil Engineering discusses his new office with Dr. E. E. Lindsey, Acting Dean of the UMass School of Engineering.

Prof. Joseph S. Marcus of the department of civil engineering at the University has been elected chairman of the New England section of the American Society for Engineering Education.

The New England section includes a total of 25 accredited engineering schools. The national association encompasses every accredited engineering school in the U.S.

The society's purpose is to promote high educational standards for all engineering faculties and schools. To do this, the organization continually studies courses and course structures to keep abreast of the latest technological and educational advances. Dr. E. E. Lindsey, acting dean of the UMass school of engineering, said, "The selection of Prof. Marcus as chairman indicates his stature among his colleagues and acknowledges his years of productive leadership in education."

President John W. Lederle commented, "The choice of Prof. Marcus as chairman does honor to him, to the School of Engineering, and to the entire University community."

Marcus is a native of Worcester. He received his bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from Worcester Polytechnic Institute, his master's degree from the University of Massachusetts. Marcus has also studied at MIT and at the University of Michigan.

The UMass professor is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, American Nuclear Society, and Tau Beta Pi, engineering honor society.

Marcus has been a member of the University's civil engineering faculty since 1948. He is married to the former Dorothy Slovin of Worcester. The couple has three children.

WORK IN EUROPE

Grand Duchy of Luxembourg Nov. 6

Summer jobs are available for students desiring to spend a summer in Europe but who could otherwise not afford to do so. Among available jobs are office and sales work, tutoring, lifeguard and high paying (to $400 a month) resort and factory work.

The American Student Information Service also awards $200 travel grants to students. Interested students may obtain the ASIS 24 page prospectus listing all jobs, and a travel grant and job application by writing to Dept. N, ASIS, 22 Ave. de la Liberté, Luxembourg City, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg. Send $1 for the prospectus and airmail postage. The first 8000 inquiries receive a $1 credit towards the book, "Earn, Learn & Travel in Europe."

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn
Breakfast — 50¢
Lunch — 50¢ up
THE OPEN HEARTH
STEAKHOUSE
BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

CLUB DIRECTORY

A.F.A.S.S.
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, at 6:30 p.m. in the Franklin room of he S. U. The regulation sets have arrived. All members should attend.

ARBORICULTURE & PARK MGT. CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the Commonwealth room of the S. U. The talk will be "Wild Flowers of Outer Cape Cod. All are invited.

ARTS & MUSIC COMMITTEE
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, at 6:30 p.m. in the Worcester room of the S. U. All members should be present.

BRIDGE CLUB
Important meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 6:30 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S. U. to discuss the invitation from Harvard. All members interested should attend. The regular game will follow. Also, instructions for beginners will be held at 7 p.m. in the Nantucket room.

COMMUTERS' CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 11:15 a.m. in the Council Chambers of the S. U. All members urged to attend.

CONCERT ASSOCIATION
Meeting of the executive board on Wed., Nov. 6, at 6:30 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S. U. All board members are expected to attend.

FORESTRY CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in 203 Holdsworth. The talk will be "White Pine Timber Operations in Canada."

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
Meeting for all girls interested on Wed., Nov. 6, at 7 p.m.

GAMES AND TOURNAMENT COMMITTEE
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 11:15 a.m. in the S. U. All are invited.

GEOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in 249 Morrill. A grad student will speak on his experiences in the Peace Corps.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the ballroom of the S. U. All are welcome.

HOME EC CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in Skinner Aud. All members are urged to attend.

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
The third lecture of a series conserning the person of Christ will be held on Fri., Nov. 8, at 7 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S. U.

LAS VEGAS NIGHT— DECORATIONS COMMITTEE
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, at 6:30 p.m. in the Berkshire room of the S. U. for all who signed up last Thursday.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Get-together on Sun, Nov. 10, at 6 p.m. in the Parsonage. Rides leave Arnold at 5:50 p.m. Sun. morning class for students will be at 9:15 a.m.

LITERARY SOCIETY
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, at 4:15 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S. U. All interested are invited.

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY MAJORS
All majors interested in forming a Med-Tech Club please attend a meeting Thurs., Nov. 7, at 11 a.m. in room 40 of the PHB.

NEWMAN CLUB
Annual outing on Mon., Nov. 11, at Babb's Beach. Transportation provided, leaving the Center at 10:15 a.m. and returning at 5 p.m. $1 for members, $1.50 for non-members.

OUTING CLUB
There are a few positions available to members wanting to take part in the caving trip to New York. See sign-up sheet for further details.

PHYS ED MAJORS' CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the WoPE pool. All interested are invited.

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 7 p.m. in the Men's PE Bldg. Basic instruction will be given. Bring membership dues. Coeds welcome.

SOPHOMORE EXEC COUNCIL
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 11 a.m. in the Middlesex room of the S. U.

SPECIAL EVENTS COMMITTEE
Dr. Schmidt-Schlege will speak on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 4 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the S. U. His talk will be on the Unification of Germany and the Problems in Berlin. All are urged to attend.

STEWARDS CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in Sigma Phi Epsilon. All stewards invited to attend.

S. U. DANCE COMMITTEE
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 7, at 11 a.m. in the Plymouth room of the S. U. New members welcome.

S. U. PUBLICITY COMMITTEE
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, at 7 p.m. in the Norfolk room of the S. U. All must attend.

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, at 8 p.m. in the Worcester A room of the S. U. Sideon Spiegel will speak on "Social Problem sin Israel.

'Freedom Vote' Backed

STANFORD, Cal. (CPS)—The Stanford University campus has rallied to the cause of the Freedom Vote in Mississippi and to aid the Yale students and SNCC workers who have been harrassed by the Mississippi police according to Ilene Strelitz, editor of the Stanford Daily.

Miss Strelitz said that the campus was almost aglow with the hubub of activity to raise money to aid the Campaign to Elect Aaron Henry Governor. Last night, according to Miss Strelitz, four persons raised over $1000 to help in the Freedom Vote.

There had been plans to send as many people to Mississippi as possible, but these plans have been cancelled, according to Miss Strelitz, "because conditions there are impossible."

Miss Strelitz has been in constant contact with Allard Lowenstein, one of the leaders in the Freedom Vote. She said that he told her tonight not to send any people to Mississippi unless they were willing to spend a year or a summer or to commute back and forth to Mississippi.

Lowenstein told her that the police chief in Hattiesburg, Miss, said that any white interference or whte agitators that come to his town will be arrested and fined $500 and sentenced to six months in jail.

"It is incredible to think that this could happen in an American city," Miss Strelitz said. "We plan to do everything we possibly can to raise money to help these people in their Freedom Vote. Every dorm and residence hall here at Stanford will be canvassed for money. We raised over $1000 last night with only four people, I am amazed to think of what we will be able to do tonight."

IFC and SAE

The IFC is meeting this evening to discuss recent fraternity occurences. Their decisions and other news concerning SAE will appear in Friday's Collegian.

Keepsake
DIAMOND RINGS

For Style
Quality and Value

True artistry is expressed in the brilliant fashion styling of every Keepsake diamond engagement ring. Each setting is a masterpiece of design, reflecting the full brilliance and beauty of the center diamond . . . a perfect gem of flawless clarity, fine color and meticulous modern cut.

Authorized Keepsake Jewelers may be listed in the Yellow Pages. Visit one in your area and choose from many beautiful styles, each with the name "Keepsake" in the ring and on the tag.

HOW TO PLAN YOUR ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING

Please send two new booklets, "How to Plan Your Engagement and Wedding" and "Choosing Your Diamond Rings," both for only 25¢. Also send special offer of beautiful 44 page Bride's Book.

Name_____

Address_____

City_____ Co._____ State_____

KEEPSAKE DIAMOND RINGS, SYRACUSE 2, NEW YORK, 13202

Wallace Speaks At Smith

Governor George C. Wallace of Alabama will speak at Smith College this afternoon. The speech, sponsored by the student governments of Smith and Amherst, will take place at 3 p.m. in John M. Greene Hall.

Wallace is making the appearance as part of a "whistle stop" tour of New England colleges.

The governor has resulted in controversy where ever he has gone, or has been invited, Wallace rejected, then accepted an offer from Harvard, where he spoke Monday.

Wallace was invited to both the University of Pennsylvania and Adelphi College by groups there, but later action by the respective administrations forced cancellation of his visits.

Rumors have circulated that Wallace will be picketed at Smith, as he has been at virtually every campus he has visited. The college has instituted stringent security measures to assure that no disturbance begins.

Judiciary Cracks Down On Frosh

by TERRY STOCK

Severe penalties have been incurred by a Stockbridge freshman for continuously breaking University rules after the Stockbridge Judiciary made recommendations for his punishment last week.

Dean Fred P. Jeffrey, Director of Stockbridge School, said that the young man was originally brought to the Judiciary's attention when his head of residence reported him for drinking heavily.

After further investigation, the student was found guilty of several charges: misuse of his automobile permit (only two Stockbridge freshmen were granted permits this year), the possession of a motor vehicle record of several speeding violations, the inability to keep his dormitory room clean, refusal to keep drinking habits at a minimum and study habits at a maximum, and misrepresenting facts to the board in stating that he had no outside vehicle violation record.

Dean Jeffrey explained that he almost always accepts the decisions of the Judiciary, which is composed of men students, in taking disciplinary action. On the basis of the board's recommendations he has ordered that severe penalties be imposed in this case.

First, the student must move out of his dormitory by November 11 for the remainder of the school year. He may re-enter a dormitory, however, in his senior year upon Dean Jeffrey's approval.

Second, he must earn a 2.0 cumulative average by the end of his freshman year in order to be taken off probation and allowed to move back into a dormitory.

Third, his car permit at the University is to be cancelled.

Finally, his car must be removed from campus no later than November 11. Any additional ruling pertaining to its re-location has been left up to Dean Jeffrey's discretion.

The student has been notified that he would be dismissed from school should he become involved in any further trouble.

UMass Outing Club To Go Spelunking

The University of Mass. Outing Club is running an exciting weekend of caving Nov. 8-10. They will leave Skinner Parking lot Friday night, arriving at Jamesboro, Mass. at 8:00 p.m. Here you will have the opportunity to go in the second largest cave in Massachusetts—"Coon Hollow".

Saturday morning, bright and early, 6:30 hopefully, a group will drive to Clarksville, N.Y. there exploring Oneskathaw Cave 'til noon. After a short, bumpy ride to Union's Outing Club Cabin, everybody heads underground again. Nothing large or difficult this time, probably Knox or Ball Cave. On Sunday, members will get themselves tired in a major cave with a 5-7 hour stroll.

After supper some weary members are going to head back to the University. The real enthusiasts are going to spend one more day getting their dirty caving clothes even dirtier. This trip is limited to 25 people, so sign up now.

Beware the
'SKI LOOK'

Get the REAL thing

from a REAL Ski Shop

EMPSALL'S SPORT SHOP

64 Green Street — Northampton

—Next to Smith College Campus—

Steele Seeks Student Soloist

Ronald Steele, conductor of the University Orchestra announced yesterday that auditions to find a young soloist to appear with the symphony in the spring will begin shortly.

Auditions will be held on campus. A panel of faculty members will assist Steele in selecting the artist.

Steele said students from the University, nearby colleges and local high schools are eligible to apply. Those interested should call him at 545-2227 or write to him at the Department of Music for further information.

One of the University Orchestra's goals for the spring concert, according to Steele, is to give a young artist the opportunity to perform as a soloist with an orchestra.

The University Orchestra will make its debut on Nov. 25, at 8:15 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Speaker Ban Hit At UNC

The University Faculty Council at the University of North Carolina adopted a strong resolution voicing its opposition to the recently enacted Speaker Ban Law last Tuesday.

The exact contents of the resolution will not be made public until the Board of Trustees meets here Oct. 28, but informed sources said that the resolution "was very reasonable and calm and was not intended to inflame anyone."

Another member of the Council said that the resolution was designed to "educate rather than agitate."

The resolution was passed unanimously, an official said. There were only a few verbal amendments to the measure and these were designed to correct or change some of the wording.

After the final draft of the resolution is completed, it will be presented to Chancellor W. B. Aycock, then to Consolidated University President Williac C. Friday and finally to the trustees.

Indications are that the trustees will also propose a resolution voicing their opposition to the "gag law."

SZO To Present Israeli Native

Wednesday, November 6 at 8:00 p.m. the Student Zionist Organization will have the privilege of presenting Gideon Spiegel to speak on "Social Problems in Israel".

Gideon, who is a "sabra" (Israeli native), served his tour of duty in the army before receiving his degree in Social and Political Science. After serving as the Director of the Eilat Council, for several years, Gideon is now the Israeli envoy to the Student Zionist Organization.

After Gideon's successful visit earlier this year it is with great pleasure that the organization looks forward to the coming meeting. Gideon's sincerity, sense of humor, and open minded grasp of a situation make this a talk well worth attending. The Student Zionist Organization cordially invites all interested persons to attend.

Gort Takes A Look At Politics

UM Starts Course In Ceramics

by PAT LONG

The ancient art of pottery-making is being given a new turn by a group of adventurous UMass students. The students are attending the courses in ceramics offered this semester for the first time by the University Art Department. In their studio, located in the Munson Hall Annex, simple bowls of traditional design are almost crowded off the shelves by original creations with a distinctly modern flair.

The man responsible for all this activity is Dr. Lyle Perkins, who came to the University this year from the Rhode Island School of Design. Assisted by his wife Dorothy, who also holds a PhD. in Fine Arts, he supervises the work of the studio.

"There are no prerequisites for the course," Dr. Perkins explained. "This semester we are offering only courses for beginners, which are open to everyone, not just art majors. Next semester we will add more advanced courses." The new courses are being added as a part of the Art Department's recently-approved plan to offer a Master's degree in Fine Arts.

At the moment the studio occupies the basement of Munson Hall Annex, and the low-ceilinged rooms are crowded with worktables, drying shelves, two potter's wheels and a kiln built by Dr. Perkins this summer. Plans for expansion are already under way, however.

"We hope in the near future to take over the rest of the building, which now houses the Agricultural Extension Service," Dr. Perkins said. "The arrangement of the rooms is such that each student would be able to have his own potter's wheel and private work area." There would also be space for a lecture room, and an area which Dr. Perkins hopes will eventually be devoted to the art of weaving.

Pastor Pancho Answers Querys

by JAY ISGUR

Question: Abercrombie, in mingled desperation and despair, tosses his racket at a ball which has just been lobbed over his head—and of course misses it. But the ball, to his surprise, falls out of bounds anyway. Does Abercrombie lose the point?

Answer: A person like Abercrombie—a "little person"—who never went anywhere, who never got anything (except maybe a name like Abercrombie), nevertheless thinks a great deal. And mostly he thinks about REVOLT.

Too long has he been kept in the background, been passed by, been pushed from one dismal corner to another. Too long has he lacked control over his destiny, too long has he been a total failure.

The time comes when, faced by yet another failure, he suddenly goes berserk. With the despair of his whole meaningless existence, he lashes out at THE RULES.

So what happens? He finds out that this was the one time he would have won anyway. And being rather upset by this thought, Abercrombie goes screaming off into the night.

It has been said that experience gives a man insight, and that only through insight can one achieve true freedom. Well, latest reports are that Abercrombie is now one of the freest individuals in the land. Indeed, he was last seen zigzagging through the Louisiana bayou country—babbling incoherently — in hot pursuit of a female mosquito.

The Vernacular

by INEZ BRAND

Red Skelton once presented a Hollywood Show at Camp Roberts during his basic training. The following day he was detailed to clean up the show hall.

• • • •

Plastic offered a solution to one dormitory problem. Last year Joseph D'Andrea was contracted to construct two three-story dormitories for Keystone Junior College at LaPlume, Pennsylvania. With the early advent of winter, contractor D'Andrea found that it was too cold to work and that he would lose a $400,000 contract if the buildings were not completed by the deadline. Luckily, D'Andrea and his superintendent thought of a solution. They bought a 150,000 square foot plastic bag for $6,000 and then built the dormitories inside it. Workmen were quite cozy inside the bag which was heated with space heaters, while 40 mile an hour winds in below zero temperatures roared outside. The dorms were completed ahead of schedule.

Another problem of our times was known by Edgar Allen Poe. Poe was expelled from West Point when a bottle of bourbon was found in his room.

• • • •

Honored citizens ride in style in Rochester, New York. Police Chief William Lombard and six other citizens were being honored at a banquet for their services to the Police Department. Chief Lombard and the citizens were drive to the banquet locked in the back of a "paddy wagon" as there was no other transportation available.

• • • •

Don't throw away your old geiger counter if you didn't discover uranium. Purdue University reports that geiger counters are useful in checking the weight of dieters.

• • • •

If you are planning a boat trip, here is a list of "extras" for safer cruising: a large capacity bilge pump, a spare propeller, spark plugs, and flares. Bon voyage.

Barney-Childs, Poet-Composer Presents Program

The departments of English and music will present poetry reading and music recital by poet-composer Barney Childs on Wednesday, Nov. 13, at 8:15 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium.

The public is cordially invited to the event. There is no charge.

Childs will read from his poetry. His compositions will be played by UMass student Allen Blustine (clarinet), music faculty members Ronald Steele (violin) and John Jenkins (trumpet), and visiting artists from Hartford and Boston.

Childs, who has achieved success in both music and literature, is a member of the English faculty at the University of Arizona. He has been a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford University, has held a creative writing fellowship from Stanford University, and is currently associate editor of Genesis West."

His poetry and articles have appeared in "Paris Review," "Approach," "Mica," "College English," and "American Notes and Queries."

As a composer, Childs studied with Aaron Copland, Elliott Carter, and Carlos Chavez. In 1954 he won Tanglewood's Koussevitsky award for composition.

Childs' works, including two symphonies and six pieces for string quartets, have been performed in such major cities as New York, San Francisco, Montreal and Denver. He has just finished attendance at the MacDowell Colony on a composition fellowship.

UMass Profs Will Present Song Cycle

"Haruspicating on Valley View Farm," a song cycle for voice and orchestra by two UMass faculty members, will be performed Sunday, Nov. 10 at the University of Hartford as part of a program sponsored by the Institute of Contemporary American Music.

The song cycle is the work of Prof. Joseph Langland of the UMass English department and Elliott Schwartz of the music department.

Elliott Schwartz, a member of the UMass music faculty since 1960, will have some of his compositions performed this year at the Brookline (Public) Library series and the Music in Our Time series in New York City.

A choral work will be premiered next spring at Bowdoin College. Other performances are scheduled for Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, and Kansas City.

Joseph Langland came to the University from the University of Wyoming in 1959. He has written and edited textbooks, collections of his own poems, and anthologies. His latest book of poems, "The Wheel of Summer," was published in May by Dial Press.

The Folk Scene

by BOB WEBER

Last Sunday afternoon the Student Activities Committee sponsored a music hour in the Cape Cod Lounge of the Union featuring Dave Gitelson and Dick Doherty. Although he seemed somewhat nervous, Dave managed to put across to his audience many American and Hebrew folk songs. While his style of singing and guitar playing was sufficient, one noticed a lack of variety which detracted from the quality of an otherwise entertaining performance.

Following Dave was Dick Doherty who sang songs chosen from popular folk music as well as more traditional songs. In addition, he attempted to sing two of his own songs but fumbled with lyrics on more than one occasion. Dick has a great deal of potential but has not yet fully developed his ability as a performer and guitarist.

• • •

Recently I paid a visit to the C. F. Martin Co., the makers of Martin Guitars. Having owned, played and seen many Martins, I was curious about the makers of these fine instruments. The factory is very small, employing only about 35 people for production and repairs. They currently have a back log of orders for over 2,500 instruments. I was told by Mr. Martin that only the lack of skilled craftsmen prevented expansion. Martin is just about the only concern still handcrafting large numbers of guitars. There are very few machines used, and the quality of Martin guitars, for the price, is superb. Their waiting list for some models is so long there is an eighteen month wait before orders can be filled. All in all, it was good to see that there are still craftsmen left who take pride in their work.

• • •

The Smothers Brothers are coming—as if you don't know. These two gentlemen, Dick and Tom by name, are two of the finest satirests in the business. Even the "purists" try to see these very-funny-men. While some people object to their satire on folk music, I feel you should still be able laugh about something you like and usually take seriously.

• • •

December 17 January 5 are the dates to see Judy Rodrick, the recent discovery who sings blues so well. She will be at Gurde's Folk City, in N.Y.C. If you dig blues don't miss her.

Buffy St. Marie, who, if you don't know, is a UMass grad, has written a song called the "Universal Soldier" which is soon to be released by the Highwaymen.

Scholarships Available For Secretarial Seniors

Two national scholarships for college senior girls are offered for 1964-1965 by the Katharine Gibbs School. These awards were established in 1935 as a memorial to Mrs. Katharine M. Gibbs, founder and first president of the School.

Each scholarship consists of full tuition ($985) for the secretarial training course, plus an additional cash award of $500, totaling $1,485. The winners may select any one of the four Gibbs schools for their training—Boston, New York, Montclair, or Providence.

Winners are chosen by the Scholarship Committee on the basis of college academic record, personal and character qualifications, financial need, and potentialities for success in business.

Each college or university may recommend two candidates, and each candidate must have this official endorsement. Students who may be interested in competing for one of these Katherine Gibbs awards may obtain full information from the college placement bureau.

ROOM
For Rent
2 Miles from Campus
ALpine 3-7516

'PLAYBOY'
$5.50 Year (Reg. 7.50)
Send check or M.O. to:
PETER GUND
Box 418, Amherst, Mass.

RENT A CAR
ECONO-CAR RENTAL SYSTEM
FEATURING CHRYSLER PRODUCTS
• GAS INCLUDED
$5.99 PER 24 HRS.
Plus Small Mileage Charge
Springfield 785-5314
Northampton 584-7277
Greenfield 774-4443

BASKETBALL

Cagemen Practice; Orr Is Optimistic

by HELEN FORSBERG

This year's basketball team opens a "new era" in basketball at UMass. The new head coach, John Orr, has the team playing under a completely different style of play from previous years.

Under the two previous coaches, Bill Curren and then Matt Zunic, the team followed a system of basic plays and set patterns. They played a conservative game and waited for the shot to appear.

This year will mark the appearance of the "fast break," running game of ball. Defensively they'll use a man-to-man press. On the offense they'll be out to move the ball quickly and get in there for the shot, with only a few set plays to fall back upon and occasionally to slow the team down. Also in use will be a two-man offense with two players working together down one side of the court, while the others stand ready.

This style of play creates more initiative on the teams' part and makes the game much more interesting to watch.

The team started official practices on Oct. 15 and has been shaping up very well. Most of last year's starting team is back again and this large number of experienced players is going to be of great advantage.

Back from last year's varsity are: Roger Twitchell, 6'6"; Mike Johnson, 6'6"; Charlie O'Rourke, 6'7"; Pete Bernard, 5'8"; and Charlie Kingston, 5'10". Also Dan Laakso, 6'4" and Elliot Gventor, 6'5" have had varsity experience.

Coming up from the freshman team are: Paul Gullicksen, 6'4"; Jack Forst, 6'5"; Ed Driscoll, 6'1"; and Timmy Edwards, 6'3". Jim Painten, 6'3½", is back in excellent form and looks to be a great asset to the team. Also returning after a year's lay-off is Steve Bonds, 6'3".

The team has added Tommy Ryan, a 6'2" transfer from North Carolina University, who is already proving his ability and pushing for a starting position, and Dick Benjamin, 6'7", a transfer from Clark University.

The team is happy with its new style of play and has adapted very well to the change. When asked how "Twitch" was doing under the new system, Orr said he expects him to have his best season, this year.

As to the schedule, Orr said it looks rough, especially at the beginning. The team plays seven games in 14 days and this could decidedly have an effect on the squads' health and morale.

Orr was optimistic about the coming season and felt our chances were excellent to have a great year.

Concerning the Yankee Conference, Orr only stated, "we hope to win it."

Looming big on the schedule this year is the Boston College team under the distinguished Bob Cousy, Joe Lapchieck's team from St. John's, N.Y., and the always powerful Providence Friars.

The team will also play in the Wagner College Tournament in New York on Dec. 27, 28 and again in Madison Square Garden on Jan. 29.

This week-end the team is traveling to West Point for a two-game series opening their pre-season scrimmages.

The season officially gets under way right after Thanksgiving, when the Boston University Terriers invade the Curry Hicks Cage on Dec. 3.

Frosh Lose To H.C.

The UMass freshman football team was defeated 26-0 by the Holy Cross frosh. This gives the freshman team a record of one victory and two defeats.

—Photo by Harold Gushue

REDMEN BASKETBALL players are already fighting for positions on the team during practice sessions at WPE Building.

The Prognosticator

Boston-San Diego Is Best; Browns To Keep Up Pace

by RALPH PROLMAN

Last Week: 9-2
Season: 20-12-1

In the A.F.L. Boston over San Diego—This may be the best A.F.L. game of the year, and I think the home field advantage will help the Pats squeak out a victory.

Buffalo over Denver—The Bills are getting better every week and they should defeat the Broncos for the second time in a row.

Houston over New York—The Oilers have too much for the New York Jets.

Oakland over Kansas City—Oakland should down the Chiefs for the second straight Sunday.

In the N.F.L.: Dallas over San Francisco — The Cowboys are coming on and should beat the weak 49ers.

Green Bay over Minnesota—This game should give the Packers their 8th straight victory.

Detroit over Baltimore — The Lions defense will be the big factor in this game.

New York over Philadelphia—It will be a case of too much Tittle for the Eagles.

Chicago over Los Angeles — Chicago has too much of everything for the Rams.

Cleveland over Pittsburgh — Jimmy Brown and company will try to retain their lead by downing the Steelers.

St. Louis over Washington—The Cardinals should fly right past the Redskins.

Intramural Playoffs Winners Face UNH

by DAVE GARBER

The Intramural football playoffs will start this week in an effort to determine the campus champion and who will have the right to play New Hampshire's campus champion on November 9.

In the I.F.C. league battle, K.S. will clash with S.P.E. In I.F.C. competition S.P.E. won 5 games, while losing one to a strong S.A.E. team, and also has one tie with T.E.P. K.S. has won six games while losing only one to a powerful T.K.E. team which has five shutouts to its credit this year.

In the dormitory league, Hills South, with 4 wins, one loss and one tie will meet Greenough, which has 4 wins and two ties.

The winner of this game will meet Wheeler. This three-way play-off is needed in order to break the 3 way tie for first place in the dormitory A league and determine who will face Chadbourne, winner of dorm B league.

GAME WED. NOV. 5
K.S. vs. S.P.E.

Bits and Pieces

National Football

by JOHN GOODRICH

Bits and Pieces: UMass is ranked seventh in voting for the Lambert Trophy. The overall bowl picture is starting to clear . . . Washington should get to the Rose Bowl along with Ohio St., Illinois, or Michigan St. . . . Cotton Bowl has hopes for a Texas-Navy match provided both go all the way . . . Baylor could well upset the picture by dumping the Longhorns . . . Orange Bowl shapes up as a game between Oklahoma and either No. Carolina or No. Carolina St. . . . Auburn, Mississippi, and Alabama are fighting for the SEC berth in the Sugar Bowl with the opponent possibly the loser of this Saturday's Baylor-Texas tilt . . . A few upsets along the line could well scramble the picture for any of these bowls entirely . . . The Ivy League has a strong possibility in Princeton, but the league also has a ban on post-season play . . . Big Games this weekend include Texas-Baylor, Princeton-Harvard, Auburn-Mississippi, Penn State.-Ohio St., Michigan St.-Purdue and UMass-AIC.

THE LORD JEFFERY
SENIORS
Make Reservations Now for Your Parents & Family for Graduation in June 1964.
AFTER THE GAME!
Special Dinners from $2.25
A TREADWAY INN
AL 3-2576

CLUB '66 Is Coming

Ski Instructors
Weekend positions available for skiers to instruct high school boys and girls. Prior instruction experience not required. Good compensation. Excellent ski facilities. Write or Call:
SHAKER VILLAGE SKI GROUP
P.O. Box 1149, Pittsfield, Mass.
Lebanon Springs (N.Y.) 7-1255

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

SOCCER

Booters Oppose Amherst Will Play Final Game Today

by SCOTT FREEDLAND
Sports Editor

A Crippled UMass varsity soccer team faces Amherst College today hoping to end their season with a win after losing to Clark College 1-0. The Amherst game, which is being played at home this year, promises to be tough.

Coach Briggs feels that he would play the Lord Jeffs any day if his team was not crippled with injuries and lacking depth to make up for the injuries. It is almost impossible for a team to stay in the best playing shape when some of the team only plays in games, not practicing to avoid straining injuries, or does not play for weeks at a time as injuries heal or worsen. The disabled list is impressive. All-American Captain Dick Repeta and Ray Yando, the first fullback line, both suffer from pulled ligaments and sprains. Dick Leete, Mike Zawrotny, and Algimantas Garsys all have been hurt in previous games. The only bright spots for the Redmen are the facts that Pat McDevitt is in his usual excellent shape and Ron Merrill will play if he is fit.

Amherst College will be fielding a team composed of students from Nigeria, Greece, Iran, and Peru with an All-American halfback to back them up.

It appears that the general soccer scene in New England is improving. Boston now has a professional team and WGBH-TV is carrying college soccer in the Greater Boston area. The Yan Con soccer league in 1965 wil do much to arouse popular interest in the game as will increased play in Massachusetts high schools. Of local interest is the Western Massachusetts Schoolboy Soccer Championship to be played here this weekend, Admission $1.00 Adults and Students probably 25 cents with ID.

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

BOB ELLIS, BOB MEERS, BERNIE DALLAS, and JERRY WHELCHEL take a break from practice to show their Redmen lettered helmets. Bernie Dallas is not dressing for practice this week.

BOWL TALK

Post Season Clash For Redmen? Remaining Games May Be Key

by JOHN GOODRICH

Since the Redmen won last Saturday's game in impressive fashion, people on and off this campus have been looking ahead to post season action for the team. There are still a few mighty important men who consider A.I.C. and UNH dangerous and they are the ones who make up this squad. "We're still playing them one at a time. We want to get something for this school it's never had before—an undefeated season," Coach Fusia said. "The remaining games are games of pride. This pride is fourfold: pride in the school, pride in the overall record of the team, pride in the defensive record, and pride in ourselves as a team." Without a doubt what Fusia says is true. This is probably the best team UMass has ever put on the field. They sport a well rounded offensive and a superb defense.

Although the last two games should be a breeze, a good performance in both will be required if UMass is even to be considered for a Bowl bid. In fact, there is no positive word that even a conditional bid has been received by the team.

Rumors have the team bound for the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Texas or the Liberty Bowl in Philadelphia. The Sun Bowl will be an event where competition will be more on a par with UMass. Such teams as Arizona or another Border conference team might play there. Possibly Cincinnati or a team from the Missouri Valley Conference would be a possible Sun Bowl competitor. The Liberty Bowl is definitely big time.

Dallas Sets Pace; REDMEN Grow; Competition Keen

by KEVIN COYLE

At the start of the 1963 season, the UMass varsity football players were given some added incentive to excell defensively. Coach Vic Fusia instituted the REDMEN club as a means of instituting competition between players on defense.

The club was to consist of football players who made enough plays of outstanding quality to earn the letters spelling out Redmen. It is inconceivable that anyone could have envisioned the number of people who would turn in preformance worthy of letters toward membership.

Leading the charge is center Bernie Dallas, who is on his fourth time around. Others who have excelled in collecting letters are Bob Meers, John Hudson, Bob Tedoldi, Jerry Whelchel and Bob Ellis.

The club's effectiveness is evidenced by the fact that the Redmen have the lowest points-allowed-per-game mark of any school in the nation. Another object of pride on the team is the five shut-outs which it has posted this season. An unusual situation that our opponents which the NCAA terms as major powers have been able to muster only three points in four games, while the small colleges have provided more than twice the offensive production with seven points in three encounters.

Schedule Stiffened

by RICHARD RYAN
Sports Editor

Many rumors have been circulating around campus about possible opponents for the Redmen during the next football season. Dartmouth and Army have been the most frequently mentioned.

In fact, the Redmen will have only two new opponents next year. Buffalo and Holy Cross will replace Bucknell and American International on the schedule. Harvard, B.U., and the other five teams in the Yankee Conference will remain on the Redmen's schedule.

Harvard is currently rated as second in the Ivy League while Buffalo, B.U., and Holy Cross all are listed among the major national independents. Buffalo is the ninth ranked independent team in the nation behind Penn State.

It's a 'snap' with
ARROW

"For want of a horse, the battle was lost"... so said the poet, but never let it be said that for want of a collar button your date was lost. The new Decton oxford Tabber Snap by ARROW gives you the trim, good looks of a traditional tab collar without the fuss and fumble of a collar button. Tapered to trim body lines and labeled "Sanforized-Plus" to ensure perfect fit washing after washing.
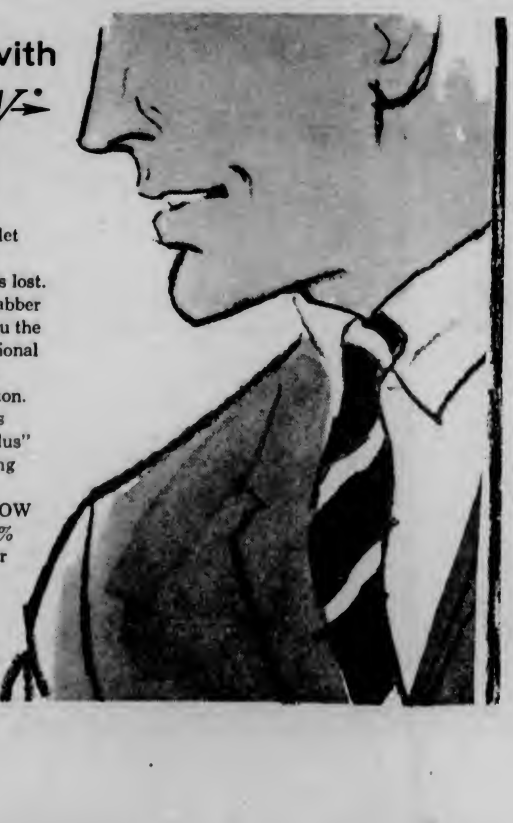
Keep that date in an ARROW Decton (65% Dacron*, 35% cotton) oxford with Tabber Snap collar.
In long sleeves
$6.95

*DuPont T.M. for its polyester fiber



—FOR SALE—
1956 OLDSMOBILE CONV.
Good condition. Inquire:
Courtney Brickman, AL 6-6831

Peter Pan Travel Service Inc.
144 BRIDGE STREET :: SPRINGFIELD
(Across from Bus Terminal)
Open 9 a.m.-9 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.
FOR ALL VACATION and TRANSPORTATION NEEDS
AIRLINE TICKETS AND RESERVATIONS
Tours - Cruises - Sightseeing
Official Tariff Rates
Limousine to Bradley Field Leaves from Our Front Door
Call Collect to
SPRINGFIELD 781-3343

LIBRARY
comp.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII, NO. 24 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1963

LIBRARY
NOV 14 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Censure Move Fails; One Vote Saves Jones

by DON JOHNSON

THE SENATE, in a surprise move, tried and failed, by a single vote to pass a motion that would have censured Senate Treasurer Ross Jones (Brett). The action, coming under the heading of Special Business, was the result of Tuesday's meeting of the Senate Executive Committee, which handed down the recommendation.

Shortly after the Senate's agenda had been disposed of, President Jon Fife called for Special Business; Senator Dave Clancy (Fraternities) rose and asked the Senate to vote favorably on a motion to censure Senator Jones "because of his action in using his resignation as a ruse to gain possession of the Senate floor." Since the motion came under the heading of Special Business, it had to be voted onto the floor.

IMMEDIATELY AFTER Senator Clancy read his proposal, Senator Bill Landis objected to Senate consideration of the question. This motion was defeated and Senator Clancy, resuming possession o fthe floor, referred to Senator Jones' action as "an intolerable violation of Senate ethics." He further condemned it, saying ". . . either the Senate approves of the method (Senator Jones) used or disapproves."

Senator Landis, taking issue with Senator Clancy, objected strenuously to the attempt to censure.

SENATOR JONES then rose to his own defense, and declared that his resignation was no ruse, that it was offered in good faith. He later stated that he was grateful to the Executive Council for not accepting his resignation, since he enjoys the work he is doing and derives much pleasure from his work.

Pro and con the debating went, on, at times seeming to get out of hand. President Fife, with a bang of the gavel, demanded order.

In declaring her support of the censure motion, Senator Joan Labuzoski (Sororities) explained that "this internal bickering must cease, desist or whatever."

AFTER SOME confusion in vote takin amid much mind changing, a vote on the censure motion was taken. The result was 22 against censure, 21 for and one abstention.

The Senate also acted favorably on a bill establishing policy for the Foreign Student Loan Fund. Formerly available to graduate and undergradaute foreign students, the fund is now restricted to use for undergraduate students only.

A second motion on the agenda, that establishing a policy which would insure possession of a quorum, once present, was tabled to the Senate Executive Committee for further study.

Announcer Admits Splicing Of WMUA Senate Tapes

by JOE BRADLEY

A WMUA announcer confirmed Thursday evening that she had deliberately spliced remarks from the tape recording made at Wednesday night's Senate meeting by the radio station.

Miss Pamela Leger '64 said she spliced the taped to delete the phrase "a stab in the back" to avoid any unfavorable "reflection on the radio station." Miss Leger was the announcer at the time the remark was aired.

Miss Leger stated she spliced the tape, made at Senate request for a public record, three times where the phrase had occurred. The deletions were made be-

(Continued on page 3)

FREE POLIO VACCINE

Students, members of student families, faculty, and staff will be welcome at the oral polio clinic to be held at the Student Union on Wednesday, November 13th from 9:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m.

This will be only for oral Type I vaccine. Those students who received oral vaccine Types II and III at the Health Services Clinic on April 9th and May 21st should get Type I vaccine at this time.

There will be no charge for vaccine at this clinic.

Housing Announces Policy For Lincoln Apartments

by OLEH PAWLUK

MR. JOHN C. WELLES, Director of the Housing Office at the University, has recently announced the housing policy in regard to the Lincoln Apartments.

Lincoln Apartments are reserved in the following order of priority: married faculty with children, married faculty without children, married graduate students with children, married graduate students without children, married undergraduates with children, single faculty and gradaute students (only where vacancy exists for one room studio type apartments), and married undergraduates without children.

APPLICATIONS FOR apartments are processed in the order of date received but will not receive consideration prior to date of marriage or before acceptance for admission. Vacancies are rented at the time of availability. The Housing Office, in accordance with the financial interests of the University, has an obligation to keep apartments filled.

The priority list for the apartments is not fixed but depends to a great extent on prevailing conditions. Circumstances may arise at any time which will necessitate a change in the order of priorty at the discretion of the Housing Office.

IN GENERAL, families with children are given preference in their choice of apartments. There is no discrimination whatsoever against race, creed, or color.

Faculty and students who have questions pertaining to housing policy and regulations are urged to visit the Housing Office located on the basement floor of Draper Hall.

READING SKILLS

Students interested in participating in the Reading Skills Improvement course offered by the School of Education are invited to come to the Counseling and Guidance Office, Room E12, Machmer Hall for further information.

SUG Board Asks Hatch Cost Queries

Mr. Russell Colvin, Food Service Manager, will soon come before the Student Union Governing Board. At this time, the Board will question Mr. Colvin on various aspects of Hatch pricing.

In order that the student voice be heard, anyone interested in offering suggestions or criticisms on Hatch operations is invited to write a letter to Bob Brauer, Student Union Office, stating the nature of your suggestion and possible remedies. All reasonable requests will be presented to Mr. Colvin when he appears before the Board.

Wallace Hissed While Claiming "Integration Will Not Work"

—Photo by Mary Roche

STUDENTS AND FACULTY of the Four College Area picket Governor Wallace outside of Smith's John M. Greene Hall.

by ELWIN McNAMARA
News Editor

THE SOUTH is tired of being the whipping boy for national politicians, Governor George Wallace told approximately 2500 Smith, Amherst, and Mt. Holyoke students Wednesday.

The governor had been invited to speak by the student governments of the three colleges.

WALLACE TOLD the attentive crowd that "integration does not work", that segregation is in the "interest of the children."

He cited many cases stretching 1849 to 1927 as legal bases for the southern policy. "We are not violating the law, we are just doing what the courts said we could do". Wallace claimed that the now famous case of Brown vs. the Board of Education was "the law of the case, not of the land."

THE GOVERNOR was met with mixed reception. He was hissed six times, applauded, and several times the audience burst into laughter at his statements. One statement which was quite well received was his statement that "Why there are Negro homes homes so close to the governor's mansion, that I could throw a rock and hit them." "If I did", he added quickly, "they'd just be little rocks".

The Alabama governor claimed that "there are a lot of Southerners out of the South." He defined "Southerner" as a philosophy rather than a geographical designation. "I have met Southerners in New Hampshire, and right here in Massachusetts", Wallace stated.

HE TOLD the audience that segregation was not a purely Southern problem. He cited the re-election of Boston School Committee chairman Louise Day Hicks as being as example of the extent of feelings throughout the country.

Wallace stated that "Kennedy will not carry a single Southern state.' He further went on to describe how he had worked for the election of the President, but now, Wallace stated, "the South is tired of being the whipping

(Continued on page 3)

—Photo by Mary Roche

GOVERNOR GEORGE WALLACE

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

Governor Wallace's Talk-Talk

by JOHN B. CHILDS

> The injustice to an individual is sometimes of service to the public. Facts are apt to alarm us more than the most dangerous principles.
> —Lord Sheldon to Lord Mansfield

Governor Wallace of Alabama spoke at Smith College.

The Governor defended segregation—this was not surprising.

The Governor's use of logic was atrocious—nor was this surprising.

We cite merely one example of the Governor's structure of reasoning which at best was weak and at worst was fallacious. The Governor spoke long and earnestly on court rulings in the 19th century and early 20th century which supported separation of white and Negro. Then he spoke of the Supreme Court reversal on the "Separate But Equal" clause. At this point Wallace launched into an attack on the structure of the judicial system which he felt should not constitutionally make such interpretation of law. The Governor thus supported the structure of the judicial system when it favored separate but equal and then denounces the same structure when it comes out against "separate but equal."

But in itself the Governor's use of logic is not important. Its implications or importance however, are. The Governor's ill use of logic is indicative of a southern environment where defense of segregation has been accepted as a basic truth. As a basic truth the very idea of questioning this truth was neglected. Why should the Governor of Alabama suddenly become logical about segregation when argument about this practice has, up until now, been ignored by the flood of democracy was non-existent? Narrow walls do not allow broad floors.

But Governor Wallace's speech, (if he'll pardon the expression) was not all black and white. "The south," said Wallace, "is more than a region, it is a philosophy." Then he pointed to evidence of southern philosophy in Boston where Mrs. Hicks has been reelected; he pointed to New York where trade unions have excluded Negroes. He pointed to these places and his finger was hard and piercing.

This southern principle, this "most dangerous" principle is to be found outside the south. If we are not alarmed by this principle then let us seek a close-to-home-fact. In Thursday's Springfield Union we read, "A Williamstown woman who refused to rent her rooms to the dates of two Negro students has been forbidden to advertise her rooms on campus . . . (the) woman admitted her bias."

Governor Wallace has spoken at Smith. He has said what we expected him to say in the manner in which we expected. But he has also spoken of a philosophy and facts. Let us hope that both will alarm us.

Some Senators

The Student Senate, hence the Student Government of this University, is reeling against the ropes today, victim of a series of foul, underhanded blows delivered by some self-oriented specimens with gall enough to refer to themselves as Student Senators.

The Student Senate has become the bailiwick, and its floor the sounding board, for a star-studded array of status seekers, parliamentary shysters, and plain old lazy people who's chief concern seems to be themselves. The weekly game of Musical Chairs is only a chance to display a dubious talent, said talent, approaching astronomical heights.

Some Senators use the Senate floor as a veritable trading post; as a bargain basement in which to sell short the good faith and best interests of their constituents and, in the bargain, their own principles.

Let me tell you something people: You may have the right to refer to yourselves as Senators but, as yet, you haven't earned it. You cannot earn it until you substitute principle for persoanlity, work for shirk; until you replace I with Aye. The stars in your eyes now are hopelessly chimerical. The Student Body is willing to replace those and substitute real ones, next to your names, but first you must EARN THEM.

Don Johnson

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1931.

Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.

Member Associated Collegiate Press/ Intercollegiate Press

Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs. 4:00 p.m.

Senatorium

Out Of Ashes

by MARK CHEREN

While Miss Leger had been editorializing subtly throughout the Senate meeting, her "stab in the back" was altogether the last straw. WMUA, like the Collegian, has a definite responsibility to separate editorial comments from news broadcasting. What was much worse, however, was her inference that decisions should be made on a basis of friendship and not the principles involved. In fact from her whole running commentary one would get the idea that there were definite clique trends in voting on the Senate floor. This is a popular myth with absolutely no basis: I have tried to find evidence of dorm blocks, fraternity blocks, organization blocks or what not. To the best of my knowledge (and I have kept tallies of all roll call votes) most senators vote on the principles involved. This is something for the student body to be proud of, and not something for Miss Leger to condemn. If anything, Mr. McNamara was trying to do his friend a favor by voicing disapproval of his actions.

What has come out of this whole mess? A very important little bill. Maybe you didn't even notice it. It catalogues a senator as absent from a meeting if he leaves before adjournment. For years, one of the biggest obstacles in the way of the Student Senate has been the difficulty to keep a quorum at metings. All business halts when a quorum is lacking and though there have usually been enough Senators to get a meeting started, the practice of leaving early is slowly but surely destroying the Senate. This situation is deplorable. At present the president has absolutely no control over those Senators who come for roll call and then disappear in a puff of smoke. With this bill, Senators would (in fear of the three unexcused-absence suspension law already in effect) attend the whole of a Senate meeting, and very possibly spend less time arguing over trivia with the realization that they must remain to the bitter end, if they prolong a meeting needlessly. The law will more fully guarantee that you will be represented with respect to all of the Senate's deliberations. Please, urge your Senator to pass this law when it comes on the floor next Wednesday. If this bill is passed, then all of the leaping and screaming will have accomplished something.

Fraternities or Social Clubs

In the past two Collegians we have discussed a few of the problems facing fraternities at the University of Massachusetts, and have suggested a number of steps that could possibly lead to solutions.

However, as of yet, the Collegian has not come to grips with the main problem at hand. The improving of our Greek system lies not in merely revamping the rushing system, overhauling the pledging system, or even in getting rid of an occasional undesirable house.

The fraternity system on our campus will be improved when, and only when, the Greeks come to the realization that their prime function and future justification for existence are the social facilities they possess.

At this time the fraternity system is nothing more than a pain in the neck to many administrators who would like very much to wish the Greeks a fond adieu from old Mass Aggie, but hesitate to do so because of the invaluable assistance the fraternities supply in the housing of this campus' surplus population.

However, this justification for existence cannot always be counted on to be present and the fraternities should expand upon their one function that will, in all probability, always be welcomed by the administration; their social function.

As small fraternities of fifty, sixty or even a hundred men the Greek system on this campus will surely die. As social clubs which can offer their facilities to two or three hundred men the Greek system will survive.

Despite excellent efforts on the part of this year's IFC, in more than one sphere of action, the fraternities have failed to keep pace with the growing University. Even if they should double in number in the next ten years (which is improbable if not impossible) and take in as a maximum 100 members apiece, their membership will be 3,000, or still less than 30% of the projected male enrollment of 10,000 plus.

If, however, the fraternities, or more precisely, social clubs, should start to double their social membership now, build their new houses with this increased social membership in mind, and start new clubs with this as a goal they will be serving not only to expand the fraternity system (in an admittedly abridged form) but also would be doing a positive good for the University community by providing more people the social facilities this campus sorely needs.

This is not a wild visionary scheme. It has worked at other Universities, but if it is to work here some concrete planning in this area must start immediately. J.S.D.

Letters

Pep-Pills

In recent weeks, the Student Health Service has been concerned by a number of students who have become ill from taking "No-doz" and other so called "pep-pills" or diet pills.

The side effects from these pills which may contain caffeine or amphetamine are very unpleasant and may, in fact, be serious. The symptoms range from insomnia of several nights' duration to vomiting, tremor, and confusion. Usually even small amounts of these drugs are followed by fatigue and depression after the stimulating effect has worn off. This period of fatigue and depression unfortunately often comes during the examination after a frantic night of hard work and self-medication.

Critical studies of these drugs have shown that although they produce wakefulness and alertness, scholastic performance is really not improved.

University Health Service

Public Apology

To the Editor:

I would like to publicly apologize to Senator Al MacNamara for a comment that I made while broadcasting the Senate meeting of November 6. During the voting on the motion to censure Senator Ross Jones, Senator MacNamara voted "Aye" on a move which totally surprised and confounded me since I believed Senator MacNamara was firmly behind Senator Jones. While I was still very surprised I used the phrase "stab in the back" in reference to Senator MacNamara's action. I used the first phrase that came to mind and did not mean it in the way it seems to have been taken.

It was brought to my attention some time after the broadcast that this comment had been taken the wrong way and that some people were going to try to make something of this. In order to save the station any trouble, since this was strictly my responsibility, I took it upon myself to alter these tapes, by editing the phrase out of the tape. What was said and what was done was solely my responsibility and not the station's.

I am sorry that what was done in a moment of surprise and haste had the consequence that it has had.

Again, Al, my sincere apologies.

Pam Leger

Musicale

Saturday, Nov. 9 Lizt: Hungarian Fantasy for Piano and Orchestra (Fiedler/Boston Pops)

Sunday, Nov. 10 Tansman: 3 Pieces for Guitar (Segovia); Beethoven: Sym. #8 in F, Op 93 (Tosci/NBC Sym.); Schubert: Quart #14 in D Minor, Op Posth. "Death and the Maiden" (Juilliard String Quartet); Beethoven Sym. #7 in a Major, Op 92 (Toscanini, NYP)

Monday, Nov. 11 Josef Strauss; Music of the Spheres (Waltzes Opus 235) and sword and Lyre (Waltz Op 71) (Ormandy/Phil Orch) Wagner: Die Gotterdammerung: Siegried's Rhine Journey (Munch/BSO); Brahms: Tragic Overture (Reiner/Chicago Sym. Orch) Mahler: Sym. #1 in D ("Titan") Bruno Watter/ Columbia Symphony Orchestra)

Tuesday: November 12 Grieg: Piano Concerto A Minor, Rubinstein (Wallenstein/RCA) Schubert quintet in C, Op 163, (Heifetz/Piatrigorski) Strauss: Till Eirlenspiegei's Merry Pranks (Bernstein/NY) Bach: Partita #6, E Minor, Glenn Gould

Wednesday, Nov 13 Chopin: Pollonaise in A flat Major, Opus 53 (Braiiowsky); Handel: Royal Fireworks Music (Stokowski/ RCS): Liszt: Les Preludes (Bernstein/NY Phil): Espagnol, Op 34 (Fiedler/Pops); Schumann: Fantasie in C Major (Cassadesus); Wagner: Siegfried Idyli (Toscanini/NBC)

Thursday, November 14 Giordani Concerto in C Major (Garatti/I Musici); Mozart: Concerto No 22 in E flat Major for Piano and Orchestra, K.482 (Entremont/Phil Orch); Vivaldi: Concerto in G Minor for two violins, strings and cembalo, F. 1, No. 68 (Ormandy/Phii Orch) Bach: Toccata and Fugue in D Minor (Biggs/Organ); Mozart: Concerto in F Major for three Pianos and orchestra, K.242 (Casadesus/ Phil Orch); Bach Six Little Preiudes (Vaienti/Harpsichord)

Students May Obtain Their Permanent ID

Students who have not obtained their permanent I.D. Cards may check downstairs in 105 Machmer Hall at the following times:

Mon — 1:20 p.m.- 3:20 p.m.
Tues. — 8:50 a.m.- 9:50 a.m.
Wed. — 10:00 a.m.-11:00 a.m.
Thurs. — 8:50 a.m.- 9:50 a.m.
Fri. — 1:20 p.m.- 3:20 p.m.

Extra hours will be heid on Saturday, November 16, 1963. These are as follows:

11:00 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
1:30 p.m.- 5:00 p.m.

Any students who have not received their permanent I.D.'s by this time, wiii have to go downstairs to Room 105 in Machmer Hall on or before November 16, 1963.

Announcer Admits ...

(Continued from page 1)

tween 7:30 and 8 a.m. Thursday, she said.

Station Manager James O'Hearn said he could take no action until the matter is brought before the station policy board.

O'HEARN SAID: "I feel very bad that it happened, and doubiy bad that it happened to Pam."

However, O'Hearn explained that the "station has a responsibility for what goes over the air." He said that present policy was to allow persons who have "proved themselves responsible" to announce live programs.

At the same time Miss Leger claimed that she held full responsibility for all comments broadcast. She said this was standard policy for the radio station.

Miss Leger later apologized and accepted responsbiliity for the remarks broadcasted.

"I WOULD like to publicly apologize to Senator Al McNamara for the comment that I made whiie broadcasting the Senate meeting of Nov. 6. What was said and what was done was soiely my responsibiiity and not the station's,' she said in apparent reference to the subsequent splicing.

She said the action on the floor of the Senate so surprised her that she made the editorial statement. (The action involved was the first rolicall vote on the motion to censure Senate Treasurer Ross P. Jones. Miss Leger maintained that the yes vote by Senator Elwin McNamara, whom she described on the air as a "good friend" of Jones, caused her to make the statement).

Israeli Diplomat, Former Soldier To Speak On Middle East Peace

Mr. Shlomo Argov, Consul of Israei in New York, will be the guest speaker of the B'nai B'rith Hiiiei Foundation on Tuesday evening, November 12, at 8:00 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge. He will deliver an address on "The Prospects of Peace in the Middle East."

Mr. Argov was a member of the Israeli Armed Forces in 1947 during its War of Independence. Following the war, he studied Poiitical Science and International Relations in the United States and Great Britian. He holds a B.Sc. degree from Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., and a Master of Science degree in Economics from the London School of Economics.

From 1955 to 1959, Mr. Argov served on the staff of the Prime Minister's office in Jerusalem.

He was appointed Israel's first Consui General in Nigeria in January, 1960, and following this he served as Counseiior of the Israel Embassy in Accra, Ghana, until his recent appointment as Israeli Consul in New York.

The meeting is open to the public and all are invited to attend.

MR. SHLOMO ARGOV

Lost and Found

LOST: A sterling silver ring lost somewhere between Brooks and Bartlett on Tuesday morning. Please contact Aima Ezrkian, Brooks.

LOST: A sharkskin waliet somewhere on campus. Please return to Paul A. Wheelocic, 212 Plymouth House. Reward.

LOST: A smaii olive green raincoat in WoPeBuilding. Name inside. Please return to Jane Morgan, Crabtree House.

LOST: One (1) black raincoat with lining and definite paint marks was lost aiong with a grey sweater Wednesday morning, Nov. 6, outside Goessmann Lab 64. Please return to Thomas Skratt, 421 Gorman.

LOST: A pair of brown giasses at the Saturday night dance at the S.U. Reward. Contact Walter Chase, Room 303 Greenough.

LOST: Wednesday night my tan raincoat was picked up by mistake in the Hatch. I have yours. Contact Keramaty, Ext. 2796 at the Engineering Building.

FOUND: Springfield Cathedral High School 1963 Class ring with initiais S.H. Contact Pete Mabie, 212 Middlesex.

History Department Today Announces New Series

The History Department anannounced today that it will be presenting a series of lectures. The first lecture will be given by Professor Lewis Hanke of Columbia University. His subject will be "Do the Americas Have a Common History?

A critique of the "Bolton Thesis". It will be held in the Middlesex room of the Student Union on Friday, November 22 from 4-6 p.m.

During the second to be delivered December 6, Professor John Roche of the department of history at Brandeis University will deliver a lecture on "The Quest for a Dream: The Development of Civil Rights and Human Relations in Modern America".

Professor Ray Ginger, Department of History Brandeis will deliver his lecture on "Fads in Historical Study" on Friday, January 10, at 5 p.m. As Professor Ginger puts it, "a lecture in which I knock to pieces some aberrant so-called interpretations of the late 19th century (Hofstadter for instance)."

Wallace Hissed ...

Continued from page 1

boy for the national politicians." "We have had a lot of stuff passed off on us", he claimed.

THE SUBJECT of centralized powers was gone into in great detail by the governor. "Some," he said, "have forgotten that the Feedrai government is a creature of the states." You cannot force miiiions to accept what they refuse to do."

On this ground, the governor based his opposition to the Public Accommodations section of the proposed civil rgihts legislation. The law wili "put all businesses under the control of the justice department.

Wallace swung at the press for what he termed "distortions" in the coverage afforded his speeches. "You have been misled by the press", Wallace charged.

AT THE END of the lecture, the governor slipped out a rear door, and escorted by six plainclothes Alabama state troopers, drove past a wall of picketers.

This is no weak-sister deodorant!

...it's new

MAN-POWER

New Man-Power Deodorant has what it takes to do a MAN's job. Gives you the stepped-up penetration power, the staying power a man needs. Covers in seconds...controls perspiration... stops odor. And it's absolutely non-sticky. Try it...the new deodorant that does a MAN's job. New Man-Power. 1.00 plus tax.

EXTRA BONUS — the clean masculine aroma of OLD SPICE | SHULTON

Diamonds of Fine Quality

MODERATE PRICES

Credit Arrangements

WINN Jewelers

31 S. Pleasant
Amherst

College Bowl Contestants Narrowed To 8; Show Nov. 24

AS TIME BEGINS to grow short before the November 24 television show, the members of the UMass College Bowl team have once more been tested, and the following eight remain as possible team members: Mike Berrini, James Crawford, Jeff Davidow, Sandy Graham, Mike Hench, Bill Landis, Dave Mathieson, and Sue Tracy.

THE ABOVE TEAM aspirants will separate into two opposing squads and continue to practice, using the buzzer system devised to approximate as closely as possible that at the actual studio where the show will be held.

At stake in the quiz show, besides the prestige that naturally would come with a winning performance over a national television network, are scholarships for the school represented by the winning team.

IF THE UMASS team should win on the 24th, they will continue to return to battle with other schools for the honors and scholarship rewards at stake.

Harvard Sex Scandal Really Nothing At All

The Boston papers and the wire services had a field day proclaiming to the world about the "wild parties" and "wild orgies" that were being held in the dorm rooms at Harvard. To the average Harvard student the news was just as new to him as it was to the outside world.

The source of the story is a debate over the "parietal" rules at Harvard. To most of the "Outside World" parietal probably means something to do with pariah. While the Harvard students would like to cast out the rules, the parietal rules have more to do with life at the college. So the debate raged over the parietal rules. And as far as the Outside World knew, Harvard was debating something that they could care less about.

The Crimson, the campus newspaper at Harvard, in baring the fraudulent scandal that it saw inflated into big banner headlines in the Boston papers said, "It was the Boston Record American that discovered the issue, and proudly announced its find in a front page banner headline: "Harvard Bares Wild Parties," Harvard, of course, had bared nothing; the Record had just 'exposed' some selective passages in Dean Munro's Oct. 9 letter to the Crimson (which expressed concern over the parietal rules and the attitudes they engendered).

So while the nation feasted on the flesh of rumors of wild parties Harvard and Vassar students joined the feast, reading about orgies occuring at their schools that few of them had ever heard about.

Meanwhile the debate rages over the parietal rules at Harvard and students are still searching for the orgies that never occurred.

(Ed. note! The above is very true, the Crimson ran a picture with Harvard students buying the Boston papers and captioned it "The market for fiction improved spectacularly yesterday. Here Harvard men fight to get story on wild parties they never attended.")

NOTICES

BASKETBALL

All interested candidates for Stockbridge basketball should meet in Rm. 10 of the Cage Tues., Nov. 12 at 7 p.m.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS

There will be a group going to Belchertown this Saturday. If you are interested in going come to the Commons parking lot at about 1 p.m. The group will return at about 4:30 p.m. It is not necessary to sign up. Come dressed to play.

BILLIARDS

Freshmen men interested in entering the billiards tournament should sign up now in the game area of the S.U.

BLOOD DRIVE RECRUITERS

Returns are due! Please bring them to the lobby counter of the S.U. as soon as possible.

BOWLING

The frosh bowling tournament is now in progress. Check to see when you play next.

CREW TEAM

All those interested in forming a crew should contact Bob Ford in 420 Baker. No previous experience will be necessary.

1963 INDEXES

Any student who has not picked up his copy of the 1963 Index has until Nov. 30 to do so. There is a limited supply of these books left, and the Index has announced that after the 30th no more of these books will be available. Students ID's must be presented.

LAS VEGAS NIGHT

Club 66 needs bouncers, waiters, waitresses, cigarette girls, cashiers, and money collectors for Las Vegas Night. Contact Mary Ann Brady in Dwight, Mike Brogan in Chadbourne, and Bill Nichols in Phi Sigma Kappa.

TAU BETA PI

Sign up now for your choice of a banquet meal for the Nov. 25 initiation banquet. A sign up sheet is available in Prof. Di Hfach's office in Guenness Lab.

CONCERT BAND

All applicants for Concert Band are asked to come to Old Chapel today or Tuesday, and leave their names with Mrs. Perry in the Music Dept. They are further asked to sign up for either of two times for audition: Tuesday 1-5:30, or Tuesday, 7-10.

CLUB DIRECTORY

B'NAI BRITH HILLEL

Services will be held on Fri., Nov. 8, at 7 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U.

CANTERBURY ASSOCIATION

Progressive supper will start from "768" at 6 p.m. on Sun., Nov. 10, for the homes of Dr. Ritchie and Dr. Cox. The talk will be "The Biologists' View of God."

ECONOMICS ASSOCIATION

Meeting on Tues., Nov. 12, at 8 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. The talk will be on Massachusetts industrial changes post World War II and future prospects.

FORENSIC SOCIETY

Meeting on Tues., Nov. 12, at 7 p.m. in 349 Bartlett.

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

The third in a series of lectures entitled "Christ and Man's Quest for Life" by Rev. Desterhaft will be presented on Fri., Nov. 8, at 7 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. All are cordially invited to attend.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP

Informal get-together on Sun., Nov. 10, at 6 p.m. at the Parsonage. Rides leave Arnold at 5:50 p.m. Sun. morning class for students will be held at 9:15 a.m. All are urged to attend.

MATH CLUB

Meeting on Wed., Nov. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in Peters Aud of Goessmann. The talk will be "What Is an Actuary?" Refreshments will be served.

NAIADS

Rgular optional practice on Tues., Nov. 12 at 7:30 p.m. Jr. Naiads will practice on Tues. at 6:30 p.m. Sr. Naiads will meet on Wed., Nov. 13, at 7 p.m.

NEWMAN CLUB

Annual outing will be at Babb's Beach on Mon., Nov. 11. Transportation will be provided, leaving the Center at 10:15 a.m. and returning at 5 p.m. $1 for members, $1.50 for non-members.

UNIVERSITY FOUR-H CLUB

Meeting on Tues., Nov. 12 at 7 p.m. in Bowditch Lodge. The guest speaker will be the 1963 I.F.Y.E. delegate to India, Ray Woods.

FROSH CHRISTIAN CAROL SING COMMITTEE

Meeting of all interested on Tues., Nov. 12, at 6:45 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U.

FROSH EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

All members will meet on Tues., Nov. 12, at 8 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U.

LIBERAL ARTS

ALL DEGREE LEVELS

- Analytic Research
- Language Program
- Computer Programming
- Mathematics
- Statistics

ALL ACADEMIC MAJORS

Training in Specialized Techniques are Provided by NSA

Liberal Arts Majors (except mathematicians) are required to take the

PROFESSIONAL QUALIFICATION TEST

given on

7 December, 1963

Applications for test MUST BE IN NOT LATER THAN 22 NOVEMBER.

See your COLLEGE PLACEMENT OFFICER now for a Test Bulletin containing further details. Since no test is required for math majors, they should contact their college placement officer for an interview with an NSA representative.

National Security Agency

WASHINGTON D.C. AREA

An Equal Opportunity Employer

ELECTRA

Senior Men's Honor Society

Presents

TAJ

and the

ADELPHIANS

—EXTRA ADDED ATTRACTION—

Charles "Chuck" Reid and His Flaming Sax

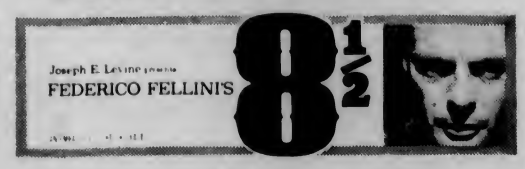
Tonight, November 8 S.U. Ballroom 8:00 p.m.

—YOUR 50¢ MEANS OUR SURVIVAL—

SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS

AMHERST Cinema

ENDS SAT. — Tonight 6:30, 8:45 Sat. 4:30, 6:50, 9:20



—LATE SHOW TONIGHT 11:15 P.M.—

Boccaccio 70 Anita Ekberg, Romy Schneider

Sun., Mon., Tue.— It's "BYE BYE BIRDIE"

PHI ETA SIGMA OFFERS TUTORING FOR FROSH

Janet K. Smith and John Henning, Co-chairmen of ALD-PES Tutoring Committee, announce that free tutoring is currently available in the following courses:

Botany I—W37—Monday
Zoology I—W-14—Thursday
Math I—W-36—Monday
Math 5—W-14—Wednesday
Math 6—W-14—Monday
Math 9—W-16—Tuesday
Physics 5—W-13—Tuesday
Chemistry I—W-21—Tuesday
French I—W-24—Tuesday
French 7—W-24—Tuesday
German I—W-22—Tuesday
Psychology 5—W-13—Monday

Tutoring periods begin at 7:00 P.M. with the exception of Botany I (7:30 P.M.). All classes are held in Machmer Hall and will usually last one hour.

In the interest of diversity of course offerings, a box will be placed in the RSO Office for requests for specific course offerings. Weekly evaluations on these requests will result in the tutoring of additional courses, on an instructor-available basis.

Alpha Cambda Delta's and Phi Eta Sigma's generously give their time and energy to assist students having difficulty in grasping the specifics of a course. If you fall in this category, why not avail yourself of their services?

WFCR Airs Josef Krips

This Sunday at 3 p.m., WFCR will present the famed Austrian conductor, Josef Krips. He will offer two contemporary works and Mozart's Symphony No. 41 in C Major (the "Jupiter"), as he conducts the New York Philharmonic.

The contemporary works will be Alexei Haieff's Symphony No. 2 and Samuel Barber's Piano Concerto. Soloist in the latter will be the young American pianist John Browning who gave the world premiere of the work in September 1962 with the Boston Symphony. Neither of the two works has been broadcast by the Philharmonic.

Haieff's Second Symphony—This work was first performed by the Boston Symphony at concerts in April of 1958. At the end of that season Mr. Haieff's Second Symphony was given the American International Music Fund Award as one of the two foremost new symphonic works performed in this country during 1957-58.

Samuel Barber's Piano Concerto—This work was commissioned by G. Schirmer music publishers on the occasion of its 100th anniversary in 1961. It was completed in September 1962 and following its premiere last fall quickly proved to be one of Mr. Barber's most popular scores.

Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony—The last of Mozart's symphonies, the 41st is one of the most popular in the orchestral repertory. It is in the traditional four movements.

New Column from WMUA

Turntable Topics

by SHERRY SPEAR

Are you bored by Bernstein? Is Baez your baby? Are you crazy over Basie? Then, welcome to TURNTABLE TOPICS, a weekly column from WMUA bringing you news of the feature programs of the coming week.

FOLK MUSIC: According to Pete Greenwood, DJ of "Standing Room Only" the click disc of the week is: "Folk Ballads from the Works of Edgar Allan Poe" (Reprise Label). Honest! This is a collection of the works of E.A.P. set to music. Pete intends to spotlight what he considers the best release album of the week although not necessarily recorded by well-known artists.

METER LEADERS: You can woo your girl over the airwaves with "Donna" or "I'm Leaving It Up to You." Yes, WMUA is giving you the chance to pick the disc and the dedication. Just tune to "Crazy Rhyths" show, broadcast live Friday evenings 8 P.M. - 1 A.M. from the Hatch in the Student Union. Requests are taken either in person or by phone. The number is: 525-2425 or 2425 (dorm).

SPEAR HEARS: Flipping through stacks of news releases I turned up a swinging definition of Hootenanny: the folk singing wonder that attracts fans like "Washington Square." The blurb runs: Hootenanny, songs of homemade origin, is dedicated to every harmonica blowing jailbird who ever lived, with songs of the mountain people and chain gangs, ballads of banjo pickers in buckskin, the migrant laborers and the lumberjacks.

TRAD: (Traditional jazz to those of you who haven't been to England lately). If you're interested in hearing an exclusive interview with Coleman Hawkins, father of the tenor saxophone, set an earphone extension in to Ron Engel's "The Art of Jazz" Sunday from 10-11 P.M.

MOOD: Johnny Mathis is "Artist of the Week" on Pat Hoyt's "Shoes Off," Wednesday from 11-12. If youre "Misty" over Mathis, dial yourself in to 91.1 FM, WMUA.

MUSICALE: Its the fourth of July on a record, Handel's Royal Firework Music (Stockowski/RCA) on Musicale, Wednesday November 13. If you missed the fourth this year, you've got a second chance.

INTERACTION: "Interaction" will not be broadcast this Sunday, November 10 at 7:30 due to the Smothers Brothers Concert.

(Continued on page 7)

Therapist Speaks Here

Monday, November 18, Mrs. Adelaide Deutsch, Associate, and Professor Marie Louise Franciscus, both of the Division of Occupational Therapy, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, will visit the University. They will meet with interested students between the hours of 9:00 and 11:00 A.M. in the Plymouth Room, Student Union.

The tremendous progress in medicine in general, and the demonstrated results of modern techniques in physical medicine, have produced a tremendous demand for occupational therapists. After obtaining basic experience in this country an increasing number of therapists are enjoying the opportunity of work in rehabilitation programs around the world.

Mrs. Deutsch and Professor Franciscus are looking forward to explaining the many advantages of Columbia's program to University students on November 18th.

Angel Flight Will Choose Membership

Beginning on Tuesday, November 14, the Angel Flight will hold small group meetings to select candidates for membership. There have been two general meetings in September and October which resulted in an overwhelming response. Approximately seventy-five girls have shown an interest in Angel Flight.

Membership will be highly selective, but there is no set limit on the size of the flight. Those girls who filled out applications will receive invitations to an interview to be held at a specified time next week. The interview will take the form of a question and answer period directed by a selection board. The results should be posted by the end of the week.

The girls who are chosen as candidates will then participate in an orientation and instruction period at the end of which the charter members of Angel Flight will be selected.

Frosh Carol Sing Already Scheduled

Planning of the freshman Christmas carol sing scheduled for December 15, is already getting under way. But the Executive Council is looking for help. Are there any Broadway stars in the class? Anyone with a flair for entertaining (or anyone just plain enthusiastic) is invited to work on a Christmas skit.

Anyone interested in decorating the S.U. Ballroom for the party or in helping with cookies and cocoa and hot cider is invited to join the decorating or refreshment committees headed respectively by Helen Cassoli and Al Teedie.

A general meeting for everyone interested in the various aspects of this first class project will be held in the Nantucket Room of the Student Union. Bring your enthusiasm and your ideas.

Ann August

Timeless!

Seasonless!

Wool Knit Sheath

a "Purl" of a knit!

Choose now from our fashion collection of shell knits

priced from 14.98

- Cranberry
- Blue
- Green
- Black

104 NO. PLEASANT ST. . . . AMHERST

• Charge Accounts Invited!
• Browsing Welcome!

RELAX!
THE WORLD'S CHAMPION LEISURE SOCK IS HERE: BURLINGTON GOLD CUP!

Wash n' Dry Without Shrinkage—Practically Indestructible! A dozen colors to choose from. Sizes 10-13 and 13-16.

BOLLES Shoe Store
AMHERST CENTER

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn
Breakfast — 50¢
Lunch — 50¢ up
THE OPEN HEARTH STEAKHOUSE
BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

by SANDI MAY '64

Dormitory News

Women's Dorms

ARNOLD

The Arnoldites would like to thank all concerned who helped to make their recent mix with Gorman such a success. Chairman of this event was Carol Hennigar assisted by Pat Smith and the social committee. The Arnold residents would also like to congratulate the many girls in the dorm who have pledged sorority.

We would like to announce the following dorm officers: dorm co-ordinator, Marianna Morse; dorm treasurer, Julie Ryan; Interdorm Council representatives, Edna Barker and Cathy Walsh; senate representatives, Karen Garvin and Michele Potvin; social chairmen, Carol Hennigar and Pat Smith; and W.A.A. representative, Edna Barker.

Other goings on at Arnold include meetings of two small discussion groups under the leadership of our housemother, Mrs. deKerpely, and also the activities of the French corridor. One group is a philosophy group which meets twice a month with a different professor from the philosophy department as moderator. The secretary of the group is Pat Long and membership is open to any resident of Arnold or any other university student. Also holding meetings in Arnold is a creative writing group in which original works are read. This group is also open to any student.

Arnold also houses the French corridor which holds meetings twice a month. Anyone interested in any of these activities should contact Mrs. deKerpely for more information.

DWIGHT HOUSE

Dwight House has been keeping a full social schedule this year. Our first event was a delicious Grinder Supper, given by the dorm to welcome the new upper class residents.

Dr. Gage gave us an enjoyable and informative evening by leading a discussion on health subjects, last Wednesday evening. We, at Dwight, would all like to thank Dr. Gage for giving so generousiy of his time, and for his understanding approach to our questions.

To continue our chain of activities, we celebrated Halloween with a fun-filled costume party, given by counselors Joy Kerr, and Barbara Koza, and by the Freshmen of the third floor. A highlight of the evening was the costume designed by Mrs. Field, our Housemother. Dressed in an authentic "kimono," under the camouflage of a mask and wig, Mr. Field kept her identity a secret, adding a great deal of fun to the party.

All of Dwight would like to congratulate Maxine Forward and Penny Eskot for their splendid performances in Music Man.

Finally, we convey our best wishes to Linda Gould and Debbie Selig on their recent engagements.

Men's Dorms

BRETT HOUSE

On Wednesday, October 30, at 8:30 P.M. Brett House held its second "Visitors Program." The guest at this program was U. of Mass. psychiatrist Dr. Julian Janowitz. The program was of the "question-answer" type in which many varied fields were discussed. The men of Brett would like to thank Dr. Janowitz for a most interesting and fruitful evening.

Other programs such as this are planned for the future. One social event that is in the near future is a mixer with either one or two of the girls' dorms.

Engagement

Announcement is made of the engagement of Viola P. Albertson, daughter of Captain and Mrs. H. L. Albertson of Melrose, to James Kingsley Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Rogers of Belmont. Vi, a psychology major in the class of '64, is a counselor in Van Meter No. Her fiance, a graduate of U. Mass. and brother of Beta Kappa Phi, is employed as a chemical engineer for DuPont.

A February wedding is planned.

WAA News

FIELD HOCKEY

The UMass Women's Field Hockey Team lost a very close game to Mt. Holyoke on Monday. The final score, 3-2 indicates how evenly matched the teams were.

UMass's left wing, M. Moulin scored the first goal early in the first half, only to have Mt. Holoke tie the game shortly before the half ended. Again in the second half, UMass scored the initial goal, off the stick of Marty Graves. The score, 2-1, remained as such until late in the second half, when Mt. Holyoke score once more to tie the contest at 2-2. It seemed as though this would be the final score, but with literally seconds remaining, UMass committed a foul which resulted in a penalty bully between the UMass goalie and Mt. Holyoke's center forward. A quick goal was scored by Mt. Holyoke as they went on to win 3-2.

The game was exceliently played by both teams. Although it was a disappointing loss for UMass, this fine team finished the season with a commendable record of three wins and two losses.

Pinnings

Janice Hebert of Worcester, to Paul McAdam, TC.

Marylou Leonard, Thatcher, to Charles Leuddier, Holy Cross College.

Janice Cieplik, Crabtree, to Bruce Gifford, LCA.

Judy Sturtevant, KKG, to Ken Paim, KS.

Dee Ferrigno, AXO, to Dave Manley, '64, Amherst, Mass.

Tina Poshkus, AXO, to Jim Donohue, LCA.

ENGAGEMENT

Ruth Abramson, Boston University, Mark Brenner, PSD.

Sororities Announce ...

Sororities Announce New Pledges

PI BETA PHI

The air of excitement is finally settling as the Pi Phis and their new pledges get back into the old routine.

Last Tuesday was a hectic day walked at 338 N. Pleasant Bay, as all the Pi Phis anxiously waited for the rushees to accept our bids. With warm greetings and sincere happiness in welcoming the twenty-six future sisters, the following were bow-pinned on Tuesday, after a buffet in their honor, and pledged on Wednesday night: Gail McLean, '65; Dinda Hansan, Kathy McCarthy and Sandy Perrault, all class of '66, and twenty-two freshmen: Paula Battis, Lyndy Carr, Vicki DiFrusio, Sue Durfee, Ann Grafton, Barb Hannon, Pris Harteman, Ellen Hatch, Sue Johnson, Jean Kelley, Donna Leach, Kathy Merritt, George Ann Mirrick, Sue Neet, Ann Russell, Donna Sello, Cee Jay Smith, Kathy Stebbins, Jane Stumpf, Carol Swift, Carol Wiggins and Carol Zmuda. We are so happy to have them as sisters and want to extend to them, once again, our warmest congratulations.

Now that rush is over, we are all looking forward to a more normal schedule, with exchange suppers and a visit from Mrs. Adams, our province president.

LAMBDA DELTA PHI

The past weeks have gone at whirlwind speed for the Lambda Phis. We'd like to welcome our new pledges: Judy Stevens, Franny Bassil, Nancy Stanton, Jeanne Brown, Joan Bracker, Carol-Ann Bollenbach and Annette Wong, Linda Greenberg, Sue Koons, Candy Kane, Bonnie Blittersdorf, Bonnie Johnson, Jane Graziano and Janet Keough. At a most enjoyable pledge banquet, the sisters discovered that the old pledge spirit never dies.

In addition to pledging, the Lambda Phis introduced our new housemother, Mrs. Mary Kirby, to the University at a tea in her honor on Sunday afternoon.e The exurberance continued into the evening when we were most pleased to entertain pledges of various sororities at the Pan-Hellenic pledge tea.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

Rush is over and climaxing the week of fun and parties was Tri Sigma's pledging of fourteen girls who are: '65, Nancy Ramstedt and Joan Felio; '66, Debbie Bush, Diana Carey, Carole Nash, Sandy Nordstrom, Sue Peliand, Mariiou Prentice; '67, Roberta Barbadora, Judy Dutcher, Peggy Lapine, Jean Latino, Alice Mntchell and Donna Whitman. The sisters warmly welcome the girls into their midst.

The new pledges have raided the house and taken away the pillows and paddles made by the sisters. Not to be outdone, in the wee hours of Thursday morning, the sisters captured the girls from the various dorms and brought them to the house where they were treated to breakfast.

Chosen to represent the sorority in the Frontier Giri contest is Jean Latino.

This week is Chapter Inspection. Mrs. Henry W. Morrison, the National Historian and chairman of the National Memorial Headquarters committee, will visit Sigma Sigma Sigma in order to meet with the collegiates and the alumnae. She will assist the members in sorority living and reemphasize the need ofr interfraternity cooperation.

After her arrival here Friday, Mrs. Morrison will meet with assistant Dean Gonon. A dinner reception at which she will be presented to the sisters is scheduled for that evening. Attending a Saturday afternoon tea planned in her honor will be the sponsors and advisers of Gamma Iota Chapter.

Late Sunday afternoon Mrs. Morrison will depart for New Britain, Connecticut, where she resides.

She graduated from Eastern Michigan University where she was a member of Omicron Chapter. Up till 1949, she taught history in Toledo, Ohio. Since retiring, she has been active in civic and church work. During the past year she has been busy with the fund drive for the National Headquarters in Woodstock, Virginia. The Tri Sigmas feel honored to have Mrs. Morrison spending the weekend with them.

CHI OMEGA

To the Chi Omega's energy, hard work and high spirits go credit for the successful launching of what promises to be a most active and rewarding year for the Iota Beta Chapter.

Early in the semester preparations were begun for Homecoming. On October 18 Elaine Howe represented Chi Omega as a Homecoming Queen finalist, and the rest of the sisters, dressed as Yellow Pages, marched behind their aqua telephone, with its spinning dial, under the banner "Dial M" for MASSacre."

A hectic but happy first semester rush program was competently directed by Judy Fitts, rush chairman, and the sisters are proud to have 29 girls on campus wearing Chi O pledge pins. Those freshmen pledged include: Sue Allen, Diana Alvarez, Arlene Bontempo, Barbara Capriole, Cathy Carroll, Gail Cheney, Michele Feldman, Kathy Furness, Mary Gorman, Paula Hadley, Sue Henry, Betty Kelley, Barbara Mendolsohn, Peggy Mosack, Monica Patten-

(Continued on page 7)

School Of Home Economics Starts Recruitment Program
Trainees Acquainted With Program By Faculty Speeches

The School of Home Economics has started an extensive recruitment program this fall.

Late in Sept. a Recruitment Training Program was offered for all students, faculty and extension staff interested in participation. During these sessions information regarding forms used in recruitment, School of Home Ec. illustrative material, admissions requirements and procedures, schoiarships and financiai aid, and transfer and graduate courses offered were covered.

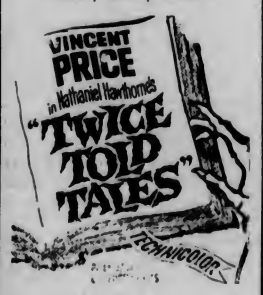
Trainees were given a knowledge of the entire school's program through speeches from a faculty member of each major within the school. The information covered in the training session was of such importance that anyone who missed a part of it is not eligible to do actual recruiting.

A series of colored slides taken last year in the schooi and supplemented with colored slides from the American Home Economics Association will be used to portray Home Economics and its various major fieids.

The recruiting program has been established for the purpose of informing more high school girls and their parents of the opportunities in the field of Home Economics and of interesting them in the School of Home Economics at the University in particular. Students, faculty, and extension staff will recruit freshmen throughout the state at high schools, through clubs and professional organizations, and through alumnae. The program will also be used on campus to serve open house events, visitors, and groups interested in the academic program.

Through this program the School of Home Economics hopes to increase its enrollment with more and better qualified students and at the same time the members of the recruitment program will benefit from the knowledge and experience gained through their participation.

DEERFIELD
Drive-In
ROUTES 5 & 10
S. Deerfield, Mass.
—FRI., SAT., SUN.—



—ALSO—
Elvis Presley
-in-
'KID GALAHAD'
Show begins at 7:30
Feature First Sunday

MAJESTIC
WEST SPRINGFIELD
"Picture of the Month" —Seventeen
Sidney Poitier
RALPH NELSON'S
Lilies of the Field
BEST ACTOR SIDNEY POITIER 1963 Berlin Film Festival
Released thru UNITED ARTISTS
Shown Tonite at 8:40 p.m.
Sat. Eve— 6:30 & 9:35 p.m.

DIARIES
&
CALENDAR PADS
for 1964
A. J. Hastings,
NEWSDEALER & STATIONER
South Pleasant — Amherst

'PLAYBOY'
$5.50 Year (Reg. 7.50)
Send check or M.O. to:
PETER GUND
Box 418, Amherst, Mass.

Front row, Varsity (left to right): Trbovich, Morin, Morris, Ross, Dallas, Tombarelli, Hudson, Schroeder, Fassell, Kehoe.
Back row, Frosh: Deblak, Anderson, O'Reilly, Tockarczuk, Durkin, Boyle, Benoit, Gogick, Henderson, Milano, Glasier, McMillan, Smith.
Not in picture—Frosh: Mareno.

LEADERSHIP PROGRAM

Redmen Football Also Trains ROTC Cadets

Now that Army ROTC is voluntary, the Collegian asked Captain Jack Keliher, Assistant Professor of Military Science, what sort of athletic representation they had in the program.

"We have a complete cross section of the male population on campus in Army ROTC," Captain Keliher replied, "and many of them are on UMASS athletic teams."

As this is football season, he cited as examples ten men on the Varsity and fourteen on the Freshman Football Teams who are in the ROTC program.

Captain Keliher believes that sports can be an important part of an Army officer's education. When asked by the Collegian, Captain Keliher gave his views on the relationship between sports and the Army ROTC program.

"Men who have participated in contact sports such as football make fine combat arms platoon leaders because they understand the value of discipline, teamwork and prompt obedience to orders. They know how to work under pressure. They are in top physical shape, which enables them to lead by example and take the rough going a platoon leader faces under field conditions.

"Our job is to teach them the art of leadership. The players really work hard at this leadership business. There's not a one who isn't putting out 100%. A lot of this has to do with the fact that Coach Fusia won't tolerate prima donnas any more than we will.

"Because of this desire to excell, several of the Varsity have won themselves positions of leadership in the Corp of Cadets much faster than usual. For instance, Mike Ross, though only a junior, is already a cadet platoon leader. Juniors Joe Morris and Jack Schroeder are First Sergeants and sophomore Bernie Dallas has nailed down a squad leaders position normally held by a junior.

"Our freshman players are doing equally well. They are eager to learn and we expect big things of them here in Army ROTC and on the football field."

Once they graduate and win their 2nd Lieutenants bars they will serve on active duty for six months or two years or perhaps in the Regular Army. In their off duty time most will participate as player coaches in the Army sports program, designed to provide recreation for the Army and help keep it physically fit.

Football

(Continued from page 8)

has the best rushing average with a 5.8 yard per carry figure.

John Schroeder has replaced Jerry Whelchel as the most accurate passer by upping his completion percentage to .636. Jerry upped his mark also, but his .603 average was only second best.

Turntable Topics . . .

(Continued from page 5)

CHEER CHOICE: Can you imagine a station manager, disc jockey and full-time student all in one neat six foot package? Our boss, Jim O'Hearn is the coordinator of the radio station, the DJ of "Crazy Rhythms" and "Coffee on Campus" and still finds time to be a UMass senior majoring in English. Our Cheer Choice of the Week: Jim O'Hearn.

RALLY TONIGHT
YES, VIRGINIA, there is a RALLY TONIGHT featuring a parade, BONFIRE, and dance with TAJ and the ADELPHIATED ELECTRAS.

Little Redmen

The University of Massachusetts freshman football team will try to get back on the victory trail as it travels to Connecticut to play the UConn frosh at 1:30 Saturday. A victory against the UConn frosh would even the little Redmen's record at two wins and two losses.

The team came out of last weeks game against Holy Cross in good physical shape and everyone should be ready to play. The lineup should be the same with quarterbacking chores once again split between Al Caruso and Ray Johnson.

BASKETBALL

Redmen Hoopsters Stage Scrimmage

UMass basketball coach Johnny Orr put the 1963-64 edition of the Redmen through a regulation inter-squad scrimmage Wednesday night. Orr divided the team into two groups—the Reds and Golds.

The Reds riddled the nets on 45 of 87 field goal attempts to win 109-87. Pete Bernard led the scoring with 26 points followed by Tim Edwards with 23 and Tommy Ryan with 22. Ed Driscoll topped the Golds with 24 points and Steve Bonds added 15 more.

Bonds, who had a hot second half, was the leading rebounder with 15. Edwards had 12 rebounds along with six assists for the Reds. The Reds led at halftime, 61-39.

Rodger Twitchell and Charlie Kingston were on the injured list and did not play in the scrimmage.

Sororities

(Continued from page 6)

gall, Sue Penney, Ruth Rubin. Sharon Strand, Linda Sweeney, Sanly Tharl, Kathy Timsin, Sue Wood and Carolyn Yukna. Sopnomores are Kathy Miller, Joyce Regle and Di Di Bolton. Juniors: Terry Rogers, Karen Longhi and June Walsh. Two newly initiated sisters are Karen Patitz and Anita Russo.

The Chi Omegas are happy to welcome three new sisters to the campus: Gretchen Thomas and Pat Divine, University of New Mexico exchange students of Pi Gamma Chapter, and Marcia Sutherland, a transfer from Omicron Gamma Chapter at Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pa.

Visiting the chapter during rushing was Miss Marianne Roderick, a Chi Omega national visitor and a 1963 graduate of Ohio Wesleynn University, on tour of the chapters in northeastern United States. The sisters found Marianne's suggestions most helpful, and surprised her with a birthday cake and a small gift before she left Iota Beta.

To the men of TEP, QTV, Theta Chi and AEPi go the thanks and appreciation of the Chi Omegas for four enjoyable exchange suppers.

Best wishes go to pledge Barb Mendolsohn, that she may carry on the tradition as Military Ball Queen.

In six busy weeks the Chi Omegas have accomplished much and they are looking forward to the active months ahead.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Congratulations and welcome to the twenty-two girls pledged at our ceremony last Wednesday evening: Nancy Lewis and Judy Ross, class of 1965; Pam Barry, Alison Malone, Janet Rogers and Janet Sharpe, class of 1966; Rosemary Ananis, Janet Bailey, Barbara Bello, Pamela Benton, Betty Dadoly, Judy Girouard, Jeannie Lolli, Nancy McLaughlin, Carole O'Malley, Cindy Pease, Elaine Perriello, Debbie Richardson, Diane Watson, Cathy Wojtkun, Barbara Taska and Nancy Wright, class of 1967.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

The period of formal rushing having come to a close, the sisters of Kappa would like to take this opportunity to introduce their new puedges—Class of '65: Gali Kavanaugh, transfer from Burbank School of Nursing, Fitchburg; Class of '66: Deborah Duffin and Mary Robison, transfer from Lasell Junior College; Class of '67: Susan Bailey, Susan Bascom, Mary Jane Bishop, Carol Cavailo, Nancy Field, Janice Fisher, Roxanne Gile, Susan Graham, Karen Harrison, Susan Hayes, Linda Hemlin, Carol Higgins, Diane Klein, Jean La Voie, Andrea Macuga, Carol Marcus, Marylee Sperry, Marilyn Stacy, Judith Sturtevant, Mauralee Williams. A warm congratulations to each of you and a sincere welcome.

Our pledges attended their first exchange Friday evening with Kappa Sigma. The buffet was followed by a party at Kappa Sigma and the Kappas thoroughly enjoyed themselves. We hope this will be the beginning of more Friday night exchanges, and we would like to thank the Kappa Sigs for their great "first."

Beware the
'SKI LOOK'

Get the REAL thing

from a REAL Ski Shop

EMPSALL'S SPORT SHOP

64 Green Street — Northampton

—Next to Smith College Campus—

College Studio

Portraits of Distinction

SPECIALS
3 - 5 x 7
PORTRAITS
for $7.50

Sufficient Amount of Proofs Taken

DO NOT MISS THIS OPPORTUNITY

Vocational & Passport Pictures
FINISHED IN 24 HOURS

Hours— 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.
16 Belmont Ave. (Off Green St.)

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
Call JU 4-2824

Ski Instructors

Weekend positions available for skiers to instruct high school boys and girls. Prior instruction experience not required. Good compensation. Excellent ski facilities. Write or Call:

SHAKER VILLAGE SKI GROUP
P.O. Box 1149, Pittsfield, Mass.
Lebanon Springs (N.Y.) 7-1255

Important Game For A Bowl Bid; UMass To Play AIC This Saturday

by KEVIN COYLE

Tommorow, the University of Massachusetts faces the next to the last obstacle to an undefeated season. American International College from Springfield will be providing the competiton at Alumni Field at 1:30.

The men from Springfield have been a hard luck team all year. The Aces have a real star in their junior quarterback Dick Kolodziey. The 6'3", 185 lb. quarterback has thrown 145 passes and completed 64 for 1,052 yards. Seven of these passes have been good for touchdowns. Kolidziey however has been just about the only bright spot in the backfield. The A.I.C. coach Gay Salvucci has had his ground attack hampered all year by the lack of a break-away back. This lack of speed in the backfield has allowed opposing defenses to zero in on the passer. A.I.C. has been forced to depend on its passing game which features Dick Kolodziey throwing to left and Pete Gaban; this year that has been their most effective offensive combination. Their record stands at only 1-6-0 but they have never been shutout. Several games have been lost by the Aces by close scores.

The Redmen, who now entertain hopes of showing their talents in post-season bowl action, have the added incentive of keeping their best-in-the-country defense at the top of the list. So far in this 6-0-1 season, the Redmen have given up just ten points. Southwest Missouri ranks second with a defense which has allowed twenty-two points in seven games to rank second to the Redmen, while Mississippi

KEN PALM
One of the leading rushers who will try to increase his total against A.I.C.

JOHN SCHROEDER
A capable quarterback who backs up Jerry Whelchel.

MIKE ROSS
One of the team's leading scorers who will attempt to continue his past performances.

stands third with twenty-three points scored on them in six games. UMass has allowed only 410 yards rushing, an average of 58.5 per game or 1.8 yards per carry. The total defensive allowance is 152 yards per game which ranks the Redmen near the top in yet another department.

The UMass team has excelled in still another defensive field. The art of posting shutouts. So far this year Harvard, Bucknell, Rhode Island, Boston University, and Vermont have wilted from the point famine presented them by the Redmen. Only Maine, in the first period of the season, has been able to push across the goal line. They have one T.D. and PAT for seven points and Connecticut has three points on their second period field goal. Measuring by minutes in a game, the last touchdown to be scored against UMass occurred 409 minutes and 35 seconds ago, and 223 minutes and 11 seconds have gone by with the opposition scoreless.

The Redmen offense is also potent. The men from UMass have rolled up 175 points. The offense has been triggered by the two junior quarterbacks Jerry Whelchel and John Schroeder. The Redmen have charged overland for 1518 yards while 694 yards have come from overhead which comes to an average output of 316 yards per game. John Schroeder has become a replacement at quarterback where on most clubs he would be worthy of a starting berth; the Redmen offense has no problems moving with the second qb at the controls.

The running backs have great depth to their lot which is evidenced by the fact that seven Redmen backs have netted over 100 yards rushing so far this fall. More offensive strength appears in the form of the two sophomore ends, Milt Morin and Bob Meers. Bob has made 17 receptions for 250 yards and one touchdown while Milt Morin has caught 11 for 176 yards and three six-pointers. Milt has been a crusher on defense where his 235 lbs. have leveled more than one quarterback. Meers who is no "midget" himself at 6'3", 205 lbs. has also excelled at head-crashing which has been repeatedly rewarded by REDMEN Club letters in abundance enough to put him among the club' most decorated members. Coach Vic Fusia has cited the vastly improved defensive play of his two sophomore ends as being highly instrumental in the fine shutout record posted by the team this season.

In the scoring department, quarterback Jerry Whelchel upped his total points to 41 by kicking five PATS against Vermont last Saturday. Ken Palm and fullback Mike Ross moved into a tie for second place with 24 points. Jerry also has a slim lead over the same pair in the rushing catagory. Jerry's 243 yards just tops Ross with 237 and Palm with 228 net yards from scrimmage. Mike Ross however

(Continued on page 7)

Redmen Edge By Maroons

by JIM RYAN

Sparked by Bob "Digger" Brouillet's tremendous individual performance, the UMass varsity cross-country team edged Springfield College 27½-28½ last Wednesday afternoon on the Maroons home course.

"Digger" not only remained undefeated this season by winning his seventh straight meet, but set a new record in covering the rain-soaked course in the time of 23:04. The former record of 23:30 was held by ex-Springfield great Terry Merritt. The senior captain is enjoying his greatest varsity season, and easily outdistanced his nearest competitor, Wells of Springfield, who finished in 24:05.

But this victory was the result of an outstanding team effort. Every one of the Redmen runners ran well. Springfield took 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 8th, and 11th places, a very strong showing. But the efforts of Gene Colburn, tying for 4th place, Tom Panke, 6th, Bob Molvar, 7th, and Bob Ramsay, 9th, pulled it out for the Redmen. Great efforts by both Colburn and Bob Larson were responsible for the Redmen's winning margin. Had the former not tied for 4th the meet would have been a tie. But Gene put on a tremendous finishing burst to tie Calkins of Springfield and give UMass an extra ½ point. Larson finished 10th to push Sprinfield's last man back one place and take another point away from the Maroons.

Coach Footrick was very pleased with this win as his past teams found it especially difficult to defeat Springfield.

The next meet for the Redmen will be the New England Championships on Nov. 11th at Franklin Park in Boston.

Pool Tournament

All freshmen men who wish to play in the Billiard Tournament should sign up now in the Game Area of the Student Union.

This will be the first chance for the University's new pool sharks to test their skill in tournament competition.

Sportswriters

Any student who wishes to work for the Collegian as a sportswriter covering a winter sport should leave his name and address and sports preference at the Collegian office before next Tuesday.

I.D. Tickets

Temporary I.D. cards will no longer be honored for admittance to football games.

BERMUDA
COLLEGE WEEK
1964
MARCH 22 · APRIL 11

Everyday packed with action ...new friends...fun!

SUN.—Get acquainted dance. (Wear Bermudas!) MON.—College Day at the beach. Talbot Brothers Calypso, College Queen Contest, barbecue lunch. TUES.—Jazz session, Limbo contest, buffet lunch. WED.—Cruise to St. George, Steel Band entertainment, Gombey dancers, refreshments. THURS.—On your own: swim, shop, sightsee, sports. FRI.—College Week Revue—entertainment. Tennis finals.

All these...and lots more complimentary activities! See your Campus Organizer now!

The Bermuda Trade Development Board
620 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10020

HADLEY
DRIVE-IN ROUTE 9
BETWEEN NORTHAMPTON AND AMHERST
FRI., SAT., SUN. — NOV. 8-9-10
BRITAIN'S ACADEMY AWARD WINNER BEST ACTRESS
LESLIE CARON
"Sex is not a forbidden word!"
"THE L-SHAPED ROOM"
with TOM BELL BERNARD LEE · BROCK PETERS · CICELY COURTNEIDGE THIS IS AN ADULT PICTURE
PATRICIA PHOENIX & EMLYN WILLIAMS
Co-Hit— "LOSS OF INNOCENCE"

Quality Fruit Store
Amity Street
The Little Store Near the Theater

—FOR SALE—
1956 OLDSMOBILE CONV.
Good condition. Inquire:
Courtney Brickman, AL 6-6831

LIBRARY

Dorothy H.

THE MASSACHUSETTS

COLLEGIAN

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

LIBRARY,
NOV 19 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

VOL. XCIII, NO. 25 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1963

Tension Rises In Bowl Preparations

by DAVÉ HARACZ

With the scheduled appearance of the UMass College Bowl team on the popular television quiz show less than two weeks away, activity is becoming hectic as the contestants compete among themselves in preparation for the contest. The opponents have been narrowed to one of two colleges, Ripon College of Ripon, Wisconsin, or Wooster College, of Wooster, Ohio, who will play this weekend. Ripon has defeated its opponents two weeks in a row, and the winner of this week's show will be opposing UMass on the 24th.

At stake in the contest is a $1500 scholarship for the winning school and a $500 consolation scholarship for the loser.

Plans for next week include broadcast of a public rehearsal by WMUA and WTTT of Amherst, and more sharpening of the team with the aid of briefings from various departments on campus. Dr. Philip Gamble, head of the economics department, has already offered his services in this capacity.

Dr. Albert Madeira, coach of the team, will announce the final team members tomorrow at 11:00 in E16 Machmer, where the team has been holding most of its practice sessions.

RSO To Probe Dorm Democracy

Dormitory presidents and House Chairmen have received questionnaires designed to ascertain what democratic procedures are followed in the dormitories with regard to the collection of dues, elections and the activities sponsored by the dormitories.

The Committee on Recognized Student Organizations, chaired by Dr. William Field, Dean of Students, has changed the subcommittee on special projects to investigate the over-all participation of the residents in the running of the dormitory.

Such questions as, "Are dues collected from the residents of your dormitory? If so, who decides on the amount? Are they compulsory? If so, is there a procedure made known to the residents whereby an individual can appeal through channels against the payment of these dues?" and "Do you have a budget for your dormitory? If so, who makes it up? Is it presented to the residents for approval?" were asked.

Sub-committee chairman, Anne Pinciss, has said that "This questionnaire is meant not only for the House Chairmen or Presidents but for all the students living in University housing. Any student interested in voicing his opinion should speak to his house president, his Senator, or Mr. Buck or any of the other members of the RSO Committee, which includes Dean Curtis, Mr. Burkhardt, Leslie Arnold and Manny Smith."

'Secrets Of Third Reich' Topic Of DVP Lecture

William L. Shirer, internationally famous foreign correspondent and author of the long run No. 1 best seller, "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," is scheduled to speak in the S.U. Ballroom at 8 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 18.

Mr. Shirer, who has lectured extensively throughout the United States for many years, will cover in his address the pressing problems now before the American people from both the national and international point of view.

Long recognized as a keen observer and highly able reporter on the state of the nation and the world, Mr. Shirer's lectures have come to be known as virtual front-page reports of the day's developments. His lectures are enriched with a wide variety of personal experiences as an American foreign correspondent, radio commentator and author. These have enabled him to present an unusual insight into the problems that need to be brought to public attention.

WILLIAM L. SHIRER

To the millions of Americans who have listened to his broadcasts and who have read his best-selling Berlin Diaries, Mr. Shirer is regarded as a genius of journalism, a reporter, who has the faculty of being on the scene when anything important and newsworthy occurs and one who can impart to his audiences the feeling that they too are participants.

In 1950, Mr. Shirer attained a part of his youthful ambition (to be a writer) by publishing his first novel, "The Traitor." Other books which have flowed from his talented pen are "The Challenge of Scandinavia," "End of a Berlin Diary," and another novel, "The Consul's Wife."

The fall of 1960 saw the publication of Mr. Shirer's monumental work, "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich." It too was a Book-of-the-Month Club selection, won the National Book Award, and reached a phenomenal sale of more than a million copies within a year. The author spent five and a half years sifting through the mountains of secret German documents captured by the Allies. From this

(Continued on page 4)

Index Retakes Slated For Dec. 2-3

Retakes for Index senior photos will be taken Dec. 2 and 3 in a room to be announced. At the same time seniors who missed previous sittings will be able to have photographs made.

A sign up sheet for appointments will be available in the R.S.O. office on the second floor of the S.U. and postcard reminders will be sent out.

Proofs must be returned personally to the Index office on Nov. 18 and 19 by those who have received proofs by that time. Proofs may also be returned Dec. 2 and 3 when retakes are being made.

Photo appointments that are made must be kept. These are the last scheduled dates for Index senior photos.

Thos who wish to have their portrait in the 1964 Index must be photographed by the official Index photographer.

WMUA Interviews Brothers

—Photo by Ron Goldberg

The Smothers Brothers discuss their career with reporters after their concert here Sunday. Over 1700 attended the concert, held in the Ballroom of the S.U.

Ibsen Seen As Rebel, 'Ghosts' Hits Critics

by LOUISE SERONI '65

In a proper black suit, sporting a bowler and a beard, anyone would have thought Henrik Ibsen a model of late nineteenth century propriety.

With such an image in mind, "it's hard to conceive of Ibsen as a rebel of society," commented Harry Mahnken of the Speech Department, director of the University Theatre's forthcoming production of Ibsen's Ghosts.

"People may ask why we produce a play like Ghosts today," continued Mr. Mahnken, noting that the play was a social drama and as such might be thought dated since the emancipation of women. "We still have a tendency to go on conventions outworn by our times; we call them horse and buggy conventions in the space age."

Ghosts will be perfomed on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 21, 22 and 23, with a matinee on Saturday afternoon, in Bowker Auditorium. The cast is comprised of five characters, to be announced at a future date.

HOOTENANY

In the spirit of the rising popularity in folk music the REVELERS are sponsoring HOOTENANNY EN MASS which will feature exclusively talented students from the University of Massachusetts. The hootenanny will take place in Bowker Auditorium on Friday night December 13. There will be an admission charge of .50 which will be put into a scholarship fund.
Mike Paris, Alpha Epsilon Pi (phone AL 6-6831) or Donna Logue at Johnson House.

FINALISTS

The five finalists in the Frontier Girl contest are: Diane Klein, Kathy Pattern, Patty Bourbonais, Joan Ford, and Barbara Mendohlson. The five were selected yesterday by balloting of the student body.

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

Pop Art Stuns And Stupefies

"THE COED" by Martin Carey from the Leo Costello Gallery.

Public Reaction

Pop Art

by TERRY STOCK

An exhibit of "Pop Art," the latest craze in the field of individual creativity, is being sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Department of Art through November 26.

The reactions of students and faculty members to this display have been fairly uniform: "It's interesting and amusing, but is it art?"

Several students exclaimed "It's gross!" and "I don't believe it!" One faculty member, pensively viewing the picture of an ice cream sundae, remarked sadly, "I simply don't understand this type of art." Another professor shook his head in disgust and hissed, "Modern art!" Other remarks made were, "Wild stuff," "You mean people pay money for this," "It must be a joke," and "My five year old brother does better."

Many of the works in the exhibit display female figures in various states of undress. These seem to be attracting the most attention. A young man contemplating a girdled form remarked, "It just looks like an advertisement to me." An elderly gentleman studying the portrait of a nude co-ed commented, "You could probably buy the girl who posed for this for less than the picture costs." Regarding the same painting, a student remarked bitterly, "If we put up pictures like this in our rooms we'd be expelled."

Two representations of parking meters drew the following remark from a woman student: "They're lovely. They'd fit in so well with my decor. I just happen to be doing my home in Early American Drive-in!"

All in all, reactions to the "Pop Art" included head scratching, puzzled looks, laughing and disbelief, but everyone seemed to agree that the works were unusual and would make excellent conversation pieces in anyone's home.

Orchestra Rehearsal

by LANGDON F. LOMBARD

Thursday night, November 7, members of the Music One course and other specially invited guests were invited to attend a rehearsal of the University Orchestra in the Auditorium of the Old Chapel.

It was evident by what went on at the rehearsal that the audience that attends the first concert on Monday, November 5, will hear a fine orchestra. This is not only a fine orchestra in comparison with other university orchestras but one that deserves as large a turnout as the other orchestras in the area.

Of special note will be the brass section. They are already at a high level of accomplishment under the guidance of Ronald Steel, the conductor of the group. Cellos have also been tuned to a fine point along with the basses.

While we question the practice of having talent from the high school and from other places too thus making the orchestra not an entirely University one, we cannot question the outcome of so many hours of work that have been lavished with the group to produce the sounds it does. We wish them the best in their coming concert; the students should turn out.

Letter

Rand Series

The fourth of the Rand Lecture Series presented Mildred Dunnock Thursday, Nov. 7 on stage interpreting selections from various plays and speaking on the theatre. Her interpretations were excellent. This graceful lady of the stage not only entertained me with her art, but also presented a revealing picture of the theatre itself. Her anecdotes both portrayed aspects of the stage and the fine ability of expression of the actress herself. Her ease on the stage, her capacity to direct herself to the audience as if in conversation, her sense of humor, her carriage and above all her acting ability made the presentation a thoroughly enjoyable one.

I wish to thank the English Department for bringing her to our campus.

Beverly Botelho '64

Me, Madness, Humor

by MIKE HENCH

The Fighting Faculty

Since the faculty is now reading the Collegian, assuming they did not do so before, perhaps it would not be too bold to point out that some of us are aware of their fight or fights.

Although I was away last year, I did keep up with the marvelous quantitative vs. qualitative fight. That fight has not ended, nor will it end. I marked well the names of those who wrote into the Collegian expressing their beliefs.

There are others, who didn't write, who are fighting just as strongly for our education. Only a few days ago I spoke with a man who has been fighting a losing battle. This man believes desperately in education and he brings a true genius to the field. And, as is often the case, genius does not tend to fall into any orthodox molds. Some of his ideas are radical. How radical? Let's see.

He believes in educating the whole man. This means that he doesn't want to cram certain accepted "intellectual" concepts down throats. He believes that jazz can walk beside chamber music, that Tilich can be as important as Plato, and that a lecture on contemporary propaganda is just as important as another dissection of Dante or Goethe.

Further, he believes that extra-curricular activities can be an educational process. As Such. They don't have to be obviously academic. The Senate teaches government, the theatre teaches drama, the band teaches music, the magazine teaches writing. Nothing teaches like experience.

But this is just one man. There are others. There are some whom I know, and who have left here. Why did they leave? Will better ones come? These are important questions.

Off hand I know of six professors who are actively fighting for better education for you and me. There are also a few administrators. Recently I learned that our library is important. (A great revelation.) It is important because it is not big enough. If it were bigger, the University could supposedly attract better professors. But we'd rather build a bigger gym. Some people realize this, but there aren't enough.

We've had two big controversies on this campus, since I first came staggering into UMass classes. One was called "Publish or Perish" and the other was called "Qualitative or Quantitative." The latter probably had more value because it taught students two big words, which they might not otherwise have learned. But unless I am very wrong, nothing much came out of them. Some of the faculty "flying squad" are still making sorties against a quantitatively superior foe. But they are suffering heavy casualties. The friend of whom I spoke earlier, the friend who believes in us and can teach us so much, will be a casualty soon. Why?

Life Can Be Dull

by PETER GLEBA

The degenerate spirit of the students who go through the four year cycle of the University is pathetic.

Their morals, standards, and social values are that of zombies which only await the security provided for them by the government at 65.

To go through the "Hatch" is to wander through a cemetery of ideas which center about the small everyday doings and thoughts of these people.

The main theme at this time is the sex dealings at Harvard and Radcliffe with favorable comparisons with our school. Perhaps it would be a wondrous movement for the co-eds of our school to sell themselves as prostitutes to place a moral revolt in a physical context so as to break away from the middle class "liberalism" of the student body which is in such a great struggle against the drabness of the society's conservatism.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.

Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester

Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.

Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press

Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

URI President Horn Defends Censorship

KINGSTON, R. I. (CPS)—Francis H. Horn, president of the University of Rhode Island, recently defended the censorship of Paradigm, the URI student literary publication, and refuted criticism that he is not upholding the principles of academic freedom.

Dr. Horn's statement culminated a month of controversy over the deletion of certain words and phrases from the article "Ballin" by Tom Hardie.

In defending the action of his administrative council, Dr. Horn emphasized that the Paradigm history in question was not suppressed.

"Minor modifications, which, in our opinion, in no way change the intent of the story were all that were requested," the president said.

In giving the reasons for the council's actions, Dr. Horn said that the board recognized that the definition of obscenity is debatable and that a final determination rests with the courts. Since no court action would be taken, the responsibility of such determination rested with the university, the statement said.

Dr. Horn contended that since the university collects fees which pay for the printing of Paradigm, the university could be called its publisher and "hence liable for the publication of such obscenities as would have appeared in the uncensored version."

The president also mentioned federal statutes which forbid the mailing of obscene material. "We . . . decided it would be better to request modification of expressions which were at least open to the charge of obscenity than risk their printing in an officially - recognized university publication."

Postal authorities told the administration that Paradigm could not be mailed in its original form, because the magazine violated the postal laws.

According to Dr. Horn and the council, a student publication cannot claim the same privileges as professional newspapers and magazines.

"What may be acceptable in a story by Joyce or Lawrence," said Dr. Horn, "may not be acceptable in a story by an undergraduate student."

Answering charges levied against him by students and faculty, Horn said, "I am willing to acknowledge that my judgment concerning the obscenity of (the story) and consequently the necessity for slight modification in the text prior to printing in a university student publication is open to question. I am not willing to admit the justification of the charges made against the action of the censorship."

The president also indicated that he was "disturbed" over the charges of his being a "pseudo-liberal" and with having "liberal claims and policies backed by nothingness."

Dr. Horn maintained that the charges were "grossly unfair and without foundation. I have always been committed to the principles of academic freedom."

Discussing the administration's stand on censorship in the future, Horn said that the university "will not normally resort to the censorship of student writing."

He warned that this statement does not mean there is no limit on the student's freedom of expression. "Questions of obscenity, libel and sedition will always be relevant."

The URI chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) took issue with the reasoning and the final action, declaring that the modification was indeed a violation of academic freedom.

LIBERAL ARTS

ALL DEGREE LEVELS

- Analytic Research
- Language Program
- Computer Programming
- Mathematics
- Statistics

ALL ACADEMIC MAJORS

Training in Specialized Techniques are Provided by NSA

Liberal Arts Majors (except mathematicians) are required to take the

PROFESSIONAL QUALIFICATION TEST

given on

7 December, 1963

Applications for test MUST BE IN NOT LATER THAN 22 NOVEMBER.

See your COLLEGE PLACEMENT OFFICER now for a Test Bulletin containing further details. Since no test is required for math majors, they should contact their college placement officer for an interview with an NSA representative.

National Security Agency

WASHINGTON D.C. AREA

An Equal Opportunity Employer

—NOTICES—

VOLUNTEERS BELCHERTOWN

There will be a group going to Belchertown this Saturday. All those interested in doing volunteer recreational work are asked to sign up on the sheet provided in the S.U. before 5 p.m. on Thursday.

CREW

Anyone interested in forming a crew team should contact Bob Ford, 420 Baker. Leave name, class, address, and phone number.

Peter Pan Travel Service Inc.

144 BRIDGE STREET :: SPRINGFIELD
(Across from Bus Terminal)
Open 9 a.m.-9 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

FOR ALL VACATION and TRANSPORTATION NEEDS

AIRLINE TICKETS AND RESERVATIONS

Tours - Cruises - Sightseeing
Official Tariff Rates

Limousine to Bradley Field
Leaves from Our Front Door

Call Collect to .
SPRINGFIELD 781-3343

Ventriloquist Tops Club '66 Bill, Sat.

Top professional entertainment will provide a three and one-half hour floor show for all patrons of Club '66 coming November 16.

The show will be emceed by Vicki Taylor, a comic ventriloquist, who has thrilled audiences in all the top night spots in Boston and New York.

Playing on the same bill with Miss Taylor will be the Los Muchachos Quartette, a Latin-American band that has starred at the Hotel Statler in Boston. Other acts included in this show are Ackero, world famous magician, Strut Flash, "The Dancing Fool," who has appeared with Steve Allen; and Virginia Hauer, a talented song stylist who got her start by winning the Arthur Godfrey Talent Show.

REMEMBER—Proceeds are going to the Campus Chest Drive in March. Club 66 is being put on for the enjoyment of the entire campus. So—Come get your kicks at Club 66.

GYMNASTICS

All freshmen interested in learning about and participating in gymnastics should meet with coach Gundersheln at 7 p.m. in room L of the Cage Thurs., Nov. 14. No previous experience is necessary.

MUSIC HOUR

The Arts and Music Committee will sponsor a music hour with Harold "Gus" Gushue at the accordion and organ on Sun., Nov. 14, from 3 to 5 p.m.

NORTH END PROJECT

All those who are interested in taking charge of children's groups in the North End of Springfield on Saturdays are invited to an organizational meeting in the Middlesex Room of the S.U. Wed., Nov. 13, at 7 p.m.

PHI ETA SIGMA

All members and past members of Phi Eta Sigma who wish to attend a social hour with Alpha Lambda Delta from 7 to 9 p.m. on Dec. 12 should sign the sheet on the social bulletin board in the S.U. Lobby by Mon., Nov. 18.

Impulse

The subject of this week's IMPULSE program on WMUA will be "Civil Rights and Moral Wrongs." The participants, including Howard H. Quint, head of the University's History Department, Loren P. Beth, acting head of the department of government, and Solis L. Kates, professor of clinical psychology, will discuss the public accommodations act of President Kennedy's 1963 Civil Rights bill. This act would require such people as hotel proprietors, landlords, restaurant owners, etc., to serve or accommodate Negroes and other minority groups. Among other things, the panel will debate the right of government to legislate on such moral issues.

The success of this program depends on audience participation. Call your questions in to WMUA (545-2425) Thursday night from 7-8 and they will be relayed to the guests.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN

The University Women will assist the Campus Religious Council at the University in sponsoring a Blood Bank on Nov. 18, 19, and 20.

New Honor Society Formed At UMass

The newest honor society on the University campus is Pi Sigma Alpha, the National Political Science honor fraternity. Delta Lambda Chapter was formed on campus last May after formal approval of the national organization. Its purpose is to recognize scholastic excellence in the field of political science, and to encourage students of superior ability to further their study in this area.

Standards for admission to Delta Lambda Chapter are high, and include a 3.0 or better cumulative average, as well as a 3.0 or better average in at least 12 hours of Government, and high personal character.

The first initiation of candidates on campus was held last May, and at that time the officers for the 1963-1964 academic year were elected. These officers include: Gerald B. Kagan '64, President; Richard Del Guidice, Graduate, Vice President; and Gary Holten, Graduate, Secretary-Treasurer. The Faculty Advisor to the organization is Dr. Loren P. Beth, Acting Head of the Department of Government.

The Fall selection of qualified candidates has been completed and the initiation of five undergraduates, six graduate students, and five members of the UMASS faculty will take place on Thursday, November 14.

Univ. Of Miami Drops Editor After Row Over Integration

MIAMI (CPS) — The University of Miami Student Publications Board dismissed the editor of its student newspaper, The Hurricane, October 25, but denied that this was due to a controversial editorial urging greater participation of Negro students in campus activities, which had appeared the week before.

University of Miami Vice President and Chairman of the Publications Board, H. Franklin Williams, said Monday night that there is a requirement that student editors carry a full class load and that editor Elayne Gilbert fell below that standard.

"It is not true that Miss Gilbert was taken to task for the editorial she wrote. The University extends a great deal of freedom to its students," Williams said.

Williams said that she had been dropped from the courses because of excessive absences. He noted that she had been specially registered for these courses two weeks late, because she had not the proper course load at the beginning of the semester.

Miss Gilbert said that two of her teachers dropped her from their courses without any warning and that "it occurred immediately after my editorial."

She said that both of them were journalism courses and one is taught by the paper's advisor. She noted that her teachers had informally allowed her to miss class in order to work on the paper and that she had not been warned about excessive cutting.

The new editor is Linda Reisman, senior in journalism who has "never worked on the paper before," according to Miss Gilbert.

Williams said that the paper's supervisor picked the best editor he could find. She was not on the staff, but "is well qualified and was confirmed by the Board after a complete hearing of Miss Gilbert's case."

The editorial charged that there are no Negroes in any of the athletic departments except intramurals and that there is only one graduate assistant. It also urged an end to possible fraternity discrimination.

Williams noted that "the editorial gave an improper impression that there are some reservations on integration at Miami. The impression of her editorial is incorrect, since the University of Miami has achieved complete integration."

Miss Gilbert said that she had been told that there were certain areas she was not to write editorials on and they included integration, temporary buildings, student freedom of the press and morals. She added that she had no opportunity for a retraction.

Williams said that "editorial restrictions are negligible and that only certain restrictions within good journalistic taste such as morals are clearly taboo subjects."

Ann August
104 No. Pleasant Street . . . . . Amherst
(FREE PARKING IN REAR)
BROWSING WELCOME • CHARGE ACCOUNTS INVITED

Blood Drive Flowing Well, Not Too Late

Over 870 pints of blood have been pledged to date during this year's blood drive. Although this figure is slightly behind that of last year at this same time, it must be taken into consideration that last year's blood drive was a combined student and faculty effort. The drive this year was limited to students currently enrolled at the University. Faculty will have an opportunity to donate later in the year.

In order to make this year's drive as successful as those held previous years, every student who filled out a pledge form must keep his appointment when the blood-mobile arrives next week. Any student over 21 who has not as yet filled out a pledge form and would like to donate, may pick up a form at the lobby counter in the Union any time this week.

Mrs. Lederle Receives At Her Home

A reception for all University Women (wives of the faculty) was held on Thursday, November 7, at 3 p.m. at the residence of President Lederle.

In the receiving line were: Mrs. John W. Lederle, Hostess and Honorary President of University Women; Mrs. Sydney Wexler, President of University Women; and Mrs. Hoadley, President of the new members.

The reception was held to give the newcomers a chance to get acquainted with the present members. Between 200-300 people attended.

Members of the University Women Board and the Newcomers Board circulated among the guests, to help make the afternoon a pleasant success. A light luncheon was served.

CLUB DIRECTORY

A.S.M.E.
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 13. The talk will be "Nuclear Power Reactors and Systems." Refreshments served.

ASTRONOMY CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 14, at 7:30 p.m. in 100 Hasbrouck. The talk will be Astronomy and the Amateur. Anyone interested or just plain curious is welcome.

BRIDGE
Lessons for beginners will be held on Thurs., Nov. 14, at 7 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. The regular duplicate game will be held at the same time in the Plymouth room. All are welcome.

COMMUTERS CLUB
Special meeting for all facility committee and interested commuters to discuss plan for use of 4-H Bldg. on Thurs., Nov. 14, at 11:15 a.m. in the Worcester A room of the S.U.

CONCERT ASSOCIATION
Meeting of the executive board on Wed., Nov. 13, at 6:30 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U.

CRITIQUE
Meeting of the staff on Thurs., Nov. 14, at 7 p.m. in the Franklin room of the S.U. Please bring a course catalogue.

EDWARDS FELLOWSHIP
Supper meeting on Sun., Nov. 17, at 6 p.m. in the First Congregational Church. Dr. Lewis Mudge will speak. Rides leave Hills and Arnold at 5:45 p.m.

THE LORD
JEFFERY
SENIORS
Make Reservations
Now for Your Parents & Family for Graduation
in June 1964.
AFTER
THE GAME!
Special Dinners
from $2.25
A TREADWAY INN
AL 3-2576

EQUESTRIAN CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 14, at 7 p.m. in Paige Laboratory. The talk will be on the National Morgan Show. Refreshments served. All are invited.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Transportation to the Spencer Abbey will leave the church on Sun., Nov. 17, at 1 p.m. After the trip an informal supper meeting will be held at the church.

LAS VEGAS NITE—DECORATIONS COMMITTEE
Meetings on Wed., Thurs., and Fri. nights from 7-10 in 209 Bartlett for all who signed up.

MARKETING CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 13, at 7 p.m. in Draper 117. Mr. Terry of Men's Placement will speak on senior interviews. All are welcome.

MATH CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in Peters Aud., Goessmann. The talk will be "What Is an Actuary?" Refreshments served.

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 13, at 7 p.m. in the Norfolk room of the S.U. All interested are invited.

NAIADS
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 13, at 7 p.m. for senior Naiads.

OUTING CLUB
Important meeting on Thurs., Nov. 14, at 8 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. Drivers and everyone who went on the New York trip must attend..

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 14, at 6:30 p.m. in the Men's PE Bldg. Basic and advanced instruction will be given. Business meeting at 8 p.m.

SPANISH CLUB
A Tertulia will be held on Wed., Nov. 13, at 4:30 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of Bartlett. All those interested in conversing in Spanish are cordially invited.

SPECIAL EVENTS COMMITTEE
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 14, at 11:15 a.m.—brief but very important.

SOPHOMORE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 14, at 11 a.m. in the S.U.

S.U. PUBLICITY COMMITTEE
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 13, at 7 p.m. All must attend. Check board for room.

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 13, at 8 p.m. in the Worcester A room of the S.U. Arnold Gelfmen will speak on the Kibbutz.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE
Tryouts for Othello will be held on Nov. 18, 19, and 20 from 4:30-6 p.m. in 125 Bartlett. Scripts are available from Mr. Catalano in 387 Bartlett. There are roles for 15 men and 3 women. Also, those interested in going on a theatre trip to New York on the weekend of May 1, 1964, should sign up in 387 Bartlett.

WMUA
Station meeting on Wed., Nov. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the Engineering Bldg. All are expected to attend.

WOMEN'S INTERDORM COUNCIL
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 14, at 11:15 a.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U.

YOUNG INDEPENDENTS
Important meeting on Wed., Nov. 13, at 7 p.m. in the Union.

ZOOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in 138 Morrill. J. M. Moulton will speak on "In and Out of the Intertidal."

Lost and Found

LOST: One loden green campus coat with wooden buttons. Someone exchanged coats with me. The buttons on mine are on the right side. If you have my coat, will you please exchange it with: Marilyn Rozner, 405 Knowlton.

DVP Lecture ...

(Continued from page 1)

massive testimony and out of his own on-the-spot reporting of Germany and Europe over nearly four decades, he has written what may well be the definitive history of one of the greatest and most frightening chapters of the history of mankind.

William Shirer has been the recipient of many honors: The George Foster Peabody Award, radio's greatest prize; the Wendell Wilkie One World Award for his outstanding achievements in journalism; and the Legion of Honor from France. He has been president of the Author's Guild, and is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, the Foreign Policy Association, and the Farm Bureau.

Famed Actress Performs At Rand Fund Lecture

by KATHLEEN OSTERBERG

Miss Mildred Dunnock, who has appeared in acclaimed performances as Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman" and the film version of Tennessee William's "Cat On a Hot Tin Roof" performed before an enthusiastic crowd of over 100 students and faculty members last Thursday evening.

In this, the last lecture of the Rand Fund Lecture Series, Miss Dunnock was presented by Dr. Varley of the English Department. Miss Dunnock, who has always been identified with dramatic tragedy roles, selected monologues from O'Neil's "Long Day's Journey Into Night", Miller's "Death of a Salesman", Tennessee William's "Cat On a Hot Tin Roof", "Trojan Women", and concluded with a monologue given to her by Mrs. Eugene O'Neil concerning a dying, loyal dog's farewell to his master and mistress.

The part of Mary Tyrone in "Long Day's Journey Into Night" has always been Miss Dunnock's favorite role. Miss Tyrone, an elderly women reverted to girlhood under the influence of drugs "presents an exciting and moving part for an actress. In a curious way, the role of Mary lets the actress have her cake and eat it, too—to be a woman grown and play the part of a girl", according to Miss Dunnock.

As an actress who entered the profession at a later age than most, having previously been a school teacher, Miss Dunnock claims her parts have "given reality to legendary figures". By "legendary figures" she means such people as Elizabeth Taylor and Elvis Presley with whom she has appeared in recent films!

Miss Dunnock commented on the various acting media. "TV? It's wonderful and fun. If your scene is a mess, it's gone into the air forever and you never see it again!" As for the life of Hollywood which more and more stars are pulled towards, Miss Dunnock considers it "a substitute for the love of the theatre and the basic art of acting. This substitute is in the form of money!"

The theatre to Miss Dunnock "is exciting, yet depressing, but definitely the most satisfying experience of my life only secondary to my family . . . the time when I'm acting is when I'm most happy. Actors claim they feel more alive when acting, perhaps because they can experience another's life yet not be responsible for that life."

Solons To Discuss U.M. Personnel

by BARRY WEXLER

An important meeting between legislators of Hampshire and Franklin Counties will take place within the next few weeks, to decide the procedure for hiring and promoting non-professional employees.

The University administration as represented by Mr. Gerald Grady, business manager, feels that the vital areas of hiring and promoting should not be subject to the state civil service system. Mr. Grady feels that "the state civil service system is adapted and administered for all the state agencies. Our needs in accordance with a growing institution, and in this part of the state are not similar with the other state agencies."

The administration has established what it feels to be a just, impartial, and time-honored procedure. It feels that any harsh and unwarranted intrusion in autonomous university affairs will only serve to handicap the developing institution with less competent non-professional employees. The civil service system tests applicants on an annual basis and arranges the results in order of best to worst. The university, unhampered by bureaucratic red tape from Boston, "tests continually."

Also involved in the controversy is the practice of seeking outside employees to fill administrative posts and trampling tenure of office rights in the process. Mr. Grady feels that "we have an obligation to the people of the Commonwealth to get the best qualified man for the job. We are not limited to people on campus, although usually promotion does follow ranks of tenure."

The administration will attempt to persuade the legislators against civil service in their forthcoming meeting. They are confident that their position can be clearly explained to the satisfaction of the legislators. "We firmly believe," emphasized Mr. Grady, "that the best interests of the university can be achieved under the present system without going under civil service."

S.U.G. Board Seeks To Improve S.U.

—Photo by Elaine Maltzman

"The Student Union is the community center of the college, for all the members of the college family—students, faculty, administration, alumni and guests. It is not just a building; it is also an organization and a program. Together they represent a well-considered plan for the community life of the college." (as stated by the Association of College Unions.)

It is the function of the Student Union Governing Board to devise this "well-considered plan" that is necessary for the operation of our efficiently run Union Building. The board makes recommendations on the use of Union facilities, approves budgets for program and Union operation, and acts on special requests for use of the Union. In effect, the SUG Board becomes the eyes and ears of the student body concerning the relation of the Student Union to the campus.

The SUG Board was originated on a temporary basis in November, 1956. This first board, comprised of student and faculty members who were chosen by the Student Senate, was responsible for most of the policies under which the Student Union now operates. During the spring of 1957, the SUG Board suggested a method of selecting members for a permanent board.

With only two slight alterations over a period of seven years, the Student Union Governing Board has evolved to its present status.

Forensic Society Continues To Win

The University Forensic Society had its busiest weekend in reecnt history as it sent eight debaters to two different tournaments.

On Friday and Saturday, varsity debaters attended the 13th annual Amherst College debate tournament. The team placed in the top third of contending schools with a 6-4 record. Steve Jenkins and Larry Rutstein defended the negative with a respectable 4-1 wins-losses result. Mike Farrell and Maureen Flanagan met with more difficulty on the affirmative side of the question, compiling a 2-3 record.

In addition, Jenkins placed third out of fifty-eight negative speakers and also won the after-dinner speaking contest, receiving two certificates and a plaque for his efforts.

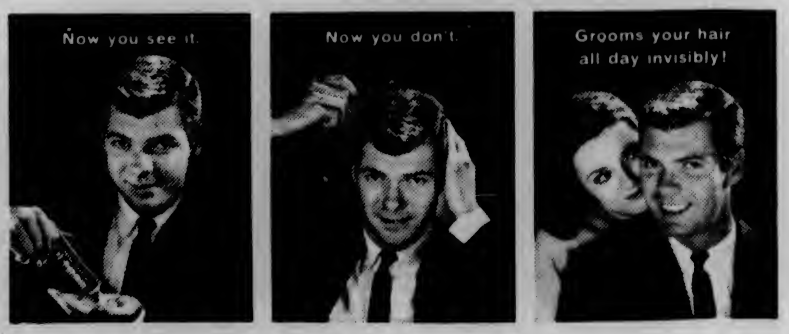
On Monday, Nov. 11, the novice team of the Forensic Society traveled to Harvard for the annual five round novice debate. The University's winning ways were protected with the commendable record of six wins and and four losses. Roland Laramie and Marshal Goldberg represented the affirmative and Jack Peterson and John Szarkowski defended the negative. Each team ended the day with a 3-2 record, a doubly impressive score since none of these debaters had ever been in an intercollegiate debate. This brought the society's total '63-'64 record to 17 wins and 11 losses.

The society's next tournament will be in two weeks when four debaters will travel to the annual UVM tournament. On Dec. 6 the society will appear in their most important tournament of the first semester when they travel to UNH for the second annual Yankee Conference tournament.

it's invisible, man!

It's *in*credible, *in*comparable, *in*fallible! Code 10 for men, the new kind of hairdressing from Colgate-Palmolive. The new *in*visible way to groom a man's hair all day. Non-greasy Code 10 disappears in your hair, gives it the clean, manly look that *in*flames women, *in*furiates *in*ferior men. Be in. Get the non-greasy hairdressing, Code10. It's *in*visible, man!

code 10 HAIR DRESSING FOR MEN



AMHERST Cinema
SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS
—NOW • 6:40, 9:00—
PAUL NEWMAN
JOANNE WOODWARD
A NEW KIND OF LOVE
TECHNICOLOR
THELMA RITTER EVA GABOR MAURICE CHEVALIER
—SUN., MON., TUES.—
Hitchcock's
'TO CATCH A THIEF'
Plus— "VERTIGO"

'Intimidation' Prompts Probe Of Md. Campus

FROSTBURG, Md. (CPS)—The Student Association of Frostburg State College has requested that the United States National Student Association (USNSA) conduct an immediate investigation of what was described as a "dire situation."

The Student Body, meeting in an all-school assembly last Wednesday, adopted a proclamation that charged intimidation of the students by the president of the college. Out of a total attendance of 1051, 1045 students supported the proclamation which charged that misuse of pressure was evident in recent dealing with the student body and was partially shown in these cases:

—Intimidation upon the office of Student Association president by the President of the College (the student was forced to resign as the result of being charged by the President with attempting to "filch a five cent ice cream cone.") —Intimidation of the student body as a whole to follow administrative policies without question as shown in the letter mailed to the student body during the past summer. These letters caused students to fear entering or returning to college because their attitudes and values were being dictated to them.

—The abuse of student's rights to free assembly and the ex post facto punishment of the demonstrators.

—The expulsion of students exercising their basic rights to free and open speech.

The proclamation concluded, "We feel that the pressure exerted upon the student body and the faculty and the resulting fear have definitely hampered our learning process."

1. What's the matter, no appetite?

I have more important things to think of than food.

2. Worried about exams, huh?

No, about getting old.

3. You're kidding?

Not at all. I've reached a milestone today. I'm 21. The days of my youth have flown.

4. You should be celebrating not brooding.

The age of responsibility is upon me.

5. How come you're not a member of the Drama Club?

Already my father's talking about my being "self-supporting." I see responsibilities all around me—wife, children, lawn, leaves.

6. Relax. You can let Living Insurance from Equitable take care of responsibilities. It can provide for your family, your mortgage, the kids' education ... even build a sizable retirement fund for you.

Say, this is good spaghetti.

For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For information about career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write to William E. Blevins, Employment Manager.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States

Home Office: 1285 Avenue of the Americas, New York 19, N.Y. ©1963

Margaret Hamlin Seen As Pioneer In Field Of Women's Placement

by TERRY STOCK

Margaret Pomeroy Hamlin, dynamic personality in the struggle for women's higher education, was born about 1883, the daughter of a beloved, highly respected Congregational Minister.

Miss Hamlin (right) with Mrs. Rich (left), present Hamlin Head of Residence.

Although a graduate of Smith College, Miss Hamlin became very interested in agriculture. In 1905 she became one of the first two women students at Massachusetts Agricultural College.

At this time Margaret became a friend of Miss Edna Skinner, who had introduced women students to M.A.C. and who was then Dean of Women and Dean of the School of Home Economics. These two individuals became pioneers in promoting women's higher education in practical fields, such as home economics and agriculture.

Taking a dedicated interest in her work, Miss Hamlin began to study the possibilities available for women in obtaining employment in these fields. Traveling throughout New England and Pennsylvania, she searched for homes in which the girls might live after being placed in jobs.

In 1918 she was asked by President Butterfield to become the "agricultural counselor for women". She developed this position until it encompassed the full activities of a Women's Placement Office. Because the number of girls attending college was small in those days, Miss Hamlin was able to visit each home in which she placed a girl, thus certain that the home would provide a valuable learning experience. Many girls still return to UMass. and speak of the great contribution Miss Hamlin made in enriching their lives.

Margaret Hamlin was a "character". She was an excellent horsewoman with a posture like a general, and continued to ride until she was well over 70 years old. Because there were no automobiles when she was a young woman, she often did her placement work on horseback.

Her wonderful sense of humor and warm personality greatly endeared her to those who knew her, and her loyalty to her friends was almost unique.

In her habits Miss Hamlin was extremely Puritanical. She dressed modestly and conservatively and absolutely disapproved of any use of liquor. Strictly religious, she was the loyal daughter of a minister father.

After her retirement in 1948 and until her death in 1962. Miss Hamlin resided on North East Street, Amherst, in the lovely old home willed to her by her father.

In the years before her death Miss Hamlin faithfully attended the Hamlin House U.N. teas. She spent many evenings telling of her experiences and was dearly loved by the girls of Hamlin, who will never forget the place Miss Margaret Pomeroy Hamlin forged for women in higher education.

The Folk Scene

Need For Pro. Folk Group Seen

by BOB WEBER

It is surprising that for a campus as large as ours, there aren't any serious, professionally orientated folksinging groups. There is a need for a group such as the Kingston Trio on this campus. In addition to getting enjoyment from it, a group could make money entertaining on campus, at house parties, etc. There are certainly enough people here who play guitar or sing, but yet no one has taken the initiative to start a group. If anyone is interested but doesn't know anyone else who is, drop a card to me, % the Collegian and I will try to put interested parties in touch with one another.

Those of you who are inclined to purchase records might listen to Ian and Sylvia's albumn entitled "Four Strong Winds". This duo has a pleasant sound combined with excellent accomplishments. They are helped out on guitar by John Herald of the Greenbriar Boys, who is one of the best flatpickers in the business. While usually doing traditional material from their native Canada and from America, they have included in this Vanguard album two of the prettiest songs that have been written in recent years. Both Ian's "Four Strong Winds" and Dylan's "Tomorrow is a Long Time" are done with a feeling that does justice to the sentiments expressed in both songs and make for excellent listening.

With the increased interest in folk music on college campuses, there is a simultaneous increase in the number of people wishing to play guitar and banjo. Most people learn from their friends, as I did, or take lessons. Here in Amherst, (to get a good old fashion plug in) lessons are given by the Amherst Folk Workshop. Teachers are local folksinger George Wier, Jon Weber, and I.

WMUA is still reluctant to program folk music during prime time. The Thursday night show has been switched to Tuesday at midnight. If all those who have expressed verbal opinions about programming during prime evening time would drop a note to the Program Director, WMUA, % Engineering Bld. then perhaps WMUA might realize the demand for folk music which exists on this campus.

Evaluation Of Electives Asked By UMass Critique

by JUDY DOYLE

Tomorrow from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the lobby of the Student Union, "Critique" staff members will be asking students to help determine which electives to evaluate and what information they would like to see included in the "Critique" questionnaire.

"Critique" is a new publication to be offered just prior to counseling day next semester. It will endeavor to help students choose electives outside of their major, presently a confusing task which involves little more than guesswork.

"Critique" will try to replace the usual vague "good" and "bad" epithets attributed to professors by friends or strangers with some concrete information in the form of an objective presentation of questionnaire results.

Critique's three-fold aim is:

1. To prove students really want good teaching.

2. to provide a source of information about courses best suited to needs and preferences of individual students.

3. to stimulate instructors to improve their method of teaching.

It is hoped that all students and professors will take the opportunity to express an opinion.

Preliminary Questionnaire

—Class . . .
—Major . . .
—Sex . . .
—Occupational Interest . . .
—What electives are you taking this semester? . . .
next semester? . . .
—Please list those traits, attitudes and teaching techniques:
1) which you have found particularly desirable in your professors . . .
2) which you have found to to be objectionable . . .
—Please list those elements pertaining to course content which turn out to be particularly relevant to your decision (for ex. scope, difficulty, etc.) . . .
—Suggestions and/or comments? . . .

Critique editor, Mark Cheren, again stressed the magazine's desire to see all applicants for positions on the staff at their Thursday night meetings at 7 p.m. in the Franklin Room of the S.U. Departments include: Questionnaire Construction, Publication, Publicity, Art, Finance-Advertising and Features.

A.I.C. Football

(Continued from page 8)

three yard line, a thirty yard scamper. John Schroeder scored on the next play on a qb keeper. Jerry Whelchel completed the scoring with his traditional PAT and the final score was attained: 42-0.

DURING THE CLOSING MINUTES OF THE GAME, we saw Redmen that we never knew existed. One of these obscure gentlemen, Joe Morris, ended the game with 47 yards in five carries, and he did all this in just a few moments of play. Phil DeRose lead the rushers with 51 yards in five tries. Jerry Whelchel was third among pedestrians with 41 yards in five tries. Dave Kelly had his troubles in the fourth quarter, every time he ripped off a nice long, clutch run, there was a penalty and the play would come back.

Terry Swanson showed an amazing amount of versatility as he kicked punts, kickoffs, returned punts, and ran the ball from scrimmage. His kickoff traveled all the way to the enemy goal line, his three punts averaged 37 yards (the endzone was in the way), he returned one punt 19 yards, and got 11 yards in three attempts.

Jerry Whelchel kept up the good work as he passed eleven times completing seven for 97 yards and two touchdowns. His legwork was good for 41 yards and his toe accounted for six consecutive PATs. On one play his ball handling was so superb that a defensive end went crushing over the line right at the quarterback but decided that Mike Ross was really the one to catch, so while this handy sherlock Holmes of the gridiron went charging after Mike, Jerry threw his pass in complete solitude. He now has scored 53 points to put him third in New England in scoring behind Bob Santonelli of Amherst and Jim Welsh of Springfield.

The defense which has distinguished itself by frequent shutouts and very low figures in the offense allowed columns. The Aces could only manage to grind (?) out 21 yards on the ground. Dick Kolodziey, who is usually an effective passer had a particularly poor day shown by his statistics. He tried 20 passes but was only able to connect five of them, as a matter of fact, he threw to the red shirts almost as much (four interceptions). All his aerial efforts were good for the unimposing total of 49 yards

FOR ALL THEIR UNPRODUCTIVENESS THE A.I.C. TEAM still deserves credit for never giving up. They were completely outclassed and the score kept mounting. Even through injuries they never stopped trying. It seems that the mere prospect of scoring is enough to keep some of our opponents in good spirits.

Intramural Playoffs

The intramural playoffs which were slated for last week were postponed due to inclement weather. Thus this week's revised playoff schedule will be played come rain, sleet, or snow in an effort to determine the campus champion who will meet the New Hampshire campus champion on Saturday morning.

—Photo by Darryl Fine

Versatile Terry Swanson puts stops on A.I.C. back as Rod Brooks and Dick Warren move in to help.

Varsity Football ...

(Continued from page 8)

Fusia can call on Swanson to boot the team out of trouble. This is one of the first years that UMass has had two such fine kickers. Last year most of the kick-offs went to about the opponents' 20 while the punting was no where near as effective as it is now.

On defense itself one of the important factors has been the ability of the defense to get the ball without a punt or points being scored. The defense has recovered 10 fumbles and intercepted 20 passes. Bob Ellis leads the latter category by pilfering 4 passes. What the figures roughly mean is that the Redmen have capitalized often on the opponents' mistakes.

As can be seen, the fine defensive record of this year's team is due to many factors. The ability of the offense to hold the ball, the fine kicking, recovering of fumbles, stealing passes, and fine play contributes to the great record achieved by the Redmen this year.

BITS AND PIECES; UMass won last Saturday's game by a 42-0 count and was rewarded by being dropped two places in the Lambert Trophy competition . . . For the second week in a row, the Redmen failed to win any positions on the ECAC team . . . This is indicative of the fine team performances recently . . . The seats are already coming down at Alumni Field for another year . . . The overcrowded conditions were really in evidence for three of the games, but not the last one . . . only about 3000 fans braved the elements to watch the game . . .

On the national scene, Texas survived still another close contest . . . This time Baylor was the victim, 7-0 . . . Another toughy on tap for the No. 1 rated Longhorns this week . . . Navy and Pitt still running 1 and 2 in the East . . . Lots of upsets Sat. . . . Miss. St. 13 Auburn 10, Michigan 14, Illinois 8, Penn St. 10, Ohio St. 7, Harvard 21, Princeton 7, and little Bowdoin 7, Maine 0 . . . Only Texas now remains undefeated and untied . . . Best games this week include: Yale-Princeton, Alabama-Georgia Tech, Army-Pitt, Duke-Navy, Illinois-Wisconsin, Texas-TCU, and UMass-UNH.

RENT A CAR
ECONO-CAR RENTAL SYSTEM
FEATURING CHRYSLER PRODUCTS
GAS INCLUDED
$3.99 PER 12 HRS.
Plus Small Mileage Charge
Springfield 785-5314
Northampton 584-7277
Greenfield 774-4443

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn
Breakfast — 50¢
Lunch — 50¢ up
THE OPEN HEARTH STEAKHOUSE
BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢
BRAD PARKER, Host

'PLAYBOY'
$5.50 Year (Reg. 7.50)
Send check or M.O. to:
PETER GUND
Box 418, Amherst, Mass.

Club '66
Is Coming

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Redmen Shutout A.I.C. 42-0

UMass Pushes Towards Possible Bowl Bid

THE AMERICAN INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE FOOTBALL TEAM came to Alumni Field short on ability, but long on nerve. They played the entire game like that, getting a good lesson in how to play ball control football.

The Redmen were playing at a disadvantage as the line had its weight advantage neutralized by the poor footing of the muddy field. The backs were also bothered by the mud as Ken Palm and Phil DeRose were noticeably hampered on their cutbacks. The Aces were delivered, to some extent, from their being dusteaters; as they became gourmets of mud.

UMass lost the toss and Milt Morin sent the opening kickoff sailing out of endzone. After a few plays Dick Kolodziey thew a pass which Bob Ellis turned into his fourth interception. Jerry Whelchel mixed up plays which were good for short yardage and a pass to Milt Morin brought the Redmen down to the A.I.C. seven yard line. Jerry then threw a scoring pass to halfback Ken Palm and kicked the PAT. The extra point was Whelchel's twenty-fourth of the season breaking the previous record.

THE ACES WERE UNABLE to move when they got the ensuing kickoff and Kolodziey was forced to punt from his own five yard line. After there downs, Terry Swanson punted into the Aces' endzone. A.I.C. was forced to punt after getting nowhere and a surprising defensive battle seemed to be shaping up. The defensive battle ended when Ken Palm tok Kolodziey's punt and returned it 64 yards for his second TD. After some sloppy play by both sides the Aces had the ball in UMass territory as the result of an interception by Kahn. The visitor's only threat got to the Redmen 32 before the drive stalled. Another short punting duel took place until the Redmen couldn't get a drive going after taking a Kolodziey's punt on their own thirty yard line. A key pass to Morin and fine running by Dick Warren and Bob Ellis kept the attack pressing. Whelchel bootlegged the ball and raced across for the score from nine yards out. His PAT was on target.

THE THIRD QUARTER saw the Aces' version of a defense really take a beating. The Redmen capitalized on an early third period fumble recovery by Paul Graham, with Whelchel passing to end Bob Meers on the six yard line and repeating the same maneuver on the next play for the score. The quarterback again exhibited machine-like precision at PAT making.

In a very little while Dick Warren gave the ball back to the home team with his interception of a Kolodziey pass and helpful return back to the A.I.C. 27 yard line. In four plays the Redmen were one touchdown richer. This one was a Schroeder to Bourdelais bomb. Whelchel took the first team out of retirement by coming off the bench to kick another point.

The hopelessly outclassed Aces fought gamely but were forced to punt after taking the kickoff. The kick bounced back towards the A.I.C. goal line before it was downed. Phil DeRose set up the score with a sweep around the left end which was good to the

(Continued on page 7)

—Photo by Darryl Fine

Phil DeRose takes off on thirty-yard scamper to set up last Redmen touchdown.

Harriers Fifth In Boston Meet; Brouillet Second Place

by GENE COLBURN

CAPTAIN BOB BROUILLET, with a second place finish, paced the varsity cross country team to a fifth place finish in the New England Intercollegiate Cross Country Championships on Monday at Franklin Park in Boston. Bob was defeated by his arch rival Jim Keefe of Central Connecticut. Keefe covered the 4.2 mile course in a time of 20:24 to defeat Digger by 13 seconds.

In winning this race, Keefe demonstrated why he is one of the best collegiate runners in the country. He knew that his only hope of beating Bob was to get a big lead and hang on, which was just what he did. Digger made the mistake of letting Keefe get away from him, and with 1½ miles to go Keefe had a 200 yard lead. He needed almost every inch of it. Running the last mile on guts alone, the Central Connecticut great managed to hang on as Brouillet made a valiant effort to catch him, as he cut the lead down to only 60 yards.

Brown made a shambles of the team race. The Bruins, paced by Dave Farley, scored an amazing low total of 42 points. YanCon champ Maine followed with 107, then came Providence (115), New Hampshire (126), and UMass (141). All of the Redmen turned in fine efforts. Bob Molvar was the second man for UMass. He took 28th place, and was followed by Gene Colburn (34), Tom Panke (35), Bob Ramsey (42), Bob Larson (66) and Al McPhail (70).

SATURDAY THE REDMEN WILL TRAVEL to New Hampshire to close out their dual season meet season. This meet will be the toughest of the year for the team as New Hampshire has shown constant improvement throughout the season. The Redmen only beat them by 7 points in the YanCon Championships, and lost to them by 15 on Monday.

Frosh Down UConn

THE UMASS FRESHMAN FOOTBALL team lead by Ray Johnson, who scored 15 points, picked up its second win of the season by downing the UConn frosh 27-6. The Little Redmen scored once in each period while the UConn frosh picked up their six points in the last quarter.

The scoring in the game went as follows. In the first period Johnson scored on a one yard plunge, and his extra point made it 7-0. In the second quarter, Johnson scored on a two yard run and his PAT made the score 14-0 at the half. Dick Benoit recovered a blocked punt in the third period and took it over for a TD. Johnson's extra point made it 21-0. In the last period Bruno Debiak picked up a fumble on the Conn. 15 and carried it into the endzone. The PAT try was no good and the score was 27-0. Zdanis scored UConn's only TD but the two point conversion try was no good leaving the final score 27-6.

Ski Instructors

Weekend positions available for skiers to instruct high school boys and girls. Prior instruction experience not required. Good compensation. Excellent ski facilities. Write or Call:

SHAKER VILLAGE SKI GROUP
P.O. Box 1149, Pittsfield, Mass.
Lebanon Springs (N.Y.) 7-1255

—FOR SALE—

1956 OLDSMOBILE CONV.

Good condition. Inquire:
Courtney Brickman, AL 6-6831

Defense Is Offensive Key Fine Kicking Has Helped

by JOHN GOODRICH

AROUND FOOTBALL CIRLES there is a saying that "The best defense is a good offense." This year's Redmen team is no exception to the rule. According to the most recent statistics UMass has outscored all opponents by a 217-10 margin. There is no doubting the quality of defense that the team has played this year. There is no doubt that it is the greatest. Yet almost hidden in the shadow of this fine effort is the steady improvement of the offense.

As coach Jack Delaney says, "The offense and the defense complement each other. Each helps the other out and neither is much good without the other." Delaney estimates that the team runs about 70 offensive plays during the game while the opponent through the work of the defense are only running aboht 50. This represents quite a difference and shows the point mentioned above. The defense holds the opponent so the offense runs more plays which in a way rests the defense so they will be prepared to hold the opponents next time around.

The running offense has been averaging about 225 yards per game, while the passing attack has garnered an average of 100 yds. per game. The defense in turn has held the opponents to a 143 total yardage per game, 88 passing and 55 rushing. This dominance has occurred through the ability of the team to run more plays and also the great improvement in the overall offense.

ANOTHER ASPECT that has attributed to the fine defense of the team has been the great kicking. Milt Morin has consistently been kicking off to the opponents goal line, which results in little or no runback. The defense then has the opponents with their backs to the wall and holds them right there. The fine punting of Terry Swanson has been instrumental in keeping the opponents well back in their own territory. Swanson has averaged almost 37 yards per kick. Most of the kickers around New England cannot even approach that figure. When Mass has been held in their own territory Coach Vic

(Continued on page 7)

LIBRARY
comp.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII, NO. 26 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1963

LIBRARY
NOV 19 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Journalist Shirer Lectures Monday

WILLIAM L. SHIRER, veteran foreign correspondent and author of "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," will lecture at the University on Monday, Nov. 18, at 8 p.m. in the S.U. ballroom.

Shirer will talk on "Secrets of the Third Reich."

SHIRER HAS long been recognized as a highly able reporter. He brings to his lectures a variety of personal experiences as journalist, radio commentator and author.

A native of Chicago, Shirer first went to Europe in 1925, shortly after graduating from Coe College. As a deskman with the Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune, Shirer worked with other well known newspapermen—including James Thurber, Elliot Paul and Vincent Shean.

THE YOUNG REPORTER was called back to the Tribune's home office, then sent off on a variety of assignments—Paris, London, Vienna, India, Eastern Europe, the Balkan countries, Berlin and Rome. In 1933, after a year's layoff in Spain, Shirer started his long, intimate association with Germany. He joined the Columbia Broadcasting System in 1937 and remained in Germany until the end of 1940. His famous "Berlin Diary" was published in 1941. The book was an immediate best seller.

Shirer followed the advancing Allied armies through France and Germany in 1944 and 1945. After the war he covered the birth of the United Nations and the 1948 Berlin blockade. His "'Midcentury Journey," published in 1950, was a Literary Guild selection.

TEN YEARS LATER, the monumental "Rise and Fall of the Third Reich" was published. Shirer had spent five and one-half years researching German documents and drawing on his own reporting for the book. It won the National Book Award, sold more than a million copies within a year, and was a Book-of-the-Month Club selection.

Shirer has received the George Foster Peabody award for his radio work and the Wendell Wilkie One World Award for his achievements in journalism. He is now a member of the Council of Foreign Relations and the Foreign Policy Association.

Playwright To Lecture On Ibsen

ONE OF IRELAND's most distinguished playwrights, Denis Johnston, will talk here Tuesday on "Henrik Ibsen, Playwright or Sociologist".

Johnston, now chairman of the Smith Department of Theatre and Speech, will deliver his talk on the Norwegian author of Ghosts at 8 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium. The talk is open to the public.

THE UNIVERSITY THEATRE lecture is part of a co-ordinated program culminating in the UT presentation of Ghosts next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 21. 22 and 23.

Johnson, a one-time director of the smash hit Finnigan's Wake, first came to the Pioneer Valley 13 years ago to substitute for Curtis Canfield of Amherst College. He then taught several years at Mt. Holyoke, moving into the chairmanship at Smith only two years ago.

THE SUBJECT of his talk is a question that can lead to a discussion of social drama, problem plays directed against conditions in society destructive of human welfare and happiness or Ibsen's place among modern dramatists.

Johnston is known as the author of such plays as The Old Lady Says No!, Moon on the

(Continued on page 4)

INDEX

Index Senior photos Dec. 2 and 3. Retakes and new portraits. Last scheduled appointments. New sittings require $2.50.

Proof returns Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 18 and 19 in the Index office. Return proofs personally.

Club '66 Boasts Frontier Girl On Las Vagas Night

FINALISTS FOR FRONTIER GIRL, who will reign over tomorrow night's Club '66 festivities. Left to right: Kathy Patten, Barbara Mendholson, Pat Bourbanais, Joan Ford, and Diane Klien.

The Student Union ballroom at the University of Massachusetts will resemble a toned-down Nevada gambling casino tomorrow night—courtesy of the Mass sophomore class.

The sophomores hit on the idea of Las Vegas Night to provide an evening of solid fun and to raise money for the Campus Chest, an annual charity drive at UMass. Admission charge to the Club '66 is 75 cents.

For the 75-cent charge, the sophomores are offering guests a (soft drink) cocktail bar, and gambling tables for craps, roulette and blackjack. In addition, there will be professional entertainment from New York—a magician, singer, comedian, and combo.

Festivities are scheduled to start at 7 p.m. and last until midnight. Everyone is invited to join the sophomore class in the festivities.

Nominations are being taken now for a frontier girl to reign as queen of Las Vegas Night.

Students and faculty members will staff the sophomores' casino. The club will be complete with dealers at gambling tables, waiters, waitresses, cigarette girls, moneychangers, and even a few bouncers. All will be garbed in appropriate costumes. Play money will be used.

The ballroom will be decorated for the night with furnishings sent from the Sands Hotel, the Golden Nugget and Harold's Club, all of Las Vegas.

PACKAGE DEAL OFFERED

GE College Bowl Finalists Chosen

by DAVE HARACZ

IN A MEETING of College Bowl candidates Thursday morning, Dr. Albert Madeira, team coach, announced the members of the UMass team which will go up against either Ripon College or Wooster College over nationwide television on November 24.

They are: Mike Berrini '66, Bill Landis '65, Dave Mathieson '64, and Susan Tracy '65. During the meeting, the members of the team selected Landis as their captain.

TO SUPPORT the four in their efforts in New York, it is expected that approximately 100 students will attend the live performance in Radio City. Tickets, which will be part of a package including both the admission to the quiz show and the bus ticket to New York, will go on sale Monday morning in the RSO office at $2.50 each. The low price is made possible by an appropriation made by the senate Wednesday to provide one or two busses for student transportation in the hope that the team will have support during the show. The buses will leave the UMass campus at about 10 a.m. Sunday morning and return at about 11 p.m. the same day.

Dr. Madeira also announced that the College Bowl team will practice against the semi-finalists in public this Monday, November 18, in the SU Ballroom from 7 to 7:30 p.m., just before the Distinguished Visitors Program presents William L. Shirer's lecture. The practice will be aired at that time over WMUA, and plans also call for a performance over WTTT in Amherst at some time before the show.

AS THE TIME left before the show narrows, the team mem-

(Continued on page 4)

THE G.E. COLLEGE BOWL TEAM—Left to right: Sue Tracy, David Mathieson, Bill Landis and Mike Berrini faces its practice opposition of Jim Crawford, Mike Hench, Sandy Graham and Jeff Davidow, as team coach Albert Madeira looks on.

International Club Educators Hold Meeting

The New England region of the National Association of Foreign Student Advisors is holding its annual conference today and Saturday here at the University.

One hundred to 150 educators are expected to attend the conference, to be held for the first time at UMass.

The meeting will open Friday evening with dinner. Chairman Robert Potash of the history department, foreign student advisor at the University, and Provost Gilbert L. Woodside, will greet the guests.

Smith College President Thomas C. Mendenhall will speak on "The University's Commitment to International Education."

Following dinner the delegates will be guests at a reception arranged by the International Club.

Saturday's program includes four conference sessions dealing with orientation programs for foreign students, some case histories, admissions procedures, and developing local community programs.

Harry P. Kerr, assistant professor of public speaking at Harvard University, will be chairman at the conference's princi-

(Continued on page 5)

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

The Collegian Bogeyman

"We're afraid to go in the Collegian Office." So said the sorority girls to a Collegian staff member. Why were they afraid? Because it's anti-Greek they said. Images rise to our mind of an office full of demonic monsters eagerly awaiting unsuspecting Greeks whom they can pounce upon.

It is time that this fallacy was cleared up.

The Collegian is not anti-Greek.

The Collegian news pages have always been objective in their presentation of fraternity news and have allotted much space to Greek social events.

The individual criticism offered on the editorial pages have always atempted to be constructive. We feel it unfortunate that, in their present state of affairs, the Greeks have become so sensitive that many feel that any comment whatsoever concerning their system unnecessary and overly critical.

For those who still feel there are not enough Greeks on the staff and that there are a lack of Greek editorials on the pages there is also an answer. The Collegian is open for those who wish to join. If Greeks want editorials they are welcome to join the staff and write them . . . up to now they have not.

Constructive criticism whether one agrees with it or not, does not imply destructive discrimination. We hope this is realized. J.B.C.-J.S.D.

A Conservative View

About This "Liberal View"

by RICK CASS

To A.M.

In your letter of November 6 you stated a definition of Conservatism as such: "a disposition in politics to preserve what is established; a political philosophy based on traditions, stressing established institutions." This is a good definition as far as it goes, but it stops far short of defining an active method of thought. As I see it, Conservatism is, in truth, progressive. The word progressive does not need to imply new institutions, but better, true progress under old. There is nothing wrong with established institutions in this country, (those established before the great white father, F.D.R., anyway) that a correction of present perversions will not alleviate.

As to your statement, "It involves, in reality a negativistic psychological attitude developed by those who already 'have' the social and material satisfactions desired by all people," I admit that all people desire these satisfactions. But only few will earn them. Only few desire them enough to work for these values. Although these social and material benefits are there for the earning, they are not our inherent rights. We do not have the right to have for the mere price of existing.

There are absolute values which our present institutions embody—those of freedom, justice, and opportunity. The fact that some in our society have not this freedom is due, in the largest part, to the failure to enforce our major "conservative" institution—our Constitution.

Barney Childs Poetry And Music

by LANGDON F. LOMBARD

Bartlett Auditorium was over one-quarter full on Wednesday, November 13, to witness the reading of poetry of Barney Childs by the poet and the playing of some of his compcsitions by campus artists and artists from New York and Hartford.

The main concern of the poetry was that there has been a change in our lives. Some told about a change in academics with an emphasis in the frivolity of the higher persuits thereof while others discussed events more personal to the poet.

There were six pieces performed during the second half of the program, five of which were for solo instruments —one being with narrator.

The other piece, Take Five, written before the other famous work of the same name, was a chance piece. That is each of the five performers, playing any five instruments, was given cards with directions on what they were to perform. Any instrument could be given any set of cards thus providing for a different performance each time.

The validity of such music and the poetry upon one hearing was questioned at first but with the realization that an innovator, whether he be scientist, poet, or musician must experiment with new combinations of old forms or even new or unrecognized forms if he is to contribute to the mental, social, spiritual, or economic betterment of mankind, the music could be better appreciated.

Letters To The Editor

In Defense Of The Greek System

Dear J.S.D.,

It is at this time that I would like to recognize you on an outstanding editorial, in last Friday's Collegian, "Fraternities or Social Clubs," for buffoonery. Your delightful article provided myself and a few of my friends with the first bit of humor truly appreciated by us this year.

The fraternity system's "prime function and future justification for existence" is not "the social facilities they possess." College males do not pledge fraternities solely for the social facilities they possess. A brotherhood of college men bound together through the Greek system dwells deeper than a brick structure and a fancy party room. College men unite in fraternal colonies due to similar interests and desires. A brotherhood revolves around its members, sharing the joys and fears of everyday life, experiencing the frustrations of a poor exam or the thrill of a victorious football team. It is an organization in which members help one another academically and socially. It is an opportunity to learn parliamentary procedure, to hold an important office, to share responsibility, and to construct loyalties and friendships which will be bound for life. Fraternal life is an experience within itself much more unique and intricate than a "social club."

Fraternities at U. Mass. are open throughout the year for rushing by interested college men. The U. Mass. chapters welcome interested men in the system and more than enccurages interest on the undergraduate level. Many U. Mass. houses are in need of more brothers due to expansion and the yearly loss of Senior brothers. Your statement "the fraternities have failed to keep pace with the growing University" is completely erroneous and false showing no forethought or research on your part.

One of the fundations the Greek system is based on, is unity—a fundamental and significant element binding a brotherhood together into a cohesive and harmonious group. I am sorry to say that when present fraternity houses are enlarged to "200 to 300" men all you have gained is an unwieldy dormitory.

Fraternities have existed efficiently in America for about 150 years now based on their present membership, and I believe the system still has a "few" years left before complete oblivion. So, your proposal may not be "a wild visionary scheme," but it is utterly impractical and absurd.

John Bade

Fraternities And Brotherhood

Dear Mr. Editor,

In recent issues of the Collegian there has appeared a series of editorials concerning the Greek system. In the most recent of these, the writer displays a great lack of familiarity with the fraternity system and its basic ideals. In this article, the author states that in order to survive each house must become a social club consisting of two to three hundred members.

This change would destroy the very foundations of the Greek system. A fraternity is not primarily a place to procure better food, a place to sleep, or a place to bring a date on weekends. It is an institution made up of persons who have a common desire for a close association based on fraternal brotherhood. How do you expect this bond of brotherhood to survive in an organization so large that it would be a task in itself to know the names of all its members?

Granted, the Greek system is not perfect; but its problems cannot be solved by destroying the system. I suggest that in order for the Greek system to meet the demands of a growing university the number of individual houses be increased. As an advocate of the fraternity system, I deplore the reduction of the fraternity to a mere social club. By expanding the Greek system so would we strengthen it, and in so doing benefits the entire university.

It is quite evident from the author's statements that he has failed to look at both sides of the question. It is also quite obvious that the author is not a fraternity member because he fails to comprehend the fraternal bond of brotherhood. I further suggest that in the future the author restrict his editorials to those subjects on which he can speak with knowledge and understanding.

Ronald George '67

Ed. Note: We respect Mr. George's and Mr. Bade's opinions concerning the fraternity system, and we solicit other student opinion in regards to fraternities in general, and the revamping of the UMass Greek system into a series of social clubs as suggested in last Friday's editorial.

WMUA

To the Editor:

Freshmen!

Remember that finger pointing at you, "WMUA wants you!"

Don't believe it. WMUA needs no one, rather WMUA uses anyone. Confused? I was too when I first realized that our campus station is unfortunately run, or rather overrun, by its several officers. Sure they want you. They want you to sit in front of a mike and say what they want, do what they want, act as they want. Too bad, isn't it, that the powers that be have to attend classes for otherwise they could broadcast all of the shows and thereby would not have to cope with a difficult staff who, I think, would like to express themselves as personalities rather than the personalities of the several officers of the stations.

What do the students of the University want? I think that they want the broadcasters to show their own individuality as much as possible. I don't think that the students want announcers who say, "The next record will be, . . . will be, . . . will be . . ." Anyone with a smooth and clear voice can do that. How do you feel about it?

S.A. '67

Curfews

To the Editor:

I thought you might be interested in a little experience that befell me the other night. I am a senior woman, by the way. Well, that means I have a 12 o'clock curfew—so to speak. Anyway, at 11:03 I came "home" expecting to be admitted to my dorm sweet dorm. The door was locked fast, so I peered in. Counselors were still milling around the center. I thought my request modest enough. However, unbeknownst to me a great conspiracy had been fabricated in my absence. My gentle wave to the counselor inside was answered by the terse statement that I must either come in at 12 or be marked late.

Soil my unblemished record? Never!

With stern resolution I faced the night. Well now, shall I go to the Drake or Rahar's? Since it wasn't peanut night, I decided to sit it out. I didn't mind the rain much. After all, it was for the best interests of everyone concerned.

At last I have found an answer to the long-debated question of the campus. Why are there curfews? Why, to keep one out, why else?

D.S. '64

Musicale

Sunday, Nov. 17 — Beethoven: Sym. No. 9 in Minor, Op. 125, "Choral" (Koussevitzky/BSO), Ravel: Daphnis et Chloe Suite No. 2 (Koussevitzky/BSO), Beethoven: Sym. No. 8 in F, Op. 93 (Koussevitzky/BSO)

Monday, Nov. 18 — De Falla: Fantasia Betica (deLarrocha); Lalo: Symphonie Espagnole, Op. 21 (Francescatti/Mitropoulos/NYP); Chabrier: Espana Rhapsody (Ormandy); De Falla: Nights in the Gardens of Spain: (Casadesus/Mitropoules/NYO); Revneltas: Janitzio and others (Kurtz/Columbia Sym.); Ravel: Bolero (Ormandy)

Tuesday, Nov. 19 — Schubert: Sym. No. 9 in C (Walter/Columbia Sym); Chopin: Sonata No. 3 in B Minor, Op. 58 (Brailowsky); Rachmaninoff: Isle of the Dead (Reiner); Mozart: Divertimento No. 14 in B-Flat, K. 270 (Philadelphia Woodwind Quintet)

Wednesday, Nov. 20 — Dvorak: Sym. No. 4 in G Major (Walter/Columbia Sym.); Vaughn Williams: Fantasia on Greensleeves (Fiedler/Boston Pops); Brahms: Tragic Overture Walter/NYP) Wagner: Parsifal (Stokowsky); J C Bach: Sinfonia for Double Orch in D Major (Ormandy); Strauss: Blue danube and Vienna Woods Waltzes (Ormandy)

Thursday, Nov. 21 — Chopin: Scherzo in B-Flat Minor, Op. 31 No. 2 (Horowitz); Prokofiev: Sonata No. 1 in F Minor for Violin and Piano (Oistakh); Schumann: Symphonic Etudes, Op. 13 (Graffman); R. Strauss; Domestic Symphony, Op. 53 (Reiner/Chicago Sym.)

Campus Cartoon Contest

For the next four weeks the Arts and Music Committee will be sponsoring a cartoon contest for all students wishing to turn their talent into profits. The contest will run for three weeks with one winner receiving a $5.00 prize each week, and on the fourth week there will be a run off between the three winners, who will each submit another entry, based on a given theme, for a Grand Prize of $25.00 Judged on the basis of wit, art, and subtlety, the cartoons will be judged by Mr. Cecil E. Cody of the History Department, Mr. Gerald J. Grady of the Government Department, and Mr. Carl I. Belz of the Art Department.

Rules are as follows:

1. Current events theme
2. Black & white drawings only
3. 9 x 12 paper
4. Name on separate piece of paper
5. Deadline: 12 noon, Thursday of each week
6. Leave entries in R.S.O. office
7. Winners may not re-enter

Judging will be purely impartial since the judges will only know the number of each picture and not the artists name. The Arts and Music Committee will keep a private list of all names the pictures, and the judges will submit only a winning number to the committee. Weekly winners will be announced, and posted, along with the other entries, in the Student Union Lobby on Sunday of each week until Thursday at 12 noon, the next deadline.

DATES FOR THE CONTEST:

DEADLINE #1; Thursday, November 21 at NOON

DEADLINE #2; Thursday, December 5, at NOON

DEADLINE #3; Thursday, December 12 at NOON

Weekly winners will compete for the $25.00 prize on December 17 and the Grand Winner will be announced on December 18 at noon.

You'll never know if you could have won unless you enter, so enter now! THE MONEY IS WAITING.

Movie With Schweitzer And Tom Dooley To Be Shown

The movie "People to People" with Eddie Albert and Peggy Lee, and also featuring Dr. Albert Schweitzer, the late Dr. Tom Dooley, India's Prime Minister Nehru, and the "Child whose name is All Children" in Korea, Hong Kong, Africa and India, will be shown at the Wesley Foundation meeting to be held at the Wesley Methodist Church, Sunday at 6 p.m.

The movie is to be shown in conjuction with a sacrificial meal not unlike the meal that countless millions subsist on across the world. The cost of the meal is to be $1.00, all of which will be turned over to the Meals for Millions project.

All students are invited to attend, with the understanding that International Students will be guests for the evening and will not be asked to pay the $1.00. Plans are to have students from various countries sit with American students to share in a personal way the needs that may exist in their own country.

College Bowl ...

(Continued from page 1)

bers will continue to practice and receive last-minute intruction from faculty volunteers in the various fields in which they are most likely to be questioned.

If the UMass team is successful against their first opponent, either Ripon College of Ripon, Wisconsin, or Wooster College of Wooster, Ohio, the school will be the recipient of a $1500 scholarship. The losing team receives a $500 scholarship.

STUDENT BLOOD DONORS

Students who signed up to give blood will receive their appointment cards in the mail beginning today. Any student, under 21, who has signed up and has not received an appointment but thinks his parents have given permission to donate should inquire at the Red Cross registration desk on Monday.

Registration forms are still available at the lobby counter for all students over 21 who have not as yet signed up but would like to do so. "Walk-in" student donors will also be accepted during the hours the bloodmobile is in operation next week.

Linus Says:

Tm. Reg. U. S. Pat Off.—All rights reserved
Copr. 1958 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Give the Pint You Pledged!

Turntable Topics

by SHERRY SPEAR

New Hampshire is a heck of a walk for a football game but WMUA has a solution: dial Bob Healy at 1:25 this Saturday for the last game of the 1963 season as the undefeated Redmen battle the University of New Hampshire.

FOLK FUN: In an interview filled with enough tomfoolery to make an ethnic folk singer shave off his beard, Tom and Dick Smothers revealed another facet of themselves in a session of candid comments with Pete Greenwood, DJ of "Standing Room Only". Hear their views on folk singers and their own zany careers that started with a lucky break, this Saturday from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m.

EDUCATIONAL BLOCK: If you're bent and frazzled from wearing a path to the library and you take English 25, 26 or History 5, WMUA has a surprise for you. Each week, Pam Leger, coordinator of the "Education Block" will bring you a series of lectures by professors in the four college area as supplements to these courses. This Sunday hear "Interaction" (History 5) at 7:30 p.m.

WORLD WHIRL: Unlike Phileas Fogg, Mary Louise Apelian, Hostess of WMUA's "Around the World": never leaves the studio as the world comes to her through our foreign students at UMass. Mary, a foreign student from Egypt, is welcoming Francine Abadie of France (of at the French Corridor, Arnold House.) For a wavelength whirl through Paris with such artists as Edith Piaf warbling "Milord" and that fascinating Yves Montand, join Mary this Thursday from 7-8 p.m. If you are a foreign student who would like to tell WMUA's listeners about your country and

(Continued on column 5)

LIBERAL ARTS

ALL DEGREE LEVELS

- Analytic Research
- Language Program
- Computer Programming
- Mathematics
- Statistics

ALL ACADEMIC MAJORS

Training in Specialized Techniques are Provided by NSA

Liberal Arts Majors (except mathematicians) are required to take the

PROFESSIONAL QUALIFICATION TEST

given on

7 December, 1963

Applications for test MUST BE IN NOT LATER THAN 22 NOVEMBER.

See your COLLEGE PLACEMENT OFFICER now for a Test Bulletin containing further details. Since no test is required for math majors, they should contact their college placement officer for an interview with an NSA representative.

National Security Agency

WASHINGTON D.C. AREA

An Equal Opportunity Employer

SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS

AMHERST Cinema

NOW — 6:40 - 9:00 Sat. 4:40 - 7:00 - 9:20

PAUL NEWMAN
JOANNE WOODWARD

in MELVILLE SHAVELSON'S production of
A NEW KIND OF LOVE
TECHNICOLOR®

—SUN., MON., TUES. For 3 Days Only—

ALFRED HITCHCOCK'S FANTASTIC WORLD OF SUSPENSE-ROMANCE!

CARY GRANT and GRACE KELLY in ALFRED HITCHCOCK'S TO CATCH A THIEF TECHNICOLOR®

and

JAMES STEWART · KIM NOVAK in ALFRED HITCHCOCK'S VERTIGO TECHNICOLOR®
A PARAMOUNT RELEASE

Work Goes On To Prepare For The Upcoming Ghosts

Terry Wells, Technical Director of University Theatre; Pat Long '65; and Orville Larsen, Scene Designer for UT, are shown working on sets for the upcoming production of Ghosts. This drama, so noted for its attention to detail, will require a full-box-type set, with ceiling. Careful attention is being paid to obtaining period furniture for the set.

Tickets for the play, which goes onstage next Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings in Bowker Auditorium, will be on sale Monday through Friday at the SU ticket counter 11 to 1 and 2 to 4 daily. They will also be available at the box office.

Annual Fashion Show Tonite; Door Prize Will Be Awarded

Fashions from the House of Walsh, Margaret Nelson's, and Ann August will highlight the Annual Fashion Show to be held tonight, October 15th at 8:00 P.M. in the Student Union Ballroom sponsored by the Special Events Committee. After a series of interviews, the following models were chosen: Maggie Wenzel, Roxanne Gile, Alice Doering, Jan Simmons, Judi Furnans, Glenda Stockwell, Barbara Reese, Viola Albertson, Pam Solvati, Joyce Silanski, Angela Klormann, Marilyn Singer, Sam Yokel, Dan Ostrow, Linda Bodweli.

Harriet Wechler, Adrienne Gual, Pat Meehan, Ellie Stang and Judi Wilcox. Miss Linda Muscawitz, a junior majoring in retaining, will act as commentator. An Avon Gift Set will be offered as a door prize. Members of the Special Events Committee will be selling tickets at $.25 per person.

GHOSTS

Continued from page 1

Yellow River, The Golden Cuckoo, and others. He is also a noted authority on the subject of Jonathan Swift and a lively promoter of James Joyce.

AN EXAMPLE of four-college cooperation, Johnston is one of the drama editors of the Massachusetts Review, a four college publication stemming from editorial offices at UMass.

Tickets for Ghosts will be on sale at the SU ticket counter starting Monday, from 11-1 and 2-4 daily.

'Gush' Gushue Featured At Music Hour

Very well known to anyone who frequents the Cape Cod Lounge is Harold "Gush" Gushue at the organ. This Sunday from 3-5 o'clock under the auspices of the Arts and Music Committee, "Gush" will be playing both the accordion and organ.

He will present improvisations, jazz, and also a "sing along" of old favorites. His repertoire at the accordion will include "Tea for Two" and an original interpretation of "Lady of Spain."

Summer Study In Europe Offered By Michigan State

For most American college students, summer is a time of either gainful employment or uninterrupted leisure. But for the approximately 250 students who will participate in Michigan State University's AMLEC program, the summer of 1964 will be a time of language study and travel in Europe.

AMLEC, the American Language and Education Center, cooperates with a non-profit Swiss foundation to offer college students an inexpensive opportunity to study Spanish, German, French and Italian, while immersed in the culture and daily life of the countries in which these languages are spoken.

During the summer of 1963, 243 students, representing 64 American colleges and universities, participated in this MSU program. They spent six weeks studying language and culture, and then traveled for three more weeks before returning.

F. J. Mortimore, AMLEC director, reports that, "American university students are perhaps the best goodwill ambassadors this country can send abroad.

Commenting on the educational benefits for American students attending the program, Mortimore observed that "the students returning with me from Europe were a great deal more sophisticated than the students whom I had taken to Europe only nine weeks earlier."

Further information regarding this MSU summer language program can be obtained by writing AMLEC, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: LEO BERARD

Leo Berard (B.S.M.E., 1957) joined New England Telephone in the fall of 1960 and, within months, was put in charge of an important study to determine the feasibility of large-scale buried cable operations in Rhode Island.

Developing standards and practices where few previously existed, Leo presented his final reports before top-level management, engineering groups, municipal planners, and Chambers of Commerce throughout Rhode Island.

His initiative in carrying out the study and his ability to capably represent his company are just two of the traits that earned Leo his promotion to Engineer in the Plant Extension Department.

Leo Berard, like many young engineers, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.

BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES

DEERFIELD
Drive-In
ROUTES 5 & 10
S. Deerfield, Mass.

—FRI., SAT., SUN.—

—ALSO—

Show begins at 7:30
Feature first on Sunday

UMass Coeds To Attend Ad Conference

On Saturday, November 16th the 7th Annual Advertising Career Conference sponsored by the Advertising Women of New York will be held in the Hotel Commoidore, New York City. Beverly Carlson '64, Donna Schell '64, Roberta Papalia '64, Helen Forsberg '65, and Miss Edith V. Antunes, Placement Officer for Women will attend the conference.

Hillel
DELI-SUPPER
Lecture:
'Jews of Latin America'
by Prof. Robert Potash
SUNDAY, NOV. 17 — 5:30
Commonwealth Room (S.U.)
Members 50¢ Non-members $1

Dr. Hogan Of English Dept. To Make Drama Field Trip

On Saurday, Nov. 16, Dr. F. T. Hogan of the English Department will conduct a field trip in the drama. Mrs. Hogan and a group of fifty will spend the entire day in New York City allowing students to visit art museums, colleges and universities, publishing houses, and general points of interest in the theatre world.

The highlight of the trip will be a matinee performance at a Broadway theatre. Among the plays to be seen are John Osborne's Luther and Jean Anouilh's The Rehearsal—both new to Broadway this fall.

Some of the group will view last year's dramatic hit Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? by Edward Albee. The trip has with been organized in conjunction the English 85-90 courses in the Modern Drama. Saturday's excursion will mark the third consecutive year. Dr. Hogan has offered this opportunity to her students.

Pakistani Leader To Speak At Local Church

The Rev. John Samuel, Executive Secretary of the Student Christian Movement of Pakistan will be the guest speaker at the Wesley Methodist Church on Sunday, November 17 at the 9:30 and 11:00 worship hours. Mr. Samuel is on a one year tour of the United States interpreting the role and work of the church and the future of Christianity in Southeast Asia.

International students from Southeast Asia, India and the Far East are particularly invited to share in the services and visit with Mr. Samuel during the coffee period between the services.

(Continued on page 6)

Super-abundance Of Camp Jobs Available Now

There will be plenty of camp counselor jobs available next summer but if you want to be sure you get the right one apply early. Now is the time to do it.

That is the advice of the New York State Employment Service to college students.

Jobs on all levels are listed at the State Employment Service for boys', girls', co-ed and hotel camps, and local day camps. Most of the resident jobs are in the mountain and lake areas of the Middle Atlantic and New England States.

While the greatest demand is for good all-around general counselors, specialists are needed in athletics, drama, dance, arts and crafts, music, nature study, photography and other fields.

Applicants must be currently attending college and have some group leadership experience, even on a volunteer basis. Leadership potential is a valuable asset. Specialists must have good training in their particular skill and good ability to direct groups. Organizational camps prefer students or graduates with social science, social work or teacher training.

Students interested in resident or New York City area day camp jobs are urged to apply in person or by mail during the Christmas holidays or shortly thereafter to the Camp Unit of the New York State Employment Service Professional Placement Center, 444 Madison Avenue, New York 22, N.Y. Copies of a descriptive pamphlet, "What is a Camp Counselor?", may aiso be obtained here.

University Opens New Course With Appointment Of Theologian

MR. THOMAS R. FRAZIER

The United Christian Foundation at the University of Massachusetts has begun a new approach to the teaching of religion on the campus with the appointment of Mr. Thomas R. Frazier as resident theologian. Mr. Frazier is directing the teaching of non-credit courses in religion to undergraduates for the Protestant chaplains council and is seeking to develop courses and seminars for graduate students. Interested faculty members will be invited to participate in seminars or colloquia on religious subjects. Mr. Frazier is also available to any student organziation which might want to use his services.

The resident theologian's work is not to be restricted to the campus. He is teaching in the schools developed by the Laymen's Academy (LAOS) and is available to local church groups for teaching and speaking.

Mr. Frazier is a native of Dallas, Texas. He has a B.A. from Baylor University, an M.A. in history from Southern Methodist University, and B.D. from Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary. He is a candidate for the Ph.D. degree in religion and society from the joint program of Columbia University and Union Theological Seminary in New York City. As a graduate student at Union he served for two years as tutor-assistant in Christian ethics, one year as tutor in homiletics, and as class assistant in sociology of religion. While in New York City, Mr. Frazier also served as supervisor of youth work at the Riverside Church for one year and as assistant director of the university program of that church for three years.

Registrar Calls Attention To Auto Insurance

Roland H. Parker, Legal Advisor to the Registrar, has called to the attention of the University the fact that all out-of-state students who own cars must have insurance. In his notice, Mr. Parker said that out-of-state vehicles are allowed only "thirty days in the aggregate in any one year," and that all policies or certificates of policy must be carried in the car. Any vehicle that is not properly insured is regarded as unregistered after the thirty day limit is up.

Turntable Topics . . .

(Continued from page 3)

it's music, contact Mary at AL 6-6907.

SPEAR HEARS: It's Beethoven's Ninth Symphony on "Musicale" this week. Sunday at 8 p.m. You'll float back to the Music Shed at Tanglewood, where this recording was made under the able direction of Serge Koussevitzky. For a rare treat, next week, an airing of the original 78 rpm discs recorded by Felix Weingartner and the Vienna Symphony Orchestra.

JAZZ: Jazz may be America's only original art form but other countries aren't far behind. Sunday at 10 p.m. join Ron Engel on "The Art of Jazz" for an hour of jazz from our northern neighbor, Canada.

Class Gift

Seniors, suggestion boxes are still located in the lobby of the Student Union and just outside the Hatch for suggestions for the Senior class gift.

All choices will be considered by the Senior Class Gift Committee in their selection.

Eye Glasses Of All Types
Carry Frames of All Popular American Companies and Selective Imports
Shatter-Proof Lenses Processed in our own Lab
RAPID REPAIRS and REPLACEMENTS
"DON" CALL — Optician
56 Main Street :: Amherst

LADIES, YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO ATTEND THE BRIGHT FASHION SHOW TONIGHT AT THE UNION BALLROOM, STARTING AT 8:00 P.M.
WALSH'S IS PROUD TO BE PART OF THIS STYLE SHOW AND WILL BE FEATURING THE SMARTEST IN: SUITS • DRESSES • SWEATERS SLACKS • ACCESSORIES and SKI WEAR FROM OUR NEW SKI SHOP.
House of Walsh
—FOR THE FINEST IN LADIES' AND MEN'S FURNISHINGS—

Integrity — Service
Friendly Advice
ART RUGGLES'
SKI SHOP
17 High Street
GREENFIELD, MASS.
Ski Coach, Deerfield Academy
OPEN EVENINGS TO 9 P.M.
PHONE 774-4855

Hootenanny
with
HILLSIDE SINGERS
JOHN SYNNOTT
Friday, Nov. 15 — W.P.E.
8:00 p.m.
Admission 50¢
—All Invited to Play—

Now is the time to prepare yourself for the onslaught of WINTER
Act today and be prepared for tomorrow
Keep your feet warm and dry with WINTER BOOTS
from Bolles
Free Tote-Bag with every pair
BOLLES SHOE STORE
Amherst Center

U. of M. Charms
Trophies
Giftware
Keepsake Diamonds
Clocks
Watch Repair
Free Engraving & Soldering on any purchase made at:
SHERMAN JEWELERS
FOR THE PERSONAL TOUCH!
164 Main St., Northampton, Mass.
JU 4-4022

Tryouts For Production Of Othello By RD's

When Professor Cosmo Catalano opens auditions for roles in Othello work will have begun on the production of a play which will be performed twenty-eight years to the day when it was first seen on this campus.

Othello was first presented to the Massachusetts State College community on March 6 & 7, 1936 by the Roister-Doister Dramatic Society. Directed by Professor Frank Prentice Rand, the production employed the technique of double casting which permits a different actor to play different roles in alternate performances. Mr. Catalano quietly admitted that he would be delighted if the cast he is able to assemble turns out to be equally versatile as that of the first production.

Othello, described by A. C. Bradley, in his lectures on Shakespearean Tragedy as "Shakespear's . . . most painfully exciting" play has roles for fifteen men and three women."

Believing as Bradley does that Othello's race has "no importance in regards to the essentials of his character" "but that it does make a difference to our idea of him," Mr. Catalano commented that he is particularly interested in auditioning Negro men for the leading role.

Tryouts open to all students of the university will be held in Bartlett Hall on November 18, 19, 20, from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Reverend Samuel . . .

(Continued from page 5)

The Rev. Mr. Samuel is a native of the village of Stuntzabad, and completed his education in the Leonard Theological Seminary in Japalpur, India. In the past several years he has also been director of an ecumenical work camp in West Pakistan and a delegate to the East Asia Christian Conference in Madras, and the Life and Mission of the Church Conference in Bangalore.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semetser
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m

Spielman Presides At Chicago

Dean Arless A. Spielman of the College of Agriculture and chairman of the division of agriculture of the Association of State Universities, presided at the general meeting of the division during the association's annual session in Chicago Nov. 10-13.

As division chairman, Dean Spielman was responsible for arranging the meeting program. The program theme was "Changing State Universities," dealing wtih the implications for Colleges of Agriculture, Agricultural Experiment Stations and Cooperative Extension Services.

Membership in the Association of State Universities includes top officials and administrators from state universities in 50 states and Puerto Rico.

Dr. Spielman also represents the division of agriculture in the Senate of the association. As a committee member, he also will participate in meetings of the State Experiment Station committee on Organization and Policy.

Hillside Singers Hilite WoPE Hootenanny Tonite

Having appeared in concert with Bonnie Dobson and the Charles River Valley Boys, The Hillside Singers will star with John Synnott in presenting the first hootenanny on the UMass campus tonight. Both The Hillside Singers and Synnott have played in numerous coffee-houses in the Boston area, and Synnott recently appeared in the Providence College Intercollegiate Folk Festival, being one of ten chosen out of New England to perform.

Any interested folk artist wishing to perform need only appear and each will be allowed to join in the performance. The hootennany, sponsored by Lambda Chi Alpha, will be held in the Women's Physical Education Building starting at 8 p.m. Because of the care given the floor of the gymnasium, blankets will be used for seating purposes. Admission will be 50¢ per person.

CLUB DIRECTORY

ACCOUNTING ASSOCIATION
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 19, at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U. The talk will be "Date Processing Systems." All are invited.

AMHERST STAMP CLUB
Students are invited to attend the monthly meetings, held in room 103 of the PHB. Also, on Fri., Nov. 15, at 7:30 p.m., Mr. Aldred Mathieson will conduct an auction of philatelic material. A program and exhibition of stamps on the theme "What's in a Name?" will be presented by the ladies of the club. All are welcome.

CANTERBURY ASSOCIATION
There will be a supper meeting on Sun., Nov. 17, at 6 p.m. at Grace Church. Meet at "768" at 5:45 p.m. The talk will be "A Religionless Christianity and the New Morality."

CHESS CLUB
There will be a chess match vs. A.I.C. on Sat., Nov. 13 in the Council Chambers of the S.U. All are invited to attend. Anyone interested in representing the University may attend the club meeting on Wed., Nov. 20, in the Franklin room of the S.U. or may contact Richard Strange, 218 Gorman, or Lewis Roberts, 316 Plymouth on or before Nov. 20.

EDWARDS FELLOWSHIP
Meeting on Sun., Nov. 17, at First Congregational Church. Supper is at 6. Rides leave Hills and Arnold at 5:45 p.m. Dr. Lewis Mudge will speak.

FOOD DISTRIBUTION CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 19, at 8 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. All are welcome to attend.

GERMAN CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 19, at 7 p.m. in the Norfolk room of the S.U. Come prepared to discuss "Studentenfreiheit auf die Universitaeten."

GRADUATE NEWMAN CLUB
All grad students and faculty are invited to attend a speech on Sun., Nov. 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the Newman Center. Prof. Gagnon will speak on "Radical Catholicism in France."

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
The fourth in a series of lectures entitled "Christ and Man's Quest for Life" will be held on Fri., Nov. 15, at 7 p.m. in the Plymouth room of the S.U. Rev. Desterhaft of Turner's Falls is the speaker. All are welcome.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Transportation to the Spencer Abbey will leave the church at 1 p.m. on Sun., Nov. 17. After the trip an informal supper meeting will be held at the church.

MASS. ARCHAEOLOGICAL SOCIETY
Organizational meeting on Wed., Nov. 20, at 7:30 p.m. in E37 Machmer. Anyone interested in the pre-history of the Western Massachusetts area is invited to attend.

ORTHODOX CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 19, at 6:30 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. Refreshments. All are welcome.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 19, at 8 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. The talk will be "The Range of Social Work Careers." All are welcome to attend.

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 19, at 8 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. Members are requested to bring any "patch" designs they would like considered.

S.U. DANCE COMMITTEE
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 19, at 11 a.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. Agenda: Thanksgiving Dance.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE
Tryouts for the next production, Othello, will be held on Nov. 18, 19, and 20 from 4:30-6 p.m. in 125 Bartlett. Scripts are available in 387 Bartlett. The cast has roles for 15 men and 3 women. Also, all those interested in a theatre trip to New York on the weekend of May 1, 1964, should sign up in 387 Bartlett.

VARSITY SKI TEAM
Meeting of candidates for the team will be on Thurs., Nov. 21, at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U.

WESLEY FOUNDATION
On Sun., Nov. 17, the program will be "Food for Millions." A sample supper featuring a protein additive will be served at 6 p.m. for $.99 at the Wesley Methodist Church.

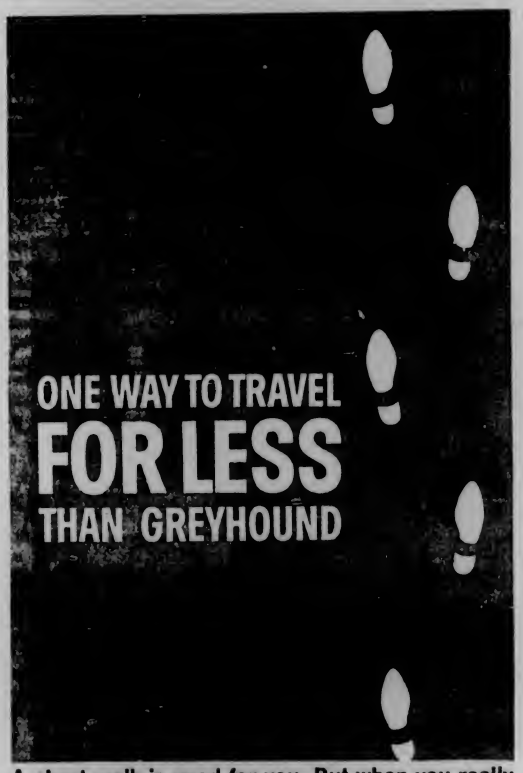
ZOOLOGY CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Nov. 19, in 138 Morrill. The talk will be Histology and Histochemistry." Refreshments.

International Club . . .

Continued from page 1

pal session, scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday.

Saturday's luncheon speaker, Weston M. Jenks, Jr., of Boston College, will give a report on the association's activities. Jenks is chairman of the New England regional association.



A short walk is good for you. But when you really want to travel you can't beat Greyhound for going places at lowest cost. In fact Greyhound costs less than trains, planes or driving yourself. For economy, GO GREYHOUND . . . AND LEAVE THE DRIVING TO US.

No other form of public transportation has fares so low. For example:

(Round Trip) SPRINGFIELD to:

New York City	$ 8.50	Washington, D.C.	22.60
Albany, N.Y.	6.30	Buffalo, N.Y.	22.05
Burlington, Vt.	13.60	Richmond, Va.	28.55
		Chicago Ill.	52.40

CALL ---
GREYHOUND BUS TERMINAL
50 Worthington St. SPRINGFIELD, MASS. RE 6-8331

BAGGAGE: You can take more with you on a Greyhound. If you prefer send laundry or extra baggage on ahead by Greyhound Package Express. It's there in hours and costs you less.

GO GREYHOUND
...and leave the driving to us

MUTUAL
FOR STUDENT NEEDS

Zenith Radio	Sports Goods
Alarm Clocks	Tools
Curtain Rods	Gifts
Window Shades	Extension Cords
Window Screens	Bulbs
Towel Bars	Clothes Racks

MUTUAL Plumbing & Heating Co.
63 S. Pleasant Amherst

Varsity And Frosh Teams

Redmen Harriers Face Wildcats

by GENE COLBURN

THE VARSITY CROSS COUNTRY TEAM will close out its dual meet season Saturday when it travels to New Hampshire to take on the Wildcats. The Redmen will carry a season's mark of 7-2 into the meet, and it is anyone's guess as to who will be the winner. The teams have met twice already this year, and each has come away with 1 victory. UMass. beat New Hampshire by 7 points in the Yan Cons. and lost to them by 15 points in the New Englands.

As the meet is run in the vicinity of the football field, it will give those people who go to the football game a chance to see the greatest cross country runner in UMass. history. Captain Bob "Digger" Brouillet has rewritten all the UMass. record books, and has set many a course record. In his 4 years of competition Bob has compiled an amazing record of 18 firsts, 4 seconds, 2 thirds, and 1 fifth. So far this year he has a record of 7 firsts and 1 second. Following the meet Saturday, Bob will travel to the IC4A's in New York on Monday. He will then set another record of sorts one week later when he'll become the first runner in UMass. history to travel out to the National Collegiate Cross-country Championships in Michigan.

Aside from the possibility of improving on their record, Saturday's meet will also decide whether or not the rest of the team will travel to New York for the IC4A's. Normally the Redmen would not make the trip because it is usually considered necessary for a team to finish in the top four of the New Englands to qualify for the trip. However, Coach Footrick feels that the two teams are so closely matched that if the Redmen can win Saturday they will deserve to make the trip.

THE CROSS - COUNTRY TEAM HAS QUALIFIED for this trip the last three years, and wants to make it again. It will take a top effort on everyone's part for the Redmen to win though.

CREW

Anyone interested in forming a crew team should contact Bob Ford, 420 Baker. Leave name, class, address, and phone number.

SKI TEAM

There will be an organizational meeting of the Ski Team, Thursday, Nov. 21 at 7:00, in the Middlesex Room of the Student Union. All interested persons are invited to attend.

THE ALPS...made in Italy by FABIANO

Handmade Imported Boots for the Outdoor Man and Woman...

Vibram Lug Soles. Ideal for Rock Climbing and Hiking. Padded Quarters and Tongue. Women—5 to 11 Narrow and Medium Men—6 to 14 Narrow, 6 to 12 Large (Size 13 and 14 $3.00 Extra).

STYLE #107

$24.95 Plus Postage

Write for Free Brochure

Fabiano Shoe Co., Inc.
Dept. MC, South Station
Boston 10, Mass.

DRAKE'S
The Village Inn

Breakfast — 50¢
Lunch — 50¢ up

THE OPEN HEARTH STEAKHOUSE

BONELESS SIRLOIN
Potato, Roll, Salad $1.49

Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Friday, 4-7
STEAMED CLAMS 6 for 10¢

BRAD PARKER, Host

by JOHN POTASKY

THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRESHMAN HARRIERS are looking forward to this Saturday's dual meet with the vastly improved New Hampshire runners. The little Redmen will be after their second victory of the season. After a close loss to the Coast Guard Academy in the first meet of the year, the frosh runners have not been able to produce a strong enough effort to bring about victory. The harriers have only been able to defeat the University of Rhode Island Rams.

A lack of depth has been the main reason for the poor showing of the frosh. Bob St. Clair has been the only steady runner this fall. He took the individual honors in the Coast Guard meet and hasn't been far from the front runners in all the rest. Each meet has produced a fine effort from one or more of the harriers, but the boys just haven't been able to group their fine showings.

On Veteran's Day the freshmen competed in the New England Cross Country Championships. Coach Justin Cobb only entered four of his runners and thus the University did not compile a point score to figure in the running for team honors. The meet was easily won by the speedsters from Providence College. The Friars definitely are the class of New England and possibly of the Northeast. The Providence team easily defeated the UM frosh last month. The junior Friars weren't able to walk away with all the honors on this rainy Monday. John McKlussick of Bates took home the individual title as he was never headed during the whole race. McKlussick covered the rain spattered 4.2 mile course in near record time. Under the adverse conditions, his running ability really stood out. He was never troubled by the rain.

THE UNIVERSITY'S BEST SHOWING was a forty first place finish by Peter Thoms. He is one of the most improved runners on the squad. Coach Cobb has been very pleased with his efforts in the past few dual meets.

Saturday's meet in Durham may tell the story of next years varsity. Graduation will take the leading varsity harriers, including the best ever at UMass, Bob Brouillet. This years freshmen will be the ones to replace those who will graduate. Here's hoping that the frosh will be able to fill the present varsity's shoes.

Football ...

(Continued from page 8)

be senior tackles Paul Graham, Bruce Jordon, and Sam Tombarelli. Also closing out their stints will be guard Bob Tedoldi, halfback Mike Dineen, and fullback-linebacker Dick Warren. Paul Graham and Dick Warren are the co-captains.

CLUB '66

IS HERE!!

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Redmen Face Wildcats

Undefeated Season At Stake

by KEVIN COYLE

THIS SATURDAY, AT DURHAM, the University of Massachusetts football team will close out its season against a team which seems to stick in its memory. They will play the same University of New Hampshire football team that beat them on a fourth period field goal, and won the Yankee Conference crown last year.

This year they cannot take the YanCon title away from UMass but, they could ruin the first perfect season by a Redmen club in its history. UNH Coach Chief Boston seems to be playing it "cool" however by saying that he is hoping for bad weather (Boston Record). It is questionable however if a coach who is just getting his star quarterback at top efficiency is really so timid, he had good reason to be timid last year and was not noticed with a crying towel after the game.

The same Chief Boston states that his team is not going to use any radical plays. He invited anybody who has time and his health to kill to come out to the Wildcat practice field and watch his boys sweat. Their workouts have been hampered by a heavy fog which has made him cancel pass practice because of lack of visibility. We have received un-verified information however, about a formation which uses two split ends, a slotback, and a wingback which leaves the fullback as the only setback.

SAYS CHIEF BOSTON "Of course we'll add a few wrinkles to our offense but if you mean radical spreads formations, we won't show anything new. We have a sound offiense and if we block, we can move the ball." He also said that the two starters who were injured against Springfield, last Saturday, would be ready for the UMass game. They are Dave Federowicz and Dan Serieka, who is one of the top halfbacks in New England.

THE STATISTICS SHOW quarterback Jerry Whelchel leading the pack in both passing and running. He has rushed for 284 yards in seventy-four attempts and has completed 45 out of 74 for a pass completion percentage of .608 for five touchdowns. He also leads the team in scoring with fifty-six points, this is good enough to place him third in New England. His able understudy, John Schroeder, has thrown 25 times and completed 15 for a completion mark of .600. His tosses have been good for 188 yards and three touchdowns.

Mike Ross is second as a rusher with 262 yards in 46 tries for the very respectable average of 5.7 yards per carry. He is followed by Ken Palm, Dick Warren, and Phil DeRose in that order.

The two big sophomore ends Bob Meers and Milt Morin lead the pass receivers by a substantial margin. Bob has 19 receptions which are good for 276 yards and two touchdowns. Close behind is Milt Morin with 14 catches for 283 yards and three scores.

THIS GAME WILL BE THE LAST GAME of the season for both teams barring the possibility of a UMass bowl bid. Closing out their varsity careers will

(Continued on page 7)

Campus Champions To Face UNH Team

by DAVE GARBER

The Intramural season reached its end last night with the Wheeler Dormitory Trojans downing the Chemical Engineers to win the UMass championship and the right to clash with the University of New Hampshire campus champion on Saturday morning.

Wednesday night found the Chemical Engineers eliminating K.S. 21-18, while Wheeler put the brake on Chadbourne 13-1-2.

The Chemical Engineers and K.S. each scored three touchdowns, as the difference proved to be the one point conversion. The Chemical Engineers scored behind Baird Mayeski, and Campbell and followed through on all three conversion points to compile their 21 points. K.S. scored on touchdowns by John Morgan, Berington, and Rod Corey and then failed to get any of the extra points. Final score Chem. Eng. 21 K.S. 18.

The extra point again proved to be the winning margin in the Wheeler - Chadbourne game. Wheeler scored on touchdowns by Maguire and O'Donnell and was successful on one extra point, while Chadbourne scored touchdowns by Holland and Larry, but failed on both extra points. Final score Wheeler 13 Chadbourne 12.

UMass won the inter-campus trophy last year and at a recent interview at a local Amherst establishment the Wheeler men vowed they they would keep the trophy in Amherst.

—Photo by Darryl Fine

BOB TEDOLDI slows down A.I.C. QB Kolodziey as PETE PIETZ closes in for the kill.

DRAKE'S VILLAGE INN
New Open Hearth
Try Our
• Breakfast at 50c from 7 a.m.
• Luncheon - Dinner from 11 a.m. til 11 p.m.
STEAK SANDWICH & SALAD 99c
HAMBURG 50c HOT PASTRAMI 75c
☆ OUR EVER-AVAILABLE SPECIAL ☆
Boneless Sirloin Steak, Pot., Salad, Roll, $1.49

1964
CALENDAR PADS
and
DIARIES
A. J. Hastings
INC.
Newsdealer & Stationer
So. Pleasant Street — Amherst

College Studio
Portraits of Distinction
SPECIALS
3 - 5 x 7
PORTRAITS
for $7.50
Sufficient Amount of Proofs Taken
DO NOT MISS THIS OPPORTUNITY
Vocational & Passport Pictures
FINISHED IN 24 HOURS
Hours— 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.
16 Belmont Ave. (Off Green St.)
NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
Call JU 4-2824

Gymnastic Clinic To Be Held

THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS will host the New England Gymnastic Clinic on November 29, 30 and December 1 in the Women's Physical Education Building. The clinic is open to the public and is designed to offer instruction to teachers, coaches, and participants on all levels of ability.

There will be many outstanding teachers and coaches from the Northeastern United States on the teaching staff. Serving as master teachers will be Vincent D'Auterio, White Plains, N.Y. and Mrs. Martha Gable, Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. D'Auterio is a two-time Olympic gymnast, an international judge, and an outstanding teacher of gymnastics. Mrs. Gable is a former National level performer and is presently one of the country's foremost judges of women's gymnastics.

Mrs. Gable has judged in every Olympic games since the London games in 1948. She will conduct the judging course for women, and will assist with the advanced instruction.

Other top notch personnel on the staff are; Milan Trnka, women's gymnastics coach at Westchester State College; Richard Aronson, Needham Public schools; Robert James, University of Massachusetts; Walter Johnson and Irvin Schmid, Springfield College; and Jeffrey Cardinali, former Springfield College standout and member of the U.S. Olympic Squad.

SPECIAL EVENTS ARE: a session on elementary school gymnastics taught by professor Leslie J. Judd, who was coach of the Springfield College Exhibition team for 30 years; and classes in the three phases of dance as applied to gymnastics, modern ballet, and acrobatic.

Events open to the public are: a pre-high school and high school level meet on Friday November 29 at 7 p.m., and the New England Gymnastic Clinic Championship on Sunday, December 1 at 1 p.m. There will be an admission charge of $.75 for adults and $.50 for students through high school.

Ski Instructors
Weekend positions available for skiers to instruct high school boys and girls. Prior instruction experience not required. Good compensation. Excellent ski facilities. Write or Call:
SHAKER VILLAGE SKI GROUP
P.O. Box 1149, Pittsfield, Mass.
Lebanon Springs (N.Y.) 7-1255

—FOR SALE—
1956 OLDSMOBILE CONV.
Good condition. Inquire:
Courtney Brickman, AL 6-6831

Quality Fruit Store
Amity Street
The Little Store Near the Theater

LIBRARY

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

LIBRARY
DEC 12 1963
UNIVERSITY
MASSACHUSETTS

VOL. XCIII, NO. 27 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1963

Yamasaki Out; State Fails To Reply

Woodside Resigns Takes Federal Post

DR. GILBERT L. WOODSIDE

DR. GILBERT L. Woodside, Provost of the University of Massachusetts, will take a major scientific post with the federal government, it was announced Saturday by President John W. Lederle.

Dr. Woodside will join the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (NICHD) as Assistant to the Director for Scientific Program Planning and Development. He will take up his new duties in Bethesda, Maryland on Dec. 30, 1963.

THE NICHD is the new Institute of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's National Institutes of Health, and began operations this year. The objectives of the growing Institute parallel the research career of Dr. Woodside. He has done extensive work in embryology, and during his sabbatical

(Continued on page 5)

Background Key To Shirer's Career

William L. Shirer, internationally famous foreign correspondent and author of the long run #1 best-seller, "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," is scheduled to speak tonight in the S.U. Ballroom at 8 p.m.

Born in Chicago, he moved to Cedar Rapids, Iowa on the death of his father in 1913, remaining there until his graduation from Coe College in 1925. Early in high school, Shirer abandoned the idea of becoming a locomotive engineer and gradually determined to become a journalist and, if possible later, a writer. Significantly, he failed to make the high school paper, his

(Continued on page 6)

WILLIAM L. SHIRER
Speaking

UM College Bowl Foe Decided

It will be the Ripon College Team that UMass will have to face on next Sunday's GE College Bowl. The Ripon squad, showing more strength than it has in previous weeks, beat the College of Wooster foursome 290 to 210. Students are reminded that a limited number of combination tickets for buses and admission to the show are on sale in the RSO office.

The UMass squad and its on-campus opposition will be meeting in battle tonight in the SU Ballroom at 7 p.m., before the DVP program.

Arts Building Loses Designer Despite University's Warnings

by ELWIN McNAMARA, Collegian News Editor

THE NEW fine arts building at the University will not be designed by Minoru Yamasaki because of alleged "boondoggling" in the Beacon Hill office of the Commission of Administration and Finance.

In a letter to that office, dated November 7, the world famous architect stated that he would not be able to take the contract "because of a heavy work load."

HOWEVER, according to unimpeachable sources in both faculty and administration, Yamasaki dropped the contract because of "foot dragging."

It was revealed that Yamasaki gave October 1 as the date the contract for the design should be signed. When the contract went unsigned, Yamasaki gave the Commonwealth a two week extension, yet at the end of this time, the contract was still unsigned. A faculty member asserts that the contract sat on a desk in the Commission's office for more than a month.

Horace M. Chase, director of the Bureau of Building Construction told the Collegian that "there never was a contract." However, administration sources closest to the situation stated that such a situation was "inconceivable." They further elaberated, stating that the designer was on campus at the beginning of the Summer, and at the time seemed well disposed toward the contract for the building.

Lederle 'Disappointed'

PRESIDENT JOHN W. LEDERLE, when asked for a statement, said only that he is "personally disappointed" that Yamasaki will not be designing the building. The president spoke of the "unique qualities" of such a building, and stated that the choice of Yamasaki by the Trustees was a realization of these qualities.

John Haigis, a member of the Board of Trustees, and chairman of the committee on buildings and grounds had "no comment" when contacted.

HOWEVER, He did state that never, in the history of the University, has an architect from out of state designed a building here. He pointed out that while the Trustees can recommend an architect, the ultimate decision rests with the Commissioner of Administration and Finance—William Waldron.

Foot Dragging?

He further stated that the appointment of Yamasaki was approved by Waldron's predecessor in the Volpe administration. When asked if the "best way to stop an appointment of an architect is foot dragging", Haigis replied "no comment."

IN LATER conferences with the administration, it was brought out that many at the University realized that timing was a necessity in securing Yamasaki, and cautioned Beacon Hill accordingly. Sources further stated that as October began, "timing was getting tight." They went on saying that the delay on the part of the commission may cause "serious questions" to be raised about the whole procedure.

Rumors have been circulating since the story broke, that the Massachusetts Crime Commission will be called in to investigate.

TRUSTEE HAIGIS
'No Comment'

PRESIDENT LEDERLE
'Disappointed'

Mark Of Yamasaki Progress, Innovation

MINORU YAMASAKI, a native American of Japanese descent, has produced outstanding designs for such advanced structures as the Behavioral Sciences Building at Harvard, and the School of International Affairs at Princeton.

Planner of the Conservatory of Music at Oberlin College, Yamasaki received the American Institute of Architects' First Honor for his work on the McGregor Memorial Community Center at Wayne University in Detroit. He also took the A.I.A.'s top honor for his planning of the St. Louis Air Terminal in St. Louis, Mo.

HE IS probably best known for his design of the U.S. Science Pavilion at the Seattle World's Fair. The soaring arches of the Pavilion have become a familiar feature to millions through pictures published through the world.

Known for his success in keeping the costs of construction down, the Detroit architect has the reputation of an innovator in the use of materials that provide great strength at low cost.

Counciling Day

Tuesday, December 3rd, has been set aside as Counseling Day. No Holiday, this day is specifically designed to allow Adviser and student adequate time for consultation and preregistration for the next semester. Thought and care on this date promote an effortless and speedy registration in January.

Many schools and departments are making special arrangements. Students are advised to check departmental bulletin boards for particulars prior to that date.

Arts Building Major Step For Culture

THE FINE Arts Building, called by President Lederle "a major advance for our students in a vital area of cultural and educational activity" will be placed at the south end of the pond, straddling the present Ellis Drive.

The building, to be constructed at a cost of $6,000,000 will be located in the center of campus where it will serve as a focal point in University life and a major attraction for visitors.

IT WILL have specialized facilities for work in painting, sculpture and design, as well as those for teaching and productions in dramatic art.

The art gallery will house the collection presently being acquired by the University.

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

God Save The Commonwealth Of Massachusetts

In the midst of efforts by the University to end the "late" grotesque" period in UMass architecture, comes the news that we have lost Yamasaki.

A building is a work of art. It reflects the personality of the creator and of the purchaser. A distinctive building reflects the soul of a city or a university as its great men reflect its mind. The Fine Arts Center would have been the University of Massachusetts as Big Ben is London, St. Mark's is Venice, and the Rotunda is the University of Virginia.

We will probably still have a Fine Arts Center. But if certain individuals in the State House adhere to the "custom" of apointing local architects (the word "kickback" has been mentioned in knowledgeable circles), we will probably be treated to another Machmer, which spit in two shortly before competition, or Bartlett, cracks and all.

After a few telephone calls and interviews with people who should know, we have come to the conclusion that someone is not patricularly anxious to come to terms with Mr. Yamasaki. It is not President Lederle and the Board of Trustees, nor the Legislature. Perhaps the difficulty lies somewhere else in the huge pork barrel with the gold lid, complacently squatting on top of Beacon Hill?

An unimpeachable source says that it would be very unusual if there had not been on the desk of the Commissioner of Finance and Administration, a paper of some sort for his signature, which would have concluded an agreement with Yamasaki. Another source tells us that this alleged paper sat on the desk of the commissioner for a good three weeks, in violation of the deadline Mr. Yamasaki requested.

Yet that same afternoon Mr. Horace M. Chase, director of Building Construction for the Commonwealth, told us that "There was at no time any agreement, verbal or otherwise . . . and never anything on Commissioner Waldron's desk for signing."

Commenting on the above statement, one of our sources stated, "If this were so, then I have been misinformed for a long time." This man is not usually misinformed.

We believe that the loss of Yamasaki represents either a case of monumental stupidity or . . . we won't say it. Just ask yourself what the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is famous for besides beans and cod. Elected representatives get censured in the General Court for mentioning this, but the people know.

Our conclusion is that this situation should be investigated and the responsible party or parties named and dealt with accordingly.

Don't Forget Your Bloodmoblie Appointment

Life-Sustaining Liquid

Blood from a Red Cross Regional Center sustains life for a patient while doctors perform a chest operation. Along with the skill of the surgeon and the anaesthetist, blood is essential to the success of surgery today.

Mass Review

To the Editor:

The Massachusetts Review is a quarterly of literature, art and public affairs. It is an independent magazine published with the aid of Mt. Holyoke College, Smith, Amherst College and the University of Massachusetts. Its office is on the University campus, and the Board of Editors is composed of faculty members from the three colleges and the University. The Review is read abroad as well as throughout the United States. It has been warmly praised by writers, artists and teachers. To encourage student interest we offer a special subscription rate of $4.00 a year to undergraduates and graduate students.

Curfews Reply

Dear D.S.,

What hallowed and revered position do you hold on campus that you obviously were exempt from taking the annual handbook exam, and still are unaware of a rule that is in its second year of existence? We say "obviously" because the question of curfews for different classes is a standard one on the handbook exam and appears faithfully year after year.

Last year the senior wommen were grateful for the innovation of a 12 o'clock curfew with the stipulation that they either come in at or before 11 p.m. or between 11:45 p.m. and 12 midnight. It would seem apparent that the reasoning behind this privilege is based on the idea that senior women should be granted a later curfew than underclass women. It is also apparent that if counselors were to remain on duty until 12 midnight to allow senior women to enter the dormitory, they would be doing this for one or two people in some cases, because of the small number of senior women living in the dormitories. Thus, the compromise was reached: the "late libe girl," who would be on paid duty at this time, could let the senior women in.

Now that the maturity of the senior women has been established and acknowledged, it seems that the novelty of the privilege has somewhat diminished and last year's attitude of joyous receptance has been replaced by one of unthinking demand.

Ignorance is the basis of all musunderstanding. This misconstruance of a rule could easily have been avoided by attendance at a corridor meeting rather than taking the drastic action of using the powerful media of the press to gain individual attention. J.L. & P. B. '64

WMUA

The Strike-Back

Dear Editor:

In answer to the letter published in Friday's issue of the Collegian, I have only one question. Does "S.A. '67" take that sort of myopic view of everything that he (or she) encounters? I think that it is fairly obvious that one can not sit before a microphone and simply air his (or her) petty whims and personal beliefs. Besides, student announcers do have a measurable amount of freedom of the air. Those who air the different musical programs ("Shoes Off," "Musicale," "Art of Jazz" etc.) are free to chose those songs which they think most of. Also, they are able to make comments as regard the quality of the recording, the effectiveness of a certain conductor and other views of that nature. Obviously "S.A. '67" feels that he (or she) should be able to say, "Harry Belafonte is a king-sized Schmoe." This is not the case. "S.A. '67" has a lot to learn.

Michael Girouard
Announcer, WMUA

Dear Editors,

As a recent arrival to the staff of WMUA, I found myself confused by the obvious contradiction between what I know and what I read in the Friday, Nov. 15, edition of the Collegian. To my knowledge, there is none of this "bossism" of the executive station members. To those unaware, there are specific F.C.C. regulatives as to station broadcasting times and station identification which everyone must observe. The person sitting behind the microphone is only charged with following these regulations, station policies, which everyone must abide by and his own good taste and discretion.

WMUA is run by students who donate their time and energy so the UMass student body will have a radio station. I contend this was an unjustified attack with the intention to smear the name and reputation of WMUA.

Sincerely,
Sherry Spear '67

The Massachusetts Collegian

MEMBER

Editor-in-Chief:	Jeffrey Davidow '65
Editorial Editor:	John B. Childs '64
Assoc. Editorial Editor:	George Masselam
News Editor:	Elwin McNamara '64
Photography Editor:	Mary Roche
Sports Editor:	Scott Freedland '66
Business Manager:	Courtney Brickman '64
News Makeup Editor:	James Schmalz '65
Feature Editor:	David Axelrod '65

Advertising Manager: Ted Weinberg
Staff: Roy Blitzer, John Darack, Al Kadish, Jeff Gale
Subscription Manager: Marty Rosendorf
Business Co-ordinator: Ingrid Krohn

NEWS

Sunday Rewrite: Jackie Beauvais, Rita Cerutti, Elaine Corsi
Tuesday Rewrite: Marilyn Rosen, Sally Shea, Marcia Sutherland
Thursday Rewrite: Harold Gushue, Karen Shelley
Assignment: Nancy Devlin, Judy Doyle

Reporters:
Ann Baxter, Ken Berk, Joe Bradley, Steve Curtis, Mike Dymeraki, Nancy Fogg, Dave Haracz, Don Johnson, Steve Levine, Ann Miller, Lee Mullane, Russell Murphy, Mary Norton, Ethan O'Brien, Kathleen Osterberg, Linda Paul, Oleh Pawluk, Lois Skolnick, Joan St. Laurent, Leo Stanlake, Terry Stock

Feature: Don Johnson, Pat Long, Carol Lufkin, Anne Pincess, Michael Herrini, Edna Bleshley, Doris Peltonen, Jay Isgur, Oleh Pawluk, Bob Weber, Roguire Malone, Harold Gushe, Linda Vanonen, Ethan O'Brien, Margaret Vanderlurgh, Andrew Dolnin, Doris Peltonen

Makeup: Michael Rothschild, Robert Martin, Michael Stone, Selig Adler, Richard Cuniff

PHOTOGRAPHY

Mary Roche, Andi Beauchemin, Darryl Fine, Bill Green, Don Willoughby, Jan Baker, Nina Pearlmutter, Elaine Maitzman, Harvey Stone

Sports Staff: Dan Gosband, Bruce Krasker, Nick Pappas, Ben Barclay, Marshall Karol, Mike Mendelson, Mark Natsupsky, Gene Colburn, John Goodrich, Robert Healy, Dave Garber, Helen Forsberg, Kevin Coyle

EDITORIAL

Marc Cheren, Marcia Elasowith, Sandra Burlingome, Mike Herch, Dave Harez, Rick Cass, Ron Aliferis, Joan Shustra, Steve Orlen, Sam Gorvine, James Cortese, Joe Dolan, Elwin McNamara, David Axelrod, George Masselam

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

Editorial Page

THE PARIAH

In The Cutthroat World

by JAMES R. CRAWFORD

Life would be simple if everyone got what he wanted or was rewarded in proportion to his work. It seems self-evident that life isn't like that. But the notion that the poor are poor because they lack initiative remains a dogma of conservative politics.

In the cutthroat world of capitalism, initiative is seldom enough for success. In our highly specialized world, the successful man needs intense training in his field, and more and more, such training has come to mean a college degree. College, in turn, means money. Of course, the outstandingly gifted pupils have access to scholarship funds, but what about the kid who, with the same amount of ability as the broad mass of college students, doesn't have similar financial resources? Do we forget about him? How many students on this campus wouldn't be here if our government ignored their financial problems? A substantial number, I would wager.

What about the kid who has to quit school at 16, because has family needs the financial support he can give them? Does he lack initiative? What about the Negro, or Catholic, or Jew, or what-have-you who finds training and ability aren't the criteria applied when he tries to get that very special position? What about the poor kid who can give no references except his insolvent and therefore unreliable family and neighbors?

Finally, what kind of initiative does a life of shabby clothes, little food, and no money produce? I think the sociologists can answer that better than I. But I know a lot of kids from the "bad" sections of Boston who feel that, because they don't "know somebody," don't have any money to make money, or can never get the proper training, their cause is lost. And without federal aid to education, aid to dependent children, or such programs, it very often is.

In short, if our capitalistic society is going to develop the abilities needed for survival in the "cold war," it is going to have to borrow, in meaningful quantity, from its supposed enemy, socialism. Is there anything horrible about the government's displaying a little initiative of its own?

LETTER

On the Conservative View

Once again the able conservative spokesman, Mr. Cass, in his latest editorial has attempted to explain to the average college student the benefits of the conservative political philosophy. He states, "Conservatism is in truth progressive." Mr. Cass, I agree that technically defined, conservatism could be progressive. However as you emphasized in this editorial concernnig the conservative science, what is defined is in actuality often not the case. Such is the problem concerning "progressive conservatism".

The leaders of the conservative movement in America today, particularly Senator Goldwater, have rationalized your definition, and have failed in an attempt to show the American people conservatism of a notable progressive nature. Mr. Goldwater's rational views have led him to, one, oppose ratification of the nuclear test ban treaty; two, oppose any form of a big four summit conference; and thirdly, oppose federal aid to education.

So, as you see Mr. Cass, the American people are not concerned with technical definition. They want results, results like "the great White Father," former President Roosevelt, a definite liberal, gave the people of the Depression. Progressive con-

(Continued on page 5)

A Myth Of Evil

by DON ALIFERIS

Since the beginning of organized society mankind has created many sociological myths by which to live. Among the most tragic of these is the theory of competition. (In truth, a philosophy exculpating the continuance of the jungle law, survival of the fittest, from the struggle—necessitated times of prehistoric man, into the modern life of today's pseudo-civilized societies.)

This myth has permeated into all phases of our American society. Nowhere is it more openly avowed, and nowhere are its effects more obvious. In the United States the social, political and economic organization is completely oriented around the idea of competition. Consequently, the values of our society are materialistically centered. In almost every aspect of living the individual in America is pressured into making conflict part of his nature. He is indoctrinated from childhood in the "glories of private enterprise" (the most savage example of competition) in the necessity of having the best clothes, the biggest car and the most beautiful home; he is taught an ambition which is like hunger, knowing no law accept its appetite.

Those who would defend and panegyrize for this social mania argue that the competitive spirit is inherent in human nature, that it is instinctive of men to want always to defeat other men. Such thinking, however, is not only false but is fatally defeatist. First of all, if one were to study the people of some of the South Pacific islands, for example, he would find that the "instinct" of competition does not exist in them. Second of all, even if this evil were part of human nature it is wrong to accept and stimulate it with such an economic organization as Capitalism. After all, what is civilization but the controlling of man's baser instincts.

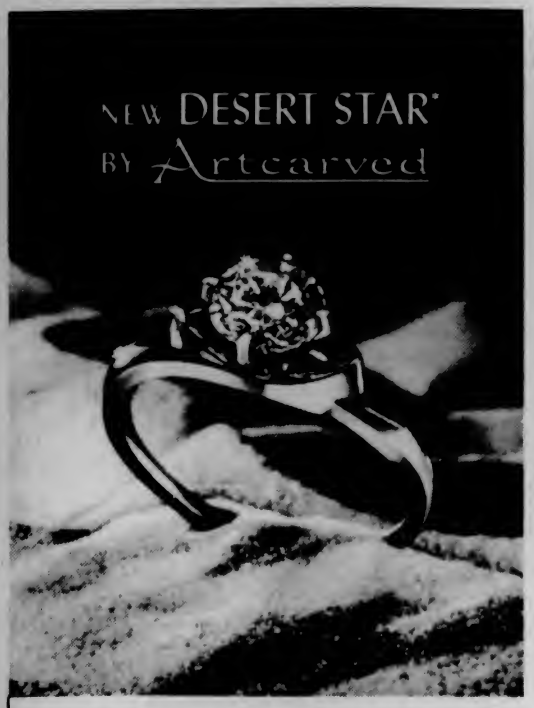
Another argument for the encouragement of this strife, especially in relation to the individual and economics, is that men will not work unless given competitive incentives usually based on fear of insecurity. They who would believe this are fundamentally ignorant of one aspect of human nature. A person is congenitally slothful or energetic. In the one case, no incentive can make him work beyond a certain minimum of efficiency, while in the other he will find his incentives and nothing but superior forces can prevent his doing the utmost possible. "If a man's mainspring is not wound at birth, it can never be wound afterwards." Yet more evil in the "economic-necessity" argument is its proclivity to encourage selfishness and greed in human relations. The person who has been told all his life that the most important value is to win and gain security for himself is going to develop the avaricious tendencies in human nature, and depreciate the altruistic ones. In the last analysis the only proper virtue in work that should be relied upon and developed in a civilized society is the spirit of service, the honorable incentive not to get but to do.

Perhaps the most adverse result of the prevalence of accentuated contention has been its effect upon international relations. Just as there is competition for materiality between individuals there is conflict between nations for economic security. Let me quote directly from an official U.S. Navy document inserted in the Congressional Record. April 5, 1947: "Realistically, all wars have been for economic reasons. To make them politically palatable, ideological issues have alawys been invoked. Any possible future war will undoubtedly conform to historical precedent. Present differences with our world neighbors (the Communists) now in the diplomatic stage, we hope can be kept there. But after all, war is merely diplomacy by force of arms."

There is only one way to avoid such a catastrophic designation, and that is to destroy the myth that demands it. The competitive spirit must not be allowed to degenerate humanity any further. It must be elminated all the way down from international relations to high school sports. Logically, the place to begin this elimination is with the social, political and economic system which was created for it.

With this in mind I shall quote Abraham Lincoln.

"This Country with its institutions belongs to the people who inhabit it. Whenever they shall grow weary of the existing government they can exercise their constitutional right of amending it or their revolutionary right of overthrowing it.



Designed for you, forever

This is the look college women adore...styling as timeless as love itself, yet with a knowing contemporary flair that makes it very much "today."

It's the kind of look we've designed into Desert Star... newest of the famous Artcarved engagement rings. Like all Artcarved rings, it's styled to stay beautiful...guaranteed in writing for permanent value. See new Desert Star now at any Artcarved jeweler listed here. It's designed for you. *TRADEMARK

See Desert Star only at these Authorized Artcarved Jewelers
MASSACHUSETTS

Adams—LEON DUBUC
Athol—J. E. COX
Beverly—DESJARDINS JEWELERS
Boston—E. B. HORN CO
Brockton—ROMM & CO.
Fall River—MULLEN BROS.
Falmouth—FALMOUTH JEWELRY SHOP
Fitchburg—ELLIOTT'S INC.
Framingham—ROBERTSON'S
Gardner—STANLEY'S
Holyoke—ALBERT E. BISHOP
Lawrence—KUHN JEWELRY CO.
Leominster—M. M. SABATELLI
Marlboro—DONALD BRUNO, JEWELER
Nantucket—LENNON JEWELRY
New Bedford—NOVICK JEWELERS
Pittsfield—DENNO JEWELERS
Plymouth—LORING'S JEWELERS
Quincy—ROUSAYNE JEWELERS
Salem—JOSEPH R. RICHARD
Springfield—ARTHUR COOLEY, JLR., Inc.
Springfield—M. J. KITTREDGE
Taunton—HOMER'S JEWELRY

University Sailing Club Begins To Expand

by JANET CHARLES

Although still one of the newest projects on campus, the Sailing Club is rapidly developing into what may well prove to be one of the most successful organizations at UMass. Jack Wood, sailing director at M.I.T. and founder of the New England Inter-Collegiate Yacht Racing Association will be guest speaker at the next meeting. Well-known in the nautical world, Mr. Wood will show films about inter-collegiate racing and will talk to the officers of the club concerning the operation of a good Sailing Club.

The schedule for the next meeting is November 20, 1963 at 8:00 in Memorial Hall. Before it begins, however, the first instructional program will be held at 7:30. This is the first phase of a series of five that will be given to all novices and anyone else who is interested in review, and it will include nomenclature and an introduction to the sailing theory. The remaining phases will involve: application of the sailing theory and boat handling; marlinspike seamanship; safety procedures, including capsize prevention instruction; and rules of the road and an introduction to competitive sailing.

The Sailing Club is presently concerned with the opening of Quabbin Reservoir, and committees have also been set up for determining the class, cost, and design of boats that will eventually be purchased. Stanley Mikelk of the Commonwealth of Mass. Division of Fisheries and Game, and President of the Isaak Walton League, is helping toward the ultimate use of the Reservoir for sailing purposes.

Future plans include a possible visit from George O'Day, an Olympic gold medal winner in sailing, who will talk to the Executive Committee on an informal basis. The Sailing Club has recently been invited to attend the New England Yacht Racing Association convention on December 7, 1963. Plans are to send at least three delegates from UMass who at this time will establish a spring racing schedule.

The Sailing Club is extremely grateful to all those who have exhibited an interested, especially the many faculty members. It is the desire of both Doug Pearsall and the entire club that this organization will be one from which both faculty and students will profit.

Netherlands String Quartet To Play At Cage Thursday

Next Thursday, November 21, the University community will have the opportunity of hearing the internationally renowned Netherlands String Quartet. This is the third presentation in the 1963-64 series of the University of Massachusetts Concert Association, and will be heard in Bartlett Auditorium at 8:00 p.m.

The Netherlands String Quartet consists of two violinists, a violist, and a cellist. The founder of the group, Nap de Klijn, is a professor at the Royal Academy of Music at the Hague and at the Academy in Rotterdam.

The Quartet has made regular appearances in Holland, Switzerland, England, and Germany. The group is coming to the University while on its fifth American tour. The quartet was recently awarded the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Medal as the best string quartet in Europe. It has been praised highly in the United States as shown in the following review from the New York Times: "The Netherlands String Quartet is an ensemble of deep sensitivity; not only were the timbres of the four instruments well matched, but they blended so that their notes almost seemed to cling together".

THE NETHERLANDS STRING QUARTET

The program consists of three masterpieces in the literature for string quartet. The first selection is the Quartet in B flat Major, "The Hunt", by Mozart (K458). This piece is one of the finest examples of the classical style which combines formal perfection without sacrificing beauty of expression. This is followed by the Quartet in F Major by Ravel, which represents modernism in music. Being a product of impressionism, it stresses atmosphere and mood rather than form. The last selection is the Quartet in F Major, Opus 59, no. 1, by Beethoven. This is a product of Beethoven's mature writing and an example of mastery of form combined with great power of expression. This program offers to the listener representative examples of three major musical styles.

University students are admitted free of charge upon presentation of ID cards. Single tickets may be purchased at the door for $1.50.

Cast For "Ghosts" Well Experienced

by LOUISE SERONI '65

"Ghosts" are "old worm-eaten ideas, beliefs long thought dead," such conventions as a woman's duty, wrote Henrik Ibsen in Ghosts.

The principal character, Mrs. Alving, upholds one of these "ghosts" when she allows herself to be talked into staying with her husband, hence maintaining her duty, at the expense of personal happiness.

The results of adhering to this convention are disastrous—bringing ruin to herself, husband and son. For, although she does her "duty," the home she creates lacks joy; as a result she turns her husband into a dissolute and corrupt man, her over-protectiveness destroying their son.

The Misled Mother

The misled Mrs. Alving is played by Sheila Ferrini, a junior Speech major. Miss Ferrini is no stranger to University Theatre. She will be remembered as Jocasta in last year's production Oedipus Rex and as a member of the chorus in Murder in the Cathedral.

She has had additional experience as an apprentice at the Rockport Playhouse during the summers of 1962 and 1963.

Miss Ferrini is business manager of the Roister Doisters and a member of the Operetta Guild.

The Demented Son . . . The Straight-Laced Pastor

New to UT this year is Peter Stelzer, member of the Class of '67, who is cast as Mrs. Alving's son, Oswald. Although this will be his first appearance on campus, he has previously worked in theater while attending Worcester Academy.

Oswald, suffering from a mental illness inherited from his father, wishes to marry his mother's maid, Regina, despite knowledge of their common paternity. He, like Regina, and the many conformities finally recognized as evil, is a "ghost."

Pastor Manders, in the words of Miss Ferrini, "righteousness personified, naive and straight-laced," is acted by David Manley. An English major with a long record in campus theatre, Mr. Manley was seen as Creon in Oedipus Rex, and appeared in Murder in the Cathedral, Tartuffe, and, in 1961, Volpone.

The Illegitimate Regina . . . The Evil Engstrand

Pat Long, as the illegitimate Regina Engstrand, daughter of the deceased Mr. Alving and a previous maid, is a symbol of the corruption within the house.

Miss Long has appeared in UT productions in the past, and was seen last year in Androcles and the Lion and Murder in the Cathedral.

The fifth character, Engstrand the carpenter (Regina's stepfather), evil, corrupt and out for himself, is played by James Wrynn. Mr. Wrynn is a Junior Speech major, recently seen as one of the Twin Menaechmi. He too was a member of the cast of Murder in the Cathedral.

Ghosts will be presented in Bowker Auditorium on the evenings of Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 21, 22 and 23, with a matinee Saturday at 2:15.

personal interviews for engineering positions

leading to technical and managerial careers.
18 month training programs.

SEE OUR REPRESENTATIVE WHEN HE VISITS YOUR CAMPUS ON

DECEMBER 2

PUBLIC SERVICE ELECTRIC AND GAS COMPANY

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

ONE OF THE COUNTRY'S LARGEST SUPPLIERS OF ENERGY

—Photos by Nina Perlmutter

Saturday Night Success For Club '66

Over 2000 students attended the Class of '66's Las Vegas Night, held Saturday night at the Club '66. The patrons drank "Bernie's Busters" while playing roulette, craps or blackjack, or just watching the entertainment provided. A special hit with the crowd was Strut Flash, Dean Field was seen in his shirtsleeves manning one of the tables, while Asst. Dean Jeffrey ran a crap table. It was noted that only one of the tables lost—that manned by the famous coffee drinker from Machmer Hall.

Woodside Resigns ...

Continued from page 1

leave from UMass in 1957, he worked in this area for the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda. His new Position is an outgrowth of his many years of interest in the field of embryology and his varied experience in administration.

IN ANNOUNCING the administrator's new appointment, Pres. Lederle said, "Dr. Woodside has given 27 years of dedicated and distinguished service to the University. As Provost he has been a real force in major academic improvements. We will miss his many abilities, but we wish him well in the challenge of his new position. There is no doubt that he will be of special value in the vital work of a national research effort, for he brings with him great experience in both science and administration."

BORN IN Curwensville, Pa., Dr. Woodside received his A.B. from DePauw University, and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Harvard University.

He came to UMass in 1936 as an assistant professor of biology. He was appointed Head of the Department of Zoology in 1948. As head of the department he expanded offerings in zoology on both the undergraduate and graduate levels. He was also instrumental in building a highly successful program of pre-medical studies.

DR. WOODSIDE was named Dean of the Graduate School in 1950. During his tenure as Dean, graduate enrollment increased from 300 to almost 900, and various new degree offerings on the master's and doctoral levels were introduced.

Dr. Woodside became Acting Provost in January of 1961. Six months later, he was named Provost of the University. In this position he has served as the University's chief administrative officer for academic affairs.

A DISTINGUISHED zoologist, Dr. Woodside has written many articles for scientific journals during his career. His research activities have centered mainly in the fields of experimental embryology, cancer in mice, and electron microscopy. He has been engaged in a number of nationally recognized research projects.

Provost Woodside is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, Phi Kappa Phi, Phi Eta Sigma, American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Society of Zoologists, and the Society for the Study of Development and Growth.

On Conservatism ...

(Continued from page 3)

servative factions were strongly opposed to the "radical" New Deal policy, consisting of a social security act of 1935, and the agricultural adjustment act of 1937 with its "soil banks". Yet these radical bills became the foundation of our socio-economic order. If you don't mind Mr. Cass, I'll remain a staunch advocate of the political philosophy where action is the keynote—liberalism.

Kenneth Fienberg '67

FOOD SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY CAREERS

The Food Science and Technology Department will present an "Open House Program" concerning "Careers in Food Science and Technology," at 7:00 P.M. on Thursday, November 21st.

The foremost authorities will discuss the many career opportunities in Food Science and Technology emphasizing the areas of industry, teaching, and research.

This is an opportune time for all those students who have not yet decided upon a field of concentration at the University of Massachusetts, to become fully aware of the many opportunities that are afforded with a background in Food Science and Technology.

Freshmen and Sophomores, who are interested in science or engineering, are urged to take this opportunity to listen to the prominent members of our faculty discussing a subject which should be of interest to a great many students. This discussion will be held in Chenoweth Laboratory, located behind Bowker Auditorium. Bring yourself, your friends, and your appetite for refreshments will be served.

Christian Assoc. To Hold Open Meeting

The Christian Association extends an invitation to all Protestant students of the university to attend an open meeting on Wednesday evening at 7:00 in the Student Union. This meeting will be conducted by the Executive Board of the C.A. The program for the rest of this semester will be outlined ,and next semesters programming will be discussed with a new emphasis on C. A. This meeting will give students a chance to indicate areas of interest they might have.

Come to this meeting and learn more about C. A., its role in the academic community and the part played by the student in this role. Remember, Nov. 20.

TEACHER

Laborer Or Professional?

Miss Rose Claffey, representing the American Federation of Teachers, and Dr. John Sullivan, of the National Education Association, will debate at the Education Club Meeting on Wednesday, November 20 at 7:00 p.m. in the Education Building Auditorium.

Miss Claffey, now teaching in Lynn, Massachusetts, is the national president of the A.F. of T. She works in the A.F. of T. out of its Boston executive offices.

Dr. Sullivan is a field representative for N.E.A. He has taught at the secondary level in various school systems, including Waltham, Massachusetts, where he initiated a program for the gifted.

Miss Claffey and Dr. Sullivan as members of the A.F. of T. and the NE.A. respectively, represent two divergent philosophies of the role of the teaching profession. For example, the A.F. of T. thinks that its being a part of the labor union is not inconsistent with its being a professional group.

The A.F. of T. as a part of labor uses collective bargaining and striking as a means to its ends. The N.E.A., on the other hand, feels that being members of a profession, teachers should make their voices heard through professional sanctions and negotiations as well as through legislation.

The A.F. of T. looks upon the teacher as an employee and upon the school administrator as an employer. However, the N.E.A. feels that teacher and school administrator should work together in educating youth.

The N.E.A. has 800,000 teachers in its ranks, while the A.F. of T. has 80,000 teachers and university professors.

—NOTICES—

BLOOD DONORS

Those students under 21 who have signed up to donate blood and have not as yet received an appointment card but think their parents have given permission to donate should enquire at the Red Cross registration desk today or tomorrow. Any students over 21 who would like to give blood may stop at the bloodmobile any time during its operation. Remember to eat and sleep well before making donations.

DANCE

There will be an inter-collegiate mix Saturday, Nov. 23, from 8 to 12 p.m. at the Newman Center. Music will be provided by the Dynamics. Men are asked to wear jackets and ties. There will be no charge for admission.

FRESHMEN CLASS MEETING

There will be a freshmen class meeting Monday, Nov. 25, at 6:30 p.m. in the S.U. Ballroom. Refreshments will be served.

PHI ETA SIGMA

The tutoring class in Psychology 5 scheduled for Monday at 7 p.m. has been cancelled for the remainder of the semester due to changes in the curriculum.

Chemistry 3 has been added to the tutoring program. This class will be held Monday nights at 7 p.m. in Machmer W16.

RAILWAY ENTHUSIASTS

There will be a showing of color slides of steam and electric railways on Tuesday, Nov. 19, at 8 p.m. at the Faculty Club (Stockbridge House). All interested students are cordially invited to attend.

S.U. DANCE COMMITTEE

There will be a meeting of the S.U. Dance Committee Tues., Nov. 19, in the Nantucket room of the S.U. at 11 a.m. Agenda: Thanksgiving Dance.

S.U. PUBLICITY COMMITTEE

There will be a meeting Wed., Nov. 20, at 7 p.m. in the S.U.

AMHERST
Cinema
SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS
NOW—One Show at 7:15
TWO HITCHCOCK HITS! BOTH IN TECHNICOLOR
CARY GRANT GRACE KELLY
TO CATCH A THIEF
JAMES STEWART KIM NOVAK
VERTIGO

PETER PAN BUS LINES
BOSTON EXPRESS BUS
Via Massachusetts Turnpike
—Also Serving—
HOLYOKE
SPRINGFIELD
PALMER
WORCESTER
8 ROUND TRIPS DAILY
For Schedule and Information Call at the THE LOBBY SHOP Student Union
CHARTER A BUS TO ALL AMERICA

—FOR SALE—
1960 TRIUMPH TR-3
Black, radio & heater, snow tires, convertible in excellent condition.
CALL AL 3-2439 after 5:00 p.m.

Nineteen New Honor Freshmen

Photo by Bob Surrette

In initiation ceremonies yesterday afternoon, nineteen new members were inducted into Phi Eta Sigma, the freshmen's men's honor society. Officiating at the ceremonies, held in the Student Union, was Thomas Shea, president of the society.

The new members are Marcus Boyle, Paul Bryan, Alan Bulotsky, Christopher Cranston, John Glover, Stephen Gulo, Jr., Dana Hirst, Patrick Hoyt, James Hugill, William Jablonowski, Daniel Krause, Jr., Paul Kutrubes, Walter Lysenko, Russell Murphy, Charles Pratt, Jr., Howard Scott, Bruce Searleman, Peter Thomas, and Bruce Wylie. These people, in order to be eligible for membership, had to attain a 3.4 cumulative quality point average for the two semesters of the freshman year.

Following the ceremonies a reception was held for the new members of both Phi Eta Sigma and Alpha Lambda Delta, the freshmen's women's honor society.

Shirer ...

(Continued from page 1)

first professional disappointment.

After graduation from college, he left America on a cattleboat for Europe, with $200 in his pocket borrowed in equal shares from the president of his college and an uncle who was an executive in a New York publishing house. He expected to stay abroad two months. As it happened, he stayed for more than two decades.

The turning point came the day in Paris when he was scheduled to return home. A few hours before his train left, the managing editor of the Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune, who several times in previous weeks had assured the aspiring journalist there wasn't a chance of his being hired, sent Mr. Shirer a pneumatique offering a job on the copy desk. This was the beginning of a career as foreign correspondent that was to carry William L. Shirer far.

Among those who sat around the Tribune copy desk in Paris at that time were James Thurber and Elliot Paul and Vincent Sheean, the latter already a full-fledged correspondent.

Mr. Shirer moved to the home edition of the Chicago Tribune largely as a result of his coverage of Lindbergh's Landing in 1927 and his first regular assignment was to cover the winter Olympics the following year. Next, he was assigned to the League of Nations and various international conferences there. "For some reason," Mr. Shirer recalls, "I was more successful at sports in the beginning than at writing on international politics."

Then followed assignments in Paris, London, Vienna, two years in India covering the rise of Gandhi, and various sojourns in Eastern Europe, the Balkans, Berlin, Rome and, in 1932, Mr. Shirer was fired by the Tribune. He took the next year off (having married the previous year a beautiful Viennese drama critic and painter, Theresa Stiberitz) at a small fishing village on the coast of Spain, where he and his bride shared a house with Segovia, the famous guitarist. Mr. Shirer recalls this as one of the quietest years he spent in his long sojourn in Europe.

The next year found him back at work again, headquarterd in Berlin, the start of his long and intimate association with Germany. In 1937 he joined the foreign correspondents' staff of the Columbia Broadcasting System at the invitation of its European director, Edward R. Morrow. He covered the Anschluss in Vienna, the various crises which led to World War II, was in Berlin the day Hitler went to war and remained in Germany until the end of 1940.

In 1941 Mr. Shirer's famous "Berlin Diary" came out and was an immediate best-seller and a Book-of-the-Month Club selection.

He returned to England in 1943, to France in 1944, to Germany in 1945, and in the Spring of that year covered the birth of the United Nations at San Francisco. He went back to Berlin in 1948 to cover the airlift and two years later made a prolonged survey of Europe which resulted in his book, "Midcentury Journey", a Literary Guild selection.

William Shirer has been the recipient of many honors: The George Foster Peabody Award, radio's greatest prize; the Wendell Wilkie One World Award for his outstanding achievements in journalism; and the Legion of Honor from France. He has been president of the Author's Guild, and is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, the Foreign Policy Association, and the Farm Bureau.

— CLUB DIRECTORY —

ACCOUNTING CLUB

There will be a meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 19, 1963 at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Council Chambers. Mr. Louis Blanchard, systems engineer of I.B.M., Springfield, will speak on Data Processing Systems.

Two films on our country's tax structure will be presented Wed. at 7 p.m. in the Middlesex Room, Student Union.

ART CLUB

General meeting, Tuesday, Nov. 19, at 7:30 p.m., in Bartlett 61.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

Meeting, Wednesday, November 20, at 8 p.m. in Peters Auditorium. Guest speaker will be Dr. I. Moyer Hunsberger.

CHESS CLUB

On Saturday, November 23, there will be a match with A.I.C. in the Council Chambers of the Student Union. Public is invited. Anyone interested in representing UMass as part of the team may attend a meeting in the Franklin Room of the Student Union on Wednesday, Nov. 20 or contact Richard Strange, 218 Gorman or Lewis Roberts, 316 Plymouth before Nov. 20.

DAMES CLUB

Meeting, Thursday, Nov. 21, at 8:15 in the Student Union. A troy demonstration will be the event of the evening, so bring along some extra money.

FOOD DEMONSTRATION CLUB

Meeting Nov. 19, at 7 p.m. in the Plymouth Room of the Student Union. Guest speaker, all welcome.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA

Pledge meeting at 6:30 on Wed., Nov. 20 in the Hampden room of the Student Union. At 7 p.m. in Bartlett 61, Dean Purvis will speak to all members about the Uganda Project. Slides will be shown.

GERMAN CLUB

Meeting, Tues., Nov. 19, at 7 p.m. in the Norfolk Room of the Student Union. New members welcome. Be prepared to discuss "Studentenfreiheit auf die Universitaten."

ITALIAN CLUB

Meeting, Tues., Nov. 19, at 7 p.m. in Memorial Hall All welcome.

MASSACHUSETTS ARCHEOLOGICAL SOCIETY

There will be an organizational meeting on Wed., Nov. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in E37 Machmer. Anyone interested is welcome.

ORTHODOX CLUB

Meeting on Tues., Nov. 19, at 6:30 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. Refreshments. All are welcome.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB

Meeting on Tues., Nov. 19, at 8 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. The talk will be "The Range of Social Work Careers." Everyone welcome.

SPANISH CLUB

There will be a "Tertulia" on Wed., Nov. 20, at 4:30 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of Bartlett. Panchito Mulcaty will play flamenco music on guitar. Everyone invited.

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB

Meeting on Tues., Nov. 19, at 8 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U Members are requested to bring any "patch" designs they would like considered.

(Continued on page 7)

State Law Requiring Seat Belts Passes

Registrar Lawton today issued the following statement:

"I am very gratified that Governor Peabody's call for mandatory seat belts in all new cars sold in Massachusetts has been passed by the Legislature and signed into law by the Governor. This law will take effect with all 1965 models of automobiles sold in the state.

"Certainly the value of seat belts is apparent when we realize that some 20 states and the District of Columbia now have compulsory seat belt legislation. Additionally, all domestic manufacturers of automobiles have started to make seat belts standard equipment in their vehicles manufactured by 1964.

"Estimates are that the use of seat belts would have saved more than 200 of the 701 men, women, and children who lost their lives in automobile accidents in the year 1962 in Massachusetts. What would have been the saving of serious physical injury, no one can estimate, but estimates have run as high as one-third to one-half.

"Further, current figures indicate that there has been a continuous rise in the use of seat belts by motorists who have them in their vehicles. At present, it is estimated that better than a half of all motorists who have seat belts use them regularly.

"The Registry will try to follow a two-point program in ensuring the use of seat belts in all cars in Massachusetts. First, we will try to secure the cooperation of all our citizens to install seat belts in all vehicles—new as well as used. Secondly, the Registry plans an intensive public information campaign to make sure that motorists use seat belts once they are installed.

"The point must be brought home to the motoring public that seat belts are for the short daily trip as well as for the long trip. The majority of accidents happen at speeds of less than 40 miles per hour with a 25- mile radius of the operator's home, and this is where their use can be of the greatest help.

"Seat belts offer no excuse for speeding or reckless driving, but when accidents do occur their value is very great in preventing death and injury.

"I look forward happily to the day when all vehicles in Massachusetts will be equipped with seat belts and everyone will use them."

Wisconsin Passes Bill On Speech Ban

Madison, Wis.—A bill was introduced here Wednesday in the State Legislature to "spell out" to University students the Board of Regents" authority to ban speakers and groups from campus.

Nile Soik (R.-Whitefish Bay) introduced a bill patterned after one passed by the Ohio legislature in October. It was unanimously approved for introduction into the Assembly by the seven-man Rules Committee.

The Bill holds that the Regents have the authority to "withhold use of the facilities of the University for meetings or speaking purposes from persons who are members of the Communist Party, persons who advocate or persons who hold membership in or support organizations which advocate the overthrow of the government of the United States and its free institutions by force or violence, or whose presence is not conducive to high ethical and moral standards or the primary educational purposes and orderly conduct of the institution."

The Regents already have the authority to regulate speakers using University facilities, but Soik stressed that he has brought up the bill so that "the students realize that they (The Regents) have the authority."

The bill is to counter any student claim that such interference with speakers is "against freedom of speech," Soik said.

Soik explained that the bill does not say that the Regents must interefere with speakers, but that they may. "I'm not going to infringe upon the authority of the Board of Regents by telling them how to interpret the works of the bill," he added.

In a recent local television appearance, Soik said: "We should not provide a platform in our schools and colleges for Communist spokesmen who seek to destroy us.

UNIV. OF MASS. THEATRE
presents
GHOSTS
by HENRIK IBSEN
Nov. 21, 22 & 23, 8:15 p.m.
Matinee Nov. 23, 2:15 p.m.
Tickets on sale at Student Union Box Office
Call 545-0111 All Seats Reserved—$1.50

HAY RIDES
Accommodations Up to 60
For Information Call:
ROBERT ANDERSON
WHATELY, MASS.
Tel. South Deerfield 665-9262

Integrity — Service
Friendly Advice
ART RUGGLES'
SKI SHOP
17 High Street
GREENFIELD, MASS.
Ski Coach, Deerfield Academy
OPEN EVENINGS TO 9 P.M.
PHONE 774-4855

Rifle And Pistol Team Triumph

LAST SATURDAY THE U-MASS PISTOL TEAM BEAT BROWN in their opening match of the season. Not looking as sharp as they had been in the pre-season tournament at Hanscom Air Force when they beat Coast Guard and MIT the Redmen subdued an inexperienced Bruin squad 1272 to 1167 at the Dickinson Hall range.

TOP SHOOTER FOR UMASS was Dave Naylor with a 282, followed by Dan Sullivan, Eric Mussen, Roger Yee and George Wietecha. The hapless Bruins will have a chance to redeem themselves on Saturday the 23rd when the Redmen travel to Providence for the second half of the home and home series.

YESTERDAY THE VARSITY RIFLE TEAM defeated UNH 1409-1356. Butterworth and Carswell were the top shots for the Redmen with 287 points with Wells and following close behind in the scoring. Nataupsky and Kwist completed the first team. Top shot for UNH was Porter with 274 which the number four shooter for the Redmen scored.

Fusiamen Trample ...

(Continued from page 8)

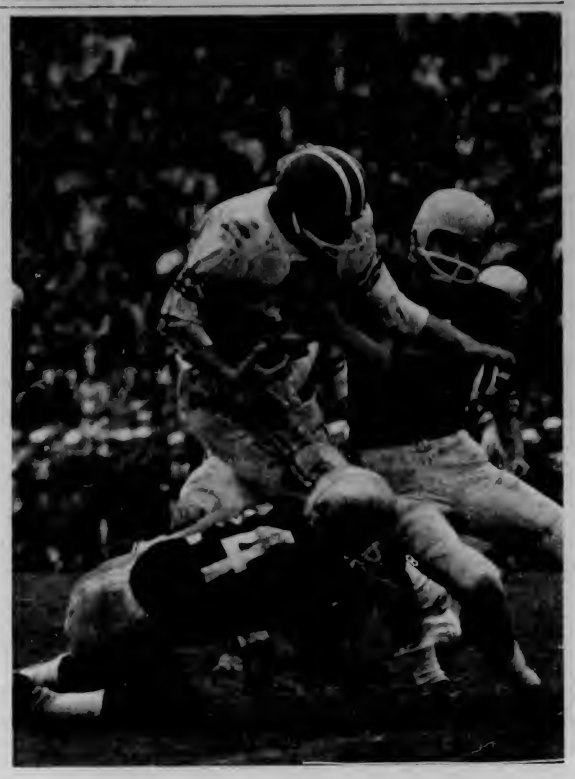
from Whelchel. The score was now 41-0. The Wildcats made their most fruitful offensive play, while playing defense. On a third down play, John Schroeder was nailed right on the goal line for two points. The Redmen got the ball back and on third down, Jerry Whelchel and Phil DeRose teamed up on one of the most impressive plays of the season. Whelchel, with beautiful faking, stood back, all alone, until Phil DeRose could fight his way past the two bigger men who were covering him. He saw Phil get a couple steps on the safety men so he threw. He led him just enough for Phil to catch the ball-over his left shoulder at full tilt. John Schroeder made an unusual appearance for the PAT and completed the scoring at 48-2.

THE 1963 SEASON must have been a pleasure to captain for Paul Graham and Dick Warren. They have achieved more success than any others in the history of the University of Massachusetts. They won the Yankee Conference crown, were undefeated and are now being considered for a possible bowl bid.

Coach Vic Fusia said, "We started slowly but really came around to the point where we were playing our brand of football, and we couldn't have won it in better fashion."

Said Athletic Director Warren McQuirk "This represents the best in football for our school, it also shows terrific coaching and a wonderful squad effort."

MONDAY THE TEAM WILL MEET TO VOTE ON WHETHER THEY WILL ACCEPT A BOWL BID IF ONE IS OFFERED TO THEM.



—Photo by Bob Surrette

UMass fullback MIKE ROSS displays powerful effort against Wildcats.

—Photo by Bob Surrette

Unidentified Redmen defender stops UNH back as Paul Graham moves in to assist.

Brouillet Sets ...

(Continued from page 8)

lock of Villanova, and Machooka of Cornell. When men of this high caliber run against each other, the race is usually decided by the person who has the most desire. Bob has been aiming for this meet for three years, and you can be sure that whoever beats Bob, if anyone does, will know they have been in one very exciting race.

— Notices —

VARSITY SKI TEAM

Meeting of candidates for the team will be on Thurs., Nov. 21, at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U.

CREW

Anyone interested in forming a crew team should contact Bob Ford, 420 Baker. Leave name, class, address, and phone number.

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB

Meeting on Tues., Nov. 19, at 8 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. Members are requested to bring any "patch" designs they would like considered.

College Studio
Portraits of Distinction
SPECIALS
3 - 5 x 7
PORTRAITS
for $7.50
Sufficient Amount of Proofs Taken
DO NOT MISS THIS OPPORTUNITY
Vocational & Passport Pictures
FINISHED IN 24 HOURS
Hours— 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.
16 Belmont Ave. (Off Green St.)
NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
Call JU 4-2824

DRAKE'S
Village Inn
NEW OPEN HEARTH
—Try Our—
Breakfast at 50¢ — 7 a.m.
Luncheon-Dinner — 11 a.m.
HAM 50¢ PASTROMI 75¢
Ever Available
BONELESS SIRLOIN STEAK
Pot. Salad, Roll $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Schuler's Potato Chips

If anyone is driving to the Pittsburgh Symphony Concert at Smith College on Nov. 21 please contact Pat Fitzpatrick, 222 Baker.

Basketball And Skiing Schedules

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS 1963

BASKETBALL

Dec. 3 — Boston U. (8:15)
Dec. 6 — at Rutgers (8:00)
Dec. 10 — Connecticut (8:15)
Dec. 12—at Boston C. (8:15)
Dec. 14—at N. Hampshire (7:30)
Dec. 17 — at Holy Cross (8:30)
Dec. 27-28 — Wagner College Tourney, Staten Island, N. Y.
Jan. 4 — at Brandeis (8:00)
Jan. 7 — Providence (8:15)
Jan. 10 — at Vermont (8:00)
Jan. 11 — at St. Michael's (8:00)
Jan. 29 — at Iona (7:30)
Madison Square Garden
Jan. 30 — Colby (8:15)
Feb. 1 — Maine (8:15)
Feb. 7 — Rhode Island (8:15)
Feb. 8 — at A.I.C. (4:00)
Feb. 11 — at Connecticut (8:00)
Feb. 15 — Vermont (8:15)
Feb. 18—at Rhode Island (8:15)
Feb. 20 — Northeastern (8:15)
Feb. 22 — N. Hampshire (8:15)
Feb. 25 — St. John's U. (8:15)
Feb. 29 — at Maine (7:35)

Ticket Information

Season Tickets $8.00
Admission $1.50 (Except Providence $2.00)
Children 6 yrs.—High School 50¢

The 1964 Schedule is as follows:

SKIING

Date	Sponsor	Area
Jan. 26	Brown	Cranmore
Feb. 2	Tufts	Wildcat
Feb. 15	Amherst	Thunder Mt.
Feb. 16	UMass	Thunder Mt.
Feb. 29	Bowdoin	Intervale
Mar. 1	B.U.	Pleasant Mt.
Mar. 8	N.U.	Suicide Six
Mar. 14	N.E.C.	Killington

Lost and Found

LOST: A blue wallet Wed., Nov. 13, about 9 a.m. somewhere in the Public Health Building. Return to Stephanie Muse, Arnold House. Reward.

LOST: Three white notebooks and "Introduction to Theory of Games" were taken from the shelf in the Ladies Room of the first floor in Bartlett. Please call WO 7-4001 or leave them at the S.U. Lobby Counter.

LOST: One brown leather key case. Please return to Ralph S. Snell, 414 Wheeler House.

LOST: Pickett trig slide rule in red leather case lost in the dining commons. If found return to E. Yorke, Leach House. Reward.

LOST: An Abbington High School class ring with a neck chain attached. Initials on the back are J. F. Please return to Elaine Bello, Brooks House.

LOST: A set of keys on a chain was lost in the games area of the S.U. Please return to the Lobby counter or the Games Area of the S.U.

FOUND: A blue pair of woman's glasses was found in 105 Machmer on Saturday. Contact Dick Strange, 218 Gorman.

FOUND: An umbrella cover. Contact Joseph Ross, 425 Gorman.

3,193 Beer Cans

(ACP) — Persons driving by the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity house at the University of Oklahoma, Norman, might have been shocked to see a stack of beer cans completely covering the front lawn, says The Oklahoma Daily. But it was just a cleanup campaign in which members of the fraternity cleaned up all the empties from the campus and surrounding residential areas. Some 70 men gathered 3,193 cans in six hours and staged the "heap" to show how messy things had become.

Club Directory ...

(Continued from page 6)

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION

Meeting on Wed., Nov. 20, at 8 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U. The case of Brother Daniel will be discussed. All are invited.

VARSITY SKI TEAM

Meeting of candidates on Thurs., Nov. 21, at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

Communion service on Wed., Nov. 20, at 7 a.m. in Cushman Chapel of the Thompson House. Transportation provided.

ZOOLOGY CLUB

Meeting on Tues., Nov. 19, in 138 Morrill. The talk will be Refreshments will be served. "Histoogy and Histochemistry."

Redmen Finish Undefeated

Fusiamen Trample UNH 48-2

Team To Vote On Bowl Bid

by KEVIN COYLE

SATURDAY AT LEWIS FIELD, in Durham, New Hampshire the University of Massachusetts completed its first undefeated season since 1889 (when they played two games). They could hardly have ended such an outstanding season in better fashion, as they trampled their last opponent 48-2. This is the same team that won the Yankee Conference crown from them in the season's finale last year.

Jerry Whelchel was truely outstanding as he completed eight passes in thirteen attempts for 229 yards and four touchdowns. He also ran for 20 yards and another touchdown. His four TD passes were good enough to set a new school record. The old record was held jointly by Noel Reebenacher and John McCormick, the mark was three. He also finished the season as the leading point after touchdown kicker in the history of the school. He topped the old record of twenty-three by thirteen as he passed up his chance at #37 by having John Schroeder kick the final PAT. Combining with Schroeder the passing offense was just one yard short of the existing record of 316 yards as the duo finish up with 315 well thrown yards.

THE SCORING STARTED with Ken Palm taking a first down pass from Jerry Whelchel in the endzone for a thirty yard play. At this point the Wildcats were playing even ball. Shortly, however, they found that they were losing ground at an even faster rate when Phil DeRose went over from two yards out to put the score at 14-0. Phil also set up the play with a thirty yard pass from John Schroeder. The fate of the game was decided however when Jerry Whelchel scored just as the gun sounded to end the first half. It looked as if the Redmen were not going to score, when they lost the ball on downs inside of the UNH ten yard line. New Hampshire qb Lloyd Wells decided to pass only to see Ken Palm intercept the pass on the UNH 35 yard line, thus setting up the Whelchel score.

THE SECOND HALF took on some familiar characteristics when Mike Ross made a very impressive interception on the New Hampshire 29 yard line. Four plays later Jerry Whelchel repeated the play which had given UMass its first TD with a 23 yard scoring pass to Ken Palm. With the score at 27-0, end Dick Bourdelais set up the next touchdown by catching John Schroeder's 37 yard pass on the 4. Two plays later Phil DeRose scored his second TD on a one yard buck. Jerry Whelchel marched the Redmen 63 yards on the next drive with the key play being a 32 yard bootleg pass play to fullback Mike Ross. Milt Morin got the six points on a five yard pass

(Continued on page 7)

—Photo by Bob Surette

KEN PALM hauls in touchdown pass from Jerry Welchel.

Harriers Overcome UNH 27-29

Brouillet Sets Meet Record

by GENE COLBURN

PACED BY CAPTAIN BOB BROUILLET'S RECORD BREAKING PERFORMANCE, the varsity cross country team turned in its best effort of the season Saturday as it defeated the University of New Hampshire at Durham by a score of 27-29. "Digger", making his last appearance in a dual meet for the Redmen, made it a memorable occasion. Because he took the lead early in the race, no one could come near him. When he crossed the finish line a full minute in front of the next finisher, his winning time of 23:00.4 shattered the old course record of 23:47. This gives Bob an amazing season's record of 8 firsts and one second place finish. He has also set 5 course records this year — at UMass., Springfield, Coast Guard, Boston, and N.H.

It was the six men behind Bob that gave the Redmen this victory. The fact that all 7 of New Hampshire's men finished at least 5 seconds ahead of their best previous effort is indicative of the type of competition the team faced. Bob Ramsey was the big man for UMass as he turned in his finest race all year and finished within 2 seconds of Gene Colburn and Bob Molvar to give the Redmen a sweep of 4th, 5th, and 6th places to help win the meet. Tom Panke exemplified the team's spirit. Although "Smiley" was not running as well as he had, he kept on plugging, and his 11th place finish clinched the victory. Al McPhail and John Urban also turned in good performances. This victory enabled the Redmen to end with a season's record of 8-2.

Monday the team will compete in the IC4A's at New York City. This meet is symbolic of the Eastern championships. Although as a team the Redmen do not seem likely to pull any major upsets, they will doubtlessly turn in a creditable performance. The boys wanted to go to this meet very badly, as demonstrated by their fine performance against N.H.

INDIVIDUALLY, the Redmen are a different story. In Bob Brouillet they have a runner who is not only the best in UMass. history, but also one of best in the East, as proven by his fine record. Monday should find Bob right in the middle of the "big" names—Straub of Army, Zwo-

(Continued on page 7)

BERMUDA COLLEGE WEEK 1964

MARCH 22 · APRIL 11

Everyday packed with action ...new friends...fun!

SUN.—Get acquainted dance. (Wear Bermudas!) MON.—College Day at the beach. Talbot Brothers Calypso, College Queen Contest, barbecue lunch. TUES.—Jazz session, Limbo contest, buffet lunch. WED.—Cruise to St. George, Steel Band entertainment, Gombey dancers, refreshments. THURS.—On your own: swim, shop, sightsee, sports. FRI.—College Week Revue—entertainment. Tennis finals.

All these...and lots more complimentary activities! See your Campus Organizer now!

The Bermuda Trade Development Board
620 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10020

Ski Instructors

Weekend positions available for skiers to instruct high school boys and girls. Prior instruction experience not required. Good compensation. Excellent ski facilities. Write or Call:

SHAKER VILLAGE SKI GROUP
P.O. Box 1149, Pittsfield, Mass.
Lebanon Springs (N.Y.) 7-1255

BUY ONE NOW & SAVE

1962 LAMBRETTA

Jim Medeiros, QTV

Little Redmen 27-14 Over Wildcat Frosh

by KEVIN COYLE

The population of this university has been completely wrapped up in the varsity football team. Let them now know that there is more talented material on the way up.

The freshmen team finished up its season on a winning note by downing the UNH frosh 27-14. This gave the team a winning record of 3-2. The two losses were both close ball games with Manlius Prep winning the opener 19-12 (Manlius had already played two games) and Holy Cross giving the Little Redmen a working over 26-0. The first three quarters were even, as the Crusader beginners scored all of their points in the final session when the Redmen started making mistakes.

LAST SATURDAY they turned in a good performance against their UNH opponents. Don Durkin was very effective as a powerful halfback with very good speed. He scored the final touchdown against UNH.

Quarterback Ray Johnson showed promise as a passer with one TD pass to Dick Qualey. He handled the ball well and showed talent improvising when he went for a long touchdown on a mixup in the backfield. Rick Benoit showed promise as a fullback until he was hurt.

Ski Team Meets Thurs.

WILLIAM MAC CONNELL, coach of the University of Mass. Ski Team, has announced that a meeting of all those interested in intercollegiate racing, will be held Thursday, November 21, at 7:00 p.m. in the Middlesex Room of the Student Union.

Last season the University placed fourth in a field of 17 colleges in the New England Intercollegiate Ski Conference.

Returning this year from last season's team are Tom Clark '64, Capt., Don Burgess '64, Norm Carpenter '64, and Walt Swiatek '65.

An intensive conditioning program will begin Nov. 18. Coach Mac Connell has announced that a two week training camp will be held at Killington Basin in Shelburne, Vermont during Christmas Vacation.

OTHER TEAMS IN THE CONFERENCE include Amherst College, Tufts, A.I.C., Bowdoin, Boston College, Boston U., Brown, Northeastern U., and New England College.

LIBRARY
History Room
LIBRARY
DEC 12 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCIII, NO. 28 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1963

Yamasaki Interest Proven By Letter

Minoru Yamasaki did have a definite interest in doing the architectural plans for the University of Massachusetts' Fine Arts Building, according to Horace M. Chase, Director of Building construction for the Commonwealth.

In an exclusive Collegian interview, Mr. Chase revealed that Yamasaki had written him on August 7th expressing interest in taking the Fine Arts Building project.

In a previous interview Mr. Chase stated that contract negotiations between the Commonwealth and the firm of Minoru Yamasaki Associates had fallen through due to a lack of interest on the part of Yamasaki.

This was third Collegian interview with Mr. Chase, the second one having been terminated by him after the Collegian refused to reveal the sources quoted in Monday's issue. These sources had contradicated much of what Mr. Chase had previously stated.

Chase later called Sam Gorvine, Collegian reporter, at his home and was more communicative after he had been asked to do so by his superior William Waldron, Commissioner of Ad-

(Continued on page 6)

Era's Problem Is Peace Shirer States At DVP

by OLEH PAWLUK

THE MOST IMPORTANT problem of our era is to maintain peace, declared William L. Shirer, internationally famous foreign correspondent and author of the long run Number 1 best seller "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich" in his DVP address.

The DVP speech was held Monday night at 8:00 in the S.U. Ballroom. Shirer's talk "Secrets of the Third Reich," altered to encompass current affairs, was attended by more than 1600 students and guests. There was not enough space in the ballroom for the large audience, and numerous people had to go to various lounges in the Student Union where Shirer's talk was broadcasted.

WILLIAM L. SHIRER

"WE CAN AGREE," began Shirer, "that we have soived our domestic problems fairly well."

Shirer went on to cite the better standard of living and better opportunity for education in the United States as evidence for his statement. He noted that the main problem lies in foreign affairs, especialiy between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"I BELIEVE THAT the new Russian society," continued Shirer, "can no ionger be held down by brutality after the Staiin fashion." "Russian develoPment in technoiogy and educaTion poses a threat to us," he warned.

Stressing the need for understanding between the Soviet Union and the United States, Shirer went on to iiiustrate the

(Continued on page 3)

BOP AROUND THE BEANPOT

In honor of the football team, the Student Union Dance Committee is sponsoring the annual Thanksgiving dance, "Bop Around the Beanpot", on Friday, Nov. 22 at 8 p.m. in the S.U. Ballroom. Admission wiii be 50¢, stag or drag.

The team and coaches have been invited as guests of honor.

Steele And String Orchestra To Debut

The newly-formed Symphony Orchestra of the University will make its debut with a public concert on Monday, Nov. 25, at 8:15 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

The public is cordially invited to the symphony's first concert. There wiii be no admission charge.

The orchestra's founder-conductor, Ronaid Steele of the music department, has chosen a varied program for the symphony's initial appearance.

The concert wiii begin with Handei's "Water Music Suite." Pianist Henry Aiiaine wiii then join the string section of the orchestra to perform Ernest Bloch s "Concerto Grosso."

In the second half of the program the orchestra wiii present the first campus performance of "Pastorale for Chamber Orchestra" by Elliott Schwartz. Dr. Schwartz, aiso a member of the music department, has had a number of his compositions performed by orchestras throughout the country. Bizet's second "L'-Arlesienne Suite" will conclude the concert.

The University's young sym-

(Continued on page 3)

6 Time Pres. Candidate Norman Thomas Here Monday

Norman Thomas, six-time presidential candidate of the Socialist Party, will speak on "New Frontiers and the Kennedy Administration," on Monday, Nov. 25.

The address, sponsored by the Political Science Association, is scheduled for 8 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium. The public is cordially invited to attend without charge.

A native of Marion, Ohio, Thomas attended Bucknell University and graduated from Princeton in 1905, valedictorian of his class. After attending Union Theological Seminary, Thomas was ordained and given the American Parish in East Harlem, N.Y., where he remained for seven years.

Norman Thomas came into national prominence during World War I, when he was active in the American Union Against Militarism. He founded and edited "The World Tomorrow" and helped organize the Civil Liberties Bureau, which has since become the American Civil Liberties Union.

In the post-World War I period, Thomas worked actively with the Socialist Party in struggles for free speech and the right of workers to organize.

In the depression years he took a leading part in organizing the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union. The Union acted against the Ku Klux Klan and the Hague political machine in Jersey City, N.J.

NORMAN THOMAS

Since World War II, Thomas has campaigned for world peace and disarmament.

In addition to running for the presidency as a Socialist Party candidate, Thomas has sought the offices of mayor of New York City and governor of the state of New York.

Chairman of the Post War World Council and the Labor Research Institute, Thomas is aiso a member of the League for Industrial Democracy, the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy, and the Inter-American Association for Democracy and Freedom.

(Continued on page 6)

Netherlands String Quartet At Bartlet Thursday Night

The Netherlands String Quartet, one of the world's great chamber music groups, will give a concert at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 21, in Bartlett Auditorium.

The Quartet's concert is sponsored by the Concert Association. Tickets may be purchased at the door. PMass students admitted free.

Founded in 1952, the Netherlands String Quartet is currently on its fifth tour of the U.S. The group recently received the Elizabeth Coolidge Medal as Europe's best string quartet.

Nap de Kiijn, who started the Quartet, plays first violin. Jaap Schroeder plays second violin, Paul Godwin plays the viola, and Carel Boomkamp is the cellist.

All are accomplished soloists and devotees of chamber music. De Klijn, Schroeder and Boomkamp also teach at leading Dutch schools of music.

European and North American audiences and critics have been outspoken in praise of the Netherlands Quartet. The New York Times called the group "an ensemble of deep sensitivity and first-class skill." The New York Post said, "The Netherlands' probing performance combined beauty of interpretation with loveliness of sound."

Americas And A Common Heritage

"Do the Americas have a common heritage?" will be the subject of a lecture by Professor Lewis Hanke of the Columbia University History department this Friday at four o'clock in the Middiesex room.

A graduate of Northwestern and Harvard Dr. Hanke is the author of numerous books including "Aristotle and the American Indians." The world-traveled historian is director of the Library of Congress' Hispanic Foundation and first editor of the "Handbook of Latin American Studies."

OPENINGS NOW AVAILABLE ON COLLEGIAN STAFF
Apply at Office

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

The Humans

We saw an encouraging sign on television a few nights ago. The sign appeared on one of those delightful programs dealing with mental breakdown, frigidity, abuse of children, rape, all the usual TV fare for and about the average American family.

In the midst of this rot we noted, however, a heartening occurrence. One of the parts called for the portrayal of a cocky, young detective working out of the District Attorney's office. For the brief time that he appeared on the screen he was to exemplify, much of what the layman finds objectionable, perhaps unjustly, in some policemen; that certain smug pushy attitude.

But this was the encouraging part. This policeman was played by a Negro. Television has come a long way if it now feels that it can and should portray the Negro as a more than one-dimensional character. In the past, on those rare occasions when a Negro actor appeared on television he was always a "good guy." Now perhaps we can look forward to seeing Negro nice guys, Negro bad guys, in other words Negroes as Humans.

It's a small sign, this particular appearance of a Negro on a television program. But it portends good.

JBC - JSD

A Conservative View

Federal Aid To Education

by RICK CASS

The concept of Federal aid to education is one over which there is much controversy. The proponents argue that the states need this aid in order to increase the capacity of the state's schools. Let's take another, closer look. Do these states really need Federal money for their educational programs? The answer is no. Allow me to quote the White House Conference on Education (1955). "No state represented (in the conference) has a demonstrated financial incapacity to build the schools they will need during the next five years." The year 1960 has passed, and a similar conference would today, come to a similar conclusion. Why, then, this cry for more Federal aid?

Also, in this controversy arises an even more important question, the answer to which will have grave consequences upon our system of government if it be the wrong one. The question is—Is Federal aid to education constitutional? That is, does this concept comply with the Constitution of the United States, which is the law of the land, which can be changed only by amendment. The Tenth Amendment to the Constitution states this—"The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people." This has never been repealed by amendment. On this rests the unconstitutionality of any kind of Federal aid to education, for in no place in the Constitution is education mentioned.

So much for the lack of need and the lack of law to support Federal aid. Let us look at another point—the danger of Federal interference. The danger is realized. The proponents of Federal aid to education, who state that Federal money does not lead to Federal control have nothing to say in the face of the National Defense Education Act of 1958. In this act, the Federal Government has imposed twelve direct controls over content of subject matter in schools receiving this aid. This interference as well stated by Senator Barry Goldwater, is "the last, not the first, stage of control." For those of you who want Big Brother watching you at your lectures, Federal Aid to education is fine. But, the search for knowledge cannot continue in any atmosphere of less than full academic freedom.

Letters To The Editor

More WMUA

Dear Editors:

When a person makes a statement, he or she should be ready to back up the statement. If S.A. is able to back up his or her statement, I might be able to believe it. I am an announcer at WMUA, and have been there for two months. Any "BOSSISM" to which S.A. referred, I have not seen. As I do a show (all by myself), I am the one who decides what I say about the records, or any other comments. For any organization to be run effectively, some rules must be made so that the organization can exist. The rules which govern the running of the programs on WMUA are set up by the F.C.C. and they must be followed at WMUA as they are followed at every other station in the United States.

S.A. stated in his or her statement that "I don't think that the students want announcers who say, 'The next record will be . . . will be . . . will be . . .'." I challenge S.A. to come to WMUA and be auditioned the way everybody who is a broadcaster was auditioned, and if he or she does well, program a show which will last for three hours, learn to run the control board, and then sit for those three hours and run the show. I doubt whether he or she would be able to sit for those three hours and not say during the show "The next record will be . . ." Experience is the best teacher, and how are people going to learn what to say when they are on the air if they can't practice. Even if the announcer does say several times "The next record will be . . . ", it does not mean that the officers are forcing them to restrict themselves to what the officers want them to say, but rather it is because they are not experienced enough to talk between the records as professional radio announcers are.

Everyone at WMUA spends many hours attempting to do a better job, and when constructive criticism is offered they are willing to receive it and profit by it. But when somebody makes a statement without any knowledge of

(Continued on page 6)

Think Ethnic WMUA

To the Editor:

What is the fad in music on campus and with the general public? Is the answer obvious? Folk music, of course. What is the dominant trend in music on most commercial radio stations in the East? Folk music, of course. What are probably the best selling albums of the day? Well, lest this sound like a football cheer . . . Folk music is getting more and more of the public ear.

The question that falls cleverly into place in the above and the point of this letter is "and when will our campus radio station let the students have what the students want in music?" There are two folk shows on now. Did you know that? Well they are on too late to listen to—on at an hour when you might want study or stay-awake music, not good folk music that demands your attention. WMUA is missing a good bet by not programming folk music at prime times—Sunday afternoon, or 10 to 11 p.m. spot. Alternating such a show with the current jazz program that certainly has an audience as limited as some might accuse "ethnic" folk music of having, would make a lot of people happy. These are my opinions, but they are based on conversations with many friends. You can't deny the popularity of this current form of music. The fact certainly stands without contestation, that our current radio schedule is intentionally or not, slighting the trend. Let me put forth one more happy holler . . .

"GET PRIME TIME! GET PRIME TIME! YEH, YEH, FOLK MUSIC!"

D.B.A.

Back to the South Pacific?

Dear Mr. Aliferis:

If you are so enthused about the South Pacific islander's lack of competitive feeling, why don't you go join them in their altruism? —or have you remembered, just in time, that if you were to do so you would have to forsake your car, running water, and electricity? I do not defend brutal, cout-throat competition such as was practiced by American businessmen of the late nineteenth century, but nevertheless today we are reaping the benefits from it.

It might pay you to look at your history books. In 1921 Lenin had to initiate the N.E.P., which restored, to a degree, free enterprise, in order to bring the Soviet Union out of the chaos wrought by "war communism." In 1920 Russian industrial production fell to 16% of its 1912 level, when Russia was governed by the Czar. Free enterprise and competition proved to be the country's salvation.

To take a different view, has a country ever achieved prominence in the world without competing with its neighbors? From a less materialistic point of view, has any country which did not compete with some success made any valuable and lasting contributions to art, music, literature, etc.? These are by-products of competition, after all.

I am not naive enough to think that communism does not work, but you are evidently naive enough to believe that capitalism cannot survive the threat of communism. I believe with all my heart and with all the statistics which so conclusively support me that the United States, free enterprise, capitalism, and competition reign supreme in every conceivable way over the Soviet Union; equality for all men, irrespective of their abilities; communism; and poverty.

It seems to me that you wish to start the clock of history running backwards, starting with no materialism, no government, no civilization, no competition, and eventually, no people.

David Pemple '65

The Rise and Fall

To the Editor,

The Rise and Fall

They came in hundreds to hear him speak on the horrors of war—testimony of gas chambers, bombings, concentration camps.

And their hopes were trodden.

Instead of recounting miseries of years past he gave to them the responsibility for the future. On such grounds is disillusion fostered.

S.G.

The Massachusetts Collegian

MEMBER

Editor-in-Chief:	Jeffrey Davidow '65
Editorial Editor:	John B. Childs '64
Assoc. Editorial Editor:	George Masselam
News Editor:	Elwin McNamara '64
Photography Editor:	Mary Roche
Sports Editor:	Scott Freedland '66
Business Manager:	Courtney Brickman '64
News Makeup Editor:	James Schmalz '65
Feature Editor:	David Axelrod '65

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

Interaction To Feature Hopkins And Watson

Boys, have nothing to do Sunday night? This goes for girls, too. Ever wonder who makes men's rules and how? Well, then, tune in to Interaction this Sunday night from 7:30-8:00 and hear Robert S. Hopkins, Jr., Dean of Men, and Senator Jim Watson, Head of the Senate Committee on Men's Affairs discuss your questions. Phone in to WMUA (545-2425) Sunday night after 7:30 and ask the guests themselves on WMUA's weekly show, Interaction.

Don't forget—Interaction, this Sunday, from 7:30-8:00 over WMUA (91.1 FM) with Dean Hopkins and Senator Jim Watson.

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and "Barefoot Boy With Cheek.")

SHOULD AULD ACQUAINTANCE AND JAZZ LIKE THAT

I am now an elderly gentleman, full of years and aches, but my thoughts keep ever turning to my undergraduate days. This is called "arrested development."

But I cannot stop the healing tide of nostalgia that washes over me as I recall those golden campus days, those ivy-covered buildings (actually, at my college, there was only ivy: no bricks), those pulse-tingling lectures on John Dryden and Cotton Mather, the many friends I made, the many deans I bit.

I know some of you are already dreading the day when you graduate and lose touch with all your merry classmates. It is my pleasant task today to assure you that it need not be so; all you have to do is join the Alumni Association and every year you will receive a bright, newsy, chatty bulletin, chock-full of tidings about your old buddies.

Oh, what a red-letter day it is at my house, the day the Alumni Bulletin arrives! I cancel all my engagements, take the phone off the hook, dismiss my resident osteopath, put the cheetah outside, and settle down for an evening of pure pleasure with the Bulletin and (need I add?) a good supply of Marlboro Cigarettes.

Whenever I am having fun, a Marlboro makes the fun even more fun. That filter, that flavor, that yielding soft pack, that firm Flip Top box, never fails to heighten my pleasure whether I am playing Double Canfield or watching the radio or knitting an afghan or enjoying any other diverting pursuit you might name—except, of course, spear fishing. But then, how much spear fishing does one do in Clovis, New Mexico, where I live?

But I digress. Let us return to my Alumni Bulletin and the fascinating news about my old friends and classmates. I quote from the current issue:

"Well, fellow alums, it certainly has been a wing-dinger of a year for us old grads! Remember Mildred Cheddar and Harry Camembert, those crazy kids who always held hands in Econ II? Well, they're married now and living in Clovis, New Mexico, where Harry rents spear-fishing equipment, and Mildred has just given birth to a lovely 28-pound daughter, her second in four months. Nice going, Mildred and Harry!

"Remember Jethro Brie, the man we voted most likely to succeed? Well, old Jethro is still gathering laurels! Last week he was voted 'Motorman of the Year' by his fellow workers in the Duluth streetcar system. 'I owe it all to my brakeman,' said Jethro in a characteristically modest acceptance speech. Same old Jethro!

"Probably the most glamorous time had by any of us old alums was had by Francis Macomber last year. He went on a big game hunting safari all the way to Africa! We received many interesting post cards from Francis until he was, alas, accidentally shot and killed by his wife and white hunter. Tough luck, Francis!

"Wilametta 'Deadeye' Macomber, widow of the late beloved Francis Macomber, was married yesterday to Fred 'Sureshot' Sigafoos, white hunter, in a simple double-ring ceremony in Nairobi. Many happy returns, Wilametta and Fred!

"Well, alums, that just about wraps it up for this year. Buy bonds!"

© 1963 Max Shulman

• • •

Old grads, new grads, undergrads, and non-grads all agree: that good Richmond tobacco recipe, that clean Selectrate filter, have turned all fifty states of the Union into Marlboro Country. Won't you join the throng?

Dr. Sussman Edits Soc. Journal

The first issue of "Sociology of Education," a new quarterly edited by Dr. Leila Sussmann of the department of sociology, has just been published.

The journal, sponsored by the American Sociological Association, "intends to provide a forum for studies of education by scholars in all the social sciences from all parts of the world." In addition to 20 Americans on the board of editors, there are five European scholars, one in Latin America and one in Japan.

The quarterly's editorial board has such widely known figures as sociologists David Riesman and Paul Lazarsfeld, economist Seymour Harris, and historians Bernard Bailyn and Lawrence Cremin.

The initial issue includes studies of American rural education, late-Victorian British public schools, and political movements among Japanese students.

Dr. Sussman, who taught at Wellesley College before coming to the University of Massachusetts, was named editor of the new publication last winter by the executive council of the American Sociological Association.

The author of several articles and a forthcoming book on political letter writing entitled, "Dear F.D.R.," Dr. Sussman has held several research appointments.

A graduate of New York University, she earned her master's degree from the University of Chicago and received her Ph.D. from Columbia University.

Dr. Sussman is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the Eastern Sociological Society, and a fellow of the American Sociological Association.

Shirer States ...

(Continued from page 1)

utter destructiveness of atomic warfare by stating that both sides in the cold war have more than enough nuclear power to destroy mankind several times over. With a note of optimism, Shirer looked upon the Test Ban Treaty as a step in the right direction towards nuclear disarmament.

BRINGING GERMANY into the picture, Shirer commented, "To solve the German problem you must solve the problem of the unification of Germany." Shirer further stated, that in addition to Russian opposition to German unification, "No free democratic country in Western Europe would stand for a re-unification of Germany, for a united Germany would become the strongest power in Europe."

However, Shirer saw some hope for the solution of the German problem within the next hundred years, the approximate time he estimated it would take Germany to adjust adequately to the democratic process. Returning to current affairs, Shirer noted the great changes which have transpired on the world scene since 1945.

"A BILLION PEOPLE," said Shirer, "have thrown off the shackles of colonialism." "Red China," he cautioned, "can no longer be swept under the bed as something which does not exist."

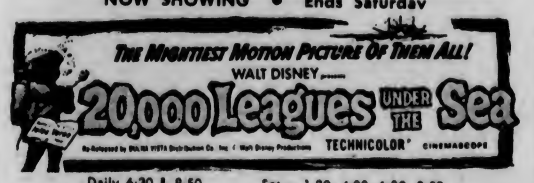
In summing up his talk, Shirer noted that the United States has exhibited a great amount of generosity in the world situation through the form of foreign aid.

"AS WE LOOK back," he concluded, "I think we can say we've not had a bad record."

SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS

AMHERST Cinema

NOW SHOWING • Ends Saturday



Daily 6:30 & 8:50 Sat.— 1:30, 4:00, 6:30, 8:50

LATE SHOW • FRIDAY 11:15 P.M.

Jules Dassin's "Phaedra"

with MELINA MERCOURI • TONY PERKINS

UM Outing Club Goes Spelunking

Twenty-six members of the Outing Club recently returned from a highly successful caving trip to the Scoharie area of midstate New York. Among the caves explored were Ward's, Tom Ball's, End of Gulch, and Church cave. Ward's cave exhibited simulated paintings done in the prehistoric manner by a high-school art teacher and his students.

One hardy group pushed a passage into a previously little-explored passage-way, discovering excellent samples of stalactites, stalagmites, and flowstone of a type rarely found in New York caves, along with some perfectly preserved and unusually fine specimens of marine fossils.

Tom Ball's required a treacherous 45 foot descent into the murky depths on a cable ladder. Special nylon rope was required to insure a safe descent using "deep-drop" techniques, similar to those used in surface rock climbing. Below this level the group was faced with an underground river which required the construction of a makeshift boat to ferry everyone across, a long wade through cold, waist deep water, and then the exhilarating sight of thousands of hibernating bats.

The Outing Club invites anyone interested in this or other club activities to a "get-acquainted" hour Monday evening, Dec. 9. There will be slides, films, and refreshments.

—NOTICES—

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS

Because of the increased number of volunteers we are in need of more cars to transport them to and from Belchertown on Saturdays between 1:15 and 4:30. Drivers do not have to do volunteer work as there are study rooms available. For more information see the posters in the S.U.

CO-REC NIGHT

There will be a co-rec night in the Wo PE on Friday, Nov. 22, from 7:30 to 10 p.m. There will be swimming, volleyball, badminton. Bring your own towels.

FOREIGN FILM

"The Crucible," a French film based on the play by Arthur Miller, will be shown Sunday, Nov. 24, at 7 p.m. in the S.U. ballroom.

MIX

The Newman club will sponsor an intercollegiate mix this Saturday, Nov. 23, from 8 to 12 p.m. at the Newman Center. Music will be provided by the Dynamics. Men are asked to wear ties and jackets. Admission is FREE. Everyone is invited.

SENATE ELECTIONS

There will ge elections for senator at large '64 on Dec. 2. Nomination papers are now available in the RSO office. They must be turned in by Nov. 22.

Steele and String ...

(Continued from page 1)

phony, sixty strong, was organized at the beginning of the current school year by Mr. Steele, who came to UMass this fall. Rehearsals have been held each week. The orchestra is made up of UMass students, faculty members and local residents.

The symphony is making plans now for a spring concert. Auditions will be held soon to obtain a young soloist to perform a full concerto with the orchestra at the spring concert. University, area college, and high school students will be eligible to audition.

FOURTH IN THE SERIES

Mary Lyon-Founder Of Mount Holyoke

by TERRY STOCK

Mary Lyon, founder of Mt. Holyoke and pioneer in the fight for women's education, was born in Buckland, Massachusetts, on February 8, 1797.

In 1803 her father died, leaving his wife and seven children destitute on a barren farm. In spite of their poverty, the family was not unhappy, for Mary's mother was a genius at making the most of their meager possessions.

At the age of six Mary walked a mile to her first school and then two miles to her second. Almost immediately she developed a burning desire to learn, and soon she was following the teachers of best repute, earning her keep by housework wherever she stayed.

The young girl's faculty for drinking up knowledge was amazing. Once she memorized in four days all of Alexander's English Grammar, and her progress in other studies was equally as rapid.

When Sanderson Academy was founded at Ashfield in 1817, Mary enrolled and paid for her board with two bedspreads which she had spun, woven and dyed herself. She spared no sacrifice to procure her education. Having inherited her mother's farm-bred ability for profiting to the utmost by small advantages, she climbed, without money and with little assistance, far above the average woman of her day.

In the fall of 1821 Miss Lyon was offered the position of assistant in the Sanderson Academy. Then followed a series of teaching positions in various colleges including Buckland, Mass., Derry, N.H., and Ipswich, Mass.

Although several seminaries had been opened to women, Mary was distressed because few but wealthy girls could afford to attend these. A plan gradually took form in her mind for a girls' seminary endowed by free gifts like the colleges for men.

After soliciting for funds throughout New England and when twelve prominent men had agreed to become temporary trustees of the enterprise, a site at South Hadley was chosen for the proposed institution. It was named Mount Holyoke Female Seminary.

When the corner stone was laid in 1836, Mary Lyon had recognized her dream. She had her endowed school for "middle class" girls. The charges for forty weeks—room, board, and tuition—came to sixty-four dollars. Mary Lyon herself was the security that the project would succeed.

All the teachers at the new seminary were women. "Either gallantry or want of confidence makes gentlemen let young ladies slip along without knowing much," she said. So she picked the best obtainable women teachers who would make girls study.

Rules at the new institution were strict and faithfully enforced. A student could never raise her voice above a whisper in the dormitory halls. Between the hours of 10 a.m. and 12 noon, and from 2:15 to 3:15 p.m., nobody was permitted to speak at all. Instead of the monitors found in most women's colleges at the time, Mt. Holyoke girls were on a system of "self-reporting." Every afternoon the girls met to report their misdemeanors to a higher authority, and often received black marks similar to demerits. This was the beginning of the "honor system" used in many schools today.

On the other hand, Mary Lyon herself was like a mother to her girls. When they first arrived at the door, she greeted them as in a second home. She consoled them when they were homesick, sympathized with their problems, encouraged their ambitions, and helped them plan their futures.

Mary Lyon served as president of Mt. Holyoke until her death in 1849. In 1905 she became the first woman elected to the American Hall of Fame.

In recognition of her great accomplishments, UMass dedicated Mary Lyon Dormitory on December 9, 1959. Today and for many

(Continued on page 6)

Spirit Of The Corps

Yesterday the Air Force ROTC corps reaped one more benefit from the voluntary program—in place of the usual mass drill an hour of free discussion was held at Bowker auditorium. Cadets in the second and third year of air science were divided into small groups and, with a minimum of military formalities, were allowed open minded discussion reviewing purposes of mass drill or other pertinent topics.

That the cadets in attendance were conscienciously pursing a chosen interest was shown in the many valid comments record for future correlation and action by moderating advanced cadets. Rules were clarified, misconceptions and anxieties adjusted, and several new innovations were offered. A desire for greater opportunity to actually drill the troops during the weekly outdoor mass drills was voiced in the majority of the groups. A merit system, to reward cadets or allow removal of demerits, was proposed. One cadet was heard to comment that "the callbre of the voluntary cadets is not so much better as the spirit".

The freedom and spirit of the new voluntary AFROTC program can, perhaps, be summed up by the institution of one other internal change in organization—an honor system.

The Vernacular

ART TO ZOO

by INEZ BRAND

At a recent modern art exhibition, first prize went to a sculpture and the label "the sculpture shaped this entirely with her tongue." A curious fan asked a man near the prized work, "Just who is this sculptress?" "My cow," answered the man, "That's her salt block." The "Collegian staff has refused to be bested by animal modern artists. In consequent retaliation they have created the accompanying pop art sculpture: "Publish or Perish"

Rory Leonard, a University of Wisconsin freshman, felt it was a beautiful day for sketching elephants — so beautiful a day that she had no need for her raincoat and tossed it across the guard rail. Suddenly, breaking the stillness of her pose, Winky, the unwilling elephantine model, grabbed Rory's coat. "Sue tore the buttons off the coat before she ate it," gasped Rory. "She broke up my sun glasses before eating the lenses. Then she ate my wallet, containing $30, my driver's license and beer card. She threw out 75 cents." At the end of this most creative day Rory vowed, "I'm going to paint things little than I am from now on." Winky the elephant was reported as feeling fine.

(Continued on page 6)

A NEW FEATURE SERIES

Sasha Speaks—

A column is traditionally placed in one of four categories: Ionic, Doric, Corinthian or Critical. However, so nebulous is the purported nature of this inclusion, even the columnist is presently mystified.

But definition is trivial—promises are more crucial and considerably easier to make. Each Wednesday "Sasha Speaks" will attempt to discuss current happenings on or to the University campus, topics of general interest, and those subjects appealing to the wiles and guiles of Sasha (one must leave room for ambiguity and orderly retreat).

Accordingly, Sasha wishes to present a conversation beneath the Sacred Bull Tree, for use in Life, English 25, and Abnormal Psych.

Disciple: What then, O Sasha, is the root and growing place of true knowledge?

Sasha: Verily I say unto you, the root of all knowledge is the student, its growing place is the school.

D: Which school, then, is the best for such endeavor?

S: Assuredly, its growing place is our great University—where else is such fertilizer flung by student, teacher and administrator alike?

D: O Master, thou art infinitely wise. And what then does the root learn?

S: He may learn, seeker, the Greek alphabet, Avagadro's number and how to dial it, the practice and theory of returning Ipana smiles, and the regulated art of nonconformity.

D: May he do otherwise, O great one?

S: Like all good roots, he may vegetate. Many do.

D: O master, thou art wise. From whence does such wisdom come?

S: It cometh from humility. The greatest knowledge, infinite perfection, immortal remembrance belongs to him who is humble. Among men, I am the most humble.

THE FOLK SCENE

SONGS OF PROTEST

by BOB WEBER

Two weeks ago, about forty UMass students joined with students from Amherst, Smith, and Mount Holyoke to picket Governor Wallace of Albama, who was speaking at Smith. Several times while the pickets were active, the group broke out in song. Singing has become an integral part of most orderly civil rights demonstrations. A reworked version of an old spiritual has become the unofficial theme song of the cause. This song, "We Shall Overcome", is usually sung at every rally or demonstration. In addition, other songs have had their lyrics reworked so that they comment on the situation.

The use of traditional songs, or new songs, as a comment on the happenings of the day is not a new practice. The early minstrels of England and Scotland made up ballads which told stories of recent events. This tradition was brought to America by the early settlers and continued here. The song "Tom Dooley" which the Kingston Trio made famous is, or was, the story of an actual murder.

Tom Dula was convicted in the late 1800's in North Carolina for the murder of Lora Smith. It seemed that in the original song, as documented by accounts in newspapers and by people of the area, Lora gave Tom a social disease; So Tom, with the help of his new mistress, killed her. Perhaps the original story is more interesting than the watered down version which was made a popular.

In more recent times, songs have been used in much the same manner. Today, Bob Dylan, closer to home Buffy St. Marie, and a great many others are writing topical songs. Here on campus, Dick Doherty has writ-

(Continued on page 6)

Peter Pan Travel Service Inc.
144 BRIDGE STREET :: SPRINGFIELD
(Across from Bus Terminal)
Open 9 a.m.-9 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.
FOR ALL VACATION and TRANSPORTATION NEEDS
AIRLINE TICKETS AND RESERVATIONS
Tours - Cruises - Sightseeing
Official Tariff Rates
Limousine to Bradley Field
Leaves from Our Front Door
Call Collect to
SPRINGFIELD 781-3343

UNIV. OF MASS. THEATRE
presents
GHOSTS
by HENRIK IBSEN
Nov. 21, 22 & 23, 8:15 p.m.
Matinee Nov. 23, 2:15 p.m.
Tickets on sale at Student Union Box Office
Call 545-0111 :: All Seats Reserved—$1.50

Driver Lashes Out At Present Parking Policy

by TERRY STOCK

An irate driver who had been ticketed for parking on a grass area and in front of a fire hydrant decided to protest the violations of which he had been accused.

He did this by returning the parking tickets he had been issued to Col. John Marchant along with the following anonymous letter:

"Evidently the people that work for you cannot judge a distance as short as 13 feet. This was the distance that my car was from the hydrant. In addition, my car was not parked on any grass area where parking is prohibited and repeated checks have failed to note any other tickets on cars similarly parked.

"Because of poor planning and downright stupidity on the part of you and your staff the South Lot is seriously overcrowded while other lots are half empty.

"Until this problem is solved (by realizing that the parking problem is a figment of someone's imagination), I am unilaterally voiding my auto registration. I have removed your stickers, have ceased to drive on campus, and will further campaign to have your useless position abolished. Your job is nothing but featherbedding of the worst sort."

Col. Marchant noted good-naturedly that the tickets contain the registration number of the car and that there would be little difficulty in tracing the writer of the "anonymous" letter through this number should he decide to do so.

Lost and Found

LOST: A black leather wallet in the vicinity of Berkshire House Saturday. Contact Arthur Busher, 119 Berkshire House. Important papers are in the wallet. Reward.

LOST: One K & E slide rule in a green leather case. Lost in the dining commons. Need desperately. If found please return to Peter Grosso, 408 Baker.

LOST: A sterling silver bracelet with the name Carol on it. If found please return to Carol Baldwin, 306 Leach House.

LOST: A brown capskin wallet with important credentials. If found please return to Thomas Macco, Phi Sigma Delta.

Tough Season ...

(Continued from page 8)

scoring in the meet is different. Each team enters four men in each of the six events: high bar, rings, parallel bars, long horse, side horse, and free exercise. Each man is judged on the basis of a possible 10 points, execution 5 pts, difficulty 3 pts, and combinations 2 pts. The top three scorers for each team in each event have their scores added together thus making a possible 30 points per team in each event. The total points are added together to each of the six events thus giving the total amount for each team, a possible 180 points. The team with the highest amount of points wins the meet.

All meets are held on Saturday afternoons the first varsity meet is on Dec. 11.

PROGRAM PLANNED FOR WOMEN

The Women's Affairs Committee of the Student Senate will present the annual Women's Day program on December 5, featuring "Opportunities Unlimited" for the woman in Liberal Arts.

A panel discussion will convene at 11:00 in the Ballroom. Among topics of discussion will be: The role of women in a coed world, A man looks at the career woman, Career opportunities for women in Liberal Arts, and Graduate Study: necessary or advantageous. From 2:30 until 4 there will be an open coffee hour for informal discussion with the invited guests.

This is a good opportunity for the woman in the broad liberal arts field to see how successful women have made their educations worthwhile.

Don't You Wish You Gave Blood?

—Photo by Darryl Fine

BLOOD DONOR: MARTHA MEACHAM

— CLUB DIRECTORY —

ACCOUNTING ASSOCIATION
There will be two films presented on Wed., Nov. 20, at 7 p.m. in the Middlesex room of the S.U. The subject will be the Country's tax structure.

A.F.A.S.S.
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 20, at 6:30 p.m. to practice and to draft a challenge letter to Amherst. See R. Wilfong for place.

A.I.Ch.E.
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 21, at 8 p.m. in 157 Goessmann. The talk will be about job hunting. Refreshments.

BRIDGE
Lessons for beginners will be held on Thurs., Nov. 21 at 7 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. The regular duplicate game will be held at the same time in the Plymouth room. All are welcome.

CHEMISTRY CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 20, at 8 p.m. in Peters Aud. Guest speaker is Dr. I. Moyer Hunsberger.

CHESS CLUB
Anyone interested in representing UMass in the match vs. AIC on Sat., Nov. 23, should attend the meeting on Wed., Nov. 20 in the Franklin room or should get in touch with Richard Strange, 218 Gorman, or Lewis Roberts, 316 Plymouth on or before Nov. 20. All are invited to attend the match, which will be held in the Council Chambers, at 2:15 p.m. on Sat.

CONCERT ASSOCIATION
Meeting of the general board on Wed., Nov. 20, at 7:30 p.m. (Note new time) in the Nantucket room of the S.U. Anyone interested in joining should attend.

CRITIQUE
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 21, at 7 p.m. in the Franklin room of the S.U. All are urged to attend.

DAMES CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 21, at 8:15 p.m. in the S.U. A toy demonstration will be the event of the evening, so bring along some extra money.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
Pledge meeting on Wed., Nov. 20, at 6:30 p.m. in the Hampden room of the S.U. The meeting scheduled at 7 p.m. in Bartlett 61, has been cancelled.

HEBREW TABLE
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 21, at 6:30 p.m. in the Hampden room of the S.U.

HEYMAKERS SQUARE DANCE CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the Ballroom of the S.U.

HORTICULTURE CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 20, at 7:30 p.m. in French Hall. A movie will be shown. All interested are welcome.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Supper meeting on Sun., Nov. 24, at 6 p.m. with Edwards Fellowship. On Sun., Nov. 23, there will be a box social and square dance in Bowditch Lodge. The social is at 6 p.m., the dance at 8.

MASS ARCHAEOLOGICAL SOCIETY
Organizational meeting on Wed., Nov. 20, at 7:30 p.m. in Machmer E37. Anyone interested is welcome.

FOOD SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY CAREERS

The Food Science and Technology Department will present an "Open House Program" concerning "Careers in Food Science and Technology," at 7:00 P.M. on Thursday, November 21st.

The foremost authorities will discuss the many career opportunities in Food Science and Technology emphasizing the areas of industry, teaching, and research.

This is an opportune time for all those students who have not yet decided upon a field of concentration at the University of Massachusetts, to become fully aware of the many opportunities that are afforded with a background in Food Science and Technology.

Freshmen and Sophomores, who are interested in science or engineering, are urged to take this opportunity to listen to the prominent members of our faculty discussing a subject which should be of interest to a great many students. This lecture will be held in Chenoweth Laboratory, located behind Bowker Auditorium. Bring yourself, your friends, and your appetite for refreshments will be served.

PREMED CLUB
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 20, at 7:30 p.m. in Morrill Aud. The talk will be "Pros and Cons of Euthanasia."

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting on Thurs., Nov. 21, at 7 p.m. in the Men's P. E. Bldg. Basic instruction will be given.

SPANISH CLUB
Tertulia on Wed., Nov. 20, at 4:30 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of Bartlett. Panchito Mulcahy will play flamenco music. Everyone is cordially invited.

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION
Meeting on Wed., Nov. 20, at 8 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U. The discussion will

(Continued on page 6)

....gym....tumble.... flip...flop...lug...tug push...jump...leap...
...chin...lift...pull...
...run...puff puff...
pause
things go better with Coke
Drink Coca-Cola
TRADE-MARKS
Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by:
COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO. OF NORTHAMPTON, NORTHAMPTON, MASS.

Tickets Snapped Up For College Bowl

DAVE MATHIESON

MIKE BERRINI

by DAVE HARACZ

Student support for the combination ticket plan offered for the College Bowl show in New York Sunday evening was evidenced Monday morning as the hundred tickets were quickly depleted by a waiting line of students.

Monday evening the team defeated their practice opposition in a public performance in the Ballroom of the Student Union:

Mike Berrini is a junior majoring in history. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter R. Berrini, Tatnuck Country Club, Worcester, and a graduate of Classical high school in Worcester. On campus, Berrini is a resident of Brett House, and his specialties on the Bowl team consist of: art (prior to 1800, music (1725-1900), history, and sports. He is a pledge of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity.

Dave Mathieson, a senior government major, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred H. Mathieson of Shays St., Amherst, and a 1960 graduate of Amherst Regional high school. A former treasurer of the debating society, he is now a senator at large ('64) a member of Pi Sigma Alpha, the national political science honor society, and a brother in Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity. He is the team's specialist in art (1800 to present), music (500-1725, 1900-present), history, geography, and current events.

Friday: Landis and Tracy.

Pictured are members of the cast of "Ghosts." Standing are Pat Long, the maid; Shiela Ferrini, Mrs. Alving; sitting are Peter Stelzer, the son Oswald; Dave Manley, Pastor Manders; Larry Wilker, the carpenter, Engstrand. Tickets for the performances Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoon, go on sale today at the Student Union ticket counter. They will be on sale daily from 11 to 1 and from 2 to 4. Season tickets holders may turn in their tickets any time. Tickets will also be on sale at the box office.

Club Directory ...

(Continued from page 5)

be about the case of Brother Daniel. All are invited to attend.

VARSITY SKI TEAM

Meeting of candidates on Thurs., Nov. 21, at 7 p.m. in The Council Chambers of the S.U.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS

Meeting on Mon., Nov. 25, at 6:30 p.m. in the Nantucket room for election of officers. New members invited. Dues will be collected.

More WMUA ...

(Continued from column 2)

the facts, as seems apparent by S.A.'s statement, they are leaving themselves wide open to attack.

I am writing this letter to you, Mr. Editors, not as a flunky forced to do this by the station officers, but as an individual who is alarmed at S.A.'s attempt to destroy what WMUA has tried to create during its relatively short span of broadcasting..

Jeffrey E. McPherson '67

Vernacular ...

(Continued from page 4)

* * *

Want better grades? You've a better chance if you're an introvert, according to Dr. Earl F. Rankin, psychologist at TCU. Dr. Rankin recently wrote that the introvert has the qualities necessary to make better grades. Because he is more persistent in attaining a goal, while the extrovert tries to get things done more quickly, consequently making more mistakes. Dr. Rankin gave a test to two groups of students, one composed of introverts and the other of extroverts. He reported that both groups had equal grades a third of the way through the test, after which the extroverts tended to tire, answering without thinking. In another experiment, Dr. Rankin divided TCU students according to the results of their freshman personality tests and then correlated these with their first semester grades. Again it was shown that the introverts had reecived better grades than the extroverts.

* * *

For the love of ROTC a 289 pound sophomore lost 50 pounds in 50 days. Wendell "Tiny" Webb of St. Louis was advised by his ROTC Colonel that he was fifty pounds overweight by Army standards. Hearing this advice, Tiny began a self-imposed crash diet that consisted of one meal a day supplemented by all-purpose vitamins. After fifty days of this nifty diet, Tiny had lost fifty pounds and now met Army standards. Looking back over the ordeal Tiny reflected, "There were times during the first three weeks that I thought I might give the whole thing up, but I just gritted my teeth and stayed in the room."

Norman Thomas ...

Continued from page 1

Thomas is the author of "The Conscientious Objector in America," and "A Socialist's Faith," "The Test of Freedom," "Prerequisites for Peace," and "Great Dissenters," as well as other books and articles.

He writes frequently for newspapers and magazines and is a member of the American Newspaper Guild.

Brother Daniel To Be Discussed Wednesday Nite

Last winter the Israeli Supreme Court was faced with one of the most difficult decisions that has ever been asked of any such body. It was asked to define what is a Jew. After long deliberation it ruled that Brother Daniel, a Catholic convert and now a member of a holy order, was not a Jew.

Brother Daniel was born of Jewish Parents but converted to Catholicism while being hidden in a convent from the Nazis in Poland. He fought with the underground throughout the rest of the war and after decided to enter the Carmelite Order. Upon his request he was sent by the order to Israel. After his arrival he applied for citizenship through the Law of Return which states that all Jews become Israeli citizens simply by coming to live in Israel. The Court's decision has caused much discussion and generated varied opinions.

From these varied opinions of agreement and disagreement comes Wednesday's Student Zionist Organizations program—Bother Daniel in Retrospect. A discussion will be held presenting both sides of the question from a Philosophical view point; and by an analyzation of the progress of the case of Brother Daniel.

Folk Singer ...

(Continued from page 4)

ten two songs about strife in Alabama, which could have lasting value. Gill Woods, a senior here, has also written several topical songs, one of which appears on the record album entitled "The Tikis".

In this column I have asked readers to write to WMUA concerning the programming of Folk Music. According to the officers of the station they have not received one single letter. I must confesss I am somewhat surprised. Apparently there is not the interest in folk music on campus I thought there was I stand corrected. In case you haven't listened to the folk shows that are on WMUA, they come your way at 10 p.m. on Saturday night with Pete Greenwood hosting, and also on Tuesday night from midnight to 2 a.m.

Mary Lyon ...

(Continued from page 4)

years to come this residence will house women eager to learn. It was Miss Mary Lyon who paved the way for them to recognize their educational ambitions.

Yamasaki Interest ...

(Continued from page 1)

ministration and Finance for the Commonwealth.

Waldron had also talked with Collegian reporters revealing that he had received two letters from President Lederle, dated September 28 and October 4, one of which advised him that Yamakai had arranged his working schedule in order to start on the Fine Arts Center October 1.

Perhaps the one individual who could shed much more light on the whole affair is Yamaskai himself. Repeated calls by the Collegian to his Birmingham, Michigan office have found the noted architect perpetually "in conference". At the suggestion of his personal secretary a special delivery letter has been sent to Yamasaki including within it a number of pertinent questions.

RENT A CAR
ECONO-CAR RENTAL SYSTEM
FEATURING CHRYSLER PRODUCTS
GAS INCLUDED
$3.99 PER 12 HRS.
Plus Small Mileage Charge
Springfield 785-5314
Northampton 584-7277
Greenfield 774-4443

DRAKE'S
Village Inn
NEW OPEN HEARTH
—Try Our—
Breakfast at 50¢ — 7 a.m.
Luncheon-Dinner — 11 a.m.
HAM 50¢ PASTROMI 75¢
Ever Available
BONELESS SIRLOIN STEAK
Pot. Salad, Roll $1.49
Wednesday is Peanut Nite
Schuler's Potato Chips

Tremendous Season Finished Saturday

by JOHN GOODRICH

LOOKING BACK over the tremendous season the Redmen have just completed, it is hard to single any one factor as being the difference. This team has been called by Coach Vic Fusia "a complete team" and that is just what is was. It had excellent kicking, fine running, a great defense, top flight ends, and above all fine quarterbacks. A writer in the Springfield Union pointed out that the team lacked a breakaway threat. I tend to disagree with this point. Fred Lewis and Phil DeRose were both capable of going the distance when they got the ball. If Ken Palm and Bob Ellis lacked the speed of a breakaway ball-carrier they made up for it in good moves. Mike Ross and Dick Warren had the power coaches want in a fullback. Ends Morin, Meers, Hudson, DeMinico, and Bourdelais all played well. Morin, Swanson, Vandersea, and Whelchel did fine jobs kicking.

The defensive and offensive lines were great all year. Graham, Pietz, Dallas, Tedoldi, and Burke in the first unit and Hagberg, Kehoe, Brooks, Brophy, and Scialdone on the second team were always right there when the big play had to be made. The rest of the members of the team were also giving their all when they got into the games.

LAST, BUT NOT LEAST, are the two great quarterbacks, Wheichel and Schroeder. The latter really came into his own this year. Fusia had a lot of faith in his second unit this year and with John at the controls his faith was well rewarded. Over the last few games, Schroeder developed into a real pinpoint passer as shown by some of his tosses this year.

Jerry Whelchel was the greatest this year. Some few fans thought his passing was a little off, but no one can believe that after seeing the New Hampshire game. He was one of the leading rushers on the team as well as doing all but one PAT kicking. The fans here at UMass have had the chance to see one of the two best quarterbacks in New England perform. Whelchel displays the coolness under fire that all great QBs have.

In a review of this year one cannot overlook the excellent coaching by Vic Fusia and his staff, Delaney, Glatz, Gladchuk, and Schmitt. These men converted the great potential of the team into a finely tuned machine.

For the future, the outlook is bright. With only six men graduating, the team should have another banner season next fall. Before the season, one national magazine called UMass the sleeping giant of the Berkshires. It looks like that giant has awoke and is just beginning to flex its muscles.

BITS AND PIECES; Whelchel was ECAC qb for this week's team . . . the first two teams played all but the last two minutes of the UNH game . . . While UMass finished the season with its goal line record still holding, it should be interesting to see if it stands against the tougher schedule next fall . . . Morin only got off two long kicks at UNH . . . On the others it appeared that he might be holding back to prevent a long return . . .

For the first time this year all the top ten teams managed wins . . . Some of the scores were pretty close though . . . A big Yankee Conference upset occurred at Kingston where URI downed UConn 13-12.

—Photo by Bob Surrette

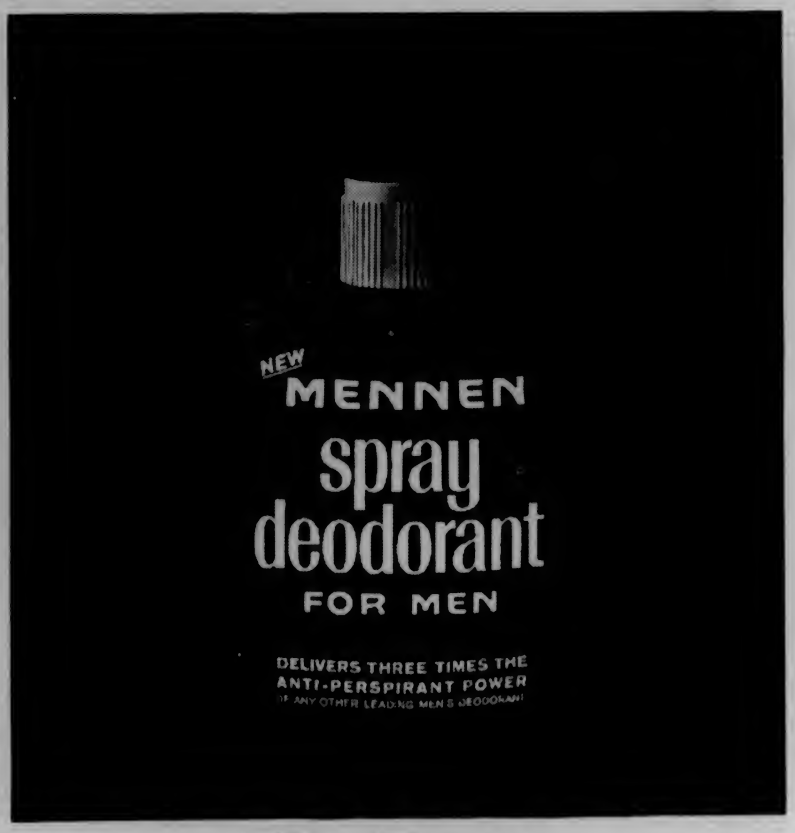
WHEELER HOUSE FOOTBALL TEAM—Front row: Pete Richard, Bob Neal, Bud Pratt, Pete Adams. Back row: Bob Maguire, Ron Dombrowski, Ted Monette, Capt. Bill O'Donnel, Don Falkowski.

Wheeler House Campus Champions

THE WHEELER "TROJANS", CAMPUS INTRA-MURAL FOOTBALL CHAMPS, are a team characterized by amazing comebacks. After losing the opening game to Hills South, the Trojans succeeded in pulling out all their remaining games, most of them last-minute thrillers.

In the championship game the Wheelers took an early lead on a thirty yard touchdown pass from Bud Pratt to Ted Monette; Pratt then swept left end for the point. The Chem. Engineers scored as the half ended to trail 7-6. The Engineers scored immediately as the second half opened to go ahead 12-7, and they appeared about ready to score again and trample the Trojans, when Pete Adams, the "Bug Collector" intercepted a pass deep in Trojan territory. Wheeler then moved upfield, led by some fine blocking by Captain Bill O'Donnell, and scored on a criss-cross pass from Ron Dombrowski to Bob Maguire. The Engineers rebounded to score once more and lead 18-13 with just forty seconds to play. Under pressure, the Trojans covered the length of the field in a mere fifteen seconds. Two efficient passes by Dombrowski, a long one to Pratt and a short one to Don Falkowski in the end zone, gave Wheeler the campus championship.

The Trojans' success was made from one comeback after another. Facing the potent combination of Ryan and Driscoll, Wheeler overcame a 13-0 halftime deficit to tie Greenough 20-20, scoring the equalizer on Pratt's end sweep with one second left. In the campus semi-finals, the Trojans, as in the finals, received the ball, trailing with just forty seconds to play. Bill O'Donnell hauled a sneaky halfback pass from Dombroski across the goal line as time ran out, to tie Greenough.



The Brute

Mennen Spray Deodorant is rugged. Hard working. Long lasting. Delivers 3 times the anti-perspirant power of any other leading men's deodorant. That's right. 3 times the anti-perspirant power. Mennen Spray... in the handy squeeze bottle. What a brute!

Professional Football

by RALPH PROLMAN

IN THE A.F.L: Boston over Buffalo—The Pats will try to break the Sunday jinx and take over second place.

San Diego over Houston—The Chargers are the class of the league and shouldn't have much trouble with the Oilers.

Oakland over Denver — The Raiders should have too many horses for the Broncos.

Kansas City over New York—The Chiefs should end their losing string with a win over the Jets.

IN THE N.F.L.: Baltimore over Los Angeles — The Colts should buck the Rams and entrench themselves in second place.

Chicago over Pittsburgh—Afters, nobody is going to stop the ers, nobody is oging to stop the Bears this year.

Clevland over Dallas—This is a must win for the Brownies if they want to stay in contention in the east.

Minnesota over Detroit—The Lions have been disappointing and the Vikings appear ready to strike.

New York over St. Louis — Tittle will try and bring the Giants a step closer to the title.

Green Bay over San Francisco —The Packers will have to win them all and hope someone downs the Bears for them.

Washington over Philadelphia —Snead and Mitchell will try and outscore Hill and McDonald to move the Redkins out of the eastern division cellar.

VARSITY SKI TEAM

Meeting of candidates for the team will be on Thurs., Nov. 21, at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the S.U.

CREW

Anyone interested in forming a crew team should contact Bob Ford, 420 Baker. Leave name, class, address, and phone number.

SPORTS STAFF

There will be a meeting of the complete Collegian Sports Staff on Sunday, November 24, 1963 at 4 p.m. in the Collegian Office.

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL

Any organization that wishes to have a team in the I.F.C. or I.D.C. Basketball League for the 1963-64 School Year should be represented by the unit Athletic Chairman or a subsitute at a meeting to be held at 7:00 Wednesday, November 20th in the Worcester Room of the Student Union.

BASKETBALL SEASON TICKETS

Season tickets for UMass home basketball games are now on sale in Room 10A of the Men's Physical Education Building. Faculty, staff and graduate students may purchase at special rates. For further information call 545-2691, Mr. Robert O' Connell.

COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Bowl Bid Denied By Athletic Council

by SCOTT FREEDLAND
Sports Editor

THE FACULTY ATHLETIC COUNCIL, Monday, withdrew the undefeated Redmen football team from bowl game consideration. Earlier in the evening a definite bid had been received from Mr. Michael Roman, Chairman of the Eastern Bowl Committee. If accepted the Redmen would have faced undefeated, untied Northeastern University on December 14, at Allentown, Pennsylvania. The equivalent of a bid had been received from the Tangerine Bowl in Tampa, Florida.

Professor George R. Richason speaking for the Athletic Council in his capacity as Chairman stated, "The demands of the season upon the young team of fine athletes and fine students was tough on academics. The extension of the season by acceptance of a bowl bid would place too much of a demand upon the team as students. An extension of the season of five weeks would be too much for them."

THE FULL COUNCIL OF Professor Richason, Dean of the School of Phys. Ed. Warren McGuirk, Professor Arthur Levine, Acting Dean of the School of Engineering Edgar Lindsey, the Assistant Dean of the School of Business, the Dean of Admissions, and four alumni was not able to meet Monday. As a result, the Executive Board using its emergency powers acted for the council which lacked two alumni members living in Boston. Those members unable to attend the meeting were contacted by telephone and concurred with the decision.

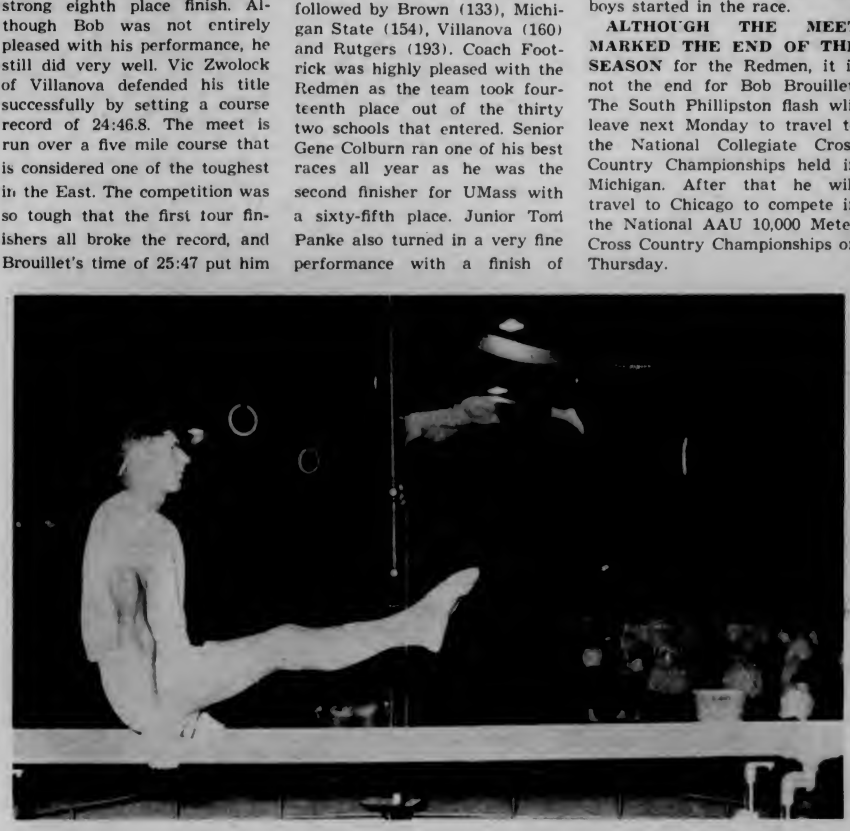
DEAN McGUIRK speaking in his capacity as an council member stated as did Professor Richason that the young team would be affected academically by a bowl acceptance and its results. However, he felt that the refusal of a bowl bid did not set a precedent for the future.

Harriers 14th In IC4A Meet Brouillet Finishes Eighth

THE VARSITY CROSS COUNTRY team closed out its 1963 season Monday competing in the IC4A's at New York. Bob Brouillet paced the team with a strong eighth place finish. Although Bob was not entirely pleased with his performance, he still did very well. Vic Zwolock of Villanova defended his title successfully by setting a course record of 24:46.8. The meet is run over a five mile course that is considered one of the toughest in the East. The competition was so tough that the first four finishers all broke the record, and Brouillet's time of 25:47 put him within 30 seconds of the former standard.

The team was won easily by Notre Dame with an amazingly low score of 55 points. It was followed by Brown (133), Michigan State (154), Villanova (160) and Rutgers (193). Coach Footrick was highly pleased with the Redmen as the team took fourteenth place out of the thirty two schools that entered. Senior Gene Colburn ran one of his best races all year as he was the second finisher for UMass with a sixty-fifth place. Junior Tom Panke also turned in a very fine performance with a finish of seventy-eighth. Sophomore Bob Molvar (97), junior Bob Ramsey (108) and sophomore Al McPhail (140) all turned in good performances. More than 230 boys started in the race.

ALTHOUGH THE MEET MARKED THE END OF THE SEASON for the Redmen, it is not the end for Bob Brouillet. The South Phillipston flash will leave next Monday to travel to the National Collegiate Cross Country Championships held in Michigan. After that he will travel to Chicago to compete in the National AAU 10,000 Meter Cross Country Championships on Thursday.



—Photo by Bill Green

The University Gymnastics team has begun to step up practice towards their first meet on Dec. 11.

UMass Mauls Smith

by R. M. HAFFEY

DETERMINED TO AVOID THE FATE OF "LEDERLE'S LOLLIPOPS" and made prudent by knowledge of their football talents, the UMass math department challenged the Smith College faculty to a touch football game last Saturday at the Smith field.

"Lederle's Lions" triumphed, 24-6, in a hard fought game with "Mendenhall's Mice". Both sides suffered injuries during this gruelling contest; Jerry Martindale of Smith a broken collar bone, and Dick Howland of UMass a cut finger requiring three stitches.

Due to other weaknesses, the UMass team leaned heavily on strategy, introducing the "random play" in which the ball is hiked to the ace ball-handler Gus Efremson and absolutely no one knows what he will do next.

Sparkling performances on the line were turned in by Jim L'Heureux, Ron McHaffey and Dick Howland, while John Sember, Dick Call and Gus Efremson provided a strong pass defense and some surprising offensive maneuvers.

This ARROW is the shirt you should ...and can ...snap up!

It's the new Decton oxford Tabber Snap by ARROW... the shirt with the trim good looks of a traditional tab collar without the fuss and fumble of a collar button. ARROW Decton oxford is a blend of 65% Dacron* polyester and 35% cotton, it's a new oxford that has graduated Cum Laude in the class of wash-and-wear. In short sleeves as illustrated $5.95

*DuPont T.M. for its polyester fiber

Tough Season For UMass Gymnasts

by BEN BARCLAY

STRENGTH, AGILITY, AND FLEXIBILITY ARE THE QUALITIES OF THE GYMNAST. Every weekday from 4-6 the varsity gymnastic team holds its practice in the cage. This year the team is composed mostly of sophomores. There is a lot of potential but it is a young team.

Capt. Dave Williams, Dan St. John, Dick Cardiff, Stan Brallier, and Jim Dusenbury are the boys Coach Kjeldsen pointed out as the ones who may contribute to the success of the team. Others on the team are: Ron Forbes, Bill Heinold, Al Cohen, Felix Mosakewicz, Tom Astoldi, and Ed Frado. Ron Forbes is also the manager.

Because UMass is the only school in the Yankee Conference that has a gymnastic team it is necessary to go out of state to find competition. This year the squad faces last year's three top teams: Penn State, Temple, and West Point. Penn State is the first home meet on Dec. 14, and the team hopes that many of the students will attend. Other colleges the team faces are Southern Connecticut, Ithaca College, and Cortland College.

This year for the first time the

(Continued on page 5)

Ski Instructors

Weekend positions available for skiers to instruct high school boys and girls. Prior instruction experience not required. Good compensation. Excellent ski facilities. Write or Call:

SHAKER VILLAGE SKI GROUP
P.O. Box 1149, Pittsfield, Mass.
Lebanon Springs (N.Y.) 7-1255

—FOR SALE—
'55 Chev, V8 Standard
R & H, Snow Tires, Good Condition and Clean. Asking $250.
Call ED LUPO, AL 6-6453

LIBRARY

College Bowl Team 'Set To Go'

LIBRARY
DEC 12 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

The UMass College Bowl team in their first public practice session, Monday night. Left to right: Dave Mathieson, Bill Landis, Sue Tracy, Mike Berrini, Mrs. Albert Madeira, Dr. Madeira, James Crawford, Mike Hench, Sandy Graham, Jeff Davidow.

by DAVE HARACZ

"WE ARE SET to go down Sunday and do our best. We are determined to win and I think our team is all set to go." So Dr. Albert Madeira, coach of the UMass College Bowl team describes the team which will attempt to upset Ripon College's three-week winning streak over national television Sunday evening.

Dr. Madeira and the members of the team will leave the Student Union tomorrow morning at 8:15 and anyone who wishes to express his hopes for a victory Sunday is invited to come down to see the team off.

IN NEW YORK, the team will receive hotel accommodations and their choice of tickets to Broadway shows before their dress rehearsal and appearance Sunday over NBC television at 5:30 p.m. Besides the campus television sets, which are sure to be crowded, students may tune in to WMUA which will air the show live Sunday evening.

BILL LANDIS is a junior majoring in physics and a resident of Hills House North. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Landis, 173 Prospect St., Northampton, he was graduated in 1961 from Fort Knox (Ky) high school. He is a student senator, an honor student, a brother in Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, and vice-president of Phi Eta Sigma, men's honor society. His specialties for the team include science and mathematics, and he is the team's captain and specialist on toss-up questions.

SUSAN TRACY, a resident of Crabtree House and only woman on the male-dominated College Bowl team, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Tracy, 10A Milton St., Dedham. She is a junior majoring in pre-veterinary medicine, and graduated from Dedham high school in 1961. A Dean's List Student, she has participated in sophomore and junior honors colloquia, she is a member of the editorial board of Caesura. She has also been active as a member of the zoology club and the pre-med club. She is the team's specialist in mythology and literature.

DR. ALBERT MADEIRA has been here at the University since 1951 and is currently an associate professor in the English department. Besides his duties as coach of the College Bowl team. Dr. Madeira is advisor to the Index and the Roister Doisters, and a member of the Collegian Publishing Board; last spring he received the first Metawampe award for his work in honors colloquia in 1963.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Vol. XCIII, No. 29 5¢ Per Copy | University of Massachusetts | Friday, November 22, 1963

Senate Hits Debaters

Fiscal Irresponsibility Bared

COMING TOGETHER at their regular Thursday night meeting, the Senate Finance Committee, under the chairmanship of Senate treasurer Ross Jones, discovered what has been called "fiscal irresponsibility" on the part of the University of Massachusetts Forensic Society.

The major controversy of the evening was concerned with the spending of ninety dollars on the part of the fledgling society in the hiring of a limousine to transport seven members of the squad to and from Middlebury College.

THE MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE tournament had been substituted by the debating society for another contest, originally scheduled on the Society's Senate sponsored budget.

Speaking for the team, President Steve Jenkins informed the Senate Committee that Dean I. Moyer Hunsberger of the College of Arts and Sciences has agreed to make up the difference between the Senate seven cent per mile transportation allowance and the amount actually spent by the team for transportation. For the Middlebury trip the sum would be in excess of seventy dollars.

JENKINS FURTHER stated that Dean Hunsberger has promised to continue the same financial arrangement in the future. It was, however, brought out by committee members that the money had been spent before a written guarantee had been given by Dean Hunsberger, and before the Senate had been informed of the proposed arrangement.

It was pointed out that Dean Hunsberger had agreed to similar terms last year and has not yet paid the Senate bills sent to him.

THE SENATE Committee ruled that until direct notification from Dean Hunsberger, all Debating Society trips will be made by bus, that the Finance Comm. must be informed of all trip changes, and that the Debating Club treasurer is personally responsible for all money withdrawn for trips.

Yamasaki Affair Prompts Reaction

The new Woodrow Wilson School of Public Affairs building at Princeton, designed by Minoru Yamasaki.

Why did the elephant design the Fine Arts Building?

Because he was a Massachusetts architect.

Not particularly funny, but nevertheless indicative, this standard-style elephant joke is making its way around the University of Massachusetts campus.

Disgust with the failure of the Commonwealth to come to final terms with Minoru Yamasaki Associates for the design of the proposed UMass Fine Arts Building is widespread among the students and faculty on the campus.

Many believe that contract negotiations fell through because the Commonwealth was loathe to give the project to a non-Massachusetts architect, thus the elephant joke.

It was stated by UMass trustee John Haigis in a Collegian interview late last week that never in the history of the University has an out of state architect designed any campus building.

The Collegian is still waiting for a reply to the special delivery letter sent to Yamasaki which included several pertinent questions which could do much to clear up the mystery which now surrounds the "Yamasaki Affair."

Repeated attempts on the part of the Collegian to contact the noted architect at his Birmingham, Michigan, office had found him repeatedly "in conference" and unable to speak.

Larson Old Hand With 'Ghosts'

This weekend when the curtain goes up for Ghosts it will be but one in a long line of productions of the famed Ibsen drama.

One member of the University Theatre production staff, Orville K. Larson, has an old acquaintanceship with the show.

Larson, head of theatre activities at the University, recalls working on a 1935 production of the show which started its run at the Robert Henderson Drama Festival, a six-week program sponsored yearly at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, during the thirties.

(Continued on page 6)

Social Pro For SAE Hoaxers

"Strict disciplinary probation" has been ordered by the UMass discipline committee against two Sigma Alpha Epsilon pledges who sent state and Chesterfield police on a wild goose chase Oct. 30 after a bizarre tale of being kidnapped, bound, robbed and dumped on Bofat Hill in Chesterfield by six teen-age gangsters.

The announcement Wednesday by the office of Dean of Men Robert S. Hopkins, Jr., did not elaborate further except to say the two youths had not been suspended.

The disciplinary committee is composed of four faculty members, two students and the deans of men and women as ex-officio members.

As a result of the hoax, perpetrated by Louis A. Porrazzo, 20, of East Boston, a junior, and Emmanuel C. Prokopis, 21, of Peabody, a sophomore, the fra-

(Continued on page 6)

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

DVP PROGRAM

It appears that the Distinguished Visitors Program Committee has misinterpreted its function on this campus. The term "distinguished" does not and should not necessarily imply "famous."

DVP has done a good job of bringing notable figures to our campus, but all too often the most notable thing these people bring with them is their name and reputation.

The DVP interprets its function to bring figures of wide appeal to this campus, and for this misinterpretation pays exhorbitant sums to booking agents and the visitors themselves. (A conservative guess would place the average visitors honorarium between one and two thousand dollars).

We believe that the DVP should investigate the possibilities of occasionally foregoing the "wide appeal" approach to their program and invite to our campus people of less-wide repute and more specific knowledge.

The academician who will appear on our campus merely for the cost of his transportation and who may only appeal to a small fraction of the campus community might be a pleasant change from the "big name" with wide-appeal and little concrete knowledge to impart.

J.S.D.

CRISIS

by MARK CHEREN

"The team's not going to a bowl!"

"We lost Yamasaki!"

"There's overcrowding in the dorms!"

While these issues are important, there is shortly to be made a decision effecting the future of the University which ranks them as frivolities by comparison.

The decision will involve the selection of a new Provost of the University. Given the amount of political maneuvering required of the president of a state university, the brunt of academic policy formulation and administration rests with the Provost.

Whether or not the University will continue to grow in quality as well as quantity will be determined by the man who fills this position more than by any other single individual.

He can be a dynamic force, contributing more to school spirit than tons of artificially devised "traditions." He can fill the vacuum of administrative generalizations with specifics, in other words provide some positive direction to University academic development; or he can be just another cog in the wheel, with little administrative ability and even less creativity.

Which will we get?

Thanks Again

To the Editor:

As student chairman of the University Blood Drive, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many people who helped to make this year's drive so successful.

Special thanks go to Mrs. J. Henry Korson and to Mrs. Harold Watts, who coordinated and directed over 100 volunteer women, to the University Women as a whole for their cooperation and financial support, and to the Student Union officials and staff for their invaluable assistance.

It would be impossible to list the many recruiters in all the dormitories, fraternities, and sororities, but many thanks go to them for a job well done. To the brothers of Alpha Phi Omega, the sisters of Gamma Sigma Sigma, and the large number of students who worked as hostesses and aids at the bank, my thanks are extended. Credit also should be paid to Captain Nilson and the Army ROTC Cadet Corps, for their spirit was more than typical of the campus at its best.

To the Collegian and WMUA, a hearty thanks for a job well done. The drive certainly would not have been possible without your help and cooperation.

And last, I would thank the some 1000 students who volunteered to give blood.

Ralph De Gregorio

Yamasaki

To the Editor:

Having noticed the will in the latest YaHoo, we would like to contribute an ITEM.

Mr. Yamasaki leaves UMass to a local "architect."

R.W.
M.R.

Mortarboard

Poor Attendance At University Convocations

What can be the reason for the poor attendance at University-sponsored convocations? Can it be merely a case of forgetting?

The convocation is geared to the student to inform him of what is being done at his university. Students complain about the fact that they they never hear President Lederle speak or they do not know what is going on! Convocations are called only when there is something worthwhile to be said. Does the average student know for instance: that UMass is becoming the first-choice of intelligent students, that transfers from well-known private colleges are applying in great numbers, that UMass has ninety major buildings, six-hundred faculty members, 8,300 students and 1,000 graduate students, that there are about 1,000 courses offered in the eight schools and colleges. Besides these statistics, UMass has an excellent honors program, one of the finest health services, and one of the leading electronic data processing systems in the country. Admissions records show that UMass has the best academic profile of the six N.E. state universities. These are just a few of the vital statistics which President Lederle presented in his opening address to the students.

It is a student's duty to know what is being done at his school so that he can have pride in it and also be a credit to it. There is much said about the fact that the University is too large and that there are too many limited-interest groups. The University Convocation is the place where each student has one common interest, his university—the one place where there is UMass spirit, not club spirit!

Would you please fill out the short questionnaire which is located elsewhere on this page and deposit it in the SU lobby or with the House Counselors in the women's dormitories.

Mortarboard
Judith Clark

STUDENT RESPONSE

Aloha Mr. Pemple,

May I make a few suggestions that should prevent you from falling into that same slough of ignorance into which you so blindly leaped on November twentieth. In your letter you made a series of erroneous assumptions and unfounded implications. Among the most flagrant of the latter was your presumption that the absence of competition is communism (with the inference that I am a communist). This reveals a fundamental ignorance of political philosophy. Have you never heard of the Welfare State—or more idealistically of Socialism. Has your three year college education been so limited as to maintain you in that typically shallow American viewpoint that there is only Capitalism—that all else is evil? You're not really feeling "with all your heart."

Another of your myopic implications concerns naivete. To answer it I should like to say that it might pay you to look at your history books (that is, if they weren't written under the sponsorship of the National Association of Manufacturers) and particularly to make a careful study of past economic events. If you make this effort you will find that during World War I and II, when the federal government de factorily regulated the American industries, production rates were at their highest. Also, if you should care to study the economic growth, efficiency and security of Sweden, Norway, West Germany, etc., you will be ashamed of the economic condition of our country with its superior resources.

While on this subjest of the results of Capitalism let me refer briefly to your mentioning of the cut-throat days of yesteryear. You don't seem to realize that the overt, barbaric effects of nineteenth century capitalism were slowly alleviated only by a process of socialization, by a gradual realization that the economic welfare of the majority is far more important than that of a few individuals. In short you appear to cling to the ancient evil of rugged individualism.

Mr. Pemple, you are among the few in this world but many in this country who, like Barry Goldwater and the prolific Rick Cass, believe that Capitalism will survive under the onslaught of progress. You are among those who deny the morality of majority welfare and the inevitable trend toward economic democracy. It is you who wish to reverse the clock of history; it is your acceptance of competition among nations as well as individuals that will lead to War and eventually to "no people."

Finally Mr. Pemple, in the interest of knowlege I suggest that you attend the lecture of Norman Thomas November 25, 1963.

Don Aliferis

SHIRER

To the Editor:

I think something should be done about the insults dealt us at the University of Massachusetts by Mr. William L. Shirer, our "Distinguished" visitor on Monday.

To wit:

1. An unorganized rambling of undocumented opinions;
2. A totally unsophisticated topic; (if there was one)
3. A totally unscholarly presentation;
4. A program which anyone could have given; — I expected something exclusively Shirer's.

Certainly the University of Massachusetts deserves a more carefully prepared speaker. Mr. Shirer spoke off the top of his head about virtually nothing. Because we are a state university is our money any different from Harvard's? To be sure, this program would not have gone over at Harvard. I think we were short-changed. Let us be not merely disappointed—I say it is an insult.

We ARE sophisticated and interested here, and we DO deserve a more scholarly program. I think we should make this clear.

A PROUD UMIE
Charles W. Roundy '64

Convocation Questionnaire

CONVOCATION ATTENDANCE QUESTIONNAIRE

1. Do you attend university convocations? .....
2. Did you know about the convocation? .....
3. If you did not go, would you have gone if you had known about it? .....
4. Would you go if you knew more about the program? .....
5. Did you know and just forget? .....
6. Do you have any other reasons for not attending? .....

Mortarboard

The Massachusetts Collegian

MEMBER

Editor-in-Chief:	Jeffrey Davidow '65
Editorial Editor:	John B. Childs '64
Assoc. Editorial Editor:	George Masselam
News Editor:	Elwin McNamara '64
Photography Editor:	Mary Roche
Sports Editor:	Scott Freedland '66
Business Manager:	Courtney Brickman '64
News Makeup Editor:	James Schmalz '65
Feature Editor:	David Axelrod '65

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

High Exposure, Steep Rock Outing Club Pushes On

Several times this fall the Outing Club has run rock-climbing trips to Mount Toby, Chapel ledge, Williamsburg and Ragged Mountain, Conn., also one fanatic recently spent two days climbing in the "Schwangunks" near Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Rock-climbing involves the ascent of high-angle rock including overhangs and ceilings, pitons being used for protection and (or) in extreme cases direct or indirect aid. In "Unbelievable" situations, expansion bolts or studs are used as anchors. Special mountain lay nylon line is used to secure all members of the party and to protect the leader but not, except in extreme cases, to assist the climbers. In this part of Massachusetts there is little opportunity for any but "Drop-rope" climbing which means that one or more members of the party arrive at the top of the cliff by some means not involving rock-climbing and belay (secure against falling) the other members of the party from the top.

Fall Fashions Shown

by NANCY FOGG

The Annual Fall Fashion Show, sponsored by the Special Events Committee, was held on Friday, November 15, at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Soft music formed a background as the eighteen lovely models displayed "what the well-dressed coed will wear this year." The fashions were donated by three shops located in the Amherst area: the House of Walsh, Margaret Nelson's, and Ann August.

Escorted by male models, the girls first showed what's current for sports events, while commentator Linda Muscawitz provided comments on each outfit. Now in style are wrap-arounds, matching sweaters, knee socks, and vests. The more popular colors seem to be red, beige, and green.

For that casual look, coordinating cardigans are the rage. Several models preferred chic, 3-piece outfits: a blouse vest, and skirt of a solid color. Print blouses with solid-color skirts are also popular.

After a short intermission, a lucky young lady received an Avon Gift Set in the drawing for the Door Prize.

For those big ski weekends, why not parkas? And these ranged from a beautiful $400 number edged with fur to more simple quilted ones which give the illusion of velvet. Black, tailored, slim-line ski pants imported from Italy, along with a coordinating vest, will turn any eye in a ski lodge.

Also for the lodge are Norwegian sweaters, ranging from prints to simple colors of gray. After the show, the models selected their 15 favorite outfits for display.

PRESENTATION TO ART FUND

Presentation of a check for $925.00 from President Lederle to Mr. Walter Kamys for the University Art Acquisition Fund. The fund benefited as a result of the Dave Brubeck Concert sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity. Also included are Robert Johnson, President of APO and Richard Strecker, Concert Chairman.

Olver To Teach At Amherst

Dr. John W. Olver of the Chemistry Department at the University has been appointed visiting assistant professor of chemistry at Amherst College for the spring semester, 1964.

Dr. Olver will teach a course in quantitative analytical chemistry, replacing Prof. Cooper Langford who will be on leave for the semester.

Dr. Olver received a bachelor's degree from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and a Ph.D. in analytical chemistry from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His wife, Dr. Rose R. Olver is assistant professor of psychology at Amherst.

THE UNIVERSITY STORE

PRESENTS ITS

6th Annual

Book and Print Fair

Books - Records - Prints - Frames

Nov. 23 through Dec. 4

Commonwealth Room — 9 A.M. - 6 P.M.

MEET-THE-AUTHOR COFFEE HOURS

NOV. 22 — MORRIS GOLDEN — Richardson's Characters

NOV. 25 — ARNOLD KENSETH — The Holy Merriment

DEC. 2 — EDWIN DRIVER — Differential Fertility in Central India

DEC. 3 — LOUIS RUCHAMES — The Abolitionists

DEC. 4 — JOSEPH LANGLAND — Wheel of Summer

4:00 P.M. COLONIAL LOUNGE

Refreshments

MEN!

Here's deodorant protection

YOU CAN TRUST

Old Spice Stick Deodorant...fastest, neatest way to all-day, every day protection! It's the active deodorant for active men...absolutely dependable. Glides on smoothly, speedily...dries in record time. Old Spice Stick Deodorant —most convenient, most economical deodorant money can buy. 1.00 plus tax.

Old Spice STICK DEODORANT

SHULTON

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

by SANDI MAY '64

THREE UMASS CO-EDS model new fashions at last Friday evening's Fashion Show (see story p. 3).

WAA News

On December 3, the 1963 interdorm, inter sorority basketball games will be under way. Practices will be held every Tues. 7:30 to 8:30 and Wed. 6:30 to 7:30 till Dec. 3. You must attend two practices to be eligible to play. Get a team together and win!

Other activities now underway are bowling, Naiads, skiing, and gymnastics. For your own enjoyment participate in one sport.

Pinnings

Barbara Albert, Van Meter No., to Tom Chaddock, DU, Denison University, Ohio.

Donna S. Tabb, TIT, N.Y.U., to James H. Duggan, TKE.

Judy Dill, SK, to Roland Landry, ZN.

ENGAGEMENT

Melanie Rose, Kent State College, Ohio, to Charles Ruma, KS.

SORORITY NEWS

Sorority Activities Center Around Pledges

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON

The sisters of Iota Gamma wish to officially welcome the new pledges into the house. They are Joyce Brackett, class of '65; Judy Stein and Carol Durna, class of '66, and in the class of '67, Kathy Aucoin, Fran Sidek, Maryanne Cote, Diane Dominie, Sherry Ferrara, Elaine Malley, Christina Ryan, Lynn Schapter, Judy Webb and Sandy Whitehead.

We would also like to thank the brothers of TKE for letting us use their house for the ribbon pledging of our pledges and the exchange party.

LAMBDA DELTA PHI

The sisters and pledges of Lambda Phi would like to thank ATG for a most enjoyable exchange supper and after-dinner gathering on Nov. 7.

During the past week the pledges elected their officers: Joannie Bracker, president; Linda Greenberg, secretary; Bonnie Johnson, social chairman, and Janet Keough, Jr., Panhellenic rep.

We also wish to extend a most sincere welcome to our two new initiates, Carolyn Surman and Lynn Weaver.

A final word of thanks to the brothers of Phi Sigma Delta for the pumpkin with "special markings," presented to us as a belated Halloween gift.

SIGMA KAPPA

Last Tuesday was Sigma Kappa's "Pillow, Paddle" party. On this day the mothers give their daughter a paddle and a recognition pin; in return the daughter makes a pillow of the Sigma Kappa colors for her mother. On this night the new pledges also guess who their mothers are through the various clues given them.

We were honored to have visiting us for three days, Mrs. Silvi, our province president. When not visiting chapters in the area Mrs. Silvi is busy with her work as a guidance counselor in Somerville, N. J. She advised us how to improve our academic and social programs and praised us on our new pledge class.

The sisters would like to thank Zeta Nu for the delicious buffet supper.

Congratulations to Alice Pierce on her appointment as executive officer of the Angel Flight.

The Sigmas regret the omission of Kathy Mitchell on our pledge list.

PI BETA PHI

The old familiar routine at 88 N. Pleasant seems pretty dull after all the excitement of hectic rush period.

The pledges, however, have managed to add a little spice with some of their "activities." The pledges have elected their officers, and the sisters would like to congratulate them. Congratulations are also in order to Patti Vernell, Judy Seddon, Patty Seibel and Pat Gully who were invited to pledge Angel Flight.

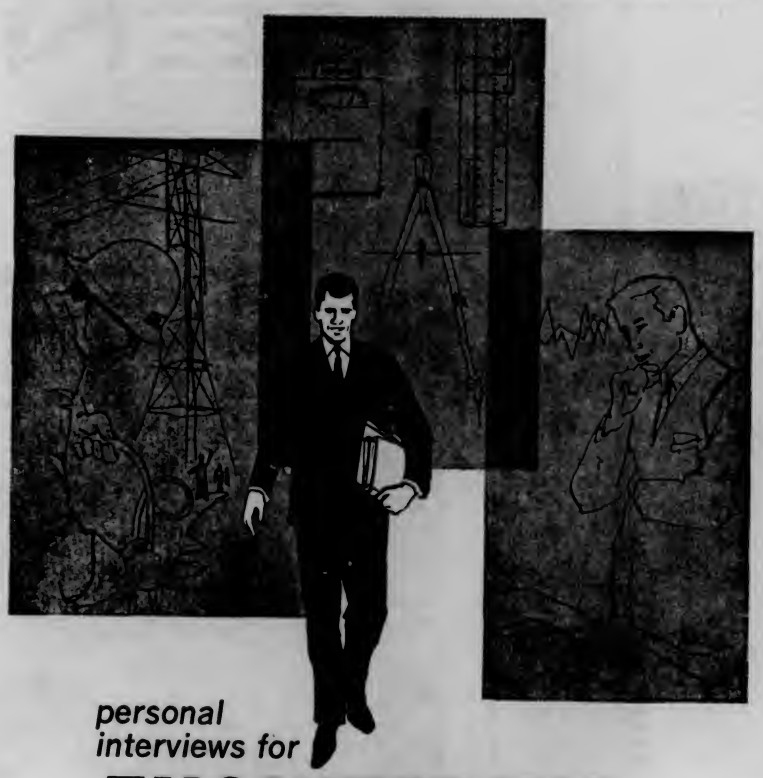
We were very pleased to entertain Mrs. Philip Adams, our province president, during the first few days of this week.

SIGMA DELTA TAU

We would like to introduce our wonderful pledge class: Gale Litchfield, Doris Mogel and Leslie Saltman in the class of '66 and in the class of '67, Linda Berman, Donna Colclough, Mimi Garber, Jeanne Freiden, Jane Greenfield, Nancy Horwitz, Merle Hurwitz, Helene Kliman, Judy Leefe, Lois Leventhal, Ruth Lewis, Latrica McArn, Ellen Paster, Pam Pearce, Sandy Pierce, Diane Rudnick, Carole Rudge, Jean Savage and Margie Zich. Congratulations are in store for the pledge class officers: Pam Pearce, president; Doris Mogel, vice president; Carole Rudge, secretary; Lois Leventhal, treasurer, and Marge Zich, activities. The girls are already planning social events with other sororities and fraternities on campus.
keeping in touch and are enjoying their training.

The sisters and pledges had a wonderful Parents' day Sunday. Displays of sorority and campus life were exhibited for the folks and friends. A question and answer period was held for the parents so that they could learn the hows and whys of sorority life.

We would like to thank the brothers of Sig Ep, TKE and AEPi for wonderful exchange suppers.



personal interviews for

ENGINEERING POSITIONS leading to technical and managerial careers.

18 month training programs.

SEE OUR REPRESENTATIVE WHEN HE VISITS YOUR CAMPUS ON

December 2

PUBLIC SERVICE ELECTRIC AND GAS COMPANY

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

ONE OF THE COUNTRY'S LARGEST SUPPLIERS OF ENERGY

DEERFIELD Drive-In
ROUTES 5 & 10
S. Deerfield, Mass.
—FRI., SAT., SUN.—
PAUL NEWMAN
JOANNE WOODWARD

A NEW KIND OF LOVE
TECHNICOLOR
THELMA RITTER/EVA GABOR/MAURICE CHEVALIER
—ALSO—
Jerry Lewis in IT'S ONLY MONEY

O'BRIEN · SCOTT · WESTON · WHITE · QUESTEL
JONES · TASHLIN · MURRAY · A PARAMOUNT RELEASE —COMING NEXT—
'PEYTON PLACE'
'FAREWELL TO ARMS'

SHE'LL BE GLAD THE GIFT COMES FROM

WINN Jewelers
31 S. Pleasant
Amherst

Fraternity Conference Convenes

American college fraternities will undergo their annual self examination and search for more effective ways to attain their goals when the 54th annual meeting of the National Interfraternity Conference convenes in New York December 5 at the Hotel Americana.

Almost 1000 participants are expected to attend the 3-day meeting, consisting of graduate delegates from 60 member fraternities representing 3500 chapters in 365 institutions, 400 representatives of undergraduate interfraternity councils, together with college deans and student advisors and prominent educators, business and professional leaders active in fraternity administration. As a consultative and coordinating body of all general men's fraternity systems of American and Canadian colleges and universities, the National Interfraternity Conference has been holding annual meetings since its founding in 1909.

Theme of the conference will be based on the ideals of college fraternities in terms of their public image, their dedication to principles, how to adjust to the trends in higher education, their accommodation to the economics of good business management, their leadership capacity and how it can be developed, and how to maintain the highest standards in scholarship and conduct of their internal affairs.

Justice Tom C. Clark of the U. S. Supreme Court and former U. S. Attorney-General in the Truman Administration will deliver the keynote address at the principal banquet on December 6. Justice Clark, a graduate of the University of Texas, is vice president of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Dr. Irving L. Dilliard, professor of journalism at Princeton University and retired editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, will address the opening session of the conference. Dr. Dilliard, a graduate of the University of Il-

(Continued on page 6)

Amherst College To Enroll Transfers

For the first time in this century, Amherst College is actively seeking applications for admission from transfer students—that is, students now enrolled as freshmen and sophomores at other colleges and universities. Particular attention will be given to applicants from junior and community colleges.

Amherst expects an entering class of 300 freshmen in the academic year 1964-65, and in addition will admit up to fifty sophomores or juniors from other institutions.

Commenting on the College's new policy, Dean of Admission Eugene S. Wilson said: "Junior colleges and community colleges are graduating many able young people who, through no fault of their own, could not consider entering a four-year college after leaving high school. It is our hope that we at Amherst can contribute to the education of some of these qualified young men. Fifty represent a tiny fraction of the graduates concerned, but we want to support the work of junior and community colleges which are giving so many boys and girls an opportunity to show that they are ready for serious intellectual work."

Transfer students will receive the same consideration for financial aid as applicants for admission to the freshman class and undergraduates already enrolled at Amherst. Additional scholarship and loan funds will be established for this purpose.

Application may be made to the Admission Office at any time during the year for the fall in which a student intends to enroll, but preference will be given to applications made by May 1.

Committee Plans Trip To Cuba

The following statement is released today by Albert Maher, a spokesman for the Student Committee for Travel to Cuba:

"Because of the interest that has been shown throughout the country concerning not only the constitutional questions regarding the right of an American citizen to travel where he wants, when he wants but also the right to travel to Cuba to see what is happening on that island we are proud to announce that another trip to Cuba will take place this coming June.

"The response of American college and university students to our last trip has been fantastic. To date over 100 students have applied to us to go to Cuba this summer. The Student Committee is therefore announcing that a trip for 500 persons is now being planned. Expense for this trip will again be paid by the Cuban Student Federation. We invite any and all American students, regardless of political beliefs, to join us in seeing for themselves what is really taking place in Cuba.

"The Federal Government has tried to intimidate us by indicting three of the students that went on our first trip and attempting to imprison them for 15 years and fine them $20,000 each. This action by the government is opposed, however, by

(Continued on page 6)

Czap Speaks On Recent Soviet Tour

On Tuesday, November 12, the Russian Club had as its speaker Mr. Czap, from Amherst College, who spoke to the club about his 10 months at the University of Moscow.

In Russia, foreigners with Ph.D.'s do not have the same rank as Russians with Ph.D's. Americans with Ph.D.'s are placed somewhere between a graduate student and an instructor. Mr. Czap said that he himself was allowed to eat with the Russian professors in the cafeteria and he could also use the research facilities.

The process of education is longer than it is in the United States because the men have to spend a number of years in military service which also includes some practical work. So they begin college at the age of twenty.

Students are not encouraged to ask questions, the method of teaching being question and recitation. In the teaching of Russian history, which is always being rewritten, the objective character of the history may be only determined by the goals toward which the society is moving. New goals are only affected by the character of the history. World history is taught as a problem of class struggle.

THOSE CLEAN WHITE ADLERS

Now you're getting the swing of it. All you have to do is be "clean white sock" in your Adlers. Suddenly you find yourself doing just as you please, and the whole world beaming unquestioning approval. You'll like it. Girls love it. And all because of the Adler SC shrink controlled wool sock. In white and a covey of colors. $1.

THE ADLER COMPANY, CINCINNATI 14, OHIO • IN CANADA: WINDSOR HOSIERY MILLS, MONTREAL

Available at:
F. M. Thompson

MUTUAL
FOR STUDENT NEEDS

Zenith Radio
Alarm Clocks
Curtain Rods
Window Shades
Window Screens
Towel Bars
Sports Goods
Tools
Gifts
Extension Cords
Bulbs
Clothes Racks

MUTUAL Plumbing & Heating Co.
63 S. Pleasant Amherst

INTERCOLLEGIATE MIX
Sponsored by Newman Club
Music by the DYNAMICS
Jackets and Ties
At the Newman Center
Saturday, November 23 — 8:00 p.m.
ALL ARE INVITED
Admission Free

TURNTABLE TOPICS

WMUA Will Broadcast College Bowl

by SHERRY SPEARS

"How many records are in the WMUA libe?" Maybe the stalwart stars of the UMass College Bowl team won't be asked this question, but hear what they are, by setting an earphone extension to WMUA as it broadcasts the UMass team in action against Rippon College, Sunday at 5:30.

SLOT SPOT: There's snow in them thar hills. President Lincoln was just assassinated. The #1 record is "Sugar Shack". A potpourre? Yep, that's the name of the new show of the double dj's Pete Johnson and Mike Duggan who bring you the latest ski news, weather, sports and run the musical gamut from Glinka to Goodman.

SPEAR HEARS: Sampler Stars: It's "Morning" "In the Halls of the Mountain King" with "Musicale's" Peer Gynt Suite by Greign. Or, what's flat, black and spins? Why the "firebird Suite" (Wed/8:00) of course! Bumper Crop: You won't find them performing at "Hotel Happiness" but Pete Greenwood will be playing them on "standing Room Only". Who? The Modern Folk Quartet (Warner Bros). Good? "As good as the Kingston Trio" said the Smothers Brothers as they plugged it. Listen? Sure — Saturday 10-1 A.M. "Don't think twice, it's all right" to call Jim O'Hearn (2425-dorm) to request Bachelor's Paradise" by his favorite doll Ann Margret on "Crazy Rhythms" (Fri/8:00) Jazz: On a "Pipeline" from Ron Engel—if you're "Dizzy" over Gillespie, dial "Art of Jazz. (Sun/10 P.M.) Ed Block: Got a half hour? Tune Pam Leger's "Interaction" (Sun/7:30). Final Comment: We have ten thousand dollars new equipment and over 8000 new records in our libe. Anyone interested (?) in joining, just walk through the studio doors and fill out an application.

— Club Directory —

EDWARDS FELLOWSHIP
Supper meeting with Judson Fellowship on Sun., Nov. 24 at First Baptist Church at 6 p.m.

JUDSON FELLOWSHIP
Supper meeting on Sun., Nov. 24 at 6 p.m. Also, on Sat., Nov. 23, there will be a box social and square dance at Bowdith Lodge. The social is at 6 p.m., the dance at 8.

RUSSIAN CLUB
Meeting on Tues., Dec. 2, at 7 p.m. Dr. Tikos will speak. All are invited.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS
Meeting on Mon., Nov. 25, at 6:30 p.m. in the Nantucket room of the S.U. for election of officers. New members invited. Dues will be collected.

Colonel Aykroyd Buys First Ticket To Mili Ball

—Photo by Mary Roche

Colonel Albert W. Aykroyd purchased the first ticket to the 36th annual Military Ball from Cadet Captain David Chiras to start the sale of tickets for the Ball to be held Saturday evening December 7, 1963 in the Ballroom of the Student Union from 8 to 12 p.m.

Tickets are now on sale at the Union ticket window for the University community.

Hoax ...

(Continued from page 1)

ternities' local Kappa chapter house on Sunset Avenue was closed Nov. 12 and the charter was suspended until a review by the national fraternity at the close of the academic year.

University officials said the chapter already was under disciplinary probation because of an infraction on rushing rules earlier this year and hazing such as that practiced on Porrazzo and Prokopis previously was conducted by the chapter, which was against university rules.

IFC ...

(Continued from page 5)

linois and currently a member of its board of trustees, is a past president of Alpha Kappa Lambda as well as Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalism fraternity.

Cuba ...

(Continued from page 5)

many of the leading scholars in the country including such men as Edmond Cahn of New York University Law School, Norman Dorsen of NYU, David Haber of Rutgers, Rupert Emerson of Harvard Gov't Dept., Mark DeW. Howe of Harvard Law, Alexander Meiklejohn of University of Wisconsin, Lawrence Wylie of Harvard, John Fairbank of Harvard and H. H. Wilson of Princeton.

"The Government is acting in an unconstitutional manner and they cannot intimidate us. We therefore serve public notice on them that we intend to violate their public notices and threats and continue to sponsor trips to Cuba.

"Any American student interested in traveling to Cuba this summer is invited to write us for further information."

Larson ...

(Continued from page 4)

Starring as Mrs. Alving was Alla Nazimova, famed Russian actress and movie vamp of the twenties, who had come to the U.S. with the Moscow Arts Theatre in 1921 and stayed here.

Although a movie femme fatale, Nazimova developed into a fine tragic actress, commented Larson, with Ibsen as her forte.

It was "a marvelous experience," remarked Larson about the production, which did much to add luster to the fame of the Norwegian playwright's naturalistic work.

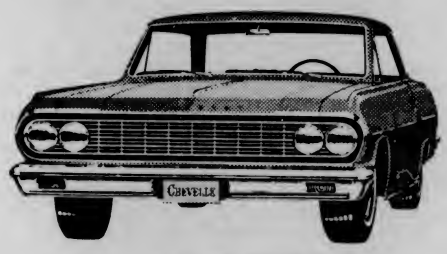
Ghosts, the second University Theatre production of the season, went onstage last night at Bowker Auditorium. It will be performed again tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15 and tomorrow afternoon at 2:15.

Tickets are on sale at the Student Union ticket counter and will be available at the box office.

MORE KINDS OF CHEVROLETS THAN EVER BEFORE!

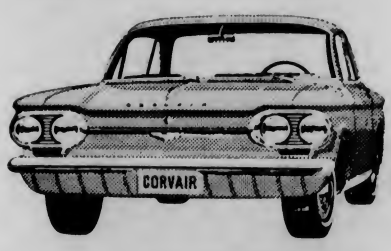
CHEVROLET

JET-SMOOTH LUXURY CHEVROLET 15 models. Four series. One brand-new series—the Impala Super Sports. More luxury, too. Even the Biscaynes are now fully carpeted. There's seven different engines' worth of power—140 hp to 425 hp (optional at extra cost). It's a matter of knowing if you'd like your luxury on the gentle side or on the other side.
Model shown: Impala Sport Coupe



TOTALLY NEW CHEVELLE! 11 models. Three series. An entirely new line of cars sized a foot shorter than the big cars, so you get the handling ease of smaller cars. But don't sell it short! Chevelle gives you generous passenger and luggage room. Engine choice: 120 to extra-cost 220 hp.
Model shown: Malibu Sport Coupe

NEW CHEVY II Six models. Two series—Nova and Chevy II 100. Both now offer an extra-cost 195-hp V8 or a 155-hp six, to give you more Chevy II power than ever before. Match this added power with Chevy II thrift, and you can see why Chevy II will be harder than ever to keep up with this year.
Model shown: Nova 2-Door Sedan



NEW CORVAIR Seven models in four series. Two Greenbriers. A new standard 95-hp engine (nearly 19% livelier). An extra-cost 110-hp engine on all Corvairs and a 150-hp Turbocharged engine in the Monza Spyder. Styling? Never been cleaner. Interior? Never been brighter. Fun to drive? Never been more so.
Model shown: Monza Club Coupe

NEW CORVETTE Two models—the Sport Coupe with a new one-piece rear window plus improved interior ventilation, and the dashing Sting Ray Convertible. Both boast smoother rides, improved sound insulation. Both go with four big V8's, including a new extra-cost 375-hp engine with Fuel Injection.
Model shown: Sport Coupe

Ask about a SMILE-MILE Ride and the Chevrolet Song Book at your Chevrolet dealer's

AMHERST Cinema
SHOWCASE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS

—ENDS SATURDAY—

WALT DISNEY presents 20,000 Leagues UNDER THE Sea
CINEMASCOPE TECHNICOLOR

• LATE SHOW •
Friday 11:15 p.m.
Jules Dassin's
"PHAEDRA"
with Melina Mercouri

—SUN., MON., TUE.—
"Wives And Lovers"
with
Janet Leigh

'Nonviolence' At U. of Chicago 'Nonfootball' Team Game

CHICAGO (CPS) — The University of Chicago's Stagg Field looked more like Birmingham than a football arena last Friday, November 8th, as 200 students delayed and hampered a game for two hours by sitting in across the fifty yard line.

The sit-in, which had been threatened on several earlier occasions, was finally triggered by an announcement Thursday that CBS-TV would film the game between Chicago and North Central College. The demonstration, its sponsors said, was to protest the "undue publicity" the broadcast would give football at the University.

The administration line is that there is no football team but only a "football class" which happens to hold "scrimmages" with neighboring schools. Some students say it looks like football to them, since classes are held complete with cheerleaders, programs, and up to 1000 spectators. (Football was officially dropped at Chicago in 1939.)

Before game time Friday demonstrators seated themselves in the middle of the field and withstood the attempts of university officials, campus and city police to remove them. Several students were detained by the police but released without charges.

Since the fifty yard line was covered by seated students, the opening kickoff was to have been held on the 20. One of the demonstrators, however, managed to steal the ball which again delayed play.

When asked for comment of Chicago's 7-6 loss, coach Sid Stein said, "It was an unusual play we lost on — a fumbled lateral."

Demonstrators' signs read Ban the ball, "Hutchins is our leaders," and "No big ten, no little ten, no middle ten."

George Wells Beadle, chancellor of the university said. "If they don't like our football policy, they can leave."

Football ...

(Continued from page 8)

He scored five touchdowns and successfully kicked 34 of 36 extra points for a total of 64 points. He kicked the first eight of the season, had one blocked in the Rhode Island game, then tied a UMass record by making 23 straight before having his only poor kick go astray at New Hampshire. Whelchel also intercepted three passes, returning one for 50 yards at Connecticut and recovered one fumble.

But balance is evident in the offensive listings. Eight backs netted 129 or more yards rushing. Following Whelchel were junior fullback Mike Ross with 287 yards, junior halfback Ken Palm, 260, senior fullback Dick Warren, 227, junior halfback Phil DeRose, 211, junior halfback Fred Lewis, 178 (who missed the final 5 games with leg injury), sophomore fullback Dave Kelley, 151, and sophomore Bob Ellis, 129. Overall UMass churned out 1941 net yards rushing, another UMass record, which breaks down to 215 per game.

Junior qb John Schroeder backed Whelchel in passing. The '63 rifileman hit on 18 of 29 attempts for 274 yards, a .620 percentage, three td's and 15 yards per completion. Overall the Redmen gained 1121 yards through the air—124.5 per game.

SPORTS STAFF

There will be a meeting of the complete Collegian Sports Staff on Sunday, November 24, 1963 at 4 p.m. in the Collegian Office.

13 Football Deaths Since 1959 Uniform Culprit, Program Studied

THIRTEEN DEATHS in high school and college football since 1959 have been attributed to heatstroke and all of them could have been prevented, according to the November 25th issue of a national magazine. The culprit, says the article, is the football uniform. Well-designed to protect the player from outside violence, it can be a disastrous heat accumulator.

The essential research into the subject has been conducted at Ohio State University. Dr. William F. Ashe, one of the world's foremost authorities on heat stress and a participating doctor in the study at OSU, is quoted as saying: "Under certain conditions, the uniform can be a death trap."

HEAT EXHAUSTION AND HEATSTROKE, to which football players are particularly susceptible and which have led to such fatal results in the sport, can be brought on when sweat is prevented from evaporating properly: instead of cooling as it should, the body temperature rises rapidly. When it reaches 106°, the central nervous system can not cope with the load. Death is very likely to occur when the internal temperature reaches 110°. Half the cases of heatstroke are fatal; even in cases where a life is saved by quick attention . . . brain damage may occur.

According to the article, which describes the techniques of the research, the OSU team found by comparing athletic activity in a scrub suit (a loose-fitting garment) and activity in a football uniform that both temperature and water loss increase markedly when the uniform is worn. More important, the article reports, "the temperature of the subject in a football uniform continued to rise after he stopped exercising and dropped to normal much more slowly." Pinpointed as the most culpable areas of the uniform are the padded sections and the helmet. Means of allowing greater air penetration are indicated.

The hazards of heat stress can be reduced in other ways. OSU experience has shown that:

- Players should be "acclimatized" to the heat load to be born; a 5-6 day program, for 90% protection, is outlined.
- Players should remove their helmets in lulls during practice or timeouts.
- Players should be allowed to drink water freely while working out and playing, provided they continue to take salt along with it.
- Practice and game sessions should be adapted to weather conditions. There are various recommendations here, "when the temperature turns between 90° and 100° and the humidity is at 70%, practice should be postponed or sharply curtailed."

A full acclimatization program is being conducted at the University of Oklahoma under Coach Bud Wilkinson and Trainer Ken Rawlinson. It is described in the article and is cited as a model of how much can be done under present conditions.

X-Country ...

(Continued from page 8)

College and the lads from Providence, Rhode Island. The frosh were without a doubt outclassed in these meets. PC went on to an undefeated season and victory in the New England Championships. Such opposition is tough to combat.

Although this year's frosh harriers weren't able to emmulate past Mass yearling performances, they did gain experience in college running. Strength and endurance are two requisites for cross country running and the frosh have learned both. Such learning was made possible by Coach Cobb, who spent many hours in practice with his runners.

CREW

Anyone interested in forming a crew team should contact Bob Ford, 420 Baker. Leave name, class, address, and phone number.

Beethoven Broadcast By Famed George Szell

For his first guest appearance with the New York Philharmonic during the 1963-64 season, George Szell, permanent conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra, will offer an all-Beethoven program during the broadcast on Sunday, Nov. 24 at 8 p.m. over WFCR. Guest soloist in a performance of Beethoven's Fourth Piano Concerto will be the well-known pianist Robert Gasadesus.

Leonore Overture No. 3 in C Major, Opus 72A—While concertgoers are more familiar with the three "Leonore" Overtures and the "Fidelio" overture which Beethoven wrote for his only opera, a fifth version, apparently in the composer's own hand and a variant of Leonore No. 2, was discovered in 1926.

Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, No. 4, in G Major—Beethoven, like Mozart, wrote most of his piano concertos for himself as piano soloist, and withheld them from publication for a time, until he had made good use of them. The Fourth was completed in 1806 and Beethoven played it for the first time at a private concert in Vienna in March of 1807.

Symphony No. 5 in C minor, Opus 67—Beethoven was at work on this most popular of symphonies for some four years (1804-1808), interrupting its composition to write another symphony which became the Fourth, the Violin Concerto and the above-mentioned Fourth Piano Concerto.

DRAKE'S VILLAGE INN
Now Open Month
Try Our
• Breakfast at 50c from 7 a.m.
• Luncheon - Dinner from 11 a.m. til 11 p.m.
STEAK SANDWICH & SALAD 99c
HAMBURG 50c HOT PASTRAMI 75c
☆ OUR EVER-AVAILABLE SPECIAL ☆
Boneless Sirloin Steak, Pot., Salad, Roll, $1.49

HAY RIDES
Accommodations Up to 60
For Information Call:
ROBERT ANDERSON
WHATELY, MASS.
Tel. South Deerfield 665-9262

Let
THE UNIVERSITY STORE
help make a happy booklover out of every child you know!
6th Annual
Book—Print Fair
Nov. 23 thru Dec. 4
COMMONWEALTH ROOM
9 A.M. to 6 P.M.

Integrity — Service
Friendly Advice
ART RUGGLES'
SKI SHOP
17 High Street
GREENFIELD, MASS.
Ski Coach, Deerfield Academy
OPEN EVENINGS TO 9 P.M.
PHONE 774-4855

TABLE TENNIS
BALLS
and
PADDLES
A. J. Hastings
INC.
Newsdealer & Stationer
So. Pleasant Street — Amherst

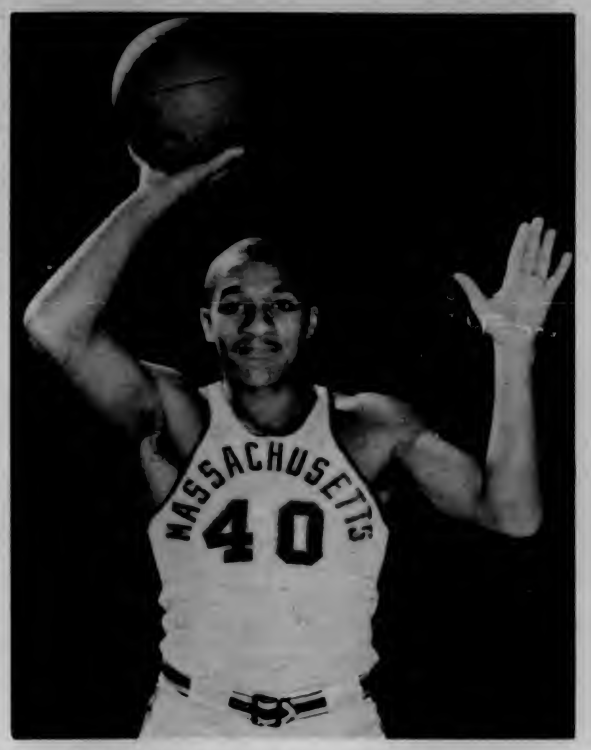
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Hoopsters Ready To Go Public Scrimmage Monday

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS BASKETBALL FANS can get a preview of what's in store for the 1963-64 season when Coach Johnny Orr puts the Redmen through a game-condition scrimmage Monday night, November 25 in Curry Hicks Cage.

Orr has divided the varsity into two teams—the Whites and the Maroons. Assistant Coach Jack Leaman will direct the Whites while Assistant Coach Vince Eldred will handle the Maroons. The varsity inter-squad scrimmage will start at 8:15 p.m. and will be preceded by a freshmen inter-squad scrimmage at 6:45.

Referees Hy Meyers, John Bak, Tony Bak and Stan Ziomek will handle the officiating. The game is open to the UMass student body as well as the general public. It will be a good opportunity to see the facelifting that Curry Hicks Cage has undergone. The court now runs North-South, seating has been increased to approximately 4,500 and a completely new floor and baskets have been installed.



REDMEN VARSITY CO-CAPTAIN PETE BERNARD

FOOTBALL WRAP-UP

Team Balance And Consistency Secret Of Redmen Success

"BALANCE AND CONSISTENCY." University of Massachusetts' Head Coach Vic Fusia used these words many times this fall in explaining the reasons for the outstanding defensive and offensive success of the Redmen who compiled the finest undefeated record in UMass' football history.

Enroute to the 8-0-1 season's mark the Redmen virtually rewrote the record book with a set of statistics that are an epitome of Fusia's secret for success—balance and consistency. The Yankee Conference champions allowed only 12 points in nine games, the best record in America since the great Duke team of 1938 and the best mark in New England since the 1934 Tufts team.

Statistics oftentimes can be misleading, but not so in the case of UMass. A total team effort is evident. When Maine's tricky soph quarterback Dick DeVarney plunged over for a touchdown at 10:25 of the first period in the season's opener he became the only opposing player to reach the Redmen end zone all fall. The next 529 minutes, 35 seconds found the UMass goal line more difficult to cross than the Berlin Wall. The only other points came on a Connecticut field goal in the fourth game and a safety in the closing minutes of the finale at New Hampshire. Thus the Redmen were generous — allowing the opposition to score in every possible manner, touchdown, field goal, extra point and safety.

DEFENSIVELY THE RUGGED UMASS FORWARD WALL allowed just 475 yards rushing, which breaks down to 52.8 per game or 1.7 per carry. The secondary backed this up with a pass defense that plucked off 24 interceptions, allowed only a 40% pass completion mark and no TD passes. Fifteen Redmen took part in the 24 interceptions while 10 Redmen accounted for fumble recoveries.

The Redmen by no means neglected offense. UMass rolled up 265 points, a new school record, for an average of 29 points per game. Over the final seven games the offense clicked for 251 points or 36 per game.

AT THE HEAD OF THE LIST STANDS junior quarterback Jerry Whelchel. Time and again Fusia has stated he wouldn't trade Jerry for any other quarterback in the East. Jerry led the team in passing with 53 completions in just 87 attempts, a .609 percentage, for 848 yards, nine touchdowns and 16 yards per completion. He only had five passes intercepted.

Jerry showed his running ability by gaining 438 yards. Subtracting the 134 yards he lost on pass attempts still leaves him with a team-leading net of 304.

(Continued on page 7)

BASKETBALL SEASON TICKETS

Season tickets for UMass home basketball games are now on sale in Room 10A of the Men's Physical Education Building. Faculty, staff and graduate students may purchase at special rates. For further information call 545-2691, Mr. Robert O' Connell.

Frosh X-Country

CROSS COUNTRY FOR THE FRESHMEN HAS COME TO THE END of the line for this season. The little Redmen did not have a year noted for successes, but one marked by consistent improvement which could very definitely spell out a fine varsity unit next fall. Individual standouts were few and far between for the Mass frosh. Bob St. Clair and William Thoms were the main sparkplugs throughout the season and both will definitely be varsity material in '64.

Inconsistency was the key word in summing up this years intercollegiate meets. Each individual run seemed to produce a new leading runner for the freshmen; however, the inability to group these successful performances led to the losing season.

The meets involving the Coast Guard Academy, the University of Rhode Island Rams, and the New Hampshire Wildcats were undoubtedly the best run this season. The Coast Guard meet opened the fall slate for the frosh harriers in New London. Coach Justin Cobb's charges came out on the long end of the score but nevertheless ran a fine race. Against Rhode Island and New Hampshire, two Yankee Conference foes, the young Redmen came out in front. Strong efforts by St. Clair, Thoms, and Charles Douglas highlighted the two lone victories of the schedule.

The UM frosh didn't fare too badly in defeat. It has to be taken into consideration that the boys had to run against perennial winners the likes of Springfield

(Continued on page 7)

Lots For Sale
Lots of Candy
Lots of Fruit
Lots of Goodies
Quality Fruit Store
Amity Street

Ski Instructors
Weekend positions available for skiers to instruct high school boys and girls. Prior instruction experience not required. Good compensation. Excellent ski facilities. Write or Call:
SHAKER VILLAGE SKI GROUP
P.O. Box 1149, Pittsfield, Mass.
Lebanon Springs (N.Y.) 7-1255

NOTICE Save
Worcester County Students!
Direct Bus Service
University of Mass.
Amherst
Worcester
Express

EASTBOUND to Worcester

	Fri.	Fri.	Sat.	Sun.
Amherst
U of M, Girls' Dorm	12:45 pm	4:45 pm	12:45 pm	6:25 pm
U of M, Student Union	12:50 pm	4:50 pm	12:45 pm	6:25 pm
Center, (Walsh's Store)	12:55 pm	4:55 pm	12:55 pm	6:35 pm
Arrive
Belchertown (Jackson Store)	1:15 pm	5:15 pm	1:15 pm	6:55 pm
Ware (Town Hall)	1:35 pm	5:35 pm	1:35 pm	7:15 pm
West Brookfield (Town Hall)	1:42 pm	5:42 pm	1:42 pm	7:22 pm
Brookfield (Crossroads Inn)	1:55 pm	5:55 pm	1:55 pm	7:35 pm
East Brookfield (Main St.)	2:00 pm	6:00 pm	2:00 pm	7:40 pm
Spencer (Town Hall)	2:06 pm	6:06 pm	2:06 pm	7:46 pm
Leicester (Center)	2:15 pm	6:15 pm	2:15 pm	7:55 pm
Worcester (Union Bus Terminal)	2:40 pm	6:40 pm	2:40 pm	8:15 pm

WESTBOUND to Amherst

Leave
Worcester	2:50 pm	7:00 pm	2:50 pm	8:30 pm
Arrive
Leicester	3:10 pm	7:20 pm	3:10 pm	8:50 pm
Spencer	3:20 pm	7:30 pm	3:20 pm	8:00 pm
East Brookfield	3:25 pm	7:35 pm	3:25 pm	9:05 pm
Brookfield	3:32 pm	7:42 pm	3:32 pm	9:12 pm
West Brookfield	3:39 pm	7:49 pm	3:39 pm	9:19 pm
Ware	3:50 pm	8:00 pm	3:50 pm	9:30 pm
Belchertown	4:10 pm	8:20 pm	4:10 pm	9:50 pm
Amherst—(Center)	4:30 pm	8:40 pm	4:30 pm	10:10 pm
Amherst—(Univ. of Mass.)	4:35 pm	8:45 pm	4:35 pm	10:15 pm

Save NOTICE
KEEP YOUR PARTY TOGETHER
CHARTER COACHES FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Western Mass. Bus Lines, Inc.
Northampton, Mass.
Tel. 584-6481

NOTE EXTRA TRIPS—For the Holiday closing of the U. of Mass. our 2-trip Friday schedule will run Tuesday, November 26

LIBRARY

THE MASSACHUSETTS
COLLEGIAN
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

LIBRARY
DEC 12 1963
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

VOL. XCIII, NO. 30 5¢ PER COPY | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1963

Traffic Rules Changed, Specific Fines Set Up

by TERRY STOCK

Uniform penalties for driving violations have finally come to the University of Massachusetts. From now on, not only will students know what fines must be paid for specific violations, but they will at last know what does or does not constitute a violation.

In order to provide "reasonable" penalties for the violation of auto regulations, the Trustees of the University of Massachusetts, who are responsible for the rules for control, movement and parking of vehicles on campus, have unanimously voted amendments to the traffic rules and regulations previously approved.

The following offenses subject the offender to the fines indicated:

(a) Falsification of university vehicle information $25
(b) Using fictitious, falsely made or altered university vehicle registration decal or permit $25
(c) Loaning a registered motor vehicle to a student not eligible to operate a motor vehicle $15
(d) Operation of a motor vehicle by a student not eligible to operate a motor motor vehicle $15
(e) Using a special permit to operate a motor vehicle for other than purpose of issue $5
(f) Failure to display appropriate university registration or parking decals on a registered vehicle $5

Offenders will be summoned to the District Court for Hampshire County for these violations. Should they be subject to disciplinary action or other penalties levied by the University officials, they may appeal to the proper courts of law.

To guide the courts in dealing with University students accused of serious offenses, the Trustees have stated that "The court may impose such fine, penalty, or both, as would be appropriate for a like offense if committed upon the public ways of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

Registration of vehicles was not neglected in the amendments. An initial fee of $3.00 MUST be paid for vehicle registration. In addition, an annual fee of $1.00 is charged for registration of a vehicle. The transfer of registration from one vehicle to another will cost 50 cents. No refunds will be made for cancellation of the registration permit during the year.

Thursday's Tuesday, Friday's Monday

Thursday's Tuesday and Friday's Monday. Sound confusing? Actually it is just part of the memorandum issued by President Lederle which reads as follows:

On the recommendation of the University deans, the class schedule will be continued beyond the published date for termination of classes prior to the Christmas vacation (now set after classes on Wednesday, December 18) to include Thursday and Friday, December 19 and 20.

In order to balance the schedule, the Tuesday class schedule will be followed on Thursday, December 19, and the Monday class schedule will be followed on Friday, December 20. The Deans have further recommended that no examinations be scheduled on either Thursday or Friday.

Civil Rights Topic Of Fri. Lecture

JOHN ROCHE

John Roche, nationally recognized authority on civil rights, will appear on the UMass campus Friday afternoon to deliver a lecture on the development of civil liberties in modern America.

Mr. Roche, the current chairman of the Department of Politics at Brandeis University, is being brought to UMass under the joint auspices of this University's departments of History and Government.

A distinguished historian and political scientist, Professor Roche has written many books, monographs and articles. His latest book "The Quest for The Dream: The Development of Civil Liberties in Modern America" published this year, will serve as the basis and topic for his lecture.

It is expected that Professor Roche will touch on many topics pertinent to the current civil rights struggle.

All faculty and students are invited to attend the lecture which will be held at 5 P.M., Friday, December 6, in the Middlesex room of the Student Union.

PARKING

The ban on all night street parking in Amherst, which went into effect December 1, will continue until April 1, Police Chief Francis E. Hart announced.

Cars found parked in the streets during the night from now on will be towed away at the owner's expense.

Hopes For Yamasaki Fade Trustees Solicit New Firm

THE COLLEGIAN HAS learned that the famous firm of Eero Saarinen Associates has been approached by the University to take the commission of designing the UMass Fine Arts Center.

This would seem to indicate that the University has given up in its attempts to secure services of Mincru Yamasaki to design the building which is to become the key point of the campus.

THE FIRM of Minoru Yamasaki Associates was designated by the Board of Trustees last year to take the contract for the Fine Arts Center, however due either to reluctance on the part of Yamasaki to come to final terms with the State or foot dragging on the part of State or University officials the contract was never signed.

IT HAS BEEN reported that the decision to contact Saarinen Associates was made at a meeting of the Buildings and Grounds committee of the Board of Trustees on the Friday before Thanksgiving recess. Two members of the Saarinen firm were recently on campus and showed great interest in taking the commission.

There has been no official announcement on the part of the University administration which would indicate that the Saarinen Associates have been contacted or that Yamasaki has refused to renegotiate.

HOWEVER, NUMEROUS attempts on the part of the Collegian and numerous reported attempts on the part of State house to reach Yamasaki by phone and special delivery and registered mail have failed.

The University may be holding up on official announcement until all necessary papers are signed and the contract is made definite.

Eero Saarinen died at the age of fifty-one in September of 1961. However, behind him he has left a legacy of architectural brilliance. Among many of the buildings that he designed or left partially designed at his death are the CBS skyscraper in New York, the TWA terminal at Idlewild Airport, and perhaps the most famous of all, Washington's Dulles International Airport. His firm is still carrying on architectural work under his name.

UMass College Bowl Team Rescheduled To January 26

THE PERFORMANCE of the UMass College Bowl team, scheduled for November 24 and cancelled to provide coverage for the events following the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, is now rescheduled for Sunday, January 26.

Because the schedule of schools in line to play in the Bowl is determined well before the time of the actual performance, cancellation of the UMass-Ripon show necessitated the long delay before a new time slot was available.

THOSE WHO have received tickets for the November 24 show and the bus trip to New York may return their tickets to the RSO office for a refund, and the names of all ticket-holders will be recorded so that they may receive preference for tickets for the January 26 show. Because the show is scheduled during intersession, it is believed that many more students will be able to see the performance on television or travel to New York to see it live at Radio City.

Bus transportation to New York for the show is once more being considered.

THIS SUNDAY, Ripon College, which was to have been our opponent in the November 24 show, will defend its four-week winning streak and attempt to establish a five-week perfect record.

With the pressures of finals out of the way and the extra time to practice, the UMass team will approach its yet-unknown opponent with even more confidence than it displayed before the scheduled November show.

Tragedy Causes Cancellations

THE RECENT national tragedy caused a number of changes in scheduled events at the University.

Because of the need to provide make-up classes, the Christmas vacation period will be shortened by two days. Classes will be held on Thursday and Friday, Dec. 19 and 20. Originally, classes were to have terminated on Wednesday, Dec. 18.

THE THREE performances of Ibsen's "Ghosts," to have been presented last weekend, have been rescheduled for Friday and Saturday, Dec. 6 and 7. Performances will be held in Bowker Auditorium on the two evenings at 8:15 p.m. and on Saturday afternoon at 2:15 p.m. The Student Union Box Office will open on Dec. 4.

The debut of the University's Symphony Orchestra, originally scheduled for last week, will now be heard on Thursday, Dec. 12, at 8:15 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

THE MILITARY Ball, which was to hahve been held on Dec. 7, will now be held on January 11, 1964. The change in plans is due to the decision of the Armed Forces to place a 30-day moratorium on all military events out of respect for the late President.

The appearance of Socialist

(Continued on page 6)

Toronto Symphony In Thurs. Appearance

THE TORONTO SYMPHONY Orchestra, under the direction of Walter Susskind, will appear in a concert this Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Curry Hicks Cage.

The concert is sponsored by the UMass Concert Association as part of its 1963-64 series.

Formed in 1906

THE TORONTO SYMPHONY, a major musical organization in Canada since its formation in 1906, made its first appearance in the United States in the 1951-52 season. This was the first of several engagements, including two performances at New York's Carnegie Hall. The Symphony is now on its first extensive American tour.

Conductor Walter Susskind started his career with the Symphony in 1956. He came to Toronto after completing a three-year engagement as conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, Melbourne. Prague-born Susskind has also been conductor of such famous organizations as the Sadlers Wells Opera, Royal Carl Rosa Opera, Glyndebourne Opera. He has also guest conducted all the leading British

(Continued on page 3)

COLLEGIAN Editorial Page

JOHN KENNEDY

The Man, The Myth And The Stadium

A major aim of any Republic is to count among its citizenry a highly informed and intelligent electorate. To be so, the electorate must be able to cope with the reality of any situation without being encumbered by myth or emotional thought.

Therefore the creation of any myth is an injustice both to the Republic and to its electorate.

We, along with you, mourn the death of John Fitzgerald Kennedy. The tragedy is not that a great President was murdered, for John Kennedy was not yet great. The tragedy is that the potentially greatest of all Presidents will never have the chance to realize his full potentialities.

However, we look with dismay upon the myth that is already being created about John Kennedy. The dedication or renaming of various roads, buildings, parks, military installations and so forth, is only a manifestation of this already growing myth. We feel that is is unfair to the future to deify a man of the present.

We need only to look at many of the current misconceptions concerning the philosophy of Abraham Lincoln to understand the historic distortions that can take place at the hands of a popular myth.

Therefore, we believe the proposal that will reach the floor of the Student Senate this evening, which asks that President Lederle and the Board of Trustees be recommended to name the soon to be constructed football stadium the John Fitzgerald Memorial Stadium is a poor one.

We do not doubt the sincerity of the author of the bill. He, along with many other Americans, has felt the need to do "something" to record their grief over the passing of the President.

We feel that the dedication of a stadium in the name of our late President is a far too easy way of showing our grief and atoning for the guilt that we must all share for his assassination. If we are to dedicate anything, let it be ourselves. Let us dedicate our lives to making our society a more habitable place for all men. Let us "do for our country."

J.S.D.

YAMASAKI

A Call To Faculty Senate

It now appears that the firm of Minoru Yamasaki Associates will not design the University's Fine Arts Center.

It also appears that the University is attempting to secure the services of the equally accomplished architectural firm of Eero Saarinen Associates. This is good. We sincerely believe that a firm of the caliber of Yamasaki or Saarinen must be given the commission for the Fine Arts Center if it is to be of the architectural excellence promised.

However, with all the words written on the subject of the "Yamasaki Affair", as it has come to be called, one fact still remians: no definite reason has been offered by any of the parties concerned as to why the negotiations with Yamasaki fell through.

The Collegian has done its utmost in bringing all the facts concerning the Yamasaki Affair to the campus community.

We feel that it is time for another organization to take an active interest in the situation, and this organization is the Faculty Senate.

With the weight of the entire faculty behind it the Faculty Senate can and should demand a full explanation from the administration as to why negotiations with Yamasaki were not completed.

It is the duty of the Faculty Senators, as citizens of the campus and of the State, to expose the facts behind the whole affair.

They should be guided in their actions by the knowledge that they are searching for Truth and should therefore be unafraid of upsetting the proverbial apple cart.

J.S.D.

On The Death

The Ideas Of November

. . . Men, wives, and children stare, cry out, and run,
As it were doomsday.

So it was on November 22, 1963 as on the Ides of March, 44 B.C. Adlai Stevenson had a "feeling" the day before the 35th President of the United States left for Texas. But how do you say to a man of courage "Mr. President, don't do your duty because I have a premonition . . ."

Mr. Stevenson did not make a call and there was no one to even whisper in John Kennedy's ear, "Beware the Ides of March?"

This modern, antiseptic world of ours has a way of taking the glamor out of great events. So the man who shot Kennedy was named Harvey Oswald instead of John Wilkes Booth or Marcus Brutus.

And the assassination left in its wake not even a shouted "Sic Semper tyrannis!" or a whispered "Et tu Brute" but only a half eaten chicken sandwich on the fifth floor of a Dallas warehouse.

Over my glass of beer in the local pub, I saw the District Attorney of Dallas stand up before the world and say "The Dallas police department did a good job," (So what if the U.N. ambassador had been assaulted, the President murdered, and his murderer murdered, all in a month?) and then the local Dallas announcer decided that "the People of Dallas deserve a lot of credit" (for what, he didn't say).

Where is the man who should have followed, standing before that torn body saying:

O, pardon me, thou bleeding piece of earth,
That I am meek and gentle
with these butchers!
Thou art the ruins of the noblest man
That ever lived in the tide of times.
Woe to the hand that shed this costly blood!
Over thy wounds now do I prophesy,—
Which, like dumb mouths, do
ope their ruby lips,
To beg the voice and utterance of my tongue,—
A curse shall light upon the limbs of men;
Domestic fury, fierce civil strife . . .

But no one did, for they were all, all honourable men.

But, enough of that. We buried John Kennedy—that's what we do to fallen heroes in this modern age—BURY THEM. The Vikings sent their dead to Valhalla in ships of flame on a sea of blue under the red sky of the setting sun. I think Mr. Kennedy would have liked that better than the metal box and the wagon.

At the last, when the earth yawned to receive him, they lifted the flag from the box, playing "Eternal Father strong to save . . ." and folded the flag, the administration, the hopes the dreams, PT109, the Life of John Fitzgerald Kennedy into a neat package, ("This is My Body"—My blood is the tears of the People) handed it to his wife, and then we all went home.

A LIVING MEMORIAL

On The Eternal Light

by CARI CLARK

These nine or ten days have wrought an intense change in us, a change straining to burst forth in action at the first opportunity. We stand embued with new, or actually rediscovered, dedication. Feelings surge within us which appear to be new, because never in our lifetime has a man died in order to incite them.

Most of us don't consider ourselves Americans in the black-and-white, flag-waving sense, and we're rather distrustful of people who do, for we doubt the validity of their emotion. The highly critical attitude inculcated in us by advanced education is an indisputable factor, enabling us to recognize the grey areas of idealism and both the strengths and weaknesses of our nation. The events of these days have not changed this situation; now, least of all, do we need blind flag wavers. Rather, these events have brought sorely-needed light to our eyes, starkly revealing our relationship to our country and its needs. No longer can we be free to stand and criticize only. Such passiveness in action makes us unwitting objects of our own criticism. No. If this death is to have any meaning at all in our lives (and we cannot think otherwise, or we cannot think at all) it must stir us unavoidably to action. Criticism is essential but incomplete without dedicated effort to erase the blemish, fill the need, cure the ill. We can no longer be still.

The torch bearing an eternal flame has been passed to our generation. We must welcome this challenge—at last—and seek to begin. We pray for strength to write, to speak, to stand boldly and clearly in this time of greatest need, for the burden of responsibility is on us.

May God forgive us that we should have needed this impetus to action, the death of a great man. Forgive us that his life wasn't enough.

A VOICE FROM AFAR

To the Editor:

Friday, November 22, 2:39 EST., I watched the UPI news service tap out a simple message: "MORE KENNEDY BULLETIN XXX IS DEAD. HE WAS SHOT TO DEATH BY AN ASSASSIN IN THE STREETS OF DALLAS. HE WAS 45."

The statement was no rhetorical masterpiece, not even entirely correct; but the message was there, plain and sad. John F. Kennedy was an exceptional man; even a great man. His death stunned a nation with sadness. The funeral tributes paid him were eloquent and appropriate.

However, I have an observation to make, and perhaps a distasteful one. The simplicity of the UPI bulletin, the majesty of the funeral, were only right. Then again, only time can tell this past President's true greatness. Yet, at this moment, there burns an eternal light at his grave.

I don't begrudge a great man honors due (I too mourn his loss). I agree with dedicating buildings and some kind of monument to John F. Kennedy, though I cringe at renaming Cape Canaveral. But show me an eternal light at the grave of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Roosevelt.

Well, let's keep things in proportion. Even mourning Presidents' deaths can be carried too far. We can't extinguish the flame now, but I go on record as saying even if our present analysis of Kennedy's worth is correct, we are still leaving damn few honors for posterity to bestow, by guessing at things in this grief-stricken moment.

D.B.A.

The Massachusetts Collegian

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, Mass. Printed three times weekly during the academic year, except during vacation and examination periods; twice a week the week following a vacation or examination period, or when a holiday falls within the week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1934.
Subscription price $4.00 per year; $2.50 per semester
Office: Student Union, Univ. of Mass., Amherst, Mass.
Member—Associated Collegiate Press; Intercollegiate Press
Deadline: Sun., Tues., Thurs.—4:00 p.m.

Ruchames Calls Abolitionists Most Misunderstood People

by LORNA SASS

The Abolitionists by Rabbi Louis Ruchames was the subject of the second lecture in a three part "Meet the Author" series sponsored by the English Department, December 2, 3 and today at 4 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge. To a small audience, Rabbi Ruchames expounded upon his book's survey of such fiery abolitionist writers as William Lloyd Garrison, John Greenleaf Whitter, and Harriet Beecher Stowe.

"My attitude is biased", Rabbi Ruchames began, "I feel that the abolitionists are the most neglected, misunderstood people in the history of the United States —their views and actions have been terribly distorted." The abolitionists were radical, considering slavery a crime similar to adultery, kidnapping, and

(Continued on page 6)

Library Cites Lack Of Funds, Personell As Cause Of Delay In Book Cataloging

How often have you ordered a book at the Goodell Library only to find that your request is unavailable? Undoubtedly, you have had this experience only too often.

Contrary to what many of us believe, the root of this problem is not the size of Goodell's collection, said Mr. Hugh Montgomery, University Librarian, in a recent interview.

As he sees it, the problem is to catalogue (thus to make available to students) the 18,000 to 20,000 books purchased each year, along with the 15,000 to 18,000 books which are lying on the first level of the library, waiting to be catalogued.

The University library has been growing at a good rate in recent years, but, unfortunately, this increase in the number of books purchased is not in ratio to the increase to the number of cataloguing staff, explained Mr. Montgomery.

"Our methods of cataloguing must also be brought up to date," he added.

From the 145,000 books in the Goodell Library in 1952, we now have 290,000 books, while our catelogue staff had been composed of only three full time employers until three years ago. We now employ a staff of eight, Mr. Montgomery noted.

In search of a more efficient system, the library invited Ralph N. Shaw, of Rutgers Library School to study our problem on Oct. 3 and 4. As a result, the library staff has decided upon a method to streamline our present manual methods rather than to replace them with automation.

Although we may employ automation in the future, Mr. Montgomery explained, it would be too expensive for what it would accomplish now.

Working under the new system, the library should be caught up by next year, Mr. Montgomery said.

To speed up our cataloguing, the library will discontinue use of the Library of Congress catalogue cards, which too often had to be checked for errors.

Rather, Mr. Montgomery explained, they will use the Library of Congress Sheets, and multilith their own cards.

It now takes six weeks from time of arrival to catalogue and get the books on the shelves. This six week period is for current, in-print books. Other books lie in the first floor and wait their turn.

With the new multilith method, the time will be cut to three weeks, and the staff will be able to catch up on the books which are waiting, explained Mr. Montgomery.

Cars Collide In Front Of Theta House

by LOIS SKOLNIK

Two cars driven by University students collided Monday night on North Pleasant St. in front of Kappa Alpha Theta.

A 1956 Ford sedan, driven by William C. Monitle of 81 Meadow St., North Amherst, was struck in the rear by a car driven by Mike McGinty, of 360 Main St., Amherst. Damage to the cars was estimated at $800.

McGinty and Peter Simoneau, a passenger in his car, were admitted to the University Infirmary and held for observation.

Officers Mazzei and Zidik investigated for University police.

WMUA To Present Kennedy Tribute

WMUA's regular programming for tonight, Masterpieces of Western Literature and Humorous readings by Eve Marcus, will be postponed until tomorrow night at 7:00 and 7:30 respectively so that WMUA may present a memorial tribute to John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

The program includes a minute-by-minute coverage of the events concerning our late President's death from 2 P.M. Eastern Standard Time until midnight Friday. The reactions of several different people both on and off campus and a look at Kennedy as a man will also be included. This program will be aired tonight from 7-8 P.M. on WMUA (91.1 FM).

— Notices —

CIVIL RIGHTS

Students for civil rights will meet on Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the S.U.

MOVIE

The recreation club will present the movie "Some Came Running" starring Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, and Shirley MacLaine in the S.U. Ballroom Friday, Dec. 6, at 8 p.m. Admission will be 50¢.

Toronto Symphony . . .

Continued from page 1

Orchestras, the Israel Philharmonic and orchestras in the United States, Europe and South America.

To Feature Soloist

SOLOIST WITH the 85-member Toronto Symphony Orchestra at its appearance on the University campus will be Canadian pianist Ronald Turini. Turini made his U. S. debut in Carnegie Hall three years ago at the age of 23. He has made two European tours and performed in Russia as soloist with the Montreal Symphony. His work has been termed "resplendent" by critics.

LOVE, LET ME NOT HUNGER
by Paul Gallico
In this mature novel of love, hate, and survival, five ill-assorted members of a traveling circus are abandoned by its owner. Their conflicts reveal both selfish purposes and abiding dignity. This major new work adds an exciting dimension to the Paul Gallico magic. $4.75

THE TILSIT INHERITANCE
by Catherine Gaskin
Suspense and romance are interwoven in Catherine Gaskin's solid story of a girl growing up on a Virgin Islands plantation and the struggle for her heart between her taciturn, ghost-ridden father, and her terrifying Aunt Isobel, the sole heir to the mysterious Tilsit Inheritance. $4.95

ZANZIBAR INTRIGUE
by Van Wyck Mason
In one of Van Wyck's best adventure thrillers, Colonel North the man from G-2 races time to rescue a Negro CIA Agent from Zanzibar. A beautiful, amorous widow and a tough Russian agent test the intrepid colonel's reaction time in a fast-moving, baffling case. $3.95

THE LAST LOVE
by Thomas B. Costain
A novel of romance and ambition about Napoleon at St. Helena whose last love was the high-spirited daughter of an English merchant. Costain, a masterful storyteller, brings a fresh perspective to a perennially fascinating hero. $5.95

ICE STATION ZEBRA
by Alistair MacLean
The background in this suspense thriller is authentic, tense and timely. The "hero" is the entire crew of a U. S. nuclear sub, sent to investigate the mysterious disappearance of a British station on the Arctic Ice Cap. Alistair MacLean at his best. $3.95

UNDERCOVER CAT
by The Gordons
Informant X-14 was the key to the FBI's last desperate hope of locating two bank robbers. But he wasn't talking, he was purring! X-14 is a cat who leads the FBI through garbage cans and under cars in a delightful tale of love, suspense and a fickle feline. $3.95

CORTEZ AND MARINA
by Edison Marshall
Edison Marshall tells the story of the greatest conquistador of them all—a magnificent, sweeping biographical novel of the life and loves of Hernando Cortez. $5.95

The UNIVERSITY STORE'S 6th ANNUAL — BOOK & PRINT SALE —
Now thru December 7 — Commonwealth Room — 9 to 6

Peter Pan Travel Service Inc.

144 BRIDGE STREET :: SPRINGFIELD
(Across from Bus Terminal)
Open 9 a.m.-9 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

FOR ALL VACATION and TRANSPORTATION NEEDS

AIRLINE TICKETS AND RESERVATIONS

Tours - Cruises - Sightseeing
Official Tariff Rates

Limousine to Bradley Field
Leaves from Our Front Door

Call Collect to SPRINGFIELD 781-3343

CYTOTECHNOLOGIST

with experience in screening Papanicolaou smears needed for full or part time work in hospital laboratory. Salary according to experience. Contact: Director of Personnel, Cooley Dickinson Hospital, Northampton, Mass. Office Hours: 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Attention SENIOR and GRADUATE MEN Students
WHO NEED SOME FINANCIAL HELP IN ORDER TO COMPLETE THEIR EDUCATION THIS YEAR AND WILL THEN COMMENCE WORK.
Apply to STEVENS BROS. FOUNDATION, INC.
A Non-Profit Educational Fdn. 610 ENDICOTT BLDG., ST. PAUL 1, MINN.
UNDERGRADS, CLIP AND SAVE

THE UNIVERSITY MUSEUM

Birds, Beetles, And Brontosauri

by LINDA VALONEN

Did you ever see 2000 eggs all at once—eggs of birds from all over the world? Did you ever see jars upon jars upon jars of "pickeled" toothed minnows of whirligig betties lined up like black buttons row after row after row, or a drawer of stuffed sparrows or Bryosan fossils?

These are only a minute fraction of the contents of our University museum located in Morrill Science Center.

A look into the past of our museum reveals a start in approximately 1850 when specimens still in use today were collected. To acquire the specimens, the University has gained in several ways. The students and staff members themselves, both in class and outside class, have displayed initiative and skill in collecting and gathering Amherst specimens as well as from the state, region, and world. In this way we have acquired many of the animals, birds, and insects we now have.

Many gifts of collections, both private and from other institutions have been made to the University. There is also a system of exchange with other colleges whereby an overabundance of a particular specimen in our collection may remedy a lack of the particular specimen in another college museum, and thereby a system of exchange can be employed.

Advertising has brought some gain as has purchase from companies specializing in collection and distribution of specimens. The advertising for certain birds' eggs alone brought in 1000 more to the original collection.

Thus, we now have system-

(Continued on page 5)

THE FOLK SCENE

Buffy, Blues, And Baez

by BOB WEBER

Just about two years ago, the song "Michael" was a juke box hit. This song is one of the best known of a group which was collected in the Georgia Sea Islands. Consisting of swamps, marshes, and small islands, this area is on the coast of Georgia, as the name implies.

From the beginning of slave trade in the colonies, escaped slaves, and later when emancipation came, freed slaves slowly migrated to this area due to its inaccessability. Because they were left ot themselves they preserved almost intact the American Negro culture of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. These songs and dances reflect a different and beautiful amalgamation of African and white American culture and tradition.

Other songs which have become more familiar to us include "Sail Away Ladies" as sung by Odetta and Joan Baez, among others. Anyone looking for new material might look for collections of songs, either in print or on record, taken from this area.

Joan Baez has a 45 r.p.m. record and surprising enough, it has been placed in the Hatch juke box. One side is "We Shall Overcome." This is just another indication of the popularity of folk and topical songs.

Buffy St. Marie has signed a contract with Vanguard and her

(Continued on page 5)

METAWAMPE The Guiding Spirit

by CAROL MOORE

Two hundred and eighty-nine years ago, an Indian chief sold a tract of land to white settlers in the Sunderland - Montague area. Today, nearly three centuries later, that Indian chief—Metawampe—is the guiding spirit of the University of Massachusetts.

Part of the land deeded by Metawampe now boasts the forest preserve at Mt. Toby, where experimental work by the University's forestry and wildlife management department is carried on.

Little is known of the legendary Nonotuck chieftain Metawampe, who dwells on campus in the form of a three-quarter lifesize bronze statue currently located across the walk from College Pond. The statue was originally placed before Old Chapel, facing East.

Cast by the renowned American sculptor Randolph Johnson, the statue of Metawampe was presented during 1951 Winter Carnival festivities.

The permanent symbol of the University was the gift of the class of 1950.

The Indian tradition was, however, revived prior to Metawampe's arrival on campus. In 1948, athletic teams had been rechristened as the Redmen. Before that time, they were known simply as the "State team" or the "Maroons."

Another "Indian" tradition, lost now except in name, was the annual satirical Class Night Pipe and Hatchet orations originated by Marshall Lanphear, former University Registrar.

Campus legend reveals Lanphear, dressed in full Indian regalia as the Nonotuck chieftain himself, appealing to the legendary guiding spirit of Metawampe to endow the University, its staff and its students with knowledge, insight and character befitting the highest traditions of the University.

There will be a
Near Eastern Dance
on Friday, Dec. 6
8 - 11:30 p.m.
at Farley Lodge
Admission: 25¢ Cheap
"SEE YOU AT THE CASBAH?"
(Sponsored by the Orthodox Club)

WHAT'S NEW IN THE DECEMBER ATLANTIC?

"Berlin: The Broken City": A Special 45-page Supplement. A border guard lieutenant, an East German textbook editor, distinguished Berlin novelist Gunter Grass and 7 other informed observers report on: The Political Cabarets, The Young Germans, Why the Guards Defect, Writers in Berlin, Berlin's Economic Future, and other subjects. Plus a photographic report on the rebuilding of Berlin.

ALSO

"The Supreme Court and Its Critics": Judge Irving R. Kaufman discusses the extent to which the Supreme Court appears to have taken on an educative function and how such change can be justified.

Stories and Poems by: Dudley Fitts, N. J. Berrill, Ted Hughes, Peter Davison, Muriel Rukeyser, Sallie Bingham, Jesse Hill Ford, Jeannette Nichols and others.

The pursuit of excellence is the everyday job of The Atlantic's editors be it in fiction or fact, poetry or prose. In ever-increasing numbers, those in pursuit of academic excellence find in The Atlantic a challenging, entertaining and enlightening companion. Get your copy today.

ON SALE NOW

SASHA SPEAKS

Beware Of Beards And Blizzards

Ever since the Ides of March, certain dates have been marked as portending doom. This summer, in our own University area, a prophecy was made to warn students and townspeople alike of forthcoming danger.

It all happened on a hot July day when UMie, acting as assistant tree surgeon in the autopsy of a recently felled elm on North Pleasant street was greeted by an APPARITION. As the mighty elm was heaving its last gasp, from beneath the felled branches hopped a leaf and lichen covered old man. Now, the UMie had heard rumors of fairies on campus, but like any good All American boy, he never had dared to investigate further. Shocked by the immediacy of the confrontation the poor student could only jibber. Perhaps it was but a fraternity pledge or a dirty beatnik (the thing wore a beard).

At long last, It spoke, muttering through a moss-encrusted goatee, "Don't."

The UMie was puzzled. Surely the old man didn't mean the same thing as the Dean of Men had talked about....

"Don't make any plans for the tweifth of December—big blizzard—worst in years—mene, mene...." And with that, the poltergeist scampered to the Drake, it being peanut night.

And so, verily I say unto you, all who truly believe in prophecies and myths, the Great Pumpkin, the veracity of fortune cookies, and the Divine Right of the Student Senate—TAKE HEED! Bundle up for the tweifth—and show your faith in Bearded Prophets.

With Christmas so soon that you can count the days on your fingers and toes of yourself and your roommate, a gift suggestion or two is certainly in order.

For that reluctant professor, Traynor's of Boston offers perfumed horse manure—certainly much more sophisticated and subtle than the cruder bovine material now being used. At $2 per 100 cubic inches it is easily within reach of the student budget. Sling some at the next hour exam—you're guaranteed to win that A by a nose!

And for an old Abbey girl there is nothing like a touch of nostalgia: Robert Holzman's profusely illustrated The Romance of Fire Fighting, offered at the Book Clearing House for the amazing price of only $3.69.

Friday, December 6th, an Olivetti Underwood Representative will be on campus to talk with graduate and undergraduate students interested in the following training programs:

Manufacturing & Service
Sales & Marketing
Finance & Accounting

For an interview contact the Placement Director.

ON OTHER CAMPI

by DON JOHNSON

RENSSELAER I.F.C. SUPPORTS FOSTER CHILD

